Sec. 22.—See 63 Cal. 1047 noted under sec. 3, supra. There is nothing in the Act which bars a suit for damages against licensee for failure to supply energy on proper requisition. 97 I.C. 537=1926 Lah. 349. Before a consumer can be supplied electric power from a new connection in substitution of an old one he must put in a fresh requisition in writing under paras. 4 and 5 of cl. (6) of the Schedule to the Act. 49 Bom. 182=26 Bom. L.R. 1206=1925 Bom. 120. A person entitled to supply of energy under sec. 22 of the Act, has a cause of action for a suit for damages on account of licensee's failure to supply energy according to sec. 22 and para. 6 to the schedule. A Civil Court including the Judge, Small Cause Court has jurisdiction to entertain such C.C.M.—282 suit. From the general scheme of the Act it is clear that most of the disputes are to be decided by arbitration. If the intention was to bar the civil remedy a similar provision would have been inserted for the breach of sec. 22 also. 1941 A.L.W. 450=1941 O.W.N. 606=I.L.R. (1941) All. 425=1941 All. 301.

Sec. 23.—See 63 Cal. 1047 noted under sec. 3, supra. A consumer of electricity employing electrical machinery is entitled with his own premises to use all reasonable tests which might be necessary to discover a defect. It is not obligatory on anyone, whatever machinery he may happen to use to call in an expert on every occasion when something goes wrong. A man is entitled, if he is able, to remedy defects himself in his own plant. If, in the case of electric supply, it is a reasonable test for a consumer to use an electric lamp and if he bona fide uses a lamp for this purpose without permission, sec. 23 has no application nor is he guilty under sec. 39 as his action does not amount to dishonest abstraction of the company's electric energy. 151 I. cl. (c) of sec. 23 (3) cannot be interpreted as preventing the Government from utilising either method with such modifications as they think fit. 35 C.W.N. 933. Per Graham, J.—Sec. 23 (3) seems to give the licensee the option of adopting any one of the three methods mentioned. (Ibid.) The consumer and the supplier may enter into any agreement as to the charge for supply of energy subject to the limitation mentioned in sec. 23. The system adopted cannot be said to amount to a double system of charge and the consumer is bound to pay the charges as agreed. (Ibid.)

Sec. 23 (3) (c).—Sec. 23 (3) (c) contemplates charges made on the basis of consumption. It does not authorise a licensee to levy minimum charges without any agreement with the consumer. Nor can the licensee invoke cl. (c) of sec. 23 (3) to support its claim for minimum charges when the Local Government has not exercised their powers under that clause by a notification under it. 63 Cal. 1047=40 C.W.N. 789=A.I.R. 1936 Cal. 265.

SEC. 24: POWERS UNDER—CONDITIONS OF EXERCISE.—The power to discontinue supply to a premises is power given in addition to the rights to realise the arrears by a suit; and this statutory power should be exercised in good faith and reasonably, and only as a last resort after all the formalities laid down in the Act had been complied with. 62 Cal. resort after all the formalities laid down in 886=39 C.W.N. 526=61 C.L.J. 111=1935 C. 298.

NOTICE.—The notice under this section is purely for the protection of the consumer, and no question of public policy is involved in it. So, it is open to the consumer to waive the notice if he so desires. 20 N.L.J. 200=171 I.C. 640=A.I.R. 1937 Nag. 379.

SEC. 24 AND SCH. II, CL. (vi).—The licensee must bear the charge of the service line whether the consumer has paid the initial expenditure or not. The licensee can discontinue the supply of energy if the consumer's installation is defective. In case of any alleged defect, the licensee can refer the matter to an Electric Inspector and he is to decide the matter. If energy is supplied to the consumer knowing that the installation is defective the consumer will not pay for a new fuse or cut-out if the old melts on account of defective installation. 45 I.C. 171.

25. Where any electric supply-lines, meters, fittings, works or apparatus belonging to a licensee are placed in or upon any premises, not being in the possession of the licensee, for the purpose of supplying energy, such electric supply-lines, meters, fittings, works and apparatus shall not be liable to be taken in execution under any process of any Civil Court or in any proceedings, in insolvency against the person in whose possession the same may be.

26. Provided that the licensee may require the consumer to give him security for the price of a meter and enter into an agreement for the hire thereof, unless the consumer elects to purchase a meter.

(2) Where the consumer so enters into an agreement for the hire of a meter, the licensee shall keep the meter correct, and, in default of his doing so, the consumer shall, for so long as the default continues, cease to be liable to pay for the hire of the meter.

(3) Where the meter is the property of the consumer, he shall keep the meter correct, and, in default, of his doing so, the licensee may, after giving him seven days' notice, for so long as the default continues, cease to supply energy through the meter.

(4) The licensee or any person duly authorised by the licensee shall, at any reasonable time and on informing the consumer of his intention, have access to, and be at liberty to inspect and test, and for that purpose, if he thinks fit, take off and remove, any meter referred to in sub-section (1) ; and, except where the meter is so hired as aforesaid, all reasonable expenses of, and incidental to, such inspecting, testing, taking off and removing shall, if the meter is found to be otherwise than correct, be recovered from the consumer; and, where any difference or dispute arises as to the amount of such reasonable expenses, the matter shall be referred to an Electric Inspector, and the decision of such Inspector shall be final :

Provided that the licensee shall not be at liberty to take off or remove, any such meter if any difference or dispute of the nature described in sub-section (6) has arisen until the matter has been determined as therein provided.

(5) A consumer shall not connect any meter referred to in sub-section (1) with any electric supply-line through which energy is supplied by a licensee, or disconnect the same from any such electric supply-line, without giving to the licensee not less than forty-eight hours' notice in writing of his intention.

(6) Where any difference or dispute arises as to whether any meter referred to in sub-section (1) is or is not correct, the matter shall be decided, upon the application of either party, by an Electric Inspector, or by a competent person specially appointed by the Provincial Government in this behalf; and, where the meter has, in the opinion of such Inspector or person, ceased to be correct, such Inspector or person shall estimate the amount of the energy supplied to the consumer or the electrical quantity contained in the supply, during such time as the meter shall not, in the opinion of such Inspector or person, have been correct, * * * * *; and where the matter has been decided by any person other than the Electric Inspector, an appeal shall lie to the Inspector, whose decision shall in every case be final: but, save as aforesaid, the register of the meter shall, in the absence of fraud, be conclusive proof of such amount or quantity:

²[Provided that, before either a licensee or a consumer applies to the Electric Inspector under this sub-section, he shall give to the other party not less than seven days' notice of his intention so to do.]

(7) In addition to any meter which may be placed upon the premises of a consumer in pursuance of the provisions of sub-section (1), the licensee may place upon such premises such meter, maximum demand indicator or other apparatus as he may think fit for the purpose of ascertaining or regulating either the amount of energy supplied to the consumer, or the number of hours during which the supply to given, or the rate per unit of time at which energy is supplied to the consumer, or any other quantity or time connected with the supply:

Provided that the meter, indicator or apparatus shall not, in the absence of an agreement to the contrary, be placed otherwise than between the distributing mains of the licensee and any meter referred to in sub-section (1):

Provided also, that, where the charges for the supply of energy depend wholly or partly upon the reading or indication of any such meter, indicator or apparatus as aforesaid, the licensee shall, in the absence of an agreement to the contrary, keep the meter, indicator, or apparatus correct; and the provisions of sub-sections (4), (5) and (6) shall in that case apply as though the meter, indicator or apparatus were a meter referred to in sub-section (1).

Explanation.—A meter shall be deemed to be "correct" if it registers the amount of energy supplied, or the electrical quantity contained in the supply, within the prescribed limits of error, and a maximum demand indicator or other apparatus referred to in sub-section (7) shall be deemed to be "correct" if it complies with such conditions as may be prescribed in the case of any such indicator or other apparatus.

27. Notwithstanding anything in this Act, the Provincial Government may by order in writing, and subject to such conditions and restrictions, if any, as it thinks fit to impose, authorise any licensee to supply energy to any person outside the area of supply, and to lay down and place electric supply lines for that purpose:

Provided, first, that no such authority shall be conferred on the licensee within the area of supply of another licensee without that licensee's consent, unless the Provincial Government considers that his consent has been unreasonably withheld:

Provided, secondly, that such authority shall not be conferred unless the person to whom the supply is to be given has entered into a specific agreement with the licensee for the taking of such supply:

Provided, thirdly, that a licensee on whom such authority has been conferred shall not be deemed to be empowered outside the area of supply to open or break up any street, or any sewer, drain or tunnel in or under any street, railway or tramway, or to interfere with any telegraph-line, without the written consent of the local authority or person by whom such street, sewer, drain or tunnel is repairable.

SUPPLY, TRANSMISSION AND USE OF ENERGY BY NON-LICENSEES.

(2) Where any difference or dispute arises as to whether any person is or is not engaging, or about to engage, in the business of supplying energy within the meaning of sub-section (1), the matter shall be referred to the Provincial Government and the decision of the Provincial Government thereon shall be final.

29. (1) The local authority may, by order in writing, confer and impose upon any person, who has obtained the sanction of the Provincial Government under section 28 to engage in the business of supplying energy, all or any of the powers and liabilities of a licensee under sections 12 to 19 both inclusive, and the provisions of the said sections shall thereupon apply as if such person were a licensee under Part II.

(2) A local authority, not being a licensee, shall, for the purpose of lighting any street, have the powers and be subject to the liabilities respectively conferred and imposed by sections 12 to 19, both inclusive, so far as applicable, as if it were a licensee under Part II.

(3) In cases other than those for which provision is made by sub-section (1), the person responsible for the repair of any street may, by order in writing, confer and impose upon any person who proposes to transmit energy in such street all or any of the powers and liabilities of a licensee under sections 12 to 19 (both inclusive), in so far as the same relate to—

(a) opening or breaking up of the soil or pavement of such street, or
(b) laying down or placing electric supply-lines in, under, along or across such street, or

(c) repairing, altering or removing such electric supply-lines, and thereupon the provisions of the said sections shall, so far as aforesaid, apply to such person as if he were a licensee under Part II.

(4) If no order is made within fourteen days after the receipt of an application for the same under sub-section (1) or sub-section (3), the order so applied for shall be deemed to have been refused, and every order, and every refusal to make an order, under sub-section (1) or sub-section (3), shall be subject to revision by the Provincial Government.

GENERAL.

Protective Clauses.

31. No person shall, in the generation, transmission, supply or use of energy, in any way injure any railway, tramway, canal or water-way or any dock, wharf or pier vested in or controlled by a local authority, or obstruct or interfere with the traffic on any railway, tramway, canal or water-way.

32. (1) Every person generating, transmitting, supplying or using energy (hereinafter in this section referred to as the "operator") shall take all reasonable precautions in constructing, laying down and placing his electric supply-lines and otherworks and in working his system so as not injuriously to affect, whether by induction or otherwise, the working of any wire or line used for the purpose of telegraphic, telephonic or electric-signalling communication, or the currents in such wire or line.

(2) Where any difference or dispute arises between the operator and the telegraph-authority as to whether the operator has constructed, laid down or placed his electric supply-lines or other works, or worked his system, in contravention of sub-section (1), or as to whether the working of any wire, line or current is or is not injuriously affected thereby, the matter shall be referred to the ¹[Central Government]; and the ¹[Central Government], unless ²[it] is of opinion that the wire or line has been placed in unreasonable proximity to the electric supply-lines or works of the operator after the construction of such lines or works, may direct the operator to make such alterations in, or additions to, his system as may be necessary in order to comply with the provisions of this section, and the operator shall make such alterations or additions accordingly :

Provided that nothing in this sub-section shall apply to the repair, renewal or amendment of any electric supply-line so long as the course of the electric supply-line and the amount and nature of the energy transmitted thereby are not altered.

(3) Where the operator makes default in complying with the requirements of this section, he shall make full compensation for any loss or damage incurred by reason thereof, and, where any difference or dispute arises as to the amount of such compensation, the matter shall be determined by arbitration.

Explanation.—For the purposes of this section, a telegraph-line shall be deemed to be injuriously affected if telegraphic, telephonic or electric-signalling communication by means of such line is, whether through induction or otherwise, prejudicially interfered with by an electric supply-line or work or by any use made thereof.

33. ³[(1) If any accident occurs in connection with the generation, transmission, supply or use of energy in, or in connection with, any part of the electric supply-lines or other works of any person, and the accident results or is likely to have resulted in loss of life or personal injury, such person shall give notice of the occurrence, and of any loss of life or personal injury, actually occasioned by the accident, in such form and within such time and to such authorities as the Provincial Government may, by general or special order, direct.]

"COMMERCIAL PREMISES"—MEANING OF—COFFEE-HOTEL.—"Commercial premises" in the context of the classification rules for electric supply by an electric licensee means nothing more than "premises used for purposes of business". The words cannot be read as being in contradiction to trade premises. Premises used for running a coffee-hotel must be regarded as "Commercial premises" for the purpose of fixing rates for the supply of electric energy. 53 L.W. 359=A.I.R. 1941 Mad. 439=(1941) 1 M.L.J. 411.

RULES 31 AND 37.—The provisions of r. 31 deal with the point of commencement of supply of energy by the licensee to the consumer and not with the question of control over an electric line as a matter of fact. R. 31 is one of the rules relating to the conditions of

(2) In particular and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing power, such rules may—

(a) prescribe the form of applications for licenses and the payments to be made in respect thereof;

(b) regulate the publication of notices;

(c) prescribe the manner in which objections with reference to any application under Part II are to be made;

(d) provide for the preparation and submission of accounts by licensees in a specified form;

(e) provide for the securing of a regular, constant and sufficient supply of energy by licensees to consumers and for the testing at various parts of the system of the regularity and sufficiency of such supply, and for the examination of the records of such tests by consumers;

supply which is a matter of concern between the licensee and the consumer rather than a matter affecting the public; whereas r. 37 is one of the rules of precaution for the safety of the public. A.I.R. 1933 R. 70=11 Rang. 162=34 Cr.L.J. 1040. R. 37 applies to all electric supply lines, and in considering whether the case is governed by r. 37 or not; it is unnecessary to determine whether the line in question is a service-line or not. Under r. 37 the licensee is responsible that all electric supply lines under his control, even if they are on a consumer's premises, are maintained in a safe condition. In truth and in fact the consumer gets the use of the control of the electric current only when it reaches his switch and not as soon as it passes through the meter. (Ibid.) See also 41 Bom.L.R. 878. Where a consumer elects to take a supply of energy from the licensee's distributing main at any point outside his premises, and receives the supply through the licensee's meter, and has it conveyed through a line constructed by himself, it cannot be said the obligation to keep in a safe condition the line and works from the point of commencement of supply (i.e., the meter) to the consumer's premises and also the line and works on the consumer's premises, is cast upon the consumer and not on the licensee; such a contention runs counter to the object and effect of the Electricity Act. The licensee is not entitled by agreement with the consumer to release himself from the obligation to see that the line, apparatus and works by which electricity is transmitted, so long as he retains control of them, are maintained in a safe condition because this obligation is cast upon him not merely for the benefit of the consumer and the licensee, but also for the protection and in the interest of the public generally. Where therefore the licensee allows the stay wire in the road to be in an unsafe condition the licensee fails to perform an obligation imposed upon him under the Act and is guilty of a breach of r. 37 and can be convicted under r. 107. But a conviction in the alternative under r. 107 and sec. 47 however is not in accordance with law, for, the case falls neither under sec. 236 nor sec. 367 (3), Cr.P. Code. 1933 Cr. C. 477=1933 R. 70. The evidence for the prosecution showed that when the officials of a licensee company visited the premises of the accused the seals which the company had affixed to the meter had been removed. Held, that the accused must be held responsible for removing these seals and that his conviction under r. 106 read with r. 37 (4) was justified. 116 I.C. 889=1929 L. 867.

R. 40-A: BOMBAY GOVERNMENT NOTIFICATION DATED 15-11-1934—"THEIR OWN WORKS"—INTERPRETATION OF.—The words "their own works" in the notification dated 15-11-1934, issued by the Government of Bombay under r. 40-A of the Electricity Rules, 1922, cannot be interpreted as being limited to works carried out on the premises of the various bodies referred to there. The words mean works carried out by the exempted bodies themselves or perhaps works belonging to them; and by "works" is meant the kind of works referred to in the rule and not the kind of works referred to in the definition in the Electricity Act. 43 Bom.L.R. 99=1941 Bom. 100; see also I.L.R. (1939) Bom. 496.

R. 48 of the Indian Electricity Rules, 1937, introduced by the Notification dated 27-3-1937, did not come into force until 22-3-1938; and r. 48 cannot therefore apply to any installation works carried out before 22-3-1938, and after March, 1937. Nor would the old r. 40-A of the Electricity Rules, 1922, apply, because under the Notification of 23-3-1937 the old r. 40-A was superseded when the new rules were made applicable on 27-3-1937. Sec. 24 of the General Clauses Act of 1897 is of no avail in such a case and r. 40-A of the old cannot be regarded as superseded only when the new rule 48, came into force because the Notification of March, 1937 expressly superseded the rules of 1922. 43 Bom.L.R. 99=1941 Bom. 100.

"Commercial premises" in the context of the classification rules for electric supply by an electric licensee means nothing more than "premises used for purposes of business". The words cannot be read as being in contradiction to trade premises. Premises used for running a coffee-hotel, must be regarded as "Commercial premises" for the purpose of fixing rates for the supply of electric energy. 1941 M.W.N. 253=53 L.W. 859=(1941) 1 M.L.J. 411.

R. 106: Quære.—Whether r. 106 of the rules framed under the Electricity Act is ultra vires of the rule making power conferred by sec. 37 (4). 172 I.C. 940=39 Cr.L.J. 206=18 P.L.T. 968=A.I.R. 1938 Pat. 15. The definition of 'consumer' includes any person who is supplied with energy by a licensee, any person whose premises are for the time being connected for the purposes of a supply of energy with the works of the licensee. Therefore in a prosecution for offences under sec. 44 and r. 106, prima facie it should be enough to prove either that energy was supplied for the use of the persons or that the persons were owners or occupiers of premises connected up with the licensee's electric system. 172 I.C. 940=18 P.L.T. 986=A.I.R. 1938 Pat. 15. It is clear from the provisions of sec. 37 of the Electricity Act that r. 106 was one which the Government of India had power to make and the necessity of a rule fixing responsibility for the integrity of the seals of the meter fixed on the consumer's premises is obvious. It is equally obvious that in case of a conviction under r. 106, although the breaking of a seal on a meter fixed on a consumer's premises is sufficient to render the consumer liable to a fine, the fine would be adapted to the circumstances of the case. 151

I.C. 1039=1934 N. 245. Rule 106 is unreasonable and repugnant to the general principles of law, and is in excess of the powers conferred by s. 37 (4). It is also inconsistent with the provisions of s. 44 of the Act. Consequently this rule is ultra vires of the Governor-General in Council and is therefore invalid. 12 r. 515=35 Cr.L.J. 1364=A.I.R. 1934 r. 178.

R. 107.—R. 107 framed under sec. 37 of the Act imposes penalties only on licensees and owners (i.e., experts). It is not applicable to consumers, who are not experts. The only rules which any non-expert can observe are rr. 29 and 40-A which are provided for by rr. 106 and 106-A. 60 Bom. 770=37 Cr.L.J. 1124=38 Bom.L.R. 494=A.I.R. 1936 Bom. 327.

Under r. 123 it is not the workman who actually carries out the installation that is guilty of any offence; it is only the person under whose immediate supervision the work is carried out that is liable to punishment under the rule. R. 62 (3) (a): LIABILITY UNDER—CIVIL RIGHTS.—The civil rights of a person would not in any way protect him against criminal liability for his acts and omissions under r. 62 (3) (a) of the Indian Electricity Rules. He has every right to move against the Electric Supply Co., to have the wire removed from over his land, but the wire being where it is he is not justified in law in effecting additions and alterations in his house making the aerial line running over land accessible otherwise than by the aid of a ladder or other special appliance. 15 Pat.L.T. 761=1934 P. 523.

of law. 12 R. 515=35 Cr.L.J. 1364=1934 R. 178. The definite policy underlying the penal rules framed under sec. 37 is to make licensees and owners who are experts, having or supposed to have some knowledge of the technical matters relating to electricity liable for breaches of the rules. An owner as defined under the rules is a sort of quasi-licensee; a person who is not a licensee, but authorised by Government under Part III of the Act to supply energy. The rules however, clearly are not part of the Act, and the provision in sec. 38 (4) giving them the same force as if they had been enacted by the Act does not make them so. 60 Bom. 770=38 Bom.L.R. 434=37 Cr.L.J. 1124=A.I.R. 1936 Bom. 327.

Sec. 39.—The word "dishonestly" is a legal expression having the same sense as that in which it is used in the Penal Code. 27 I.C. 591.

against an individual. Such proof must naturally be circumstantial in character. Where the person charged is the lessee or owner of the house and the consumer of the electricity (that is, the person who is officially on the company's books as the consumer in the particular house) and where there is a large and obvious erection on the roof of the house or in any part the house, where it could not possibly escape the notice of the consumer and where in addition the person charged is the only person who would gain advantage from the theft of the electricity, the charge under s. 39 is made out. 146 I.C. 814=1933 A. L.J. 1175. S. 39 does not say that dishonest abstraction or consumption or use of energy is theft. S. 39 means no more than that the offender is to be tried in the same way as if he had committed the offence of theft. A.I.R. 1936 Cal. 753. Abstraction is not always a necessary ingredient for an offence under s. 39. The consuming of electricity and the regular causing of the record of that use in the shape of the figures on the dials in the meters to be altered, amounts to a dishonest user within the meaning of sec. 39, and the persons causing or allowing the alteration of the figures on the dial must be deemed to have committed theft within the meaning of sec. 379, Penal Code. (Ibid.)

OFFENCE UNDER SECTION.—CONSUMER USING ELECTRICAL MACHINERY.—Bona fide CONDUCT.—A consumer employing electrical machinery is entitled within his own premises to use all reasonable tests which might be necessary to discover a defect. It is not obligatory on any one, whatever machinery he may happen to use, to call in an expert on every occasion

40. Whoever maliciously causes energy to be wasted or diverted, or, with intent to cut off the supply of energy, cuts or injures, or attempts to cut or injure, any electric supply-line or works, shall be punishable with imprisonment for a term which may extend to two years, or with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees, or with both.

41. Whoever, in contravention of the provisions of section 28, engages in the business of supplying energy shall be punishable with fine which may extend to three thousand rupees, and, in the case of a continuing contravention, with a daily fine which may extend to three hundred rupees.

Penalty for illegal or defective supply or for non-compliance with order.

42. Whoever—

(a) being a licensee, save as permitted under section 27 or section 51 or by his license, supplies energy or lays down or places any electric supply-line or works outside the area of supply; or,

(b) being a licensee, in contravention of the provisions of this Act or of the rules thereunder or in breach of the conditions of his license and without reasonable excuse, the burden of proving which shall lie on him, discontinues the supply of energy or fails to supply energy; or

(c) makes default in complying with any order issued to him under section 34, sub-section (2); shall be punishable with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees, and, in the case of a continuing offence or default, with a daily fine which may extend to one hundred rupees.

43. Whoever in contravention of the provisions of section 30, transmits or uses energy without giving the notice required thereby, shall be punishable with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees, and, in the case of a continuing offence, with a daily fine which may extend to fifty rupees.

Penalty for interference with meters or licensee's works and for improper use of energy.

when something goes wrong. A man is entitled, if he is able, to remedy defects himself in his own plant. If, in the electric supply, it is reasonable for a consumer to use an electric lamp and he bona fide uses a lamp for this purpose without permission, sec. 23 has no application nor is he guilty under s. 39 as his action does not amount to dishonest abstraction of the company's electric energy. 151 I. C. 19=35 Cr. L.J. 1274=1934 A. 320.

SECS. 39 AND 44 (c).—Sec. 39 dispenses with direct proof of abstraction by the accused person, but does not indicate the person who is to be held liable for the constructive abstraction. Sec. 44 (c) also enables a presumption to be raised, under certain circumstances, that the prevention of a meter from duly registering itself has been knowingly and wilfully caused by the consumer in whose custody or control the meter is proved to be. But the prosecution cannot avail itself of this statutory presumption as against an accused person unless that person is shown to be a consumer within the meaning of sec. 2 (c). 1938 P.W.N. 182=19 P.L.T. 141=A.I.R. 1938 Pat. 243. Where an offence falls under both secs. 39 and 44 (c) the mere fact that a charge could have been made under sec. 44 (c) does not prevent a charge made under sec. 39 from being properly made especially where the offence under sec. 39 is clearly established. Sec. 39 is in fact the major offence. 65 I.A. 158=42 C.W.N. 621=1938 A.L.J. 382=174 I.C. 1=A.I.R. 1938 P.C. 130=(1938) 1 M. L.J. 647 (P.C.). Secs. 39 and 44, Electricity Act, are to be considered as separate enactments for purposes of sec. 26, General Clauses Act. A.I.R. 1936 Cal. 753.

SECS. 39 AND 50: THEFT OF ELECTRIC ENERGY.—PERSONS AUTHORISED TO PROSECUTE.—S. 39 creates an offence, and prosecution for the theft of electric energy can be instituted only by one of the persons mentioned in sec. 50. Where the prosecution is not instituted at the instance of the Government or an Electric Inspector but by the Executive Officer of a Cantonment Board who are licensees for distribution of electric energy, the proceedings are liable to be quashed in the absence of evidence to show that the Executive Officer has authority from the Board to institute the proceedings, as he cannot be deemed to be an aggrieved person within the meaning of sec. 50. 37 P.L.R. 758.

Sec. 44.—The latter part of sec. 44 of the Act does not exonerate the prosecution from discharging the onus which lies on it to show that there has been improper use of the energy of a licensee, but merely provides that in case there has been such improper use, the

SEC. 44 (b) OF THE ACT does not require that the "works" laid or connected up with any other works belonging to the licensee must also be works belonging to the licensee. I.L.R. 1939 Bom. 496=41 Bom.L.R. 878=A.I.R. 1939 Bom. 480. "Works" as defined by sec. 2 (n) of the Electricity Act, include electricity supply lines. The point at which the supply of energy by a licensee to a consumer shall be deemed to commence, where the amount supplied is ascertained by meter, is the point at which the conductor enters the meter, in view of sec. 35 read with sec. 19-A of the Act. The supply line up to the point at which it enters the meter constitutes "works" within the meaning of sec. 2 (n). Where a person therefore removes the meter board to a new position, after breaking open the seals which had been placed by the licensee upon the meter, laying additional lines from the former position of the meter up to its new position, his act amounts to an offence under sec. 44 (b) of the Electricity Act as well as an offence under r. 31 (1) read with r. 122 (a) of the Electricity Rules, I.L.R. (1939) Bom. 496=41 Bom.L.R. 878=A.I.R. 1939 Bom. 480. The words "connects up" in s. 44 (b) of the Act cannot be construed as extending only to the workman or man who actually does the physical work. The words embrace the whole process of connecting the wires in an installation with other wires for the purpose of communicating with the works of the licensee. There is no doubt that the words "connects up" include the house-holder who gives instructions to connect up, the contractor, if any, through whom those instructions are transmitted to the workman and the workman who actually does the work. 1942 Bom. 76=44 Bom.L.R. 800.

Sec. 50.—Sec. 50 of the Act applies to a prosecution under sec. 379, I.P. Code, read with sec. 89 of the Act for the theft of electricity. An offence of this nature is an offence against the Electricity Act as it would not have been an offence under s. 379, I.P. Code, if it had not been for the provisions of sec. 39 of that Act. It is an offence which is created by that section and the Legislature intended sec. 50 to apply to an offence of this nature. 165 I.C. 689=1936 A.L.J. 955=A.I.R. 1936 All. 742. The phrase "at the instance of" in sec. 50 means merely at the solicitation of or at the request of. Where a prosecution under the Act is instituted by the police on report from the Electric Company whose officers come into Court and give evidence, the prosecution is really at the instance of the Electric Company who is a 'person aggrieved', although they may not make the immediate complaint on which the Magistrate takes cognizance of the offence. 1936

(d) where any other person is the addressee, at the usual or last known place of abode or business of the person.

(2) Every notice, order or document by or under this Act required or authorized to be addressed to the owner or occupier of any premises shall be deemed to be properly addressed if addressed by the description of the "owner" or "occupier" of the premises (naming the premises), and may be served by delivering it, or a true copy thereof, to some person on the premises, or, if there is no person on the premises to whom the same can with reasonable diligence be delivered, by affixing it on some conspicuous part of the premises.

54. Every sum declared to be recoverable by section 5, clause (f), section 6, sub-section (2), section 14, sub-section (2), clause (h), section 16, sub-section (2), section 18, sub-section (2) or sub-section (4), or section 26, sub-section (4) and every fee leviable under this Act, may be recovered, on application to a Magistrate having jurisdiction where the person liable to pay the same is for the time being resident, by the distress and sale of any movable property belonging to such person.

Security and Accounts.

Security for execution of works of licensee not being local authority.

1. Where the licensee is not a local authority, the following provisions as to giving security shall apply, namely :—

(a) The licensee shall within the period fixed in that behalf by his license, or any longer period which the Provincial Government may substitute therefor by order under section 4, sub-section (3), clause (b), of the Indian Electricity Act, 1910, before exercising any of the powers by the license conferred on him in relation to the execution of works show, to the satisfaction of the Provincial Government, that he is in a position fully and efficiently to discharge the duties and obligations imposed upon him by the license throughout the area of supply.

(b) The licensee shall also within the period fixed in that behalf by his license, or any longer period which the Provincial Government may substitute therefor by order under section 4, sub-section (3), clause (b), of the Indian Electricity Act, 1910, and before exercising any of the powers conferred on him in relation to the execution of works, deposit or secure to the satisfaction of the Provincial Government such sum (if any) as may be fixed by the license or, if not so fixed, by the Provincial Government.

(c) The said sum deposited or secured by the licensee under the provisions of this clause shall be repaid or released to him on the completion of the works or at such earlier date or dates and by such instalments, as may be approved by the Provincial Government.

Audit of accounts of licensee not being a local authority.

2. Where the licensee is not a local authority, the following provisions as to the audit of accounts shall apply, namely :—

(a) The annual statement of accounts of the undertaking shall, before being rendered under section 11 of the Indian Electricity Act, 1910 be examined and audited by such person as the Provincial Government may appoint or approve in this behalf, and the remuneration of the auditor shall be such as the Provincial Government may direct, and his remuneration and all expenses incurred by him in or about the execution of his duties to such an amount as the Provincial Government shall approve, shall be paid by the licensee on demand.

(b) The licensee shall afford to the auditor, his clerks and assistants, access to all such books and documents relating to the undertaking as are necessary for the purposes of the audit, and shall, when required, furnish to him and them all vouchers and information requisite for that purpose, and afford to him and them all facilities for the proper execution of his and their duty.

(c) The audit shall be made and conducted in such manner as the Provincial Government may direct.

(d) Any report made by the auditor, or such portion thereof as the Provincial Government may direct, shall be appended to the annual statement of accounts of the licensee, and shall thenceforth form part thereof.

(e) Notwithstanding the foregoing provisions of this clause, the Provincial Government may, if it thinks fit, accept the examination and audit of an auditor appointed by the licensee.

3. The licensee shall, unless the Provincial Government otherwise directs, at all times keep the accounts of the capital employed for the purposes of the undertaking distinct from the accounts kept by him of any other undertaking or business.

Compulsory works and Supply.

4. The licensee shall, within a period of three years after the commencement of the license, execute to the satisfaction of the Provincial Government all such works as may be specified in the license in this behalf or, if not so specified, as the Provincial Government may, by order in writing issued within six months of the date of the commencement of

(a) where it is made by such owners or occupiers as aforesaid, the owners or occupiers making it do not, within fourteen clear days after the service on them by the licensee of a notice in writing in this behalf, tender to the licensee a written contract duly executed and with sufficient security binding themselves to take, or guaranteeing that there shall be taken a supply of energy for not less than two years to such amount as will in the aggregate produce annually, at the current rates charged by the licensee, a reasonable return to the licensee; or

(b) where it is made by the Provincial Government or a local authority, the Provincial Government or local authority, as the case may be, does not, within the like period, tender a like contract binding itself to take a supply of energy for not less than seven years for the public lamps in such street or part thereof.

(2) Where any difference or dispute arises between the licensee and such owners or occupiers as to the sufficiency of the security offered under this clause, or as to the amount of energy to be taken or guaranteed as aforesaid, the matter shall be referred to the Provincial Government and either decided by it or, if it so directs, determined by arbitration.

(3) Every requisition under this clause shall be signed by the maker or makers thereof and shall be served on the licensee.

(4) Every requisition under this clause shall be in a form to be prescribed by rules under the Indian Electricity Act, 1910; and copies of the form shall be kept at the office of the licensee and supplied free of charge to any applicant.

CLS. 5, 6 AND 10.—Clauses 6 and 5 cast the obligation on the licensee to supply electric energy to an applicant or a group of applicants for supply of electric energy only when the applicant or group of applicants enter into a written contract with the licensee. The only power reserved to the licensee by the Act in the matter of rates which may be exercised by him apart from contract is that he can charge on any one of the three alternative modes specified in Cls. (a), (b) and (c) of sub-sec. (3) of sec. 23 of the Act; and even when the licensee intends to prefer to go up on the basis of sec. 23 (3) (c) the consumer can by following the procedure laid down in cl. 10 of the Schedule, compel the licensee to CL. 6, PROV. (2).—A part of the electric apparatus, namely, the seals of the cut-out were not in good order and condition. As a result of this defect there had been a leakage of energy. Held, such a state of things must certainly be deemed to be "likely to affect injuriously the useful energy by the licensee or by other persons," and accordingly, the electric company were entitled upon discovering this condition of things to discontinue the electric supply. Where a main fuse was burnt out, in other words, where the cut-out became defective, held, the Company was entitled to discontinue the supply of energy to the consumer. 75 I.C. 456=4 L. 182=1924 L. 142.

less than two years to such amount as will produce, at current rates charged by the licensee, a reasonable return to the licensee, and,

(b) if required by the licensee so to do, pays to the licensee the cost of so much of any service-line as may be laid down or placed for the purposes of the supply upon the property in respect of which the requisition is made, and of so much of any service-line as it may be necessary for the said purposes to lay down or place beyond one hundred feet from the licensee's distributing main, although not on that property :

Provided secondly, that the licensee shall be entitled to discontinue such supply—

(a) if the owner or occupier of the property to which the supply is made has not already given security, or if any security given by him has become invalid or insufficient, and such owner or occupier fails to furnish security or to make up the original security to a sufficient amount as the case may be, within seven days, after the service upon him of notice from the licensee requiring him so to do, or

(b) if the owner or occupier of the property to which the supply is made adopts, any appliance, or uses the energy supplied to him by the licensee for any purposes, or deals with it in any manner so as unduly or improperly to interfere with the efficient supply of energy to any other person by the licensee, or

(c) if the electric wires, fittings, works and apparatus in such property are not in good order and conditions, and are consequently likely to affect injuriously the use of energy by the licensee, or by other persons, or

(d) if the owner or occupier makes any alterations of, or additions to, any electric wires, fittings, works or apparatus within such property as aforesaid, and does not notify the same to the licensee before the same are connected to the source of supply, with a view to their being examined and tested : ¹[but the licensee shall re-connect the supply with all reasonable speed on the cessation of the act or default or both, as the case may be, which entitled him to discontinue it.]

Provided, thirdly, that the maximum rate per unit of time at which the owner or occupier shall be entitled to be supplied with energy shall not exceed what is necessary for the maximum consumption on his premises, and, where the owner or occupier has required a licensee to supply him at a specified maximum rate, he shall not be entitled to alter that maximum, except after one month's notice in writing to the licensee, and the licensee may recover from the owner or occupier any expenses incurred by him by reason of such alteration in respect of the service-lines by which energy is supplied to the property beyond one hundred feet from the licensee's distributing main, or in respect of any fittings or apparatus of the licensee upon that property : and

Provided, fourthly, that, ²[if any requisition is made for a supply of energy and] the licensee can prove to the satisfaction of an Electric Inspector,—

(a) that ³[the nearest distributing main] is already loaded up to its full current carrying capacity, or

(b) that, in case of a larger amount of current being transmitted by it, the loss of pressure will seriously affect the efficiency of the supply to other consumers in the vicinity, the licensee may refuse to accede to the requisition for such reasonable period, not exceeding six months, as such Inspector may think sufficient for the purpose of amending the distributing main or laying down or placing a further distributing main.

(2) Any service-line laid for the purpose of supply in pursuance of a requisition under sub-clause (1) shall, notwithstanding that a portion of it may have been paid for by the person making the requisition, be maintained by the licensee.

(3) Where any difference or dispute arises as to the amount of energy to be taken or guaranteed as aforesaid, or as to the cost of any service-line or as to the sufficiency of the security offered by any owner or occupier, or as to the improper use of energy, or as to any alleged defect in any wires, fittings, works or apparatus, or as to the amount of the expenses incurred under the third proviso to sub-clause (1), the matter shall be referred to an Electric Inspector and decided by him.

(4) Every requisition under this clause shall be signed by the maker or makers thereof and shall be served on the licensee.

(5) Every requisition under this clause shall be in a form to be prescribed by rules under the Indian Electricity Act, 1910 ; and copies of the form shall be kept at the office of the licensee and supplied free of charge to any applicant.

Supply by bulk-licensees.

9. (1) Where, and in so far as, the licensee (hereinafter in this clause referred to as "the bulk-licensee") is authorized by his license to supply energy to other licensees for distribution by them (hereinafter in this clause referred to as "distributing licensees") the following provisions shall apply, namely:—

(a) any distributing licensee within the bulk-licensee's area of supply may make a requisition on the bulk-licensee, requiring him to give a supply of energy and specifying the point, and the maximum rate per unit of time, at which such supply is required, and the date upon which the supply is to commence, such date being fixed after the date of receipt of the requisition so as to allow an interval that is reasonable with regard to the locality and to the length of the electric supply-line and the amount of the plant required;

(b) such distributing-licensee shall, if required by the bulk-licensee so to do, enter into a written agreement to receive and pay for a supply of energy for a period of not less than seven years of such an amount that the payment to be made for the same at the rate of charge for the time being charged for such supply shall not be less than such an amount as will produce a reasonable return to the bulk-licensee on the outlay (excluding expenditure on generating plant then existing and any electric supply-line then laid down or placed) incurred by him in making provision for such supply;

(c) the maximum rate per unit of time at which a distributing licensee shall be entitled to be supplied with energy shall not exceed what is necessary for the purposes for which the supply is required by him, and need not be increased except upon a fresh requisition made in accordance with the foregoing provisions;

(d) if any difference or dispute arises under this clause, it shall be determined by arbitration, and, in the event of such arbitration, the arbitrator shall have regard to the following amongst other considerations, namely:—

(i) the period for which the distributing-licensee is prepared to bind himself to take energy; (ii) the amount of energy required and the hours during which the bulk-licensee is to supply it;

(iii) the capital expenditure incurred or to be incurred by the bulk-licensee in connection with the aforesaid supply of energy; and

(iv) the extent to which the capital expended or to be expended by the bulk-licensee in connection with such supply may become unproductive upon the discontinuance thereof.

(2) Notwithstanding anything in sub-clause (1) the bulk-licensee shall give a supply of energy to any distributing-licensee within his area of supply applying therefor, even although the distributing licensee desires to be supplied with only a portion of the energy required for distribution by him:

Provided that the distributing licensee shall, if so required by the bulk-licensee, enter into an agreement to take such energy upon special terms (including a minimum annual sum to be paid to the bulk-licensee) to be determined, if necessary, by arbitration in the manner laid down in sub-clause (1) (d).

(3) The maximum price fixed by a license for energy supplied to a distributing licensee shall not apply to any partial supply given under sub-clause (2).

(4) Every distributing licensee, who is supplied with energy by a bulk-licensee and intends to discontinue to receive such supply, shall give not less than twelve months' notice in writing of such intention to the bulk-licensee:

Provided that, where the distributing-licensee has entered into a written agreement with the bulk-licensee to receive and pay for a supply of energy for a certain period, such notice shall be given so as not to expire before the end of that period.

the alignment ¹[and, in the case of underground works, the approximate depth] below the surface of all his then existing electric supply-lines, street-distributing boxes and other works, and shall once in every year cause that plan to be duly corrected, so as to show the electric supply-lines, street-distributing boxes and other works for the time being in position. The licensee shall also, if so required by an Electric Inspector, cause to be made sections showing the approximate level of all his existing underground works other than service-lines.

²[(2) Every such plan shall be drawn to such scale as the Provincial Government may require: provided that no scale shall be required unless maps of the locality on that scale are for the time being available to the public.]

²[(3) Every such section shall be drawn to horizontal and vertical scales which shall be such as the Provincial Government may require.]

(4) Every plan and section so made or corrected, or a copy thereof marked with the date when it was so made or corrected, shall be kept by the licensee at his principal office or place of business within the area of supply, and shall at all reasonable times, be open to the inspection of all applicants, and copies thereof shall be supplied on such terms and conditions as may be prescribed by rules under the Indian Electricity Act, 1910.

(5) The licensee shall, if required by an Electric Inspector and, where the licensee is not a local authority, by the local authority (if any) concerned, supply free of charge to such Electric Inspector or local authority a copy of every such plan or section duly corrected so as to agree with the original kept at the principal office or place of business of the licensee.

Additional notice of certain works.

17. On the day next preceding the commencement of any such works as are referred to in section 13 of the Indian Electricity Act, 1910, the licensee shall, in addition to any other notices which he may be required to give, serve upon the Electric Inspector, or such officer as the Provincial Government may appoint in this behalf for the area of supply, a notice in writing stating that he is about to commence the works, and the nature and position of the same.

THE EMPLOYERS' LIABILITY ACT (XXIV OF 1938).

[24th September, 1938.]

An Act to declare that certain defences shall not be raised in suits for damages in British India in respect of injuries sustained by workmen.

WHEREAS it is expedient to declare that certain defences shall not be raised in suits for damages in British India in respect of injuries sustained by workmen; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title and extent.

1. (1) This Act may be called THE EMPLOYERS' LIABILITY ACT, 1938.

- (2) It extends to the whole of British India.

Definitions.

2. In this Act, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context,—

(a) "workmen" means any person who has entered into, or works under a contract of, service or apprenticeship with an employer whether by way of manual labour, clerical work or otherwise, and whether the contract is expressed or implied, oral or in writing, and

(b) "employer" includes any body of persons whether incorporated or not, and any managing agent of an employer, and the legal representatives of a deceased employer, and, where the services, of a workman are temporarily lent or let on hire to another person by the person with whom the workman has entered, into a contract of service or apprenticeship, means such other person while the workman is working for him.

Defence of common employment barred in certain cases. workman—

3. Where personal injury is caused to a workman—
(a) by reason of the omission of the employer to maintain in good and safe condition any way, works, machinery or plant connected with or used in his trade or business, or by reason of any like omission on the part of any person in the service of the employer who has been entrusted by the employer with the duty of seeing that such way, works, machinery or plant are in good and safe condition ; or

(b) by reason of the negligence of any person in the service of the employer who has any superintendence entrusted to him, whilst in the exercise of such superintendence ; or

(c) by reason of the negligence of any person in the service of the employer to whose orders or directions the workman at the time of the injury was bound to conform and did conform, where the injury resulted from his having so conformed ; or

(d) by reason of any act or omission of any person in the service of the employer done or made in obedience to any rule or bye-law of the employer (not being a rule or bye-law which is required by or under any law for the time being in force to be approved by any authority and which has been so approved) or in obedience to particular instructions given by any person to whom the employer has delegated authority in that behalf or in the normal performance of his duties ; a suit for damages in respect of the injury instituted by the workman or by any person entitled in case of his death shall not fail by reason only of the fact that the workman was at the time of the injury a workman of, or in the service of, or engaged in the work of, the employer.

4. In any such suit for damages, the workman shall not be deemed to have undertaken any risk attaching to the employment unless the employer proves that the risk was fully explained to and understood by the workman and that the workman voluntarily undertook the same.

Risk not to be deemed to have been assumed without full knowledge.

5. Nothing in this Act shall affect the validity of any decree or order of a Civil Court passed before the commencement of this Act in any such suit for damages.

THE EMPLOYMENT OF CHILDREN ACT (XXVI OF 1938).

An Act to regulate the admission of children to certain industrial employments.

WHEREAS it is expedient to regulate the admission of children to certain industrial employments ; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Short title and extent.

1. (1) This Act may be called THE EMPLOYMENT OF CHILDREN ACT, 1938.

SEC. 3: ASSESSMENT OF DAMAGES—UNDERLYING PRINCIPLE.—In determining the amount of damages under the Employers' Liability Act in a case where the workman dies as a result of personal injuries caused to him, the underlying principle is that his dependants must be awarded damages equivalent to the pecuniary loss that they have sustained by his death. The damages should be calculated in such a manner as to place the dependants in such pecuniary circumstances as if the deceased workman were still alive. When the workman at the time of the accident is 20 to 26 years of age his dependants should receive compensation amounting approximately to his earnings for a period of twenty years after certain deductions have been made. 221

I.C. 655.

SEC. 3 (d): APPLICABILITY—PERSONAL INJURY CAUSED TO WORKMAN BY NEGLIGENCE OF CO-EMPLOYEE.—The words "or in the normal performance of his duties" in sec. 3 (d) of the Employers' Liability Act, relate to the workman whose negligence has led to the accident which has resulted in personal injury to another workman. This clause, therefore, applies where personal injury resulting in death is caused to a fireman working on an engine as a result of an accident due to the negligence of a co-employee who was driving the engine in the normal performance of his duties. The defence of common employment is not available to the employer in such a case. 221 I.C. 655.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India.

2. In this Act—

(a) “competent authority”, in respect of a major port, as defined in the Indian Ports Act, 1908, and in respect of a federal railway, as defined in the Indian Railways Act, 1890, means the Central Government, and in any other case means the Provincial Government;

¹[(b) ‘occupier’ of a workshop means the person who has ultimate control over the affairs of the workshop;

(c) ‘prescribed’ means prescribed by rules made under this Act;

(d) ‘workshop’ means any premises (including the precincts thereof) wherein any industrial process is carried on, but does not include any premises to which the provisions of section 50 of the Factories Act, 1934, for the time being apply.]

3. (1) No child who has not completed his fifteenth year shall be employed or permitted to work in any occupation connected with the transport of passengers, goods or mails by railway.

(2) No child who has not completed his fifteenth year shall be employed or permitted to work in any occupation involving the handling of goods within the limits of any port to which for the time being any of the provisions of the Indian Ports Act, 1908, are applicable.

¹[(3) No child who has not completed his twelfth year shall be employed, or permitted to work, in any workshop wherein any of the processes set forth in the Schedule is carried on:

Provided that nothing in this sub-section shall apply to any workshop wherein any process is carried on by the occupier with the aid of his family only and without employing hired labour or to any school established by, or receiving assistance or recognition from, a Provincial Government.]

²[3-A. The Provincial Government, after giving, by notification in the official Gazette, not less than three months’ notice of its intention so to do, may, by like notification, add any description of process to the Schedule, and thereupon the Schedule shall have force in the Province as if it has been enacted accordingly.

3-B. Before work in any of the processes set forth in the Schedule is carried on in any workshop after the 1st day of October, 1939, the occupier shall send to the inspector, within whose local limits the workshop is situated, a written notice containing—

- (a) the name and situation of the workshop,
- (b) the name of the person in actual management of the workshop,
- (c) the address to which communications relating to the workshop should be sent, and
- (d) the nature of the processes to be carried on in the workshop.

3-C. If any question arises between an inspector and an employer as to whether any child has or has not completed his twelfth or fifteenth year, as the case may be, the question shall, in the absence of a certificate as to the age of such child, granted by a prescribed medical authority, be referred by the inspector for decision to the prescribed medical authority.]

4- Whoever employs any child or permits any child to work in contravention of the provisions of section 3 ¹[or fails to give notice as required by section 3-B] shall be punishable with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees.

5. (1) No prosecution under this Act shall be instituted except by or with the previous sanction of an inspector appointed under section 6.

1[(2) Every certificate as to the age of a child which has been granted by a prescribed medical authority shall, for the purposes of this Act, be conclusive evidence as to the age of the child to whom it relates.]

(3) No Court inferior to that of a Presidency Magistrate or a Magistrate of the first class shall try any offence under this Act.

6. The competent authority may appoint persons to be inspectors for the purpose of securing compliance with the provisions of this Act, and any inspector so appointed shall be deemed to be a public servant within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code.

7. (1) The competent authority may by notification in the official Gazette and subject to the condition of previous publication make rules for carrying into effect the provisions of this Act.

(2) In particular and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing power, such rules may—

(a) regulate the procedure of inspectors appointed under section 6, and
(b) make provision for the grant of certificates of age in respect of young persons in employment or seeking employment, ²[the medical authorities] which may issue such certificates, the form of such certificate, the charges which may be made therefor, and the manner in which such certificates may be issued :

Provided that no charge shall be made for the issue of any such certificate if the application is accompanied by evidence of age deemed satisfactory by the authority concerned.

8. [Amendment of section 6, Act XV of 1908.] (Repealed by Act XXV of 1942.)

THE INDIAN EVIDENCE ACT (I OF 1872).

[15th March, 1872.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to consolidate, define, and amend the law of evidence; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

PART I.

RELEVANCY OF FACTS.

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

1. (1) This Act may be called THE INDIAN EVIDENCE ACT, 1872.

Seco 1.—Rules in this Act are rules of logic. 1914 M.W.N. 931. Act is not exhaustive. 39 C. 164=15 C.W.N. 1053=14 C.L.J. 375; 14 C. 721. Act not exhaustive of the rules of evidence and the Courts can invoke the aid of the principles of jurisprudence of English law as supplementing and explaining the rules given in the Act. 39 M. 449=28 M.L.J. 329. In construing a statute like the Evidence Act which is exhaustive where any fact intended to be established has to be, in accordance with the scheme of the Act, found to be relevant under a provision contained in the Act before it can be allowed to be proved, any argument based on plausibility can have no effect. The Court must therefore ignore any other consideration and confine itself strictly to the provisions of the Act and come to a conclusion as to the relevancy of a fact on the interpretation of the provisions of the Act regardless of the fact whether the conclusion ultimately arrived at is in accordance with commonsense view of things or not. A.I.R. 1945 Lah. 23=46 Cr. L.J. 296 (F.B.). In questions relating to matters expressly provided for in the Act, it must not be dealt with as a mere modification of the law of evidence prevailing in England. The Act is no doubt mainly based upon the English Law; but it is by no means an exact reproduction of it. The English Law of evidence also has never been codified (and judicial decisions may well have developed or expanded some of its principles since 1872. Caution is therefore necessary in the application of English authorities on the subject in an Indian Court. I.L.R. (1942) Kar. (F.C.) 56=46 C.W.N. (F.R.) 9=5 Fed.L.J. 47=A.I.R. 1942 F.C. 22. The Act is, as it was intended to be a complete Code of the law of evidence in British Burma. 1938 R.L.R. 190=175 I.C. 465=1938 B. 177 (F.B.) See also 65 C.L.J. 520=41 C.W.N. 1103. The provisions of the Act are independent of the rules of procedure contained in the Criminal Procedure Code and must have full scope, unless clearly repealed or altered by another statute. 7 L. 84=94 I.C. 901=1926 L. 88. The records of the German Court authenticated in the manner prescribed by secs. 14 and 15 of the English Extradition Act are admissible in evidence. 39 C. 164=15 C.W.N. 1053=12 I.C. 273. Evidence properly admitted for one purpose must be admissible for all purposes in the cause. 37 B. 122=40 I.A. 1=24 M.L.J. 176=17 C.W.N. 388 (P.C.) (On appeal from 12 Bom.L.R. 316=5 I.C. 457). See also 11 Bom.L.R. 926=4 I.C. 652. Where a party having once denied on a reconsideration subsequently admits the genuineness of a document, a Court could not be precluded from taking such document into consideration. 1941 O. 189=1910 O.W.N. 1344=192 I.C. 259. No Court has a right to look at any document or any papers other than those on the record unless the Judge gives to the parties to the suit an opportunity of being heard and making their submission with regard to what is contained in such documents. 1928 C. 194. The mere summoning of a record does not constitute it a part of the evidence in the case in which it is summoned. The contents in those documents, if sought to be relied upon, must be formally proved. 1940 A.W.R. (B.R.) 153=1940 B. D. 242. A Court is not bound to treat the registration endorsement as conclusive proof of the fact of execution; but it can treat it as sufficient proof thereof. 1940 N.L.J. 487=1940 Nag. 2. Statements made at the local inspection are inadmissible and a judge should not bring such statements into the case as evidence. No statement by any person is evidence unless given on oath in the witness-box. 1935 N. 60. See also 24 Pat. 379=1945 Pat. 453. Conjecture should not be the basis of a judgment. 1924 N. 363. Statement which are not admissible in evidence cannot be rendered admissible by consent of parties. 1923 L. 630. See also 1924 P. 283; 36 I.C. 900. Unless a party can be found to have been estopped from objecting to the admissibility of particular pieces of evidence. A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 528=(1942) 1 M.L.J. 485. Omission to object to the reception of evidence does not make irrelevant evidence relevant and the objection can be taken on second appeal. 44 B. 192=55 I.O. 316=22 Bom.L.R. 57. See also 47 M.L.J. 640; 1924 N. 358; 79 I.O. 1029=1924 A. 918; 40 I.O. 553; 135 I.O. 572=1931 M. 601. No doubt the proper time to take an objection as to the admissibility of a document is when the document is tendered in evidence, but the omission to object to a document which is not in itself admissible will not constitute such document evidence. It is the duty of the Court to exclude all irrelevant evidence, even if no objection is taken to its admissibility by the parties. The question of relevancy of a document is a question of law and can be raised at any stage. 49 C.W.N. 791=1945 Cal. 492. Where a piece of evidence not proved in the proper manner has been admitted without objections, the opposite party cannot challenge it at a later stage. But this principle, does not apply where evidence has been received without objection in direct contravention of an imperative provision of law. 27 C.W.N. 134=1922 C. 160. See also 1939 A. 61=1939 A.L.J. 128. There can be no conditional admissibility of a document. There cannot be an order that while a document is inadmissible as lease, it is admissible as a receipt. If it is held to be not a lease, it can be admitted unconditionally. But if it is held to be a lease, it cannot be admitted as a receipt. 1941 A.W.R. (Rev.) 979=1941 R.D. 932. An objection as to the mode of proof not taken in the Courts below cannot be taken for the first time in second appeal. 64 I.O. 266=36 C.L.J. 186. An erroneous omission to object to evidence irrelevant and consequently inadmissible under any circumstances, does not make it admissible. But the Court will not entertain for first time in appeal an objection that a document not admissible has been improperly admitted in evidence. 45 C. 159=21 C.W.N. 996; 3 Lah. 59=1922 L. 281; I.L.R. (1937) N. 68=1937 N. 13. If a party to a suit consents to the recitals in prior judgment being taken as proof of a will, he cannot object in appeal. 43 M.L.J. 448. A Court refusing to admit a piece of evidence in the first instance has no jurisdiction to take the same into consideration at a subsequent stage, unless some good explanation or reason is shown by the party producing the same. Once a document is admitted at a late stage by a dodge or trick, there is an end of the matter. 182 I.O. 407=1939 Pat. 530. Documentary evidence relevant to the case and admitted without objection in the first Court cannot be objected to in appeal on the ground that it is not admissible for the purposes for which it has been used. 40 I.O. 553; 32 P.L.R. 470=134 I.O. 770. See also 167 I.O. 190=I.L.R. (1937) N. 68=1937 N. 13; 45 P.L.R. 325. Evidence which is relevant under any circumstances whatsoever must be distinguished from evidence which is admissible if certain conditions were fulfilled. 9 I.O. 211=13 C.L.J. 18. In the latter case objection should be taken at the earliest possible stage and if such objection is not taken the appellate Court will not entertain it. 9 I.O. 211=13 C.L.J. 18. An objection relating to the mode of proof of a document must be raised when the document is sought to be put in evidence and not at a later stage. 63 C. 1053=1936 C. 316. There is a distinction between the relevancy and admissibility of a document. Evidence which is not relevant under provisions of the Act cannot be made relevant because it is let without objection. If a document is inadmissible on account of a defect which could be cured by the person relying on it if an objection had been taken at the proper time, no objection as to its admissibility can be allowed at a later stage. But the omission to object to the admission of irrelevant evidence cannot possibly make it relevant. 1936 L. 114. When at trial, admissibility of evidence is objected to, it is the duty of the trial Judge to decide at once whether it is admissible. If he holds it inadmissible the document should not find a place on the record and assessors or jurors should be warned not to rely on it. 50 I.O. 481=98 P.L.R. 1918. Where the Court passed an interlocutory order that the evidence was admissible such an order can legally be varied by the Court, though in practice it is not often done. Court therefore can hold the evidence as inadmissible which was formerly held admissible. 39 P.L.R. 262=1937 L. 176. It is wrong for a Civil Court to rely too much on decisions in criminal cases when deciding questions of title in civil suits. 21 P.L.T. 873. See also 21 Pat. 601=23 Pat. L.T. 354=1942 Pat. 432 (award in criminal Court in maintenance proceedings). A party who did not object to the admissibility of secondary evidence of a registered will even in his appeal memo. cannot be allowed to urge it. 31 I.O. 600. The relevant point of time in the proceedings at which the condition of admissibility must be fulfilled is the time when it has to be admitted by the Court before which the evidence is produced and relied on and not the moment when the case is decided. 190 I.O. 849=1940 N.L.J. 459=1940 Nag. 340. No statement of counsel concerning relevant facts in the case can be accepted otherwise than in the witness-box. 1935 N. 69=17 N.L.J. 189. Parties, if so minded, may ordinarily agree that evidence shall be taken in a particular way. That is not a matter which can be said to affect the jurisdiction of the Court. It is merely that parties allow certain materials to be used as evidence which apart from their consent cannot be so used. 43 M.L.J. 448=1922 M. 394 [43 M. 609; 38 M. 160, Foll.] The omission by a party to prevent irrelevant

It extends to the whole of British India, and applies to all judicial proceedings in or before any Court, including Courts-martial¹ [other than Courts-martial convened under the Army Act]² [the Naval Discipline Act or that Act as modified by the Indian Navy (Discipline) Act, 1934.]³ [or the Air Force Act] but not to affidavits⁴ presented to any Court or officer, not to proceedings, before an arbitrator;

"A Court-martial under this Act shall not, as respects the conduct of its proceedings, or the reception or rejection of evidence, or as respects any other matter or thing whatsoever be subject to the provisions of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872, or to any Act, law or ordinance of any legislature whatsoever, other than Parliament of the United Kingdom." evidence from being admitted will not in the absence of a deliberate consent to waive objections, cure the defect. 36 I.C. 906. When the lower Court has given a finding that the document is legally proved, the appellate Court should sparingly interfere with the findings when no objection was taken at the hearing. 32 I.C. 780; 10 O.W.N. 173=1933 O. 128. It does not follow that a document is invalid, merely because it may not be admissible in evidence. 1923 N. 109. Where a document is admitted without proof but without objection in the trial Court, no objection to its admissibility on the ground of want of formal proof can be taken in appeal. 44 I.C. 422=3 P.L.J. 306. If a document is once admitted in the lower Court without objection, no party can take objection to its being referred to by the Court. 36 I.C. 96=10 S.L.R. 4. Where the only reason given for admitting a document in appeal is that it is a public document but it relates to facts which the defendant is entitled to meet, the admission is illegal. 150 I.C. 306=1934 N. 124. Legal practitioners should confine themselves to such documents as were produced by them and exhibited in the case. If the record of another case happens to be in Court for a specific purpose it cannot be treated as evidence in the case for any purpose other than the one for which it was summoned. 131 I.C. 513=1931 A. 600. It is not safe to assume that a case must be false if some of the evidence in support of it appears to be ambiguous or is clearly untrue. There is on some occasions a tendency amongst litigants to back up a good case by false or exaggerated evidence. 24 C.W.N. 626 (P.C.). As to admissibility of notes of evidence of a speech in a trial for sedition, see 1941 O. 33=1940 O.W. N. 965; (1943) 1 M.L.J. 343. The Court is not entitled to attribute to the witnesses conspiracy and perjury, unless the story told by them, coupled with the surrounding circumstances is of itself so unnatural and improbable that only one conclusion, viz., conspiracy and perjury, is reasonably possible. 1934 P.C. 12=66 M.L.J. 151 (P.C.). An appellate tribunal may bring its knowledge of life and business to bear even in cases where in the lower Court contemporary communications and course of business are used, and it can say that evidence given about them at the trial cannot be true. 34 I.C. 273 (P.C.). In a matter of appreciation of evidence and the credibility of witness the opinion of the trial judge should not be lightly disturbed on appeal. 39 B. 386=42 I.C. 119=28 M.L.J. 593 (P.C.). Also 43 O. 707=31 M.L.J. 1=43 I.A. 73 (P.C.); 28 C.L.J. 306=48 I.C. 561; 39 A. 426; 39 I.C. 666; 27 I.O. 276=20 O. L. J. 501; 76 I.O. 63=46 M.L.J. 334. When dealing with a version spread over several consecutive stages, careful regard should be had to them all and their truth or falsehood must be tested on a review of the entire case. The incidents have to be judged in the light of what preceded and followed, and it would be an error to segregate the incidents and test their veracity in isolation. 52 L.W. 57=72 C.L.J. 263=1940 P.C. 93 (P.C.). A witness's evidence should not be rejected merely because he appeared to be nervous while in the box. 187 I.C. 74=1940 A.L.J. 26=1940 All. 175. The fact that the witnesses for one of the parties to a suit happen to be his employees is not a sufficient ground for not relying on their evidence, especially when none but the employees could be witnesses to the transaction in dispute. 189 I.C. 232=1940 Pat. 629. Where the rejection of a witness's evidence by the trial Judge is solely based on the evidence, oral and documentary, placed before him, and he makes no comment on the demeanour of the witness or on his truthfulness apart from comments on the probabilities of the truth of the story actually told by him viewed in the light of the surrounding circumstances, the appellate Court is in as good a position to judge of the matter as the trial Court. 1934 P.C. 12=66 M.L.J. 151 (P.C.). See also 8 Luck. 315=1933 O. 128; 76 I.C. 63=46 M.L.J. 334. Where the evidence produced by one party is in direct conflict with the evidence produced by the other the following tests may be applied for judging the veracity of the witness: (1) the evidence which is consistent with the finding which is already established; (2) the comparative nearness in relationship of the witness; (3) the impartiality of the witnesses; (4) the inherent probability of their statements; (5) the impression created in the minds of the Judge by the demeanour of the witnesses in the box. 9 L. 121=1933 O. 197. See also 1942 O.W.N. (B.R.) 578; 1941 A.M.L.J. 67. Mere verbal contradictions and discrepancies are not sufficient to discredit the clear and consistent testimony of eye-witnesses, which is also supported by the circumstantial evidence. The measure of stupidity of these witnesses especially when they are villagers, is not the measure of their veracity and truthfulness. 8 Luck. 570=1933 O. 333. See also 56 M. 356=64 M.L.J. 439. When a witness makes a reckless statement which appears to be altogether false, the safest course is not to place any reliance on his evidence. 11 O.W.N. 950=1934 A. 388. Discrepancies in the statements of witnesses on material points should not lightly be passed over, as the value of their testimony is seriously affected by them. 36 A. 187=26 M.L.J. 442=23 I.C. 715 (P.C.). As to appreciation of evidence, see 45 M.L.J. 438=23 O.W.N. 589=77 I.C. 141 (P.C.). Misapprehension implies a positive and demonstrable mistake or misunderstanding, whereas misappreciation of evidence is more subjective and by no means so capable of logical demonstration. I.L.R. (1938) N. 442=177 I.C. 605 (2)=1938 N. 394. It cannot be said to be an axiom of law that every Court must reject examination-in-chief whenever cross-examination does not confirm it. A Court may believe any witness or any part of any witness's evidence and disbelieve any other part and it is entitled to come to the conclusion that the examination-in-chief is true and that statements in cross-examination are false. 1937 M.W.N. 986. Low status of witness is not sufficient to discredit them. 1924 M.W.N. 445=1924 P.C. 106 P.C. Where the parties to a suit are at issue on a vital question, such as the genuineness of defendant's signature to the document sued on, the safe principle is to consider which story fits in with the admitted circumstances and resulting probabilities. The Privy Council upheld the finding of the Chief Court as to the genuineness of the signature, in reversal of the decision of the first Court. 38 C. 805=21 M.L.J. 1127=38 I.A. 155 (P.C.). In a dispute as to facts, great weight, naturally attaches to the finding of the trial Judge. 15 C.W.N. 717=10 I.C. 963 (P.C.). The fact that a witness makes mistakes in identification is no reason for discrediting his evidence in other matters. 45 A. 300=21 A.L.J. 143=1923 A. 352. In India where references to time are generally mere approximations there is large margin of honest error. 15

Bom.L.R. 297=19 I.C. 326. A theory of improbability in order to prevail against positive evidence must be clear and cogent; it must be such as to justify the rejection of the positive evidence as concocted and unreliable. 24 C.W.N. 860=59 I.C. 814=47 O. 1043. Presumption against misconduct is among the probabilities to be taken into account in estimating the value of evidence and where the character and position of the person is above reproach this probability becomes stronger. The mere fact that this or that thing in a complete transaction is improbable does not count for much as against clear and distinct evidence of reliable witnesses. 39 C. 244=13 I.C. 577=16 C.W.N. 266. The mere fact that the promissory note is stamped with a King Edward stamp does not prove that the note was executed in 1911 and not in 1915, in the absence of any evidence that there were no King Edward stamps in existence in 1915. 1923 L. 601. Where a witness keeps quiet for many days after the occurrence and comes forward after the police had made a discovery he is not reliable. 1923 L. 438 (2). Without deliberately intending to tell a lie human beings are prone to believe what they wish, to confound what they believe with what they heard and to ascribe to memory what is merely the result of imagination. 8 O.L.J. 433=1922 O. 178. The evidence of respectable persons with special means of knowledge owing to relationship to the parties on the matters they depose to should not be viewed with suspicion especially in cases where only oral evidence will ordinarily be available. 25 I.C. 660=7 O.L.J. 383. It is a good working rule not to act upon the evidence of persons who are vitally interested in the result of the case, unless that evidence receives corroboration. 1922 P. 111. Where a party comes into a Court with a story, which cannot be believed in its essential details, it is impossible to rely on a part of the story for the purpose of convicting the accused. 19 Cr. L.J. 877=47 I.C. 73. The maxim falsus in uno falsus in omnibus is a maxim of ancient origin which is now not implicitly followed by Courts in the appreciation of evidence. It is the duty of the Court to sift the evidence and separate the truth from the falsehood, if it can. 1923 R. 30. It is generally unsafe to apply the doctrine falsus in uni falsus in omnibus to evidence of witnesses in India. Where the evidence is substantially correct simply because there are deliberate falsehoods in it, it should not be totally rejected. 10 O.W.N. 482=1933 O. 269. Circumstantial evidence is evidence of circumstances, as opposed to what is called direct evidence. 10 I.C. 929=12 Cr.L.J. 329. Circumstantial evidence in order to justify a conviction must be exhaustive and must exclude the possibility of guilt of any other person or must point conclusively to the complicity of the accused. 38 I.C. 759=32 P.R. (Cr.) 1916. Circumstantial evidence must like any other evidence be tested and weighed and must prevail or not by its own inherent proving force. 1 L.W. 1007=26 I.C. 332=16 Cr.L.J. 38. To justify an inference of guilt from circumstantial evidence the inculpatory facts must be incompatible with the innocence of the accused and must be incapable of explanation upon any reasonable hypothesis other than that of his guilt. 59 I.C. 358=22 Cr.L.J. 154. See also 65 P.L.R. 1917=42 I.C. 129; 8 C.W.N. 278; 39 I.C. 322. A 'chance witness' whose evidence so commonly discloses a meeting with the very person whose admission is required and details how the admission was volunteered in the course of conversation, though and necessarily a false witness, it is proverbially rash to rely upon such evidence. 193 I.C. 209=1941 O.W.N. 565=1941 P.C. 11 (P.C.).

A judge cannot travel beyond the record of the case before him and rely for the rejection of an important witness in the case on information gained from other cases heard by him. 193 I.C. 327=1941 Lah. 22. Record requisitioned—When becomes evidence in the case. A record which has been requisitioned does not become part of the evidence in a pending case merely from the fact that it has been requisitioned. If any document or statement contained in the record are relied upon by a party then they must be duly proved and brought on the record as evidence in the pending case. 1941 R.D. 868=1941 O.A. (Supp.) 788=1941 A.W.R. (Rev.) 914. Where a document called from a witness is produced by him and that is the document required, he should be allowed to prove it so that it can be admitted in evidence although the demand for the document does not describe it as fully as it may. 22 Pat.L.T. 656=1941 Pat. 202.

CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE AS TO MARRIAGE.

—Even though the connection between a man and a woman was at its inception adulterous the presumption of a marriage arises in a case where it is established that the husband of the woman had divorced her and after that they continued to live together, treated each other as husband and wife and were looked upon by others as such. 35 P.L.R. 532=1934 L. 517. Continuous living as man and wife raises presumption of legal marriage and this presumption is greatly strengthened when they are described as man and wife in municipal papers. 1934 A. 884. A presumption of a marriage arises in a case where it is established that the parties were living together as man and woman and after the death of the man the latter was allowed by his reversioners to retain his property for a period of 41 years. 1937 O.W.N. 1221. Where the evidence was that a widow after her husband's death lived with his first cousin as man and wife, had several children by him, and the two were together cultivating lands and there was nothing to show that they were outcasted or their status as man and wife was repudiated it would not be justifiable to hold that there has not been a re-marriage. 18 R.D. 417. See also 1937 O.

! An approximate estimate of the age of a party made by third parties who might not have had any specified means of knowledge is not of much value. 56 A. 766=1934 A. 406 (F.B.). In criminal proceedings the statement of a witness's age forms no part of his deposition and is not usually the statement of the witness himself, but an estimate of the Court. 1933 P. 627. It is a well-known fact that when the age is not in issue, villagers are particularly careless in stating their age. As such a statement of age cannot be of such positive character in determining a particular issue long after the date, when the determination of age was not one under consideration when the statement was made. 1939 A.W.R. (B.R.) 44=1939 R.D. 164. In the case of an unsworn testimony of a young child, that evidence is admissible. Sec. 13 of the Oaths Act expressly provides for cases in which the provisions of secs. 5 and 6 of that Act have not been carried out. 39 Cr.L.J. 585=1938 M. 490= (1938) 1 M.L.J. 289. Children are a most untrustworthy class of witness, for when of a tender age, they often mistake dreams for reality, repeat glibly as of their own knowledge what they have heard from others and are greatly influenced by fear of punishment, by hope of reward and by desire of notoriety. 34 P.L.R. 536=1933 L. 667. See also (1945) 2 M.L.J. 493 (P.C.). The proper tests to be applied with reference to the evidence of a child witness are how consistent the story is with itself, how it stands the test of cross-examination and how far it fits in with the rest of the evidence and the circumstances of the case. 1941 O.W.N. 1246. A boy of about seven years is not likely to distinguish between things heard by him and those which he has seen; and when there is a clear indication of inconsistent statements in his evidence, not much importance can be attached to it. It is not illegal to examine a witness of tender years; but it is important that the Judge should, as a precaution, ascertain in the first instance by means of a few simple questions whether the intelligence of the child is such that it is capable of giving credible evidence; it is also desirable that the record of evidence should show that such a test has been in fact made. When it does not appear that any such attempt was made to test the capacity of the child witness to give his testimony, it is not safe to rely on the evidence of such a witness. 15 P.L.T.

586=1934 P. 651. It is not necessary to tender the evidence taken on commission formally at a trial to make it evidence in the case. (36 C. 566, Ref.) 37 C.W.N. 666=1933 C. 412. Where an arbitrator has examined witnesses and recorded evidence with due formality, it is open to the parties by consent to treat such statements of evidence and proceed with the case before the Court from the stage it has reached before the arbitrator. The consent in such a case relates to the manner in which the evidence has to be proved and not to the relevancy of the evidence itself. 1934 M. 610=67 M.L.J. 358. It is unsafe to rely completely on the evidence of trackers as to the correspondence of trackers. 42 I.C. 129=18 Cr.L.J. 897. Sometimes the identification of the particular accused by witnesses to whom they are strangers is useful. 17 Cr.L.J. 156=83 I.C. 686. Where a witness was examined before the committing Magistrate and was simply tendered for cross-examination in the Sessions Court and the evidence before the committing Magistrate was marked as exhibit in the Sessions Court, such procedure is illegal. 30 I.C. 439=1915 M.W.N. 544. See also 39 Mys.H.C.R. 581=12 Mys. L.J. 1. Statements of accused in police custody are notoriously untrustworthy. 20 I.C. 721=1912 M.W.N. 825. In criminal cases, it is the weight of the evidence and not the number of the witnesses, which the Court has and ought to consider. 63 I.C. 407=24 O.C. 225. When in murder case the only eye-witness to the occurrence has been disbelieved on several points it is not safe to base a conviction on the evidence of such witness, especially when no motive for the murder has been made out. 11 O.W.N. 969=1934 O. 373. Conviction should be resorted to only after the reasonable exclusion of every conceivable hypothesis of innocence. 9 I.C. 400=12 Cr.L.J. 690. Evidence cannot be admitted on the intention of parties when that intention is clearly expressed in the deed. 1928 C. 825.

EXAMINATION OF PARTY—DEFENDANT AS PLAINTIFF'S WITNESS.—Where the plaintiff refrained from giving evidence on his own behalf and adopted instead the tactics of calling the defendant as a witness for the plaintiff, with the usual result that important features of his case were denied by his own witness, their Lordships condemned this practice and approved of the course taken by the High Court in treating the plaintiff as a person who put the defendant forward as a witness of truth. 172 I.C. 633=47 L.W. 124=1938 P.C. 59 (P.C.). If a party appears as a witness on behalf of the opposing party the Court should before proceeding to record his statement question him or his counsel as to whether he does not propose to appear as his own witness. If that party then declares that he does not propose to appear as his own witness the Court should point out to the party producing him that ordinarily speaking the matter should be left as it is and the Court be left to draw any adverse inference which may justifiably be drawn from the refusal of the party to appear in the witness-box and subject himself to cross-examination. If the party, however insist on examining the opposite party as his own witness the Court should be careful not to allow him to cross-examine his own witness because unless the evidence is declared hostile, the party producing the witness has no right to cross-examine his own witness. 35 P.L.R. 28=1934 L. 126. The fact that a witness was cited on behalf of the defendants and his evidence went entirely to support the plaintiff's case does not entitle a Court to reject his evidence as that of a witness who had been "won over" by the plaintiff. 147 I.C. 591=1934 A. 226.

REPETITION AND HEARSAY.—Distinction between. See 14 P.L.T. 482=1933 P. 199. No standard of special strictness is applicable to the proof of collateral relationships in India, and there is no rule that a person claiming as a collateral heir is bound to allege and prove his title through the common ancestor in all its stages. (6 C. 626, Expl.) 168 I.C. 881=46 L.W. 88=39 Bom. L.R. 1005=1937 P.C. 201 (P.C.). The evidence Act does not contain any express provision making evidence of general reputation admissible as proof of relationship. 46 L.W. 88=1937 P.C. 201 (P.C.).

PLEADINGS AND EVIDENCE.—A statement of a party before Court but not on oath is only part of the pleading and not legal evidence. 35 P.L.R. 99=1934 L. 234. Evidence in a previous suit or affidavits filed in a previous litigation do not prove anything. Such evidence or such affidavits can be used powerfully when put to a witness as a means of destroying that witness's testimony and if the attack thus launched is successful it results in the witness leaving the box discredited. That does not however prove what is contained in his previous evidence or affidavits. The matter ends with a witness discredited. 1941 N.L.J. 596. The doctrine of the onus of proof is merely academic where both parties give evidence. Where there is evidence on both sides, the question of onus does not arise at all, and the judge has to determine the issue between the parties on the evidence before him. 1938 P.W.N. 773. Where the tradition has been ascertained with reasonable certainty, a proper value must be given to it questions of pedigree, and it may be sufficient of itself; but the fact that a case is difficult of proof does not dispense with proper proof, and in many cases there is good reason to regard tradition as poor and treacherous material. 170 I.C. 335=1937 P.C. 310=(1937) 2 M.L.J. 772 (P.C.). See also 65 O.L.J. 520=41 O.W.N. 1103. It is possible that scandalous and indecent matter might be expunged by the trial Court from the evidence recorded on commission. If it proves to be irrelevant then the matter should be noted in the judgment in the case. But once evidence has been recorded on commission it must re-

SEC. 2: (NOW REPEALED), ENGLISH LAW.—CL (1), sec. 2 precludes the Courts from following English Rules of Evidence in future. 7 I.A. 63 (70) (P.C.). There are however several Acts of Parliament relating to evidence that are in force in India. See Whitley Stokes' Anglo-Indian Codes, Vol. II, pp. 822-827; Field, p. 53 (6th Ed.). See also 14 C. 721. S. 2 (1) of the Act repeals the whole of the English Common Law on evidence so far as it was in force in British India before the passing of that Act. The section, in effect prohibits the employment of any kind of evidence not specifically authorised by the Act itself. It must be recognised however, that the principle of exclusion adopted by the Act, should not be applied so as to exclude matters which may be essential for the ascertainment of truth. The relaxation of the rule as to reception of hearsay evidence must be held to be permissible where such a course tends to the due investigation of truth, and the attainment of justice. 65 O.L.J. 520=41 C.W.N. 1103. See also 175 I.C. 465=1938 R. 177 (F.B.). S. 2 (1) (now repealed) in effect prohibits the employment of any kind of evidence not specifically authorised by the Act itself. It is not open to any Judge to exercise a dispensing power, and admit evidence not admissible by the statute because to him it appears that the irregular evidence would throw light upon the issue. 193 I.C. 220=45 C.W.N. 435=1941 P.C. 16=I.L.R. (1941) 1 Cal. 468 (P.C.).

SEC. 3: COURT.—The definition of "Court" in this Act is framed only for purposes of this Act and should not be extended beyond its legitimate scope. 12 B. 36. "Court" includes both Judge and jury. 4 C. 483. Registrar or Sub-Registrar not Court under C.P. Code [Cr.P. Code, sec. 105 (2)]; so also a Magistrate holding preliminary enquiry in police investigation. 11 B. 702. The term, "matters before it," include matters which do not fall within the definition of "evidence." 1924 N. 385=79 I.C. 609. "Court" includes all Magistrates. 36 I.C. 171=34 P.R. (Cr.) 1916.

FACT.—Fact in issue cannot be proved by one not called as a witness. 13 I.C. 220=13 Cr.L.J. 28. Misrepresentation of fact—Fact, meaning of. 36 I.C. 850=16 P.R. (Cr.) 1916. State of a man's mind is a fact. 29 Ch.D. 483. Possession is a fact. 25 I.C. 510. On this section, see also 38 Bom.L.R. 1122=1937 B. 31.

DOCUMENT.—The definition of the word

"document" in sec. 3 of the Evidence Act and sec. 29 of the I.P. Code, applies to the word as used in sec. 2 (6) of the Press (Emergency Powers) Act, 1931. 1934 A. 1031=153 I.C. 411.

"EVIDENCE".—This is only a definition of the word as used in the Act. 4 C. 492. The word "evidence" in the Act signifies only the instruments by means of which relevant facts are brought before the Court, viz., witnesses and documents, and by means of which the Court is convinced of these facts. 26 N.L.R. 229=1930 N. 242 (F.B.). What "evidence" means and includes has been described in S. 3. An affidavit is not within that description. On the contrary, the affidavits have been expressly excluded by sec. 1, para. 2 from the applicability of the Evidence Act. 1944 N.L.J. 134. See also 38 Bom.L.R. 1122=1937 B. 31 (confession of co-accused). Heading of deposition—Entry in—Proof of religion—Not much importance to be attached. 176 I.C. 242=1938 R. 89.

"PROVED".—Meaning of. See 1929 A. 303=107 I.C. 564. Also 31 Bom.L.R. 515; 1934 A. 390=154 I.C. 405. The line between 'legal proof' and 'moral conviction' must be kept clear in considering the nature and quantum of proof. But once the evidence comes before Court and stands the test of severe legal scrutiny, that evidence constitutes legal proof. Then the dividing line vanishes. 'Legal proof' is neither more nor less than what is indicated by the definition of the word 'proved' in sec. 3. While the Court is entitled to insist that the best possible evidence should be produced, no hard and fast rule as to the quantum of evidence required for the proof of a particular fact can be laid down as this must necessarily vary with the circumstances of each case. 1944 A.L.J. 87. A Court, when it has to consider whether a fact is proved or not must not expect evidence which cannot be produced or evidence which it is unnecessary to produce. Further more, a Court must consider all the evidence before it and this not merely as a number of independent bits of evidence. The whole of the evidence must be considered together and the cumulative effect of it must be weighed. 184 I.C. 521=1939 O.W.N. 1114. When it is shown that a particular consignment received by the railway servants was kept in the shed which was subsequently looted by the rioters the only reasonable inference would be that the consignment was looted by the rioters who attacked the shed. It is not necessary for the railway servants to prove by direct evidence that the particular consignment was looted by the rioters. A.I.R. 1945 Cal. 267.

"Court." "Court" includes all Judges¹ and Magistrates,² and all persons, except arbitrators, legally authorized to take evidence.

"Fact." "Fact" means and includes—

(1) any thing, state of things, or relation of things capable of being perceived by the senses ;

(2) any mental condition of which any person is conscious.

Illustrations.

(a) That there are certain objects arranged in a certain order in a certain place, is a fact.

(b) That a man heard or saw something, is a fact.

(c) That a man said certain words, is a fact.

(d) That a man holds certain opinion, has a certain intention, acts in good faith, or fraudulently, or uses a particular word in a particular sense, or is or was at a specified time conscious of a particular sensation, is a fact.

(e) That a man has a certain reputation, is a fact.

One fact is said to be relevant to another when the one is connected with the other in any of the ways referred to in the provisions of this Act relating to the relevancy of facts.

"Relevant."

"Facts in issue."

The expression "facts in issue" means and includes—any fact, from which, either by itself or in connection with other facts, the existence, non-existence, nature or extent of any right, liability, or disability, asserted or denied in any suit or proceeding, necessarily follows.

Explanation.—Whenever, under the provisions of the law for the time being in force relating to Civil Procedure, any Court records an issue of fact, the fact to be asserted or denied in the answer to such issue is a fact in issue.

Illustrations.

A is accused of the murder of B.

At his trial the following facts may be in issue :—

that A caused B's death ;

that A intended to cause B's death ;

that A had received grave and sudden provocation from B ; that A, at the time of doing the act which caused B's death was, by reason of unsoundness of mind, incapable of knowing its nature.

"Document" means any matter expressed or described upon any substance by means of letters, figures or marks, or by more than one of those means, intended to be used or which may be used, for the purpose of recording that matter.

Illustrations.

A writing³ is a document ;

Words printed, lithographed or photographed are documents ;

A map or plan is a document ;

An inscription on a metal plate or stone is a document ;

A caricature is a document.

"Evidence."

"Evidence" means and includes—

(1) all statements which the Court permits or requires to be made before it by witnesses, in relation to matters of fact under inquiry ;

such statements are called oral evidence ;

(2) all documents produced for the inspection of the Court ; such documents are called documentary evidence.

A fact is said to be proved when, after considering the matters before it, the Court either believes it to exist, or considers its existence so probable that a prudent man ought, under the circumstances of the particular case, to act upon the supposition that it exists.

"Proved."

"NOT PROVED"—PROOF IN CIVIL AND CRIMINAL CASES.—The evidence in criminal cases must be such as to exclude any reasonable doubt of guilt ; if there be any such doubt the accused is entitled to be acquitted. 22 C. 323.

A fact is said to be disproved when after considering the matters before it, the Court either believes that it does not exist or considers its non-existence so probable that a prudent man ought, under the circumstances of the particular case, to act upon the supposition that it does not exist.

"Not proved."

A fact is said not to be proved when it is neither proved nor disproved.

4. Whenever it is provided by this Act that the Court may presume a fact, it may either regard such fact as proved, unless and until it is disproved, or may call for proof of it ;

"May presume."

"Shall presume."

Whenever it is directed by this Act that the Court shall presume a fact, it shall regard such fact as proved, unless and until it is disproved ;

When one fact is declared by this Act to be conclusive proof of another, the Court shall, on proof of the one fact, regard the other as proved, and shall not allow evidence to be

CHAPTER II.

OF THE RELEVANCY OF FACTS.

Evidence may be given of facts in issue and relevant facts.

5. Evidence may be given in any suit or proceeding of the existence or non-existence of every fact in issue and of such other facts as are hereinafter declared to be relevant, and of no others.

Explanation.—This section shall not enable any person to give evidence of a fact which he is disentitled to prove by any provision of the law for the time being in force relating to Civil Procedure.

Illustrations.

(a) A is tried for the murder of B by beating him with a club with the intention of causing his death.

At A's trial the following facts are in issue :—

A's beating B with the club ;

A's causing B's death by such beating ;

A's intention to cause B's death.

(b) A suitor does not bring with him, and have in readiness for production at the first hearing of the case, a bond on which he relies. This section does not enable him to produce the bond or prove its contents at a subsequent stage of the proceedings, otherwise than in accordance with the conditions prescribed by the Code of Civil Procedure.

6. Facts, which, though not in issue, are so connected with a fact in issue

SEC. 4.—Under sec. 4, it is open to a Court in India upon proof of a marriage either to regard as proved the subsistence of that marriage on a later date, unless and until it should be disproved, or else to call for proof of it, using the discretion entrusted to the Court by the first clause of sec. 4 in a judicial manner according to the circumstances of the case. 193 I.C. 209=1941 P.C. 11=1941 O.W.N. 565 (P.C.); I.L.R. (1942) 2 Cal. 299=46 C.W.N. 729=1943 Cal. 70.

SEC. 5: SCOPE OF SECTION.—Act does not lay down rules as to the weight of evidence; it only deals with admissibility (Field, 6th Ed., 64). In determining the relevancy or otherwise of any evidence, the Court cannot consider matters beyond the purview of the Evidence Act. 24 I.C. 165=12 A.L.J. 285. In a trial for murder, the case against the accused should be determined on evidence which is relevant and admissible under the Act. 62 I.C. 545=22 Bom.L.R. 1274. Sui; for profits against son of lambardar—Evidence as to the difficulty of collecting rent and difficulty in finding other lambardar on the death of the original lambardar is admissible. 1928 A. 166=107 I.C. 702.

SEC. 6.—Principles of the sections relating to relevancy of facts are mere rules of logic. 1914 M.W.N. 931. Declarations in order that they might be admissible as res gestae should be contemporaneous with the transaction in issue, that is, the interval should not be such as to give time or opportunity for fabrication and they should not amount to a mere narrative of a past occurrence. They are admitted when they appear to have been made under the immediate influence of some principal transaction relevant to the issue and are so connected with it as to characterise or explain it. The bare statement of a complainant made sometime after the occurrence is not admissible in evidence. 1941 O.W.N. 1290=1942 Oudh 130. Statement made to Police—Admissibility of. See 50 I.C. 487=17 A.L.J. 760. Evidence of woman raped—Res gestae. See 4 M.L.J. 491=1921 Lah. 253, note under sec. 8. Where a woman raped made a statement to her relative shortly after and committed suicide about 3 days after the occurrence, such statement is not admissible under sec.

as to form part of the same transaction, are relevant, whether they occurred at the same time and place or at different times and places.

Illustrations.

(a) A is accused of the murder of B by beating him. Whatever was said or done by A or B or the by-standers at the beating, or so shortly before or after it as to form part of the transaction is a relevant fact.

(b) A is accused of waging war against the Queen by taking part in an armed insurrection in which property is destroyed, troops are attacked, and gaols are broken open. The occurrence of these facts is relevant, as forming part of the general transaction, though A may not have been present at all of them.

(c) A sues B for libel contained in a letter forming part of a correspondence. Letters between the parties relating to the subject out of which the libel arose, and forming part of the correspondence in which it is contained, are relevant facts, though they do not contain the libel itself.

(d) The question is, whether certain goods ordered from B were delivered to A. The goods were delivered to several intermediate persons successively. Each delivery is a relevant fact.

7. Facts which are the occasion, cause or effect, immediate or otherwise, of relevant facts, or facts in issue, or which constitute the state of things under which they happened, or which afforded an opportunity for their occurrence or transaction, are relevant.

Illustrations.

(a) The question is, whether A robbed B.

The facts that, shortly before the robbery, B went to a fair with money in his possession, and that he showed it or mentioned the fact that he had it, to third persons, are relevant.

(b) The question is whether A murdered B.

Marks on the ground, produced by a struggle at or near the place where the murder was committed, are relevant facts.

(c) The question is, whether A poisoned B.

The state of B's health before the symptoms ascribed to poison, and habits of B, known to A, which afforded an opportunity for the administration of poison, are relevant facts.

Motive, preparation and previous or subsequent conduct. 8. Any fact is relevant which shows or constitutes a motive or preparation for any fact in issue or relevant fact.

The conduct of any party, or of any agent to any party, to any suit or proceeding, in reference to such suit or proceeding, or in reference to any fact in issue therein or relevant thereto, and the conduct of any person an offence against whom is the subject of any proceeding, is relevant, if such conduct influences or is influenced by any fact in issue or relevant fact, and whether it was previous or subsequent thereto.

6. 1930 M.W.N. 702. In a case of rape, a statement made by the complainant immediately after the occurrence to another woman is admissible, not as evidence of the truth of the charge alleged but as corroborating the credibility of the complainant and of the evidence of the consistency of her conduct. 43 I.O. 443=19 Cr.L.J. 155 (F.B.). See also 1930 C. 132=124 I.O. 175 (statement by the girl to the mother that she was bitten by a leech to be used only to contradict the statement made by the girl). Unless a statement by the girl to her father and the offence under sec. 376, I.P. Code, from res gestae, such statement is not of much value. 1930 L. 337=127 I.O. 862. Hearsay evidence—Statement of bystander, admissibility. 34 P.R. (Cr.) 1914=27 I.O. 664. The word "bystanders" in Ill. (a) of sec. 6 means the persons who are present at the time of the beating and not the persons who gather on the spot after the beating. The remark made by persons other than the eye-witnesses could only be hearsay, because they must have picked up the news from others. 46 P.L.R. 353=1945 Lah. 46.

Sec. 7.—Where the accused takes the defence founded on an alibi, reasoning from probabilities cannot take the place of evidence. 1930 P. 509=128 I.O. 351.

SECS. 7 AND 45.—Evidence that there were foot-prints at or near a scene of offence or that the foot-prints came from a particular place or led to a particular place, is relevant evidence under sec. 7 and statements as to these facts made by person skilled in identifying foot-prints are not excluded by sec. 45. The words 'science' or 'art' in sec. 45 are to be construed widely. The amendment relating to finger impressions is made to meet particular decisions which had been given by the Courts. The amendment does not operate to limit the wide meanings which should be given to the expressions 'science' or 'art'. Whether a particular tracker called upon to assist, is or is not an expert in this art or science is a matter to be decided by the Judge or Magistrate. But if it is established to the satisfaction of the Court that the tracker is a person capable of distinguishing and identifying foot-prints, there is no reason why his evidence should not be given consideration. 1942 Sind 11=I.L.R. (1941) Kar. 525=43 Cr.L.J. 308.

Sec. 8: Cumtiffe, J.—Sec. 8 embodies, in a statutory form, the rule of evidence that Explanation 1.—The word “conduct” in this section does not include statements, unless those statements accompany and explain acts other than statements—but this explanation is not to affect the relevancy of statements under any other section of this Act.

Explanation 2.—When the conduct of any person is relevant, any statement made to him or in his presence and hearing, which affects such conduct, is relevant.

Illustrations.

(a) A is tried for the murder of B.

The facts that A murdered C, that B knew that A had murdered C, and that B had tried to extort money from A by threatening to make his knowledge public, are relevant.

(b) A sues B upon a bond for the payment of money. B denies the making of the bond.

the testimony of res gestae is always allowable when it goes to the root of the matter concerning the commission of the crime. It is controlled and circumscribed by sec. 27 of the Act. 63 C. 1053=1936 C. 316. See also I.L.R. (1936) N. 78.

MOTIVE: Per Crump, J.—A motive is that which moves a man to do a particular act. Whether the belief which produces the state of mind is true or false, the motive remains the same and the truth or falsity of the belief is not really in question. 62 I.C. 545=22 Bom.L.R. 1274. Motive can never supply want of reliable evidence of the offence. 7 L. 84=94 I.C. 901.

EVIDENCE OF CONDUCT.—As to evidence of conduct and surrounding circumstances, see 22 C. 406; 24 W.B. 176; 7 A. 385; 25 S.L.R. 55=1927 Sind 28; 1937 Sind 93; 35 C.W.N. 705=59 C. 40; 161 I.C. 885=1926 Pesh. 72. ‘Conduct’ may in certain circumstances include statements as well as acts but in doing so it still retains the difference between an act and a statement. A statement must consist of words, whether they be spoken or written, or spelled out as would be done by a mute person on his fingers; and words would not always be statements. Acts however exclude words and cannot be translated into words. So where an accused takes certain articles belonging to the deceased from various places and hands them over to the police, he cannot be said to be making a statement; much less making a statement amounting to a confession. To such case sec. 8 applies. I.L.R. (1941) All. 280=1941 All. 145=1941 A.L.J. 86; 1941 O.W.N. 722.

Res gestae—REPORT BY WOMAN RAPED—STATEMENTS TO NEIGHBOURS.—The statements were inadmissible under sec. 6 but admissible as a complaint under sec. 8. 4 L.L.J. 491=1921 Lah. 258. As to statements of a raped girl, to persons immediately after occurrence. See 82 I.C. 142=1925 N. 74; 1926 P. 58.

STATEMENT TO POLICE OFFICER AND COMPLAINT IN HIS PRESENCE—ADMISSIBILITY.—The evidence of police officer and the complainant as to the pointing out of the various places by the accused was a confession of his guilt made while he was in the custody of the Police-officer and inadmissible under secs. 25 and 26. The evidence could not be treated as evidence of conduct, apart from the accompanying statements under sec. 8 of the Act. 52 I.C. 601=21 Bom.L.R. 724; 152 I.C. 473=11 O.W.N. 1383.

ACCUSED POINTING OUT SPOT TO POLICE OFFICER—CONDUCT.—If an accused accompanies a police officer and points out the spot where the stolen property is concealed, it amounts to conduct proof of which is admissible under sec. 8. 35 I.C. 962=17 Cr.L.J. 402; I.L.R. (1936) N. 78=164 I.C. 964=1936 N. 200; 63 C. 1063=1936 C. 316; 1937 N. 220=I.L.R. (1937) N. 268 (conversation between accused and police at time of search leading to discovery of incriminating articles is admissible). But the mere fact that the accused pointed out the several places of incidents narrated by the approver is not admissible as evidence of conduct. 1929 L. 794. Statement by person robbed immediately after robbery and assault is admissible as part of the res gestae. 6 P. 747=1928 P. 162. Rape—No direct evidence—Child victim not making any statement—Statement of mother as regards answers given by child in reply to questions put to her not admissible. 1930 L. 84=120 I.C. 539. Sec. 8 does not render a statement by a woman raped admissible in evidence when there is nothing to corroborate or confirm the same. 131 I.C. 436=1931 M. 233 (2). Where the accused (a woman) is on her trial for making a false charge of rape, the fact that she made certain allegations which she related in the course of an enquiry which she sought and demanded is relevant. 1935 N. 69=17 N.L.J. 189. A dying declaration by a deceased person made in the form of signs and gestures in answer to questions put to him is admissible evidence. 38 Bom.L.R. 818=1937 B. 372.

CONDUCT OF ACCUSED.—Whether the evidence against a person charged with an offence under sec. 147, I.P. Code, is open to doubt, his conduct, some time after the occurrence, cannot be taken to be evidence under sec. 8 and cannot be used against him in the case. 54 I.C. 775=21 Cr.L.J. 167. As to evidence of conduct or character, see 97 I.C. 1041=1927 S. 28. As to evidence of subsequent conduct, see also 5 W.B. (Cr.) 28; 9 A. 568. The conduct of a person who has had no part in a crime and has not been called as a witness cannot be brought under sec. 8 as being a relevant fact constituting motive or preparation. 1935 N. 81=17 N.L.J. 274. Though the mere fact that an accused person has absconded will not neces-

The fact that, at the time when the bond was alleged to be made, B required money for a particular purpose, is relevant.

(c) A is tried for the murder of B by poison.

The fact that, before the death of B, A procured poison similar to that which was administered to B is relevant.

(d) The question is whether a certain document is the will of A.

The facts that not long before the date of the alleged will A made inquiry into matters to which the provisions of the alleged will relate, that he consulted vakils in reference to making the will, and that he caused drafts of other wills to be prepared of which he did not approve, are relevant.

(e) A is accused of a crime.

The facts that, either before or at the time of, or after the alleged crime, A provided evidence which would tend to give to the facts of the case an appearance favourable to himself, or that he destroyed or concealed evidence, or prevented the presence or procured the absence of persons who might have been witnesses, or suborned persons to give false evidence respecting it, are relevant.

(f) The question is, whether A robbed B.

The facts that, after B was robbed, C said in A's presence—"The police are coming to look for the man who robbed B," and that immediately afterwards A ran away, are relevant.

(g) The question is whether A owes B rupees 10,000.

The facts that A asked C to lend him money, and that D said to C in A's presence and hearing—"I advise you not to trust A, for he owes B 10,000 rupees," and that A went away without making any answer are relevant facts.

(h) The question is whether A committed a crime.

The fact that A absconded after receiving a letter warning him that enquiry was being made for the criminal, and the contents of the letter, are relevant.

(i) A is accused of a crime.

The facts that, after the commission of the alleged crime, he absconded, or was in possession of property or the proceeds of property acquired by the crime, or attempted to conceal things, which were or might have been used in committing it, are relevant.

(j) The question is, whether A was ravished.

The facts that, shortly after the alleged rape she made a complaint relating to the crime, the circumstances under which, and the terms in which the complaint was made, are relevant.

The fact that, without making a complaint, she said that she had been ravished is not relevant as conduct under this section, though it may be relevant—as a dying declaration, under section 32, clause (1), or as corroborative evidence under section 157.

(k) The question is, whether A was robbed.

The fact that, soon after the alleged robbery, he made a complaint relating to the offence, the circumstances under which, and the terms in which, the complaint was made, are relevant.

The fact that he said he had been robbed without making any complaint, is not relevant, as conduct under this section, though it may be relevant as a dying declaration under section 32, clause (1), or as corroborative evidence under section 157.

Code, for dishonestly receiving a bullock knowing it to be stolen property, states to the police that he purchased it from a certain person and produces in support of his statement a receipt which is found not to include the bullock and as to which there is evidence that he made an attempt to get it altered, the conduct of the accused can be taken into account to prove his guilty knowledge. 35 P.L.R. 738=1934 L. 695. Admissibility of statements accompanying acts. See 3 B. 17; 14 B. 260; 10 Bom.L.R. What the conspirators did, that is to say, their conduct, is relevant under sec. 8 and it is immaterial whether the conduct on which the prosecution relies was previous or subsequent to carrying out of the object of the conspiracy. 1941 O.W.N. 138=42 Cr.L. J. 165=191 I.C. 466=1941 Oudh 130.

EXPL. (1).—What is relevant under sec. 8 is the particular act upon the statement, and the statement and the act must be so blended together as to form a part of a thing observed by the witnesses and sought to be proved. Otherwise the statements are inadmissible. 29 N.L.R. 251=1933 N. 136.

EXPL. (2).—An informer's statement to the police that he purchased opium from the accused is not admissible unless it was made in the presence of the accused. 12 I.C. 87=4 Bur.L.T. 222. But the finding of marked coins on the accused and opium on the informer are circumstances from which it may be inferred that the accused sold the opium. (Ibid.) The statement made by the police-officer to the complainant in the presence of the accused that he (the accused) was going to show the various places connected with the theft was not admissible under sec. 3, Expl. 2 because such a statement could not be said to affect the conduct of the accused. 52 I.C. 601=21 Bom.L.R. 724. a fact in issue or relevant fact, or which established the identity of anything or person whose identity is relevant, or fix the time or place at which any fact in issue or relevant fact happened, or which show the relation of parties by whom any such fact was transacted, are relevant in so far as they are necessary for that purpose

(a) The question is, whether a given document is the will of A.

The state of A's property and of his family at the date of the alleged will may be relevant facts.

(b) A sues B for a libel imputing disgraceful conduct to A; B affirms that the matter alleged to be libellous is true.

The position and relations of the parties at the time when the libel was published may be relevant facts as introductory to the facts in issue.

The particulars of a dispute between A and B about a matter unconnected with the alleged libel are irrelevant, though the fact that there was a dispute may be relevant if it affected the relations between A and B.

(c) A is accused of a crime.

The fact that, soon after the commission of the crime, A absconded from his house, is relevant under section 8, as conduct subsequent to and affected by facts in issue.

The facts that at the time when he left home he had sudden and urgent business at the place to which he went, is relevant, as tending to explain the fact that he left home suddenly.

The details of the business on which he left are not relevant, except in so far as they are necessary to show that the business was sudden and urgent.

(d) A sues B for inducing C to break a contract of service made by him with A. C, on leaving A's service, says to A—"I am leaving you because B has made me a better offer." This statement is a relevant fact as explanatory of C's conduct, which is relevant as a fact in issue.

(e) A, accused of theft, is seen to give the stolen property to B, who is seen to give it to A's wife B. B says as he delivers it—"A says you are to hide this." B's statement is relevant as explanatory of a fact which is part of the transaction.

(f) A is tried for a riot and is proved to have marched at the head of a mob. The cries of the mob are relevant as explanatory of the nature of the transaction.

SECS. 8 AND 32.—A statement of a person believed but not proved to be dead is no doubt not admissible under sec. 32 but the document however is admissible under sec. 8, to a limited extent, to show the conduct of the party. It however is not a direct proof of the facts contained in it. 40 P.L.R.J. and K. 1. Where the deceased had made a complaint to the police shortly before his death, stating that he apprehended danger to his life at the hands of certain persons, it is admissible under sec. 8 whether or not it is admissible under sec. 32 (1). It is evidence of the conduct of a person, an offence against whom was the subject of the trial. I.L.R. (1938) 1 C. 290=42 C.W.N. 129=1938 C. 51.

If after the commission of a crime a person whose name is mentioned as a participator in the crime absconds, his conduct implies that he is concerned in the crime. SEC. 10: SCOPE OF ENGLISH AND INDIAN LAW.—Sec. 10 is wider than the English Law. As soon as it is shown with regard to have conspired together to commit an offence, or an actionable wrong, anything said, done or written by any one of such persons in reference to their common intention, after the time when such intention was first entertained by any one of them, is relevant fact as against each of the persons believed to be so conspiring, as well for the purpose of proving the existence of the conspiracy as for the purpose of showing that any such person was a party to it.

an individual conspirator that he was privy with the combination and its objects and adopted the acts already performed, he as a conspirator becomes bound by the antecedent and consequent acts of his fellow-conspirator. 17 P.R. (Or.) 1915=28 I.C. 738; 37 C. 467=14 C. W. N. 1114=7 I.C. 359. The section renders admissible in cases of conspiracy such evidence which is not ordinarily admissible under the English or Indian law. The first thing for the prosecution in a case of conspiracy is to give satisfactory evidence to show a common purpose. The existence of the assent of minds which is involved in a conspiracy may be and from the secrecy of the crime, usually must be, inferred from the proof of facts and circumstances which, taken together apparently indicate that they are merely part of a complete whole. 1939 A.L.J. 785=1939 All. 567. There is a considerable inconsistency between sec. 10 and the illustration thereto. 37 C. 467=14 C.W. N. 1114. It is not necessary to establish by direct evidence that the accused persons did enter into an agreement to commit an offence to attract the operation of sec. 10 against the accused. 37 C. 467; I.L.R. (1936) N. 152=1936 N. 97. The object of sec. 10 is merely to ensure that one person shall not be made responsible for the acts or deeds of another until some bond in the nature of agency has been established between them and the acts, words or writing of another which it is proposed to attribute vicariously to the person charged must be in furtherance of the common design and after such design was entertained. 11 P.L.T. 45=1929 P. 145 (F.B.); 1930 M.W.N. 1264. Sec. 10 means this: if two persons conspire together to commit an offence each is regarded as being the agent of the other and just as the principal is liable for the acts of the agent, so each conspirator is liable for what is done by his fellow conspirator in furtherance of the common intention which they had both entertained. First, you must find that there was a conspiracy, and, secondly, that the person to whom the doctrine is to apply should have joined the conspiracy before they can be made liable for anything said or done by others. 81 Bom. L.R. 515; 1944 Sind 1 (F.B.); (conspirator turning approver—Admissibility and value of his evidence). The terms of sec. 10 are very wide and apply to acts done in connection with the conspiracy, and under the section an act done by third persons may in certain circumstances be treated actually as evidence of the existence of the conspiracy; as for instance when an act is done or something is said in the presence of the persons implicated. But mere statements of third parties made in the absence of the persons implicated form a class by themselves, of no probative value whatever standing alone. The section does not permit of the attaching of weight as real evidence to mere statements of this kind made in the absence of the accused persons, and independent evidence required as corroboration of such statements must be something very much more than the evidence which may ordinarily be regarded as corroborating the evidence of an accomplice. It may be direct or circumstantial evidence. But it must be evidence which standing alone, would be properly treated as evidence for a jury of a proved intention, so that there would be evidence apart from the statements of the alleged fellow conspirators, incriminating the persons charged. The evidence must be proof of intention and not merely proof of a possible motive for the intention. 178 I.C. 324=1938 P.W.N. 408=1938 P. 497. The words of sec. 10 are not capable of being widely construed so as to include a statement made by one conspirator in the absence of the other with reference to past acts done in the actual course of carrying out the conspiracy, after it has been completed. The words 'common intention' signify a common intention existing at the time when the thing was said, done or written by one of them. Things said, done or written while the conspiracy was on foot, are relevant as evidence of the common intention once reasonable ground has been shown to believe in the existence. But it would be a very different matter to hold that any narrative or statement or confession made to a third party after the common intention or conspiracy was no longer operating and had ceased to exist is admissible against the other party. There is then no common intention of the conspirators to which the statement can have reference. Such statement is therefore inadmissible in evidence against co-conspirator. 190 I.C. 233=52 L.W. 662=1940 P.C. 170=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 811 (P.C.); 1941 O.W.N. 133=1941 Oudh 130; 57 L.W. 100=(1944) 1 M.L.J. 91 (letter written after failure of plot to carry out common intention not admissible). When sec. 10 refers to the common intention of the conspirators, it refers to the common intention in the future not to common intention in the past. I.L.R.

Reasonable ground exists for believing that A has joined in a conspiracy to wage war against the Queen.

The fact that B procured arms in Europe for the purpose of the conspiracy. C collected money in Calcutta for a like object, D persuaded persons to join the conspiracy in Bombay, E published writings advocating the object in view at Agra, and F transmitted from Delhi to G at Kabul the money which C had collected at Calcutta, and the contents of a letter written by H giving an account of the conspiracy, are each relevant, both to prove the existence of the conspiracy and to prove A's complicity in it, although he may have been ignorant of all of them, and although the persons by whom they were done were strangers to him, and although they may have taken place before he joined the conspiracy or after he left it.

Where from the dying declaration made by a person, who is alleged to have been murdered, it appears that there was clearly a conspiracy wrongly to implicate a particular person the Court before it would rely on the evidence of witnesses who have so conspired, and who have had such an influence over the deceased making a dying declaration that they could have induced him to make a particular dying declaration to suit their purpose must have some other evidence before it which would enable it to distinguish the true from the false. 175 I.C. 99=39 Cr.L.J. 545=1938 Sind 94.

EVIDENCE OF CONSPIRACY.—Possession of seditious literature by one member is evidence against the others for finding out the object of the association, even where such possession was obtained or such essays written before the association was formed or before other members joined the association. 46 C. 215=23 C.W.N. 193. As to evidence of conspiracy, see also 30 C. 983; I.L.R. (1939) All. 736; 4 C.W.N. 523; 25 B. 230: 28 C. 797; 7 Beng.L.R. 63 and 9 Beng.L.R. 36 App. 2; 106 I.C. 721=2 Luck. 681; I.L.R. (1936) N. 152=165 I.C. 913=1936 N. 97. Ciphers or cipher lists discovered at searches could not be treated as acts, words or deeds of any particular person, but the fact that they existed and that the names and addresses of a number of persons who are alleged to be parties to a conspiracy as charged are mentioned in them, the fact that they are in peculiar forms, such as is not likely to be used for any lawful purpose, taken along with other matter brought out in evidence may give rise to a legitimate inference that the ciphers were prepared in connection with some unlawful purpose requiring secrecy; and in the absence of evidence that the matters appearing from the secret documents are associated with some legitimate or lawful purpose, the ciphers are themselves material for inferring that the names, addresses and other matters appearing in the ciphers are connected with the furtherance of the objects of the conspiracy and as such evidence under sec. 10. 1937 C. 99 (S.B.). See also 1929 P. 145=11 Pat.L.T. 45 (F.B.). The finding of closed covers relating to the conspiracy in possession of one of the conspirators is relevant against the others under sec. 10. 17 P. B. "Anything said" would include the statements made, speeches delivered or declarations made. "Anything done" must be some act done and not merely the intention or knowledge of the person. "Anything written" would include a manuscript, signed or unsigned, written by the person, and matter transcribed by him on a typewriter. But a document, of which the writer is not known, found in the possession of a conspirator, would not by itself be admissible for the purpose of proving the truth of its contents as against the other accused. The fact of possession would be evidence to show that the conspirator, in whose possession it is found had received and preserved it. 1933 A.L.J. 799=1933 A. 690. deceased in which she described her conversations with a third person in which she said that he told her that among his revolutionary friends was the accused, to whom he was accustomed to turn for guidance, is admissible under sec. 10, as the statement if proved is itself a relevant fact by virtue of sec. 10. The statement by the writer is a relevant fact and being admissible under sec. 10 is evidence against all the conspirators including the accused, to the effect that the third person made his statement concerning the accused. 147 I. C. 32=1934 C. 221 (F.B.). A confessional statement made by a deceased conspirator after he had rendered himself liable to criminal prosecution is admissible in evidence against a co-conspirator under sec. 10, though not under sec. 32 (3) when general evidence of the existence of a conspiracy has already been given. 38 C.W.N. 1015. See also 159 I.C. 919=1936 O.W.N. 28=1936 O. 164.

SECS. 10 AND 30.—The confession of a person who is dead and has never been brought to trial is not admissible under sec. 30 as the confession of a co-accused. Nor can it be admitted under sec. 10, because sec. 10 applies to acts done in furtherance of a conspiracy or which bear some relation to the conspiracy and does not apply to a confession made after the conspiracy, and the acts done in pursuance thereof were at an end. Sec. 10 cannot be extended to cover the case of a confession of a person who was co-accused or who might have been a co-accused on the charge of conspiracy and the offences which were its purpose or committed in pursuance of it. 175 I.C. 99=39 Cr.L.J. 545=1938 Sind 94. A confession by a conspirator made to a Magistrate in Court implicating other conspirators is admissible in evidence under sec. 30, but statements made by a conspirator to the police are not admissible in evidence, if they are incriminating unless they can come under sec. 27. For sec. 10, Evidence Act, is not intended to remove those restrictions which the Evidence Act and the Criminal Procedure Code place upon the admissibility of statements made to the police. Sec. 10 does not avoid in appropriate cases the operation of either sec. 25, Evidence Act, or sec. 162, Cr.P. Code. It makes no difference if because a man is deaf, these statements are written. I.L.R. (1939) Kar. 449=184 I.C. 145=1939 Sind 185.

SCOPE OF SECTION.—See also notes under sec. 9. The expression highly probable or improbable is significant and indicates that the connection between the facts in issue and the collateral facts sought to be proved must be immediate as to render the co-existence of the two highly probable. 1933 A.L.J. 799=1933 A. 690. 13 M.L.T. 282=18 I.C. 999. A.I.R. 1943 P.C. 72 (P.C.). Proof of custom opposed to personal law. See 8 I.C. 897, Section to be liberally construed. The illustrations do not go beyond cases familiar in English law. There is a difference between the existence of a fact and a statement as to its existence; sec. 11 makes the existence of facts admissible, and not statements as to such existence unless the fact of making that statement is itself a matter in issue. Hence if a statement does not fall within sec. 32 it cannot be admissible even under sec. 11. 56 A. 766=1934 A. 406 (F.B.). Sec. 11 only refers to certain facts which are either themselves inconsistent with, or make the existence or non-existence of the fact in issue or a relevant fact highly probable or improbable and has no reference to opinions of certain persons in regard to those facts. It does not make such opinions to be relevant and judgments after all of whatever authority are nothing but opinions as to the existence or non-existence of certain facts. These opinions cannot be such facts as would fall within the meaning of Sec. 11 of the Act, unless existence of these opinions is a fact in issue or a relevant fact. A.I.R. 1945 Lah. 23 (F.B.). It is admissible though it was intercepted or surreptitiously detained and opened. 41 C. 545=22 I.C. 179=18 O.W.N. 386. Facts disclosing similar fraudulent transactions are admissible to prove intent. 39 A. 273=39 I.C. 673=15 A.L.J. 241. Horoscope, See 21 O.C. 298=48 I.C. 400. Police Report. See 2 O.L.J. 299=30 I.C. 292. The previous activities of the accused against the complainants are admissible under sec. 11. 6 R. 6=1928 R. 118. Deed inadmissible by reason of sec. 49, Registration Act, is admissible under sec. 11 if it is inconsistent with fact in issue. 1930 A. 130. If in a suit for arrears of rent, the defendant denies the oral lease and says that the sale deed executed by him in favour of the plaintiff is bogus, the evidence about the nature of the sale deed is relevant on the question of the existence or non-existence of the oral lease under sec. 11, (2). I.L.R. (1943) Nag. 340. Contents of will left by deceased are admissible under secs. 11 and 21 (2) to prove religion of executant. 7 R. 720=1933 R. 42. Where the precise date of the death of the last holder is in question, a statement in a copy of the application for probate of his will that the deceased died on a particular date is admissible in evidence under sec. 11, if not under sec. 32 (5), where it is shown that the application was filed by a person who was admittedly the testator's nephew and claimed also to be his adopted son and therefore was in a position to know the date of his death and the application was filed about one year after the testator's death. (45 I.A. 256; 20 C. 758; 25 M. 183, Ref.) 12 P.L.T. 891=1931 P. 224. Where question as to dedication to religious endowment is in issue, the gift of property to the institution is admissible. 1930 A.L.J. 964. A statement by a person that certain parties are governed by a particular school of Hindu law is admissible in evidence under sec. 11 only if he is a member of a connected family (i.e.) a family which had descended from the same stock from which those parties descended and not when he is neither an agnate nor a relative of theirs. 43 C.W.N. 395.

SECS. 11 AND 13: JUDGMENT NOT inter partes—HOW FAR ADMISSIBLE.—Although a judgment not inter partes may be used in evidence in certain circumstances as a fact in issue, or as a relevant fact, findings of fact in or reasons for that judgment are not admissible in a litigation between other parties. The fact that there was a litigation or that as a result of that litigation the then plaintiffs recovered possession of the lands may be relevant under sec. 11 of the Evidence Act. The judgment in that case will be evidence only to the extent of showing the existence of these facts. Assuming that a suit is a transaction within the meaning of sec. 13 (a) of the Evidence Act, the existence of the suit itself will be a relevant fact and for this purpose the judgment will be evidence to show the factum of the suit as also to show its nature and scope so as to enable the Court to see whether or not it can be said that by it the right in question was claimed, recognised, asserted or denied. The suit might be an instance in which certain rights might have been claimed or recognised, etc., within the meaning of sec. 13 (b)

In suits for damages, facts tending to enable Court to determine amount are relevant.

12. In suits in which damages are claimed, any fact which will enable the Court to determine the amount of damages which ought to be awarded, is relevant.

Facts relevant when right or custom is in question.

13. Where the question is as to the existence of any right or custom, the following facts are relevant :—

(a) any transaction by which the right or custom in question was created, claimed, modified, recognised, asserted, or denied, or which was inconsistent with its existence ;

(b) particular instances in which the right or custom was claimed, recognised or exercised, or in which its exercise was disputed, asserted or departed from.

of the Evidence Act. Even then the judgment will be admissible in evidence only for the limited purposes of the clause, namely, to prove "the instance". 77 C.L.J. 194. See also 49 C.W.N. 791 (Map prepared in previous suit between defendant and another person—Maker of map not examined—Admissibility).

SECS. 11, 14 AND 15.—Except as evidence of intention, evidence of similar transactions is inadmissible in evidence under secs. 14 and 15. 17 Mys.L.J. 238. The first information report besides its use as a corroborative or contradictory piece of evidence under secs. 147 and 145 of the Evidence Act, becomes when duly proved a relevant fact within the meaning of sec. 11 (2) of that Act and as such retains some evidential value even after being sworn against by the author thereof. 190 I.C. 322.

SEC. 12.—See 47 C. 671=24 C.W.N. 501=58 I.C. 929; 164 I.C. 385=1936 R. 332.

SC. 13: SCOPE.—Sec. 13 is nothing more than a declaration of the common rule of evidence in England, but it has been given wider construction in this country and it is not confined as it is confined in England, to the proof of incorporeal rights. But although that be the case in India, its application cannot be extended to allow judgment to be used in evidence in cases which are definitely excluded by secs. 40 to 44 of the Evidence Act. Where, therefore, what the plaintiff in a suit seeks to establish through a judgment is not a right or custom but a fact—a fact which was presumably proved in a previous action to which the defendant in the suit was not a party, the case comes neither under secs. 40 to 44, nor under sec. 13 of the Evidence Act, and the judgment not inter partes is not admissible in evidence. 166 I.C. 664; 42 P.L.R. 248=1940 Lah. 309; 1937 Lah. 437. Sec. 13 (a) only refers to the admissibility of any transaction by which a right is asserted. It would be a farfetched application of the section to say that if in a deed of partition between two persons rights are alleged with reference to the property which either has or has not any reference to the right to partition, these allegations should be considered as a transaction by which the right is asserted. 54 C.L.J.

353=1932 C. 398. See also 31 C.W.N. 32=1927 C. 1. 46 C.W.N. 169=1942 Cal. 445 (document by tenant describing nature of tenancy—landlord not party to it—is inadmissible). Assertions of permanent rights continuing over a long period of years in various documents of transfer executed by tenants are admissible under sec. 13, though the weight to be attached to these recitals in the documents depend upon the circumstances of each case. 49 C.W.N. 183=1945 Cal. 283. Ordinarily and in the absence of special circumstances, a judicial decision in recognition of denial of a custom is good evidence in proof thereof. There may be cases in which the judicial decision relating to a custom may not be of great value; but where it is arrived at in a well-contested case in which there is no reason to suppose that the parties could not, or did not, produce all evidence available to them to value as the decree as a piece of evidence is great. 1939 A.L.J. 708=1939 A.W.B. (H.C.) 671=1939 All. 626. Section not confined to public rights, but also applies to private rights. 6 C. 171; 39 C.L.J. 526. It also covers rights of ownership and also incorporeal rights. 10 B. 439; 15 M. 12; 12 A. 1. But see 145 I.C. 944=1933 P. 636.

A statement of a Kulkarni of a village as to the existence of a tenancy right in the village is admissible. 190 I.C. 342=45 C.W.N. 57=1940 P.C. 192=(1941) 1 M.L.J. 427 (P.C.). See also 45 C.W.N. 590 (Statement in deed of transfer about nature of tenancy). A map prepared in a previous suit is not relevant under sec. 13 in a subsequent suit, when the land in dispute in the two suits is different. 190 I.C. 689=42 P.L.R. 247=1940 Lah. 309. See also 1945 Cal. 492. Documents of transfers and subleases dating from 1879, in all of which there is an assertion that the lease is permanent, are admissible in evidence under sec. 13 for the purpose of proving that the lease is permanent. 190 I.C. 622=71 C.L.J. 209=1940 Cal. 393.

DOCUMENTS ADMITTED UNDER THIS SEC. TION.—Where a custom is pleaded under which the ryots are entitled to sell their houses in the village copies of sale deed produced to prove the instances of such a custom are admissible in evidence. 1940 A.L.J. 650=1940 All. 535. Under this section, maps, 5 C. 287; 164 I.C. 277=1936 P. 462; rent receipts, 16 M. 194; entries in taluq maps, 22 I.C. 645; 1936 P. 462; old maps, 16 C.W.N. 116=13 I.C. 332; sale deeds, 23 W.R. 293; zamindari papers, 101 I.C. 792=1927 C. 576; documents under which title to land is devised, when title is in question, have been admitted. (Ibid.) Patwari papers. 1936 R.D. 479. See also 39 Bom.L.R. 288. As to chittas by Government, see 98 I.C. 85; 40 C.W.N. 821. Recitals in sale-deed are not evidence of title and cannot be used to prove a grant. It is however permissible to use them, to show the nature of the title that was being asserted and as transactions relevant under sec. 13 by which a right was claimed or asserted on some past occasion. 1933 P. 656. See also I.L.R. (1938) L. 494=40 P.L.R. 1054=1938 L. 795.

A sale certificate is admissible in evidence under sec. 13 as a transaction by which the right to possession of certain plot of land as constituting the tenancy-lands was recognised. 71 C.L.J. 504=1940 Cal. 539. "Instances in which the right was claimed, recognised or exercised"—Meaning of. 15 P. 260=1936 P. 543. See also 40 P.L.R. 968=1938 L. 635; 41 P.L.R. 21; 1939 Lah. 105; 45 C.W.N. 590. Judgments not inter partes in previous cases in which the right involved in the present litigation was asserted are admissible. 60 I.C. 142. See also 1927 N. 19; 13 O.L.J. 684=1 Luck. 50; 13 O.L.J. 696=1 Luck. 489; 6 C. 171; 28 C.W.N. 942; 82 I.C. 99=1926 C. 194; 40 O.L.J. 30=1924 C. 1046; 176 I.C. 549=1928 S. 132 (Proceedings under sec. 145, Cr. Judgments not inter partes are admissible to show the existence of custom of a public nature. See 7 W.R. 210; 7 M.H.C. 307; 12 M. 9; 163 I.C. 924=1936 L. 929. The word "asserted" in sec. 13 (b) includes both a statement and enforcement by act. The evidence tendered under this section need not necessarily be evidence of acts done, but a verbal statement not amounting to, and not accompanied by, any act, would also be admissible, if it amounted to a claim. A.I.R. 1939 M. 432=49 L.W. 409=(1939) 1 M.L.J. 602=186 I.C. 255. Under sec. 13 instances "in which the right of custom is claimed, recognised or exercised," etc., must be instances prior to the suit in question. Post item instances are inadmissible. 1939 Lah. 105; 41 P.L.R. 670=1939 Lah. 152; 41 P.L.R. 21. See also 67 C.L.J. 111=1938 C. 763 (Recitals in decree); 1939 L. 152; 1937 L. 223; 1939 L. 152; 1944 A.W.R. (Rev.) 198. Also as authoritative statement of facts as found by the Court. 94 I.C. 694=9 N.L.J. 215; 22 N.L.R. 49=1926 N. 109; 1926 N. 129; 1 Luck. 489=1926 O. 578. See also 1938 C. 763. Also as evidence of transactions but not as proof of title. 36 C.W.N. 866=140 I.C. 385. A judgment not inter partes, together with the plaint which preceded it and the steps in execution which followed, are admissible as evidence of an assertion of right, but cannot alter the burden of proof as between rival claimants. 167 I.C. 329=1937 P.C. 69=(1937) 2 M.L.J. 631 (P.C.). See also 1937 L. 437; 65 C. L.J. 333=1937 C. 373; 77 O.L.J. 194; 23 Pat. 763=1945 Pat. 211. Pleadings and judgment in previous suit are admissible. A decision in a custom case is not a judgment in rem. It is only relevant under sec. 13 as a judicial instance of the custom being recognized. It may be that, owing to faulty prosecution, one decision may be arrived at between certain parties while there may be another decision in a suit arising between other persons. 36 P.L.R. 256=1934 L. 861; 34 P.L.R. 753=1933 L. 553. It is doubtful whether a judgment recognizing a custom is relevant under sec. 13. Even if it is, it is far from having the same importance as a clear cut instance of custom recognised by the parties themselves. 17 L. 809=39 P.L.R. 148=1937 Lah. 223. Judgments subsequent to the suit in which they are relied on as evidencing the particular transaction or instances in dispute are not admissible in evidence. 1939 L. 152. The Evidence Act does not make finding of fact arrived at on the evidence before the Court in one case, evidence of that fact in another case, where parties are not the same. 56 I.A. 119=56 C. 1003=1929 P.C. 99=56 M.L.J. 562 (P.C.). Where a judgment is not in rem nor relating to matters of public nature, nor between the parties to a subsequent suit, the fact that the Court by that judgment decides a point in a particular way is not relevant for the purpose of the decision of the same point in the subsequent suit. 26 N.L.R. 33=1930 N. 1 (F.B.). Decrees. 1929 O. 472=114 I.C. 670; 1929 P. 749. In a rent suit, decree by another co-sharer landlord is admissible. 112 I.C. 785=1928 C. 355; contra 112 I.C. 787=1928 C. 353. Judgment referring to illegitimacy of a person is admissible as establishing an instance in which the legitimacy of the person was denied. 3 Luck. 481=1928 O. 233. A judgment in which the purchase at a revenue sale by the plaintiff's predecessor is recited is admissible in evidence as evidence of a transaction within the meaning of sec. 13 though the defendants were not parties thereto. 56 O.L.J. 369=1933 C. 222. See also 41 Bom.L.R. 561; 1939 Bom. 313. The purpose of sec. 13 is to enable a right which may be constituted by a number of acts by the exercise of the right itself animo domini, on numerous occasions, to be proved by transactions or particular instances in which the right or custom in question was asserted or denied but by evidence otherwise admissible. A judgment is admissible because it is the evidence or integration of a litigation or a judicial proceeding, a transaction within the meaning of sec. 13 for the purpose of ascertaining the parties to the dispute and the contention of the parties, the subject of the dispute, and the final decision of the Court, but not for the purpose of proving the reasons for the Court's decision and for using its findings of facts as evidence of those facts in another case. 176 I.C. 549=1938 Sind 132; 1939 A.L.J. 708=1939 All. 626. See also 73 C.L.J. 76. Although a finding in a previous suit inter partes does not operate as res judicata, it is the paramount duty of the party against whom it is given to displace that finding. 73 C.L.J. 76. See also 1944 A.W.R. (Rev.) 293=1944 R.D. 550. Previous proceedings on the question of the existence of the right to the office and property are very relevant as being transactions by which the right was recognised. When documents are official records of undoubted authority which may assist the Court to decide rightly the issue before it, leave should not ordinarily be refused even though they are produced late. 51 L.W. 339=1940 Mad. 540= (1940) 1 M.L.J. 302. Judgment not inter partes is admissible for certain purposes. 59 C.L.J. 320=1934 C. 788. See also 1940 R.D. 623=1941 A.W.R. (Rev.) 433. Judgment not inter partes is admissible to prove motive of transaction alleged to be benami. 8 P. 783=1929 P. 739. Judgment not inter partes in which an adoption was upheld is admissible. 114 I.C. 616. See also 41 Bom.L.R. 561=1939 Bom. 313. But judgment not inter partes throwing light on title of landlord in respect of other villages is not admissible. 31 Bom.L.R. 335. Where certified copies of the decree and of two pedigrees found with it are produced, the Court may presume that the two pedigrees, found with the decree were the two pedigrees, filed in the suit. Both pedigrees should be admitted as pedigrees filed by the respective parties to the suit and not as evidence of relationship under sec. 32 (5). The statement in the decree that the pedigrees were filed is evidence under sec. 35 as an entry in a public record or under sec. 13, as evidence of the course of proceedings in a suit. 56 A. 468=1934 P.C. 157=67 M.L.J. 274 (P.C.). A judgment not inter partes holding that a partition of a certain estate was proved is only admissible as establishing a particular transaction in which the partibility of the estate was asserted and recognised. The reasons upon which the judgment is founded are no part of the transaction and cannot be so regarded nor can any finding of fact there come to, other than the transaction itself, be relevant to prove partition in a subsequent suit. 58 I.A. 125=58 C. 1187=61 M.L.J. 9 (P.C.). See also 41 P. L.R. 670=1939 Lah. 152; 1944 A. W. R. (Rev.) 293. In order to prove the existence or non-existence of a particular custom it is only judgment that can be produced as an instance. But if such judgment is not produced a Judge's recitals about such judgment cannot be relied on. 181 I.C. 703=41 P.L.R. 670=1939 Lah. 152. Statement made in prior litigation is admissible in subsequent suit. 1929 A. 361. Assertion of right under cl. (b) need not be successful assertion. 92 I.C. 104. See also 1938 L. 846. As to family custom, see 82 I.C. 886=40 C.L.J. 331. A kabala reciting that holding was homestead land is admissible although it is not inter partes. 55 C. 355=1928 C. 315. Also discharged mortgage bond to prove rate of rent. 1928 C. 703 (2). Also the statement of agent that his principal was a bastard. 1928 O. 233=3 Luck. 466. Will containing recital as to permanent tenancy where question related to native of tenancy is admissible. 56 C. 275=1929 C. 473; 46 C.W.N. 169. Dispute regarding nature of land—Recitals in sale deeds in favour of one party to suit showing nature of same land—Admissible both under secs. 13 (b) and sec. 32. 52 A. 464=1930 A. 299. See also 1937 L. 688; 1938 L. 846. Recitals in mortgage-deed—Evidentiary value against third party. 57 I.A. 339=58 C. 858=60 M.L.J. 142 (P.C.); 1937 L. 688. Recital in Zarpenghi deed describing the land as svrat—Extent of admissibility. 150 I.C. 884=1934 P. 81. See also 1939 Sind 209; 39 Bom.L.R. 288; 46 C.W.N. 169; 1940 Mad. 273. In a suit for a declaration against the landlord that plaintiff has a rent-free title to the land, a kabala, which is a title deed of plaintiff is admissible in evidence, at least, to explain the nature of his possession. 1933 P. 695. Suit to establish right as mahant—Papers containing recognition of rights by revenue officers and residents of villages—Admissible. 1930 A.L.J. 964. See also 20 Pat. 870 (Village note as evidence of custom). The opinion expressed by the Law Committee of a Municipality by its resolution is not admissible in evidence when the members of the Committee have not been examined. 1931 A.L.J. 757=1931 A. 499 (S.B.). Settlement proceedings before a Settlement Deputy Collector are not judicial proceedings within the meaning of sec. 33 so as to make statements made therein as to the existence of a custom admissible in a subsequent civil suit between the parties. But the statements cannot at the same time be excluded. Though they may not be admissible as evidence of the custom, they can be looked into to assess the value of the Deputy Collector's report and order. These latter are admissible under sec. 13, as recog-

Illustration.

The question is whether A has a right to a fishery. A deed conferring the fishery on A's ancestors, a mortgage of the fishery by A's father, a subsequent grant of the fishery by A's father irreconcilable with the mortgage, particular instances, in which A's father exercised the right, or in which the exercise of the right was stopped by A's neighbours, are relevant facts.

RECITALS OF BOUNDARIES IN DOCUMENTS BETWEEN STRANGERS, not admissible. 8 L. 651=1927 L. 448; 1934 L. 750. But see 1933 P. 636=145 I.C. 944; 1936 L. 114; 1936 L. 1005. See also 45 C.L.J. 55; 44 C. Also that in documents executed by third parties to plaintiffs is not admissible if the executant is not dead and does not come to corroborate it. 109 I.C. 728=1928 L. 428. Recitals of boundaries relating to adjacent lands are not admissible. 110 I.C. 520=1928 C. 893. See also 1939 M.W.N. 841=1940 Mad. 273 (Description of land as being situate in a particular village). 49 C.W.N. 791=1945 Cal. 402 (Map and Chitta relating to disputed land prepared by defendant before suit—Admissibility in evidence as ascertain of right). A mere statement of boundary cannot be classed with any of the verbs in sec. 13 "created, modified, recognised, asserted or denied," and is, therefore not admissible under sec. 13 (a). 107 I.C. 293=1928 M. 105 (2). Reference to a work of history and social customs at the appellate stage of a case in proof of a custom which has not been pleaded is irregular and must be avoided. Such a work by an author who is alive and available as a witness to the custom set up is inadmissible in evidence when the author is not called as a witness and no reason is adduced for not calling him. 192 I. C. 290=21 Pat.L.T. 1118=1941 Pat. 146.

SECS. 13 AND 32 (3).—Evidence in probate proceedings given by a widow holding a life-estate under the will as to the necessity for an alienation by her by way of mortgage is not admissible in evidence against her successor-in-interest in a suit against the latter by the mortgagee. 173 I.C. 988=19 P.L. T. 234=1938 P. 301.

SECS. 13, 35 AND 74.—Printed copies of an index register, containing the general index of lands given on lease in a particular city with certain particulars and maps of the survey numbers situated in the different wards of the city, are public documents and admissible in evidence under sec. 74, being records of the acts of public officers. They are also relevant under secs. 13 and 35 and admissible. I.L.R. (1942) Bom. 357=44 Bom. L.R. 295=A.I.R. 1942 Bom. 161.

SECS. 13 AND 42.—A judgment on a question of custom is relevant, not merely as an instance under sec. 13 but also under sec. 42 as evidence of custom. But its value depends upon the nature of the inquiry and the evidence produced. 177 I.C. 775=40 P. L.R. 29=1938 L. 309. A judgment not inter partes holding that a partition of a certain estate was proved is only admissible under secs. 13 and 43 of the Act, as establishing a particular transaction in which the partiability of the estate was asserted and recognised. A judgment is admissible because it is the evidence or integration of a litigation or a judicial proceeding or a "transaction" within the meaning of S. 13, for the purpose of ascertaining the parties to a dispute, their contentions and the subject of the dispute, and the final decision of the Court, but not for proving the reasons for Court's decision and for using its findings of fact as evidence of those facts in another case. I.L.R. (1945) Kar. 40=A.I.R. 1945 Sind 57.

Sec. 14.—Sec. 14 applies only to cases where a particular act is more or less criminal or culpable according to the state of mind or feeling of the person who does it, not to cases where the question of guilt or innocence depends upon actual facts, as it does in a trial for the offence of arson. 1941 Rang.L.R. 566=1941 Rang. 324. A letter from the respondent to the co-respondent in a divorce proceeding is good evidence under sec. 14 of the respondent's feeling towards the co-respondent at the time it was written. 47 C.W.N. 251. The mental capacity of a party cannot be said to be irrelevant when upon the contractual relations entered into by the party, his property is sought to be made liable and the contract is in English, a language of which the party is said to be ignorant; and, when he is shown to be lacking in mental capacity, the party should establish that the party liable has signed the contract with an understanding mind. 1942 Sind 17=193 I.C. 567.

Explanation 2.—But where upon the trial, of a person accused of an offence, the previous commission by the accused of an offence is relevant within the meaning of this section, the previous conviction of such person shall also be a relevant fact.]

Illustrations.

(a) A is accused of receiving stolen goods knowing them to be stolen. It is proved that he was in possession of a particular stolen article.

The fact that, at the same time, he was in possession of many other stolen articles is relevant, as tending to show that he knew each and all of the articles of which he was in possession to be stolen.

²[(b) A is accused of fraudulently delivering to another person a counterfeit coin which, at the time when he delivered it, he knew to be counterfeit.]

The fact that, at the time of its delivery, A was possessed of a number of other pieces of counterfeit coin is relevant.

The fact that A had been previously convicted of delivering to another person as genuine a counterfeit coin knowing it to be counterfeit is relevant.]

(c) A sues B for damage done by a dog of B's which B knew to be ferocious.

The facts that the dog had previously bitten X, Y and Z, and that they had made complaints to B, are relevant.

(d) The question is, whether A, the acceptor of a bill of exchange knew, that the name of the payee was fictitious.

SECS. 14 AND 15: RELATION OF SECS. 14 AND 15.—Evidence of the opinions of the other Judges on other documents written or attested by the accused in proceedings to which he is not a party is not admissible to prove his intention or knowledge in his trial for giving false evidence in respect of a document. 38 I.C. 723=13 N.L.R. 35. Sec. 15 must be read as subject to sec. 14 so far as evidence of knowledge and intention is concerned. 38 I.C. 723. See also 1928 Lah. 382. It is settled law that under neither of secs. 14 and 15 can the evidence of facts similar to but not part of the same transaction as the main fact be received for the purpose of proving the occurrence of the main fact which must be established by evidence directly bearing on it. But when the existence of that fact has been so established and a question arises as to the state of mind of the person who did it or whether the act in question was done accidentally or with a particular knowledge or intention, evidence of similar acts may, under certain conditions, be admitted. Sec. 14 is wholly inapplicable to a case where the state of mind or feeling of the accused is not a fact in issue or a relevant fact. 1928 L. 382=112 I.C. 850; I.L.R. (1945) Bom. 278. Evidence of a collateral offence cannot be received as substantive evidence of the offence on trial, though, under sec. 14, evidence may be given of intention and such matters where the factum of such intention or like matters is relevant. 46 Bom.L.R.

PREVIOUS CONVICTION—EVIDENCE NOT ADMISSIBLE TO SHOW STATE OF MIND.—60 I.C. 331=5 P.L.J. 706; 112 I.C. 850=1928 L. 382; 8 Mys.L.J. 385. But see 146 I.C. 1064=1933 O. 355=10 O.W.N. 688, when it was held admissible to prove habit and association.

EVIDENCE OF PREVIOUS CRIME—ADMISSIBILITY.—When a person is charged with an offence, evidence of his participation in an independent crime cannot be received as substantive evidence of the offence on trial but evidence may be given to prove the elements mentioned in sec. 14, such as intention, etc. 22 I.C. 187=18 C.L.J. 578. In a prosecution under sec. 209, I.P. Code, evidence relating to other suits by the accused against other persons may be admissible under secs. 14 and 15 to show the animus of the accused, and a systematic course of fraud and to rebut the plea of good faith or mistake. 46 I.C. 896=22 C.W.N. 494. But the evidence relating to similar suits by other persons is not admissible unless those suits form part of the same transaction or the result of a conspiracy between them. (Ibid.) See also 6 B.H.C. 90. Series of similar acts involving forgery is evidence of intention but not forgery itself. 40 C. 783=33 I.C. 306=20 C.W.N. 262; 8 Mys.L.J. 385. In a prosecution under sec. 304-A, I.P. Code, for rash driving of motor-car, evidence regarding similar occurrence previously is inadmissible under sec. 14 or 15. 1929 M.W.N. 395. In a charge under sec. 409, I.P.C., for embezzling specific sums, evidence of embezzling other sums is not admissible. 1928 L. 382=112 I.C. 850=142 I.C. 274 (2)=1933 O. 136. Where proceedings under sec. 108 (b), Cr.P. Code, are started against a person in order to prevent him from delivering speeches likely to create communal tension, in the inquiry, speeches delivered by the same person on prior

The fact that A had accepted other bills drawn in the same manner before they could have been transmitted to him by the payee if the payee had been a real person, is relevant as showing that A knew that the payee was a fictitious person.

(e) A is accused of defaming B by publishing an imputation intended to harm the reputation of B.

The fact that previous publications by A respecting B, showing ill-will on the part of A towards B is relevant, as proving A's intention to harm B's reputation by the particular publication in question.

The facts that there was no previous quarrel, between A and B, and that A repeated the matter complained of as he heard it, are relevant, as showing that A did not intend to harm the reputation of B.

(f) A is sued by B for fraudulently representing to B that C was solvent, whereby B, being induced to trust, C, who was insolvent, suffered loss.

The fact that at the time when A represented C to be solvent, C was supposed to be solvent by his neighbours and by persons dealing with him, is relevant, as showing that A made the representation in good faith.

(g) A is sued by B for the price of work done by B, upon a house of which A is owner, by the order of C, a contractor.

A's defence is that B's contract was with C.

The fact that A paid C for the work in question is relevant, as proving that A did, in good faith, make over to C the management of the work in question, so that C was in a position to contract with B on C's own account, and not as agent for A.

(h) A is accused of the dishonest misappropriation of property which he had found, and the question is whether, when he appropriated it, he believed in good faith and that the real owner could not be found.

The fact that public notice of the loss of the property had been given in the place where A was, is relevant, as showing that A did not in good faith believe that the real owner of the property could not be found.

occasions are admissible in evidence under sec. 14. They serve to show the existence of a particular state of mind or intention. III.

(e) to the section is very similar to the facts of the case. 189 I.C. 74=41 Cr.L.J. 713=1940 Nag. 134.

PREVIOUS DACOITIES.—In a charge of dacoity, evidence of other dacoities committed by the accused is admissible either under s. 14 or 15. 1912 M.W.N. 49=13 I.C. 781. Where a man has been tried and acquitted on a charge of being in dishonest possession of property stolen in a dacoity knowing or having reason to believe that the property was stolen in a dacoity, it is open to the Crown to prove that he actually took part in the dacoity, for the latter was not the offence of which he was acquitted. Even if he was acquitted on a charge of dacoity, it is open to the Crown to prove that the day before the dacoity he was seen in the neighbourhood of dacoity. 7 O.W.N. 862=128 I.C. 739=1930 O. 455. In a case where the offence for which the accused are being tried is the particular one of belonging to a gang of dacoits, simple theft or bad livelihood in which the order for giving security is based on evidence merely that the accused habitually commits thefts (as opposed to dacoity and possibly robbery) is not evidence indicating an intention to commit the particular crime of which the accused is charged. 46 B. 358=25 Bom.L.R. 214; 32 Bom.L.R. 324=1930 B. 157.

PREVIOUS CHEATING.—Where a licensed clerk was charged with cheating by collecting 2 annas more than what was due, from each licensee, evidence of similar action with others is not admissible under sec. 14 or 15. 34 A. 93=12 I.C. 987=8 A.L.J. 129. See also 17 Mys.L.J. 238.

COUNTERFEIT COINS AND INSTRUMENTS.—In the trial of a person for being in possession of counterfeit coins and instruments and materials for counterfeiting in his house in the district where he is tried, evidence of such possession in his house in another district is admissible. 61 I.C. 647=23 Cr.L.J. 407.

POSSESSION OF STOLEN CATTLE.—In Sind possession of stolen cattle three or four months after theft is sufficient to raise presumption of guilt under this section; but the accused may set up title by lawful origin to rebut the presumption. 38 I.C. 271=10 S.L.R. 167. The accused was charged under s. 420, I.P. Code, for having borrowed money on mortgage, representing himself to be major, though he was minor, held, that the evidence of transactions which took place on the occasion of the loan was relevant to show the intention or knowledge or otherwise of the accused. L.R. 1 A. (Cr. 103).

OFFENCE UNDER SEC. 124-A, I.P. CODE—SPEECHES.—Previous speeches forming part of a series of speeches or lectures delivered, within a short period of time are admissible. Period of six months not long. 1930 L. 867. Other newspaper articles written by the accused at the same time are admissible. 8 Mys. L.J. 49. A writing made some time after the committing of an offence under s. 124, I.P. Code, is admissible in evidence under s. 14. But the writing should be within a reasonable time of the particular occurrence. 30 Bom.L.R. 315=1928 B. 78. A Court has no concern with the justice or otherwise of the claims of the accused or with the rectitude of his political views; but the Court may take cognizance of the fact that he does hold certain views; for as a guide to his conduct and intentions these views are most relevant consideration. 1933 Cr.C. 833=1933 A. 498.

The fact that A knew, or had reason to believe, that the notice was given fraudulently by C, who had heard of the loss of the property and wished to set up a false claim to it, is relevant as showing that the fact that A knew of the notice did not disprove A's good faith.

(i) A is charged with shooting at B with intent to kill him. In order to show A's intent the fact of A's having previously shot at B may be proved.

(j) A is charged with sending threatening letters to B. Threatening letters previously sent by A to B may be proved, as showing the intention of the letters.

(k) The question is, whether A has been guilty of cruelty towards B, his wife.

Expressions of their feeling towards each other shortly before or after the alleged cruelty are relevant facts.

(l) The question is, whether A's death was caused by poison.

Statements made by A during his illness as to his symptoms are relevant facts.

(m) The question is, what was the state of A's health at the time an assurance on his life was effected.

Statements made by A as to the state of his health at or near the time in question are relevant facts.

(n) A sues B for negligence in providing him with a carriage for hire not reasonably fit for use, where A was injured.

The fact that B's attention was drawn on other occasions to the defect of that particular carriage is relevant.

The fact that B was habitually negligent about the carriages which he let to hire is relevant.

(o) A is tried for the murder of B by intentionally shooting him dead.

The fact that A on other occasions shot at B is relevant as showing his intention to shoot B.

The fact that A was in the habit of shooting at people with intent to murder them is relevant.

(p) A is tried for a crime.

The fact that he said something indicating an intention to commit that particular crime is relevant.

The fact that he said something indicating a general disposition to commit crimes of that class is irrelevant.

15. When there is a question whether an act was accidental or intentional¹ [or done with a particular knowledge or intention.]

Facts bearing on question, whether act was accidental or intentional.

the fact that such act formed part of a series of similar occurrences, in each of which the person doing the act was concerned, is relevant.

LEG. REF.

¹ The words within brackets were inserted by Act III of 1891, sec. 2.

Sec. 15: SCOPE.—Sec. 15 is applicable to all cases where the question is whether an untruthful statement is "accidental or intentional" or made with particular knowledge or intention." 39 A. 273=15 A.L.J. 241. There is a presumption of user as of right from open user for a long time. 95 I.C. 269=1926 L. 522. Evidence of a single act is admissible and in this sense one evidentiary fact can form a series within the meaning of s. 15, with the fact to be proved. The acts of which evidence is tendered must be of the same specific kind as that in question. 1941 Rang.L. R. 566=1941 Rang. 324=45 C. 957.

SUBSEQUENT OCCURRENCES.—Sec. 15 covers both previous and subsequent similar occurrences. 46 I.C. 696=22 C.W.N. 494.

INCIDENTS IN A SERIES OF SIMILAR TRANSACTIONS.—Evidence tending to show that the accused has been guilty of criminal acts other than those covered by the indictment is not admissible except upon the issue whether the acts charged against the accused were designed or accidental, or except to rebut a defence otherwise open to him. Where the charge against the accused is that he administered dhtura to a certain person at a certain place with intent to rob him, evidence of other incidents may be admissible with a view to rebutting any defence that the administration of dhtura at that place was accidental. But before such evidence is admissible the presence of the accused at that place has to be established. The fact that he had dhtura in his possession months afterwards cannot help the prosecution, because it cannot be possibly inferred from that fact that he was in possession of dhtura when he was at that place on the date of occurrence. 43 Cr.L.J. 413=A.I.R. 1942 Pat. 291. See also 9 I.C. 931=32 P.L.R. 1911; 73 I.C. 262=1923 N. 248; A.I.R. 1943 P. C. 72 (P.C.). Evidence of similar acts may be received to prove a party's knowledge of the nature of the main act or transaction and of his intent with respect thereto. 19 C.W.N. 676=45 C. 957. The acts tendered must also have been proximate in point of time to that in question. 45 C. 957. In a case of criminal misappropriation evidence of similar acts in the previous year is admissible. 1928 L. 880=111 I.C. 387; I.L.R. (1939) Kar. 249. Evidence of a single instance of a similar nature is not admissible, as it would not constitute "a series of similar occurrences" of misappropriation. 50 C.W.N. 457. The words of sec. 15 are not so wide as to admit hearsay evidence or the evidence of facts alleged to have been discovered by the investigating officer in the course of his investigation and not properly proved. There is also a differ-

(a) A is accused of burning down his house in order to obtain money for which it is insured.

The facts that A lived in several houses successively, each of which he insured, in each of which a fire occurred, and after each of which fires A received payment from a different insurance office, are relevant, as tending to show that the fires were not accidental.

(b) A is employed to receive money from the debtors of B. It is A's duty to make entries in a book showing the amounts received by him. He makes an entry showing that on particular occasion he received less than he really did receive.

The question is, whether this false entry was accidental or intentional.

The facts that other entries made by A in the same book are false, and that the false entry is in each case in favour of A, are relevant.

(c) A is accused of fraudulently delivering to B, a counterfeit rupee.

The question is, whether the delivery of the rupees was accidental.

The facts that, soon before or soon after the delivery to B, A delivered counterfeit rupees to C, D and E are relevant, as showing that the delivery to B was not accidental.

16. When there is a question whether a particular act was done, the existence of any course of business, according to which it naturally would have been done, is a relevant fact.

Illustrations.

(a) The question is, whether a particular letter was despatched.

The facts that it was the ordinary course of business for all letters put in a certain place to be carried to the post, and that that particular letter was put in that place, are relevant.

(b) The question is, whether a particular letter reached A. The facts that it was posted in due course and was not returned through the Dead Letter Office, are relevant.

ence between the admissibility of evidence and its cogency or weight. I.L.B. (1940) Kar. 249=184 I.C. 474=1939 Sind 209. The report of a Naib Tahsildar which is based on the statements of unknown persons who happened to be present at the time of his inspection, is purely hearsay evidence and is not legally admissible. 1940 A.W.R. (B.) 152.

EVIDENCE OF ASSOCIATION AND JOINT ACTION.—Sec. 15 is not applicable where there was no question of the act being accidental or intentional or forming part of a series of similar transactions. 47 C. 671=24 O.W.N. 501=58 I.C. 929 (F.B.). Sec. 14 would not also apply where the defence was a complete denial and no question of the character contemplated in sec. 14 did or could possibly arise. 47 C. 671. Where the accused who was accidental and innocent it is open to the presence in company, and armed at a spot was accidental and innocent it is open to the prosecution to rebut this story, and to produce evidence that in the same locality raids have taken place in which one of the gang had been concerned. 71 I.C. 360=24 Or.L.J. 136 (Pesh.). In the case of actual dacoity the prosecution is bound to prove the accused's commission of all the acts which constitute the offence. 71 I.C. 360. S. 15 admits the production of any evidence which would determine the construction to be placed upon acts which in themselves might or might not be the preparation for dacoity and evidence that one or more members of the gang had been concerned in previous and similar offences committed at the same place is admissible in evidence for this purpose. (Ibid.).

Sec. 16.—Refusal of a registered letter sent by post precludes the person refusing from pleading ignorance of its contents. 16 W.R. 223. See also 16 C. 681; 9 A. 366. But there must be evidence of posting and of proper address. See sec. 114, illus. (f).

Sec. 17.—Admission may be verbal or contained in documents (as) maps, hills, receipts, pleadings, letters, books and other entries or even horoscopes. 23 W.R. 325; 11 O.L.J. 22; 5 C. 864; 22 W.R. 220; 7 W.R. 249; 9 W.R. 162; 23 W.R. 27; 1924 O. 19; 73 I.C. 428; 28 M.L.J. 266; 28 M.L.J. 92=26 I.C. 899. Admissions of liability made by some of several defendants in their written statement in the suit will not be evidence against the other defendants who have no opportunity of testing their veracity by cross-examining them. If the plaintiff wants to rely on such admissions he must examine the admitting defendants at the trial and make the admissions evidence. 44 Mys.H.C. B. 499=18 Mys.L.J. 186. The entire statement must be taken together; particular passages cannot be selected to the exclusion of the rest. Admission operates merely to shift the onus and raises only a rebuttable presumption. 1942 N. 387=78 I.C. 981; 10 L. 694=1928 L. 318. Admission must be deemed to be exhaustive. It must be read as it stands and it is not permissible to take one part of an admission and reject another part. 49 A. 704=100 I.C. 1037=1927 A. 385. An admission is the best evidence against the party making the same, and unless it is shown that it is untrue and is made under circumstances which does not make it binding on the party, must be presumed to be true. The weight of the admission increases with the knowledge and deliberation of the speaker or the solemnity of the occasion on which it is made. 38 C.W.N. 861. See also 39 P.L. R. 876. Admissions are of no evidential value once they are proved untrue. 49 A. 707. As to who can make binding admissions, see 26 C.W.N. 278=15 L.W. 404=1922 P.C. 102. As to admissions gathered from entries in account books, see 23 L.W. 272=96 I.C. 423=1926 M. 955. See also 1937 C. 433 (S.B.). The value of admission must depend upon the circumstances in which they were made, and possible motives for incorrect statements by interested parties should not be ignored. The nature of the facts admitted is also a material point to be considered. If the facts admitted is one within the personal knowledge of the party admitting and there is no evidence of convincing explanation forthcoming, its value is considerable. If, on the other hand the fact admitted is an inference from evidence and circumstances, the weight of admission may be very little. 1939 A.L.J. 708=1939 All. 626. A plea of a particular status taken on the basis of a document is a matter which relates to the interpretation of that particular document and cannot operate as an admission under sec. 17. The nature of the document and the status of the parties concerned have to be determined according to the terms of the document itself and by a competent Court. No amount of interpretation of the document by a party can therefore operate as an admission. 1940 O.W.N. 1233. Mere acceptance of rent does not constitute settlement of land, nor would the filing of an arrears of rent suit constitute such a settlement. But the latter would operate as an admission under sec. 17 against the zamindar. 1941 A.W.R. (Rev.) 454=1941 R.D. 414. See also 1944 R.D. 346. The absence of denial in written statement of an allegation in the plaint may amount to an admission only for the purpose of that suit, and cannot have the effect of an admission capable of being proved under sec. 17 in another litigation. 48 P.L.R. 21. As to admissibility of statement of accused to police as admission, see 44 C.L.J. 258=1927 C. 17. As to effect of erroneous admission, see 77 I.C. 875. An erroneous admission may be withdrawn. 1931 L. 6.

VAGUE ADMISSION IS NO ADMISSION.—See

21 A.L.J. 869=1924 A. 193.

ADMISSION IN FIRST INFORMATION REPORT is valuable corroborative evidence; is cannot support a conviction, when the maker of the report himself is an accused person and cannot therefore be examined as a witness. 63 I.C. 822=22 Cr.L.J. 694 (L.). But where such a report contains an admission not amounting to a confession the admission is admissible in evidence against the accused. 63 I.C. 822.

SECS. 17, 18 AND 31: ADMISSIONS—EVIDENTIARY VALUE.—Where a person who is alleged to have made an admission regarding his status in an agreement with the Government files a suit for a declaration as to his status as against others, the Government are neither a necessary nor a proper party to this question which is independent of the validity or invalidity of the agreement. As between the parties to the suit, it will be necessary to consider whether the statement in the agreement amounts to the admission claimed and, if so, to consider its evidential value along with the other evidence, as sec. 31 expressly provides that admissions are not conclusive proof of the matters admitted. Even if it amounts to a clear admission it will not act as a bar to the suit. 63 I.A. 348=60 B. 634=71 M.L.J. 691 (P.O.).

SECS. 17 AND 31.—There cannot be an admission regarding the operation of law. If a person could not succeed to a holding under the law an admission that such a person succeeded to the holding cannot confer on him any tenancy rights. 1942 O.W.N. (B.R.) 198=1942 O.A. (Supp.) 165. Where a plaint containing an admission is subsequently amended, the admission contained in the original plaint cannot be considered to be of any value. Admissions contained in a plaint cannot be utilised in part and rejected in part. 1942 O. W.N. (B.R.) 209=1942 O.A. (Supp.) 150.

Sec. 17 AND 115.—The question whether or not a person is entitled to succeed as the heir of a deceased person is a question of law and there can be no legal admission about it. Where a landholder acquiesces in a person continuing to remain in possession of a holding under the impression that he was the heir of the deceased tenant, if it is later on found that he was not the heir the acquiescence in his possession would only operate as a licence which can revoke at will and the landholder would not be estopped from ejecting him. 1942 A.W.R. (Rev.) 212=1942 O. A. (Supp.) 238=1942 O.W.N. (B.R.) 340. See also 1944 R.D. 346.

SECS. 18 AND 21.—It cannot be said that sec. 18 to 21 do not apply to admissions in criminal cases. The illustrations given apply to criminal cases, and there is nothing in the sections to suggest that they apply to civil cases only. Incriminating statements by an accused under sec. 164, Cr.P. Code, though not admissible as confessions in evidence may be admitted as admissions against interest under secs. 18 to 21. The fact that the statement is not a full confession but is only a partial confession or something less than a confession or is of a self-exculpatory nature cannot be made a ground for excluding it either from evidence or from consideration. It is true that extra-judicial confessions are to be regarded with caution, but it does not follow that they are always to be rejected. They may be made in such circumstances as to have no reasonable doubt as to their truth. I.L.R. (1941) Kar. 257=1941 Sind 129.

SEC. 18; "PROCEEDINGS", MEANING OF.—146 I.C. 653=1933 R. 292. "Presumptive evidence," meaning of. See 1926 L. 299=93 I.C. 309. Where a certain fact was sought to be proved by the plaintiff by referring to an admission contained in a document and the defendant remained ex parie, held, that the admission should be given effect to unless there was anything in the plaintiff's own evidence contracting it. Such an admission is presumptive evidence. 1926 L. 299. For an admission to be relevant, it should be shown that the person who made it had an interest at the time of making it within sec. 18. 21 I.C. 714=19 O.L.J. 1. The statement of one person cannot be regarded as the admission of another person merely on the allegation that the two are in collusion. 151 I.C. 261=1934 A. 684. Statements by previous mahants cannot be regarded as admissions binding on the present incumbent of the office. 12 L. 497=1931 L. 161. Admission not to be used against a co-defendant unless it is made in his character of a person jointly interested with the co-defendant. 30 C.W.N. 254=1926 C. 705. An admission or even confession by a co-defendant is no evidence. 29 P.L.R. 715=1928 L. 769; 1929 L. 721=11 L.L.J. 404. Admission by one of the defendants that the land in a suit is ancestral is not binding on the others when they are not represented by him and have independent rights of their own. 122 I.C. 109=1930 L. 238. See also 70 C.L.J. 200. Recital in a mortgage bond as to receipt of consideration is admissible as against a subsequent purchaser. 8 P. 766=1929 P. 254. See also 1943 Pesh. 17 (Admission by donor in deed of gift that possession is delivered is binding on him).

ADMISSION BY PARTIES TO SUIT.—Such admissions are generally contained in pleadings, written statements or depositions. See 7 W. R. 249; 9 W.R. 162; 5 Beng.L.R. 529; 14 W.R. (P.C.) 28; 13 M.I.A. 438; 15 W.R. 437; 17 W.R. 372; 22 W.R. 308; 23 W.R. 27. Such writings (to become admissible) must conform to legal requirements. 24 W.R. 114; 6 C. 762. See also 21 W.R. 84; 21 W. R. 414. An admission could only be given in evidence against the party making it and not against any other party. The only exceptions to the rule are laid down by secs. 18 to 20. 137 I.C. 710=34 Bom.L.R. 35=1932 B. 117. An admission on a pure question of law is not binding upon a party. 1928 L. 779=113 I.C. 99; 1929 N. 343=119 I.C. 698; 1929 L. 879=120 I.C. 532. But admission as to existence of custom is binding. 1928 L. 779=113 I.C. 99. An admission made by a party in a proceeding is of no value if a decree opposed to it is passed. 48 C.W.N. 15.

ADMISSION BY AGENT, BINDING ON PRINCIPAL.—See 2 Bom.L.R. 651; also 12 P.L.T. 582. The fact of agency must be proved. 3 Bom.L.R. 273; 46 I.C. 709=19 O.L.J. 789. Statement of agent before Settlement Officer that his principal was a bastard is admissible as an admission. 3 Luck. 416=1928 O. 233. A person called by a party as his witness cannot be deemed to be his 'agent' within the meaning of sec. 18. 34 Bom.L.R. 35.

The Home Minister speaks on behalf of the Government as its spokesman and his answers to questions put to him in the House as Home Minister, in relation to matters dealt by him as Home Minister, are admissible in evidence as admissions made by the Government. When Government is a party to the proceedings, these admissions are relevant and admissible under the Evidence Act against the Government. The Crown may of course show that the admissions were really not admissions or that they were made under a mistake or that they were not binding on Government for any other valid reason, but unless this is shown the admissions must be taken in evidence against Government. ADMISSION BY COUNSEL ATTORNEYS AND PLEADERS.—As to circumstances when they are binding on the client and when not, see 18 M. 73; 47 Bom.L.R. 114. Admission by pleader in lower Court cannot be set aside by engaging another pleader in appeal. See 102 I.C. 283 following 9 W.R. 465; 11 M.I.A. 253; 6 C.W.N. 52; 21 M. 279; 22 M. 538 (adverse opinion expressed by vakil in argument not binding on client); 9 W.R. 375; 6 C.W.N. 62; 21 M. 279; 22 M. 538 (admission of fact by a vakil is binding on client). But see also 17 W.R. (Cr.) 49, where the Court held that such admissions are not binding in criminal cases. See also 27 O. 421; nor when they relate to matters of law. See 18 W.R. 367; 16 W.R. 246=1934 A. 581.

ADMISSION BY PARTNERS.—See 11 C. 588. An admission by one partner made in a representative capacity would be evidence against the firm. If in a suit against a partnership for damages for infringement of trade mark, one of the partners admits the infringement but disputes the claim for damages, the admission will bind the other partners. 148 I.C. 763=1934 L. 625. When several persons are jointly interested in the subject-matter of a suit, an admission of any one of these persons is receivable, not only against himself, but also against the others whether they be all jointly suing or sued, provided that the admission relates to the subject-matter in dispute and be made by the person in his character of one jointly interested with the party against whom the evidence is tendered. The requirement of the identity in legal interest between the joint owners is of fundamental importance. 222 I.C. 604. Admissions by one of several co-defendants. bind the wards. See 10 C.L.R. 377; 20 W.R. 223 (Signature of guardian when not binding on minor. 13 C. 292). So also are admissions by guardian ad litem or next friend (Tay. Evid., 8th Ed., sec. 742; Field, 6th Ed., p. 89). As to admissions by Court of Wards, see 24 I.A. 107 (P.C.). Statements made by suitor in representative capacity are binding. See 1 W.R. 339 (executor); see also 8 W.R. 63; 14 W.R. 162. Evidence as to admissions and promises made by alleged thieves before a panchayat is admissible without proof of the actual words used. 13 P.R. 1914 (Cr.)=26 I.C. 625. Bhatwara Kesra is admissible in evidence. 1929 P. 32=7 P. 85.

SECS. 18 AND 21, ILLUS. (c) AND (d).—A statement by the accused which amounts to an admission that he was present at the scene of the crime and that he was accompanying the persons who had committed the crime and which is otherwise exculpatory, fixing the sole guilt on the other man, although entirely inadmissible as against the other accused, is admissible for what it is worth, against the person making it under sec. 18, vide Illus. (c) and (d) to sec. 21. 162 I.C. 6=1936 R. 131. An admission of incriminating facts made by an accused person to a Magistrate under sec. 164, Cr.P. Code or a statement made to the Court during the course of the trial, admitting that he was at the scene of the crime when the murder took place, cannot be ruled out as inadmissible in evidence. It is admissible, in evidence for what it is worth against the accused making it under secs. 18 to 21. Such a statement is not a confession. A confession must either admit in terms the offences or at any rate substantially all the facts which constitute the offence. I.L.R. (1939) Kar. 800=41 Cr.L.J. 477=1940 Sind 53.

SEC. 19.—On the section, see 5 M. 239; 25 M.L.J. 51; 25 M.L.J. 329=20 I.C. 792; 62 I.C. 417. Secs. 19 and 20 are exceptions to the general rule in sec. 18.

A statement by C that he owed B rent is an admission, and is relevant fact as against A, if A denies that C did owe rent to B.

Proof of admissions against persons making them and by or on their behalf.

21. Admissions are relevant and may be proved as against the person who makes them, or his representative in interest; but they cannot be proved by or on behalf of the person who makes them or by his representative in interest, except in the following cases:—

SEC. 20.—See also notes under sec. 18 supra. Sec. 20 contemplates the existences of three parties: first the party who refers; secondly, the party who is referred; and thirdly, the party to whom the reference is made. The principle is that when one party refers another second party to a third party for information, the first party is presumed to undertake to adopt as his own the information furnished by the third party. These conditions cannot be said to be fulfilled where a master calls for a report from a servant, regarding the conduct of another servant who is dismissed for misconduct, where there is nothing to indicate that in doing so the master intends to regard the servant's report as conclusive on the matter. Sec. 20 cannot apply to such a case and the report of the servant cannot become admissible as against the master in a suit for damages for wrongful dismissal even if such report corroborates the version of the dismissed servant (plaintiff). 40 C.W.N. 865. Unless an express reference has been made to a witness on a certain question his statement will not constitute an admission as regards that question. L.R. 2 I.A. 204. SEC. 21: ADMISSION—EFFECT.—An admission may be proved as against the person who makes it or his representative in interest but it cannot be proved by or on behalf of the person who makes it or by his representative in interest. This section is the affirmation of the well-known rule that a man shall not be allowed to make evidence for himself. 1939 Mar.L.R. 244 (Civ.) Admissions are not conclusive unless they amount to estoppel. 53 B. 321=1929 B. 147; 164 I.C. 530; 40 C.W.N. 75. "ADMISSION" AND "CONFESSION"—DISTINCTION.—Admission is usually applied to a civil transaction, and to those matters in criminal cases which do not involve a criminal intent; while the term confession is usually used in Criminal Courts as denoting an acknowledgment of guilt. Admission in a civil suit that a document is genuine cannot in the 'forgery' case be regarded as confession at all. 37 C. 467; 1929 C. 589. Under sec. 21 a confession being a species of admission would be relevant and can be proved against the accused unless it can be shown that there is some provision of law which excludes the proof of such a confession. 1934 A.L.J. 178=1934 A. 351=56 A. 720; 1939 Mar.L. R. 244 (Civ.); 170 I.C. 201=1937 C. 433;

(1) An admission may be proved by or on behalf of the person making it, when it is of such a nature that, if the person making it were dead, it would be relevant as between third persons under sec. 32.

Where the son and mukhtar-i-am of a party makes an admission before the partition officer, it is admissible under sec. 21 in proceedings for the division of joint sir; it would constitute a strong piece of evidence, but is not conclusive. 1940 A.W.N. (B.R.) 138=1940 R.D. 364. Where the admissions are wrong in point of fact and are made in ignorance of legal rights they have no binding effect, 1941 A.L.W. 492=1941 O.W.N. 648=1941 Oudh 429. The admission of one defendant contained in deposition in an earlier suit is not admissible in a subsequent suit against persons who were his co-defendants in the earlier suit. 20 Pat. 855. A person who was no party to a suit cannot be bound by any admissions arising out of the institution of the suit in which he acted merely as the general agent of one of the parties and in that capacity verified the plaint. 1942 O.W.N. (B.R.) 145=1942 A.L.J. (Supp.) 23. Admission by a person that he is not a legitimate son is not conclusive, but, if made by him against his own interest, it may be taken as true unless shown to be otherwise. 48 P.L.R. 187=223 I.C. 505.

ORAL CONFESSIONS.—An oral confession by an accused to a Magistrate is, as an admission by him, a relevant fact and may be proved at his trial under this section by the evidence of the Magistrate. 1929 L. 794.

ADMISSION BY WITNESS.—Where in cross-examination a witness admits that a statement previously made by him is false he ought to be asked in re-examination why he made a statement which was false. The mere fact that the witness acknowledges the previous statement to be false is no justification for rejecting such previous statement, if on other grounds the Court is able to reach the conclusion that the statement is in substance true. 51 I.C. 449=20 Cr.L.J. 465. See also 13 C.W.N. 409=1 I.C. 320; 7 I.C. 505; 20 W. An admission by a Hindu father that a house built by him was constructed out of the self-acquisition of one of his sons only has the effect of relieving that son from proving that the house was built out of his self-acquisitions; but it does not relieve him from proving what the actual cost of construction was when he claims that amount out of his father's estate. 62 C.L.J. 430=40 C.W.N. 75. An admission made by a party is not absolutely binding on him and its only effect is to shift the burden as against him. He is at liberty to prove that his admission was mistaken or untrue and is not estopped or concluded by it unless another person has been induced by it to alter his condition. 67 C.L.J. 495. See also 1939 Mar.L.R. 253 (Civil); 15 Luck. 191=1940 Oudh 35.

SECS. 21-25.—Unless it is so specifically stated in the Cr.P. Code, no rule about the relevancy of evidence in the Evidence Act is affected by any provisions of the said Code. The admission of guilt in an application presented to a Magistrate is admissible under sec. 21 of the Evidence Act. It does not become irrelevant under sec. 24 or sec. 25 of the Act. I.L.R. (1939) All. 367=1939 A. L.J. 107=1939 All. 242.

SECS. 21-27.—Secs. 21 to 27 do not suggest that statements which would be admissible in civil cases as admissions are not admissible in criminal cases. A person who subsequently becomes an accused person might make many admissions which do not implicate itself him in any criminal charge; and these would be admissible under sec. 21 in a trial on a criminal charge against him. Where in the course of an inquiry into the conduct of certain police officers held by a Magistrate who is deputed for the purpose, the officers who are not even under arrest make certain statements to the Magistrate, such statements are admissible in evidence against them, in a trial on a charge against them, under secs. 348 and 330, I.P. Code, of wrongful confinement and hurt for the purpose of extorting a confession. Such statements are not statements recorded under sec. 164, Cr.P. Code. 1941 M.W.N. 505=54 L.W. 81=1941 Mad. 720.

SECS. 21 AND 34.—Under sec. 21, an admission may be proved by or on behalf of the person making it, if it is relevant otherwise than as an admission. Statements in zamindari papers which are entries in books of account regularly kept in the course of business are relevant under sec. 34. Such statements can therefore be taken into account though they may be admissions on behalf of the zamindar. 1940 P.W.N. 498=19 Pat. 398=1940 Pat. 622.

SECS. 21 AND 145.—Under sec. 21 of the Evidence Act, a party's previous admission is relevant and can be used as evidence against him if that party has not appeared in the witness-box at all. The value of that admission as a piece of evidence depends on the circumstances of each case but ordinarily au-

(d) A is accused of receiving stolen goods knowing them to be stolen.

He offers to prove that he refused to sell them below their value.

A may prove these statements, though they are admissions, because they are explanatory of conduct influenced by facts in issue.

(e) A is accused of fraudulently having in his possession counterfeit coin which he knew to be counterfeit.

He offers to prove that he asked a skilful person to examine the coin as he doubted whether it was counterfeit or not, and that that person did examine it and told him it was genuine.

A may prove these facts for the reasons stated in the last preceding illustration.

and until the party proposing to prove them shows that he is entitled to give secondary evidence of the contents of such document under the rules herein-after contained, or unless the genuineness of a document produced is in question.

23. In civil cases no admission is relevant, if it is made either upon an express condition that evidence of it is not to be given, or under circumstances from which the Court can infer that the parties agreed together that evidence of it should not be given.

Explanation.—Nothing in this section shall be taken to exempt any barrister, pleader, attorney or vakil from giving evidence of any matter of which he may be compelled to give evidence under section 126.

24. A confession made by an accused person is irrelevant in a criminal pro-admission is a valuable piece of evidence. An admission is a relevant piece of evidence and can be used as legal evidence against a party even in cases where the party appears in the witness-box but makes no statement inconsistent or contradictory to that admission and a denial of that admission is not involved in the statement made by the party in the witness-box by considering the statement as a whole. A previous admission of a party who has gone into the witness-box on the point in issue and in the witness-box has made a statement inconsistent with the admission or the statement made in the witness-box is such which involves a denial of the previous admission or runs counter to that admission, then the previous admission cannot be used as legal evidence in the case against that party unless the attention of the witness during cross-examination was drawn to that statement and he was confronted with specific portions of that statement which were sought to be used as admission. Without complying with the procedure laid down in sec. 145 of the Evidence Act, the admission contained in the previous statement cannot be used as legal evidence against that party. 47 P.L.R. 391=A.I.R. 1946 Lah. 65 (F.B.).

Sec. 23.—When an attorney goes to an adverse party with a view to a compromise or to an action you must always look with great care to his evidence of what then occurred. Per Lord St. Leonards in 5 H.L. Cases at p. 245. Admissions before a person to whom the parties went for a compromise are admissible. See 95 I.C. 363=1926 L. 548. But an offer of a certain compensation without prejudice in land acquisition proceedings is not admissible. 92 I.C. 319=1926 L. 509. An admission contained in a draft of a compromise deed filed in Court has to be excluded under sec. 23 where the document provides that the parties to it would be free to repudiate any condition of the proposed compromise by which in their opinion, their rights were prejudicially affected. 48 C.W.N. 15. Where certain letters were in the ordinary course tendered by the plaintiffs in evidence and they were marked 'without prejudice' and the defendant's counsel admitted them, held, that the privilege was withdrawn and that the letters were as free to be used as evidence in the judicial proceedings. Held also, that under sec. 23 in order to sustain a plea of privilege as regards the letters it must be shown that both the addressor and the addressee intended to claim the same. 6 O.W.N. 1088=1930 O. 105.

Sec. 24: CONFESSION, WHAT IS.—A confession is not defined in the Evidence Act but it has been judicially interpreted as meaning an admission made at any time by a person charged with a crime stating, or suggesting the inference, that he committed that crime. The statement should however be considered as a whole. It would not be right to take isolated portions of it and to consider whether any of them, regarded separately, amounts to an admission of guilt or not. 1933 Cr.C. 1284=1933 R. 326. It should relate to the particular crime with which accused is charged. I.L.R. (1945) Bom. 278=46 Bom.L.R. 811=1945 Bom. 152. It is only when an utterance is made with an animus confitenti that it would become a confession; if, therefore, the declaration is made neither with an intention to confess, nor does it amount to an admission of facts from which guilt is directly deducible, the declaration would not amount to a confession. When a statement is not a confession that is no impediment in strict law to use it ceeding, if the making of the confession appears to the Court to have been caused by any inducement, threat or promise¹ having reference to the charge against the accused person, proceeding from a person in authority and sufficient, in the opinion of the Court, to give the accused person grounds which would appear to him reasonable for supposing that by making it he would gain any advantage or avoid any evil of a temporal nature in reference to the proceedings against him.

against the person making it in the capacity of an accused. But the practice of taking a statement on oath as from a witness and then using it at a later stage against an accused is not a commendable one. Further, part of a statement cannot be used to corroborate evidence which includes that statement itself, and which is obviously in much need of corroboration. 1937 N. 254—I.L.R. (1937) N. 524; 43 O.W.N. 893=1939 Cal. 610. A man of sound mind and of full age who makes a statement in ordinary simple language must be bound by the language of the statement made and by its ordinary plain meaning. 159 I.C. 875=1936 O. 156. Where the accused in a conversation with the remanding Magistrate stated to the Magistrate that the police wanted him to turn approver; that he had given true facts to the police; that he was in fact guilty and that he had told the police where he had sold the stolen property. Held, there was no confession; all that was said to the Magistrate was that the accused had made disclosures to the police on the promise of pardon. 148 I.C. 400=1933 L. 987. See also 1941 P.W. N. 653 (mere admission of being present in the company of dacoits is no confession of dacoity). A confession is admission by an accused person in a criminal case. The making of a counterfeit coin is not a statement and hence the evidence of persons who say that the accused made counterfeit coins in their presence is not barred by secs. 24, 25 or 26. 1931 All. 9. Oral confession—Accused not shown to understand language in which questions put, but in answer making signs—Conduct held not to amount to confession. 1930 L. 84=120 I.C. 539. Any statement by a person which would suggest an inference as to his guilt may be a confession. 59 I.C. 324=22 Bom.L.R. 1247; 1930 A. 29. A confession is not hit by sec. 24 when none of the persons to whom it was made was a person in authority, though they may have promised not to tell the police. 45 P.L.R. 391=A.I.R. 1943 Lah. 312. As to confession to panchayatdars, see 76 I.C. 329=1924 M. 230. Sec. 24 will apply even if the person confessing was not an accused person at the time of confession. A statement falling within sec. 339 (2) of the Code excludes the operation of sec. 24. 59 I.C. 324=22 Bom.L.R. 1247. To constitute a 'confession' under the Evidence Act, it is not necessary that the person confessing should make a full and explicit admission of his guilt so clean as to leave no other hypothesis tenable. It is enough if they lead to an inference of guilt. 43 I.C. 605=19 Cr.L.J. 189 (M.). But the statement of a man who takes particular care at every stage to show that he did not take part in the offence does not amount to confession. 1935 A.W.R. 48. The words "accused person" in secs. 24 to 26 include any person who subsequently becomes accused, provided that at the time of making the statements criminal proceedings were in prospect. (Ibid.) There is no provision of law which forbids a Magistrate from recording a confession on a Sunday or any other holiday and at a place other than the Court-house. 1930 L. 171. See also 165 I.C. 795=38 Cr.L.J. 84. Construction of confession. See 1945 Lah. 10.

INADMISSIBLE CONFESSION.—Inadmissible confession would be inadmissible wholly 38 I.C. 767=18 Cr.L.J. 383 (Bur.). The Court must accept or reject the confession as a whole and cannot accept only the inculpatory element while rejecting the exculpatory element as inherently incredible. 1930 A.L.J. 1481 (F.B.); 35 P.L.R. 559=1934 L. 673; 143 I.C. 362=1933 L. 665; 35 P.L.R. 659=1934 L. 630; 1933 M. 888=65 M.L.J. 837; 44 P.L.R. 448=1942 Lah. 271; 44 Cr.L.J. 77=1933 B. 401; 1933 A.L.J. 581; 34 P.L.R. 349=1933 L. 232; 1933 R. 326. But it is not an infallible rule of practice. 144 I.C. 160=1933 Pesh. 38; 1933 R. 204=149 I.C. 49; 11 O.W.N. 636=1934 O. 222. See also 40 P.L.R. 265=1933 Lah. 850.

ACCEPTANCE OR REJECTION OF CONFESSION.—Where there is no other evidence to show affirmatively that any portion of the exculpatory element in the confession is false, the Court must accept or reject the confession as a whole and cannot accept only the inculpatory element while rejecting the exculpatory element as inherently incredible. 1939 Lah. 534. In a case where there is evidence other than the confession of the accused, the Court is not bound to take the confession as a whole. If it is satisfied that a part of the confessional statement is false, it may reject that part and take into consideration that part of the confession which corroborates the evidence of the witnesses. 188 I.C. 326=41 Cr.L.J. 576=1940 Lah. 157. The Court is at liberty to disregard any statement in the confession which it disbelieves. 46 I.C. 705=19 Cr.L.J. 785 (N.). The circumstances under which a confession is made must always be scrutinized with great care and caution, and in all cases the period of the retention of the accused in police custody before a confession is made is always an important fact to be carefully considered. Illegal detention does not necessarily vitiate a confession. It is a fact to be carefully considered in every case. 31 S.L.R. 494=1937 Sind 251. Where the confession of an accused has been excluded by the trial Magistrate under sec. 24, it cannot be taken into consideration in revision even though such confession may be excluded wrongly. 1930 S. 168. Where the accused makes a confessional statement there is evidence to show that the exculpatory portion is false, the Court can ignore that portion of the confession and use the rest of it against him. 47 P.L.R. 11.

CONFESSION — EVIDENTIARY VALUE.—All parts of a confession are not entitled to equal weight. Some may be believed while others rejected. 3 O.W.N. 800=1926 O. 618. See also 42 P.L.R. 1. The rule which excludes evidence of statements made by a prisoner, when they are induced by hope held out or fear inspired by a person in authority is a rule of policy. 18 O.W.N. 705=23 I.C. 678 (P.O.). A confession to be admissible must be voluntary and made without any pressure. 35 A. 260=19 I.C. 307; 52 I.C. 881 (1)=20 Cr.L.J. 721. See also 47 L.W. 143. Under sec. 24, which is a rule of exclusion, it is not necessary that there should be a decision in so many words that a confession is not irrelevant. In every case in which a confession is admitted in a criminal case, that fact that evidence of the confession is admitted is sufficient to make the confession evidence. It is open to the defence to object to the evidence of confession going in, but till such objection is raised, there is no need for the Court to pronounce a formal decision on the question of the relevancy of the confession. The actual fact of admission of the confession is sufficient for the purpose. 1938 M.W.N. 1120=48 L.W. 777=(1938) 2 M.L.J. 1065. If a confession is not voluntary in the wider sense of the term, ex hypothesi the person who made it did not do so with the desire to tell the truth. This fact, in itself, introduces an element of suspicion. In such circumstances if facts are proved which suggest, that an inducement of some kind, although outside the terms of sec. 24, was in fact given, the Court may well refuse to accept the confession as true. 63 C. 1053=1936 C. 316. Where the Magistrate in whose presence a confession was made is called as a witness and swears that the statement was made before him freely and willingly and not in the presence of a policeman, the confession is voluntary and can be acted upon. 2 L.L.J. 653. Where the accused are unable to explain away their confessions which clearly indicate their guilt, the confessions alone are sufficient for their conviction. 5 O.W.N. 968=1928 O. 35 (a). The evidence of an admission of guilt to villagers may be strong as evidence against an accused 'as a confession before a Magistrate. It requires no corroboration. 5 O.W.N. 698=1928 O. 393; 1929 O. 272. Where an attempt is made to rely upon an extra-judicial confession, every precaution should be taken to ascertain as exactly as possible the very words which were used by the prisoner who is supposed to have confessed. 28 S.L.R. 285=1934 Sind 119. Though extra-judicial confessions have to be received with care and caution there is no reason why they should not be believed when they are clear, consistent and convincing. 12 Mys.L.J. 73=39 Mys. H.C.R. 320. Confession against himself to a witness is valid and admissible. 1929 M. 92. Where a confession was approved to have been made without any sort of influence or tutoring and the same was not contradicted by other evidence, held, that the accused could validly be convicted on the strength of the confession alone. 114 I.C. 771=1929 O. 167. See also 167 I.C. 162=41 O.W.N. 183=1937 C. 39; 38 Cr.L.J. 84=165 I.C. 795. Where the main foundation for the conviction is the confession alleged to have been made by the accused there are three things which the prosecution must establish: (a) that a confession was made, (b) that evidence of it can be given, and (c) that it is true. 152 I.C. 1032=1934 Sind 172. Where the case against the accused depends mainly upon an alleged confession and there is a conflict as to the manner in which the confession had been obtained by the prosecuting agency, the accused is justified in asking the Court to give him the benefit of the doubt. 119 I.C. 420=30 Cr.L.J. 1080. Where the confession as a whole is unreliable, the discovery which is but a part of that confession should also be held to be unreliable. 177 I.C. 617=40 P.L.R. 890=1938 L. 594.

CONFESSION IN POLICE CUSTODY, INADMISSIBILITY OF.—Question of admissibility of confession comes when statement is made to police officer or while in police custody. 1929 C. 539. When a confession was made after being in police custody for several days and protracted consultation between the accused and the investigating officers and was subsequently retracted, the confession is inadmissible. 53 I.C. 929=23 C.W.N. 886. See also 1937 C. 39=41 O.W.N. 183; 5 L.L.J. 128; 21 Cr.L.J. 177=54 I.C. 881 (P.); 18 Cr.L.J. 106=37 I.C. 314=10 Bur.L.T. 270;

17 Cr.L.J. 402=35 I.C. 962. Moral exhortation is not objectionable. 5 W.R. 32. The mere fact of the accused being in police custody is no reason for presuming that his confession was induced by threat or promise. 98 I.C. 250=1926 O. 622. Where the threats made do not influence the accused's confession it is admissible. 5 W.R. 175. A self-exculpatory statement by an accessory after the fact is inadmissible in evidence. 99 I.C. 282=30 C.L.J. 503. Sec. 24 does not admit as legal evidence an incriminating statement to headman at the latter's suggestion to speak the truth, lest witnesses for the other side may let it out when called. 18 Cr.L.J. 106=37 I.C. 314.

CONFESSION UNDER INDUCEMENT, THREAT, ETC.—WHAT CONSTITUTES INDUCEMENT.—The expression "you had better tell the truth" has always been held to import a threat or promise unless the words are qualified in some manner. The words do not mean mere exhortation to tell the truth, for the accused had already been questioned by the police. The words are susceptible of the interpretation that the accused was told that it would be better for him if he told the truth and that amounts to an inducement. 152 I.C. 998=1934 L. 417. See also 167 I.C. 795; 1937 C. 39; 41 C.W.N. 183; 1938 P. 308=17 P. 369; 1940 All. 46; 1941 M.W.N. 956; 1942 Mad. 49=(1941) 2 M.L.J. 1070; 1942 Mad. 237; 56 L.W. 479=(1943) 2 M.L.J. 293. The question whether the words used were intended to convey to accused an inducement, etc., must depend on surrounding circumstances, in which those words were used. The burden is on prosecution to prove that the confession was not improperly induced. 1933 Sind. 409. Where accused is told by a person in authority that if he makes a voluntary confession which is considered to be full and true his prayer for being made an approver will receive due consideration, the confession made under such circumstances is inadmissible. 45 A. 633=21 A.L.J. 585=74 I.C. 529. Sec. 24 makes a confession inadmissible if it appears to have been caused by any inducement or promise. 45 A. 300=21 A.L.J. 143=1923 A. 352; 1929 Sind. 245; 1930 A. 29; 1942 Mad. 237 (asking accused to produce weapons coupled with a promise that nothing would happen if they produced the weapons). The expression used in sec. 24 is not "proved" but "if it appears" which is not as strong an expression as "proved". Though the accused has not adduced evidence to substantiate the allegation that the confession was obtained by threat or inducement, it is still open to him to show that the circumstances under which it was made would justify that inference. Quære: whether the onus of proving that a confession is voluntary is on the accused or the prosecution. 33 C.W.N. 1112=1929 C. 726; 61 C. 399=38 C.W.N. 659=1934 C. 636.

Under sec. 24, unless it appears to a Court that an inducement, threat or promise was held out by a person in authority a confession would be relevant without any formal proof of the voluntary nature of the statement and formal evidence that the statement was voluntary is not required from the prosecution in practice. 54 L.W. 327=(1941) 2 M.L.J. 1070=1942 Mad. 49. Where the accused whose confession is being recorded informs the Magistrate that he is making the confession under inducement, the confession is not admissible, and cannot be allowed to go to the jury. Whether there was inducement or not is immaterial. 45 B. 1086=60 I.C. 1006. A confession by an accused to a Magistrate who did not record or administer any of the necessary warnings or adopt any of the safeguards, made after the police had threatened him and retracted at the earliest possible moment after the accused got out of the influence of the police, is inadmissible and insufficient in itself to base a conviction. 1933 M.W.N. 723. Where a confession is positively proved by the record of Magistrate that it was voluntary, the mere fact that the accused confessed in the hope of pardon will not justify its rejection as being improperly induced, in the absence of the evidence to suggest that any police officer or other person in authority did or said anything which could possibly be construed into holding out a hope of pardon. (8 L. 230, Ref.) 34 P.L.B. 704=1933 L. 388. Where the Magistrate has not put the necessary preliminary questions to the accused with a view to satisfy himself that his statement was voluntary, the irregularity can be cured under sec. 533 of the Cr.P. Code, provided the omission has not injured the accused in his defence on the merits. In other words, the Court is enabled under sec. 533 to take evidence to prove that the confession was "duly made", i.e., in accordance with secs. 164 and 364. If the questions were not put at all, the confession is not 'duly made'. But it is not necessarily irrelevant. The Court may satisfy itself that there was necessarily no inducement or threat and so fulfil the requirements of sec. 24. The weight to be attached to it depends on the facts of each case. 1933 A.L.J. 1551 (F.B.). The statements made by the accused in the trial of the police officer concerned in the investigation of the case could be admitted in evidence against him on his own trial for murder. 59 I.C. 324=22 Bom.L.B. 1247. A confession made by an accused person under fear, encouraged by a police officer in a subtle way in the hours that elapsed before the accused reached the Magistrate is inadmissible in evidence. 60 I.C. 417=32 C.L.J. 204. A confession made by an accused person on an inducement by a police officer that he would be offered a pardon is inadmissible in evidence. 60 I.C. 417. The evidence of an accomplice, if suspicious, requires corroboration. 60 I.C. 417; 9 P.R. 1911 (Cr.)=10 I.C. 340. The fact that a police officer got by means of threat information from a prisoner as to a circumstance incriminating the latter does not render that information inadmissible in evidence. 17 Cr.L.J. 33=32 I.C. 321. It is not possible for a Court to say that the making of the confession "appears" to it to have been caused by any inducement, threat or promise, except upon evidence which is before the Court. 4 P.L.T. 186=72 I.C. 961; 1928 L. 676. The influence may be suggested by the confession itself or by the prosecution evidence or by the evidence adduced by accused or by surrounding circumstances which the Court is bound to take into consideration. 72 I.C. 961=4 P.L.T. 186. It cannot be stated as a proposition of law that no statement made on oath can be a voluntary statement that would be admissible under sec. 24, which says nothing about voluntary statements. A statement made on oath may be said in certain cases to be made as the result of the holding out of a threat; but that is a question of fact. The administering of an oath is not necessarily or always tantamount to a threat to the person under oath. 55 L.W. 462=A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 654=(1942) 2 M.L.J. 112. Where an application to be made as an approver was made from jail by an accused and he also expressed a wish to make a statement it was held that though it might be an indication of an anxiety on the part of the accused to earn a pardon by becoming an approver, it was not a reason to hold that any inducement was held out to the accused to make a confession. 1943 O.W.N. 88.

Under sec. 24 there must be something from which the Court can infer that the inducement or promise was given to the accused by some person who had authority to give it. It must be shown that hope was directly inspired by some one who had authority to make the promise. 109 I.C. 225=1928 C. 500. An approver's disclosure is in its very nature always the result of an inducement or promise, namely, the inducement to confess upon a promise of pardon; but should it appear that it was extorted as the result of undue duress, such as threats of violence, to that extent the provisions of sec. 24 would be applicable and the confessional statement would have to be ruled out of evidence. 9 L. 608=1928 L. 320 (2). The mere fact that there was a race for pardon does not detract from the value of the confession, if that race for pardon does not appear to have been caused by an inducement or promise held out by one in authority. 113 I.C. 65=30 Cr.L.J. 49. It is open to the High Court to rule out a confession caused by any inducement, threat, etc. I.L.R. (1943) 1 Cal. 487=A.I.R. 1943 Cal. 625.

. WHO ARE PERSONS IN AUTHORITY FROM

WHOM THREAT OR INDUCEMENT PROCEEDS.—There is no statutory definition of the words "person in authority"; but it is well settled that the words have reference to a person who has authority to interfere in the matter under inquiry. Generally speaking a "person in authority" is one who is engaged in the apprehension, detention or prosecution of the accused or one who is empowered to examine him. 12 P. 241=14 P.L.T. 82=1933 P. 149 (S.B.). Sec. 24 refers only to a person in actual authority, the test being the possession of some power or control over the accused with reference to his case. 37 I.C. 42=18 Cr.L.J. 58. The belief of an accused that the persons to whom he made a confession were "persons in authority" is not sufficient to bring them within the term. The test is: Had the person authority to interfere with the matter? Whether a certain person is a person in authority would largely depend upon the circumstances of each particular case. Mukhais to whom confession was made by accused were held to be not persons in authority. 152 I.C. 1032=1934 S. 172. The expression "person in authority" has a wider meaning than the actual prosecutor and the test is, has the person any authority to interfere in the matter and any concern or interest in it sufficient to give him authority. 43 I.C. 605=19 Cr. L.J. 189 (M.). See also 40 B. 220=17 Bom. L.R. 1059. Police Patel in a village is such a person. 40 B. 220=17 Bom.L.R. 1059. So also a Mukhia of a village. 97 I.C. 44=1926 A. 737. Where a post office clerk begged of his superior to be saved if he disclosed every thing and the latter having promised to help him the accused made a confession. Held, that the confession was procured by inducement held out by a person in authority. 60 C. 719=1933 C. 644. A village headman is a person in authority but where accused made the confession of his own accord, out of remorse and there was no proof of inducement such confession is admissible. 6 O.W.N. 947. An inamdar holds semi-official position and he is not a person in authority under this section. 1929 L. 558. A village panch actively assisting the police officer is a 'person in authority' and a statement made to him under vellel threat and inducement is inadmissible. 8 P. 289=1929 P. 275. Statement made to moniagar on his asking accused to speak the truth is not one made under threat or promise and is admissible whether moniagar is "a person of authority". 1929 M.W.N. 791.

DUTY OF COURT.—The Judge should satisfy himself by putting searching questions to such witness as had anything to do with the confession. The first question that ought to strike every judge is "why the accused made the confession?" It is important to ascertain from those in whose custody the accused was, the circumstances in which the question of confession first arose, how the accused expressed his willingness to be placed before the Magistrate and his readiness to make a confession. Similar questions arise as regards retraction. It is only if circumstances make it reasonable to believe that the accused voluntarily made the confession and agreed to make it before the Magistrate that an inquisitive mind can be satisfied. 55 A. 91=1933 A. 81. It is for the Judge to decide for himself whether prima facie the confession of the accused appears to him to have been induced by threat or promise and for that reason to be inadmissible. It is not the province of jury to decide the question of admissibility of evidence. If the Judge considers the confession admissible, it is his duty to point out to the jury that the fact that he considers the evidence as admissible does not necessarily mean that it is true and it is for jury to make up their minds whether they should accept the confession, and in doing so they should naturally be guided by their opinion on the question whether the confession was voluntary or not. 142 I.C. 639=1933 C. 187. See also I.L.R. (1943) 1 Cal. 487=1943 Cal. 625. If the circumstances are such as to raise a strong suspicion in his mind that the confession has been induced by threats or promises of the nature described, in that section, then the confession is irrelevant. It is not necessary for the defence to establish conclusively that there was such inducement or threat. It is sufficient if the circumstances afford reasonable grounds for believing that there was such an inducement or threat. 184 I.C. 222=43 O.W.N. 893=1939 Cal. 610. Where the confession was taken at extraordinary length throughout a considerable number of days and it described in the greatest possible detail a whole series of crimes which had been committed and it further appeared that the confession was probably induced by some threat or promise. Held, that the confession should not be admitted in evidence till there was a thorough enquiry that it had been made voluntarily. 145 I.C. 863=1933 C. 835 (S.B.). When once the voluntary character of a confession is challenged by the defence the Judge should make a thorough enquiry to see whether in fact the confession was voluntary. 1933 C. 835; 1939 M.W.N. 611; 17 Mys. L.J. 238; 1939 A.L.J. 966=1939 A.W.B. (H.C.) 768.

RETRACTED CONFESSION, EVIDENTIARY VALUE OF.—A retracted confession uncorroborated in material points by other reliable evidence, is of no value. Conviction on it would be bad. 58 I.C. 49=5 P.L.J. 430. See also 30 I.C. 436; 16 Cr.L.J. 612; 75 I.C. 151=24 Cr.L.J. 304; 1929 L. 597 (whether against himself or co-accused); 1933 Sind 133; 146 I.C. 180; 11 O.W.N. 851=1934 O. 405; 63 C.L.J. 232=196 C. 316; 1937 L. 208; 163 I.C. 319=1936 N. 88. If there is no other reliable evidence in corroboration, the evidence of the approver, coupled with the retracted confession of a co-accused, is not sufficient for conviction. 55 A. 91=1933 A. 81. Where a confession is neither voluntary nor true and is subsequently retracted it is not sufficient for the conviction of the maker especially on a capital charge of murder. 145 I.C. 470=34

Cr.L.J. 1009=1933 O. 265. A convicted prisoner undergoing a term of imprisonment made a statement before a Magistrate implicating the petitioner in the offence for which he had been convicted. But when he was examined as a witness he denied the implication of the petitioner. Held, the statement was not admissible in evidence. 54 I.C. 893=21 Cr.L.J. 189=18 A.L.J. 87. See also 62 I.C. 545=22 Bom.L.R. 1274. It is unsafe for a Court to rely and act on a confession which has been retracted unless, after a consideration of the whole of the evidence in the case, the Court is in a position to come to the unhesitating conclusion that the confession is true. 26 C.W.N. 1010=71 I.C. 497=1928 L. 329 (2); 1930 O. 141; 1930 A. 29. See also 1938 L. 731; 68 C.L.J. 206. A retracted confession should carry practically no weight as against a person other than its maker. 26 C.W.N. 1010=71 I.C. 497; 1942 Lah. 271; 1944 Cal. 249. It is very unsafe to convict an accused person upon a retracted confession unless the confession is confirmed by other evidence. 36 I.C. 133=17 Cr.L.J. 453. See also 151 I.C. 716=1934 L. 715; 196 I.C. 597; 23 Pat.L.T. 387=1942 Pat. 90; 1941 Nag. 86. The corroboration ought to be of the kind that not only confirms the general story of the crime, but also unmistakably connects the co-accused with the crime. 19 Cr.L.J. 275=44 I.C. 179. The amount of corroboration depends on the circumstances of each case. 145 I.C. 133=35 Bom.L.R. 371=1933 B. 230. Where in case of an alleged poisoning of husband by wife, the wife retracted her confession which was voluntary and various articles stained with the poison were recovered in the viscera and vomits of the deceased. Held, there was sufficient corroboration. 15 L. 310=152 I.C. 206=1934 L. 150 (2). When a retracted confession is the sole evidence against an accused, it can be of but little value, especially remembering the competition for pardon which sometimes occurs where a number of persons are suspected of an offence and some have already confessed or are believed to have confessed. 17 Cr.L.J. 226=34 I.C. 642=26 P.B. 1916 (Cr.). A Court should not convict a person upon a statement made by him but subsequently retracted owing to a promise of pardon, in the absence of corroboration in material particulars unless the peculiar circumstances of making the confession or the reasons of retraction show the genuineness of the confession in spite of its revocation. 31 I.C. 831=16 Cr.L.J. 815; 44 P.L.R. 448=1942 Lah. 271; (1943) 2 M.L.J. 634 (F.B.). See also 47 Bom.L.R. 648=1945 Bom. 484. It is, however, not safe in general to convict on an uncorroborated confession from point of view of common experience and prudence, and when it is a question of a confession against a co-accused the corroboration must not only confirm the general story of the crime but must clearly connect the co-accused with it. 30 P.R. 1914 (Cr.)=15 Cr.L.J. 626=25 I.C. 634. See also 30 I.C. 436=16 Cr.L.J. 612; 8 P. 289=1929 P. 275; 1942 Lah. 271; 47 Bom.L.R. 648=1945 Bom. 484. There is no rule of law requiring a retracted confession to be supported by corroborative confession in material particulars. The use to be made of such a confession is more a matter of prudence than of law. 46 I.C. 1005=19 Cr.L.J. 861 (N.). See also 26 C.W.N. 1010; 152 I.C. 1032=1934 Sind 172; 151 I.C. 924=1934 L. 89; 57 C.L.J. 213=1933 C. 747 (F.B.). The fact that the confession was retracted before the committing Magistrate would not deprive it of its voluntary character. 52 I.C. 50. See also 60 I.C. 789; 25 I.C. 634. A retracted confession is admissible in evidence but it should have no weight unless either corroborated in a material particular or unless the tribunal comes to the conclusion that the statement as a whole is a truthful statement. In either of these cases, the retracted statement may be given full weight. 8 P. 262=1929 P. 212; 1929 M.W.N. 791; 143 I.C. 499=34 P.L.R. 703=1933 L. 388; 159 I.C. 875=1936 O. 156. As against the co-accused, a retracted confession may be taken into consideration subject, however, to the rule that it cannot form the basis of a conviction without substantial and independent corroboration both as to the crime and the criminal. Further, a higher standard of corroboration in regard to a retracted confession must be demanded than in the case of the testimony of an approver because the testimony of an approver can be tested by cross-examination whereas the confession of an accused cannot be subjected to such a test. 44 Cr.L.J. 77=44 P.L.R. 448=A. I.R. 1942 Lah. 271. Accused fully alive to consequences—Confession unexplained—Conviction on basis of retracted confession is legal. 1929 O. 381. A retracted extrajudicial confession can in law be a sufficient basis to support a conviction. 1929 Sind 253. There is nothing in law to prevent a Court from convicting a person upon a confession which has been subsequently retracted provided that the Court is convinced that the statement is voluntary and true. 1930 A. 29. See also 1930 O. 141; 12 Mys.L.J. 353; 11 Mys.L.J. 407; 150 I.C. 1056=35 Cr.L.J. 1180. It should very carefully scrutinise the confession and then decide for itself whether it is reliable and trustworthy. When the Court finds that the confession is not true, and is made with the sole object of implicating others without any intention to implicate himself, it cannot be acted upon by the Court and a conviction cannot be based on it. 151 I.C. 298=11 O.W.N. 1012; 1934 O. 418. The mere fact of the retraction of a confession is not in itself sufficient to make it appear that it was unlawfully induced but will be corroboration of the approver's statement. 113 I.C. 65=30 Cr.L.J. 49. The confession of an accused although retracted, may be

not to be proved.

25. No confession made to a police officer¹ shall taken into consideration against a co-accused. 119 I.C. 325=30 Cr.L.J. 1046; 1944 Cal. 249; and is admissible in evidence against co-accused. 1930 L. 667. But its value as a piece of evidence is almost nil. 1935 A.W. R. 48. See also 10 O.W.N. 405=1933 O. 263. It can sustain a conviction if it is corroborated by the production of articles for which the accused can give no explanation. (Ibid.) There is no absolute rule that a confession, having been retracted cannot be acted upon without material corroboration. If the reasons given by an accused person for having made a confession, which he subsequently withdraws, are, on the face of them, false, the confession can be acted upon as it stands and without any further corroboration. 53 M. 160=1929 M. 837=57 M.L.J. 681. See also 1930 A. 29 (confession by a Sessions Judge before a Magistrate but retracted later); 1942 Lah. 271. Court is at liberty to base a conviction on the retracted confession of the accused, if it thinks that it has a ring of truth about it. But it should be very slow to base a conviction upon such a confession which is not corroborated by any other satisfactory evidence, which does not impress the Court and which does not explain any strong motive for the crime. 11 O.W.N. 950=1934 O. 388. Where the confession is voluntary and not made under pressure, then there cannot be any doubt as to his guilt and conviction may be maintained even though it was subsequently retracted by him. 119 I.C. 420=1930 L. 88; 1930 O. 353.

RETRACTED CONFESSION—PROOF OF.—

Where a confession is retracted both before the committing Magistrate and the Sessions trial it cannot be used unless the Court is otherwise satisfied of its truth and voluntary character. 45 M.L.J. 613=1924 M. 391. See also 93 I.C. 978=1925 L. 605; 1933 O. 315=8 Luck. 518; 44 P.L.R. 77=1942 Lah. 271; 1942 Pat. 90. After the confession of an accused was recorded pardon was tendered to him and he was examined as witness for the prosecution. He denied all knowledge of the occurrence and also did not seem to recollect anything about the confession. His examination was therefore stopped by the Magistrate and the pardon withdrawn. But he was not tried jointly with the other accused and was examined as a prosecution witness in the Sessions Court. There also he denied all knowledge and made serious allegations against the police. He was declared hostile and cross examined and for the purpose of contradicting him, the confession made by him was read over to him. Held, that the prosecution was not justified in reading the confession which he retracted and which according to him was not voluntary. 61 C. 399=38 C.W.N. 659=1934 C. 636. Where approver is tried on the basis of his statement which is retracted it must be corroborated by other evidence. 9 L. 608=1928 L. 320 (2). Where an accused when retracting a confession alleged ill-treatment and inducement by the police to extract the confession, the onus is on him to prove such ill-treatment and inducement. 47 I.C. 811=22 C.W.N. 809. A first information report is not admissible in evidence at all, if in substance it is a confession to the police. 73 I.C. 266=1923 N. 251. See also 63 I.C. 822 (L.).

EXTRA-JUDICIAL CONFESSION THOUGH RETRACTED subsequently is undoubtedly admissible. When the subsequent discoveries fully corroborate it, a conviction could be sustained on that alone. I.L.R. (1940) Nag. 679=1940 N.L.J. 623=1941 N. 86. The accused, who was charged with murder, made a statement on a morning to the Superintendent of Police, which led to the discovery of a bill-hook which the accused said was the weapon used by him to kill the deceased. It was admitted that for four hours on the night before and for two hours on the morning on which he made the statement, the Superintendent of Police was questioning him. Held, that this was a flagrant violation of the Madras Police Executive Orders, and that the statement of the accused was not a voluntary statement and could not be admitted as it was ruled out by sec. 24, although the evidence regarding the production of the bill-hook alone could be admitted in evidence. 1934 M.W.N. 1134=50 L.W. 742. The word "accused" in secs. 24 and 26 includes any person who subsequently becomes accused. A person who is suspected of complicity in a murder and makes a confession before the coroner under sec. 19 of the Coroners' Act, is an accused person within the meaning of secs. 24 and 26 when he is later on charged with the murder or abetment of murder. His confession would be admissible against him and against his co-accused if the requisites of an admissible confession are present, though it may be retracted later on. 42 Bom.L.R. 938=1941 Bom. 50=I.L.R. (1941) Bom. 27.

SEC. 25: STATEMENT NOT AMOUNTING TO CONFESSION.—A statement made by an accused to a police officer if it does not amount to a confession may nevertheless be used against him and more particularly if the statement made turns out to be false in the light of the other evidence in the case. 23 Cr.L.J. 193=65 I.C. 849. See also 1941 Lah. 82. The word "confession" in sec. 25 is not restricted to actual admission of guilt but includes inculpatory statements from which inferences of guilt can reasonably be drawn or which suggest the guilt of the person making the statement. 42 I.C. 1092=19 Cr.L.J. 42 (L.B.). Every statement made to the police by an accused person is not a confession and statements which are not of an incriminating nature are admissible. 151 I.C. 437=1932 Sind 100. If the first information of an offence is given by the accused to a police officer, and that information admits his own guilt, it is "confession", which cannot be proved under sec. 25. 36 Bom.L.R. 1117. See also 34 P.L.R. 1000=1933 L. 899. Statement of an accused made at the police station against the co-accused is inadmissible and cannot be used as evidence as against the co-accused. 34 P.L.R. 259=1933 L. 167. Where the circumstances of the case compel a tribunal to act only upon a confession, and to reject all other evidence, the confession must be used literatim et verbatim and due effect must be given to every statement in it whether in favour of the accused or against him. 38 I.C. 740=18 Cr.L.J. 356; 14 Cr.L.J. 252=19 I.C. 508. Confession made to police officer is admissible to prove the ownership of property regarding which he is charged. 6 I.C. 62=21 Cr.L.J. 414 (N.). Section applies to every police officer and is not restricted to Regular Police Force. 26 C. 569. An admission made by the accused to the police is inadmissible against him under sec. 25. 17 Cr.L.J. 51=36 I.C. 480. As to distinction between admission and confession before police, see 10 Beng.L.R. App. 2; 6 C. 530; 10 C. 1022. The test which has to be applied in deciding whether sec. 25 applies, is the position of the person at the time when it is proposed to prove the admission not his position at the time when he is alleged to have made it. 13 Cr.L.J. 465=15 I.C. 305; 11 Mys.L.J. 438. A confession therefore made to a police officer by a person when he is not accused of any offence is inadmissible in evidence against him when he is accused of an offence. A confession made by an accused to a police officer might be admissible in favour of a co-accused but not against him. 15 I.C. 305. A confession by an accomplice to an Excise Officer is inadmissible as a piece of substantive evidence as against the other accused, even if the latter had been tried along with the maker and a fortiori it is inadmissible in a separate proceeding against the other accused. But when the maker is examined as a witness on behalf of the other accused it is admissible for the purpose of impeaching his credit in respect of the later statement made by him in his evidence in Court, under the provisions of sec. 155. 61 C. 967=38 C.W.N. 1005=1934 C. 616. The expression "police officer" in sec. 25 is used in its usual and more comprehensive meaning, and includes police officers of the Native States as those of British India. 43 I.C. 111=14 N.L.R. 192. The term "police officer" in this respect must be construed not in any strict technical sense but according to its most comprehensive and popular meaning. 71 I.C. 360=14 Cr.L.J. 136 (Pesh.). Hence in common parlance and among the generality of people, a Sub-Divisional Magistrate cannot be taken to be a police officer. He is a member not of the police service but of the Provincial Civil Service and much of his work is judicial. 150 I.C. 991=1934 P. 256. Police officer includes person invested with police powers. 8 R. 52 (Assistant Superintendent of Pakokku Hill Tracts exercising the powers of Additional District Magistrate). (1946) 1 M.L.J. 368 (Special Officer of Commercial-tax Department empowered under Hoarding and Profiteering Prevention Ordinance). The statements of approver to a Police Inspector being really confessions, are inadmissible. 35 M. 247=22 M.L.J. 490 (S.B.). See also 15 Cr.L.J. 474=24 I.C. 562; 15 I.C. 325. Confession made to a police officer in Nizam's Dominions is not admissible in evidence. 19 Cr.L.J. 73; 43 I.C. 111=14 N.L.R. 192. Confession before administrator in Portuguese territory not admissible. See 26 Bom.L.R. 706=1924 B. 480. It would be difficult to hold that a member of the civic guard should be treated as anything else than a police officer when called out on duty, even though he may not have the powers of investigation. There may also be cases in which a confession made to a civic guard would have to be regarded as being a confession made to a police officer, though he had not been technically called out on duty; but this would rather be a result of the ordinary rule of prudence which often makes it necessary to exclude confessions made to Village Lambardars or other notables who are assisting the police in the course of investigation. 46 P.L.R. 15. Even if a police-man happens to be a member of a crowd of villagers and a confession was made to the villagers at-large, the mere fact that a police man happened to be present in the crowd would not make the confession inadmissible in evidence. 1934 A. L.J. 143=1934 A. 132. The test to decide whether a statement is a confession or not, is to see whether the accused states that he has done something which amounts to an offence thereby accusing himself of committing of an offence. 17 P. 15=19 P.L.T. 452=1938 P.W.N. 338. The prohibition contained in sec. 25 applies only to confessions which are to be proved as against the accused, that is, in support of the prosecution case, and does not apply to statements on which the accused himself wishes to rely in connection either with his conviction or his sentence. 43 P.L. R. 672; see also 1942 Lah. 37. The prohibition contained in sec. 25 is of a general nature. It forbids the proof at a trial of a criminal offence of any admission of any offence made by the accused to a police officer, and it makes no difference whether the offence is Confession by accused while in custody of police not to be proved against him.

26. No confession made by any person whilst he is in the custody of a police officer, unless it be made in the immediate presence of a Magistrate¹ shall be proved as against such person.

one of which the accused can be convicted at the trial at which it is sought to prove the confession made to a police officer. The admissibility of a confession does not depend upon the offence charged. A confession made by an accused to the police of an offence of culpable homicide not amounting to murder is not admissible in a trial for murder on the same facts. 1941 Sind 134=I.L.R. (1941) Kar. 292. A confession made to the police in the course of the investigation of a crime is inadmissible in evidence, though the confession relates to another crime. The whole spirit of sec. 25 is to exclude confessions to the police, and the moment a statement is found to amount to a confession it does not matter at all of what crime it is a confession. I.L.R. (1937) M. 358=1937 M. 209=(1937) 1 M.L.J. 154; see also I.L.R. (1942) Mad. 77=(1941) 2 M.L.J. 209. Excepting in very rare cases the value of an extra-judicial confession is not very high and where there is no other corroborative evidence in support of it, it is very unsafe to rely on such confession. 184 I.C. 390=1939 A.L.J. 732=1939 All. 685. No statement that contains self-exculpatory matter can amount to a confession, if the exculpatory statement is of some fact which, if true, would negative the offence alleged to be confessed. A confession cannot be construed as a statement by an accused "suggesting the inference that he committed" the offence. 66 I.A. 66=43 C.W.N. 473=(1939) 1 M.L.J. 756=1939 P.C. 47 (P.C.); 1941 O.W.N. 722=1941 Oudh 359; 1942 Lah. 37. Under sec. 25 only confessions are excluded and not admissions not amounting to a confession. The accused, a police officer, made a confession to his subordinate that he had heard a rumour about the murder and that certain persons had approached him to get the matter hushed up and had forced upon him a certain amount. Held, that statement as to acceptance of bribe being confession was inadmissible under sec. 25 but the statement as to rumour and approach of people to the accused to get the matter hushed up being admission was admissible. 193 I.C. 878=1941 Lah. 82.

SECS. 25 AND 27.—Sec. 25 to which sec. 27 is a proviso applies equally to confessions with regard to offences not under investigation. Where a person while under custody for a criminal breach of trust in respect of a cycle that he had taken on hire and then sold, confessed that he had similarly sold another cycle and as a result of that confession that cycle was discovered, the confession is admissible under sec. 27. 55 L.W. 677=(1942) 2 M.L.J. 549=1943 Mad. 89; I.L.R. (1943) Mad. 456. On a joint trial of four accused, before an accused is convicted on the basis of confession made by them, there must be evidence on the record which leads one to conclude that it was the particular accused who made the crucial statement or that it was he who was responsible for the discovery of the relevant facts. 55 L.W. 355=A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 532 (1). As sec. 25 stands at present confessions made in a first information report must be excluded from its operation. But, however, the statements made in the course of such an inadmissible confession are not excluded for the purposes of sec. 27. I.L.R. (1940) Nag. 679=1940 N.L.J. 623.

SEC. 26: CONFESSION IN CUSTODY OF Po-

1[Explanation.—In this section “Magistrate” does not include the head of a village discharging magisterial functions in the Presidency of Fort St. George 2[* *] or elsewhere, unless such headman is a Magistrate exercising the powers of a Magistrate under the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882.³]

LIEGE—EXTRA-JUDICIAL CONFESSION.—The accused who was in the lock-up of the Magistrate under trial was sent up by the Magistrate to a hospital or treatment with two policemen in charge. The latter waited outside in the verandah. During his examination inside the dispensary by the doctor, the accused made a confession within the hearing of the doctor. Held, that it was excluded by sec. 26. 42 B. 1=42 I.C. 597=10 Bom.L.R. 683. Where the accused in judicial lock-up made a confession to fellow prisoners, the policeman whose duty it was to guard the lock-up was present. Held, that his presence did not make the confession inadmissible as accused was in magisterial custody as opposed to police custody. 151 I.C. 894=1934 L. 75. Statement made by accused to the police in ignorance of the complaint filed against him is admissible under secs. 25 and 26 as the accused was not in police custody nor was he aware of the complaint against him and the statement could be used as an admission under sec. 18 and to use the statement was not contrary to sec. 162 of the Criminal Procecedure Code. 9 P.L.T. 449=111 I.C. 721=1928 P. 473. The accused was in the police lock-up for three days and was subsequently brought out temporarily, and taken to the house of the Superintendent of Post Offices. The accused made a confession before this officer and was subsequently taken back to the police lock-up. Held, that the confession was inadmissible in evidence as the separation of the accused from the police was only temporary. 108 I.C. 398=1928 L. 282. Sec. 26 is not inapplicable in cases where the arrest by the police officer of person making the confession is illegal. Whether the arrest is legal or illegal the mischief which the section is intended to avert remains all the same, and a confession made by the arrested persons while in the custody of the police officer is inadmissible under sec. 26. The illegality of the arrest does not affect the operation of sec. 26. 17 P. 369=19 P.L.T. 268=1938 P. 308.

POLICE OFFICERS referred to in sec. 26 need not be investigating police officers. 42 B. 1=42 I.C. 97=19 Bom.L.R. 683. As sec. 25 refers only to a police officer, a Court should not extend it to other classes of officers merely on grounds of similarity of functions. The restrictive provisions of sec. 25 should not be applied to Excise Officers. 39 Cr.L.J. 338=1938 M. 460=(1938) 1 M.L.J. 238. But see also 1938 Sind 1=32 S.L.R. 185. Statements by accused to C.I.D. Officer—Admissibility. 1938 M.W.N. 825. The expression ‘police officer’ is not to be read in a technical sense but in its more comprehensive and popular meaning. Whatever reasons existed for inducing the Legislature to make a departure from the English law and exclude a confession made to a police officer apply with equal if not greater force to an officer who is clothed with powers of a police officer and is actually engaged in the investigation of a crime in respect of which the confession is made to him. Hence an Abkari Officer investigating an offence against the Bombay Abkari Act in exercise of the powers conferred upon him in Ch. 9 of the Act is a police officer within the scope of sec. 25. 32 S.L.R. 185=172 I.C. 968=1938 Sind 1. Where an accused confesses to having caused the death of a woman and admits having robbed her after her death, but during that confession introduces into it circumstances with a view to excuse himself from a conviction for murder if cannot be contended that the confession must be accepted as it is and that so taken it is not sufficient for a conviction. Such a contention is wholly unacceptable and is contrary to practice and authority. When the confession is shown to be voluntary and made with due apprehension of what was said and of the consequences, the confession must be accepted and acted upon along with other circumstances as a whole, including the other evidence, in the case. 187 I.C. 481=1940 M.W.N. 169.

There is no statutory period of time to which an accused is entitled for making a confession after he is sent to the magisterial custody. All that is required is that he must have sufficient time for reflection, the mere fact that the confession was made one day after the accused was handed over to the magisterial custody would not by itself show that he had no sufficient time for reflection or make the confession bad on that account. 47 Bom.L.R. 63=1945 Bom. 292.

STATEMENT MADE IN POLICE CUSTODY AND BEFORE MAGISTRATE is not admissible either against him or against a person jointly tried with him, unless it has led to discovery of any fact mentioned in sec. 27. 28 I.C. 145=16 Cr.L.J. 257. A confession though made in the presence of a Magistrate is of very little value, when the accused is not aware of his presence. 22 I.C. 150=15 Cr.L.J. 6. See also 31 S.L.R. 460=1937 Sind 212. A confession made in the presence of a Magistrate though on leave, is nevertheless relevant and admissible. 22 I.C. 150. Juge de instruction in French India who is a sort of committing Magistrate with power to commit or discharge a prisoner but not to convict is "a Magistrate" within the meaning of sec. 26 and a statement made by an accused in police custody to such person is admissible in evidence. 52 M. 529=56 M.L.J. 628. Confession to Honorary Magistrate—Admissibility of. 152 I.C. 998=1934 L. 417. Confession made before Magistrate of Native State, is within the section. 144 I.C. 157=1933 A. 286; 151 I.C. 311=1934 Sind 103. A statement made by the accused at the dock before the Magistrate, if it amounts to a clear confession is certainly admissible in evidence against the accused; its value is not discounted by the fact that the accused was at that time in the custody of the police. 1930 M.W.N. 1249. The mere fact that the Court constable was allowed to remain present while the co-accused were making their confessions before the Magistrate does not involve the total exclusion of the confessions from evidence, but it certainly detracts from their evidentiary value. 152 I.C. 275=14 P.L.T. 111=1934 P. 586. See also 165 I.C. 319=1936 R. 455. The "custody" of a police officer for purposes of sec. 26 is not mere physical custody. A person may be in the custody of a police officer, though the latter may not be physically in possession of the person of the accused making the confession. Once an accused person is arrested by a police officer and is in his custody, the mere fact that for some purpose or other the police officer happens to be temporarily absent and during such absence leaves the accused in charge of a private individual, does not terminate the custody of the police officer. The accused must be deemed to be still in the custody of the police officer. 17 P. 369=19 P.L.T. 268=1938 P. 308; 1941 Pesh. 22.

ORAL CONFESSION.—A confession to be admissible in evidence need not be recorded. It may be oral, and may be proved by the Magistrate to whom the oral confession was made. 45 I.C. 843; 11 P.R. 1918 (Cr.); 34 P.L.R. 896=1933 L. 513; 1934 A.L.J. 178=1934 A. 351. See also 1933 Cr.C. 1513=1933 L. 998; 10 O.W.N. 923=1933 O. 432. A confession made by an accused to a Magistrate on leave in the presence of a police officer who had the accused under arrest at the time is not admissible in evidence, where no record was made of his statement under sec. 164 of the Cr.P. Code. 118 I.C. 46=1929 A. 855. Where a Magistrate simply accompanies a police officer while the police officer is making the investigation, the evidence of the Magistrate as to what happened is not admissible under sec. 26. 34 Cr.L.J. 754=1933 A. 394. See also 1941 Pesh. 22 (confession to doctor while in police custody but not in presence of police officer is inadmissible).

PLEA OF GUILTY BY UNDEFENDED ACCUSED ENFEEBLED BY ILLNESS.—A plea of guilty can be allowed to be withdrawn of the accused was at the time of making it, enfeebled by illness and was undefended. 28 I.C. 145=16 Cr.L.J. 257.

CONFESSION—ADMISSIBILITY OF, AGAINST CO-ACCUSED.—A confession by an accused is not admissible against co-accused under sec. 30. If the former is convicted on his plea of guilty. 28 I.C. 145=16 Cr.L.J. 257; 159 I.C. 875=1936 O. 156. A confession of an accused recorded outside British India by a Magistrate is not excluded by sec. 26. 69 I.C. 257=17 N.L.R. 113. Confession not recorded under sec. 164, Cr.P. Code, but recorded under sec. 339 (2), Cr.P. Code, before tender of pardon. I.L.R. (1943) Kar. 285.

27. Provided that, when any fact is deposed to as discovered in consequence of information received from a person accused of any offence, in the custody of a police officer, so much of such information, whether it amounts to a confession or not, as relates distinctly to the fact thereby discovered may be proved.

SEC. 27.—(N.B.—See also Notes under secs. 24-26.)

SCOPE OF SECTION.—See 45 C. 557=22 C. W.N. 213=44 I.C. 321; 1941 Nag. 86. Sec. 27 has to be read as a proviso not only to sec. 26 but to secs. 25 and 26 taken together. 1941 P.W.N. 653. Sec. 27 controls the prior secs. 24, 25 and 26. If therefore a confession comes within the purview of sec. 27, it is admissible in evidence, even if it is hit by sec. 24 of the Act. Sec. 27 is not merely a proviso to sec. 26, but also secs. 24 and 25. Sec. 27, however, only refers to the statement of a person accused of any offence and in the custody of a police officer. It does not apply when the person making the confession is not in the custody of a police officer at the time when the confession is made. 24 Pat. 671. Sec. 27 has no application to a confessional statement made to a police officer before the deponent has come into the custody of that police officer. 54 L.W. 136=1941 Mad. 765=(1941) 2 M.L.J. 209. The exact information received from the accused must be established before sec. 27 can be resorted to. 46 C.W.N. 180=I.L.R. (1942) 1 Cal. 436=1942 Cal. 593. The word "thereby" in "fact thereby discovered" in sec. 27 refers to that portion of the information only which may be held to be the proximate cause of the discovery. In order that this may be admissible against the accused, (1) the information must be the one given by the accused—the statement conveying the information must be his own statement in his own language, and then (2) only so much of the information as is necessary and sufficient to cause the discovery will be admissible. 48 C.W.N. 180=1942 Cal. 593; 55 L.W. 263=1942 Mad. 444=(1942) 1 M.L.J. 517. See also 49 Mys.H.C.R. 444; 50 Mys.H.C.R. 108. Sec. 27 is an enabling section providing an exception to the previous ones which exclude confessions made to or in presence of the police. If the conditions of the section are fulfilled, it allows a confession to be proved. I.L.R. (1936) N. 78=1936 N. 200. Sec. 27 is the nature of a proviso relating to the previous sections which lay down the general rules as to the inadmissibility of confessions made in certain circumstances. Whether a confession to which sec. 27 applies was induced by promises or not is immaterial. The general ground for not admitting confessions made either to a police officer, or made under any inducement or made by persons while in custody is clearly the danger of admitting false confessions; but the necessity for this precaution disappears when the truth of the confession is guaranteed by the discovery of facts in consequence of the information given. (1936 N. 200, Foll.) I.L.R. (1937) N. 268=168 I.C. 962=1937 N. 220. Under sec. 27 so much of the information given by the accused as relates distinctly to the facts of the discovery in consequence of the information given by him may alone be proved, whether it amounts to a confession or not. Where the fact discovered was that the grave in which the corpse of the deceased was interred was dug up with a spade produced by the accused, the only part of the information given by him which can be admitted is that relating strictly to the discovery of the spade with which the grave was dug. It is not possible to admit any statement by him that he murdered the deceased. 1937 M.W.N. 881. See also 1939 A.L.J. 732=1939 All. 685. Where a person accused of murder makes a statement in the presence of the police and the panch that he had committed the murder and had removed the ornaments of the deceased, which he afterwards produces the statement that the accused had committed the murder does not fall within sec. 27 because it is not a statement required to lead up to the production of the property. It is quite enough to say that he would show the property which belonged to the deceased. 45 Bom.L.R. 884. See also 56 L.W. 107=(1943) 1 M.L.J. 192; (1943) 2 M.L.J. 283. Where facts are discovered by the accused himself combined with a statement, such a statement is not admissible under sec. 27. The Court must distinguish between cases where discovery is made in consequence of information given and a disclosure by an accused accompanying a statement. While in the former case a statement of the accused leading to discovery is admissible, the statement in the latter case is inadmissible under sec. 27. 1940 M.W.N. 1238=52 L.W. 898=1941 Mad. 306; 1941 M.W.N. 956. The intention of the Legislature in enacting sec. 27 was that the minimum portion of a confession made to a police officer or of information given to him should be admitted into evidence which might reasonably be held to relate distinctly and positively to the fact discovered and which is necessary to be proved in order to adequately sustain such discovery. 170 I.C. 453=I.L.R. (1937) A. 710=1937 A. 485; 53 L.W. 567=1941 Mad. 658. The preamble in a confessional statement which has no relation to the discovery of the facts is not admissible under sec. 27. (1939) 2 M.L.J. 487=1939 M. 593. The word 'person' is used in sec. 27 in the singular designedly. The section ought to be construed strictly. In cases where one accused has agreed to point a place where a fact will be discovered in pursuance of his statement, that section would not cover similar statements of other accused persons in police custody. 1945 O.W.N. 44=1945 A.W.R. (C.C.) 23=1945 O.A. (C.C.) 23=1945 Oudh 235; 1945 Cal. 137. See also I.L.R. (1944) 2 Cal. 76. Sec. 27 refers to a fact being discovered; a fact means and includes, according to the definition in sec. 3, "anything state of things or relations of things capable of being perceived by the senses". 1940 M.W.N. 163. "Leading to discovery"—Statement leading to discovery not immediately but ultimately admissible. 1940 M.W.N. 163=1941 M. 290. Statement leading to discovery—What constitutes—Fact discovered not because of statement made but due to act of another—Statement not admissible. 1940 Mad. 744=(1940) 1 M.L.J. 758. See also 1941 M.W.N. 956; 50 Mys.H.C.R. 106; 49 Mys.H.C.R. 444. Before pointing out the pile of stones under which the dead body lay buried, the accused stated to the police officer that the dead body had been buried by him. Held, that the statement was admissible under sec. 27. 47 P.L.R. 254. (Discovery of fact—Accused producing articles alleged to be stolen and making confession—Subsequent claim to articles as own—Admissibility of confession. See 46 Cr.L.J. 613=A.I.R. 1945 Pat. 161). Information given by an accused, leading to discovery of facts under sec. 27, is not inadmissible on the ground that the officer recording the information knows before so recording what information the accused is going to give. 1943 M.W.N. 11. Statements which are admissible under sec. 27 can be proved only against the person who made them. The section does not sanction the letting in of the statement of one person as evidence against another person. I.L.R. (1944) 2 Cal. 76. See also 1945 O.W.N. 44; 49 Mys.H.C.R. 444. Where a confession is made by the accused while in police custody after he was arrested by the Chaukidar and was being escorted under his control, its admissibility is not affected by the possibility of its having been made during the temporary absence of the Chaukidar. Where a place is pointed out by the accused to a police officer as the place of occurrence and nothing is found there, the pointing out of the place is really evidence of a confession of his guilt and is therefore inadmissible under sec. 26. 195 I.C. 493=1941 O.W.N. 953=1941 Oudh 563. The only portions given by the accused which can be admitted under sec. 27 are those which relate distinctly to the facts discovered thereby. But statements made by one accused involving another accused, cannot be admitted when they do not in any way relate to those facts. 1940 M.W.N. 764=52 L.W. 284. Before a confessional statement made by a person accused of an offence who is in the custody of a police officer may be proved against him, two conditions must be observed firstly some incriminating thing must be proved to have been found as the direct result of the information supplied by the accused and, secondly, it must be confined to that portion which refers exclusively to the thing found; in other words, when any incriminating object is proved to have been found as the direct result of information given by a person accused of any offence in the custody of a police officer that portion of the information which has led to the object being found may be proved—provided it refers clearly to that object, even though the information provable is self-incriminating. The fact deposed to and the fact discovered obviously must be relevant and the fact or thing discovered can only be relevant if it is connected with the offence of which the accused is charged; and the confession in sec. 27 is a confession of the offence charged and not of anything else. I.L.R. (1937) Mad. 695=1937 Mad. 618=(1937) 2 M.L.J. 60 (F.B.). If an accused makes a statement which is admissible under sec. 27, the whole of the statement which leads to the discovery of the stolen property is admissible and sentences should not be cut up so as to reduce the statements only to the actual words which the accused may use to express the fact that he has hidden the properties. I.L.R. (1936) N. 78=1936 N. 200. See also 17 Mys.L.J. 158; 52 L.W. 981; 1941 A.L.J. 86. In regard to statements made by accused persons the Cr.P. Code does not, in sec. 162, alter the provisions of sec. 27, Evidence Act. There is no contradiction in the two sections as sec. 162 does not apply to statements by accused persons. 55 A. 463=1933 A. 440. See also 43 Bom.L.R. 157; I.L.R. (1940) Nag. 679=1940 N.L.J. 623; 1939 Pat. 577=1939 P.W.N. 300; 1941 P.W.N. 653; I.L.R. (1939) Mad. 947=(1939) 2 M.L.J. 455. Sec. 27 qualifies not only secs. 25 and 26 but also sec. 24 all three of which lay down general rules excluding confession and the same broad grounds underline all the three. 45 C. 557. See also 6 A. 509; 11 B.H.C.R. 242; 9 L. 671; 1928 L. 476; 152 I.C. 998=1934 Cr.C. 643=1934 L. 417. The broad ground for not admitting confessions made under inducement or to a police officer is the danger of admitting false confessions but the necessity for the exclusion disappears in a case provided by sec. 27 when the truth of the confession is guaranteed by the discovery of facts in consequence of the information given. 1928 L. 476. See also 61 C.1053=63 C.L.J. 232=1936C. 316. Sec.27 has nothing to do with the question whether the fact discovered is or is not relevant. 10 L. 283=1929 L. 344 (F.B.). Sec. 27 being a proviso to the two preceding sections must be strictly construed and any relaxation must be sparingly allowed, care being exercised to see that the purpose and object of secs. 25 and 26 and the safeguard provided in sec. 27 are not rendered nugatory by any lax interpretation. 34 C.W.N. 106=1930 C. 291. See also 173 I.C. 418=18 P.L.T. 964=1938 P. 60. As to the use that can be legitimately made of confession to police when direct evidence is given against the accused at the trial. 77 I.C. 890=1924 A. 207. It is open to the defence to check such evidence, e.g., the consistency of an approver's story. 34 C.W.N. 106. A statement made by an accused to a police officer is inadmissible against a co-accused. 20 A.L.J. 178=65 I.C. 849. In construing sec. 27 the word "confession" does not necessarily mean a complete confession of guilt but means any includes any incriminating statement. 115 I.C. 1=1929 L. 338. See also 1941 Nag. 86. Statements made by an accused to a police officer in the circumstances provided for in sec. 27 have been treated as a matter of unquestioned practice in all the High Courts, as admissible in evidence notwithstanding that they have been made to an investigating officer during the progress of an investigation, and fall under sec. 162, Cr.P. Code. Both sec. 27 and sec. 162 must be given effect to sec. 162, having effect in every case except those to which sec. 27 applies by way of exception or proviso. 1939 Pat. 577=18 P. 450=20 P.L.T. 420. A confessional statement made by the accused and recorded by the police officer to whom it is made is not taken out of statements admissible under sec. 27 merely because it is attested by witnesses present at the time. 56 L.W. 479 (1)=(1943) 2 M. L.J. 293. See also 20 Mys.L.J. 367. It does not follow that a statement falling under sec. 27 by an accused person is inadmissible, because it is made by him to a Sub-Inspector of Police at an interview in violation of the Jail Rules and Police Standing Orders. (1943) M.W.N. 11.

Per Collister, J.—Sec. 162, Cr.P. Code, contains provisions plainly and directly, and therefore specifically affecting sec. 27 quod statements made under that section by an accused person to a police officer in the course of an investigation. In other words, there is a 'specific provision to the contrary' within the meaning of sec. 1 (2) of the Cr. P. Code. I.L.R. (1940) All. 396=1940 A. L.J. 241=1940 All. 263 (F.B.). See also 1939 N.L.J. 585. The provisions of sec. 27 have not been repealed by sec. 162, Cr.P. Code. Sec. 27 embodies the special rule, while sec. 162, Cr.P. Code, is the general rule, and the latter rule does not derogate from the former. Therefore statements made by accused persons to the police after their arrest, and admissible under sec. 27 are admissible in evidence against them and are not excluded by sec. 162, Cr.P. Code. 50 L.W. 423=1939 Mad. 840=(1939) 2 M. L.J. 635. Per Young, C.J., Tek Chand, Din Mohammad, Monroe and Ram Lal, JJ. (Dalip Singh and Bhide, JJ., dissenting). —Sec. 27 is pro tanto repealed by sec. 162, Cr.P. Code, and evidence of information, whether it amounts to a confession or not, which relates to the fact discovered in consequence of such information must not be considered admissible in evidence. I.L.R. (1940) Lah. 242=188 I.C. 498=1940 Lah. 129 (F.B.). The effect of the amendment of sec. 162, Cr.P. Code, in 1923 upon sec. 27 has been left open and not decided by the decision in 18 Pat. 234 and sec. 277 is still valid and applicable as before. I.L.R. (1940) Nag. 679=1940 N.L.J. 623. See also 43 Bom.L.R. 157. The words of S. 162, Cr. P. Code, are wide enough to exclude of confessional statement made to a police officer in the course of investigation, irrespective of whether a discovery is made or not. But the provisions of sec. 27 are quite independent of sec. 162, Cr.P. Code and the amendment of the latter in 1923 is not intended to abrogate or impair the effect of sec. 27; hence a statement excluded by sec. 162 may become admissible under sec. 27. 185 I.C. 310=1939 N.L.J. 585=1940 Nag. 66. See also 188 I.C. 311=44 Cr.L.J. 573; 44 Cr.L.J. 41.

Applicability of Section.—Sec. 27 is a proviso to secs. 24, 25 and 26. Statement made to the police is admissible though the accused himself makes the discovery about which the statement it made. 12 Cr.L.J. 119=9 I.C. 718; 1930 C. 291. See also (1939) 1 M.L.J. 756 (P.C.); 24 Pat. 671. It must be strictly construed. 1930 C. 291; 10 O.W.N. 937=1933 O. 404. Secs. 161 and 162 of Cr.P. Code do not override the provisions of secs. 27 and 28. 5 P. 63=1926 P. 232. See also 4 R. 72=1926 R. 116; 55 A. 563; 35 P.L.R. 738=1934 L. 695; 23 Pat.L.T. 475=1942 Pat. 156; 20 Mys.L.J. 367. Confession to person in authority who holds out inducements to confess is not admissible even so far as it relates to the discovery of articles. 4 R. 72=96 I.C. 145. See also 41 Cr.L.J. 242=1940 Mad. 12. Where there is immediate connection between discovery and statement made to a police officer, the latter is admissible in evidence. 20 Cr.L.J. 305=50 I.C. 481. If the recoveries were made in consequence of the information, supplied by the accused, the statements made by them are admissible. 1923 L. 434. A statement is admissible in evidence under sec. 27, if as a consequence of it, there is discovery incriminating the person making the statement. 72 P.L.R. 1916=33 I.C. 823. See also 16 Cr.L.J. 545=29 I.C. 817=11 P.R. 1915 (Cr.); 47 P.L.R. 254. The Legislature has prescribed two limitations in order to define the scope of the information provable against the accused: (1) The information must be such as has caused the discovery of the fact, and (2) the information must "relate distinctly" to the fact discovered. The requirements of both the conditions must be satisfied before an incriminating statement can be received in evidence. Thus only that portion of the information is provable which was the immediate or proximate cause of the discovery of the fact. 10 L. 283=115 I.C. 6 (F.B.). (9 L. 626=1928 L. 308, overruled; 1926 M. 638; 1928 P. 162, diss. from). See also 1929 L. 338; 1929 Sind 175; 1930 Sind 225; 151 I.C. 883=36 Bom. L.R. 384=1934 B. 233; 30 N.L.R. 269=150 I.C. 623=1934 N. 71; 28 S.L.R. 41=1934 Sind 159; 1933 N. 252. Under sec. 27, the information to be proved must relate distinctly to the fact thereby discovered. The word "distinctly" in sec. 27 is used in some sense other than the word "directly". It is meant to exclude certain things and to limit and confine the information which may be proved within definite limits and not necessarily to include everything which may relate to that information. Even more important is the word 'discovered'. It is used in a peculiar sense. The test is that the fact discovered must be discovered in the sense, that the proof of the existence of that fact no longer rests on the credibility of the statement of accused, but rests on the credibility of the witnesses who depose to the existence of that fact. The rest of the information is not admissible. 1929 L. 338=115 I.C. 1. Though a person points out a place not his own where stolen property is concealed, the Court should not conclude that the person had received or retained it. 39 I.C. 330=1 P.R. (1917) (Cr.). Accused's knowledge of place of concealment does not prove that he concealed it. 1923 L. 238 (2). The mere knowledge of the place of concealment does not show that the person having such knowledge actually received the stolen articles or participated in the act of concealment. 1923 L. 238 (2).

Custody of Police Officer.—"Custody", meaning of. See 18 L. 106; I.L.R. (1936) N. 78. Per Bhide and Din Mahommed, JJ.—"Police custody" does not necessarily mean custody after formal arrest and it also includes "some form of police surveillance and restriction on the movements of the person concerned by the police". It is open to an accused person to prove in every case that arises that he was actually in the custody of a police officer, although in the police diaries he was not shown to have been formally arrested. I.L.R. (1940) Lah. 242=188 I.C. 498=1940 Lah. 129 (F.B.). In the case of mere suspects who have not been formally charged with any offence or arrested under any section of the Cr.P. Code, their presence with the police under some restraint amounts to the "custody" which is contemplated by the section. If a statement made by a person in the above circumstances leads to the discovery of any matter, it is admissible. 18 L. 106=1937 L. 620. When a person stated that he has done certain acts which amount to an offence he accuses himself of committing the offence; and if he makes the statement to a police officer as such, he submits to the custody of the officer within the meaning of S. 46 (1) Cr.P. Code and is than in the custody of a police officer within the meaning of sec. 27. 12 P. 241=1933 P. 149 (S. B.). Where a person had been suspected from the beginning itself and was treated as accused person and was not kept under much restraint as he could hardly have absconded. Held, that he was in custody of police and statements leading to discovery of things were admissible. 15 L. 310=1934 L. 150 (2); 34 P.L. R. 637=1933 L. 516. Even if an accused is not formally arrested when he gives information leading to discovery, if it is proved that he was arrested before he went to the spot from which the articles are recovered, the accused shall be deemed for all practical purposes as in police custody when giving such information. I.L.R. (1936) N. 78=1936 N. 200. Where a police officer, although he arrested a person charged with being in possession of cocaine after the finding of the cocaine with him, interviewed the accused and was with him for a considerable time and walked with him to the place where the accused pointed out the spot where the cocaine might be found, held, that the accused was in police custody at the time when he made the statement as to the spot where the cocaine could be found and his statement was admissible under sec. 27. 144 I.C. 74=1933 C. 148. Statements made by the accused to the daroga showing the place in the jungle where the occurrence in question, viz., taking away a female and having sexual intercourse with her took place, cannot be admitted in evidence they being in the nature of a confession made of a police officer while in custody. Sec. 27 has no application and would make the statements admissible. 143 I.C. 797=1933 C. 146.

Statement to police—Recording of—Duty of Police.—It is not the duty of the police to decide what evidence is admissible and what is not, and a statement made by an accused person should not be mutilated. The duty of the police, if they desire to record a statement, is to record it as given and leave it to the Court to decide what evidence is admissible. The practice of police officers giving statements not made to them in the first instance in evidence but statements made obviously for the second time before panchayatdars must be condemned. Such a second statement is inadmissible in evidence. It is the first statement of the accused, to whomsoever made, that leads to the discovery of a fact, if a fact is discovered. I.L.R. (1940) Mad. 254=1940 M.W. N. 860=1940 Mad. 710.

The correct procedure for recording and proving a confessional statement admissible under sec. 27 of the Evidence Act, is for the police officer to record in the first person the statement of the accused, and when he gives evidence, to say that the accused made a confession statement, that he took it down, and then, for the purpose of refreshing his memory, to refer to the actual statement, which is in the police diary and prove before the Court by that method what the accused had said. 58 L.W. 85=1945 M.W.N. 102=1945 Mad. 202=(1945) 1 M.L.J. 223. They should be recorded in the first person, that is to say, as far as possible in the actual words of the accused.

They should not be paraphrased. It will be for the trial Judge who has such a record before him to decide how much of it is admissible under the section. I.L.R. (1937) M. 695; 1937 M. 618=(1937) 2 M.L.J. 60 (F.B.). See also 171 I.C. 225=(1937) 2 M.L.J. 32.

Information not leading to Discovery.—Statements leading immediately to the discovery of property are properly admissible. Other statements connected with the one thus made and immediately, but not necessarily or directly connected with the fact discovered are not admissible. 32 I.C. 136=13 A.L.J. 1077; 1930 B. 244. See also 53 L.W. 567=1941 M.W.N. 371; 1937 A.M.L.J. 18; 31 S.L.R. 494=1937 Sind 251; 1942 Cal. 593; 1942 Mad. 444=(1942) 1 M.L.J. 517. The language of the section and its place in the Act make it clear that discovery therein referred to is discovery to or by police officers. 49 C. 167=25 C.W.N. 788. Statements made by an accused person which are or may be provable under sec. 27 should be clearly and carefully recorded by the police officers concerned.

Information from two Persons—Only that Leading to Discovery is Admissible.—Once property has been discovered in consequence of information received from a suspected person, it cannot be re-discovered in consequence of information received from another suspected person. 64 I.C. 502=1932 L. 315. See also 1939 A.M.L.J. 56; 1938 M.W.N. 1272. It is only the information that was given by the first person and which led to the actual discovery which may be proved under the terms of sec. 27. (Ibid.) See also 1930 B. 244. Where two or more persons are alleged to have given certain information to the police which led to the arrest of the accused, it is only the information given first which is admissible under secs. 27 and 29. 17 Cr.L.J. 273=34 I.C. 993; 1927 L. 739; 1930 B. 244. Information by two persons which leads to the discovery of a fact is relevant and so much of the statement of each which relates to the fact discovered is admissible against both; statements of co-accused after the discovery are irrelevant. 17 Cr.L.J. 506=36 I.C. 474; 1930 B. 244. After one accused has made a discovery the other should not be asked to do the same. 36 I.C. 474.

Joint Discovery—Track Evidence.—Track evidence is of no value if the comparison is made 8 or 9 days after the affair. 15 Cr.L.J. 499=24 I.C. 587. Where more than one accused person in custody of the police point out this or produce that jointly, such an evidence of joint discovery is not sufficient for a conviction. 24 I.C. 587. Joint discoveries are not admissible at all against any of the accused unless it can be shown who first made the discovery. 116 I.C. 619=1929 L. 665.

Statement after Discovery—Pointing out Property—Value of.—A statement by accused not leading to discovery of property but made after discovery and production of the property is irrelevant. The production or the pointing out may indicate that the accused was in possession or that he had innocent knowledge that the articles had been left there by some one else. 13 Cr.L.J. 529=15 I.C. 801; 48 L.W. 780. When a material fact has already been discovered, the accused's statement while in police custody relating thereto is not admissible under sec. 27. 12 Cr.L.J. 35=9 I.C. 232; 36 P.L.R. 40=1934 L. 786. See also 48 L.W. 780=1938 M.W.N. 1118. The discovery previously need not be necessarily by the police officer. 152 I.C. 565=1934 L. 313. A fact known to the police cannot be re-discovered on the statement of an accused person so as to make such statement or such incriminating conduct admissible under sec. 27. 1929 S. 250. See also 1929 N. 350; 50 Mys.H.C.R. 106. No portion of any statement made by the accused to any police officer during investigation is admissible under sec. 27 in as much as sec. 162 of the Cr.P.Code contains specific words affecting sec. 27. I.L.R. (1940) All. 396=1940 A.L.J. 241=1940 All. 263 (F.B.).

Illustrative Cases—(a) Evidence held Admissible.—Where an accused person stated to the police that he had buried an article at a particular place, took the police that he had buried an article at a particular place, took the police to that place and delivered the article to them, the statement of the accused to the police is admissible under sec. 27. 112 I.C. 55=29 Cr.L.J. 967. So also a statement that he buried the dead body at a particular place. 1930 L. 530. The discovery of ornaments at his house by accused is clearly a fact discovered. 45 A. 300=73 I.C. 62=1923 A. 352. The statement of the accused that he could point out a spot and that blood stains would be found there is admissible, but not that it was at that spot that he committed the crime. 14 Cr.L.J. 190=19 I.C. 190. If the accused produced the article himself, the fact that he produced it at a particular place may be proved, but the accompanying statement that he buried it there is inadmissible. 19 I.C. 190.

(b) Evidence held not Admissible.—A person accused under sec. 328, I.P.Code, pointed out during the police investigation a dhatura tree and said that he had taken the fruit of it. The statement was inadmissible. 32 I.C. 136=13 A.L.J. 1077. On a trial for murder a witness stated that the accused offered to point out the place where the dead body was and on being questioned as to who had buried the body he said that he (accused) had done to. Held, that the accused's statement that he buried the body was not admissible in evidence. 55 I.C. 685=21 Cr.L.J. 349 (L.). The discovery of a person who is afterwards proved to be dacoit is not the discovery of a fact within sec. 27. 43 I.C. 111=14 N.L.R. 192.

Miscellaneous.—The expression "fact" as Confession made after removal of impression caused by inducement, threat or promise, relevant.

28. If such a confession as is referred to in section 24 is made after the impression caused by any such inducement, threat or promise has, in the opinion of the Court been fully removed, it is relevant.
29. If such a confession is otherwise relevant, it does not become irrelevant, merely because it was made under a promise of secrecy, or in consequence of a deception practised on the accused person for the purpose of obtaining it, or when he was drunk, or because it was made in answer to questions which he need not have answered, whatever may have been the form of those questions, or because he was not warned that he was not bound to make such confession, and that evidence of it might be given against him.

defined in sec. 3 includes not only the physical fact but also the psychological fact or mental condition of which any person is conscious. It is in the former sense that the word is used in sec. 27. 10 L. 283=1929 L. 344 (F.B.). The word "information" cannot be used as synonymous with the word "statement". The word "information" as distinct from the word "statement" connotes two things, namely, a statement or other means employed for imparting knowledge possessed by one person to another, and the knowledge so derived by other person. 115 I.C. 1=1929 L. 338. A confession caused by some inducement from some person in authority is inadmissible in evidence. 14 Cr.L.J. 417=20 I.C. 401 (Bur.). There is no reason why the general rule that a confession should be voluntary should not apply to a confessional statement under sec. 27. If it has been induced, it is of no evidential value, and the Court would exclude it from consideration. 50 L.W. 435=1939 M.W.N. 873.

Statement of accused while in Custody of Police.—A husband assaulted his wife and his wife died as a result of it. The husband immediately went to the police station and reported that he went to the west facing room and finding his wife sitting, wounded her and she became senseless. On receipt of this information the police went to the house and found the corpse. Held, that the statement to the police was not admissible under sec. 27 as the husband was not, at the time of making the statement, a "person accused of an offence" not having been charged with any offence then. 7 P. 411=1928 P. 491. It is legitimate to record evidence that an accused person said: "I will point out certain property" if such statements lead to a discovery, but it is not legitimate to record as evidence that an accused said "I will point out certain property which I obtained as my share of the booty in the dacoity". 44 I.C. 967=19 Cr.L.J. 459. Where there is practically no evidence at all against an accused except an incriminating statement under sec. 27, the latter should be viewed with great caution and suspicion. 14 Cr.L.J. 190=19 J.C. 190. The statement of an accused that he buried the weapon in certain place is relevant but not the part of the statement that it was the weapon with which he had committed the crime. (Ibid.) A statement made by an accused may be proved under sec. 27 so far as it relates to any material facts discovered in consequence even though the police were present when the statement was made. 69 I.C. 377=14 L.W. 418. To bring an information by accused under sec. 27 the information must have had the direct effect of leading to the discovery of the stolen property. Unless a confession is corroborated in material particulars and by independent testimony it should not be the basis of a conviction. 54 I.C. 479=11 L.W. 8. (See also notes under sec. 30, infra.) An accused gave information to the police in these words: "I shall produce the lathi with which I killed Ismail." It had been admitted as evidence under sec. 27. The lathi which the accused handed over had no marks of blood whatsoever. Held, that if the mere fact of the lathi having been handed to the police might be relied upon, for the purpose of introducing an alleged confession made by the accused to the police the provisions of sec. 26 would become nugatory. 1929 S. 175. The ground on which the information received from an accused person is admitted in evidence under sec. 27 is that the fact discovered thereby is to some degree, which will vary with the circumstances of each case and the nature of the fact discovered, a guarantee of the truth of the information. A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 450. (1942) 1 M.L.J. 503.

Sec. 28 —Confessions to the Magistrate made soon after inducements held out by certain Zamindars sent by the police are inadmissible. 12 Cr.L.J. 119=9 I.C. 718. A confession by an accused in police detention as a suspect made in the immediate vicinity of the police to a zaildar could not be proved unless made to a Magistrate though the accused may not have been handicapped, as, to all intents and purposes, he was in police custody. 26 P.R. 1916 (Cr.)=34 I.C. 642.

Sec. 29.—The provisions of sec. 164 do not affect the provisions of sec. 29, and therefore a confession cannot be excluded from evidence as irrelevant merely because all the provisions of sec. 164 were not carefully complied with. 10 O.W.N. 937=1933 O. 404. See also 1937 M.W.N. 1325 Statements made by the accused to a Magis-

30. When more persons than one are being tried jointly for the same offence,

Sec. 30: Scope and Applicability—"May take into Consideration" points to necessity of there being other evidence on record to which the statement can lend assurance. 1928 N. 213. See also 177 I.C. 494=47 L.W. 139=1938 M. 675. It is not the law that the confession of one accused must be corroborated by other evidence before it can be accepted against a co-accused; the correct position is that there must be a basis of substantial evidence to which the confessional statement may be added. If there is substantial evidence against the accused and there is some lingering doubt, the confession of a co-accused may be taken into account to set that doubt at rest. 55 L.W. 263=A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 444=(1942) 1 M.L.J. 517. See also I.L.R. (1945) Kar. 419; 1945 A.W.R. (H.C.) 291 (Reference to antecedent circumstances, nature of). Under sec. 30, in order that a confession may be used against a co-accused, it is necessary that the admission or confession implicates the maker of the confession to the same extent as it implicates the co-accused, in the commission of the offence for which they are both being jointly tried. 42 Bom.L.R. 938=I.L.R. (1941) Bom. 27=1941 Bom. 50; 1941 Mad. 267. Where a statement by an accused person implicates the other accused, it would require the strongest independent evidence if any reliance is to be placed upon it at all. Under sec. 30 such a statement can only be taken into consideration; it is not evidence against the other accused. 52 L.W. 898=1941 Mad. 306. Statement of an accused made at the police station against the co-accused is inadmissible and cannot be used as evidence as against the co-accused. 34 P.L.R. 259=1933 L. 167. Sec. 30 applies to a proceeding under sec. 110, Cr.P. Code, against a number of persons, one of whom has made a confession implicating other persons whose conduct is also the subject of an enquiry. 1934 A.L.J. 1170=1934 A. 927. See also 1936 S. 236; 17 L. 547=38 P.L.R. 1018; 1937 N. 17 (F.B.); 1937 B. 31; 1937 M. 321; 1937 C. 39; 1936 O.W.N. 671. A confession by a co-accused may be taken into consideration against another accused; confessional statements under sec. 27 come within the terms of sec. 30. But there must be admissible evidence to point to the co-accused's guilt. In assessing the probative value of the evidence, a co-accused's confession may be taken into consideration. But where the evidence against the co-accused is only that he was in the company of the other accused before the crime and after the crime, there is no sufficient basis to convict him. 52 L.W. 420 (2)=1940 M.W.N. 1045=1941 Mad. 238. See also 1942 Mad. 444=(1942) 1 M.L.J. 517. A statement of co-accused is not evidence and a conviction cannot, therefore, be based on such statement. If the prosecution wishes to rely upon such statement, it should ask for a separate trial and examine the co-accused as a witness. 43 Cr.L.J. 556=A.I.R. 1942 Cal. 426.

"Same Offence" means the identical offence and not an offence of the same kind. 32 C.W.N. 1004. See also 1937 Sind 218. A confession can be accepted by Court in part, after rejecting portions which are false. 6 O.W.N. 1017. [See also 1930 M.W.N. 785. But see 1930 A. 192. In cases where the sole evidence against the accused is that of a retracted confession, such confession, if it is relied on, must be relied on as a whole and not only in part. 121 I.C. 550 (2)=1930 A. 192. Sec. 30 does not refer to statements made at the trial but the statements made before and proved at the trial. 1929 M. 285. Before sec. 30 can be applied it must be proved that a confession has been made by one, of the persons who are being tried jointly for the same offence and that the confession affects the person making it as well as some other persons so jointly being tried. The section is new to the Indian Evidence Act as contrasted with the English Law and must be construed strictly. When there is no such confession as affects the person making it any statement made by one accused cannot be treated as evidence against the co-accused or be taken as affording corroboration of the evidence of the approver. 1929 M.W.N. 698. It would be far too dangerous to consider that a confession of a co-accused amounts to evidence against a person. It is not stated under sec. 30 and it has long been settled law that a conviction cannot be based on the confession of a co-accused. 150 I.C. 1056=35 Cr.L.J. 1180.]

"Confession" means confession of the very offence for which the accused are being tried, not a confession of any offence connected with that offence nor of any other

(a) A and B are jointly tried for the murder of C. It is proved that A said : “B and I murdered C.” The Court may consider the effect of this confession as against B.

(b) A is on his trial for the murder of C. There is evidence to show that C was murdered by A and B, and that B said : “A and I murdered C.”

offence which may be disclosed by the evidence. 59 M.L.J. 471. The word “confession” in S. 30 of the Evidence Act cannot reasonably be interpreted to mean a confession of any offence for which the accused persons are being tried but only of the very offence for which they are being tried, offence always including abetments and attempts. When a number of accused are tried for an offence under S. 302, I.P.C. and one of them confesses to an offence under S. 201, I.P.C. such confession cannot be used in evidence against the other co-accused. 58 L.W. 625=1945 M.W.N. 722 (2)=1945 2 M.L.J. 479. A statement before the Court of the co-accused, where it is deprecating his own guilt, is a statement seeking to clear himself at the expense of the accused and as such is inadmissible under sec. 30. 152 I.C. 924=1934 C. 724. The word “confession” used in sec. 30, clearly means such a confession as is required to be proved at the trial as a part of the prosecution evidence. It cannot therefore signify any matter which comes on the record at the end of the prosecution evidence, namely, answers to questions put under sec. 342, Cr. P. Code. Hence the statement made by a co-accused confession, partially or wholly, his guilt when examined under sec. 342, Cr. P. Code, cannot be taken into consideration under sec. 30, against the other accused. 190 I.C. 273=41 Cr.L.J. 886=1940 Nag. 287. The statement of an accused person which does not amount to a confession cannot be used against his co-accused. 42 P.L.R. 378. See also 11 O.W.N. 1012=1934 O. 418; 176 I.C. 530=1938 P. 352. It cannot be said that a confession must be accepted as a whole. A confession must be accepted in its entirety so far as it affects the person making it. That is to say, anything which he puts forward in his confession by way of mitigation must be accepted, however improbable it may appear. 1945 A.W.R. (H.C.) 291. Where the accused makes a confessional statement part of which is inculpatory and part exculpatory, and there is evidence to show that the exculpatory portion is false, the Court can ignore that portion of the confession and use the rest of it against him. 47 P.L.R. 11=A.I.R. 1945 Lah. 91.

Confession—Admissibility against Co-Accused.—A statement of an accused must amount to a confession before it can be considered against his co-accused under sec. 30. 35 M. 247=22 M.L.J. 490=14 I.C. 849; 40 C.L.J. 551. See also 9 P.R. 1911 (Cr.)=10 I.C. 340; 1925 Sind 116; 1924 B. 445=26 Bom.L.R. 614=75 I.C. 701; 1924 N. 27; 1924 A. 511; 1924 M. 805; 1925 C. 406; 1929

Sind 250. The confession made by a person can be taken into consideration as against persons who are being tried along with him; such a statement however is always regarded as tainted and cannot be used to corroborate the testimony of the accomplice witnesses. 3 L. 144=68 I.C. 113. See also 13 A.L.J. 337=28 I.C. 663=37 A. 247; 10 O.W.N. 688=1933 O. 355; 11 R. 4=1933 R. 57; (1937) 2 M.L.J. 60 (F.B.); 1941 Mad. 267; 1941 Bom. 50; 1940 M.W.N. 1238=52 L.W. 898; 185 I.C. 205; 1939 N.L.J. 442=1939 Nag. 295. The principle on which the confession of one accused is used against another is that self-implication is supposed to provide some guarantee of the truth of the accusation made against the other. Where the statement is exculpatory so far as possible, there is no such guarantee. Further, the confession to be admissible must be a confession of the offence for which the accused persons are tried and not of some other offence. 1939 N.L.J. 469=1939 Lah. 309. It is not quite clear whether “tainted evidence” means that the person giving the evidence is tainted morally; or that he is a person on whose word reliance cannot be placed. As regards an approver, there is the fear that he is giving evidence in order to save his skin and therefore that he is liable to make statements which are not true if he thinks they will be for his benefit. But as regards the confession of a co-accused, one cannot call this, tainted evidence, for the same reason. A person making a confession does so deliberately and after having been warned solemnly by the Magistrate of the consequences of making a confession and knowledge that he may be convicted thereon, if he still persists in his purpose and makes a confession, the statements that he makes cannot be considered to be tainted statements unless it be that they are tainted because he is an immoral person who has committed criminal offence. But all immoral persons are not necessarily and always liars. But it is not to be supposed that because the confession is admissible, it must be believed. In such case it has to be considered whether there are any circumstances which suggests that it is false or that some of the statements made therein are also false. The Court may take the confession of a co-accused person into consideration against the other co-accused, that is to say, the Court can only treat a confession as lending assurance to other evidence against a co-accused. 1938 Rang.L.R. 30=174 I.C. 947=1938 R. 92. See also 1939 Rang. 402. Where an accused person after he is arrested makes a confession implicating the other accused and the confession is sought to be used against them, the prosecution must disclose the name of the officer who made the arrest and produce him or an other person who could speak to the circumstances, under which the confession was made so as to enable the defence to ascertain by cross-examination what inducements were offered to the accused to make it. 36 M. 501=25 M.L.J. 518=40 I.A. 193 (P.C.). The confession of an accused in a decoy case is not admissible in evidence against a co-accused in that case in a proceeding under sec. 110 of the Cr.P. Code. 61 I.C. 793=25 C.W.N. 239. The statement of an accused made after arrest and not amounting to a confession is not admissible in evidence against a co-accused either under sec. 10 or sec. 33 but only against himself. 46 C. 710=54 I.C. 53=30 C.L.J. 255.

Test of Admissibility.—This section introduces a departure from the ordinary rule relating to the admissibility of evidence and must be strictly construed. Before any statement made by one of the accused persons, tried jointly with the others can be taken into consideration against such others, it must fulfil two conditions: (a) it must be a confession of guilt affecting himself equally with the others; and (b) it must be proved against those persons who are jointly tried with him. The word "proved" means proved before the prosecution case comes to an end, either proved in the course of the prosecution case or proved in some proceedings previous to the trial. 1935 L. 35. Whether the confession of an accused can be used against his co-accused should be determined on seeing whether the accused can be convicted on that confession of the crime with which he and the co-accused were charged. 60 I.C. 660=22 Cr.L.J. 260 (L.). See also 15 C.W.N. 592=38 C. 559; 50 B. 683; 9 N.L.J. 80=1926 N. 229; 178 I.C. 130=19 P.L.T. 801; 1938 Sind 94.

Weight of Confession Against Co-Accused.

—Self-implication is guarantee for truth of accusation against co-accused. 1930 A. 29. There is nothing in the terms of sec. 30 to suggest that a confession is not admissible in evidence against a person who is being jointly tried for the same offence with a man who has made the confession, if the confession minimises the guilt of him who makes it and exaggerates the guilt of the other. The section only requires that it must affect both equally. 1938 A. 91=1937 A.L.J. 1253. Where an accused does not implicate himself in his statement, in respect of the offence of murder, but implicates himself in respect of the disposal of the dead body, such a statement is not admissible against the co-accused in respect of the offence under sec. 300, I.P. Code, but is only admissible in respect of the offence under S. 201, I.P. Code. 1937 M.W.N. 1233; see also I.L.R. (1944) 2 Cal. 312. The confession of an accused should not carry the same weight as the evidence of the same person if he were examined as a witness. 21 I.C. 166=14 Cr.L.J. 566. The Court must, after the most careful consideration, decide whether the degree of proof prescribed by sec. 30 has been reached or not. 21 I.C. 166. A confession made by a co-accused must be regarded with suspicion. 65 I.C. 561=1922 N. 146. See also 72 I.C. 497=24 Cr.L.J. 385; 1939 Mar.L.R. 19 (Cr.). It is not the law that unless a confessing prisoner implicates himself as fully as his co-accused, the statement will not be admissible, the principles being that there is no guarantee that the maker of the confession is speaking the truth. All that is required is that the confession shall substantially implicate its maker in regard to the crime with which he and his co-accused are charged. 19 W.R. 67 (Cr.); 2 A. 444; 4 P. L.T. 505=75 I.C. 705; 72 I.C. 497=24 Cr. L.J. 385; 2 P.L.T. 125; in order that a confession may be used against a co-accused under S. 30, it is not necessary that it should implicate the maker substantially to the same extent as it implicates the co-accused. A confession is a statement which either admits in terms the offence or at any rate substantially all the facts which constitute the offence, and it is admissible in evidence under the section, whether the confessing accused ascribes to himself a major or minor part in the crime. Whether it has any value or not is a different matter. I.L.R. (1944) 2 Cal. 312. A conviction founded solely on the confessions of co-accused cannot be sustained. It must be corroborated in material particulars by independent evidence. 21 I.C. 673=38 B. 156; 170 I.C. 201=1937 C. 433 (S.B.). Court has discretion to exclude a confession by an accused altogether from consideration against the co-accused if it is so disposed. 1930 N. 242 (F.B.). See also 7 O.W.N. 980=1930 O. 502; 146 I.C. 17 (2)=1933 N. 249.

Confession—Necessity for Corroboration.

—The Indian Statute differs from the English Law and the effect of the former should not be whittled down. The question of what corroborative evidence is sufficient must depend on the circumstances of each particular case. 119 I.C. 474=1929 M. 498. The confessions of a co-accused implicating his co-accused in the crime are of less evidentiary value than the testimony of an accomplice because the man in the dock cannot be cross-examined. They can only be taken into consideration under sec. 30 along with such other evidence as there may be. While such a confession may help the Court to decide whether the other evidence is or is not credible, it cannot supply the police of positive evidence regarding the commission of the crime. 52 L.W. 258=1940 M.W.N. 767=1941 M. 267. See also 1940 Rang.L.R. 104=1939 Rang. 402. When the substantive evidence is not sufficient to establish a prima facie case against the accused it is not permissible to use the confession of a co-accused under sec. 30 as if it were itself substantive evidence, which it is not. It may only be taken to lend assurance to any relevant evidence bearing on the accused's complicity in the crime. It can in no case be used to fill up the gap in the prosecution evidence. 188 I.C. 146=41 Cr. L.J. 553=1940 Nag. 230; 1929 A. 928. Where the evidence of the approver is eliminated as against one of the accused whose name has been falsely substituted by the approver, it should not be accepted even against the other accused though to some extent it is corroborated by independent testimony. 34 P.L.R. 1010=1933 L. 871. See also 19 P. L.T. 801=178 I.C. 130. Confessional statement of accused cannot be used in corroboration of the evidence of the approver inasmuch as tainted evidence is not made better by being corroborated by other tainted evidence. 1930 N. 97. See also 144 I.C. 829=1933 R. 134. But see 11 R. 4=1933 R. 57. Confession of co-accused as against another accused stands on a lower footing than the evidence of an accomplice. 146 I.C. 1061=1933 L. 956; and it is still worse where not only did the confessing accused retract their confession but when pardons are offered to two of them with a view to their giving evidence as accomplice, they refused to accept such pardon 146 I.C. 303 (2)=1933 R. 320.

Sessions Trial and Magisterial Trial—Distinction.—In a warrant case, although the statement of a co-accused amounts to an unqualified confession, he need not be forthwith convicted and removed from the dock. The co-accused is still to be deemed to be jointly tried with the others and this confession can be used as against the others. A summons case is to be distinguished from a warrant case for the purpose. 1928 L. 880. See also 1937 N. 17=I.L.R. (1937) N. 315 (F.B.). In considering the question whether the confession of the co-accused who pleaded guilty can be used against the other co-accused under sec. 30, a distinction must be made between summons and warrant cases on the one hand and Sessions cases on the other. In Sessions cases if the accused pleads guilty the Court cannot try him but has forthwith to convict him. His conviction cannot be deferred so as to enable the Court to use his confession against his co-accused. But in warrant cases, it is discretionary with the Magistrate to defer conviction of the accused who pleads guilty and use his confession against the other co-accused under sec. 30. 166 I.C. 582 and 587=I.L.R. (1937) N. 315=1937 N. 17 (F.B.). It is the duty of the Judge to warn the jury that it would be dangerous in the extreme to act on a confession put into the mouth of the accused by a witness who has a strong motive for implicating some one else in the offence or crime. The jury must further be warned that confessions are not always true and that they must be checked, more particularly in a murder case, in the light of the whole evidence on the record in order to see if they carry conviction. 58 L.W. 523=1945 A.L.J. 511=A.I.R. 1945 P.C. 181 (P.C.).

Secs. 30 and 114.—A confession of an accused person implicating a co-accused under sec. 30 cannot be considered as the same thing as "testimony of an accomplice" under sec. 113. Sec. 113 contemplates that the accomplice shall be examined as a witness. The provision that a conviction is not illegal merely because it proceeds upon the uncorroborated testimony of an accomplice, has no application to the case of an uncorroborated confession taken into consideration as against a co-accused jointly tried with the confessing accused under sec. 30. Therefore an accused person cannot be convicted solely on such a confession made by a co-accused. 1928 N. 213=109 I.C. 801. See also 1929 L. 338; 38 Bom.L.R. 1122=1937 B. 31; I.L.R. (1941) Nag. 506. The evidential value of a confession made by a co-accused is not very high. But the confession receives confirmation when it leads to the arrest and identification of the other accused. I. L.R. (1939) L. 67. Where, however, there is apart from the confessions a body of evidence and circumstances enough to support a conviction if the evidence is accepted as free from untruth or exaggeration on serious mistake or distortion the Court can take the confessions into consideration and consider together the evidence, the circumstances and the confessions. 43 B. 739=51 I.C. 657. See also 4 R. 45=1926 R. 127. Where the corroboration consisted of statements of witnesses which though giving rise to suspicion were consistent with the innocence of the accused, held, that the corroboration fell far short of what is required to support a conviction. 42 C. 789=19 C.W.N. 584=28 I. C. 657. As to what amounts to corroboration, see 95 I.C. 938=1926 A. 603. A conviction based entirely on statements contained in confessions of co-accused persons is not sustainable. 11 I.C. 1001=12 Cr.L.J. 465. See also 17 Cr.L.J. 156=33 I.C. 636; 73 I.C. 262=1923 N. 248; 1928 N. 213.

Joint Trial.—A statement made by one accused can only be used against another if provisions of sec. 30 of the Act are applicable. 20 A.L.J. 178=65 I.C. 849=1922 A. 24. As to joint trial, see also 45 A. 323=1923 A. 322; 2 Pat.L.T. 125. Persons, against whom proceedings are being jointly taken under sec. 117, Cr.P. Code, in one and the same enquiry cannot be said to be on their joint trial for the same offence within sec. 30. 41 A. 231=49 I.C. 654. A confession by an accused implicating himself and two others in a charge of dacoity is inadmissible against the others in a proceeding under sec. 110 of the Cr. P. Code. 22 C.W.N. 408=49 I.C. 649. See also 167 I.C. 162=1937 C. 39. When two persons are jointly tried, one for the offence of rape of a girl and the other for the abduction of that girl, they are not tried for the same offence. Consequently a confession made by one of them affecting himself and the other is not admissible in evidence against the other under sec. 30. 176 I.C. 560=42 C.W.N. 814=1938 C. 479. A confession of an accused not being declared relevant by the Evidence Act as against a co-accused cannot be treated as substantive evidence and a judgment cannot be based upon it so far as he is concerned. 65 I.C. 561=1922 N. 146. Confessions recorded in the manner provided by the Criminal Procedure Code, even though made to Magistrates outside British India, if proved against the persons who made them, may be taken into consideration against others who are being tried jointly for the same offence. 69 I.C. 257=17 N. L.R. 113. Where one of the accused pleaded guilty and was examined at the end of the prosecution case, and declined to call any witnesses, the trial was a joint trial, so that his confession could be taken into consideration against the other accused. A conviction under sec. 456, I.P.C., based on the confessions of a co-accused who was being tried along with the prisoner under sec. 411, I.P.C., is wrong. 20 I.C. 136=14 Cr.L.J. 376.

Retracted confession, not of value against Co-accused.—43 B. 739=51 I.C. 657. See also 1938 L. 252; 1938 P. 108=16 P. 612=173 I.C. 507; 17 Mys.L.J. 238, and cannot be used against the maker and the co-accused. 1927 L. 765. The very existence of sec. 30 postulates that a confession of a co-accused may be used in cases where the evidence afforded lacks the requisite volume and certainty to insure conviction. The retraction of a confession may throw doubt either on the truth of it or on the fact that it was voluntarily made, but it certainly does not follow because a confession is retracted that it was either untrue or involuntary, and the truth or voluntariness of a confession operates equally—where a confession is self-inculpatory—in respect of the person who made it and the person implicated therein. The motive for making a self-inculpatory confession is the very simple one of an expectation of leniency in the matter of sentence and where a number of people are jointly tried and some have made confession to a Magistrate before the trial and some have not it is again not unnatural that persons who have made confessions should retract them under pressure and persuasion by their fellows who have not confessed. Retracted confessions must no doubt be used with caution but when it is possible to come to the conclusion that the confessions cannot be otherwise than true, they may be taken into consideration in connection with the evidence appearing in case, whether they are retracted or not. 193 I.C. 265=42 Cr.L.J. 363=1941 N. 145. See also 56 L.W. 737=(1943) 2 M. L.J. 634 (F.B.). The confession referred to in sec. 30 cannot be restricted to an unretracted confession and there is nothing to prevent a Court from convicting after considering the confession but the rules of practice of the High Courts in India are to be observed when exercising the discretion. 15 Bom.L.R. 975=21 I.C. 673=

38 B. 156. Where there is no real corroboration of the retracted confession, the accused are entitled to the benefit of the doubt and must be acquitted. 16 Cr.L.J. 469=29 I.C. 101. See also 41 I.C. 155; 26 P.R. 1916 (Cr.)=35 I.C. 642; 5 P.L.R. 1915; 16 Cr.L.J. 157=27 I.C. 221; 5 P.R. 1911 (Cr.)=10 I.C. 857; 1938 L. 252. Extra-judicial confession by boys cajoled or frightened but retracted before the committing Magistrate does not prove a case against persons jointly accused with the boys. 14 P.R. (Cr.) 1911=12 J. 973. As to value to be attached to a retracted confession of a co-accused, see 152 I.C. 275=15 P.L.T. 711=1934 P. 586; 148 I.C. 8=1934 Pesh. 11; 148 I.C. 1064=1934 R. 30. A retracted confession requires strong corroboration in all material particulars. 72 I.C. 497=11 L.W. 474; 45 L.W. 93=1937 M. 321=(1937) 1 M. L.J. 750; 1937 M. 755. The weight to be given to a retracted confession depends upon the circumstances under which it is made and on the intrinsic-value of the confession. 18 Cr.L.J. 774=41 I.C. 150; 19 I.C. 179=14 Cr.L.J. 179. Where a confession is made 14 days after arrest by the police but is retracted at the earliest opportunity before the trial Magistrate, its evidentiary value is negligible as against the co-accused. 1934 L. 718. The confession of one was admissible against the other because it was not self-exculpatory and the fact that the confession was subsequently retracted did not render it inadmissible but it merely diminished the weight to be attached to it. 32 C.W.N. 1004. A retracted confession of a co-accused cannot alone be sufficient evidence to justify a conviction, but if that confession is un rebutted it is admissible as a very strong piece of evidence. 114 I.C. 711=1929 O. 167. See also 1930 L. 667; 1930 O. 412; 1930 O. 335.

Plea of Guilty.—The plea of guilty of one co-accused who is removed from the dock while the other alone is tried cannot be taken into consideration against that other. 38 C. 446=16 C.W.N. 49=12 I.C. 87. See also 15 P.R. (Cr.) 1911=12 I.C. 981. It is for the prosecution to establish their case; because an accused loses his head or gets frightened and does not tell the truth, he cannot on that account be convicted. 20 A.L.J. 178=1922 A. 24.

Self-exculpatory Statements.—Self-exculpatory statement of the wife to the effect that a white substance was administered on the assurance by her paramour that it would bring about good feeling did not amount to a confession and could not be used against the paramour as criminal conspiracy was not proved. 21 I.C. 378=18 C.L.J. 590; 9 N.L.J. 80=1926 N. 229. See also 1941 O. W.N. 722=1941 O.A. 483. A confession by each of co-accused implicating self and co-accused as regards robbery but throwing entire burden for murder on the other is admissible as regards former but inadmissible ble as regards the latter. 1923 L. 293; 12 Cr. L.J. 562=12 I.C. 650. Confession of a co-accused must be of the very offence for which they are being tried. In a case of murder the confession of one accused that the co-accused committed the murder but that he helped him in throwing the body in a pit cannot be taken into consideration. 59 M.L.J. 479. A statement by an accused person which suggests an inference of guilt may amount to a confession though the person making the statement may directly repudiate his participation in the crime. Such a statement may be taken into consideration against the person making the statement, but it may be unsafe to use it against a co-accused. 53 I.C. 691=20 Cr.L.J. 787. An accused's statement which does not incriminate him is not a confession and cannot be used against his co-accused. 16 Cr.L.J. 25=26 I.C. 329. See also 46 I.C. 842=19 Cr.L.J. 826; 45 A. 323=1923 A. 322; 59 I.C. 913; 14 Cr.L.J. 570=21 I.C. 171; 109 I.C. 351=1928 C. 416 (2); 1929 S. 250. Where a statement is volunteered by a co-accused to the effect that when he arrived on the scene of offence after hearing the cry of the complainant he noticed another accused in the act of assaulting the complainant, such a self-exculpatory statement is inadmissible in evidence. 1929 N. 350. See also 7 O.W.N. 980=1930 O. 506.

Sec. 31.—See 103 I.C. 34=1927 A. 659; 8 P. 776=1929 P. 245. What sec. 31 means is that an admission, unless it amounts to an estoppel is not conclusive as against the maker, as it is open to him to prove that it was made under a mistake of law or fact or that it was made under threat or inducement. 1939 Rang.L.R. 97. Admissions are not conclusive proof, and though they may operate as estoppel, it is open to a party to correct an admission made by him if it is shown to have been made under a bona fide mistake and has not caused any prejudice to the other side. 1937 A.M.L.J. 86. See also 1942 O.W.N. (B.R.) 535=1942 O.A. (Supp.) 430. Though admissions are not conclusive evidence of the matter admitted, where there is no rebutting evidence at all, the admissions are enough to establish the facts contained in them. 1941 O.A. (Supp.) 420=1941 A.W.R. (Rev.) 461=1941 A.L.J. (Supp.) 89. A compromise is tantamount to an admission, and although an admission is not conclusive it can still operate as an estoppel under sec. 31. 1942 O.W.N. (B.R.) 308=1942 A.W.R. (Rev.) 188. An admission of a father is not binding on the son because he did not claim through the father. It cannot bind third persons. 34 C.W.N. 944; 12 L.L.J. 187. An admission made by a party is a very strong proof against him and the fact admitted must be taken to be true unless the person making the admission explains that it was made under circumstances which does not make the admission binding on him. Inference as to partition drawn from admission of parties. 134 I.C. 888=53 C.L.J. 222. See also 131 I.C. 903=8 O.W.N. 306; 1939 R.D. 299.

Secs. 32 and 33: Relative scope of.—Secs. 32 and 33 give different instances where evidence is relevant. It cannot be said that sec. 33 governs sec. 32. 1941 Rang.L.R. 258=1941 Rang. 301. A previous statement by a person is not relevant. When it is not covered by secs. 32, 33 and 145 unless it is an admission in which case only it becomes relevant under sec. 21. 1941 A.W.R. (Rev.) 501=1941 R.D. 503=1941 O.A. (Supp.) 460=43 Cr.L.J. 125.

Sec. 32.—Section should be very liberally construed. See 104 I.C. 209=1927 O. 278. Before statements can be admitted under sec. 32 it must be proved that the makers of these statements are either dead or for any other reason are not available as witnesses. 1933 R. 212. A person may be said to have been not found when we know who he was and if in spite of search he was not found or was found to have been dead. But he may equally be said not to have been found if his identity cannot be traced or found and who therefore on account of the absence of his identity cannot be found. 45 P.L.R. 441. Sec. 32 speaks of statements both written and verbal, and a Court cannot refuse to admit oral evidence of a verbal statement which fulfils the requirements of the section, merely because the evidence offered is the testimony of a witness who is interested in the result of the litigation. 42 C. W.N. 359. The provisions of sec. 32 are in the nature of exceptions, and the onus of establishing circumstances that would bring a statement within any of the exceptions contemplated by the section lies clearly upon that party which wishes to avail itself of the statement. 47 C.W.N. 332. There is a difference between the existence of a fact and a statement as to its existence. Sec. 11 makes the existence of facts admissible, and not statements as to such existence unless

- (1) When the statement is made by a person as to the cause of his death, or as to any of the circumstances of the transaction which resulted in his death, in cases in which the cause of that person's death comes into question.

When it relates to cause of death.

Such statements are relevant whether the person who made them was or was not, at the time when they were made, under expectation of death, and whatever may be the nature of the proceeding in which the cause of his death comes into question.

the fact of making that statement is itself a matter in issue. Hence if a statement does not fall within sec. 32, it cannot be admissible even under sec. 11. 1934 A.L.J. 318=1934 A. 406 (F.B.). Generally speaking a declaration relevant under sec. 32 but not made by one in immediate expectation of death and not made in the presence of the accused, ought not to be acted upon unless there is some reliable corroboration. 35 Bom.L.R. 1021=1933 B. 479 (2). The value of the evidence admissible under Ss. 32, 49 and 60 depends on the characters of the witnesses who depose to what they heard from deceased persons and also on the characters of the deceased and whether they were expressing their own opinion or merely repeating hearsay. [23 A. 37 (P.C.) Foll.]; 1933 Sind 213.

Scope of.—A previous statement which is not made in Court and at the trial can be used only for the limited purpose of corroborating or contradicting a witness and does not become substantive evidence in the case. 127 I.C. 850=1930 L. 409. When the statement of a witness previously made is used as evidence under the provisions of secs. 32 and 33, then any other statement made by that witness can be used by virtue of sec. 158 for the purpose of contradicting that witness as if such witness had appeared in Court and was cross-examined on such previous statement and on question being asked had denied the facts mentioned in the same. 1930 L. 409.

Date of birth—Certificate of Guardianship is not Admissible.—71 I.C. 336=38 C.L.J. 186.

As to relevancy of entries in purohit's books to prove date of death, see 26 Bom. L.R. 563=46 M.L.J. 541 (P.C.).

Where the age of a witness is given in the paper containing the deposition of the witness and appears to have been recorded by the presiding officer, there is no reason either to presume that the presiding officer instead of following the usual course of asking age of the witness should have put down the age merely by guesswork. Similarly the entries in the registration endorsements are made by the Sub-Registrar himself and the presumption is that he also would follow the correct course of asking persons their age instead of guessing it. 178 I.C. 959=1938 O.W.N. 1267=1939 O. 17.

Sec. 32 (1): Dying Declaration when Admissible.—The recording of a dying declaration is a grave and solemn proceeding. The proceeding should be so conducted that the declarant is as free from personal influence in making his declaration as he would be if he were giving evidence in a Court of law. 152 I.C. 741=1934 A. 908. The dying declaration being an important piece of evidence must be as exact and full as possible. 15 I.C. 308=22 M.L.J. 453. See also 1924 L. 12; 5 L. 205=1924 L. 581; 16 P. 593=1937 P.W.N. 897; 1937 M.W.N. 333. There is nothing in law to prevent the Court from regarding a dying declaration as sufficient to justify a conviction where the Court is entirely satisfied with regard to its truth, though there is no corroboration. I.L.R. (1943) Kar. 587. Although a portion of a dying declaration is untrue, it need not necessarily be rejected in toto. The Court would decline to believe the rest of it without corroboration. I.L.R. (1946) Nag. 235=1946 N.L.J. 241. A statement intended to be proved as a dying declaration under sec. 32 need not be recorded by a Magistrate. Law does not require such statements to be made necessarily under expectation of death. 190 I.C. 322. The value of a dying declaration altogether disappears when parts of it have obviously been supplied to the dying man by other persons, whether interested parties or police officers. A "touched up" dying declaration has no value. 36 P.L.R. 24=1934 Cr.C. 1126=1934 L. 805. See also 1941 Pat. 409. A dying declaration which names only one person where the killing took place under circumstances where there could be no doubt that the dying man identified his assailant, is the very strongest possible form of evidence. But where a large number of people are implicated, it is a very different matter and in the absence of corroboration of the dying declaration, the accused should not be convicted. 43 P.L.R. 598=1941 Lah. 368. See also 47 Bom. L.R. 992. Under sec. 32 (1) the statement of a deceased person will not be admissible unless it relates to the circumstances of the transaction which resulted in his death. 47 C.W.N. 332. See also (1940) 2 M.L.J. 715. Statements by deceased as to the cause of his death are admissible, not only as against the person who actually caused the death of the deponent, but also against other persons concerned in the transaction which resulted in the deponent's death in cases in which the cause of that person's death comes into question. (35 I.C. 993 and 2 Weir 750, Foll.). 162 I.C. 491=1936 R. 187. The deceased had received numerous and very serious injuries on his head and it was very doubtful whether under such circumstance he would have been able to utter even a single word. There was no definite opinion of the doctor as to whether deceased would have been then able to speak. Held, that the evidence of the prosecution witnesses in respect of the alleged oral dying declaration of the deceased should be discarded. 8 Luck. 570=1933 O. 333. As to mode of proving dying declaration, see 6 L.L.J. 115=1924 L. 12. Statement must relate to the injuries by which death was caused. Sub-cl. (1) applies to the class of statement made by a dying declaration as to the injuries which have brought him or her to that condition, or the circumstances under which these injuries came to be inflicted. 4 L. 481=1924 L. 253; 1929 S. 250. See also 29 N. L.R. 251=1933 N. 136. Evidence Act makes dying declarations relevant facts as written statements of deceased or written records of verbal statements which the deceased makes and which becomes substantive evidence of the cause of deceased's death. 31 I.C. 359=16 Cr.L.J. 759 (M.). See also 160 I.C. 597=1936 R. 42. An oral statement of the deceased about the cause of his death may be proved by any one who heard it as well as by the person who recorded it. Under sec. 521, Cr.P. Code, it is not necessary that the Magistrate recording the confession should be called and be asked to refresh his memory by referring to statements of witnesses under sec. 159, Evidence Act. 31 I.C. 359=16 Cr.L.J. 759 (M.) [8 C. 211; 6 C.W.N. 72, Diss.] The rule as to the admissibility of evidence under sec. 32 (1) has worked ill in India. 4 L. 481=1924 L. 253. On trial for forgery one of the accused who had made a statement before the enquiring Magistrate died before the commencement of the trial. The statement was admitted by the Sessions Judge under sec. 32, Cl. (3). Held, that the statement was inadmissible since its maker had already rendered himself liable to criminal prosecution at the time it was made. 25 Bom.L. R. 248. Affidavit of a person who died subsequently and was not subjected to cross-examination is not admissible. See 1927 M. 507=52 M.L.J. 477. A dying declaration can be used as evidence even though the accused is not charged with the offence of homicide. 6 P. 747=1923 P. 162. Although the statement made by the deceased to the doctor just before his death is admissible in evidence as dying declaration, still in order to convict the accused of murder there must be independent corroboration of facts and circumstances to prove the offence. 1929 P. 249. See also 1935 N.L.J. 139; 1945 N.L.J. 139=1945 Nag. 153. A dying declaration made at the time which a person is in a precarious condition does not cease to be such and become inadmissible under sec. 32 merely because the declarant happens to linger for a few days more. 113 I.C. 177=1929 L. 64. Or because he was not aware that he was dying when he made it. 1935 L. 94=16 L. 589. First Information Report is admissible under sec. 32 (1) where it is the statement of a person who is since dead relating to the circumstances of the transaction which resulted in death. 1930 L. 450. Statement by deceased before 1st Class Magistrate not competent to record statement under Cr.P. Code, sec. 164, is yet relevant under sec. 32 (1). 1930 L. 60. The necessity of recording a dying declaration arises only when the hopes of life of the man are given up. 52 C.L.J. 425. Where the case for the prosecution depends upon the deathbed statement of a man who was admittedly kept back from hospital in order to be instructed about his statement and it is also shown that his statement regarding witnesses to the occurrence was false, his declaration cannot be relied upon for convicting the accused named by him. 1930 M.W.N. 1211. See also 32 L.W. 940=59 M.L.J. 876. (A dying declaration is relevant evidence under sec. 32, but it is not entitled to any peculiar credit. A statement falling under sec. 32 (1) may be made before the cause of death has arisen or before the deceased has any reason to anticipate being killed. A statement by the deceased that he was proceeding to the spot where in fact he was killed later, or as to his reasons for so proceeding or that he had been invited by a particular person to meet him, or that he was going to such person would each of them be circumstances of the transaction, and would be so whether the person, was unknown, or was not the person accused. Such a statement might indeed be exculpatory of the person accused. The "circumstances of the transaction" must have some proximate relation to the actual occurrence, though, as for instance in a case of prolonged poisoning, they may be related to dates at a considerable distance from the date of the actual fatal dose. The "circumstances" are of the transaction which resulted in the death of the declarant. 66 I.A. 66=43 C.W.N. 473=1939 P.C. 47=(1939) 1 M.L.J. 756 (P.C.). It is immaterial that the person who made the statement was not at the time when he made them under expectation of death. The nature of the proceedings in which the death comes into question also does not matter. It need not necessarily be a proceeding on a charge of murder or homicide. It may be even a civil action. 190 I.C. 849=1940 N.L.J. 459=1940 Nag. 340.

Under sec. 32 it is only statements made by the deceased as to the cause of his death or the circumstances of the transaction that resulted in his death which can be admitted. The circumstances must be circumstances of the transaction; general expressions indicating fear or suspicion, whether of a particular individual or otherwise and not directly related to the occasion of death cannot be admissible. Statement by the deceased which provide nothing more than grounds for supposing that the deceased suspected the accused of having betrayed a relation of his in a civil suit which are in no way associated with the actual murder cannot be admitted under sec. 32 and must be excluded. Even if the accused does not object to such evidence, it must be excluded. At any rate it is the duty of Public Prosecutor to see that such wholly inadmissible evidence is not placed before the Court. 1940 M.W.N. 937=52 L.W. 495=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 715. See also 1941 P.W.N. 255=22 Pat.L.J. 327=1941 Pat. 362; 1941 Mad. 101; I.L.R. (1941) Nag. 110; 47 C.W.N. 332.

A statement made by a person who is dead as to the cause of his death is evidence notwithstanding that he was not under expectation of death when he made it. Such a statement does not necessarily require corroboration. If the Court, after taking everything into consideration, is convicted that the statement is true, it is its duty to convict notwithstanding that there is no corroboration in the true sense. J.L.R. (1940) Mad. 158=1940 Mad. 196=(1940) 1 M.L.J. 124 (F.B.). See also 1940 M.W.N. 163. The danger of wrong identification has to be borne in mind in dealing with what are called dying declarations. Before acting on it the Court will apply to it every test of its genuineness and good faith which it is possible in the circumstances of the case to apply. Special caution is needed in dealing with a dying declaration when the prosecution evidence shows signs of attempt to improve and develop it at successive stages, or when there is serious room for doubt as to whether the contents of the dying statement include matter suggested to the deceased by the outsiders. 194 I.C. 186. Where the statement in question was said to have been made months before the alleged murder, held, that it could hardly come within the terms of sec. 32. 174 I.C. 36=66 C.L.J. 196=1938 C. 125.

Dying Declaration—When not admissible.—A statement by a dying person not about the circumstances of his death, but about a dacoity that was taking place at the time of his death is not admissible under sec. 32 (1) in a trial for the dacoity. Nor can those statements be admissible under sec. 32 (3) unless they would have exposed him to criminal prosecution. 20 I.C. 990=14 Cr.L.J. 510. See also 46 P.L.R. 135. A dying declaration which contradicts itself in its various parts is inadmissible. Even if it is admissible its evidentiary value is negligible. 108 I.C. 526. It is not safe to base a conviction on the dying declaration of the deceased, when the other evidence in the case is tainted and has to be rejected. 150 I.C. 819=11 O.W.N. 851=1934 O. 405. See also 164 I.C. 139=37 Cr.L.J. 990=1936 R. 324; 176 I.C. 633=1938 R. 282. A dying declaration which comes under sec. 32 (1) from the point of view of admissibility, should not be put on a different footing from any other piece of evidence, so far as the appraisal of its evidentiary value is concerned. Merely because a part of the statement is untrue, it does not follow that the rest should be disbelieved. If a tribunal finds that a part of it is concocted, it would decline to believe the rest of it without corroboration; but the Court or the jury is not debarred from accepting the rest. 40 C.W.N. 1377=1936 C. 793; 1938 R. 282; 1941 Mad. 290; 1941 Pat. 409.

Dying Declaration, Proof of.—160 I.C. 597=1936 R. 42. A statement of a deceased person recorded in the absence of the accused is not admissible under sec. 33. Nor is it admissible under sec. 32 (1) unless it is proved by the Magistrate who recorded it or by some one who heard it made. 20 I.C. 220=14 Cr.L.J. 396. Where a dying declaration has to be proved by a Magistrate it is unnecessary for him to repeat the record serially in his evidence if he is satisfied that it was correctly recorded; it is sufficient for him merely to refer to the record and testify to its correctness, and that it was made by the person and under the circumstances in question. 1941 Rang.L.R. 258=1941 Rang. 301. The only satisfactory and reliable way of proving the dying declaration of a deceased person is to let the person who recorded it or in whose presence it was recorded directly prove the writing itself. Otherwise the proceedings would be reduced to a farce. No human being can be expected to remember word for word what he had written long ago and either the witness will have to learn the evidence by heart before he enters the witness-box or no dying declaration could be proved in a satisfactory manner at all. 176 I.C. 471=1938 Pesh. 33. A dying declaration recorded by a Magistrate is not evidence unless proved by the statement of the Magistrate though he is himself the committing Magistrate in the case. A Court cannot be beyond the rule that every statement placed on the record must be properly proved. Dying declarations are not covered by the provisions of Chap. XLI of the Cr.P.Code. 18 I.C. 883=14 Cr.L.J. 131. See also 17 P.R. 1911 (Cr.)=14 I.C. 417. A dying declaration reduced to writing but not signed by the deponent is not admissible in evidence but must be proved by the oral testimony of the person who heard it. 23 I.C. 195=10 N.L.R. 19. Notes of police officer relating to a dying declaration are not admissible in evidence, unless signed by the deponent, but in testifying to it, he can refer to them to refresh his memory. (Ibid.) Where a statement is relevant under the provisions of sec. 32 (1), it is not inadmissible by reason of the fact that the magistrate who recorded it was not competent to record it under sec. 164, Cr.P.Code. 1941 Rang.L.R. 258=1941 Rang. 301. Witnesses should not be allowed to prove a dying declaration as if it is a substantive piece of evidence in the case. The relevant fact to be proved is the statement made and that statement is not the document made by the Magistrate. 67 I.C. 577=1924 L. 12. The only way of proving a dying declaration is by the evidence of some witness who heard it made, the witness being at liberty to refresh his memory by referring to the note made by him and read over by him at or about the time the statement is made. 1924 L. 12. See also 49 C. 358=71 I.C. 685; 1930 L. 450; 1930 C. 228. A dying declaration made after receiving extreme function should generally be believed to be true and acted upon. 12 I.C. 206=12 Cr.L.J. 528. See also 1941 Mad. 290; 1945 N.L.J. 139=1945 Nag. 153. The questions and the signs made in reply by a person unable to speak, taken together might properly be regarded as a "verbal statement" made by a person as to the cause of the death within the meaning of sec. 32 and are therefore admissible in evidence. 49 C. 600=26 C. W.N. 414=1922 C. 409. Gestures made before the death by the person murdered are admissible in evidence, but the opinion of the witnesses as to the meaning of such gestures is not evidence, the interpretation of the gestures being for the Court alone. 1 P. 401=71 I.C. 353. See also 38 Bom. L.R. 818; 173 I.C. 833=1938 P. 153. It is safer to rely on the dying declaration rather than on the first information report, for a great sanctity is attached to the former as it is expected that the person who is on the verge of death will tell the truth. 178 I.C. 348=1938 O.W.N. 1103. An injured man who is waiting to be operated on should not be subjected to anything like a third degree cross-examination, by the Magistrate who records his dying deposition; but the Magistrate should not content himself with merely recording the statement made by the injured man; he should ask him such simple questions as may occur to his mind in order that the dying deposition may be an account of some value. 176 I.C. 683=1938 R. 282.

(2) When the statement was made by such person in the ordinary course of business, and in particular when it consists of any or is made in course of entry or memorandum made by him in books kept in business; the ordinary course of business, or in the discharge of professional duty; or of an acknowledgment written or signed by him of the receipt of money, goods, securities or property of any kind; or of a document used in commerce written or signed by him; or of the date of a letter or other document usually dated, written or signed by him.

Suicide.—The accused were charged under sec. 330, I.P.C., with having, for the purpose of extorting a confession, caused hurt to one R, who committed suicide owing to the ill-treatment. Held, that ill-treatment was the cause though not the direct cause of the suicide and although the accused were not legally responsible for the suicide, the whole affair, ill-treatment, and subsequent suicide, being one transaction the statement of the deceased was admissible under sec. 32 (1). 20 P.R. 1916 (Cr.)=35 I.C. 998. Where a woman raped made a statement to her relative shortly after and committed suicide about three days after the occurrence, rape not being the cause of her death, her statement is not admissible under sec. 32 (1). 1930 M.W.N. 702.

Capacity of victim to make declaration.

—Where a deceased received a serious spear wound which penetrated the chest wall and injured the diaphragm liver and stomach. Held, that the deceased could not possibly have lived for two hours after receiving an injury of this description, much less could have been conscious. The probability of his ever living to make a dying declaration two hours later was too remote to be considered. 174 I.C. 973=39 Cr.L.J. 508=1938 L. 268. See also 174 I.C. 989=1938 L. 262.

Sec. 32 (2).—The expression "in the course of business" in sec. 32 (2) means in the way that business (which may be of a purely private or even trivial nature) is conducted. It has no connection with a course of business, which suggests a series of acts of business; the section would therefore apply to an act or acts of a simple and private nature. 167 I.C. 30=44 L.W. 681=1937 M. 19. The expression means a statement made during the course not of any particular transaction of an exceptional kind, but of business or professional employment, in which the deceased was ordinarily or habitually engaged. 65 C.L.J. 603. Where it is proved that a writer of some accounts kept in the regular course of business is absconding and cannot be found, the entries in the accounts are relevant evidence under sec. 32 and sufficient to charge a person with liability. 1 L.W. 136=22 I.C. 627. Where the writers of the account books produced by a plaintiff are alive and in his service, but are not examined by him, the books cannot be said to have been duly proved as required by law, and are inadmissible in evidence. 152 I.C. 468=11 O.W.N. 1323. In case of death of attestators the written statement of deceased bond-writer as to signing by attestators is admissible. See 19 C.W.N. 1148=22 I.C. 654. Collection papers—Admissibility of. tain date and had been refused by him is at best a record of statement by the peon and would be admissible either under sec. 32 (2) or sec. 33 if the requirements of those sections are complied with. Otherwise the post peon must be called to prove the facts relied on as being evidence of the endorsement. 19 C.W.N. 489=26 I.C. 962. Statement of the deceased's grand-father as to age—Admissibility of. See 38 B. 61=12 I.C. 551. See also 20 C.L.J. 302. A statement made by a father before a Government Tahsildar as to the age of his son is relevant to prove the age of the son. 9 M.L.T. 220=9 I.C. 324. (25 M. 183=11 M.L.J. 379; 20 C. 758, Foll.) A deposition made by a Patwari of a village in the course of the enquiry relating to the Revenue Settlement under the Bengal Regulation does not come under the provisions of sec. 32 and consequently inadmissible in evidence. 9 P.L.T. 679=1928 P. 429. Where Jama Wasil Baki papers were proved to be 45 years old, the Court might presume that the writer was dead at the time they were produced and that the same might be admissible in evidence under sec. 32 (2). 55 C. 1216. See also 1941 Cal. 41; 44 C.W.N. 993=1940 Cal. 524=I.L.R. (1940) 2 Cal. 559. The Zemindari papers can be used as independent evidence, provided they are brought within sec. 32 (2) by showing that the persons who prepared them are dead or cannot be found, but the weight to be attached to them must depend on circumstances. 11 P. 701. Chowhddibaudi or boundary papers of Zemindaries were filed by the zemindars in 1799 in pursuance of a duty. They are, therefore, admissible under sec. 32 (2), the persons making the statements contained in them being dead. 44 C.W.N. 935=1941 Cal. 193. A receipt executed by a deceased person who stood in the relation of cousin to the parties gave the boundaries of an adjacent plot. Held, that the document was admissible under sec. 32 as a statement made by a deceased person in the ordinary course of his business. 1928 O. 248. Entries made by the Amin in the Khatian and chitta must be taken to have been made in the ordinary course of business and admissible under sec. 32, sub-sec. (2). 55 C. 1070=1928 C. 448. Report submitted by a process peon who is dead regarding service of notice is admissible. 1933 P. 658. Evidence recorded under Fugitive Offenders' Act is admissible. 112 I.C. 673. Statements of living persons who had not been examined as witnesses are inadmissible. 5 O.W.N. 1111=1929 O. 113.

Sec. 32 (3): Recital as to ownership—Recitals in document relating not to suit land but to neighbouring land—Not admissible. 8 I.C. 268=1910 M.W.N. 668; 16 C.W.N. 262=12 I.C. 149; 11 A.L.J. 139=18 I.C. 752. See also 99 I.C. 910=1927 C. 234. Part of statement against pecuniary interest—Entire statement, admissible. 42 C.W.N. 359. As to admissibility of recitals in documents between strangers regarding boundaries of lands, see 45 C.L.J. 55=1926 C. 948; 44 C.L.J. 582=1927 C. 230 and cases cited therein; 1928 C. 63; 1933 P. 636=145 I.C. 944; 152 I.C. 829=1934 P. 617; 30 L.W. 422 (not admissible.) A recital of a boundary in a document between third parties is not ordinarily admissible to prove possession or title as against a person who is not a party to the document. This rule is subject to exceptions. Such a statement can, for instance, be admitted under sec. 32 (3), when it is contained in a document against the proprietary interest of the person making it, when the executant of the document is dead. So also when the executant of the document contained the recital as to boundary is himself a witness in the case, it can be admitted as a contemporaneous statement to corroborate his evidence under sec. 157. 1940 M.W.N. 80=51 L.W. 509=1940 Mad. 450. A road-cess return filed by a Hindu widow under sec. 95 of the Bengal Cess Act is admissible under this section. 18 C.L.J. 633=22 I.C. 594.

STATEMENT AGAINST INTEREST.—What is, and its admissibility. See (1911) 1 M.W. N. 368=11 I.C. 380; 100 I.C. 542=45 C. L.J. 138. See also 29 I.C. 607; 36 M. 19; 18 I.C. 989; 1929 N. 131. Under sec. 32 (3), in order to determine whether a certain statement is against the pecuniary or proprietary interest of the person making it, we must look to the statement itself and not to the nature of the transaction in the course of which the statement is made. An assertion in a deed of gift by the donor that the subject-matter of the gift is his property can by no strength of reasoning be held to be a statement against the pecuniary or proprietary interest of the donor. 184 I.C. 246=12 R.P. 235=20 Pat.L.T. 877. See also 53 L.W. 731=1941 Mad. 666=(1941) 1 M.L.J. 754. The sanctity attaching to a statement by a person who is dead on the ground that it was against his interest to make it must depend upon the measure of that interest, and when it appears that the statement was probably to the immediate interest of the person who made it, the fact that more remotely it was against his interest does not afford much guarantee of its truth. I.L.R. (1939) Kar. 573=183 I.C. 67=1939 Sind 145. A statement in a sale-deed by the executant that he was liable for a particular amount is a statement made against the pecuniary or proprietary interest. 30 N.L.R. 192=1934 Nag. 106. In a divorce suit filed in India by the husband on the ground of adultery, a letter written to him by the co-respondent who lives in England admitting adultery with the respondent, is admissible in evidence, as the admission of adultery would have exposed him to a criminal prosecution. 150 I.C. 445=1934 A. 618 (S.B.). An isolated piece of paper or memorandum made by a person who is dead, for his own information, about his property, which is not made by him in the ordinary course of his business and which is not one of a continuous series of acts, and which contains nothing against his pecuniary interest and does not expose him to a criminal prosecution or a civil suit, is not admissible under sec. 32. I.L.R. (1940) Kar. 334=191 I.C. 111=1940 Sind 173.

(4) When the statement gives the opinion of any such person, as to the existence of any public right or custom or matter of public right of custom, or matters of general interest; or gives opinion as to public right of custom, or matters of general interest; if it existed, he would have been likely to be aware; and when such statement was made before any controversy as to such right, custom or matter has arisen.

STATEMENT AS TO RELATIONSHIP.—Prior statement by mother that she was the concubine of alleged father—Admissibility in evidence. 10 I.C. 188. Admission of one co-plaintiff or co-defendant, evidence against other. 33 M.L.J. 180=44 I.A. 201=40 A. 159 (P.C.). Although under sec. 32 (3) a confession made by a deceased conspirator after he had rendered himself liable to criminal prosecution is not admissible, yet when general evidence of the existence of a conspiracy of which the deceased was a member has been given, such a statement is admissible under sec. 10. 33 C.W.N. 1015. The principle upon which a statement made by a dead person against his pecuniary or proprietary interest is regarded as admissible in evidence is that in the ordinary course of affairs a person is not likely to make a statement to his own detriment unless it is true. But a statement made by the deceased widow in proceedings to obtain mutation of names in the register in favour of the adopted boy was not against her pecuniary or proprietary interest and was not admissible under sec. 32 (3) of the Evidence Act. 57 I.A. 14=1930 P.C. 79=58 M.L.J. 446 (P.C.). See also 14 R. 11=16 I.C. 387=1936 R. 5. A statement by a deceased member of an undivided Hindu family resident in Bengal that he is governed by the Mitakshara school of Hindu Law is admissible in evidence under sec. 32 (3), being a statement against his proprietary interest in properties possessed by him.

It necessarily implies that his rights were limited by the rights of the other co-parceners and that he had not the free and unrestricted power of disposal. 43 C.W.N. 395. See also 1939 Sind 145=I.L.R. (1939) Kar. 573. (Statement as to status in the will of the deceased). Where in a cancelled will the testator has made a statement in the interests of other persons, his sons, against his own interest it is admissible under sec. 32 (3). 1939 N.L.J. 421=1939 Nag. 274.

SEC. 32 (4).—Sec. 32 (4) allows evidence of opinion in respect of any matter of public or general interest, the test being whether the deceased person expressing the opinion was likely to have had knowledge. In the case of the Mahants, even if they may have had knowledge by means of oral tradition handed down from Mahant to Chela, the opinion would be relevant but not particular facts. 12 L. 497=1931 L. 161. See also 16 P. 258=1937 P.C. 69=(1937) 2 M. L.J. 631 (P.C.). (Question of limits of a particular revenue mahal not in question of public right or general interest). Statements of deceased persons as to the existence of a family custom are admissible in evidence under sec. 32 (4). 8 Luck. 445=1933 O. 246. Where the question related to the local usage relating to the deep stream boundary rule, one of the witnesses who was the Ziladar for 36 years stated that such custom prevailed from time immemorial that he was told about it by the former Sarabarakar and a tenant, both of them, since dead. Held, that such evidence was admissible under sec. 32, Cl. (4). 146 I.C. 795=1933 A. 376. See also 1937 P. 463. (Custom of land tenure). Statement of deceased as to custom—Family custom made after controversy—Admissibility of. 42 C. 532=27 M. L.J. 373 (P.C.). Where the question was whether certain property was dedicated to a wakf and certain documents which related to the neighbouring lands and which contained recitals as to the character of the suit property were put in, held, that they were admissible in evidence under sec. 32 (4). 33 C.W.N. 439=1929 C. 533.

SEC. 32 (5).—Sec. 32 (5) only requires that the statement tendered must be made by a person who had special means of knowing the relationship to which it relates, and that it must have been made ante litem motam. It is not further necessary that the statement in question should also be relevant to the matter in issue in respect of which it was made. It is also immaterial whether it was made in a judicial proceeding or otherwise. 167 I.C.

(5) When the statement relates to the existence of any relationship ¹[by blood, marriage or adoption] between persons as to or relates to existence of whose relationship ¹[by blood, marriage or adoption] the person making the statement had special means of knowledge, and when the statement was made before the question in dispute was raised.

The statement of a deceased person as to the family pedigree, which is admissible under sec. 32 has little evidential value when it relates to matters which occurred before his birth or in early youth, if the source of his information is not disclosed. 59 L.W. 268=50 C. W.N. 477=A.I.R. 1946 P.C. 59 (P.C.). Where the statement in question was made by an aged relation of the family it was held, that it was doubtful whether it was necessary for him to depose to any particular source of knowledge so as to render his statement admissible under sec. 32 (5) because he might, as a relation, be presumed to have been well acquainted with the pedigree of his ancestors. 1942 O.W.N. 657=1943 Oudh 91, Recital in deeds how far evidence. 25 M.L.J. 373 =19 I.C. 740. Illustration to sec. 32 shows that the relationship which may be proved by the statement of a deceased person may be relationship of the person making the statement. 25 M.L.J. 373. See also 163 I.C. 770=1936 O. 340. Witnesses should not be permitted by Court to give their testimony as to matters which could not be within their own knowledge without first stating the source of their information. They should be required to prove the statements relied upon with proper particularity and with due attention to the requirements that the person making the statement had special means of knowledge. The evidence of a family hard as to the relationship of parties is prima facie inadmissible if it relates to events long before his birth, as it is hearsay. 176 I.C. 464=40 P.L.R. 162=1938 L. 303. See also 189 I.C. 325. A statement prepared and signed soon after a marriage ceremony, by the priest who officiated at the ceremony, that he performed the marriage according to rites prescribed by religious scriptures and that the essential ceremonies constituting a valid Hindu marriage were performed, does not fall within the ambit of sec. 32 (5) of the Evidence Act. Such a statement relates to the performance of the marriage ceremonies and to the existence of any relationship by marriage and hence not relevant under sec. 32 (5). 45 Bom.L.R. 924. Whether under sec. 32 (5) only statements of relevant facts are admissible and not statements of facts in issue. 45 Bom. L.R. 924. Where the question at issue is whether a certain person died issueless, a statement of a deceased that that person died issueless amounts to a statement relating to the existence of a relationship by blood, because the question whether that person left a son involves the question whether there is any blood relationship between him and the person who claims to be his son. The existence of any relationship within the meaning of sec. 32 (5) includes the non-existence of such relationship. If a statement relating to the existence of such relationship is evidence under that sub-section, any statement which implies that there is no existence of such relationship between two persons also comes under that sub-section. 191 I.C. 674=1941 Pat. 205. Statements of witnesses in a prior suit regarding the adoption of a party cannot be admitted in evidence in the subsequent suit in respect of the same question of adoption as they cannot be said to have been made before the question in dispute was raised. 55 M. 40=1932 M. 198 =62 M.L.J. 116; 49 L.W. 273=1939 Mad. 446=(1939) 1 M.L.J. 227. A statement by a deceased person that there was a marriage between him and a certain woman is admissible in evidence for the purpose of proving the legitimacy of his children under the provisions of sec. 32, sub-sec. (5) as a statement as to marriage. The doctrine of Mahomedan Law do not exclude evidence of this nature and the Evidence Act applies. 55 A. 139=1933 A. 329. When a family migrated from one province to another years ago it is not possible to have in all cases anything but hearsay evidence which could be obtained from those having special means of knowledge (their ancestors) regarding the migration. Statements made to members of family by their ancestors are thus admissible in evidence to prove their relationship and their original place of residence where that relationship arose. 1943 N.L.J. 320. A settlement pedigree can be admitted in evidence either under sec. 32 (5) or under sec. 35. If the settlement pedigree is one signed by the members of the family, it would be admissible under sec. 32 (5) as statements of deceased persons as to relationship since such statements would be considered to be of these persons having special means of knowledge. It must, however, be proved that statements were made by them at a time when there was no dispute as to the pedigree set up. If however, the pedigree is not signed by the members of the family, but is prepared by the settlement officer himself after proper enquiry and bears his signature, it can be admitted under sec. 35, as an entry in a public record stating a fact in issue and made by a public servant in the discharge of his official duties. 4 Luck. 39=1929 O. 129. See also (1937) 2 M.L.J. 772 (P.C.). The words "relating to the existence of any relationship" are wide enough to include statements about the birth and death of relatives which events either commence or terminate the relationship. A statement in a guardianship petition made by a person's aunt that he was born on a certain day and that she was his aunt is admissible in evidence as it relates to the existence of relationship. 20 C.L.J. 621=28 I.C. 595. Statement as to age of adopted son by adoptive mother—Admissibility. 149 I.C. 781=1934 A.L.J. 318=1934 A. 406 (F.B.). A statement put in during the inam enquiry by a vakil on behalf of certain inamdars though not signed by them may be presumed to be authorised and is admissible as evidence of the genealogical table contained therein. 55 M. 40=1932 M. 198=62 M.L.J. 116. Statements of deceased relatives, servants, and dependents are admissible, for proving family relationship. In every case it is a question of fact if the person who made the statement had special means of knowledge. 55 M. 50. Statements after dispute arose are not admissible.

A statement by a deceased person as to the existence of relationship, the person having special means of knowledge, and the statement being made before the legitimacy of a certain person was called in question, is admissible in evidence. 3 Luck. 416=1928 O. 233; 3 Luck. 326=1928 O. 307. See also 1939 Sind 145. Where the statement of witness giving the pedigree is found to be inadmissible under sec. 32 (5), but he deposes to facts which established such treatment as is contemplated by sec. 50, it should be admitted to that extent. 151 I.C. 338=1934 A. 117. Statement made in a suit in which the issue was the same. See 7 P. 90=1928 P. 113. Though a person cannot claim a title under an unprobated will, he can rely upon a statement contained therein indicating the relationship of the parties. 7 P. 733=1928 P. 459. The English Law with regard to evidence or matters of pedigree differs in some respects from the Indian Law. Under the Indian Law only, such evidence will be admissible which consists of (1) statements by a deceased person regarding relationship who had special means of knowledge when the statements were made before the question in dispute was raised, and (2) like statements in a will or deed relating to the affairs of the family when made before the question in dispute was raised. 110 I.C. 428 (2)=1928 P. 539. See also 163 I.C. 770=1936 O. 340. Under the English law the admission of hearsay evidence in pedigree cases is confined to the proof of the pedigree and does not apply to proof of the facts which constitute a pedigree, such as birth, death and marriage, when they have to be proved for other purposes. The Indian law as laid down in sec. 32 is no so strict. 1934 A.L.J. 318=1934 A. 406 (F.B.).

SEC. 32 (5) AND (6): "FAMILY PEDIGREE."
—Meaning of. 1 Luck. 700. As ordinarily understood, a pedigree is an ancient family record handed down from generation to generation and added to, as a member of the family dies or is born; but a statement drawn upon a particular occasion, for a specific purpose, by a member of the family, is not a pedigree in the sense in which it is used in sec. 32 (6) and has to be treated as a mere declaration made by the person who made or adopted it. 16 Mys.L.J. 137=43 Mys.H.C.R. 21. As to the presumption of genuineness of pedigree tables, see 105 I.C. 81; 1928 N. 20. Unless a family pedigree is shown to be a statement of some member of the family or maintained in the family as a family pedigree, it cannot be said to be admissible in evidence either under clause (5) or clause (6) of sec. 32. The word 'family pedigree' in the Act should not be understood according to the standard adopted by Courts of law in England in regard to English pedigrees. 1944 O.W.N.

83=20 Luck. 108. In cases of families of taluqdars governed by the custom of lineal primogeniture, importance is attached to seniority. Hence where members of such a family give pedigrees and indicate the persons by number, it is natural to consider that the numbers are given for the purpose of showing the order in which each of the persons stated therein was born. When genealogical tables are made by members of such a family, there is a natural tendency to proceed from the eldest to the youngest, because such family members by tradition and by necessity develop the habit of stating the names in order of seniority. Where in addition, a number of genealogical tables are dictated by persons who have personal knowledge, at different times and for different purposes, and they consistently mention the names in one unvarying order, that order must be ascribed to a design or a plan to state the name in order of birth. 1944 O.W.N. 83; 20 Luck. 108. Where there are a number of pedigrees put in by the direct ancestors of parties to the case and they are always the same, a fact which cannot be due to chance. There is a design in the way they are prepared and that design can only have been to give the correct order. 178 I.C. 950=1938 O.W.N. 1267=1939 Oudh 17. The statement is obviously in the interest of the person who made it, and he, if alive, could not have made use of such an admission in his favour nor could his sons do so. 165 I.C. 785=1936 O.W. N. 1203=1937 O. 133. Sec. 48 read with sec. 60 requires that the person who holds the opinion should be called as a witness. Statements made by deceased persons after the controversy had arisen and therefore inadmissible under sec. 32 are not admissible under sec. 48 or under sec. 32 (7). Statements cannot be called instances. 8 Luck. 445=1933 O. 246. SECS. 32 AND 33.—Relative scope of. 43 Cr.L.J. 123. Evidence in regard to a statement made to the complainant by a person who has not been examined as a witness, is not admissible either under S. 32 or S. 33. 79 C.L.J. 149=A.I.R. 1945 Cal. 360.

SECS. 32 (2) AND 34.—The term "book" as used in secs. 32 (2) and 34 implies a collective unity of sheets even at the time that the entries come to be made. It connotes an intention that it should serve as a permanent record. But beyond these two ideas, it is not necessary that it should consist of a particular number of sheets or that it should be bound in a particular way. A number of sheets of paper stitched into a book before the entries have begun to be made, each entry covering both the sheets, i.e., the entry beginning on the left page and running on into the right page, and kept by a creditor as an account of his cash receipts and disbursements is a "book" within the meaning of secs. 32 and 34, judged by the standards prevailing amongst Indians who keep private books of account not meant for trade purposes. Entries in such a book are admissible in evidence under sec. 32 (4); and the entries to be admissible need not necessarily be against the pecuniary interest of the persons making the entries. 44 L.W. 467=1936 M. 871.

SECS. 32 AND 35.—Charge of murder—Statement by wife of deceased made to Village Munsif charging accused—Deponent subsequently committing suicide—Statement not admissible against accused. 1942 Mad. 450=(1942) 1 M.L.J. 503.

SEC. 33: CONSTRUCTION.—Sec. 33 must be very strictly construed. 31 I.C. 354=17 Bom.L.R. 590. The requirements of sec. 33, must be carefully proved before the statement of a witness before the committing Magistrate can be transferred to the sessions record under the section. 46 P.L.R. 69. See also 46 P.L.R. 135. Affidavit of person who died subsequently and who was not subjected to cross-examination is not admissible. 1927 M. 507=52 M.L.J. 477.

CONDITIONS OF ADMISSIBILITY OF EVIDENCE.—Per May Oung, J.—The power given by sec. 33 requires to be exercised with great care and the Court must insist on strict proof before holding that the requisite conditions have been satisfied. The Court must also in the judgment or preferably in a separate order, record the reasons for doing so. 1 R. 512= that the proceeding was between the same parties or their representatives in interest :

that the adverse party in the first proceeding had the right and opportunity to cross-examine ;

that the questions in issue were substantially the same in the first as in the second proceedings.

Explanation.—A criminal trial or inquiry shall be deemed to be a proceeding between the prosecutor and the accused within the meaning of this section.

76 I.C. 817=1924 R. 209; 1930 C. 756. See also 25 O.C. 142=74 I.C. 860=10 Lah. 837; 1929 L. 542. Sec. 33 sanctions the admission of the evidence of an absent witness only on certain specified grounds. It is well-established that before such evidence is let in, the Court must arrive at a finding, on evidence formally and regularly taken and recorded, that one or other of the grounds specified in the section exists. Accordingly, the admission in evidence of the deposition of a witness before a committing Magistrate without such a finding is illegal, when such witness is not called to give evidence at the trial before the Sessions Judge. I.L.R. (1944) 2 Cal. 76=46 Cr.L.J. 580=A.I.R. 1945 Cal. 137.

Under sec. 33 one of the conditions to be satisfied is "that the adverse party in the first proceeding had the right and opportunity to cross-examine". Two things must co-exist: right and opportunity. Whether the accused had the opportunity to exercise his right to cross-examine is a question of fact to be determined in each case. The condition will not be fulfilled merely because the accused was physically present in police custody at the time of the examination of a witness. The object of the section is to afford a genuine opportunity which would be effectively availed of and not for show only. 48 P.L.R. 39; 47 C.W.N. 271. Under sec. 33 before certain evidence given by a witness in a judicial proceeding can be admitted in a subsequent judicial proceeding, it must be established that the questions in issue were substantially the same in the first as in the second proceeding. It is not necessary, however, that any specific issue need have been raised regarding any particular matter in issue between the parties, but the matter must have been in issue between them. 49 L.W. 273=1939 Mad. 446=(1939) 1 M.L.J. 227. See also 1939 Rang. 225. The fact that the counsel for accused gave his consent does not make any difference. 1929 L. 542. The provisions of this section are not in any way affected by sec. 350 of the Cr.P. Code. 101 I.C. 483=1927 L. 332 (5 L. 115, Doubtful). The statement of a witness as recorded before the committing Magistrate cannot be transferred to the Sessions file under sec. 33 merely because it would be expensive to retain the assessors until that witness is served with a summons. 45 P.L.R. 151. The transfer of the statement of a witness as recorded by the committing Magistrate to the Sessions record under sec. 33 without examining him, is improper when summons was not issued for his attendance in good time as it is impossible in such circumstances to say that the witness could not be found or his presence could not be obtained without delay or expense. 45 P.L.R. 82. Where it is desired to have recourse to sec. 33 on the ground that a witness is incapable of giving evidence that fact must be proved, and proved strictly. It cannot be laid down that in every case there must be evidence of a medical man, where excuse is sought on the ground of physical incapacity. There may be many cases in which the facts are such that the incapacity can be proved by a lay witness. But the evidence of a police officer who served the witness with a summons thirteen days before the trial that he found that the witness was ill is not sufficient to prove that the witness was incapable of giving evidence on the day of the trial, as the officer was not a proper person to prove from what disease the witness was suffering. In a civil case a party can if he chooses waive the proof, but in a criminal case strict proof ought to be given that the witness is incapable of giving evidence, and the consent of the accused to the evidence being read does not do away with the necessity of the Court being satisfied by proof. It may be that there are some matters as to which it would be possible for an accused to consent to be taken as proved though no strict evidence was given; if there are, they could only be such as might reasonably be supposed to be particularly within the knowledge of the accused. Great care must be exercised before admitting a statement made before the committing Magistrate at the Sessions trial. In very many of these cases, the accused is not represented at that stage, so while he has the opportunity to cross-examine it is not often that this would be effectively done. 72 I.A. 270=59 L.W. 92=50 C.W.N. 201=A.I.R. 1946 P.C. 1=(1946) 1 M.L.J. 125 (P.C.). The principal evidence against the accused in a sessions trial on a charge of murder was the deposition of a witness in the Court of the committing Magistrate. The deposition was admitted as direct evidence at the sessions trial under sec. 33 on the ground that the witness could not be served as he had joined the army and his address was not known. There was no evidence as to what steps had been taken by the prosecution to discover his address. Subsequently his address was also ascertained. Held, that in the circumstances of the case the sessions judge was not justified in applying sec. 33 and that any delay or expense which might be involved in the case could not be said to be unreasonable having regard to the public interests involved in examining in the box and in the presence of the trial judge and the assessors, the principal witness in so serious charge as murder. 57 L.W. 108=(1944) 1 M.L.J. 137. If the Public Prosecutor gives up a witness examined before the committing Magistrate but the statement of that witness is transferred to the Sessions record at the request of the defence counsel, that statement should be brought on the record not as that of a prosecution witness but as that of a defence witness or Court witness. 46 P.L.R. 69. On this section, see also 1924 A. 85; 1925 R. 89. It is the duty of the Court to satisfy itself that the presence of the witness cannot be obtained without an amount of delay or expense with it considers unreasonable before the statement of the witness in a previous judicial proceeding can be admitted. The mere statement of the public prosecutor to that effect is not sufficient. There must be independent evidence. Prima facie the consent of the accused or his counsel is presumptive evidence of the absence of prejudice. 28 M.L.J. 329=28 I.C. 518=39 M. 449. See also 1930 C. 756; 1930 L. 1041; 1929 L. 542 (the consent of the accused counsel is immaterial). ILLUSTRATIVE CASES.—No proceeding is a 'judicial proceeding' within the meaning of the section if it is conducted by a Court which has no jurisdiction to undertake it. 54 M. 561=61 M.L.J. 120. Where the Munsiff, after the examination of a witness, returned the plaintiff subject-matter was above his pecuniary jurisdiction, the evidence of the witness so examined is not admissible in evidence in the subsequent trial before the Sub-Judge even though the witness died in the interval and so could not be examined afresh. 54 M. 561. As the person against whom proceedings have been instituted under sec. 476 of the Cr. P. Code, has no right to cross-examine witnesses during that enquiry, the evidence of witness in that enquiry, who is not forthcoming at the trial started on the result of such enquiry, is not admissible. 34 I.C. 969=17 Cr.L.J. 249=18 Bom.L.R. 284; also evidence given in proceedings under sec. 145, Cr. LEG. REF.

case until the stage provided for in sec. 256 is reached the accused has no right to cross-examine and consequently the evidence of a witness given before framing of the charge is not admissible. 1929 Cr.C. 669=1929 C. 822. But see contra 1935 N. 8. Reservation by Committing Magistrate of cross-examination of witness suo motu—Evidence cannot be admitted in Sessions Court. 1930 Sind 54=120 I.C. 524. Evidence recorded for the purposes of proceedings under the Fugitive Offenders Act is admissible under secs. 32 and 33 in proceedings under Penal Code against the same accused. 1928 Sind 161.

Sec. 33, Proviso.—Object—"Representative in interest"—Meaning of. 60 I.A. 336=1933 P.C. 202=65 M.L.J. 479 (P.C.). The term "representatives in interest" includes persons having the same interest in the subject-matter of the litigation and comprises all persons on whose behalf, though not in their names or as representing them, the previous litigation was carried on. 16 Mys.L.J. 77=43 Mys.H.C.R. 113. Representatives in interest are persons who derive their title through or claim under them, or, shortly, are their privies. Sec. 33 cannot be applied without any reference to the subject-matter of the two suits. The interests involved in each case must be the same or similar. 102 I.C. 713=1927 M. 733. Such as partners and joint contractors. 5 P. 777. The phrase may not for all purposes be synonymous with the expression "persons claiming under" in sec. 11 of the Civil Procedure Code. 55 M. 40=62 M.L.J. 116. In seeing whether a person is the legal representative under sec. 33, regard must be had to the state of affairs, when the evidence is sought to be admitted. Where the defendant in a subsequent suit was the natural son of the plaintiff in previous suit and claimed in the subsequent suit not as the natural son of the plaintiff but as adopted son of a third person, held the depositions in the previous suits were not admissible. 51 M. 893=55 M.L.J. 894 (F.B.). A deposition on which there was no opportunity at all to cross-examine, is not admissible. 39 L. W. 34=1934 M. 100. But sec. 33 does not require that the adverse party should have actually exercised his right to cross-examine the witness. (8 C.W.N. 838, Ref.) 151 I. C. 683=1934 P. 413. The true reading of sec. 33 is that the adverse party in the first proceeding had both the right and the opportunity of cross-examining and not "the right of opportunity to cross examine." 57 I.A. 14=52 A. 1=58 M.L.J. 446=1930 P.C. 79 (P.C.). Where the party was not allowed to cross-examine in a prior proceeding the previous statement is not admissible in the later suit. 58 M.L.J. 446.

EXPLANATION.—The inquiry before the Coroner, although it may be a judicial proceeding is not a proceeding between the prosecutor and the accused and therefore the deposition of a witness taken in an enquiry before the Coroner cannot in the event of the death of the witness, be taken into account at the trial before the High Court. 35 Bom.L. R. 1020=1933 B. 479 (1).

PROCEDURE.—Before the evidence of a person who cannot be found can be admitted under sec. 33, there must be a finding by the Court that reasonable exertion had been made to find him. The mere report of the process-server that the witness cannot be traced is insufficient for enabling the Court to base its finding upon such evidence. 1939 M.L.R. 12 (Cr.). It cannot be accepted as a proposition of law that it is absolutely necessary to examine a qualified medical practitioner before evidence can be accepted. Difference between English and Indian conditions regarding facilities for obtaining qualified doctors pointed out. 31 C.W.N. 908=1927 C. 679. "Where an entry appears in a book of account it comes both under sec. 32, cl. (2) and sec. 34. The only material difference as between an entry relevant under sec. 32 (2) is that in the former case the person who made the entry may be available as a witness while in the latter case he is not". Per Mukerji, J., in 55 C. 1167=32 C.W.N. 580. Evidence otherwise inadmissible cannot be made admissible by consent of parties. 1942 Mad. 528=(1942) 1 M.L.J. 485.

SEC. 34: BOOKS "REGULARLY KEPT IN THE COURSE OF BUSINESS"—MEANING OF.—14 Cr. L.J. 262=19 I.C. 534. As to what constitutes "regularly kept" accounts and as to the effect of irregularity in keeping accounts, see 95 I.C. 128=1926 N. 407; 136 I.C. 716; 9 O.W.N. 932. See also 4 B. 576; 13 C.L.J. 139=8 I.C. 81; 13 I.C. 678; 7 I.C. 1011. Sec. 34 cannot be read as meaning that there should be independent evidence, besides the entries in books of account, that such and such articles valued at such and such amount were supplied on such and such date. What is necessary to be seen in each case is whether besides the entries in the account books, there is any evidence to prove that the transactions referred to in the entries actually took place. In the case of transactions which are numerous and which extend over some length of time

Illustration.

A sues B for Rs. 1,000, and shows entries in his account books showing B to be indebted to him to this amount. The entries are relevant, but are not sufficient without other evidence, to prove the debt.

it is not reasonable to expect independent evidence to be given to prove each and every particular transaction. In such case the genuineness of the account books, if they are regularly kept in the course of business, will be the determining factor. But mere proof of the correctness of the entries in the account books would not be enough. There must be some evidence to corroborate those entries. The evidence of the person who wrote the account books and in whose presence the transactions took place would be the best corroboration. Since he cannot possibly have independent recollection of the various transactions, he may, as provided in sec. 159, refresh his memory by referring to the account books. But, it is not necessary for him to prove that such and such articles valued at specified amounts were supplied on specified dates. If he proves the entries written by him and states that the transactions referred to in those entries actually took place in his presence or to his knowledge, the effect would be the same. Where however, the dispute between the parties is confined to some particular items only, specific evidence may be available and should be insisted upon to prove those particular transactions. Mere general evidence to prove that the account books were regularly kept is not enough. 20 Pat. 273=22 Pat.L.T. 383=1941 Pat. 430. See also 49 C.W.N. 308. The rule that plaintiff's own statement on oath in support of entries can be sufficient to support the entries in his Bahies so as to fix if it is not with liability is applicable only if it is found that the plaintiff's books are regularly kept in the course of business and free from any doubt. It is essential that entries of all the available Bahies (e.g.) Rokar, Pakki and Kachi, Nakal and Khata relating to the money claimed should be filed along with the plaint. The tendency on the part of creditors to base their claim solely on entries in Khata Bahi is to be strongly deprecated. 1939 M.L.R. 216 (Civ.). It is only the account books that are properly kept that are admissible in evidence as relevant. 51 A. 519=27 A.L.J. 115=1929 A. 170. A book of account may be said to be regularly kept although the book is not entered up from day to day or from hour to hour as the transactions take place. 38 C.W.N. 861. Account prepared at considerable intervals from memory or possibly inadequate materials cannot be treated as proof of the actual income and expenditure of the estate to which they relate although they may be useful in cases where they corroborate other evidence. 51 M. 291=45 M.L.J. 703. It is a matter of intrinsic evidence as to whether the books in question were books of account and kept regularly in the regular course of business. The only limitation imposed by the statute is that the statement, contained in the account books "shall not alone be sufficient to charge any one with liability". The value of the entries is corroborative and they cannot be used as independent evidence to charge any person with liability. 51 A. 864=1930 A. 38. See also 1930 A.L.J. 987; 1936 O.W. N. 582; 16 Luck. 36. Entries in account books unless corroborated not sufficient to fasten liability. 1930 A.L.J. 987. Proof of accounts, see 100 I.C. 863=1937 N. 177; 49 C.W.N. 308; 16 A. 161; 18 A. 92; 1 M. I.A. 47=5 W.R. (P.C.) 29. They would be good corroborative evidence. 23 W.R. (P.C.) 27. Such entries must be corroborated by other evidence in order to find a liability upon. 22 W.R. 549; 23 W.R. (Cr.) 27. Under sec. 34, the production of account books alone is not enough to make a person liable. But it is a question of fact as to how much evidence is required to create the liability when taken together with books of account. Every case shall have to be decided on its own merits. In a case where the witness, who produces the account books, is reliable and has personal knowledge, the Court may accept his statement as enough proof combined with the books of account. In cases however in which the witness is not reliable at all, the Court would require more proof. 1937 Pesh. 103. If in addition to the production by the plaintiff of account books regularly kept in the course of business, there is evidence of witnesses who prove a number of items claimed by the plaintiff, the requirements of sec. 34 are fulfilled. 35 P.L.R. 539. Mere production without more of account books, does not prove anything. There must be proof, not only of the books, but of each entry and item of account. 23 L. W. 272=1926 M. 955. See also 1927 L. 903; 1930 A.L.J. 987; 1933 L. 384=34 P.L.R. 46; 176 I.C. 99=1938 A.L.J. 449=1938 A. 353. Where the plaintiff produces account books and deposes that they are regularly kept and are correct, and he is not cross-examined on the point, his testimony supported by the account book is legally sufficient to establish his claim. 1933 L. 212=145 I.C. 157. "Account" implies reckoning and totalling and balancing. Where these are not done there is no account. 1933 L. 212. See also 10 N. L.R. 44=23 I.C. 193. Books of account, if no balances have been struck in them may be inadmissible under sec. 34, but they are however admissible under sec. 32 (2) as entries or memoranda, made by persons who are dead, in books kept in the ordinary course of business. 30 N.L.R. 192=1934 N. 106. "Books" mean sheets of paper permanently bound. Unbound sheets are not books of account. 15 Cr.L.J. 241=23 I.C. 193. It is hardly proper to stigmatise the books of a respectable firm as books which it is not difficult to fabricate, without coming to a specific finding that the books produced were as a matter of fact fabricated and without giving reasons therefor. 14 P.L.T. 61=1933 P. 145. Where a number of blank spaces are left in the rokar bahi in different places, the conclusion by the Court that it is unreliable is servant, in the discharge of his official duty, or by any other person in performance of a duty specially enjoined by the law of the country in which such book, register or record is kept, is itself a relevant fact.

RELEVANCY OF ENTRIES IN BOOKS OF ACCOUNT.—See 5 M.I.A. 432; 4 Beng.L.R. (P.C.) 31; 13 M.I.A. 365; 16 Luck. 36; 3 N.W.P. 308; 5 W.R. 242. Such books can be used to refresh memory of witness. 29 C. 774. Such entries need not be made by or at the dictation of a person who had a personal knowledge of the truth of the fact stated. 1 B. 610. Entries in account books are relevant as admissions against the party even when the entries are written by his agent. 38 C.W.N. 861. The noting of the items in an account book kept regularly by a munim in whose presence the money was not paid is no evidence. 1923 L. 431 (1). As to what constitutes being kept in the regular course of business, see 4 B. 576. Although the actual entries in books of account are relevant, the book itself is not relevant to disprove an alleged transaction by the absence of any entry concerning it. 10 C. 1024; 30 C. 24. But see contra 1924 N. 22 in which it was held that the absence of an entry in an account book is relevant fact admissible in evidence. As to zamindari papers, see 19 Pat. 398=1940 Pat. 622. Jabaki papers, not admissible, unless party sought to be bound was shown to have agreed thereto. 9 W.R. 274. As to Bahi entries, see 41 P.L.R. 373=1939 Lah. 438.

OBJECTION TO ADMISSIBILITY.—An entry in an account book is an admission by the maker thereof in his own favour and it is accepted as evidence only if it strictly complied with the requirements of being kept regularly and in the ordinary course of business. 1932 L. 417=33 P.L.J. 745. See also 1940 O.W.N. 555=1940 Oudh 385. Where entries in certain books of account are proved to be in the handwriting of a person since deceased, any objection to their admissibility on the ground that they were not proved to have been kept in the regular course of business ought to be taken at the time of trial. 32 I.C. 665=17 Cr.L.J. 73 (M.). Account books are sufficiently discredited if a certain number of entries therein are proved to be bogus by independent evidence which precludes the possibility of error or accident. 1928 P.C. 39=54 M.L.J. 208 (P.C.). As to the effect of failure to produce account books, see 176 I.C. 675=1938 N. 254.

Entry in the register of powers of attorney. 43 C.W.N. 907. The Jail Registers are official records kept by public servants in the discharge of their official duties and as such admissible under sec. 35. 1942 O.W.N. 530=A.I.R. 1943 Oudh 1. As to income-tax papers held admissible against and not in favour of the person whom they may concern, see 9 W.R. 275. As to hawazima papers, see 2 B.L.R. App. 37. See also 6 M.I.A. 88. An entry made a considerable time ago by the patwari in village papers, would be treated as an entry in a public document maintained in the course of business. 1939 R.D. 325=1939 A.W.R. (B.R.) 277. As to Bankers' Books, see Bankers' Books Evidence Act (XVIII of 1891). As to books of Post Office Savings Bank, see Act I of 1893.

SEC. 35: SCOPE.—See 43 Bom.L.R. 432=1941 P.C. 21 (P.C.). An entry in an official record is admissible if it states a relevant fact. It is not necessary for the admissibility of the entry that it should relate to a fact known to the public officer recording it. 27 S.L.R. 101=1933 Sind 317. As to admissibility of statement contained in public document, see 1925 P.C. 170=50 M.L.J. 120 (P.C.). Document neither shown to be prepared by public servant nor shown forming the act or record of public officer is admissible. 1930 A. 26. Orders of detention passed under r. 26 (1) (b) of the Defence of India Rules are not public records and therefore sec. 35 has no application. A.I.R. 1944 Lah. 33 (F.B.). The words "an entry" in sec. 35 are not intended to apply to the opinions of public officers based on or inferences drawn from the allegations made before them in the course of enquiries conducted under sec. 202, Cr. P. Code, or under O. 26, C. P. Code, 1934 L. 890. See also 165 I.C. 626=1936 L. 37. The mere fact that a public servant when making an entry in an official record acts under a misconception about his official duty, is not sufficient to take such entry by such an official out of the class referred to in sec. 35. 1946 O.W.N. 26=1946 A.L.W. (C.C.) 26=1946 A.W.R. (C.C.) 32. Upon the question whether a talukdar was a convert to Islam or was a chief of a Rajut clan, it is permissible to prove that the fact of such conversion was unknown to the district and local officers and was not ascertainable from anything to be found in official publications. 1939 O.L.R. 553=183 I.C. 662=44 C.W.N. 66=1939 P.C. 249 (P.C.). A book of copies of communications sent by the Collector to various subordinate officers, maintained in the Collector's office, that being the prevalent official practices is itself an official register within the meaning of sec. 35, and a public document under sec. 74. A certified copy of such a document is clearly admissible in evidence, and should not be rejected as being a copy of a copy. 1939 M.W.N. 841. An entry in the register of powers-of-attorney maintained by the registering officers under the Registration Act, is undoubtedly relevant under sec. 35 to prove the contents of the power-of-attorney. The abstract of the power which appears in the entry is made by the Sub-Registrar in the discharge of his official duty, and the Court is entitled to presume its correctness. 43 C.W.N. 907=70 C. L.J. 5=1939 Cal. 569.

LETTERS PASSING BETWEEN OFFICIALS BEFORE FINAL DECISION IS REACHED—ADMISSIBILITY.—The very wording of sec. 35 conveys the idea of a duty imposed upon the maker of the entry by law or his official position to record the information he possesses or has gathered in an official document of the nature described therein. In further imports that the entry will be of a permanent nature and thus excludes all such writings as are merely of an ephemeral character; and in so far as they do not incorporate the result of personal inquiries they are not intended to be used for reference in future. Another idea which runs underneath this section is that the person making the entry should be such as is invested with authority to record a decision which, so far as the matter before him is concerned, will be final. It thus excludes all views expressed before the final stage is reached and makes only those decisions relevant which constitute the final word in the matter. Hence letters which have passed between the various officials cannot be admitted under sec. 35 so as to make the remarks made therein as legal evidence in the case; and if the final conclusions arrived at are recorded in the settlement papers, those are the only documents which can be admitted in evidence. 38 P.L.R. 748=1936 L. 37. See also 1939 M.W.N. 841.

ILLUSTRATIVE CASE-LAW.—Entries in public records consequent upon a decree are admissible under sec. 35. 16 P. 258=18 P. L.T. 257=41 C.W.N. 577=1937 P.C. 69= (1937) 2 M.L.J. 631 (P.C.). The depositions of witnesses in an heirship inquiry under sec. 71 of the Bombay Land Revenue Code are inadmissible as substantive evidence relating to title but they might be used as corroborating or contradicting the witnesses examined in the case. 35 Bom.L.R. 118=144 I.C. 442=1933 B. 126. So also family traditions recorded by settlement officer. 163 I.C. 770=1936 O. 340. R. 72 of the Madras Registration Rules requires the Registrar to place on record a summary of the evidence taken by him when enquiring under sec. 41 (2), Registration Act, into the execution of a will or authority to adopt. This summary would be admissible, quantum valeat, under sec. 35. 1933 M.W.N. 1148. Where a deposition of a witness had been recorded in the ordinary way, that record and not an abstract of the evidence in the judgment, is the proper evidence of the statement, but where the Court has acted upon an oral admission and recorded in its judgment which constitutes the only official record of it, it is admissible. 1933 M. 184=142 I.C. 548; 40 L.W. 310. The report of a Municipal overseer as to when the construction of chaiya took place is inadmissible. 26 I.C. 670=12 A.L.J. 740. As to Municipal register of births and deaths, see 159 I.C. 190=1936 A.L.J. 404=1936 A. 218; 1939 R.D. 80=1939 A.W.R. (B.R.) 4; 1940 Mad. 285. Where the copy produced is that of an entry in the register of births and deaths kept by the Circle Registration Officer under para. 306 of the Police Regulations, it is a copy obtained from a public office and is a copy of a public document within the terms of the Evidence Act and is hence admissible in evidence. 1940 R.D. 6=1940 A.W.R. A recital in the order of a President of a Union Board is not admissible under sec. 35 or sec. 13 unless such President has been examined with regard to the fact mentioned in his order. 131 I.C. 654=1931 M. 487. A letter of the Government of India in which Anaesthesine is included in the list of recognised preparations is not admissible. 42 I.C. 166=32 P. W.R. 1917 (Cr.). Entries in an official book made by a forest guard and checked and initialled by the officer responsible for the correctness of the marking are entries in an official record which is admissible. 1943 N.L.J. 130. The Municipal register in which births and deaths are registered is admissible as it is kept by a public servant in the discharge of his duties. 148 I.C. 418=11 O.W.N. 416=1934 O. 167; 177 I.C. 517=1938 C. 120; 1939 A.W.R. An entry made in a Chaukidar's register of births and deaths is not admissible if it neither purports nor is

Entries in a death register are at best reliable only with regard to the date of death and the fact of death. It is not safe to rely on them for the purpose of proving the religion of a particular person in a case in which there is much conflicting evidence as to his religion. 1934 M. 630=67 M.L.J. 389. An entry in the scholars' register made by the father since deceased as regards his son's age is admissible as one made in a public register made by a public servant in the discharge of his official duty. 114 I.C. 801=1929 O. 113; 28 N.L.R. 127=152 I.C. 1042; 12 Mys.L.J. 133=39 Mys.H.C.R. 406. A school register containing an entry as to the age of a student is admissible to prove his age but much value cannot be attached to it if it is not clear on whose statement the age was recorded. 1941 Cal. 41=72 C.L.J. 208; 1941 Pesh. 38. The entries as to the age of pupils in the High School registers though they might have been merely copied from the Secondary School registers are admissible as entries made by a public servant in public or official register in the discharge of his official duty. Whether he had any special means of knowledge so as to make the entry relevant under sec. 32 (5) does not affect the admissibility of the entry under sec. 35 though it may affect its value. Sec. 35 stands by itself independently of sec. 32 (5). 186 I.C. 613=1940 N.L.J. 150=1940 Nag. 217. See also 1941 Pesh. 38. An employee in a school other than a Government or a State school is not a public servant and any entry in its register made by him is not one made in a public or official register by "a public servant" in the discharge of his official duty. Hence entries in registers of schools other than Government or State schools are not admissible. (1935 Oudh 41 R.); 1940 Rang.L.R. 481=191 I.C. 21=1940 Rang. 191. See also I.L.R. (1941) 1 Cal. 234. As a certificate of guardianship is neither a book nor a register nor a record kept by an officer in the discharge of his duties, it is not admissible under sec. 35 to prove the age of the minor. 199 I.C. 10=A.I.R. 1942 Cal. 438. See 112 I.C. 834 as to admissibility of settlement pedigree. The family pedigree which accompanied a statement by certain members of the family in an inam enquiry of 1865 and two of which were enclosures to reports by the Collector to the Board of Revenue under the Court of Wards Act are relevant and admissible in a later proceeding. 55 M. 40=139 I.C. 684=62 M.L.J. 116. See also 1939 R.D. 20=1939 A.W.R. (B.R.) 127. Sec. 36.—Maps and surveys made in India for revenue purposes are official documents prepared by competent persons and with such publicity and notice to persons interested as to be admissible and valuable evidence of the state of things at the time they are made. They are not conclusive, and may be shown to be wrong but in the absence of evidence to the contrary they may be properly judicially received in evidence as correct when made (30 I.A. 44, followed). 68 C.L.J. 293. See 77 I.C. 1048; 7 C.L.J. 415 = 2 I.C. 648; 44 Bom.L.R. 295 = 1942 Bom. 161. As to evidentiary value of Thak map, see 31 C.W.N. 472 = 1927 C. 403; 68 C.L.J. 293.

As to reliability of Rennel's map, see 56 C.L.J. 369; The maps of Rennel published in 1914 were withdrawn and the sale of copies printed in 1914 were stopped under orders of Government. They are, therefore not admissible. 72 C.L.J. 320 = 1941 Cal. 193 = 44 C.W.N. 935; 191 I.C. 824; 46 C.W.N. 218. So far as river surveys and road surveys are concerned, Rennel's maps (1769-71) are scientific and accurate ones, only the village sites shown in his map are approximate. Rennel's maps can be made the basis for adjudication of land revenue. 197 I.C. 5 = 1941 Cal. 520; 46 C.W.N. 218. SECS. 36 AND 83: PROOF OF MAPS.—A map which is not a published map generally offered for public sale nor one made under the authority of Government, is not within sec. 36. It is on the contrary within the provision of sec. 83, that maps made for the purposes of any cause must be proved to be accurate. 16 P. 258 = 41 C.W.N. 577 = 1937 P.C. 69 = (1937) 2 M.L.J. 631 (P. When the Court has to form an opinion as to a law of any country, any statement of such law contained in a book purporting to be printed or published under the authority of the Government of such country and to contain any such law, and any report of a ruling of the Courts of such country contained in a book purporting to be a report of such rulings, is relevant.

Relevancy of statements as to any law contained in law-books.

How much of a statement is to be proved.

39. When any statement of which evidence is given forms part of a longer statement, or of a conversation or part of an isolated document, or is contained in a document which forms part of a book, or of a connected series of letters or papers, evidence shall be given of so much and no more of the statement, conversation, document, book or series of letters or papers as the Court considers necessary in that particular case to the full understanding of the nature and effect of the statement, and of the circumstances under which it was made.

What evidence to be given when statement forms part of a conversation, document, book or series of letters or papers.

Judgments of Courts of Justice, when relevant.

40. The existence of any judgment, order or decree which by law prevents any Court from taking cognizance of a suit or holding a trial, is a relevant fact when the question is whether such Court ought to take cognizance of such suit or to hold such trial.

Previous judgments relevant to bar a second suit or trial.

junction of certain mouzahs named, the presumption of correctness of the diara map is in no sense rebutted by the mere fact that that particular trijunction has not been located. 1937 C. 574. A map by itself is nothing but statements made by the maker by means of lines and pictorial representation instead of by word of mouth as to the state or configuration of a particular site and the objects standing thereon. To admit in evidence a map without calling the maker thereof is the same as admitting in evidence statements made by a third party who is not called as a witness. In other words, it amounts to admitting hearsay. The Evidence Act having repealed all rules of evidence not contained in any statute or regulation, the party seeking to put any document in evidence must show under which section of that Act such evidence is admissible. A map prepared in connexion with a previous suit between the defendant and another in which there was no dispute as to the lands in dispute in the present suit, is not admissible in evidence under sec. 13 or sec. 32 or sec. 36. 49 C.W.N. 791=1945 Cal. 492.

Sec. 39.—Sec. 39 cannot be invoked for the purpose of letting in a confession in respect of which the bar created by secs. 24, 25 and 26, has not been removed by sec. 27. 10 L. 283=1929 L. 344 (F.B.). Only pertinent and not all recitals in the admitted document are admissible. 1930 A. 299. Although the entries in books of account are relevant to the extent provided by this section, yet such a book is not by itself relevant to raise an inference from the absence of any entry. 3 I.C. 291 (10 C. 1024; 7 C.L.R. 256; 30

1. Sec. 40 applies to a case in which the Court has jurisdiction to decide a matter and one party says it should not do so because that matter has been decided before. 6 C. 171, held no good law in view of. 23 C. 533 (P.C.); 19 A. 277 (P.C.) and 25 C. 522 (P.C.); 33 C.W.N. 795=1929 C. 374 (F.B.). The actual decision and the findings arrived at in a previous judgment cannot be used as evidence to decide the points which are at issue in a different case except in cases coming under secs. 40 to 42. 1933 P. 690. Sec. 40 does not lay down that the judgment must prevent the Court from taking cognizance of the entire suit as against all the parties. If the judgment prevents the Court from taking cognizance of the suit so far as it relates to some of the parties thereto, then also sec. 40 would apply. Accordingly a judgment passed in a previous suit against some of the defendants is admissible in evidence under the section in a subsequent suit filed against them as well as others. 45 C. W.N. 420. As to evidentiary value of judgments, see 19 S.L.R. 376; 43 C.L.J. 135=1926 C. 698 (decision in previous rent suit admissible); decision as to age in guardianship proceedings—Admissibility in suit by ward for property, see 7 I.C. 505; as to admissibility of decision of Probate Court upholding adoption, 38 B. 272; judgment of Probate Court on question of status, see (1910) 1 U.B.R. 61=10 I.C. 987; 8 P.L. It is relevant though not conclusive. 8 P. 783=1929 P. 739. See also 1938 Sind 198 (Binding nature of finding of fact in previous judgment). An award or compromise made in a Criminal Court assigning certain property for maintenance is not admissible in a later Civil suit to prove title. 21 Pat. 601=23 P.L.T. 354=A.I.R. 1942 Pat. 432.

SECS. 40-43.—Decree for confirmation of possession not conclusive proof of actual possession. 15 P. 336=165 I.C. 289=1936 P. 537. See also 19 N.L.J. 285. On a question whether a judgment passed by the British Indian Association in 1859 which had not been filed in the Court of the Financial Commissioner within 6 months after passing of the Oudh Estates Act was admissible it was held, that secs. 40 to 43 are not applicable so as to make it relevant. 1942 O.W. SECS. 40 TO 43.—FINDINGS ON SAME FACTS BY CIVIL COURT IF RELEVANT BEFORE CRIMINAL COURT.—A finding on certain facts by civil Court in action in personam is not relevant before the criminal Court when it is called upon to give a finding on the same facts and vice versa. To hold that when a party has been able to satisfy a civil Court as to the justice of his claim and has got a decree which is finally binding upon the parties it would not be open to criminal Courts to go behind the findings of the civil Court is to place the latter without any valid reason in a much higher position than what it actually occupies in the system of administration and to make it master not only of cases which it is called upon to adjudicate but also of cases which it is not called upon to determine and over which it has really no control. There is no reason why the decision of the civil Court particularly in an action in personam should be allowed to have greater sanctity. 217 I.C. 284=46 Cr.L.J. 296=A. I. R. 1945 Lah. 23 (F.B.). A previous judgment between the same parties even if it does not operate as res judicata is good evidence which cannot be ignored. 48 P.L.R. 195.

SEC. 41.—On this section, see 2 M.H.C. R. 276; 14-M.I.A. 367; 6 B. 703; 7 W.R. C.G.M.—295

338 (F.B.). The section applies to the foreign judgments of a competent Court no less than to domestic judgments. Secunderabad is for the purpose of insolvency, a foreign Court and an order of adjudication passed by the Court at Secunderabad is operative in British India. 54 M. 727=61 M.L.J. 774. See also 43 L.W. 75=1936 M. 197. A declaration of a legal right is a different thing from a declaration of a legal character. The word "character" means status, it is something more than a mere right. The declaration of a person's right operates as against a particular person or group of persons against whom the right is claimed, whereas a man's status is something which defines his position not in relation to any particular person or group of persons but in relation to the rest of the world; his status distinguishes him from the rest of the world. To say that a person is not a partner of a firm is not to declare his status or legal character, it is merely to declare his position with respect to the particular firm. Therefore, a finding of the Insolvency Court that a certain person is not a partner of the insolvent firm does not confer upon or take away from him any legal character within the meaning of sec. 41 and hence is not a judgment in rem. 190 I. C. 537=1940 Cal. 225. What the law or custom in a foreign state is, is a question of fact to be proved by evidence, and there can be no better evidence as to the state of the customs prevailing in that foreign country than a judgment of the highest tribunal in that state. Though the judgment as a judgment cannot bind the parties to a suit in British India, it is sufficiently cogent evidence against the parties who are governed by the law of that state. I.L.R. (1942) Bom. 467=44 Bom.L.R. 358=A.I.R. 1942 Bom. 185.

JUDGMENT IN REM AND IN PERSONAM.—There is a board distinction between the effect of a judgment in rem and a judgment in personam. The point adjudicated upon in a judgment in rem is always as to the status of the res and is conclusive against the world as to that status, whereas in a judgment in personam the point whatever it may be, which is adjudicated upon (it being as to the status of the res), is conclusive only between the parties or privies. 22 S.L.R. 165=1928 Sind 121.

JUDGMENT IN REM.—No Court can pronounce a judgment in rem outside the state in which the Court exercises jurisdiction unless such judgment affects either a thing situate, or a person domiciled, within such state. Where the Court of a state gives a

Such judgment, order or decree is conclusive proof—that any legal character, which it confers, accrued at the time when such judgment, order or decree came into operation ; that any legal character, to which, it declares any such person to be entitled, accrued to that person at the time when such judgment, [order or decree]¹ declares it to have accrued to that person ; that any legal character which it takes away from any such person ceased at the time from which such judgment, [order or decree]¹ declared that it had ceased or should cease ; and that anything to which it declares any person to be so entitled was the property of that person at the time from which such judgment, [order or decree]¹ declares that it had been or should be his property.

judgment affecting the status of a person domiciled within its territory, such judgment is treated by the comity of nations as analogous to a judgment in rem. There is no rule of international law which requires a British Indian Court to accept the judgment of the Supreme Court of His Britannic Majesty, Alexandria, as the law of domicile of a deceased, which is the domestic law of British India, as binding outside the limits of that Court's jurisdiction. Sec. 41 cannot be read as going further than the rule of international law applicable elsewhere. The section clearly deals with what are known as judgments in rem though that expression is not used in the section. The words "competent Court" in sec. 41 mean the Court of any country which is competent to pass a judgment in rem. I.L.R. (1938) B. 529=1938 B. 394. Wadia, J.—In order to be a judgment in rem binding on the world, there must be a finding on status which is not only the foundation of the judgment but is necessary for it. It cannot be conclusive if it relates to a matter which need not have been controverted or which was not material or which only came collaterally into question or which was only incidentally cognizable. The only judgment in rem as to status absolutely is the judgment pronounced not only according to the law of domicile by the Court of domicile. I.L.R. (1938) B. 529=40 Bom.L.R. 571=1938 B. 394. See also (1939) 1 M.L.J. 499. No judgment except that passed by a Court in the exercise of probate, matrimonial, admiralty or insolvency jurisdiction upon any matters indicated in sec. 41, can have the effect of a judgment in rem and therefore a judgment holding that A is not the adopted son of B is not conclusive against the whole world. 26 A.L.J. 797=1928 A. 395. In order that declaration of title to specific thing should have the conclusive character as against the whole world, it is not enough, to show that under the judgment of the Insolvency Court, one has become entitled to a specific thing, but his title to such a thing must have been declared not as against any specified person but absolutely. A decree declaring that A is entitled to a debt is not an absolute declaration but only made against a specified person; so it is not conclusive proof of title to a debt. 54 M. 601=1931 M. 541=61 M.L.J. 229 (S.B.). The legal characters that can be conferred or taken away in the exercise of the jurisdiction mentioned in sec. 41 do not include the state of being a partner. 22 S.L.R. 105=110 I.C. 730 (2). A decree granted by a Court not exercising matrimonial jurisdiction, in a suit under sec. 42 of the Specific Relief Act, that the plaintiff in that suit was no longer the wife of the defendant is not a judgment in rem to which sec. 41 of the Evidence Act will apply. Such a decree is one which falls under sec. 43, Specific Relief Act. 36 Bom. L.R. 1021. So also a decision in a suit for restitution of conjugal rights. 11 R. 198=1933 R. 250. So also an order in lunacy. 56 M. 904=1933 M. 624=65 M.L.J. 279. But it is still relevant and binding upon the parties thereto and those who claim under them just like any other judgment of a Civil Court. 65 M.L.J. 279. A judgment inter partes in a heirship proceeding is not a judgment in rem so as to be binding on a stranger. 1933 B. 126=35 Bom.L.R. 118. Decision as to custom—Relevancy. See 40 P.L.R. 29=1938 L. 309.

PROBATE AND ADMINISTRATION.—Judgment in Probate Court is a judgment in rem and binding on all parties and is final. 9 P. 698. As to the finality of order granting letters of administration on condition of appellant executing bond, see 43 C.W.N. 824. A judgment of the Probate Court is inadmissible in a proceeding under sec. 193, Penal Code, for perjury committed in a testamentary suit. 76 I.C. 417=1924 C. 104; 8 P.L. T. 510=1927 P. 61; 5 Mys.L.J. 107. Grant of probate of will, value of, as proving execution of will. 5 P. 777. As to the legal effect of grant of letters of administration, see 4 R. 251=1926 R. 202. Such grant is no bar on matters not in issue in administration proceedings. 1924 C. 104.

The decision of the Admiralty Court restoring the certificate of an officer of a ship which had been suspended is a judgment in rem so far as the status and certificate of that officer is concerned. The decision is not binding on a person who was not a party to that suit. 1939 Sind 349.

ORDER OF INSOLVENCY COURT.—An order adjudicating a person as an insolvent and vesting his property in the Official Receiver

Relevancy and effect of judgments, orders of decrees other than those mentioned in sec. 41.

42. Judgments, orders, or decrees other than those mentioned in sec. 41 are relevant if they relate to matters of a public nature relevant to the enquiry; but such judgments, orders or decrees are not conclusive proof of that which they state.

Illustration.

A sues B for trespass on his land. B alleges the existence of a public right of way over the land, which A denies.

The existence of a decree in favour of the defendant, in a suit by A against C for a trespass on the same land, in which C alleged the existence of the same right of way, is relevant, but it is not conclusive proof that the right of way exists.

Judgments, etc., other than those mentioned in sections 40 to 42 when relevant.

43. Judgments, orders or decrees, other than those mentioned in sections 40, 41 and 42, are irrelevant, unless the existence of such judgment, order or decree is a fact in issue, or is relevant under some

no doubt operates as a judgment in rem but the grounds on which the order is based have no such effect. 110 I.C. 730 (1)=1928 Sind 121. Refusing to adjudicate a person a bankrupt is not a judgment in rem. See 46 M.L.J. 589=1924 M. 622. So also order vacating order of adjudication against one partner. 1928 Sind 121. But an order of adjudication is a judgment in rem. 46 M.L.J. 589. A foreign judgment declaring that a person is the adopted son of a Hindu widow is binding on the Courts in British India in a suit relating to immovable property in British India belonging to that widow. It is true that the judgment of the foreign Court declaring the party to be the adopted son is not a judgment in rem under sec. 41 but inasmuch as the Courts of British India recognise the validity of the declaration of status by a foreign Court in a matter of succession to movable property in British India, because the personal law applies, the same should be recognised in a matter of succession to immovable property where the law requires the personal law to be followed. Treating the personal law as the lex situs, the Courts of the country of domicile are best able to decide questions of status. The comity of nations treat such a declaration by a Court affecting the status of a person domiciled within its territory as being analogous to a judgment in rem. 49 L.W. 287=1939 M.W.N. 180=(1939) 1 M. SEC. 42.—On this section, see 23 C. 533 (P.C.); 25 C. 522 (P.C.); 19 A. 277 (P.C.) and 1929 C. 374 (F.B.); 163 I.C. 924. When a question of status is in issue, judgments and orders between the parties in mutation proceedings, succession certificate cases, rent suits for possessions, etc., are admissible in evidence. They are of high evidentiary value and constitute proof sufficient to shift the burden. 1924 N. 387. A judgment in which a custom has been judicially recognised is admissible as evidence of the custom. 3 S.L.R. 5=1 I.C. 937 (16 A. 379, R.). Previous judgment relating to wakf property is relevant in a suit bearing on the property though not between the same parties. It is true that it is not conclusive proof but it can be used to add to the probative value of the evidence led in the suit.

36 P.L.R. 106. Judgments are not under sec. 42, relevant evidence of the facts mentioned in them. 1940 R.D. 402=1940 A. W.R. (B.R.) 214. The probative value of a finding in a previous suit between the parties depends upon the nature of the finding and of the issues involved in that suit and in the subsequent suit. 19 Pat. 172=185 I.C. 685=1940 P.W.N. 317=21 Pat.L.T. 577=1940 Pat. 341. The judgment of a Criminal Court and the depositions of the witnesses therein are inadmissible in a civil suit, to prove the liability of defendants. 106 P.R. 1915=32 I.C. 18. See also 117 P.R. 1912=16 I.C. 491. On a question as to the caste of a particular family, evidence of members and decisions in previous litigation are relevant. 93 I.C. 705=1925 M. 497. A previous judgment is relevant under sec. 42 for the purpose of proving a custom. 190 I.C. 35=1940 Pesh. 31. Judgments not between parties are inadmissible. See 12 A.L.J. 837=25 I.C. 30. Also 4 I.C. 997 and 8 I.C. 897; 25 B. 433 (a copy of a judgment of a Swiss Court was held inadmissible against third party). The decision of the coroner under the Coroner's Act is not a decision, but a prima facie opinion and stands on no higher footing than an order of commitment to the Sessions. It is not a judgment, much less a judgment inter partes; nor can it be admitted as an opinion since it represents the opinion of laymen often arrived at even before the police investigation is complete. It is therefore a piece of relevant evidence admissible under S. 42, or any other section. 47 Bom.L.R. 997. It is settled law, so far as the Patna High Court is concerned, that the judgment of a Magistrate under S. 144, Cr P. Code, is not evidence of the possession of the party in whose favour the proceeding terminated. The report of a Magistrate deputed by the Court to make a local inquiry is only evidence of the fact that the Magistrate was deputed to make the inquiry and that, on his inquiry, he came to the conclusion that a certain party was in possession. The report itself is not evidence of possession. 24 Pat. 379=A.I. R. 1945 Pat. 453.

(a) A and B separately sue C for a libel which reflects upon each of them. C in each case says that the matter alleged to be libellous is true, and the circumstances are such that it is probably true in each case, or in neither.

A obtains a decree against C for damages on the ground that C failed to make out his justification. The fact is irrelevant as between B and C.

(b) A prosecutes B for adultery with C, A's wife.

B denies that C is A's wife, but the Court convicts B of adultery.

Afterwards, C is prosecuted for bigamy in marrying B during A's lifetime. C says that she never was A's wife.

The judgment against B is irrelevant as against C.

(c) A prosecutes B for stealing a cow from him. B is convicted.

A afterwards sues C for the cow, which B had sold to him before his conviction. As between A and C, the judgment against B is irrelevant.

(d) A has obtained a decree for the possession of land against B. C, B's son, murders A in consequence.

The existence of the judgment is relevant, as showing motive for a crime.

¹[(e) A is charged with theft and with having been previously convicted of theft. The previous conviction is relevant as a fact in issue.]

²[(f) A is tried for the murder of B. The fact that B prosecuted A for libel and that A was convicted and sentenced is relevant under section 8 as showing the motive for the fact in issue.]

A judgment in land registration proceedings is no evidence of the facts mentioned therein, more particularly when the proceedings were not between parties to a subsequent suit, in which the judgment is sought to be admitted in evidence. 16 P. 84=167 I.C. 152=17 P.L.T. 769=1937 P. 73. As to judgment in guardianship proceedings, see 1941 M.W.N. 237=(1941) 1 M.L.J. 492. A judgment is not admissible to prove the truth of the fact which it states, nor is any fact stated as part of the reasoning in arriving at the fact in issue, evidence of the truth of that fact. But in cases where the right of a party has already been concluded by previous judgment, that fact can be proved by the production of the judgment, since the existence of that judgment itself is relevant. 1938 N.L.J. 466. Though the recitals and findings in a judgment not inter partes are not admissible, such a judgment and decree are admissible to prove the fact that a decree was made in a suit between certain parties and for finding out for what lands the suit had been decreed. 44 C.W. N. 935.

QUESTION OF LIABILITY.—DECISION OF CIVIL COURT.—Where a person is charged with criminal breach of trust as regards certain items and the question of civil liability about the same items has been determined by a competent Civil Court, the judgment of that Court would be the best evidence of the civil rights of the parties and hence a relevant fact. 41 B. 1=33 I.C. 633=18 Bom.L.R. 195.

OPINIONS OF THIRD PERSONS, WHEN RELEVANT.

45. When the Court has to form an opinion upon a point of foreign law or Suits not inter partes—Finding of fact in one of—Admissibility in evidence of, in another in which that fact is in issue. 56 M. L.J. 562=56 I.A. 119 (P.C.). In a suit for damages for malicious prosecution, the judgment of the Criminal Court can only be used to establish the fact that an acquittal has taken place as a fact in issue in the civil suit. The grounds upon which that acquittal was based are inadmissible. 56 M. 641=1933 M. 429=65 M.L.J. 146. See also 41 Mys.H.C.R. 283. Sec. 43 excludes all judgments as irrelevant in a former suit if they are not inter partes unless the existence of such judgment is a fact in issue or is relevant under some other provision of the Act. The existence of the judgment may be relevant but not the decision of the judge or the opinion expressed by him. It is immaterial if the defendant in both cases is the same and the decision of the Privy Council in 22 C. 533 is no authority for the general proposition that a judgment against a party can always be used against him in a subsequent suit by another person. (56 I.A. 119, Ref. to.) 34 C.W.N. 1113. See also 59 C.L.J. 320=1934 C. 788. The decision of an Income-tax Officer holding that an assessee was separate from his joint family and had separate business is a mere opinion and is irrelevant in a civil suit involving a dispute as to whether particular property is separate property or joint family property. 19 N.L.J. 287.

SEC. 44.—Principle of sec. 44 cannot be extended to cases of gross negligence. 64 I.A. 17=I.L.R. 1937 M. 263=(1937) 1 M. L.J. 113 (P.C.). (45 M.L.J. 324, overruled). Sec. 44 would apply in any proceeding, civil or criminal, if the decree sought to be challenged is proved by the adverse party. It cannot be said that it applies only in a suit for revocation. A judgment in a probate suit is no doubt a judgment in rem, but it can be contested on the ground of fraud or collusion. A stranger to a suit in which a decree in rem has been passed may impeach that decree for fraud and have it set aside if the fraud be proved. Under sec. 44 it is not necessary for the party against whom a judgment is set up to bring a separate suit to have it set aside; he may show in suit or proceeding in which it is set up against him that it was obtained by fraud. It would be open to a party offering evidence of forgery of a will to prove that the probate decree was obtained by fraud if it were set up against him by the other side, instead of admitting the probate and the title of the executor. I.L.R. (1940) Bom. 403=42 Bom.L.R. 231=1940 Bom. 131. See also 49 C.W. N. 354. A grant of a probate is not a decree. It is not a judgment or order and hence S. 44 has no application. The grant cannot be revoked except by the Court which granted it. Therefore it is not open to a party to adduce evidence to show in another proceeding that the grant of probate was obtained by fraud and that the will in respect of which it was granted is a forgery. 22 Pat. 75=24 Pat.L.T. 390. SECS. 45 AND 46: EXPERT EVIDENCE.—Who are experts. See 32 C. 759. The fact that an expert is not acquainted with the characters of the language and can neither read nor write them will not make him incompetent as an expert in handwriting. 160 I.C. 264=1936 A.L.J. 317=1936 A. 165. How differs from ordinary evidence. See 3 N.L.R. 1. When evidence. 1924 N. 183. The basis of the expert's opinion should be placed before the Court. 56 A. 428=1934 A. 273. Value of experts' opinion when one expert is contradicted by another. 34 P.L.R. 788 (2)=1933 L. 885. But depositions of expert witnesses as to the result of their opinions and as to the effect of them, does not come within the domain of expert evidence at all. 1933 P. C. 26=64 M.L.J. 193 (P.C.). Value to be attached to such evidence, see 11 Bom. 89; 29 Cal. 32; 15 Cal. 589; 34 P.L.R. 719=1933 L. 561. Expert evidence not based on well-defined inexorable laws of nature cannot be taken as decisive—Especially when there is direct evidence opposed to it. 96 I.C. 641=1926 L. 313. See also 29 O.C. 1=1925 Oudh 497. As to admissibility of opinion evidence of persons not experts. See 18 P.R. 1915 (Cr.); 12 P. R. 1915 (Cr.); 1930 A. 589 (not admissible). As to Government experts, see 147 P.L.R. 1912=13 Cr.L.J. 563. The opinion of the Imperial Serologist is entitled to great weight. 34 Cr.L.J. 1009=1933 O. 265. Validity of conviction based on expert evidence. 2 A.L.J. 444; 39 C. 245; 39 M. 169=22 M.L.J. 270; 18 P.W.R. 1912. "Expert"—Meaning of. See 1930 A. 587. The evidence of an expert witness has to be tested like that of any other witness, for even expert witnesses are liable to make mistakes. At the same time, if a person with special professional qualifications, such as a doctor or an engineer, is called in to make professional examination of a person or a building, and is then asked to give the results of his examination as evidence in Court, it is hardly fair to treat him as being on the same footing as those persons who may be said to make a profession of giving evidence nor is it necessary to suppose that he must necessarily be suffering from undue bias merely because he has professional qualifications. 1940 Lah. 505. Generally speaking, it is not permissible to call a witness to explain to the Court what a document means unless such witness is an expert. It is for the Court to ascertain what the document means though, no doubt, a witness may suggest methods by which an intelligent meaning can be given to the document. I.L.R. (1939) Bom. 434=41 Bom.L.R. 548=1939 Bom. 339. The opinion of an expert that one document has been typewritten on the same machine as another document is not admissible. The Court may ask the witness points in favour of the view whether the two documents have or have not been typewritten on the same machine but must come to its own conclusion and not treat such assistance as an expert opinion a relevant fact in itself. 1935 A. 162. But evidence as to the fact that the typewriters used in the typing of the various exhibits have certain defect which are clear from the typing of these exhibits can be competently given by an expert who has had an opportunity of examining the documents, though the Court is entitled to draw its own conclusion as to the source and authenticity of the documents from the whole evidence in the case. 1933 A. 498. See also 1933 A.L.J. 799=1933 A. 690. Where the expert is not examined and the other party has had no opportunity of cross-examining him, the report of the expert cannot be admitted in evidence. 141 I.C. 767=1933 P. 159; 1935 A. 142. But where the lower Court had based its decision on the opinion given sworn testimony in support of the report, held, that the objection to the evidence being received could not be taken for the first time in revision. 35 P.L.R. 109=1934 L. 230. See also 11 P. 782=1932 P. 352. Where the so-called "expert witnesses" give no data in support of their opinions their evidence should be rejected. 1931 L. 364. See also 131 I.C. 771=1931 P.C. 189 (P.C.). The evidence of experts must be given in the ordinary way. Subject to certain exceptions—those exceptions being amongst others the certificates of the Imperial Serologist touching the matter of blood stains and of the Chemical Examiner, which are made admissible in evidence by themselves—the opinion of an expert must be given orally and a report merely or certificate by him cannot possibly be evidence. Unless he goes into the witness-box and gives oral evidence, there can be no cross-examination of the expert at all. The opinion of the Director of Agriculture is certainly the opinion of an expert, but the evidence, being only documentary is clearly inadmissible. I.L.R. 1937 M. 764=1937 M. 407=(1937) 1 M.L.J. 341. Telephony is a science or art and witnesses' knowledge of the telephone and of engineering generally places them in a special position and makes them competent to express an opinion upon articles and matters which are largely in use in the department of the telephone and of engineering generally. The evidence of these witnesses is relevant and admissible as opinion of experts and the expert evidence of those witnesses is entitled to very considerable weight if they hold diploma in telephony and engineering and also have a great experience. 184 I.C. 36=12 R. S. 83=1939 Sind 245. Though a doctor is in a better position to form an opinion about the age of a person than a layman, his statement is no more than an opinion and could not amount to legal proof of the age of the person concerned. 1939 A.L.J. 98=1939 All. 708.

CROSS EXAMINATION OF EXPERTS.—The cross-examination of a witness is 'acting' and not 'pleading' and hence there is no objection in specific cases for an expert being allowed under special power of attorney to be employed for the cross-examination of an expert in the same line of business on the other side. 1942 N.L.J. 449.

ILLUSTRATIVE CASES — COMPARISON OF HANDWRITING.—To make the evidence of a hand-writing expert admissible, it is not necessary that the handwriting should be actually compared in Court. It is enough if the documents admittedly in the accused's hand-writing are shown to him in open Court and he expresses his opinions thereon. 16 Cr.L.J. 703=30 I.C. 751 (M.); 16 C.W.N. 812=39 C. 606. See also 2 A.L.J. 444; 39 C. 245; 2 Weir 759 (Sub-Registrar not expert. 2 Weir 760). There is nothing in the Evidence Act which requires the evidence of an expert in any particular case, e.g., the evidence of a handwriting expert on disputed signatures, to be corroborated before it can be acted upon as sufficient proof of what the expert has stated. The question as to how much reliance a Court may place on the statement of any witness depends on the facts and circumstances of the particular case. The Court must satisfy itself as to the value of the evidence of the expert in the same way as it must satisfy itself of the value of other evidence. The Court should be careful not to delegate its authority to a third party, and should itself be satisfied about the genuineness or otherwise of a disputed signature and not hold it genuine or forged merely because an expert has given his opinion. I.L.R. (1944) Kar. 305=1945 Sind 4. A comparison of handwriting is to be used with great care and caution and especially in a criminal case when a large quantity of apparently different handwriting is under comparison. 39 C. 606=16 C.W.N. 812; 1926 P. 575 (thumb-impression); 29 C. 1; 1925 O. 413. See also 45 C. 60=21 C.W.N. 1076=42 I. C. 484. A comparison of handwriting is at all times, as a mode of proof, hazardous and inconclusive and especially when it is made by one not conversant with the subject and without such guidance as might be derived from the arguments of counsel and the evidence of experts. A comparison of writing has consequently been deemed a mode of ascertaining the truth which ought to be used with very great caution. 49 C. 235=26 C.W.N. 113=65 I.C. 774. The rejection even in toto of an expert's opinion would not exonerate the Court from the duty of coming to an independent finding on the question of an authorship of handwriting; the Court has to examine the opinion and come to its own decision. The most important things are to examine the general characteristics, formation of letters, fixed pen habits and mannerisms, and discern the identity of the writer. The identity or resemblance in handwriting has to be found out on the value of the effect of various considerations arising from individual characteristics and idiosyncracies which have been embodied in technical language of experts. 169 I.C. 977=38 Cr.L.J. 818=1937 C. 99 (S.B.). The evidence of persons acquainted with the handwriting of a person by whom the document is supposed to be written is admissible, though they are not experts. 18 P.R. 1915 (Cr.)=28 I. C. 722. See also 147 P.L.R. 1912=15 I.C. 979; 7 P.L.T. 507=1925 P. 787. In the case of a disputed handwriting or signature a Court is not incompetent to use its own eyes for the purpose of deciding whether certain hand-writings or signatures placed before it are similar or not. A Court should not be deprived of the function for which it exists, namely, of deciding disputed facts placed before it. The opinion of experts is only a piece of evidence, but the opinion of the judge is the decision in the case. A judge has to be satisfied that he is entitled to take such assistance upon evidence as is available in the circumstances of the case. I.L.R. 1937 N. 382=20 N. L. J. 139. Value of expert opinion as to signature in language which expert cannot read or write. 1933 P. 559. See also 1936 A.L.J. 317=1936 A. 155. In a case of forgery the only chief evidence being an expert's examination of the forged documents as compared with the other documents alleged to be in the handwriting of the accused, the other documents must be strictly proved to be in his handwriting. 36 M. 159=22 M.L.J. 270. A mere statement therefore by a witness that it is in the handwriting of the accused is no evidence if he is not able to say how long ago they were written. 36 M. 159. In arriving at a conclusion of the authorship of the forged document, the expert should show marked peculiarities in the handwriting of the accused, which are re-produced in the forged document and when the writing has no such peculiarities, the comparison is of no consequence and cannot be relied on. Also the fact that the disputed samples are put separately from the standard ones for the examination lessens its usefulness. 36 M. 159. A conviction cannot be based on an expert's comparison, if it is not supported by corroborative evidence. 36 M. 159. Where the statement of a person does not show that he is an 'expert' in the art of handwriting, his evidence can be ruled out as being inadmissible. 31 Punj.L.R. 109=1930 L. 336. Where a handwriting expert was privately consulted by a party before he was produced in Court and he was produced as his opinion was favourable to that party much importance cannot be attached to his evidence. 39 P.L.R. (J. & K.) 54.

FINGER-PRINT.—If a finger-print expert has not been cross-examined as to the grounds, of his opinion and as to the test to which he had put a particular finger-print, the weight to be attached to such witness's evidence cannot be diminished by applying to it, considerations to which the witness's attention was never directed. 21 Cr. L. J. 257=55 I.C. 273 (P.); 35 C.W.N. 863=1931 C. 441. See also 97 I.C. 335=1926 P. 575; 30 C.W.N. 373=1926 C. 531. A court is not bound to accept the evidence of an expert, such as a finger-print expert; even though there are no special reasons for not accepting it. The expert, however, must be given an opportunity of explaining to the Court the reasons for his opinion, as it is only after hearing the expert's reasons and elucidation that the Court would be in a position to express a sound opinion whether or not the expert's opinion is satisfactory. 53 L.W. 396=(1941) 1 M.L.J. 475. The value of the expert evidence depends largely on the cogency of the reasons on which it is based. In general, it cannot be the basis of conviction unless it is corroborated, by other evidence. 1936 A.L.J. 317=1936 A. 165. If in a case of denial of the execution of a document the direct evidence of the witnesses is of a very unsatisfactory nature, the Court can rightly rely on the opinion of a finger-print expert. 42 P.L.R. (J. & K.) 343. Conviction based on the sole testimony of finger-print expert though not safe yet legal. 1928 P. 129=6 P. 305. It is going too far to say that the Court must insist upon corroboration of the evidence of a finger-print expert. The Court cannot hold a person guilty merely because an expert comes forward and says that in his opinion the accused must be guilty. The Court must satisfy itself as to the value of the evidence of the expert in the same way as it must satisfy itself of the value of other evidence. The Court has to rely on the expert upon two distinct points, first of all, on the question of similarity between the marks; and secondly on the point which is one for expert opinion, whether it is possible to find the finger-prints or thumb-impressions of two individuals corresponding in as many points of resemblance as are shown to exist between the impressions found in the case before the Court and those of the accused. When the expert tells the Court that it is impossible to find so many characteristics identical in the finger-prints of two persons as are found in the case, and when that statement entirely agrees with what one has read on the subject in scientific books, the Court need not hesitate in accepting the opinion. 60 B. 187=38 Bom.L.R. 160=1936 B. 151. Where the defendant is illiterate and the genuineness of a paper said to have been executed by him in dispute and the decision of the question depends upon the genuineness of the finger-print the parties should be allowed if they want to examine experts. 141 I.C. 767=1933 P. 159. It is quite clear that the science, if it could be so called of foot prints has not yet progressed very far. But there is no doubt whatever that evidence of similarity of the impressions of the foot, shod or unshod, given by a foot-print expert is admitted by the Courts. Such evidence comes under the head of circumstantial evidence. It is not the opinion of the expert that is of any importance but the facts that the expert has noticed. A person who has made a study of the prints made by the human foot is better qualified to notice points of similarity or dissimilarity than one who has made no such study. He is able to lay these points before the Court, and from his evidence the Court draws its own conclusion. 1937 M. W.N. 874=46 L.W. 477=1937 M. 951.

FOOT-PRINT EXPERT.—The opinion of a foot-print expert should not be taken as conclusive. The Judge must form his own opinion with regard to the identity of the foot-print. The expert's opinion is valuable but it must be supported by statements of facts, the accuracy or otherwise of which can be verified by the Judge. 1940 M.W.N. 761=52 L. W. 198=1941 Mad. 88. See also 1942 Sind 11. Experts in foot-prints are not recognised by the Evidence Act; but a Magistrate is undoubtedly entitled to take into consideration the evidence of a person who has seen a foot-print and taken the foot-print of the accused and found that they are very similar. Such evidence is not, however, sufficient to bring home the offence to the accused in the absence of further knowledge regarding the differences between one foot and another. 55 L.W. 231 (1)=1942 Mad. 452 (2). In a criminal trial if the Court is to attach importance to evidence of footmarks alleged to be those of the shoes of the accused, it is not enough to show that the footmarks tally with the accused's shoes. The evidence must go further and show that the marks have some peculiarity which is found in the shoes of the accused and which would not be found in most other shoes; unless this is shown, the evidence is inadequate. Further, unless the circumstances in which the footmarks were discovered are known or disclosed, evidence of the marks must be held to be unreliable. 45 Bom.L.R. 884.

THUMB-IMPRESSION.—The question of identity of thumb-mark is a question of fact and the evidence of the expert is only a guide to

Illustrations.

(a) The question is, whether the death of A was caused by poison.

The opinion of experts as to the symptoms produced by the poison by which A is supposed to have died, are relevant.

(b) The question is, whether A, at the time of doing a certain act, was, by reason of unsoundness of mind, incapable of knowing the nature of the act, or that he was doing what was either wrong or contrary to law.

The opinions of experts upon the question whether the symptoms exhibited by A commonly show unsoundness of mind, and whether such unsoundness of mind usually renders persons incapable of knowing the nature of the acts which they do, or of knowing that what they do is either wrong or contrary to law, are relevant.

(c) The question is, whether a certain document was written by A. Another document is produced which is proved or admitted to have been written by A.

The opinions of experts on the question whether the two documents were written by the same person or by different persons, are relevant.

Facts bearing upon opinion of experts.

46. Facts, not otherwise relevant, are relevant if they support or are inconsistent with the opinions of experts, when such opinions are relevant.

Illustrations.

(a) The question is, whether A was poisoned by a certain poison.

The fact that other persons, who were poisoned by that poison, exhibited certain symptoms which experts affirm or deny to be the symptoms of that poison, is relevant.

(b) The question is, whether an obstruction to a harbour is caused by a certain sea-wall.

The fact that other harbours similarly situated in other respects, but where there were no such sea-walls, began to be obstructed at about the same time is, relevant.

47. When the Court has to form an opinion as to the person by whom any the discretion of the Court. 9 Mys.L.J. 444. If the finger-prints are clear enough to sustain an argument, there is no reason why an argument by way of deduction should not be as sure a foundation for a conclusion and it may be a better one than any based on direct evidence. There is nothing in the so-called science of finger-print or the qualifications of an expert in it which need deter a Court from applying its own eyes and its own mind to the evidence and verifying the results submitted to it by the witness. 46 M. 715=69 I.C. 374; 9 P.R. (Cr.) 1914=27 I.C. 203. If a Court wishes to admit in evidence a report of a thumb-impression expert, then the Court should insist on the production of the expert as a witness in the case. Else, the report does not by itself become evidence. 1935 A.W.R. 76=1935 A. 142. Taking thumb-impression of accused in Court for purpose of comparison is legal. 50 M. 462=53 M.L.J. 597.

PALM IMPRESSIONS are akin to finger-impressions and expert evidence relating thereto should on the whole be admitted rather than excluded. 52 B. 223=1928 B. 158.

PHOTOGRAPHS.—Where the question of legitimacy arises, photographs of the putative father and son to prove resemblance are admissible. 13 I.C. 678=15 C.L.J. 621 (On appeal 47 I.C. 513=45 C. 878). As to admissibility of photographs in evidence, see 131 I.C. 771=1931 P.C. 189 (P.C.).

SECS. 45 AND 49: GAMBLING.—Gambling cannot be considered to be either an art or a science within the meaning of sec. 45 so as to entitle a police officer to go into the witness-box and speak as an expert that in his view, based on experience in other cases, certain harmless documents such as slips, which he calls betting slips are instruments of gaming. Under section 49 a police officer might give evidence that he had had a long experience amongst people who indulged in satta gambling in a particular district, C.C.M.—296 and from that experience supported by instances which he should be prepared to give so as to establish his means of knowledge, he was satisfied that a system or code prevailed among such persons, and he might then express an opinion (which would be relevant under the section) that the slips in question were prepared in accordance with that system or code and had a certain meaning. But he is not entitled merely to express the opinion that unintelligible documents found in the room of a man charged with gambling must be records of gambling transactions. It is for the Court to decide what the documents mean. 39 Bom.L.R. 613.

TECHNICAL WORKS.—Technical works cannot be used to refute an expert witness's opinion unless the passages to be used are put in cross-examination to the witness for him to explain them if he can. 22 C.W.N. 745=46 I.C. 593 [23 C. 1 (P.C.) Ref.].

OPINION ON MEDICAL MATTERS.—Expert medical opinion of a Surgeon who conducted post mortem examination is relevant. 12 I.C. 98=12 Cr.L.J. 485. A doctor's opinion on the point of a person's age is entitled to greater weight than that of any other person. 10 O.W.N. 1273=1934 O. 32.

TRADE MARK.—Similarity of trade-mark is a matter for the Court. 49 A. 92=99 I.C. 353.

FOREIGN LAW.—Expert opinion on matters of foreign law. See 92 I.C. 112=1926 M. 218. Expert opinion on foreign law, where it is elaborately laid down in a Code, need not be called for—Court should itself interpret such law. 123 I.C. 600=1930 M. 146. The evidence of translators or interpreters of Hindu Law texts is not admissible. 12 P. 359=1933 P. 306.

SEC. 47.—See also Notes under secs. 45 and 46. As to sufficiency of evidence, see 1934 N. 204. Where a witness deposes that a certain document is in the handwriting of the accused, the degree of his acquaintance document was written or signed, the opinion of any person acquainted with the handwriting of the person by whom it is supposed to be written or signed that it was or was not written or signed by that person, is a relevant fact.

Explanation.—A person is said to be acquainted with the handwriting of another person when he has seen that person write, or when he has received documents purporting to be written by that person in answer to documents written by himself or under his authority and addressed to that person, or when in the ordinary course of business, documents purporting to be written by that person have been habitually submitted to him.

Illustration.

The question is, whether a given letter is in the handwriting of A, a merchant in London.

B is a merchant in Calcutta, who has written letters addressed to A and received letters purporting to be written by him. C is B's clerk, whose duty it was to examine and file B's correspondence. D is B's broker, to whom B habitually submitted the letters purporting to be written by A for the purpose of advising with him thereon.

The opinions of B, C and D on the question whether the letter is in the handwriting of A are relevant, though neither B, C or D ever saw A write.

48. When the Court has to form an opinion as to the existence of any general custom or right, the opinions, as to the existence of such custom or right, of persons who would be likely to know of its existence if it existed, are relevant.

Explanation.—The expression "general custom or right" includes customs or rights common to any considerable class of persons.

with that handwriting will affect the value, though not the admissibility of his evidence. 1936 A.L.J. 317=1936 A. 165. When a witness says that a particular document is in the handwriting of a certain person whom he knows, it is evidence of a fact. The fact that the witness does not also say that he knows and is acquainted with the handwriting of the person concerned does not render that evidence inadmissible. That is legal evidence of the handwriting of that person. The witness need not say in the first instance that he knows the handwriting. It is the duty of the opposite party to explore in cross-examination the sources of his knowledge, if he is not satisfied with the testimony of the witness as it stands. Nor would the fact that the document is not before the Court render such evidence inadmissible. 178 I.C. 324=1938 P.W.N. 403=1938 P. 497; 198 I.C. 711=1942 Pat. 449. Although it is true that under the Evidence Act comparison of handwriting is legitimate enough and the view of persons competent to express opinions may be in many cases of considerable value, the opinions of those who have not carefully studied the art of caligraphy is not a rule of very great utility. The mere fact that there is a resemblance between the signature alleged to be false and a signature admitted to be genuine does not carry great weight. If a signature is denied, the onus of proving it is on the party relying on its genuineness. 64 I.C. 234 (P.). As to admissibility of opinions of persons not experts, but acquainted with the handwriting of the persons concerned, see 18 P. R. 1915 (Cr.); 12 P.W.R. 1915 (Cr.); 18 B. 66; 22 C. 313; 28 I.C. 722=16 Cr.L.J. 338; 147 P. L.R. 1912=15 I.C. 979; 16 C. W. N. 812; 29 O. C. 1=1925 O. 413. It is not impossible for a person unable to read and write certain characters to know and to recognise and prove the handwriting of another in those particular characters, if he had had the occasion to see the latter write. 4 A.W.R. 676=1934 A. 990. When a question has to be decided as to the person by whom any document was signed or written, then according to sec. 47 the opinion of any person acquainted with the handwriting of the person by whom it is supposed to be written or signed is a relevant fact. But the section contemplates only the production of the original document and not a copy of it. 1939 R.D. 105=1939 A.W.R. (B.R.) 167.

SEC. 48.—See 1937 P. 463. The answers to the questions given in Wilson's Manual are clearly admissible under sec. 48, being the opinion, as to the existence of a general custom or right, of persons who would be likely to know of its existence, if it existed. They are also admissible under sec. 35 as entries relating to a relevant fact contained in what may be regarded as a public record made by a public servant in the discharge of his official duty. I.L.R. (1941) Lah. 154=43 Bom.L.R. 432=1941 P.C. 21 (P.C.).

SEC. 48 AND 49.—Where all that the Court has to ascertain is the rate of interest chargeable on hundies as is fixed by usage, the evidence of three persons familiar with that usage is sufficient particularly when it stands uncontradicted on the record. 1932 L. 582. See also 39 Bom.L.R. 613. The words "usages of any body of men" in sec. 49 do not cover inferences or conclusions that may be drawn on the basis of past experience. 13 P.R. 1914 (Cr.)=20 I.C. 625. On this section, see also 7 I.A. 63=5 C. 744 (P.C.); 23 C. 427; 26 C. 148; 49 I.C. 743; 39 Bom. L.R. 613. As to proof of custom opinions of persons likely to know of its existence are admissible. 8 O.W.N. 6. And the weight Opinion as to usages, tenets, etc., when relevant. 49. When the Court has to form an opinion as to the usages and tenets of any body of men or family,—the constitution and government of any religious or charitable foundation, or the meaning of words or terms used in particular districts or by particular classes of people, the opinions of persons having special means of knowledge thereon, are relevant facts.

50. When the Court has to form an opinion as to the relationship of one person to another, the opinion expressed, by conduct as to the existence of such relationship, of any person who as a member, of the family or otherwise, has special means of knowledge on the subject, is a relevant fact :

Provided that such opinion shall not be sufficient to prove a marriage in proceedings under the Indian Divorce Act, or in prosecutions under section 494, 495, 497, or 498 of the Indian Penal Code.

of their evidence would depend on their position and character and of the persons on whose statements they have formed their opinion. (Ibid.). See also 1933 Sind 213. A living witness may state his opinion on the existence of a family custom and may state as grounds thereof information derived from deceased persons but it must be the expression of independent opinion based on hearsay and no repetition of hearsay. 8 Luck. 445=10 O.W.N. 268=1933 O. 246. Sec. 48 read with sec. 60 requires that the person who holds the opinion should be called as a witness. Statements made by deceased persons after the controversy had arisen and therefore inadmissible under sec. 32 are not admissible under sec. 48 or under sec. 32 (7). Statements cannot be called instances. 1933 O. 246. Where a deed of gift contains an agreement transferring one ghumaon of land to the donee and also relinquishment of reversionary rights by a reversioner, the deed, although it is inadmissible in evidence, for want of registration so far as the gift is concerned, can be admitted in evidence under sec. 49 for the collateral purpose of proving the relinquishment of reversionary rights. 1939 Lah. 414.

Sec. 50.—Difference between English and Indian Law. 91 I.C. 462=1926 M. 475. Under sec. 50 the opinion of a person is relevant only when the following requirements are fulfilled:—(1) The person whose opinion is sought to be given in evidence must be proved to have special means of knowledge on the subject; (2) (a) The opinion alone is evidence, (b) the opinion as expressed by conduct alone is evidence, or, in other words, (i) conduct only can be given in evidence, (ii) from the conduct given in evidence the Court is to see whether it is the result of any opinion held by the person; (3) The opinion which is relevant must be the one as to the existence of the relationship. The negative opinion, or the opinion as to the non-existence of the relationship may not be relevant. Under the section, the opinion of a person is only a relevant piece of evidence. It still remains for the Court to weigh such evidence and come to its own opinion as to the "factum probandum"—as to the relationship in question. I.L.R. (1942) 2 Cal. 299=75 C. L.J. 301=46 C.W.N. 729=1943 Cal. 76. Sec. 50 is limited to opinion as expressed by conduct and there is no provision in the Act making general reputation receivable in evidence as in English Law. 1926 M. 475. The evidence of witnesses that a certain man and a woman were regarded as man and wife by the members of the community does not come within the purview of sec. 50, not being an opinion expressed by conduct as to existence of such relationship of any person who, as a member of the family or otherwise, has special means of knowledge on the subject, and there is no other statutory provision under which the evidence can be let in to prove marriage. 1933 A. 130=143 I.C. 815. See also 1937 Sind 126=31 S.L.R. 71. On a question of the legality of the form of marriage, conduct of parties is admissible. 93 I.C. 705=1925 M. 497. Proof of paternity in case of a person claiming as illegitimate son. See 27 M. 32. In case of adultery and enticing away a married woman, fact of marriage must be strictly proved. 5 C. 566 (F.B.); 13 C.L.R. 125; 5 A. 233; 20 A. 166; 17 Bom.L.R. 75; 100 I.C. 535=1927 O. 140. The doctrine that the proof as to whether there was a marriage between two parties is to include a consideration of the character and conduct of various relatives

51. Whenever the opinion of any living person. Grounds of opinion when relevant. is relevant, the grounds on which such opinion is based are also relevant.

An expert may give an account of experiments performed by him for the purpose of forming his opinion.

CHARACTER WHEN RELEVANT.

52. In civil cases the facts that the character of any person concerned is such as to render probable or improbable any conduct imputed to him is irrelevant, except in so far as such character appears from facts otherwise relevant.

In civil cases character to prove conduct imputed, relevant.

In criminal cases, previous good character relevant.

53. In criminal proceedings the facts that the person accused is of a good character is relevant.

and an estimate is to be formed as to whether on the whole these relatives prefer the tie of concubinage to that of marriage is a wrong doctrine regarding proof of marriage. The evidence on this subject should not be allowed as it is without competence. 56 I. A. 201=10 L. 725=1929 P.C. 135=57 M. L.J. 366 (P.C.). Where the statement of witness giving the pedigree is found to be inadmissible under sec. 32 (5), but he deposes to facts which establish such treatment as is contemplated by sec. 50, it should be admitted to that extent. 151 I.C. 338=1934 A. 117. Evidence of notoriety of an adoption must be the evidence of a number of people who owing to their circumstances are in a position to say what was the attitude of the alleged adoptive parent is towards the claimant. A mere statement that an opinion does not come within the scope of sec. 50, the only provision of Evidence Act, under which evidence of repute is admissible. 1936 B. 518. See also 1940 Rang. 181.

SEC. 51.—The Exercise Sub-Inspector is an expert in his own department, and is able to distinguish liquors, but the Court should under sec. 51 ascertain the grounds on which his opinion is based so as to test it. 1935 Cr.C. 80=1935 N. 13. Chemical Examiner's report—Value of. 144 I.C. 357=1933 A. 394.

SECS. 52-54: SCOPE—ENGLISH AND INDIAN LAW.—The wording of sec. 54 is no doubt wide but the object clearly is to lay down that evidence of bad character including a previous conviction is a rule irrelevant to help to establish an accused person's guilt but that is not to lay down that it may not be taken into account in passing sentence. (39 B. 326, Foll.); 52 M. 358=56 M.L.J. 595.

ADMISSIBILITY OF EVIDENCE.—General evidence of bad character cannot in the first instance be given against accused. 7 W.R. 7 (Cr.); 6 W.R. 92 (Cr.); 59 I.C. 560=2 L.L.J. 658. Unless evidence has been given that he has a good character in which case it becomes admissible. But the section does not apply to cases in which the bad character of the person is itself a fact in issue. 1928 O. 430. See also 1930 B. 157. Such evidence not generally admissible to prove commission of offence. 1 C.W.N. 146; 1928 O. 215. But see also 27 C. 139. But if the evidence of bad character is introduced in order to establish a relevant fact, which cannot be proved aliunde, the evidence of bad character is admissible. Evidence of previous conviction is admissible not as proof of bad character but as evidence to prove habit and association. 9 Luck. 22=1933 O. 355. Proper object of proof of previous conviction is to determine amount of punishment if the accused be found guilty of offence charged. 11 B.H.C.R. 90. See also 32 M. 526; 1928 O. 215.

USE OF PREVIOUS CONVICTION.—Where a previous conviction is relevant with reference to the question of the applicability of sec. 562, Cr. P. Code, and also on the question of punishment, it may be taken into consideration in giving punishment after the accused is found guilty. 39 B. 326=26 I.C. 995. On this point see also 5 C. 768; U.B.R. (1908) 2nd Qr. Evidence 1=8 Cr.L.J. 411; U.B.R. (1892-1906) Vol. I, 82; 26 P. W.R. 1910; 14 Bom.L.R. 934=16 Cr.L.J. 83; 7 P.R. 1895 (Cr.); 1886 A.W.N. 47; 5 Bom.L.R. 1034; 14 C. 74; 2 Weir 760; 28 P.L.R. 313=1927 L. 549.

ILLUSTRATIVE CASES.—The fact that an accused is of bad character or is reputed to be a thief or a habitual thief is no evidence against him for a charge under sec. 401, I. P. Code. 13 P.R. 1914 (Cr.)=26 I.C. 625. See also 60 I.C. 331=5 P.L.J. 706. In a proceeding under sec. 110, Cr. P. Code, a list of crime which a Police Officer has suspected the accused to have committed, is inadmissible to establish the reputation of the accused. 13 I.C. 102; 62 I.C. 543=22 Bom. L.R. 1274. The past history of a gang of dacoits would be significant only if an offence under sec. 400, Penal Code, has been made out. 13 I.C. 279=16 C. W. N. 69. Statement by a prosecution witness in a prosecution for riot that he had brought a case under sec. 107, Cr. P. Code, against some of the accused who had been bound over is admissible not for proving the bad character of the accused but as part of the res gestae, the events which had transpired before and which led up to the riot with which the accused were charged. 17 I.C. 565=40 C. 367.

Previous bad character not relevant, except in reply. ¹[54. In criminal proceedings the fact that the accused person has a bad character is irrelevant, unless evidence has been given that he has a good character, in which case it becomes relevant.

Explanation (1).—This section does not apply to cases in which the bad character of any person is itself a fact in issue.

Explanation (2).—A previous conviction is relevant as evidence of bad-character.]

Character as affecting damages. 55. In civil cases the fact that the character of any person is such as to affect the amount of damages which he ought to receive, is relevant.

Explanation.—In Ss. 52, 53, 54 and 55, the word “character” includes both reputation and disposition; but, ²[except as provided in sec. 54] evidence may be given only of general reputation and general disposition, and not of particular acts by which reputation or disposition were shown.

FACTS WHICH NEED NOT BE PROVED.

Fact judicially noticeable need not be proved.

Facts of which Court must take judicial notice.

56. No fact of which the Court will take judicial notice need be proved.

As to evidence of conduct as affecting character, see 25 S.L.R. 55=1927 Sind 22. See 1928 L. 647 as to the value of past good character.

SEC. 54.—Evidence of bad character of accused is admissible to prove the motive for crime. 5 P. 63=93 I.C. 884; 1928 O. 430. Sec. 54 does not relate to the manner of proof of previous convictions, and relates only to the proof of previous convictions in certain cases. I.L.R. (1941) Kar. 308=1941 Sind 173. In cases of crime where it is thought desirable by the prosecution to bring evidence of previous conduct of similar character to the suggested crime, before the jury, the intention of sec. 54 is not infringed and evidence pointing to directly similar conduct is admissible. Sec. 54 refers to specific evidence of bad character not confined to acts similar to the crime, which was being investigated which may influence the jury on the question of motive which is dealt with in the same conviction. Such a motive must be the same kind of motive that in all probability actuated the mind of the accused or may have actuated his mind in committing the crime for which he is being tried. 1936 C. 469. A statement elicited from a prosecution witness in a sessions trial by way of cross-examination, as to the opinion of another witness about the bad character of the accused, does not amount to evidence of bad character, when the statement was not elicited for the purpose of proving what sort of character the accused bore but with the collateral object of showing that the other witness was resiling from the evidence which he gave before the committing Magistrate, and the admission of that statement does not, therefore, contravene the provisions of sec. 54. I. L.R. (1939) 1 C. 337. See also 1939 P.W. N. 627=1940 P. 14.

SEC. 56: JUDICIAL NOTICE—NOTORIOUS FACTS.—Judges are entitled to take judicial notice of any notorious fact without requiring actual positive evidence. 24 M.L.J. 211 =18 I.C. 257. A Court can take judicial notice of facts transpiring in Court. 121 I. C. 337.

SEC. 57: SECTION NOT EXHAUSTIVE.—The list given is far from complete; and Anglo-Indian Courts take judicial notice of the ordinary course of nature, the meaning of English words, and all other matters which they are directed by any other Act to notice, such as in Bengal, lists of landholders who have not made road cess returns (Beng. Act IX of 1880, sec. 19); in Madras, by-laws framed by the Commissioners of Police (Mad. Act III of 1866, sec. 4); in Bombay, notifications in the Gazette (Bom. Act X of 1866, sec. 4); in Oudh the list of talukdars and grantees published by the Chief Commissioner (Act I of 1868, sec. 10) (Whitley Stokes, Vol. II, p. 837). See also 1937 P. 463 (Sifton's Settlement Report). In 10 C.L.R. 469, the Court refused to take judicial notice of the seal of a Kazi or Sudr Amin whose appointment said to have made about 1820, was not proved. Though Courts take judicial notice of judgments, it does not follow that all statements of facts contained in judgments

- (1) ¹[All Indian laws ;]
- (2) all public Acts passed or hereafter to be passed by Parliament, and all local and personal Acts directed by Parliament to be judicially noticed ;
- (3) Articles of war for Her Majesty's Army ²[Navy or Air Force] ;
- (4) the course of proceeding of parliament and ¹[of the legislatures established under any laws for the time being in force in British India.]

Explanation.—The word "Parliament" in clauses (2) and (4) includes—

- (i) the Parliament of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland ;
 - (ii) the Parliament of Great Britain ;
 - (iii) the Parliament of England ;
 - (iv) the Parliament of Scotland ; and
 - (v) the Parliament of Ireland ;
- (5) the accession and the sign manual of the Sovereign for the time being of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland ;
- (6) all seals of which English Courts take judicial notice : the seals of all the Courts of British India, and of all Courts out of British India, established, by the authority of the ¹[Central Government or the Crown Representative] ; the seals of Courts of Admiralty and Maritime jurisdiction and of Notaries Public, and all seals which any person is authorised to use by any Act of Parliament or other Act or Regulation having the force of law in British India ;
- (7) the accession to office, names, titles, functions and signatures of the persons filling for the time being any public office in any part of British India, if the fact of their appointment to such office is notified in ¹[any Official Gazette] ;
- (8) the existence, title and national flag, of every State or Sovereign recognised by the British Crown ;
- (9) the divisions of time, the geographical divisions of the world, and public festivals, fasts and holidays notified in the Official Gazette ;

SIGNATURE OF A GAZETTED OFFICER.—The Court can take judicial notice of the signature of gazetted officer of the British Government and therefore the genuineness of his signature is not a matter which, unless the Court deems it necessary, need be proved. The applicability of the sub-section is not contingent on the exhibition of a copy of the Fort St. George Gazette containing a notification of his appointment as such officer. 44 M.L.J. 557=72 I.C. 515=1923 M. 600. As to other histories (as) Menon's History of Travancore, see 12 M. 495. Vernacular histories which have never received any recognition as historical works of value and reliability relating to matter of public or general interest are inadmissible in evidence. 1942 O.W.N. 657=1943 Oudh 91. Books dealing with custom of communities by public officer. 49 A. 848 (Production of a gazette is sufficient proof of Court notification). 1928 A. 355. (12) the names of the members and officers of the Court, and of their deputies and subordinate officers and assistants, and also of all officers acting in execution of its process, and of all advocates, attorneys, proctors, vakils, pleaders and other persons authorised by law to appear or act before it ;

(13) the rule of the road ¹[on land or at sea.]

In all these cases² and also on all matters of public history, literature-science or art, the Court may resort for its aid to appropriate books or documents of reference.

If the Court is called upon by any person to take judicial notice of any fact, it may refuse, to do so, unless and until such person produces any such book or document as it may consider necessary to enable it to do so.

ence of the passages would have to be proved before the passages could be regarded as evidence of the existence of the tradition. It must be shown that the writer had special knowledge of the alleged tradition or the tradition is a repetition of that given in the history. 1937 L. 529. A Court may take judicial notice of the course of proceedings in the Legislative Assembly but there should be some indications on the record when and in what circumstances, the specified statements were made. The Court should also be careful to avoid the impression of mixing up proof of the making of the statements and of the truth of such statements themselves. 1943 Lah. 298.

Sec. 58.—Under sec. 58 no fact need be proved in any proceedings which parties thereto or their agents agree to admit at the hearing. Hence where a counsel of a party admits a fact, it need not be proved against that party. 1942 O.W.N. (B.R.). 180=1942 O.A. 274. Section applies to criminal trial as well as criminal cases. 91 I.C. 233=27 Cr.L.J. 57=1926 O. 245. See Rat. 769; 5 B. 143; U.B.R. 1907, Evid. 1; 6 M.I.A. 521 (proof of will); 6 B.L.R. Sec. 58 cannot be used to bind the party who has made an admission of the genuineness of a document, when such admission is accompanied by a legal plea that the contract and the other facts mentioned in that document could not be relied upon by the opposite party owing to the provisions of the statutory law relating to registration. 1935 Pesh. 12. In spite of waiver of proof by an admission under sec. 58 a note or other instrument insufficiently stamped cannot be acted upon or decree given upon it, unless apart from the note, there is an independent cause of action for the loan. 1933 M. 117=164 M.L.J. 79. An admission in pleadings as to the execution of a document dispenses with the necessity of proof of execution even though such document is one required by law to be in a certain form or proved in a certain way. But such an admission does not dispense with the proof of the right of the plaintiff to sue on such mortgage when he is only a transferee of the mortgage right and when

OF ORAL EVIDENCE.

Proof of facts by oral evidence.

59. All facts, except the contents of documents may be proved by oral evidence.

Oral evidence must be direct.

60. Oral evidence must, in all cases whatever, be direct; that is to say—if it refers to a fact which could be seen, it must be the evidence of a witness who says he saw it;

if it refers to a fact which could be heard, it must be the evidence of a witness who says he heard it;

if it refers to a fact which could be perceived by any other sense or in any other manner, it must be the evidence of a witness who says he perceived it by that sense or in that manner;

if it refers to an opinion or to the grounds on which that opinion is held, it must be the evidence of the person who holds that opinion on those grounds:

Provided that the opinions of experts expressed in any treatise commonly offered for sale, and the grounds on which such opinions are held, may be proved, by the production of such treatises if the author is dead or cannot be found, or has become incapable of giving evidence, or cannot be called as a witness without an amount of delay or expense which the Court regards as unreasonable:

Provided also that, if oral evidence refers to the existence or condition of any material thing other than a document, the Court may, if it thinks fit, require the production of such material thing for its inspection.

CHAPTER V.

OF DOCUMENTARY EVIDENCE.

Proof of contents of documents.

SEC. 60: SCOPE OF SECTION.—See 12 Beng.L.R. (App.) 18; 1924 R. 363. Sec. 48 read with sec. 60 requires that the person who holds the opinion should be called as a witness. Statements made by deceased persons after the controversy had arisen and therefore inadmissible under sec. 32 are not admissible under sec. 48 or under sec. 32 (7). Statements cannot be called instances. 8 Luck. 445—1933 O. 246. See also 41 C. W.N. 1103. As to persons, who can give opinion evidence, see 25 M. 209; 23 A. 37. As to evidence of admission, see 5 M. 239; 4 L.B.R. 121; 2 Weir 762. Where, on a charge of plying a car for hire without permit, the constables only deposed to what a passenger told them (and that passenger was not examined). The evidence given by persons who say that they recognised after some time a particular person as the son of so and so cannot be excluded. That evidence really relates to their own perception when they saw that particular person after his appearance and the recollection of their past perception of the said person before his disappearance. 47 C.W.N. 9—1942 Cal. 498 (S.B.). Statement by person as to what another reported to him, how far evidence, see 97 I.O. 785—1926 M. 1003. Circumstantial evidence not excluded. 1927 C. 498. Reliance on textbooks without expert evidence. See 22 C.W. N. 745; 38 M. 466. Certified copy of translation of judgment. 4 I.O. 579. The value of the evidence admissible under secs. 32, 49 and 60 depends on the character of the witnesses who depose to what they heard from deceased persons and also on the characters of the deceased and whether they were expressing their own opinion or merely repeating hearsay. 1933 Sind 213.

SECS. 60 AND 67: PRIOR STATEMENTS.—MODE OF PROOF.—Secs. 60 and 67 deal respectively with the proof of oral and written statements. These two sections do not lay down that such statements can be proved only by calling the deponents. 1941 R.D. 503—1941 O.A. (Supp.) 460.

SECS. 60 AND 118.—Evidence of statements made by a child to other people, or of conduct amounting to a statement, is not admissible in a criminal trial, when such child is not examined as a witness by reason of incompetency to depose. I.L.R. (1941) 2 Cal. 180—1942 Cal. 214.

SEC. 61.—The fact that the man producing a document used the same to settle disputes between the villagers, and that before Primary evidence.

62. Primary evidence means the document itself produced for the inspection of the Court.

Explanation (1).—Where a document is executed in several parts, each part is primary evidence of the document.

Where a document is executed in counterpart, each counter part being executed by one or some of the parties only, each counterpart is primary evidence as against the parties executing it.

Explanation (2).—Where a number of documents are all made by one uniform process, as in the case of printing, lithography, or photography, each is primary, evidence of the contents of the rest; but, where they are all copies of a common original, they are not primary evidence of the contents of the original.

Illustration.

A person is shown to have been in possession of a number of placards, all printed at one time from one original. Any one of the placards is primary evidence of the contents of any other, but no one of them is primary evidence of the contents of the original.

Secondary evidence.

63. Secondary evidence means and includes—him the document was in the possession of his father, does not make the document a true copy of the original (chitta). 49 C.L.J. 546 = 1929 O. 459.

Sec. 62.—One specimen of a newspaper is not a copy of another specimen of the same newspaper of the same date. There is no relation between them of copy and original. They are all counterpart originals, each being primary evidence of the contents of the rest. 1930 L. 371. To bring document under Expl. II to sec. 62, the whole document, together with the signature thereto, if any, must be made by one uniform process. Where a letter together with several copies are prepared by one process, namely, typing on a typewriter, and one of them alone is afterwards signed separately, but the rest were only initialled, it cannot be said that the signature of the one and the initials on the rest have been made by one uniform process. The copies therefore cannot be held to be a primary evidence of the letter. 1937 M. 806 = (1937) 2 M.L.J. 381. An agreement to pay rent for house property does not require to be attested and can, therefore, be proved under sec. 62 by the production of the document itself from proper custody. It is only when a document is required by law to be attested that it shall not be used as evidence in view of sec. 68 until one attesting witness at least has been called for the purpose of proving its execution. 1943 R.D. 117 (2).

Sec. 63.—The question whether secondary evidence was in any case rightly admitted depends largely on the discretion of the Judge of first instance and his conclusion should not be overruled by the Court of appeal except in a very clear case of miscarriage. 55 B. 103 = 32 Bom.L.R. 1385 = 1931 B. 105. See also 1945 A.W.N. (Rev.) 124 = 1945 R.D. 264. Counterfoils of original receipts are admissible only on proof of loss of originals. 39 P.L.R. 702 = 1937 L. 370.

Copy of a copy is not evidence. 7 A. 738. But it may be admitted in evidence by consent of parties. 1928 M. 1255. Proof of copy being correct copy is not proof of the original (i.e.) of its execution, genuineness, etc. 22 W.R. 208. Secondary evidence—Absence of evidence of comparison with original—Objection on scope of—When to be taken—Copies admitted in appeal without objection in second appeal—Competency. 17 P.L.T. 709. See also 45 C.W.N. 654 = 1941 Cal. 506. Newspaper copy of a letter not proved to have been written by the accused is not evidence. 8 A.L.J. 302 = 10 I.C. 832. Secondary evidence of a document which has not been proved to have been written by accused or even existed, cannot be admitted. A copy of a newspaper publishing a defamatory letter cannot be used as secondary evidence to prove a letter which has not been found or even proved to have existed. 10 I.C. 832. A copy of a copy, in the absence of proof of comparison with the original is not good secondary evidence of the original, in the absence of consent. 48 L.W. 650 = (1938) 2 M.L.J. 883. Where the production of a certified copy of a document is otherwise justified by the law, the fact that the witness called in to prove the due execution of the original by the executant had not as a matter of fact seen the original, does not affect the legal proof of the document produced which is admissible under sec. 63 (1). 1943 A.L.W. 116.

CL. (3).—See 1924 N. 375; 20 L.W. 719. A printed copy of the deposition of a party in English, which deposition came up to the Madras High Court in 1900 on appeal, is admissible in evidence, as it is the practice of the Madras High Court since 1900 after Government Press took up the printing of the High Court papers, that before giving the final order for striking off, it would be compared with the original. (1927 P. 61, Bel. on.) 115 I.C. 147 = 1929 M. 187. Sec. 63 is exhaustive of the meaning of 'secondary evidence.' An 'abstract translation' which does not purport to be a 'copy' or even a full and complete translation of the document, but is merely a summary of its terms, is inadmissible. 39 P.L.R. 602 = 1937 L. 370.

- (1) certified copies given under the provisions hereinafter contained¹;
- (2) copies made from the original by mechanical processes which in themselves insure the accuracy of the copy, and copies compared with such copies.
- (3) copies made from or compared with the original;
- (4) counterparts of documents as against the parties who did not execute them;
- (5) oral accounts of the contents of a document given by some person who has himself seen it.

Illustrations.

(a) A photograph of an original is secondary evidence of its contents, though the two have not been compared, if it is proved that the thing photographed was the original.

(b) A copy compared with a copy of a letter made by a copying machine is secondary evidence of the contents of the letter if it is shown that the copy made by the copying machine was made from the original.

(c) A copy transcribed from a copy, but afterwards compared with the original, is secondary evidence; but the copy not so compared is not secondary evidence of the original, although the copy from which it was transcribed was compared with the original.

(d) Neither an oral account of a copy compared with the original nor an oral account of a photograph or machine copy of the original, is secondary evidence of the original.

Proof of documents by primary evidence.

64. Documents must be proved by primary evidence except in the cases hereinafter mentioned.

Cases in which secondary evidence relating to documents may be given.

65. Secondary evidence may be given of the existence, condition or contents of a document in the following cases :—

- (a) when the original is shown or appears to be in the possession or power—

LEG. REF.

An uncertified copy of a deposition can be used as secondary evidence only if it can be regarded as a copy made from or compared with the original. Where the man who is alleged to have made the copy is dead and so also the man who compared it with the original, and their signatures only have been proved by a clerk who was acquainted with their handwriting, it cannot be accepted as evidence as it is not sufficiently proved that it was made from or compared with the original. 73 C.L.J. 159=45 C. W.N. 654=1941 C. 506.

CL. (5).—See 22 A.L.J. 864=80 I.C. 939=1924 A. 792. Survey and Settlement Report which was based on a jamabandi, the original of which was not produced and which itself was not exhibited in evidence, cannot be treated as secondary evidence of the contents of the jamabandi statement under cl. (5), sec. 63 or under any other section. (1928 P. 284, reversed.) 32 Bom.L.R. 515=59 M. L.J. 731=1930 P.C. 45 (P.C.).

“PERSON WHO HAS BEEN”, MEANING OF.—Evidence that witness saw the document and heard it read out if admissible. See 54 I.A. 61=5 R. 18=52 M.L.J. 376 (P.C.). Under the section the evidence of the contents of a document must be given by a person who had seen those contents, i.e., who had read the document. The evidence of a person not knowing the language of the document is inadmissible. 12 R.D. 500=112 I.C. 310.

SEC. 65: APPLICABILITY.—Secondary evidence should not be allowed unless the circumstances are a sufficient justification under the Evidence Act, for reception of secondary in lieu of primary evidence. 1938 P. 468. An income-tax return is not a document or a public record of a private document within the meaning of sec. 74 and so sec. 65 does not apply. 56 B. 324=34 Bom.L.R. 236.

Where a party has taken all the necessary steps for the production of an original document but the document is not produced by the person in whose possession it is, he being alleged to be in collusion with the opposite party, the former is entitled to offer secondary evidence as to the contents of the documents in question. 22 P.L.T. 200. The discretion exercised by the trial Court in admitting secondary evidence on the ground that the original is lost should not ordinarily be interfered with in appeal. It is true that in a case where the admissibility of the document is not challenged, the erroneous omission in the trial Court to object to the admission of the evidence would not make that evidence relevant; but this principle applies only where the evidence or document is per se irrelevant or inadmissible and no objection was taken to its admissibility. Where evidence is admitted in the trial Court without any objection to its reception and the evidence is admissible and relevant, then no objection will be allowed to be taken to its reception at any stage of the litigation on the ground of improper proof. But if the evidence is irrelevant or inadmissible, omission to take objection to its reception does not make it admissible and objection may be raised in appeal for the first time. 47 Bom.L.R. 962.

CL. (a).—Effect of section. See 49 A. 78=24 A.L.J. 964. Any secondary evidence is admissible here. 16 I.A. 125=16 C. 753 (P.C.). “Produce” means only procure the production or give it in evidence. 1930 A. 550.

of the person against whom the document is sought to be proved, or of any person out of reach of, or not subject to, the process of the Court, or, of any person legally bound to produce it, and when, after the notice mentioned in section 66, such person does not produce it ;

(b) when the existence, condition or contents of the original have been proved to be admitted in writing by the person against whom it is proved or by his representative in interest ;

(c) when the original has been destroyed or lost, or when the party offering evidence of its contents cannot, for any other reason not arising from his own, default or neglect, produce it in reasonable time ;

(d) when the original is of such a nature as not to be easily moveable ;

(e) when the original is a public document within the meaning of section 74 ;

(f) when the original is a document of which a certified copy is permitted by this Act, or by any other law in force in British India, to be given in evidence ;

A statement of a witness abstracted in a judgment is not even secondary evidence of the statement and cannot be made use of in lieu of the original statements itself. 53 M. 952=60 M.L.J. 14. It is doubtful whether a copy of a list attached to a plaint obtained from some record in the Revenue Court is admissible in evidence. 7 O.W.N. 1079=14 R.D. 664. Secondary evidence is necessary before any presumption under sec. 90 can be made. 1930 A. 550. Oral evidence cannot be given to prove the contents of a letter which was neither produced nor called for. 26 C. 53. The copies of the letters from the accused to his co-conspirators which were intercepted and re-posted are admissible in evidence. It is not necessary that the prosecution should go through the formalities of making a formal application to his associates to produce the original letters. 1933 A. 498. Where a lease deed is in the possession of the defendants, and they failed to produce it though summoned twice to do so, secondary evidence of the same is admissible. L.R. 3 A. 8 (Rev.). Where a document of title which is in possession of a party is not produced by him after notice to produce the same, the party giving notice is entitled to give secondary evidence of the document under sec. 65 (c) and sec. 66, proviso (2). 32 Bom.L.R. 1435=1931 B. 33; 34 P.L.R. 929=1933 L. 945. See also 206 I.O. 126=1943 Pat. 218. Certified copy of a registered deed is sufficient proof when the original of that deed is in the possession of the opposite party. 1928 A. 394. Also when the original is filed in another Court and could not be got without delay. 1930 C. 479. Where the original of a document cannot be admitted in evidence on the ground of privilege under sec. 124 no secondary evidence of its contents can be given. 1937 M.W.N. 746=1937 M. 807=(1937) 2 M.L.J. 381. Under sec. 65 (a) secondary evidence of the contents of an income-tax return would not be admissible. The Income-tax Officer is subject to every process of the Court. 1939 M. 546=(1939) 1 M.L.

J. 791. A profit and loss statement and a statement showing the details of net income filed by an assessee in support of his return of income furnished under sec. 22 of the Income-tax Act, are public documents with reference to sec. 74 of the Evidence Act of which certified copies would be admissible under sec. 65 (e) of the Evidence Act. There is nothing in sec. 54 of the Income-tax Act which prohibits a party from putting in evidence a certified copy of an income-tax return if that return is a public document. It would be putting an unwarranted restriction on the words "documents forming the act or records of the acts" in sec. 74 (1) of the Evidence Act to say that they should be confined to those parts of an income-tax record which the Income-tax Officer has himself prepared and to exclude documents, which he has himself called for or which have been admitted to the record for the purposes of the assessment. I.L.R. (1940) Mad. 450=1940 M. 768=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 257 (F.B.). But see also I.L.R. (1940) M. 329=50 L.W. 815=1940 M. 161; 1940 C. 187=43 O.W.N. 1169. Registered private receipt is not a public document. 47 O.W.N. 607 (P.O.). An order of a District Magistrate under R. 56 of the Defence of India Rules is a public document within the meaning of sec. 71 of the Evidence Act, and hence the only manner in which such a document may be legally proved is by production of the original or by a certified copy of the original. 24 Pat. 143=A.I. R. 1945 Pat. 210=1945 P.W.N. 65.

LOST DOCUMENT.—If it is found that a document has been lost, secondary evidence may be given and whether proof is sufficient in a case is a question of fact. L.R. 4 A. 201 (Rev.). The law requires proof of the existence of certain circumstances before secondary evidence by production of a certified copy of a document would be permissible, and when there is no attempt whatever to establish the necessary circumstances, secondary evidence cannot be admitted. In order to enable a party to offer secondary evidence of the contents of a document under the proviso to cl. (e) of sec. 65, it must be established that the document had actually been lost or destroyed, or shown to the satisfaction of the Court that the non-production of the document does not arise from his neglect or default. I.L.R. (1943) Kar. 420. Agreement to relinquish unregistered but enforceable under the doctrine of part performance—Secondary evidence of its contents may be given if it is lost. 1929 R. 181. Loss of original of documents produced merely as evidence should be proved. 122 I.C. 751. Entries in Patwari's list made after inquiry and inspection of receipts are only secondary evidence and they are inadmissible unless the conditions laid down in this section are satisfied. 12 R.D. 398=111 I.C. 843. Sec. 65 (a) is inapplicable to the case of previous conviction and secondary evidence could be admissible to prove previous convictions in cases where the records of the previous trials and convictions have been destroyed and are not available. But a mere conviction slip is not such secondary evidence. I.L.R. (1941) Kar. 308=1941 S. 173=43 Cr.L.J. 212. The statement contained in the debtor's application to the Debt Conciliation Board cannot be regarded as an admission within sec. 65 (b). It is a statement under sec. 6, Debt Conciliation Act, the statement is not to be deemed a statement of the amount admittedly due but of the amount claimed. The debtor is in no sense promising to pay this amount; on the contrary he is applying to a Debt Conciliation Board with a view to having his liability cut down, and it cannot be inferred that there is any promise to pay

(g) when the originals consist of numerous accounts or other documents which cannot conveniently be examined in Court, and the fact, to be proved is the general result of the whole collection.

In cases (a), (c) and (d), any secondary evidence of the contents of the document is admissible.

In case (b), the written admission is admissible.

In case (e) or (f), a certified copy of the document, but no other kind of secondary evidence, is admissible.

In case (g) evidence, may be given as to the general result of the document by any person who has examined them, and who is skilled in the examination of such documents.

66. Secondary evidence of the contents of documents referred to in section 65 clause (a), shall not be given unless the party proposing to give such secondary evidence has previously given to the party in whose possession or power the document is [or to his attorney or pleader], such notice to produce it as is prescribed by law; and if no notice is prescribed by law, then such notice as the Court considers reasonable under the circumstances of the case:

Provided that such notice shall not be required in order to render secondary evidence admissible in any of the following cases, or in any other case in which the Court thinks fit to dispense with it:—

- (1) when the document to be proved is itself a notice;
- (2) when, from the nature of the case, the adverse party must know that he will be required to produce it;
- (3) when it appears or is proved that the adverse party has obtained possession of the original by fraud or force;
- (4) when the adverse party or his agent has the original in Court;
- (5) when the adverse party or his agent has admitted the loss of the document;
- (6) when the person in possession of the document is out of reach of, or not subject to, the process of the Court.

SECS. 65 AND 66.—The only purpose of a notice under secs. 65 and 66 is to give the party an opportunity by producing the original to secure, if he pleases, the best evidence of its contents. Secondary evidence is admissible when the party offering evidence of its contents cannot for any reason not arising from his own default or neglect produce the original document in reasonable time and under sec. 66 the Court has absolute power, when it thinks fit, to dispense with a notice under those sections. 63 I.A. 85=40 C.W. The definition of "sign" in the General Clauses Act, sec. 3 (52) has no application to term 'sign' as used in sec. 67, Evidence Act. 1934 A. 390. Thumb marks are not exempt from the provisions of sec. 67. 40 L.W. 277=1934 M. 558. A document does not prove itself, nor is an unproved signature proof of its having been written by the person whose signature it purports to bear. 37 C. 467=14 C.W.N. 1114. Proof of document by examination of writer. See 19 C.W.N. 1148=22 I. C. 654. Handwriting may be proved by circumstantial evidence under sec. 67 which prescribes no particular kind of proof. The execution or authorship of a document is a question of fact and may be proved like any other fact. 1933 A.L.J. 799=1933 A. 690. The identity of the machine on which two letters have been type-written would not by itself show that the writer of the two is one and the same person. Such a conclusion may be drawn from additional evidence, e.g., internal evidence afforded by the document, or external circumstances, or the continuity of the correspondence passing between the sender and the addressee. 1933 A. 690. See also 37 C. 467=14 C.W.N. 1114. The execution of a document cannot be deemed proved as it is required by the Evidence Act merely because it is proved in the sense of the definition of "proved". That definition of the word "proved" must be read along with sec. 67. Sec. 67 makes proof of execution of a document something more difficult than proof of matter other than the execution of a document. 1928 A. 303. See also 1941 A.W.R. (Rev.) 461=1941 O.A. (Supp.) 402; 1942 Pesh. 83. Where the alleged executant of a deed (who was a marksman) denied execution and all the attesting witnesses are dead or for some other reason not available, proof of the handwriting of the attesting witness and of his identity is sufficient proof of execution. So where one attesting witness was dead and the other turned hostile, proof or admission of his handwriting is sufficient. 1930 M. 770=125 I.O. 231. See also 1942 N.L.J. 214. 57 M. 662=1934 M. 365=66 M.L.J. 712.

SECS. 67 AND 68.—In the N.W.F. Province, a conveyance of property does not require to be attested and therefore sec. 68 has no application. Hence admission of the execution of the document by the executant is sufficient to prove execution under sec. 67. 1942 Pesh. 83. See also 1942 N.L.J. 214. It does not necessarily follow that because an attesting witness is unable to point to the signature on a document of the person whose signature he purports to have attested, that he has failed to prove the signature within the meaning of secs. 67 and 68. If he has seen the other person sign or affix his mark in his presence or to have received from the executant a personal acknowledgment of his signature or mark, it would be enough to satisfy the definition of 'attested' under the Transfer of Property Act. Sec. 67 only shows what has to be proved and sec. 68 what kind of evidence is essential for this purpose and when this is forthcoming there is no reason why the word 'proved' in sec. 3 should not be constituted according to the definition. 1943 C.W.N. 425.

SEC. 68.—See 104 I.C. 622; 45 C.L.J. 577. If sec. 68 was intended to express that a document required by law to be attested should not be used as evidence for any purpose until one attesting witness at least had been called, then the words "for any purpose" would have found a place in the section. Those words are not in the section and therefore it has to be concluded that this was not the intention of the framers of the Act. There is no reason why an admission in one document should require a different kind of proof from an admission in another document. The mere fact that one of the documents requires to be executed with attestation and that attestation must be proved for the purpose of giving legal effect to the document does not appear to have any bearing on the question as to what proof should be given of the document where it is tendered merely to prove an admission in writing. Sec. 68 does not apply to the case of a document which is merely to be proved for the purpose of an admission. 1939 A.L.J. 142=I.L.R. (1939) A. 366=(1939) A. 269. Sec. 68, only applies when execution of a document has got to be proved. Where execution has not got to be proved, it is not necessary to call any attesting witness, unless it is expressly contended that the attesting witness has not witnessed the execution of the document in question. 48 Bom.L.R. 88. The word "execution" in sec. 68 includes attestation as required by law. Where the document is registered and its attestation not denied, it is not necessary to call an attesting witness. 1945 A.L.J. 537. The fact that one of the attesting witnesses has turned hostile is no sufficient ground to excuse the party producing the document from his duty of calling the said witness. It is always open to him to cross-examine that witness with the permission of the Court. 1941 O. 89=1940 O.W.N. 1077. A Sub-Registrar who has signed a document in the presence of the executant after receiving from him an acknowledgment of execution is an attesting witness. 193 I.C. 41=1940 N.L.J. 437=(1940) N. 382. Under sec. 68 what is necessary is that an attesting witness, if available, should be called in evidence. It is wrong to think that a mortgage deed can be proved only by an attesting witness. If the latter is unable to prove it, there is no bar to its being proved by other evidence. 193 I.C. 161=1941 O.W.N. 249=(1941) O. 384; 1941 O.W.N. 1298=1941 O.A. 983; 1942 Oudh 201=1941 R. 122.

PROOF OF WILL.—Reading sec. 63 of the Succession Act with sec. 68 of the Evidence Act, it is clear that what a person propounding a will have to prove is that the will was duly and validly executed, and that has to be done by not simply proving that the signature on the will was that of the testator but that the attestations were also made properly as required by cl. (a) of sec. 62 of the Succession Act. Under sec. 63 (c) of the Succession Act it is necessary to prove by one or more witnesses that both the witnesses had properly attested the will. The Evidence Act only lays down the mode of proving; it does not define what is required to be proved under sec. 63 (c) of the Succession Act. When a person comes to Court to establish the authenticity and the valid execution of a will, the mere formal execution and its valid execution cannot be separated. To prove the valid execution of a will there must be proof of both the attestations. There cannot be a valid execution without proper attestation under sec. 68, Succession Act, and if such proper attestation is not proved, there is no proof of execution under sec. 68, Evidence Act. Sec. 68, Evidence Act, does not say that a document required to be attested by two witnesses shall be proved by the evidence of one of them. All that the section provides is that such a document shall not be accepted in evidence unless the evidence of "at least" one of the attesting witness is called. The words "at least" are of the utmost importance and presuppose that more evidence may be required; it can only be by reference to the circumstances of each case that the quantum of evidence necessary to discharge the onus of proof can be measured. If one attesting witness only proves that the testator had acknowledged his signature to him, that does not dispense with proof of acknowledgment by the testator before the other attesting witness. All that sec. 68, Evidence Act, means is that if two attesting witnesses had signed in each other's presence, it is not necessary to examine both of them to prove that they have received the acknowledgment from the testator. 47 Bom. L.R. 709=A.I.R. 1946 Bom. 12.

SCOPE OF PROVISOR.—See 149 I.C. 1109 (1)=1934 L. 282. Sec. 68 has no application to the Punjab and there is no law which requires sale-deed in the province to be attested. 10 L. 447=114 I.C. 62; 1928 L. 148. The change in the meaning of the word "attested" effected by sec. 2 of Act XXVII of 1926 as amended by Act X of 1927 is retrospective in operation and the person who identifies the executant of a document before Sub-Registrar can be an attesting witness. 30 N.L.R. 62=152 I.C. 1007=1934 N. 1. The amendment of sec. 68 by Act XXXI of 1926 is a provision relating to processual law and not be substantive law and therefore must be taken to be retrospective in its operation. 1929 M.881=57 M.L.J. 588; 1933 M.W.N. 141=37 L.W. 677=1933 M. 432; 144 I.C. 49=1933 M. 612. The words "Indian Registration Act, 1908" occurring in proviso to sec. 68 could not be interpreted so as to confine the application of the proviso, only to documents registered according to the provisions of that particular Registration Act and not of any previous Registration Act. 178 I.C. 198=1939 P. 47. Where a defendant in a suit on a mortgage does not admit the execution and completion of the document, and receipt of consideration, and his pleader contended that the execution and due attestation of the mortgage bond was not proved against his client, it must be held that the execution has been specifically denied. 43 O.W.N. 669=181 I.C. 216=1939 P.C. 117=(1939) 2 M.L.J. 762 (P.C.). The admission of execution contemplated by sec. 70, and the failure to make a specific denial of execution contemplated by the proviso to sec. 68 of the Evidence Act, relate only to the person who has actually executed or purported to have executed the document; that is to say, the person who is in a position to admit or deny execution, and it manifestly implicit that such person must be a party to the suit. I.L.B. (1943) Kar. 420. The words 'specifically denied' used in the proviso to sec. 68, do not mean more than this that the denial in question should relate to the specific document which is sought to be denied and that the denial should leave no room for doubt that the particular document is denied by the person against whom it is sought to be used. The proviso does not lay down that the denial should be contained in the written or oral pleadings. 1943 O.W.N. 105. The 'specific denial' referred to in the last sentence of the proviso to sec. 68 is not confined only to a denial by the executant but contemplates a specific denial by the party against whom the document is sought to be used. Hence an attesting witness has to be called even if execution is denied by one against whom the document is sought to be used. 1943 O.W.N. 382. It cannot be said that a denial to be a specific denial for purposes of sec. 68 must be a denial as regards the proper attestation of the document in question, that is a denial of the validity thereof on the ground that it was not properly attested. The words 'specifically denied' used in the proviso to sec. 68, only mean that the denial in question should relate to the specific document which is sought to be denied and that the denial should be unqualified so as to leave no doubt that the execution of the particular document is denied by the person against whom it is sought to be used. 1943 O.W.N. 136. Where a registered deed of mortgage is attacked on the ground that it represents a sham and nominal transaction entered into to defeat a creditor, there is no specific denial of execution so as to make it incumbent on the plaintiff to call the attesting witnesses to prove the execution of the document. A document may represent a sham transaction notwithstanding that it has been executed by the person who is mentioned in the document as the executant. 57 L.W. 7=(1944) 1 M.L.J. 28 (F.B.). The section does not apply to account books which do not require attestation. 1930 A. 37. A document which is not a mortgage owing to non-compliance with sec. 59 of the Transfer of Property Act regarding attestation is not a document which is required by law to be attested within the meaning of sec. 68 of the Evidence Act and is admissible to prove the personal covenant to pay therein which is not required by law to be attested. [32 M. 410=19 M.L.J. 584 (F.B.), Foll.] 54 M. 163=60 M.L.J. 56; 146 I.C. 694=1933 S. 257. Where the execution of a registered mortgage deed is not denied by the mortgagor, it is not necessary to call the attesting witnesses of the deed to prove it. 165 I.C. 404=1936 O.W.N. 1113=1937 O. 149. To prove a deed of gift, the production of a witness, who identified the donor and attesting witnesses and who was personally known to the Sub-Registrar, and an entry in favour of the donee in the village records are sufficient. 60 I.C. 234. The proper way of proving an entry in the Register of Motor Vehicles would be either that the Register itself should be produced by a proper official or a duly authenticated copy of the material part of the register placed before the Court. A mere statement by the Commissioner of Police made in answer to a letter written by the Corporation, without his being called or the register produced, cannot be accepted in proof of the ownership of a car. 36 O.W.N. 1147. Where an attesting witness is called but his evidence has not been accepted, the contention that the provisions of sec. 68 had been complied with and that no further evidence of due execution and attestation of the mortgage was necessary cannot be accepted. 43 Q.W.N. 669=1939 P.C. 117=(1939) 2 M.L.J. 762 (P.C.).

PRACTICE.—Attestation being a mixed question of law and fact point cannot be raised for the first time in second appeal. 97 I.C. 611=1926 M.W.N. 559. Where in spite of the best efforts of the plaintiff, the attesting witness could not be served with summons and by the time of the appeals the witness was dead. Held, that, whether under the amendment to sec. 68 or sec. 69, it was open to the plaintiff to prove the document by other means. His own evidence held in the circumstances sufficient. 144 I.C. 89=1933 M. 612. No doubt only one attesting witness need be called, if that attesting witness speaks to attestation by the attesting witnesses. But if he does not do so, it is necessary to prove that the deed was properly attested by those other attesting witnesses. Where it is impossible to call any attesting witnesses and where all that can be proved is their handwriting it will be presumed, until the contrary is shown, that the persons who purported to have signed were in fact attesting witnesses. 1941 R. 122. Where the executant of a mortgage deed, the writer of a deed and the attesting witnesses have all died, having regard to the new definition of attestation in sec. 3, Transfer of Property Act, and to the varied mode of proving a registered document as amended by sec. 68, Evidence Act, it is sufficient to satisfy the Court that the execution which was not specifically denied was so probable that a prudent man ought under the circumstances of the case to act upon the supposition that it was so executed. 1929 S. 235. No attempt to prove attestation of mortgagee deed—Document cannot be used as evidence. 1929 A. 389. Execution of mortgage deed not specifically denied—Need not be proved. 30 Bom.L.R. 565; and examination of attesting witness is not necessary. 1927 P. 403. See also I.L.R. (1937) A. 723. It is not the law that a plaintiff in a suit on a mortgage bond should call all the attesting witnesses to the bond who are alive before he can take advantage of sec. 71. It is incumbent on the plaintiff to call at least one witness, and if that witness denies or does not recollect the execution of the document then the execution may be proved aliunde. Whatever the English law may be sees. 68 to 71 do not necessarily state it. 173 I.C. 983=19 P.L.T. 234=1938 P. 301. See also 1939 P.C. 117=(1939) 2 M.L.J. 762 (P.C.); 181 I.C. 572. Defendant admitting execution of mortgage deed but denying attestation—Duty of plaintiff to prove due attestation. 1936 A.L.J. 297=1936 A. 169. Where the party challenging certified copy of a registered deed of gift, does not specifically deny that it is the copy of the deed, according to the proviso to sec. 68 the production of attesting witnesses to prove execution and attestation of the deed is not essential. 1939 L. 414. Where execution of a document is not denied, the execution and attestation of the document can be proved by other evidence, and it is unnecessary to call any of the attesting witnesses. 190 I.C. 413=1940 R. 184. See also 1941 R. 122. Where the defendant not only denies the execution of the suit mortgage deed but also its genuineness, the execution of the mortgage is “specifically denied” and the proviso to sec. 68 becomes applicable and it is incumbent upon the plaintiff to produce at least one of the attesting witnesses. 1941 O. 89=1940 O.W.N. 1077. A deed of relinquishment is not a document required by law to be attested; so it can be proved by the unchallenged evidence of the alleged writer thereof. 14 L.R. 466 (Rev.)=17 R.D. 637. A document executed in England and requiring to be attested under the English law but not requiring to be attested under the Indian law, relating to property in India may be proved only by proving the signature of the executant. 7 P. 520=111 I.C. 57=1928 P. 304. The proviso to sec. 68 only removes the necessity of calling an attesting witness to prove the execution of the documents therein referred to and does not relieve the party of the necessity of proving a mortgage as prescribed under sec. 59, Transfer of Property Act. 11 R. 26=1933 R. 6 (1929 P. 422, Diss.). The word “execution” as used in the proviso to sec. 68 in the case of mortgage bonds includes all the series of acts which would give validity to the instrument qua mortgage, i.e., the word “execution” not only means signing by the borrower but the attestation of the signature by the witnesses as required by sec. 59 of the Transfer of Property Act. If, therefore, in a suit on a mortgage bond the defendant admits the signature but denies the attestation, it must be taken that he denies the execution of the mortgage bond and his denial requires the plaintiff to prove the mortgage bond by examining one of the attesting witnesses, if available. I.L.R. (1937) 1 O. 507=41 C.W.N. 306; 1940 O.W.N. 1077=1941 O. 89; 1942 O.W.N. (B.R.) 255; 43 C.W.N. 1025=1939 C. 688.

himself shall be sufficient proof of its execution as against him, though it be a document required by law to be attested.

SECS. 68 AND 70.—The execution contemplated in sec. 70 is not a mere signing of the document, but a due execution or execution in accordance with what the law requires for a particular document. In the case of document required to be attested, there can be no execution unless there has been a signing by the executant in the presence of the attesting witnesses, and execution is not complete unless the deed is attested by two witnesses. If a question of attestation is put in issue, the plaintiff must prove that the document has been duly attested, and the plaintiff is not relieved of the obligation of calling an attesting witness under sec. 68. A statement by the executant that when he signed the deed there were no alterations or erasures and there were no attesting witnesses to the document, etc., is not an admission of execution at all, but a denial of execution. 46 L. W. 610=1938 M. 43=I.L.R. 1938 M. 523.

SECS. 68 AND 72.—The definition of bond in sec. 2 (5) of the Stamp Act is not exhaustive, nor is it proper to infer from the definition in an Act which deals with stamp matters only that it means that such a document is required by law to be attested. Therefore it is sec. 72 which applies to the case of a bond and not sec. 68, and examination of the attesting witnesses to prove execution is not necessary. 188 I.C. 638=1940 N.L.J. 70=1940 N. 240.

SEC. 69: MORTGAGE—PROOF OF IN CASE OF—DEATH OF ATTESTING WITNESS.—See 24 A. 615=10 A.L.J. 217; 11 N.L.R. 9=27 I. C. 866; 35 A. 364=11 A.L.J. 379. Where regarding a mortgage deed regularly signed and attested the signatures of all attesting witnesses who were dead were proved, as also of the mortgagor, held, that there was a presumption of its due execution and it lay upon the other side to rebut it. 39 A. 112=15 A. L.J. 167; 41 I.C. 171. Admission of execution recorded in registration endorsement is not admissible to prove execution. 20 O.C. 18=38 I.C. 605. See also 13 N.L.R. 197; 1928 N. 244. It must be proved that "no attesting witness can be found". The party must ask the Court to exhaust all processes of the Court as by adopting the procedure in O. 16, r. 10, C.P. Code, for the arrest of the witness and for the attachment of his property. 7 P. 312=1928 P. 356 (Ruling before the amending Act XXXI of 1926). In order that sec. 69 may be applied, mere taking out of the summons or the service of summons upon an attesting witness or the mere taking out of warrant against him is not sufficient. It is only when the witness does not appear even after all the processes under O. 16, r. 10, C.P. Code, which the Court considered to be fit and proper had been exhausted that the foundation will be laid for the application of the section. But if a party moves the Court for processes under O. 16, r. 10 when a witness summoned by him has failed to obey the summons but the Court refuses the process asked for, there is no reason why the section cannot be invoked. 49 C. W.N. 377=A.T.R. 1945 Cal. 350.

SEC. 70.—See I.L.R. (1938) M. 523=1938 M. 43. The admission here spoken of does not include admissions made before the suit and sought to be proved by witnesses in the suit. 27 C. 190. There is no reason to restrict the application of sec. 70 to admissions made by a party during the course of the trial of the suit. 1943 O.W.N. 105=1943 O. A. (C.C.) 55; I.L.R. (1943) Kar. 420 (Admission by person not party to document). As to admission of execution before Sub-Registrar, see 18 S.L.R. 282=93 I.C. 660=1926 S. 88. See also 38 A. 1=13 A.L.J. 881=30 I.C. 376; 7 N.L.R. 85=11 I.C. 689; 47 I. C. 9; 46 L.W. 610. The "admission" contemplated under sec. 70 is an admission made for the purpose of or having reference to the suit, made either in the pleadings or during the course of the trial. 1928 N. 244 (Admission of execution at the registration is not sufficient for the section). The admission of execution contained in some other document such as a power-of-attorney cannot be availed of for the purpose of dispensing with the citation of the attesting witness. 46 L.W. 610. Where a mortgagor merely says he does not admit the execution or attestation of the mortgage and puts the mortgagee to proof, the plea is not one of specific denial of the execution or attestation of the document, and proof of one attestation is quite sufficient. It is only in a case where there is not only absence of an admission but a specific denial of the validity of the mortgage that the mortgagee is called upon to prove attestation of two witnesses. I.L.R. (1937) A. 723=1937 A.L.J. 710=1937 A. 646. Section applies only to document which is duly attested. 5 R. 461=1927 R. 233. Where in a deed of further charge the executant admits the execution of an earlier mortgage deed, the admission is a sufficient proof of execution of the mortgage deed as against the executant and no formal proof of proper attestation is necessary. 1943 O.W.N. 105=1943 O. 218. A successor in interest is bound by his predecessor's admission of execution where it is contained in a document on which the successor founds his title. He must be taken to have accepted it as correct when he acquired rights under that document. 1943 O.W.N. 382. Where there is admission of execution in the written statement, but the attesting witness called stated the mortgagor did not sign the deed in his presence, held, that the document must be taken to have been proved. See 84 I.C. 558=1926 P. 295. As to effect of admission of execution by pardanashin lady, see 30 C.W.N. 364=5 P. 58=1925 P.C. 203 (P.C.). Where in a mortgage suit the defendant pleaded that she executed the bond under a misrepresentation as to its contents, held, that under these circumstances, sec. 70 applied and that the admission was sufficient proof of the execution of the mortgage deed. 1929 C. 441.

SEC. 71.—Sec. 71 is applicable only where the attesting witness 'denies or does not recollect the execution of the document.' Their Lordships were doubtful whether the description would be applicable to the case of a witness whose evidence was considered unreliable but were willing to assume that the discrepancies were due to deficient recollection. It was held on the fact that even assuming that it would be legitimate in the above circumstances to look at the proceedings relating to the registration of the mortgage deed for the purpose of proving its due execution and attestation, the plaintiffs had failed to prove the material facts necessary to comply with the provisions of the T.P. Act. 43 C.W.N. 669=1939 P.C. 117=(1939) 2 M.L.J. 762 (P.C.). Sec. 71 cannot be construed as meaning that the evidence of the executant of a deed required by law to be attested is not admissible unless the attesting witnesses denied or did not recollect the execution of the document. There is nothing in the Evidence Act which precludes a party from adducing as a witness to the execution of the deed any person who happened to be present when the deed was executed and actually saw it signed by the executant and by the attesting witnesses. The section, while permitting the evidence of the executant of the deed in certain circumstances does not have the effect of rendering his evidence or that of other witnesses inadmissible. 1937 A.L.J. 161=1937 A. 273. Sec. 71 has no application to a case where the attesting witnesses are not before the Court. If, therefore, the plaintiff takes out summons on one of the attesting witnesses and the witness does not appear in Court, that is not enough to let in further evidence under that section. The plaintiff must exhaust all the processes of the Court in order to compel the attendance of any one of the attesting witnesses and when the production of such witnesses is not possible the plaintiff can avail himself of the provisions of sec. 69. 69 C.L.J. 454=43 C. W.N. 1025=1939 C. 688. The 'other evidence' referred to in sec. 71 cannot refer to the statement of witnesses who had seen the attesting witnesses sign in the presence of the executant. It only means any evidence that may be considered satisfactory by the Court seized of the matter. 1941 A.M.L.J. 75. The word 'execution' in sec. 71 not only means signing by the executant but it means and includes attestation as well. If, therefore, an attesting witness called by the plaintiff turns hostile, the plaintiff is entitled to prove attestation of the instrument by other evidence as laid down in the section. This other evidence includes his own evidence as well, although he is the grantee under the instrument. 43 C.W.N. 1084. Under sec. 50 of the Indian Succession Act (X of 1865) witnesses must sign their names and not merely set their marks. See 3 B. 382; 11 C. 429; 5 C. 738. But initials will be sufficient. 15 M. 261. A statement of the attesting witnesses to a mortgage deed that they signed the blank paper and not the completed deed is sufficient to attract the operation of this section and entitles the mortgagee to prove execution by evidence other than that of the attesting witnesses. 48 I.C. 724; 5 O.L.J. 667=48 I.C. 538. Where in a mortgage suit the plaintiff called one of the attesting witnesses then alive and when that witness recoll'd he proceeded to prove the document by other evidence, held, that there was compliance with secs. 68 and 71. 69 C.L.J. 454; 33 C.W.N. 248=1929 C. 188. Mortgage suit—Two out of four witnesses dead—Third turning hostile—Fourth witness summoned but refusing to depose—Admissibility of other evidence to prove attestation. 1929 C. 441.

THE FOLLOWING ARE NOT PUBLIC DOCUMENTS.—A plaint or written statement is not an act or the record of an act of the Court and cannot therefore be treated as a public document merely because of the court's endorsement thereon. 1945 A.W.R. Explanation.—Any officer who, by the ordinary course of official duty, is authorized to deliver such copies, shall be deemed to have the custody of such documents within the meaning of this section.

Proof of documents by production of certified copies.

LEG. REF.

1 A village officer in the Punjab has been declared for the purposes of this Act to be a public officer having the custody of a public document. See Pun. Land Rev. Act XVII of 1887, Sec. 151 (2) (P. & N.W.F. Code).

Posts and Telegraphs as to future issue of certain kind of stamps is neither "a record of an act" nor "an act." 115 I.C. 509 (1) = 1929 M.W.N. 193. Letters received from the Controller of Military Accounts in reply to warrant of attachment is a public document. 1928 O. 438. Departmental enquiry by Magistrate in his executive capacity is not judicial inquiry and statements recorded therein are not evidence taken on oath. Such statements, therefore, are not public documents and sec. 163 can be applied to such statements. 1930 O. 370 = 58 C. 96. As to report by Magistrate called for by High Court on an application for transfer see 46 Mys. H.C. Rep. 402.

SECS. 74 AND 65.—A receipt granted by one private person to another and registered is not a "public document". Consequently a certified copy of such a receipt is not admissible in evidence under sec. 65 (e) without any foundation being laid for the admission of secondary evidence. 47 C.W.N. 607 (P.C.).

SECS. 74 AND 76.—Entry in register of powers-of-attorney—Maintained by Registering Officer—Admissibility. See 43 C.W. N. 907 = 70 O.L.J. 5 = 1939 O. 569.

SECS. 74 AND 77.—A certified copy of the entry of registration of a deed is admissible in evidence under secs. 74 and 77 as proof of the entry but not of the contents of the deed. 177 I.C. 517 = 1938 C. 120.

SECS. 74 AND 78.—A certified copy of a written statement could only be admitted as a public document under sec. 78. To become a public document it must under sec. 74 be held to be a public record of a private document. A written statement is not a public document and hence must be proved by direct evidence. A presumption of genuineness cannot be asked to be raised in the case of certified copies of pleadings, where they are not incorporated in any way in the decree of the Court. 1942 O.W.N. 191 = A.I.R. 1942 Oudh 303. See also 1943 Oudh 54.

SECS. 75 AND 67.—It is not permissible to raise any presumption of genuineness in respect of a plaint which is only a private document and which has to be proved by direct evidence. 1942 O.W.N. 522 = 1943 Oudh 54.

SEC. 76.—The contents of a document can be satisfactorily established by producing a certified copy. I.L.R. (1938) N. 333 = 176 I.C. 315 = 1938 N. 152. Undoubtedly under sec. 76 a copy of a talukdari sanad to be certified should be sealed whenever the keeper of the records of the Government of India is authorised by law to make use of a seal. But if there is no evidence to the effect that he is so authorised, the Court cannot make such a presumption when other necessary formalities have been duly carried out. Accordingly a copy of a sanad which complies with other formalities but is not sealed cannot be treated as uncertified and is admissible in evidence. 172 I.C. 882 = 1938 O.W.N. 67 = 1938 O. 69.

SECS. 76 AND 77: CONSTRUCTION.—See 30 M. 466 = 17 M.L.J. 471. In order to be admissible copies must be duly certified. See 4 I.C. 929 = 87 P.L.R. 1909. Plaint is not a public document. 7 P.L.T. 267 = 1926 P. 180. The Khasra Girdawaris are public documents. 151 I.C. 786 (1) = 35 P.L.R. 405 = 1934 L. 698. Where a document purports to be a copy given by a public officer having the custody of a public document, but does not bear a certificate as required by sec. 76 and is not supported by the evidence of the person who prepared it, it is inadmissible in evidence. 1941 O. 77 = 1940 O.W.N. 999.

SEC. 77.—In proof of the fact of a statement made in a correction of papers case and an application made in execution no better evidence could be produced than the production of certified copies taken from the judicial files. Formal proof of signa-

Proof of other official documents.

78. The following public documents may be proved as follows:—

(1) Acts, orders or notifications of the ¹[Central Government] in any of its departments ²[or of the Crown Representative] or of any [Provincial] Government or any department of any Provincial Government,— by the records of the departments, certified by the heads of those departments respectively, or by any document purporting to be printed by order of any such Government ²[or as the case may be, of the Crown Representative] :

(2) the proceedings of the Legislatures,— by the journals of those bodies respectively, or by published Acts or Abstracts, or by copies purporting to be printed ¹[by order of the Government concerned] ;

(3) proclamations, orders or regulations issued by Her Majesty or by the Privy Council, or by any department of Her Majesty's Government,— by copies or extracts contained in the London Gazette, or purporting to be printed by the Queen's printer ;

(4) The acts of the Executive or the proceedings of the Legislature of a foreign country,— by journals, published by their authority, or commonly received in that country as such, or by a copy certified under the seal of the country, or sovereign, or by a recognition thereof in some ³[Central Act] :

(5) The proceedings of a municipal body in British India,— by a copy of such proceedings, certified by the legal keeper thereof, or by a printed book purporting to be published by the authority of such body :

(6) public documents of any other class in a foreign country,— by the original, or by a copy certified by the legal keeper thereof, with a certificate under the seal of a Notary Public, or of a British Consul or diplomatic agent, that the copy is duly certified by the officer having the legal custody of the original, and upon proof of the character of the document according to the law of the foreign country.

RESOLUTIONS OF PARLIAMENT—MODE OF PROOF.—The Volumes of the Official "Parliamentary Debates" which show that certain resolutions were passed by the Parliament are adequate legal proof of the passing of the resolutions by the Parliament. The proceedings of Parliament fall under either the second or the fourth of the categories of public documents mentioned in sec. 78. The expression "Journals" in sec. 78 is to be given a broad and general meaning and in its application to Parliament it should not necessarily be confined to the Journals published by the two Houses which contain a formal record of the business. The official Parliamentary Debates are also "Journals" within sec. 78. I.L.R. (1942) Kar. (F.C.) 56=46 C.W.N. (F.R.) 9=14 R.F.C. 22=A.I.R. 1942 F.C. 22.

The Court shall presume every document purporting to be a certificate, certified copy or other document, which is by law declared to be admissible as evidence of any particular fact and which purports to be duly certified by any officer in British India, or by any other officer in any ¹[Indian State] who is duly authorized thereto by the ¹[Central Government or the Crown Representative] to be genuine :

Provided that such document is substantially in the form and purports to be executed in the manner directed by law in that behalf.

The Court shall also presume that any officer by whom any such document purports to be signed, or certified, held, when he signed it, the official character which he claims in such paper.

that the document is genuine ; that any statements as to the circumstances under which it was taken, purporting to be made by the person signing it, are true, and that such evidence, statement or confession was duly taken.

As to proof of certificate of visitors of lunatic asylum, see 63 C. 425.

Sec. 80: PRESUMPTION OF GENUINENESS when raised, see 10 A. 174; 15 M. 63; 3 Weir 794; 12 C.W.N. 845; 13 C. 129. As to the nature and extent of presumption under the section see 93 I.C. 978=1925 L. 605; 94 I.C. 985=1926 O. 489. Presumption of genuineness of a document does not include the presumption that the document was printed or published by the particular person by whom it purports to have been published. 36 M. 457=22 M.L.J. 73.

SCORE.—Sec. 80 does not deal with the question of the admissibility of documents referred to therein but simply dispenses with the necessity of their formal proof by raising the presumption that everything in connection with them had been legally and correctly done. 50 C.L.J. 106=1929 C. 617 (F.F.). The evidentiary value of the statement of a witness in another judicial proceeding as to the age of a person is very little. (Ibid.) Before a previous admission can be used against a party it must be put to him and an opportunity afforded to him to explain if it is capable of explanation. 12 L.L.J. 161. Sec. 80 merely says that the Court will presume that the confession was duly recorded and that the circumstances under which the confession was recorded are such as have been set down in the record made by the Magistrate. It says nothing about there being any presumption regarding the voluntaries of the confession. The fact that the accused pleads not guilty and retracts his confession is a circumstance to indicate that the case of the accused was that his confession was not a voluntary one. 1 L.L.R. (1943) 1 Cal. 487 =A.I.R. 1943 Cal. 625. The presumption mentioned in sec. 80 could not arise in a case where the statement of a person as to the cause of his death is recorded by a magistrate not authorised by law to record it, and it has to be proved. But where it is recorded as authorised by law, it is not necessary that it should be proved by the magistrate who recorded it, when the statement is not made in the presence of the accused. All that is required is that there must be proof of the identity of the person who made the statement. 1941 Rang.L.R. 258=1941 R. 30. If a person whose dying declaration is recorded by a Magistrate in hospital dies subsequently, the statement made by him in hospital can only be proved by the Magistrate who has recorded it or some one else who heard that statement. But when that person survives and gives evidence at the trial his statement is admissible in evidence for the purpose of corroborating or contradicting him. It is not necessary that the recording Magistrate should be called as witness to prove the statement. A statement recorded by a Magistrate under sec. 164, Cr.P. with law and purporting to be signed by the examining Magistrate shall be presumed to be so made. The officer who recorded the confession may be examined as a witness. 38 I.C. 1005=2 P.L.J. 80. Though a confession duly recorded by a Magistrate, may be presumed to be voluntary and as such admissible, such admissibility is subject to the restrictions imposed by sec. 24. 61 C. 399=38 C.W.N. 659=1934 C. 636. The statement of an accused person recorded by a Magistrate in a Native State is inadmissible unless the Magistrate himself deposes to it in person. 24 I.C. 169=16 Bom.L.R. 261. SEC. 86.—Sec. 86 does not exclude other proof. So, a document purporting to be a copy of a deposition in a Court in Cutch was admissible in evidence though not certified by the Political Agent of Cutch in a manner which fully satisfied the requirement of secs. 76 (a) and 86. Held, that the fact that the certificate as to the document being a "true copy" was given by a higher officer than the trial Judge was really an additional reason for accepting its authenticity. 30 Bom.L.R. 1519=1929 B. 24.

SEC. 88: TELEGRAM—PROOF THAT IT EMANATED FROM GOVERNMENT.—The sanction of Local Government to prosecute a person for an offence under sec. 134-A, Penal Code, communicated by telegram, must be proved to have emanated from the Government. The plaintiff alleged that the mortgage was executed 50 years ago and that the entry as regards mortgage was made in the mortgagee's bahi and called upon the defendant to produce it. The defendant denied that he possessed any such bahi. The plaintiff's evidence showed that the entry was made particular case considers proper, the Court may presume that the signature and every other part of such document, which purports to be in the handwriting of any particular person, is in that person's handwriting, and, in the case of a document executed or attested, that it was duly executed and attested by the persons by whom it purports to be executed and attested.

Explanation.—Documents are said to be in proper custody if they are in the place in which, and under the care of the person with whom, they would naturally be; but no custody is improper if it is proved to have had a legitimate origin, or if the circumstances of the particular case are such as to render such an origin probable.

This explanation applies also to section 81.

in ordinary bahi and not on stamped paper though required by law as such. Moreover there was no evidence by plaintiff to show that the defendant was in possession of the bahi and was withholding it though called upon to produce it. Held, that no presumption under sec. 89 could be drawn under the circumstances and as the entry was made in the ordinary bahi and not on stamped paper no question of presumption arose in such case. 1938 L. 90.

Sec. 90: PRESUMPTION—WHEN ARISES.—

Under sec. 90 documents more than thirty years old coming from proper custody prove themselves, but there is no presumption that the contents of the documents are true. 40 Bom.L.R. 1262—I.L.R. (1939) Bom. 97=1939 B. 59. The presumption under sec. 90 with regard to documents 30 years old arises in the case of copies as well as originals. If the copy is proved to be a true copy, a presumption may be made in favour of the genuineness of the original. 46 M. 92; 6 O.W.N. 880=1929 O. 483 (2); 152 I.C. 861=11 O.W.N. 1435; 30 N.L.R. 155=1934 N. 67. But see also 162 I.C. 527=1936 O.W. N. 619=1936 O. 298; 1937 R.D. 133; 41 P.L.R. 376=1939 L. 458; 20 N.L.J. 209. See also 17 Mys.L.J. 510; 50 Mys.H.C. Rep. 48; 1939 L. 458; 1940 M. 273; 1940 A. 74; 16 Luck. 778. The statutory presumption under sec. 90 can be raised only with regard to the actual document produced in Court; it cannot be raised with regard to the original document when that is not produced and when what is produced is only a certified copy. 47 Bom.L.R. 116=1945 Bom. 319. The statutory presumption under sec. 90 cannot be made in respect of a document merely on production of its copy under S. 65 of the Act. Where the original is a registered document, and the copy produced is a certified copy, bearing the necessary endorsements of the Registering Officer before whom the executant acknowledged the execution and was duly identified, the facts mentioned in the endorsement may be proved by the endorsement, the copy can be admitted in evidence as proof of the execution of the original. 47 Bom.L.R. 963. Sec. 90 according to its plain terms applies to wills as to other documents. If therefore, a will made more than 30 years ago is produced from the proper custody, the Court may presume that it was duly executed and attested. Where the Court chooses to make the presumption authorised by sec. 90, no further proof of the facts is necessary under sec. 69. 47 C.W.N. 359. The presumption contained in sec. 90 cannot apply to a copy that is not itself 30 years old. 1940 N.L.J. 437=1940 N. 382. See also 1939 L. 458; 1939 L. 273. The presumption under sec. 90 is a rebuttable one to be made at the discretion of the Court. It is based on the rule of expediency, and unless the surrounding circumstances satisfy the Court that the document tendered has been produced from proper custody it would be unsound to admit the document. The Court must insist on a satisfactory account of the origin of the possession being given by the party relying upon the document. The custody may not be in the strictest sense legal custody, but, whether it originated in right or wrong, the origin must be explained. The soundest policy even upon the rule of expediency necessitates circumspection and scrutiny in the examination of the surrounding circumstances before raising the presumption. The Court must therefore examine the surrounding circumstances tending to establish the connection of the party producing the document with the person with whom the document should naturally have been. 40 Bom. L.R. 202. When a document is suspicious on the face of it when an important word is erased and re-written, presumption under sec. 90 does not arise. 95 I.C. 261=1926 A. 537. Repeated assertions of title in ancient documents being mere recitals are no evidence of what is there recited though actual possession in conformity therewith would constitute prima facie title. 56 C.L.J. 369. The Court is not bound to make the presumption merely because of the alleged age of the document. 31 Bom.L.R. 1279; 110 I.C. 415. The Court "may presume". The section does not say that the Court must presume the document to be genuine. 7 Mys. L.J. 57; See also 175 I.C. 594=1938 A. 345; 40 P.L.R. (J. & K.) 51=175 I.C. 361

=40 Bom.L.R. 202=1938 B. 257. The Court can presume the genuineness even of an unregistered document thirty years old from a copy of such document, if the original is proved to have been duly executed, and further it is also proved that the original is lost. 1929 A. 561. As to presumption of genuineness of pedigree tables, see 105 I.C. 81. Where a person executes a will and deposits it with the Registrar and the endorsement by the Registrar shows that the will was so deposited by the executant on being identified by two persons, a presumption under sec. 90 as to execution arises. The presumption however does not cover the question of disposing mind. 1933 L. 53; 145 I.C. 241. The raising of presumption under sec. 90 as to the genuineness of a document is a matter which is eminently within the discretion of the trial Court and where a document bore only the seal and there was no signature and where there were strong reasons to doubt its genuineness, the appellate Court held that it was not prepared to draw a presumption about its genuineness which the Lower Court had refused to do. 1942 O.W.N. 225=A.I.B. 1942 Oudh 374; 104 I.C. 219=1927 C. 870; 51 C. 135=81 I.C. 493; 31 Bom.L.R. 1279. Sec. 90 does not involve any presumption that the contents of a document more than 30 years old coming from proper custody are true. The presumption is only as regards due execution. 17 Mys.L.J. 510=45 Mys.H.C.R. 57. The Court should be very careful about raising any presumption under sec. 90 in favour of old deeds of shankalap which never saw the light of day until they were produced during the trial of suits in which under-proprietary rights are set up on the basis of those deeds. If a copy more than 30 years old is produced from proper custody the signatures authenticating the copy may be presumed to be genuine; but the production of a copy is not in itself sufficient to justify any presumption of due execution of the original. 1941 L. 400. No presumption of genuineness in case if document bearing no signature. 164 I.C. 494=1937 O. 448; 166 I.C. 930=1937 O. 353; 41 P.L.R. 108=1939 L. 285; (1941) 1 M.L.J. 759; or in the case of a copy of a lost document. 162 I.C. 56=1936 A.L.J. 161=1936 A. 298, especially when such copy is not in itself 30 years old. 1936 L. 788; see also 1937 L. 920=20 N.L.J. 209. No presumption under sec. 90 can be raised on the basis of the certified copies when the originals are not forthcoming. 41 P.L.R. 377 (2)=1939 L. 273. See also 1941 O.W.N. 669=1941 O. 433; 1941 Pesh. 89; 1941 L. 400. A copy purporting to be more than 30 years old and produced from proper custody may be presumed to be a copy satisfying the requirements of the Evidence Act as to secondary evidence, when that copy contains a statement that it is a true copy and contains the signature of the author of the original. In such a case the Court is entitled to presume the genuineness of the signature on the copy under sec. 90. 1930 M.W.N. 841. If a plaintiff in a suit for possession does nothing more than produce a certified copy of the original sale deed in his favour which was more than 30 years old, he would not succeed in establishing his title to the property. But if he produces evidence of identifying witnesses of the executants it can be held that the evidence is sufficient to prove the due execution of the sale deed in question. 1939 A.L.J. 1023=1940 A. 74. As to presumption of genuineness of seal affixed to old document, see 164 I.C. 494=1936 O.W.N. 768. Jama Wasil Baki papers seventy years old—Presumptions as to. See 45 C.L.J. 129. The presumption of execution of a document extends also to the mark put on the document in dictating that the document was signed by the executant by a sort of symbolic writing which is to be taken to be the signature in the absence of proof to the contrary. 58 C. 686=1931 C. 596; 148 I.C. 1172=1934 A. 529. could refuse to presume that the document was genuine. 110 I.C. 415=5 O.W.N. 424. In order to attract the provisions of sec. 90 the document must have been signed which most of the entries in the account books are not. They could not therefore be brought within the purview of this section. 45 P.L.R. 441. Sec. 90 only gives the discretion to Courts to dispense with proof as to the execution of a document. It raises no presumption whatever as regards the accuracy of the plan and cannot be used as to dispense with formal proof of the contents of the documents as required by law. 111 I.C. 361. See also 1937 N. 43.

"DULY EXECUTED AND ATTESTED."—The words "duly executed and attested" merely mean execution and attestation according to law. The question whether the document has been explained to the executant and whether she has fully understood the import and effect of it is hardly a question of execution. 5 Luck. 526=1931 O. 103. Where a deed is executed by a pardanashin lady, the onus of proving the validity of the transaction is on the transferee. 5 Luck. 525. See also 10 O.W.N. 147=1933 O. 170. Where a party tendering a document is unable to say who prepared or signed it, or where the document itself does not purport to show who prepared or signed it, the mere fact of the document being more than thirty years old does not make it admissible without proof. (3 P.L.J. 306, Rel. on.) 1937 R.D. 88. Presumption can be raised in the case of school register. 30 years old. 163 I.C. 87=1936 L. 104. When a Registrar makes his endorsement on the back of a document, he is simply carrying out his statutory duties under the Registration Act and makes the signature alia intutio and is not purporting to attest the document. And though the endorsement shows that the Registrar received from the executant a personal acknowledgment of his signature, in the absence of evidence that the Registrar signed in the presence of the executant, no presumption can possibly be made under sec. 90, that the signature of the Registrar was affixed in the presence of the executant or that the document was duly attested, even if the document is over 30 years old. 61 C. 525=38 C.W.N. 753=1934 C. 722. Apart from sec. 90 the Court can make a presumption of fact about the valid execution of a will from a certified copy of the will obtained from the Registration Office, if such presumption is justified by the proved facts and circumstances of the case. 172 I.C. 882=1938 O.W.N. 67=1938 O. 69. The period of 30 years, under sec.

90, is to be reckoned not from the date upon which the deed is filed in the Courts but from the date on which, it having been tendered in evidence, its genuineness or otherwise becomes subject of proof. (5 C.L.R. 135, Foll.) 63 I.A. 85=40 C.W.N. 226=1936 P.C. 15=70 M.L.J. 206 (P.C.); 169 I.C. 402=39 P.L.R. 340.

PROPER CUSTODY.—Whether "custody" is proper is a question of fact. 126 I.C. 19. As to proper custody, see 94 I.C. 814; 1926 C. 370; 164 I.C. 494=1936 O.W.N. 768. Where a document is written 55 years ago by a licensed stamp-vendor and comes out from proper custody it can claim the benefit of sec. 90. 1934 L. 885. It is for the Court to decide in each case whether the custody from which the document is produced is or is not proper and if it considers the custody to be proper it can raise the presumption. Where the lower Court draws the presumption after considering the circumstances of the case the High Court will not interfere in second appeal. 32 P.L.R. 626=134 I.C. 296. See also 38 P.L.R. 322; 152 I.C. 861=11 O.W.N. 1435; 1933 L. 347=142 I.C. 13=34 P.L.R. 356; 1933 A. M.L.J. 63; 1939 O.W.N. 1=1939 A. 96. And where the appellate Court is constrained to do so, the party producing the document should be given an opportunity of supporting the presumption. 145 I.C. 147=1933 A.L.J. 907=1933 A. 443. Where a sale has been made nearly 30 years before the suit is brought and all the parties to the transaction have died, it is impossible to expect full and detailed evidence of all the circumstances that gave rise to the transaction and presumptions are permissible to fill in the details which have been obliterated by time. 30 N.L.R. 192=148 I.C. 1033=1934 N. 106. In cases where documents more than 30 years old are being produced only as instances of a particular custom and not as foundation of title, such documents may be admitted in evidence irrespective of the fact whether they come from proper custody or not. 1939 L. 152. The mere proof of the map is more than 30 years old, by itself is only proof of the fact that the map was prepared by the maker thereof. The fact that a particular person prepared a map, or in other words made certain statements by lines, cannot, without or apart from and independent of the proof of the correctness of its contents have any bearing on the matters in issue in this suit. The fact that the map is a part of the decree does not make any difference, when the decree does not fall within any of the secs. 40, 41 or 42 of the Act. 49 C.W.N. 791=A.I.B. 1945 Cal. 492.

CHAPTER VI.

OF THE EXCLUSION OF ORAL BY DOCUMENTARY EVIDENCE.

91. When the terms of a contract, or of a grant, or of any other disposition of property, have been reduced to the form of a document, and in all cases in which any matter is required by law to be reduced to the form of a document, no evidence shall be given in proof of the terms of such contract, grant or other disposition of property, or of such matter, except the document itself, or secondary evidence of its contents in cases in which secondary evidence is admissible under the provisions hereinbefore contained.

Evidence of terms of contracts, grants and other dispositions of property reduced to form of documents.

Exceptions.—(1) When a public officer is required by law to be appointed in writing, and when it is shown that any particular person has acted as such officer the writing by which he is appointed need not be proved.

(2) Wills ¹[admitted to probate in British India] may be proved by the probate.

Explanations.—(1) This section applies equally to cases in which the contracts, grants or dispositions of property referred to are contained in one document, and to cases, in which they are contained in more documents than one.

(2) Where there are more originals than one, one original only need be proved.

(3) The statement, in any document whatever, of a fact other than the facts referred to in this section, shall not preclude the admission of oral evidence as to the same fact.

Illustrations.

(a) If a contract be contained in several letters, all the letters in which it is contained must be proved.

(b) If a contract is contained in a bill of exchange, the bill of exchange must be proved.

(c) If a bill of exchange is drawn in a set of three, one only need be proved.

(d) A contracts, in writing, with B, for the delivery of indigo upon certain terms.

The contract mentions the fact that B had paid A the price of other indigo contracted for verbally on another occasion.

Oral evidence is offered that no payment was made for the other indigo. The evidence is admissible.

(e) A gives B a receipt for money paid by B.

Oral evidence is offered of the payment.

The evidence is admissible.

LEG. FEE.

SEC. 91: SCOPE AND APPLICABILITY.—Where the terms of a contract have been reduced to writing at the same time as it is made, the document only, or if permissible, a secondary evidence of its contents can be the only evidence available to prove the document under sec. 91 the parties are debarred from adducing oral evidence to prove such contract. 22 Pat.L.T. 666; 33 M. 413 = 11 Cr.L.J. 716; 13 R.D. 685; 5 P.L.T. 45=1940 P. 245. Sec. 92 only excludes oral evidence to vary the terms of the written contract, and has no reference to the question whether the parties had agreed to contract on the terms set forth in the document. So also sec. 91 only excludes oral evidence as to the terms of a written contract. Oral evidence is admissible therefore to show that a document executed by a person was never intended to operate as an agreement, but was brought into existence solely for the purpose of creating evidence about some other matter. Even if there were no provisos to secs. 91 and 92, there is nothing in either section to exclude oral evidence in such a case to show that there was no agreement between the parties and therefore no contract. 63 I.A. 126=59 M. 446=1936 P.C. 70=70 M.L.J. 232 (P.C.). Secs. 91 and 92 do not apply to a will as it is neither a contract, nor a grant nor a disposition of property until the death of the testator makes it operative. Sec. 92 (4) does not prevent the revocation of a registered will by an unregistered document. 1938 M.W.N. 699=1938 M. 616=(1938) 1 M.L.J. 444. The provisions of sec. 91 are not applicable to a permission granted by a Municipal Committee. 120 I.C. 221=1930 N. 130. Having regard to the terms of sec. 91, what the Court has got to do is to find out the real contract between the parties. 1928 M. 459. The term "in proof of such matter" must carry with it the term "in disproof of it," because if evidence were to be admitted on one side, it would have to be admitted on the other. Therefore, a Court which allows evidence to prove that a payment endorsed on a promissory note had not been made, violates the provisions of sec. 91. 1935 A.L.J. 304=1935 A. 58.

ILLUSTRATIVE CASES.—Admissibility (i) of oral evidence to prove deposition of witnesses. Bat. 334; (ii) deposition not read over to witness. 13 Cr.L.J. 569; (iii) deposition of accused. 6 C. 762=8 C.L.R. 292; 54 P.R. 1887 (Cr.); 21 M.L.J. 411=9 I.C. 262; (iv) admission of guilt in departmental enquiry. 36 A. 222; (v) Confession to Magistrate—Proof by oral evidence. 9 M. 224=2 Weir 125; 35 A. 260; 14 Cr.L.J. 211; 11 A.L.J. 286; 35 B.H.C.R. 166; (vi) Search list—Proof of. 3 Weir 766. See also 21 M.L.J. 281; (vii) Previous convictions—Proof of. 28 C. 689; (viii) Warrant; it should be produced in a case of assault of process-server. L.B.R. (1872-1892) 572. A statement made by an accused at a departmental enquiry is not within sec. 91, as it is not required by law to be reduced to the form of a document. Such confession can be proved at the time of the prosecution. 35 A. 222=25 I.C. 321. The confession of an accused made to a Magistrate holding an enquiry is a matter which must be reduced to the form of a document within the meaning of sec. 91. 35 A. 260=19 I.C. 307. Witnesses should not be allowed to prove a dying declaration as if it is a substantial piece of evidence in the case. 67 I.C. 577=1924 L. 12. The only way of proving a dying declaration is by the evidence of some witness who heard it made, the witness being at liberty to refresh his memory by referring to the note made by him or read over to him at or about the time the statement is made. 1924 L. 12. The record by Court of deposition is the only evidence admissible of the statement alleged to have been made by the witness and if it is not shown to have been read out to the witness he can't be convicted of perjury. 42 M. 561=36 M.L.J. 296. Sec. 91 even if it covers a deposition merely excludes oral evidence of its contents but does not make the document itself inadmissible nor prevent its being otherwise proved. 74 I.C. 445=1923 O. 119. Where a deposition is not taken in accordance with sec. 369, Cr.P. Code, it is inadmissible in evidence and other evidence is shut out by sec. 91. 18 Cr.L.J. 966=42 I.C. 326. Sec. 91 has no application to matters entered in a special diary under sec. 172 of the Cr.P. Code. Oral evidence is admissible to prove statements made to the police by the witnesses who heard them made. 18 Cr.L.J. 1022=42 I.C. 766. Unregistered sale-deed and partition deed can be used as evidence to establish the nature of the possession of the person who claims under the deeds. The fact of possession and partition of property can also be proved by oral evidence. 98 I.C. 940=28 Punj.L.R. 88. See also 100 I.C. 153; 98 I.C. 448; 92 I.C. 1028=1926 M. 402 (partition deed); 95 I.C. 584

=1926 M. 872 (sale deed); 103 I.C. 281=1927 M. 830; 30 C.W.N. 254=1926 C. 705. Where the rent note is one that requires registration and has not been registered, it is inadmissible not only to prove the terms of the contract but also to prove the fact that it contained all the terms of the contract. There is no bar, therefore, under sec. 91 to the reception of other evidence consisting of an entry in the record-of-rights to prove the nature of the tenancy. 58 B. 419=150 I.C. 555=36 Bom.L.R. 359=1934 B. 194. See also 1938 O.A. 785=1938 O.W.N. 1080; 1939 A.M.L.J. 148. An unregistered patta cannot be admitted in evidence in a suit for possession of land for the purpose of proving the plaintiff's title. Nor can the plaintiff be allowed to prove his title by the production of rent receipts or by the general circumstances of the case. Sec. 49 of the Registration Act and sec. 91, Evidence Act are a bar to such proof. 18 P.L.T. 1012. There is no provision of law which requires the production of the original lease in order to prove merely the factum of the lease. Under sec. 91, the original lease would have to be produced only for the proof of any of its terms. 1944 A.W.R. (Rev.) 76=1944 B.D. 132. Ejectment suit—Permanent occupancy claimed in defence—Compromise not stamped or registered—Decree merely dismissing suit—Held, that the compromise was not admissible to prove the recognition of occupancy rights. 14 L.R. 513 (Rev.)=17 B.D. 660. See also 1940 N. L.J. 85=1940 N. 116. Lease by public auction of agricultural land for 7 years—Defendant's bid accepted possession for 4 years—Plaintiff's suit in ejectment alleging subsequent agreement of lease for one year in writing. Held, that as it was an agricultural lease, it could be made orally, and that the document which came into existence subsequently did not supersede the oral lease. 1933 M. 451=64 M. L. J. 676. Unregistered lease—Oral evidence to prove relationship of parties, not admissible. 148 I. C. 558=1934 L. 743. Where lease-deed is inadmissible in evidence being unregistered, the tenancy can be proved by other evidence as by the doctrine of part-performance. 105 I.C. 172; 111 I.C. 358. But see 1930 L. 675. Where a party sues upon a promissory note, he must produce that note or give a satisfactory explanation as to why he is unable to produce it; else, he is not entitled to rely upon a relative and ancillary document such as a receipt which formed part of the same document upon which both the promissory note and the receipt were inscribed. Courts should refuse to exercise their powers in favour of a litigant who is deliberately concealing important material and relevant information. 151 I.C. 123=1934 A. 837. When a contract is wholly contained in a Promissory note, i.e., where it forms the substance of the contract with all its terms, sec. 91 would preclude proof of the contract otherwise than by the document itself. 1936 N. 225; 1936 Pesh. 146; 1937 A. 439=1937 A. L.J. 235. If such promissory note is inadmissible for any reason, the contract cannot be proved by any extraneous oral evidence, nor can money be recovered as money had and received, i.e., as a debt independently of the promissory note. 1936 N. 225. But where the note is executed in satisfaction of a pre-existing liability the inadmissibility of the P. Note by reason of its being insufficiently stamped does not preclude proof of the pre-existing liability by oral evidence. 1936 N. 225. Where in a suit to recover a sum of money advanced to the predecessor in interest of the defendant, a promissory note and a contemporaneous receipt are produced and the promissory note is found inadmissible in evidence for want of proper stamp, on a question whether other evidence was admissible, it was held, that the loan could be proved by other evidence including the receipt. 1943 A.L.J. 189=A.I.R. 1943 A. 220 (F.B.). When the loan is contemporaneous with the execution of an inadmissible P. Note, the debt can be proved by oral evidence independently of the P. Note only if the parties intended at the time of the execution of the P. Note that it was collateral to an oral contract by way of giving security for the loan or making conditional payment of the debt, antecedent or contemporaneous. 1936 N. 225. See also 1936 A.M.L.J. 37. If in such a case the defendant repudiates the P. Note as being merely a colourable document and neither party relies on the document, as embodying the substance of the contract, sec. 91 does not apply, and the P. Note can be used as corroborative evidence on the point of the actual payment of the money. 1936 N. 225. In any event, the plaintiff would be prevented from claiming interest as per terms of the P. Note and interest at best can be allowed only under sec. 73, Contract Act, by way of damages. 1936 N. 225. See also 1936 A.M.L.J. 37. Where a promisor is inadmissible for want of proper stamp duty the plaintiff, may recover his money by proving orally the advance of the loan. 1933 N. 57 (2)=144 I.C. 175=39 N.L.R. 131; 139 I.C. 298=1932 O. 235 (F.B.). See also 25 A.L.J. 102; 103 I.C. 634=1927 A. 503; 1937 A.L.J. 360=1937 A.W.R. 322. Held by the Full Bench (Stodart, J. dissenting), that the answer to the question whether a person who has lent money on a P. Note, which is inadmissible in evidence owing to defect in the stamping can sue to recover the debt apart from the note, depends on the circumstances under which the instrument was executed. If the note was given in respect of an antecedent debt, or as collateral security or by way of conditional payment or if the note does not embody all the terms of the contract the true nature of the transaction can be proved. But if the promissory note embodies all the terms of the contract, no suit on the debt will lie as sec. 91 of the Evidence Act and sec. 35 of the Stamp Act bar the way. The fact that the execution of the P. Note is contemporaneous with the borrowing cannot, however, exclude the possibility of the instrument having been given as collateral security or by way of conditional payment. I.L.R. (1938) 2 M. 933=1938 M. 785=(1938) 2 M.L.J. 189 (F.B.). Although a loan and a promissory note for the loan form part of the same transaction a suit will lie on the original consideration. If there is a loan, that itself gives a cause of action, and the fact that there is a loan can never be a term of the contract contained in the promissory note, it is therefore open to the creditor to prove that there was a loan independently of sec. 91. It does not matter whether the loan was made at the same time as the promissory note which is the evidence of it or whether it is not properly stamped and therefore inadmissible in evidence. 40 Bom.L.R. 174=175 I.C. 540=1938 B. 286. But see 53 A. 114=1931 A. 183 (F.B.); 144 I.C. 130=1933 A. 280; 152 I. C. 370=1934 A. L. J. 1185; 147 I.C. 443=1934 A. 271; 146 I.C. 751. Also 140 I.C. 117; 95 I.C. 704; 1922 L. 307. Where the debt and execution of the promisor are contemporaneous the debt can be proved only by the note and where it is insufficiently stamped the plaintiff cannot apply by amendment to convert his suit into one on the original consideration. 139 I.C. 361=1932 M. 687; 140 I.C. 193=1932 M.W.N. 1260=67 M.L.J. 595; 1934 L. 606. But see 9 P.L.T. 471; 134 I.C. 254=1931 A. 560; 95 I.C. 847=1926 B. 357; 67 M.L.J. 912; 12 B. 500=1934 B. 389 (F.B.); 1933 P. 584; 141 I.C. 767=1933 Pat. 159; 12 Pat. 862=14 P.L.T. 651=1933 P. 575 (F.B.). In cases where a P. Note is given in payment for goods sold and delivered, the presumption would be that the note is given as conditional payment for the goods sold and delivered. In such cases, when the note is inadmissible as being unstamped, the original debt can be availed of by the seller for the purpose of recovering the amount due to him, irrespective of it. Per Chief Justice and Pandrang Row, JJ. (Cornish, J., contra).—Where the P. Note is part and parcel of the transaction of loan, and itself contains all the terms, it must, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, be taken to be the contract, and no contract alundi can be proved. 59 M. 268=1936 M. 179=70 M.L.J. 267 (F.B.). See also 1937 A.L.J. 360; 169 I.C. 780=1937 A. 439. ing is not debarred from proving his title to the holding although the mortgage deed, being not registered, was not receivable in evidence and other evidence to prove the nature of the transaction was no admissible. 1932 A.L.J. 101=140 I.C. 42=1932 A. 259. Where a mortgage deed is alleged to have been executed and registered oral evidence to prove the transaction is inadmissible. 14 L.R. 148 (Rev.)=17 R.D. 241. Where the mortgage deed is clear and unambiguous and actually applies to existing facts, parol evidence is admissible. 147 I.C. 633=1934 A. 100 (2). Endorsement of payment of mortgage bond not registered—Admissibility of oral evidence to prove payment. 100 I.C. 129. Mortgages executed in favour of creditor—Debtor if can subsequently ask for taking of accounts regarding amounts covered by mortgage. 31 C.W.N. 179=1926 P.C. 129 (P.C.). As to secondary evidence of contents of mortgage document, see 5 R. 650. Where a gift has been effected by an instrument, only the conduct of the parties can be considered for the purpose of showing that the transaction is not what it purports to be. 104 I.C. 229=1927 O. 278. Bond silent as to interest—Oral evidence to prove agreement to pay interest is admissible. 100 I.C. 794=1927 N. 195. Where a mortgage was alleged to be in writing but the same was proved by circumstantial evidence, such as recitals in deeds deferring to the mortgage extracts from account books and by a transfer of a share of the mortgage, held, that the written mortgage not having been proved, the circumstantial evidence was not rendered inadmissible by sec. 91 of this Act, or sec. 49 of the Registration Act. Held also that there being no prejudice, the plaintiff could abandon the written mortgage and contend that it was unwritten. 30 Bom.L. R. 1277=1928 B. 484. In order to explain a decree one can look at the judgment and at the pleadings; where however the point of doubt is not determinable from them the Court may permit oral evidence to be adduced in order to correct the misleading descriptions in the decree. 147 I.C. 23=35 P.L.R. 20=1934 L. 181. Award effecting out-and-out partition—Extrinsic evidence to show that some members remained undivided—Admissibility of. 55 M.L.J. 132. As a private unregistered award dealing with immovable property of over 100 Rs. is inadmissible in evidence no secondary evidence of its contents can be given. Though it cannot be said to be a contract or a grant, it would fall within the category of 'any other disposition of property' and hence under sec. 91, no oral evidence can be given in proof of its terms. 1942 A.W.R. (Rev.) 502=1942 O.A. (Supp.) 528=1942 O.W. N. (B.R.) 758. Where an unregistered partition deed is relied upon by the defence in a partition action, though the deed may be inadmissible in evidence, being unregistered that does not prevent any other evidence being admissible to prove merely the factum of separation in order to defeat the plaintiff's claim. 177 I.C. 682=1938 P.W.N. 799=1938 P. 603; 34 P.L.R. 1033=1933 L. 194; 144 I.C. 312=1933 N. 270; 145 I.C. 833=1933 R. 249; 12 Mys.L.J. 236; 6 R. 337=1928 R. 196. Family arrangement reduced to form of document inadmissible for want of registration. Evidence relating to contents of document is admissible. 26 A.L.J. 952 (F.B.). Joint and several liability of executors under a P. Note—Oral agreement splitting up the liability into several and divisible liability of each can be proved. 27 L.W. 820=1928 M. 173. P. Note—Suit on original consideration permissible when debt is provable apart from P. Note. 26 A.L.J. 415. When there has been an oral sale of property worth less than one hundred rupees by payment of the price and delivery of possession, the fact that some time later an unregistered sale deed is passed on to the vendee does not prevent evidence of the oral sale being adduced. 44 L.W. 949=1937 M. 265. See also 19 Pat.L.T. 489. A letter which merely states that a certain sale is a fictitious transaction, does not purport or operate to extinguish any right, and is admissible in evidence. I.L.R. (1945) Nag. 510=1945 N. 102; 1945 N.L.J. 89. Where the terms of a contract originally made by parol are reduced to writing, sec. 91 applies and oral evidence is not admissible. 28 L.W. 234=1938 M. 546. But where a contract of marriage is not signed by either of the contracting parties but is in the nature of a memorandum prepared by a nikah-khwan belonging to the Sharia Department of Musal it is open to one of the parties to prove by other oral or documentary evidence that he or she had been married and also the terms. 1934 L. 705. Although a wakf may be created by word of mouth once the terms of the dedications have been put in writing, the document itself or secondary evidence of the same should be tendered. 8 P. 484=1929 P. 410. An agreement to refer to arbitration is not a contract, grant or other disposition of property and so sec. 91 does not apply to it. 116 I.C. 853=1929 A. 415. Bill of exchange or hundi does not necessarily embody whole contract between parties. If it embodies the whole contract, other evidence to the form of a document, have been proved according to the last section, no evidence of any oral agreement or statement shall be admitted, as between the parties to any such instrument or their representatives in interest, for the purpose of contradicting, varying, adding to or subtracting from, its terms :

to prove the terms cannot be allowed. 51 A. 530=1929 A. 254. Since the act of depositing is a physical act which can always be proved by any one who has heard the statement being made, the fact of depositing might be proved by any one who has seen and heard the witness. 115 I.C. 147=1929 M. 187. Where the mortgage deed provided compound interest, oral agreement to pay simple interest cannot be proved under secs. 91 and 92. 27 A.L.J. 866=119 I.C. 92. Where property is conveyed by an unregistered sale deed, though the document cannot be relied upon for the purpose of establishing title, it may be referred to for the purpose of understanding the nature of the contract between the parties and to prove delivery of possession. To such a case sec. 91 does not apply. 10 P.L.T. 449=1929 P. 620. See also 1937 N. 116. Even though a contract in writing was signed only by a certain party, oral evidence could be added to show that another person was also a party to the arrangement or was bound by it. 159 I.C. 1005=43 L.W. 218=1936 M. 5.

SECS. 91 AND 92.—Sec. 91 only excludes oral evidence as to the terms of a written contract. Sec. 92 only excludes oral evidence to vary the terms of the written contract. There is nothing in either section to exclude oral evidence to show that there was no agreement between the parties and therefore no contract and that a document executed by a party was never intended to operate as an agreement, but was a sham or fictitious document brought into existence solely for the purpose of creating evidence about some other matter. 1938 A. 132=1937 A.L.J. 1352. See also 174 I.C. 309=1938 M. 320=(1938) 1 M.L.J. 236; 177 I.C. 6=1938 N. 335 (F.B.). Where an endorsement of payment has been made on the back of a bond and it does not specify whether it was towards principal or interest. Secs. 91 and 92 would stand in the way of the admission of any oral evidence to show that the payment was in fact made towards interest. 1939 O.W.N. 201=14 Luck. 456=1939 O. 142.

SEC. 92.—The Evidence Act is not altered by the Negotiable Instruments Act, sec. 46 of the Negotiable Instruments Act does not exclude the application of sec. 92 of the Evidence Act in suits on negotiable instruments; sec. 46 of the Negotiable Instruments Act and sec. 92 of the Evidence Act must be read together. I.L.R. (1942) Kar. 516. The Court in considering whether oral evidence can be given or not has to look to the Evidence Act and the equitable considerations which have influenced the English Courts in like cases have no application in this country. 35 Bom.L.R. 1197=1934 B. 39. Sec. 92 clearly refers to a contract, grant or other disposition of property entered into by agreement between the parties to the document. It cannot refer to a decree which is imposed upon one of the parties by force majeure. The section cannot, therefore, bar the setting up of an oral contract to operate as an adjustment of a decree. 1941 L. 149=43 P.L.R. 192=I.L.R. (1941) 1. 383 (F.B.). See also 1943 Pesh. 29. Evidence to prove an oral adjustment of a decree is not inadmissible under the section. I.L.R. (1943) 1 Cal. 195. Prior correspondence to vary terms of mortgage deed inadmissible. 1933 L. 1094. See also 12 Mys.L.J. 11. But where a letter was sent by mortgagee, acting as agent of mortgagor, and containing the scope of the security and the terms, held it was admissible. 148 I.C. 721=1934 R. 61. Where most of the sansads are in a stereotyped form, in any particular case, the intention of the parties could be ascertained by reference to the terms of the settlement embodied in the correspondence. 150 I.C. 635=36 Bom.L.R. 158=1934 B. 145. Where a usufructuary mortgage is reduced to writing but is unregistered no other evidence of its terms could be given because of sec. 92. 1938 N. L.J. 123. Where the mortgagee under a simple mortgage happens also to be a tenant of the mortgagor and the former sets up an oral agreement between him and his mortgagor that the rent due by him for the land is to be set-off against the interest due to him from the mortgagor, there is no bar to the proof of such an agreement. 1946 A.L.W. 5=1946 O.W.N. (H.C.) 5. It is, open to prove that an agreement purporting to provide for maintenance was never intended to be given effect to or acted upon but was in fact brought about with the sole object of securing an acknowledgment of the undivided status of the person by the insertion of a recital to that effect as a preamble to the deed of maintenance. 30 L.W. 817=63 M.L.J. 707. Secs. 91 and 92 only apply when the document on the face of it contains or appears to contain all the terms of the contract. 56 B. 180=34 Bom.L.R. 26=1932 B. 151. See 92 is applicable only to parties to instrument and their representatives. See 10 A. 421; 25 A. 337; 2 C.L.J. 338; 42 B. 512; 1930 A.L.J. 724; 1928 O. 472; 6 B. 376; 1930 A.L.J. 926; 1932 O. 168; 36 Bom.L.R. 158=1934 B. 145; 38 C.W.N. 1004=1934

See 1 Luck. 160=3 O.W.N. 248=1926 O. 273. Section is not applicable to strangers, i.e., persons not parties to the contract. 104 I.C. 786; 1937 Rang.L.R. 13=1937 R. 220. The words "between the parties to any such instrument" in sec. 92 refer to the parties who on the one side and the other came together to make the contract or disposition of property, and do not apply to questions raised between the parties on the one side only of a deed regarding their relations to each other under the contract. 1941 P. 211=1941 O. 739. It does not prevent proof of a fraudulent dealing with a third person's property or proof of notice that the property purporting to be absolutely conveyed in fact belonged to a third person who was not a party to the conveyance. 6 R. 741=1929 R. 86. Where in a mortgage with possession provides that redemption would be effected on payment of the "entire mortgage money" by the mortgagor, evidence of a subsequent oral agreement for delivery of possession on payment of a portion of the mortgage money is inadmissible. But this does not preclude the Courts from coming to a finding on the question of fact whether the mortgagor's possession of the property was unlawful or by consent of parties. 1936 O.W.N. 1086=1937 O. 7. See also 15 Mys.L.J. 237. It merely prescribes a rule of evidence. It does not fetter the Court's power to arrive at the true meaning and effect of a transaction in the light of all the surrounding circumstances. 107 I.C. 658=1929 N. 91. Where the wording of the contract is capable of different interpretations, the Court is justified in finding with what intention a particular expression was used as a matter of pure construction. Sec. 92 has no reference to the interpretations of the terms of a contract. 55 C. 808. Oral evidence of intention is not admissible for the purpose of construing a deed or ascertaining the intention of the parties. The case has to be decided on a consideration of the contents of the document with such extrinsic evidence of surrounding circumstances as might be required to show in what manner the language of the document was related to the existing facts. 46 P.L.R. 101. It is perhaps a moot point whether oral evidence is admissible to determine the intention of the parties. It is certainly not admissible if the document is unambiguous but if there is doubt then it is permissible. I.L.R. (1933) N. 604=178 I.C. 293=1938 N. 434. The rule that the conduct of the parties in respect to an instrument may be looked to in construing a document, is subject to this reservation that it can be admitted only after every other means to construe a deed have been exhausted. [(1842) 1 Dr. & War. 353, Foll.] 108 I.C. 418=1928 P. 225. Oral evidence of intention of parties is inadmissible. But evidence under sec. 92 (b) regarding the attendant circumstances is admissible. 1929 M. 807. See also 171 I.C. 702=1937 R. 142. Evidence to prove that some executants of the P. Note signed in the capacity of surety only is inadmissible under sec. 92. Even where the contention is that one of the debtors signed as surety to the knowledge of the promisee, evidence to prove it is not admissible and it cannot affect the right of the promisee. (1924 R. 360, Expl.) 1937 R. 82=168 I.C. 477. It is doubtful whether evidence is admissible in the case of consent decree to explain the ambiguity. (1927 M. 911, Ref.) 144 I.C. 95=1933 M. 516. Where a gift of the remainder which was invalid under the Mahomedan Law was sought to be validated by evidence as to the consent of the donee of the life estate to such an arrangement such oral evidence is clearly inadmissible. 108 I.C. 637=1928 M. 613. Maintenance grant by Hindu husband in favour of wife—Condition as to chastity imposed by Hindu Law—Same not mentioned in deed—Enforcing condition as to chastity whether amounts to violation of the provisions of sec. 92. 9 P. L.T. 397. Registered mortgage deed—Contemporaneous written varthamanam providing for payments towards mortgage deed is admissible. The varthamanam is not compulsorily registrable under sec. 17 (b) of Registration Act. 27 L.W. 47=1928 M. 362. Where a lease from month to month is registered, a subsequent oral agreement which modifies the contract of the lease is not admissible in evidence. 1939 P. 428. No oral agreement is admissible to prove variation of the terms of a registered lease including a term as to the payment of rent, notwithstanding the fact that the lessee has paid and the lessor has accepted, rent at a reduced rate for many years. 206 I.C. 401=A.I.R. 1943 Pat. 152. Though a contemporaneous oral agreement, for re-purchase between the parties to a conveyance, cannot be proved as between the parties, it can be proved if one of the parties is not actually a party to the conveyance. 6 R. 376=11 I. C. 832=1928 R. 244. See also 5 R. 836. Sale deed registered—Recital that vendee should as part-consideration for the sale, discharge mortgage debts of the vendor—Oral evidence to show that the recital was false and the liability intended to remain with vendor is inadmissible. 1928 O. 148; 1939 P. 142. An express covenant for title or for freedom from incumbrances cannot be regarded as a mere recital which can be contradicted by oral evidence. Such a covenant is a term of the contract of sale itself and any oral evidence to contradict the same falls within the mischief of sec. 92, Evidence Act. Even the statutory covenant for title must be deemed to be embodied in every sale deed in the absence of a contract to the contrary. When therefore the sale deed expressly recites that the seller has not created any incumbrance on the property, oral evidence cannot be admitted to show that the sale was in fact subject to an incumbrance. 1945 M. 205=58 L. W. 121=(1945) 1 M.L.J. 323. Ordinarily the title to immovable property transferred by sale passes on the registration of the sale deed. But the parties may agree that title shall not pass until the consideration is completely paid. In contracts of sale there are recitals of the receipt of the purchase money as well as terms providing for the passing of the property. The strictly contractual part, that is to say, the arrangement as to when the property shall pass is, if the contract has been reduced to writing, to be determined solely from the words of the writing and evidence is not admissible for the purpose of contradicting, varying, adding to, or subtracting from its terms as mentioned in sec. 92. The question when the property is to pass is a matter of contract. If the terms of the contract as to when the property is to pass are ambiguous, then recourse may be had to external evidence to determine what the intention of the parties was, but if the intention of the parties has been stated in unambiguous terms then the terms must remain the sole criterion of the intention of the parties, and evidence cannot be introduced for the purpose of showing that the contract means something other than what it expresses in unambiguous terms. 17 P. 318=1938 P. 505. An oral agreement between the endorser and the endorsee of a negotiable instrument that the endorsee will recover the amount of the instrument from the drawer only is admissible under proviso 2. 105 I.C. 747=1928 S. 50. In a suit on promissory oral evidence to prove that money had been borrowed by both the defendants and that defendant having "witness" before his signature, was one of the executors and not a witness, is admissible. 1930 A. 709. In a suit for recovery of rent, held that oral evidence to prove the rescission of the registered lease was inadmissible. 1933 L. 278=145 I.C. 176. Wrong description of name in deed is a latent ambiguity and parol evidence is admissible. 1931 O. 54. Mistake—Palpable error—Equity, if sanctions admission of evidence to expose error. See 1938 N. 259. The word "fraud" used in the proviso is wide enough to include a fraud on the registration law. Thus a party can show that an item was fictitiously put in. Scope of proviso discussed. 1933 A.L.J. 926. Document silent as to interest two joint transferees—Evidence of subsequent conduct is admissible. 1930 M. 690. In case of a clerical mistake, it can be proved by parol evidence under sec. 92. 1930 A. 337 (1). Mortgage deed—Interest agreed to be paid at one per cent. per month—Words "per cent" omitted inadvertently—Admissibility of oral evidence—Evidence Act, sec. 93, is not applicable as there is no patent ambiguity. 7 O.W.N. 14=1930 O. 95. Where a bond declares that money is to be repaid with interest at a certain rate, an oral contract to the effect that no interest is to be paid but the person is to be in possession of a certain piece of land and to pay himself the interest out of the usufruct cannot be proved. 122 I.C. 894 (2)=1930 A. 440. See also 1936 A.M.L.J. 107. Where there is a registered kabuliyat providing for the payment of rent any oral agreement between the parties as to the retention of such rent for interest due on loan cannot be allowed in evidence as it varies definite terms of the registered instrument. 1942 O.W.N. (B.R.) 420=1942 O.A. (Supp.) 317. Oral evidence may be let in prove an agreement to pay interest though there is no mention of such an agreement in a balance struck in the creditor's book. 1932 L. 652. It is not open to a party to a document to prove by oral evidence, a variation in the amount of consideration of the document though it is open to him to prove want of consideration or failure of consideration or a difference in kind of consideration. A vendor cannot adduce oral evidence to prove that the consideration for the sale was that stated in the sale deed plus an undertaking by the vendee to discharge an existing mortgage on the property. 1930 M. 659=58 M.L.J. 240. See also 189 I.C. 423=1940 C. 379; 174 I.C. 309=1938 M. 320=(1938) 1 M.L.J. 236. Suit on money bond—Provision for repayment in cash—Plea that payment should be made by medical services to be rendered—Not open—Evidence to prove plea not admissible. 1936 A.M.L.J. 107. Extraneous oral evidence is inadmissible especially when the terms of the bond are clear. The parties must be presumed to know the difference between interest on interest and compound interest and if they deliberately choose to use one expression they cannot be permitted to prove that they meant the other. 1931 N. 25. Acknowledgment is not a document contemplated in sec. 92. It is neither contract, grant nor disposition of property nor analogous to any of them. 26 N.L.R. 320. Oral promise made at the time of acknowledgment of a contract of loan is admissible. 26 N.L.R. 320. The law is well settled that to prove an acknowledgment of liability oral evidence of the intention of the party said to have made the acknowledgment is not admissible for construing the writing given. It is equally settled that in construing such a writing it is legitimate to look to the surrounding circumstances. 45 C.W.N. 208. A contract of simple money debt is not one required by law to be reduced to the form of a document. 26 N.L.R. 320. The prohibition in sec. 92 is only as regards evidence sought to be adduced for the purpose of contradicting, varying, adding to or subtracting from the terms of a contract. So long as the passing of consideration is not a term of the contract, evidence adduced to show that it did pass, even though the contract does not recite it, is not within the scope of the prohibition in sec. 92. Where a letter evidences the terms of a contract under which possession of land is supported on the basis of part performance, if the contract does not recite the consideration for the transfer there is no prohibition to proof alunde of consideration. (1945) 1 M.L.J. 346.

SECS. 91 AND 92.—Income-tax assessment proceedings—Income-tax Officer—Right to go behind recitals in registered document as to consideration. 1944 I.T.R. 458.

SEC. 92, Prov. (1).—The statement of law in Amir Ali's Evidence that though evidence to vary the terms of an agreement in writing is not admissible, yet evidence that there is not an agreement at all is admissible, is too wide and must be qualified by the express proviso. 1 to 3 to sec. 92. 49 A. 680=1927 A. 422. Proviso (1) has no application in a case where the instrument repre-such as fraud, intimidation, illegality, want of due execution, want of capacity in any contracting party, [want of failure]¹ or consideration, or mistake in fact or law.

(2) The existence of any separate oral agreement as to any matter on which a document is silent, and which is not inconsistent with its terms, may be proved. In considering whether or not this proviso applies, the Court shall have regard to the degree of formality of the document.

sents what the parties intended to put down in writing, though it might not be in accordance with what they intended to do and with the legal effect that they secretly wanted to bring about, but which, for some reason, they did not want to put in writing. Where a person transfers certain property by a deed of gift, it is not open to him to say that when he gave the property he did not do it. The donor is not himself entitled to have the deed set aside on the ground that his intention was that it should operate on his death, especially so when there is no evidence that the donor, giving away practically the whole of his property wanted to retain any sort of control after the date of gift. 171 I.C. 702=1937 R. 143. See also 1945 Pat. 311. Where in a printed form of a P. Note after mentioning, the interest payable, there is an omission to state that it is—per cent. oral evidence can be let in to show what was the agreement between the parties and it is a case to which proviso (1) applies. 1939 A. W.R. (H.C.) 171=1939 A.L.J. 196; 1939 A. 308. The wording of the proviso (1) and especially the use of the words 'such as' clearly show that the illustrations are not meant to be exhaustive. 1939 N.L.J. 33=1939 N. 20. The mistakes contemplated by proviso (1) to sec. 92 are genuine and accidental mistakes, just as a misdescription of the property. 184 I.C. 585=1939 Pesh. 41. There is nothing in proviso (1) to suggest that the facts which may be proved under that proviso can only be proved in support of a claim to which those facts give rise, and such facts may be pleaded by way of defence only. The validity of every contract depends on the presence of animus contrahendi the intention to contract. When a written contract is challenged on the ground of mistake common to all parties, the remedy is rectification on the ground that the written instrument does not give effect to the agreement which the parties actually entered into. All that the Court has to do in such case is to rectify, not the contract, but the document embodying it. and put that document into such a form as to carry out the contract which the parties really entered into. When there is unilateral mistake the position is different because in that case there is, in fact, no contract. The minds of the parties were not at one; one intended one thing, and the other intended something else, and if any relief can be granted, it must be rescission. 41 Bom.L.R. 191=I.L.R. (1939) B. 149=1939 B. 151. Under Proviso 1, oral evidence is admissible to prove that the khasa numbers of the land sold were wrongly entered in the sale-deed particularly when both the vendor and the vendee admit that a mutual mistake of fact had crept into the sale-deed. 188 I.C. 813=42 P.L.R. 222=1940 L. 236. Where in a suit on mortgage bonds which stipulated for payment of compound interest, the defendant alleged that at the time of the execution of the bonds, he was persuaded to sign them only on the plaintiff's promising not to enforce that stipulation. Held, that such evidence would be admissible under the first proviso to show that the signature to the document was obtained by fraud at the inception. 61 C. 344=1934 C. 564. Though a document says there was a consideration and states exactly what it was a party may show that there was none or that it has failed. In the same way there is no reason why the other party should not be allowed to show that the consideration was paid in full, not in cash but in kind. 1939 N.L.J. 33=1939 N. 20; (1933) 1 M.L.J. 236. Where under a kabuliyaat two hals of land were settled with a tenant, at a certain rate, a separate oral agreement that one of the hals would be given rent free is not admissible in evidence although evidence that the kabuliyaat was not intended to be acted upon at all would be admissible under proviso (1) I.L.R. (1938) 1 C. 48=176 I.C. 972=1938 C. 356. Plea of want of consideration may be proved in a suit on P. Note. 108 I.C. 183; 1934 A. 496=148 I.C. 1124. Where a plaintiff makes no claim for rectification regarding the rate of interest contained in the mortgage instrument, the proviso 1 does not empower a plaintiff suing on an unambiguous unreformed and registered deed to lead evidence to show that by a mistake a term has been omitted from the deed. 54 M. 978=61 M.L.J. 437. See on this proviso 59 C. 1111=1932 C. 708; 189 I.C. 221=34 Bom. L.R. 971; 140 I.C. 104=1932 P. 332; 56 B. 180=137 I.C. 478; 35 C.W.N. 279. An obligor is not tied up from pleading any matter which shows that the bond was given upon an illegal consideration, whether consistent or not with the condition of the bond. The validity of a document may be challenged on the ground of the illegality of the transaction. 19 P. 424=188 I.C. 859=1940 P.W.N. 878=1940 P. 573. Under proviso (1), it is open to a Life Insurance Company to prove facts which show that the contract of insurance was illegal. The company is, therefore, entitled to prove facts showing that the insurance was really effected by the assignee of the policy for his own use and benefit and not for the use and benefit of the assured. 42 P.L.R. 801=1941 L. 33.

SEC. 92, PROV. 2.—A separate oral agreement on a distinct and collateral matter, although a part of the same transaction would come within proviso (2), if the original instrument is silent on the point which is the subject-matter of the agreement. 41 C.W. N. 1053=1937 O. 619. The parties to a conveyance are not in view of the second proviso, prevented from proving the existence of a separate oral agreement to the effect that the vendee would proceed no further in the prosecution of his claim for certain money debts not specified in the deed of conveyance and the vendor cannot be prevented from attempting to prove that there was such an agreement. 18 Pat. 318=181 I.C. 184=1939 P. 411. Where a sir land had been mortgaged by the proprietor who afterwards sold the equity of redemption, he cannot be allowed to give oral evidence of a separate agreement to give up proprietary rights. 14 L.R. 425 (Rev.)=17 R. D. 500. Oral evidence is admissible to prove a collateral agreement regarding lessee's right of pre-emption. 138 I.O. 774=1934 P.C. 231=63 M.L.J. 408 (P.C.). See also 1935 A. 322 (agreement for interest); 1939 A. 248=1939 A.L.J. 46.

SEC. 92, PROV. 3.—It was not intended by proviso 3 to permit the terms of a written contract to be varied by a contemporaneous oral agreement; the proper meaning of proviso is that a contemporaneous oral agreement to the effect that a written contract was to be of no force at all until the happening of a certain event may be proved. I.L.R. (1942) Kar. 516. It is necessary to distinguish a collateral agreement which alters the legal effect of the instrument from an agreement that the instrument should not be an effective instrument until some condition is fulfilled, or to put it in another form, it is necessary to distinguish an agreement in defeasance of the contract from an agreement suspending the coming into force of the contract. Where a P. Note is, by its express terms, payable on demand that is at once the obligation under the note attaches immediately. A collateral oral agreement not to make demand until certain specified condition is fulfilled has the intention and effect of suspending the coming into force of that obligation, which is the contract contained in the P. Note. Thus the oral agreement constitutes a condition precedent to the attaching of the obligation and is within the terms of Proviso 3. 40 Bom.L.R. 1075=1938 P.C. 198=(1938) 2 M.L.J. 469 (P.C.). See also 1939 P.W.N. 200=20 P.L.J. 514=1939 P. 495. Proviso (3) presupposes that in a case to which it could be applied the contract, grant or other disposition of property itself remains intact, but that the condition precedent pleaded must in its very nature be extraneous to the contract, grant or disposition itself and as agreed must come into existence before the obligation attaches thereunder. 41 Bom. L.R. 1263. The words "any obligation" mean any obligation whatever under the contract, and not some particular obligation which the contract may contain. 1932 C. 323=59 O. 106. As to scope of the proviso, see ibid. See also 1932 L. 549=33 P.L.R. 712. As regards scope and applicability as to the meaning of the term 'condition precedent,' see 33 Bom.L.R. 490; I.L.R. (1939) Kar. 523=1939 S. 299; 41 Bom.L.R. 1263. Pronote pleads absence of consideration and asserts that the note was executed as between such third person and himself it is security for money which might be found between such third person and himself, it is a plea that the proof of the existence of amount due to the third person is a condition precedent to the enforcement of the liability under the note and where the plaintiff admits the existence of such a condition precedent, the burden at once falls upon him to satisfy the Court that the condition precedent has already been satisfied. 1943 A.L.W. 82. In a suit on a promissory note payable on demand, it is not open to the defendant to plead or prove any contemporaneous oral agreement that no sum is payable until accounts have been taken in a certain partnership and then only so much as is shown to be due to the plaintiff's firm because such an agreement is clearly an attempt to alter the express terms of the written contract embodied in the pronote is not admissible under sec. 92. I.L.R. (1942) Kar. 516. In a suit on a promissory note the defendant admitted the execution but pleaded that the consideration merely represented a part of the consideration for a usufructuary mortgage to be executed later in favour of the plaintiff and that the note was not enforceable under any circumstances. Held, that the plea could not be allowed to be proved by oral evidence the effect of the plea being to nullify the promissory note itself. 21 Mys.L.J. 385. Where money is not advanced unconditionally upon the P. Note, but is advanced after the note had been executed and on certain conditions previously agreed upon, the promisor is entitled to prove circumstances in repudiation of his liability. 34 P.L.R. 470=1933 L. 456. Where the defendant pleads that the note sued on was only a receipt for the earnest-money for a contract of purchase by the plaintiff, that the purpose of the receipt of money has been wrongly stated in the P. Note, and that it was not intended to attach any obligation to the instrument as such, he is entitled to adduce oral evidence in support of such plea. Sec. 92 does not bar oral evidence to prove the same. 1939 P.W.N. 200=20 P.L.T. 514=1939 P. 495. Plaintiff who purchased certain properties in Court auction subject to a mortgage in the defendant's favour agreed with third parties to sell some of them with the knowledge and consent of the defendant who agreed in writing to accept piecemeal payments from the plaintiff and to release the lands which plaintiff agreed to sell to the third parties. Plaintiff having sued for specific performance of the agreement the defendant pleaded an oral agreement that the release deed was only to be given when the entire mortgage debt had been discharged, and that he was bound to give it if called upon by the plaintiffs after such discharge and not before. Held, that the arrangement set up by the defendant was not a "condition precedent to the attaching of any obligation" within the meaning of proviso (3) and hence the oral arrangement could not be admitted in evidence. 44 L.W. 749=71 M.L.J. 599. See also 44 L.W. 629=1936 M. 841=71 M.L.J. 522. Where a party to a document admits execution of the deed but pleads that the deed was never acted upon because of the non-performance of an agreement by the other party and that the deed was vitiated by fraud, it is open to him to offer evidence of fraud; and oral evidence to prove fraud or the existence of any oral agreement invalidating the deed is admissible under provisos 1 and 3 to S. 92. 24 Pat. 230=1945 P.W.N. 246=A.I.R. 1945 Pat. 311.

(4) The existence of any distinct subsequent oral agreement to rescind or modify any such contract, grant or disposition of property, may be proved, except in cases in which such contract, grant or disposition of property is by law required to be in writing, or has been registered according to the law in force for the time being as to the registration of documents.

SEC. 92, PROV. 4.—Proviso (4) to sec. 92 only permits proof of the existence of any subsequent oral agreement to modify a contract. Hence, if such an agreement is come to contemporaneously with the contract, it cannot be proved. 1943 O.W.N. (H.C.) 267 (2)=1943 A.L.J. 411=A.I.R. 1943 All. 370. There is no law in India whereby a release of mortgage should be in writing and registered. A contract of release between the mortgagor and the mortgagee may require writing under Proviso 4 and may require registration under the Registration Act. But the case is different when the contract to release is between the mortgagee on the one hand and a stranger who purchases the property released after the contract. Such an oral release is valid. 40 L.W. 942=68 M.L.J. 91. See also (1937) Rang.L.R. 13 (where a second mortgagee was held not entitled to plead the bar under this section of proof of oral agreement between mortgagor and first mortgagee to release some items of his mortgage from the mortgagee). An oral statement of a promisee that he remits the interest payable under a promissory note is not an agreement within the meaning of sec. 2 (e) of the Contract Act, but is an one-sided act on the part of the promisee, and it is, therefore, not excluded by sec. 92 (4). 47 O.W.N. 213. If a creditor waives his right under a contract or relinquishes his claim, such an act of grace does not amount to an agreement falling within the exception in proviso 4. A remission or relinquishment or discharge does not come within the mischief of proviso 4. An endorsement of payment on an agreement which, though not registrable, is registered, evidencing the receipt by the creditor of a smaller amount than is due and discharging the debtor, does not fall within the proviso and therefore parol or oral evidence to prove the creditor's waiver is admissible in evidence, although the endorsement is not itself registered. 20 Mys. L.J. 160=46 Mys.H.C.R. 516. This proviso bars proof of oral agreement by lessor to release lessee from his liabilities under the personal covenants contained in a registered lease. 60 B. 394=38 Bom.L.R. 34=161 I.C. 57=1936 B. 88. See also 1937 O. W.N. 477=1937 O. 341. Where a mortgage deed contains a stipulation that the only evidence which the parties could rely upon in support of any payments made in satisfaction of the mortgage debt should be payments endorsed on the mortgage deed itself, it does not preclude the parties from adducing other evidence to prove discharge. Sec. 92 does not bar such evidence. 192 I.C. 861=1941 P. 248. See also 196 I.C. 645. See also 23 P.L.T. 379=1942 Pat. 105. But

(5) Any usage or custom by which incidents not expressly mentioned in any contract are usually annexed to contracts of that description, may be proved :

Provided that the annexing of such incident would not be repugnant to, or inconsistent with, the express terms of the contract.

(6) Any fact may be proved which shows in what manner the language of a document is related to existing facts.

see 1940 P. 49. Though it is always open to a mortgagor to prove that on a certain day he paid the sum due under the mortgage, still when in the registered mortgage deed there is an express term that payment should be made in a certain way and unless endorsed on the deed it should not be regarded as payment at all, the mortgagor will not be allowed to prove discharge of the mortgage by subsequent oral agreement which goes to vary the terms of the mortgage. 187 I.C. 63=21 P.L.T. 437=1940 P. 49. A distinct oral agreement between co-mortgagors subsequent to the deed should, in order to be admissible under this proviso, be in writing. 137 I.C. 285=1932 M. 218. An oral agreement that a registered deed of sale should be null and of no effect until the agreement of re-purchase has been executed by the vendor cannot be proved under the provisions of prov. (4). 1933 R. 310. The expression "oral agreement" as used in proviso 4 is wide enough to include all unwritten agreements whether they are oral or they are implied from acts and conduct of the parties. But evidence of conduct is admissible to show that as between the parties the particular term was never intended to be acted upon or enforced, or to prove an estoppel or waiver. 1929 P. 717. A document purporting to be a sale deed was presented for registration. The executant denied that he had executed a sale deed and stated that he had merely agreed to execute a mortgage deed. After some dispute the parties agreed that the transaction should be treated as a mortgage and made statements to the Sub-Registrar, who recorded the terms of the mortgage agreed to by the parties and registered the document as a mortgage deed. Held, that proviso 4 did not prevent the successor-in-interest of the executant from proving that the transaction entered into between the parties was really a mortgage and not a sale. 145 I.C. 697 (1)=1933 L. 318. When the document is in terms a possessory mortgage, evidence to show that the mortgage was in reality a simple mortgage according to the intention of the parties is inadmissible under sec. 92. 60 I.A. 273=14 L. 466=65 M.L.J. 150 (P.C.). Where the subsequent oral agreement relates merely to the mode of payment of mortgage-money, evidence with respect to it is admissible. But if it is not merely an agreement as regards the mode of payment but an alteration of the mortgage itself, such as changing the original mortgage which was without possession into a usufructuary mortgage, it is not admissible. 110 I.C. 261. Subsequent to a registered mortgage parties entered into a contract by which the property was to be put in possession of the mortgagee for 5 years and the mortgage debt was to be deemed discharged. Held, that the contract to let and the letting into possession for 5 years operated as a discharge of the obligation and in no way offended the provisions of sec. 92. 162 I.C. 53 (2)=1936 M. 380. An oral agreement by the executant of a P. Note, that, instead of money being paid, payment shall be made in the form of a transfer of land cannot be proved under sec. 92 (4). 151 I.C. 398=1934 R. 228. See also 1937 R. 521. Oral evidence to prove satisfaction of a claim is admissible. 6 R. 191=1928 R. 144; but not to prove an oral agreement modifying terms of reference of a registered agreement referring matter to arbitration. 135 I.C. 230=1932 A. 154. A C.I.F. contract is not required by law to be in writing; if it is not registered, it can be legally varied by an oral agreement modifying its terms. 34 P.L.R. 266=1933 L. 453. No oral agreement is admissible to prove variation of the terms of a registered lease including a term as to the payment of rent, although rent at a reduced rate has been paid and accepted for many years. 22 Pat. 5=206 I.C. 401=A.I.R. 1943 Pat. 152. Where an oral agreement is made by two partners to dissolve the partnership earlier than originally agreed to in their registered agreement, the oral agreement and any payment made in accordance therewith is admissible in evidence. 136 I.C. 874=1932 N. 42. Plaintiff executed a sale deed to the defendant which was registered. On the same date to the defendant executed an agreement to re-convey the properties to the plaintiff which was not registered. The sale deed itself did

(b) A agrees absolutely in writing to pay B Rs. 1,000 on the 1st March, 1873 only. The fact that at the same time an oral agreement was made that the money should not be paid till the thirty-first March cannot be proved.

(c) An estate called "The Rampore Tea Estate" is sold by a deed which contains a map of the property sold. The fact that land not included in the map had always been regarded as part of the estate and was meant to pass by the deed cannot be proved.

(d) A enters into a written contract with B to work certain mines, the property of B upon certain terms. A was induced to do so by a misrepresentation of B's as to their value. This fact may be proved.

(e) A institutes a suit against B for the specific performance of a contract, and also prays that the contract may be reformed as to one of its provisions, as that provision was inserted in it by mistake. A may prove that such a mistake was made as would by law entitle him to have the contract reformed.

(f) A orders goods of B by a letter in which nothing is said as to the time of payment, and accepts the goods on delivery. B sues A for the price. A may show that the goods were supplied on credit for a term still unexpired.

(g) A sells B a horse and verbally warrants him sound. A gives B a paper in these words "Bought of A horse for Rs. 500." B may prove the verbal warranty.

(h) A hires lodgings of B, and gives a card on which is written—"Rooms, Rs. 200 a month." A may prove a verbal agreement that these terms were to include partial board.

A hires lodgings of B for a year, and a regularly stamped agreement, drawn up by an attorney is made between them. It is silent on the subject of board. A may not prove that board was included in the term verbally.

(i) A applies to B for a debt due to A by sending a receipt for the money. B keeps the receipt and does not send the money. In a suit for the amount A may prove this.

(j), A and B make a contract in writing to take effect upon the happening of a certain contingency. The writing is left with B, who sues A upon it. A may show the circumstances under which it was delivered.

93. When the language used in a document is, on its face, ambiguous or defective, evidence may not be given of facts which would show its meaning or supply its defects.

A sells to B, by deed, "my house in Calcutta." A had no house in Calcutta, but it appears that he had a house at Howrah, of which B had been in possession since the execution of the deed.

These facts may be proved to show that the deed related to the house at Howrah.

that the deeds though apparently two separate transactions were agreed to be treated as one. 175 I.C. 831=1938 P. 242.

SECS. 93 AND 95.—Where the language used in an instrument in describing the property which is the subject-matter, is not on its face ambiguous or defective and is plain in itself but is somewhat unmeaning in reference to existing facts, evidence is admissible to show to which property it was meant to apply. 76 C.L.J. 183.

SEC. 94: DOCUMENT CLEAR AND UNAMBIGUOUS.—Section does not apply in case of misdescription. 194 I.C. 736. As to oral evidence of one not a party to document, see 57 P.L.R. 1915; 16 O.C. 213=21 I.C. 429. Where the language of a document like a deed of compromise is clear and applies without difficulty to the facts of the case, no extrinsic evidence can be admitted for the purpose of affecting its interpretation. 40 I.C. 491. Contemporaneous circumstances and subsequent conduct of the parties are not admissible when there is no ambiguity in the deed and legal construction can be put on it. 195 I.C. 242=1941 O. 507. Sale deed—Language plain—Mistake in boundaries—Area described correctly—Extrinsic evidence—Admissibility. 150 I.C. 363=36 P.L.R. 61. On this section, see 3 Bom.L.R. 768; 1925 M.W.N. 325; 38 A. 103; 41 M.L.J. 475; 1939 A.W.R. (H.C.) 173. Oral evidence to show that one of the executants of a bond signed it only as a surety is not admissible. 5 R. 168=1927 R. 199. Sec. 94 does not prevent a party to a document from proving that both the parties to the document were under a mistake of fact as to the contents of the document when they signed it. 122 I.C. 493=1930 L. 446. Where in the case of a sale-deed it is not the seller alone who is trying to get out of the bargain but the seller and the purchaser both agree that the intention was to enter into the deed land bearing different khasra numbers, and that the mistake was mutual, it is open to the parties to produce evidence to show what was intended to be sold and purchased. Sec. 94 is not applicable in such circumstances. 188 I.C. 813=42 P.L.R. 222=1940 L. 286.

SEC. 95.—Though the sale-deeds containing recitals that the property belong to the vendors is not admissible under sec. 13, they are admissible under secs. 95 and 96 to explain the expression used in the documents that property is the vendor's family property. 1914 M.W.N. 779=26 I.C. 747. Release deed conditional—Extrinsic evidence of claim released admissible. See 20 M.L.J. 383=6 I.C. 758; 21 I.C. 69. MARRIAGE.—In a case where all the facts are proved by ample evidence and the Court is in a position exactly to say what happened, no importance need be attached to the rule as regards burden of proof. It is only in cases where evidence is meagre and the Court is not in a position definitely to know what happened that the technical rule as to burden of proof is to be observed. 1939 M.L.R. 244 (Civ.). See also I.L.R. J. & K. 21.

SECS. 101, 105-106.—Per Dunkley, J.—The phrase "burden of proof" is used in two distinct meanings in the Indian Evidence Act, viz., the burden of establishing a case and the burden of introducing evidence. In a criminal trial the burden of proving everything essential to the establishment of the charge against the accused lies upon the prosecution, and that burden never changes. This principle is enacted in sec.

101, and in this section the term "burden of proof", is used in the first of its meanings, namely, the burden of establishing a case. But it would clearly impose an impossible task on the prosecution if the prosecution were required to anticipate every possible defence of the accused and to establish that each such defence could not be made out, and of this task the prosecution is relieved by provisions of sec. 105 and its closely allied section, sec. 106. In sec. 105 the phrase "burden of proof" is clearly used in its second sense, namely, the duty of introducing evidence. The way of the accused under sec. 105 is to introduce such evidence as will displace the presumption of the absence of circumstances bringing the case within an exception in the Penal Code, and will suffice to satisfy the Court that such circumstances may have existed. The burden of the issue as to the non-existence of such circumstances is then shifted to the prosecution, which has still to discharge the major burden of proving on the whole case the guilt of the accused beyond reasonable doubt. The conclusion, therefore, is that if the Court either is satisfied from the examination of the accused and the evidence adduced by him or from circumstances appearing from the prosecution evidence that the existence of circumstances bringing the case within the exception or exceptions placed by the accused has been proved, or upon a review of all the evidence is left in reasonable doubt whether such circumstances do exist or not the accused, in the case of a general exception, is entitled to be acquitted, or, in the case of a special exception, can be convicted only of the minor offence. 14 R. 666=1937 R. 83 (F.B.). See also 1941 A.L.J. 619=1941 A. 402 (F.B.) The test is not whether the accused has proved beyond all reasonable doubt that he comes within any exception to the Indian Penal Code but whether in setting up his defence he has established a reasonable doubt in the case of the prosecution and has thereby earned his right to an acquittal. 14 R. 666=1937 R. 83 (F.B.).

Sec. 102.—The section embodies a test as to which party would be successful if no evidence at all were given. 3 A. 85; 162 I.C. 21=1936 P. 243; 38 P.L.R. 427. In criminal cases the onus of proving be-

Therefore the burden of proof is on A.

(b) A sues B for money due on a bond.

The execution of the bond is admitted, but B says that it was obtained by fraud, which A denies.

If no evidence were given on either side, A would succeed as the bond is not disputed and the fraud is not proved.

Therefore the burden of proof is on B.

103. The burden of proof as to any particular fact lies on that person who wishes the Court to believe in its existence, unless it is provided by any law that the proof of that fact shall lie on any particular person.

The burden of of proving that a suit is barred under O. 2, r. 2, C.P.Code, is upon the defendant. 102 I.C. 31 (20 C. 716, Foll.). In a suit for ejectment, even though the defendant has no title, he can still put the plaintiff to the proof of his title and the plaintiff has still to show that the title deed on which he relies as having given him a title superior to that of the defendant is a valid one. 28 L.W. 82=1928 M. 840. When once the execution of a document is proved, if a party alleges circumstances that would make the document not binding on him, it is for him to prove such circumstances. 116 I.C. 143; 39 P.L.R. 42. Onus is on him to prove want of consideration. 1930 L. 65. Though as between parties to a document the admission of proof of execution would shift the onus on to the party denying consideration yet a person who is not a party to the document in question cannot be held liable on alleged receipts of payments unless there is evidence to prove that the money was actually paid. 1935 L. 14. on it by sec. 102. The burden of proof so far as the entire 'proceeding' is concerned, remains on the prosecution even though the burden of the 'fact in issue' pleaded by the accused is cast upon him. Hence it is manifest that even in cases to which sec. 105 applies the prosecution has to prove the guilt of the accused. 1941 O.A. (Supp.) 885 (1)=1941 A.L.J. 619=1941 A. 402 (F.B.). Sec. 105: Principles of the Section.—See 20 A. 459; 11 C.W.N. 1085; 1905 A.W.N. 2; 25 Cr.L.J. 1077; 1925 N. 37; 14 R. 666=1937 R. 83. Even in a case to which sec. 105 applies an accused may rely upon an exception in his defence and fail to prove it, and yet be entitled to a acquittal, for the prosecution may have failed to prove all the necessary elements in the offence of which the accused has been charged, or the accused may by his statement, read with the other evidence on record, have raised a reasonable doubt in the mind of the Court and so have entitled himself to an acquittal. 1939 S. 209=194 I.C. 474. Burden of proof that case comes within exceptions of the Penal Code. See 6 A. 220; 1898 A.W.N. 209. See also I.L.R. (1940) Kar. 249=1939 S. 209; 1940 P.W.N. 795. Once the prosecution is found to have established that an offence was committed by the accused the burden of proving the existence of circumstances bringing his case within any of the General Exceptions in the Penal Code or within any special exception contained in any other part of that Code must lie on the accused and the Court has to presume the absence of such circumstances. Thus the burden of proving that the accused had acted in exercise of the right of self-defence which is in the nature of an exception is on him. This burden can be discharged otherwise than by producing defence evidence but in those cases the version of the accused must be proved to have been established or in any case prima facie made out either by the prosecution evidence or by circumstances proved on behalf of the prosecution or elicited by the accused in his cross-examination of the witnesses for the prosecution. The accused need not be called upon to establish right of self-defence unless the prosecution has succeeded in proving a case. But in a case where it has succeeded in making out the main facts the prosecution cannot be thrown out merely because the prosecution evidence is to be regarded as unreliable on a few points. 45 P.L.R. 393. There is no distinction between a case in which the exception is contained in the body of the statute imposing the prohibition and a case in which it is not so included. 43 Bom, Burden of proving fact especially within knowledge.

106. When any fact is especially within the knowledge of any person, the burden of proving that fact is upon him.

L.R. 519=1941 Bom. 273. It is for the accused to prove the facts essential for the purpose of bringing his case within any of the exceptions. 144 I.C. 420=1933 R. 142. See also 165 I.C. 458=1936 O.W.N. 1013. Even though the accused denies in toto the facts alleged, if it appear from the evidence for the prosecution that there are reasonable grounds for holding that the case falls within one exception, the presumption enacted in the last line of S. 105 does not arise at all. The burden is on the prosecution to establish guilt of the accused beyond reasonable doubt, and if upon a review of all the materials on the record there appears a reasonable doubt as to whether the case falls within any exception, the prosecution has failed to discharge that burden, and the accused must be acquitted or convicted only of the minor offence, as the case may be. 14 R. 666=1937 R. 83 (F.B.). Exceptions not pleaded in Court below cannot be allowed to be raised in appeal. 21 A. 121; 23 C. 604; 3 A.L.J. 652; 17 B. 573; 8 I.C. 259; 8 C.W.N. 714; 7 A.L.J. 438; 4 P.W.R. 1910 (Cr.). Proof of right of private defence. 1 C.L.R. 60. An accused setting up a plea of self-defence in answer to a charge of murder has the burden on him to prove it. In the absence of proof, it is not possible for the Court to presume the truth of the plea of self-defence although the accused is shown to have had severe injuries on his person after the crime. 52 L.W. 884=1941 M. 280=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 1018. There appears in some quarters to be the opinion that where an accused person has admitted participation in a fight, in which one of the other party is killed or injured, but pleads that he acted in the exercise of the right of self-defence, it lies heavily upon him under all circumstances to prove under section 105 the facts necessary to establish his plea. It must be remembered that in the vast majority of such cases in this country the accused persons are usually the only persons who could appear as witness in their own self-defence and they are barred from doing so by the law of procedure. The Courts, therefore, must be prepared to take their statements into consideration. In a case where the prosecution evidence is wholly unreliable and there is no other evidence to suggest that that part of their statements in which they put forward the plea of self-defence is not correct, the Court has no other alternative but to accept their statements and act upon them. 43 P.L.R. 144=1941 L. 333.

Burden of Proof in Special Cases.—As to grave and sudden provocation, see L.B.R. (1893-1900) 257; private defence. 11 C.L.R. 234; 1904 A.W.N. 113; 1930 O. 438. Fact of marriage. 1939 A.W.R. (H.C.) 811. That game is a mere game of skill, see 13 Cr.L.J. 270=23 I.C. 484; as to possession of excess Illustrative Cases.—Plea of insanity to be proved by the accused. 21 A.L.J. 776=77 I.C. 236=1924 A. 186 (2); 1935 O.W.N. 53. General exceptions under Penal Code—Onus lies on accused. But this does not mean that the accused must lead evidence. 45 A. 329=1923 A. 327 (2). See also 29 Bom.L.R. 713=1927 B. 436; 98 I.C. 707=1927 A. 119; 1939 S. 209; I.L.R. (1940) Kar. 249. The burden of proof in a criminal trial is always on the prosecution, and it is only shifted on to the accused in so far as the latter may set up the existence of circumstances bringing his case within any of the exceptions. The mere fact that the defence theory is rejected will not prove the guilt of the accused. 11 O.W.N. 1224=1934 O. 485. See also 14 R. 666=168 I.C. 193=1937 R. 83 (F.B.); 165 I.C. 458. Per Collister, J.—The onus is certainly on the Crown to prove all the facts which constitute the elements of the offence, and if there is any reasonable doubt left in the mind of the Court as to whether these facts have been established the accused person is entitled to the benefit thereof; but this general onus is subject by statute, to the special onus which S. 105, imposes on the accused person, and when the Legislature has enacted specific provisions in the Evidence Act as to what amounts to proof or disproof, the Court will not be justified in falling back upon the general principle that the Crown must prove the prisoner's guilt. 1941 A.L.J. 619=1941 A. 402 (F.B.)=I.L.R. (1941) All. 843. If it is apparent from the evidence on the record, whether produced by the prosecution or by the defence that the general exception would apply, then the presumption is removed and it is open to the Court to consider whether the evidence proves to the satisfaction of the Court that the accused comes within the exception. 45 A. 329=1923 A. 327 (2). See also 1941 A.L.J. 619=1941 A. 402 (F.B.); 3 L. 144=68 I.C. 113=1922 L. 1. Where in the case of a general fight it could not be said which party was to blame and which party was blameless it would not be proper consistently with justice to convict the members of either party by relying on S. 105. 1943 O.A. (C.C.) 88=1943 O.W.N. 146. Exemption from criminal liability—Unsoundness of mind. When unsoundness is pleaded as a defence to a criminal charge, the burden of proof rests on the accused. 50 I.C. 991=23 C.W.N. 621; (1940) 2 M.L.J. 1018 (plea of self-defence).

Sec. 106: Scope.—It contemplates facts which in their nature are such as to be within the knowledge of the accused and of nobody else, and has no application to cases, where the fact in question, having regard to its nature, is such as to be capable of being known not only by the accused but also by others—if they happened to be present when it took place. It cannot be invoked to make up for the inability of the prosecution to produce evidence of circumstances pointing to the guilt of the accused. Section obviously refers to cases where the defence of the accused depends on his proving a certain fact, that is, cases where his guilt is established on the evidence produced by the prosecution unless he is able to prove some other facts especially within his knowledge which would render the evidence for the prosecution nugatory. 1936 A. 833=1936 A.L.J. 1124. Section applies only to parties to the suit. 37 C.W.N. 657=1933 P.C. 87=64 M.L.J. 413 (P.C.); 38 P.L.R. 427. See 14 R. 666=1937 R. 83. Sec. 106 was never intended to be sued to place upon the accused the burden of proving their innocence. Sec. 106 is not a proviso to the rule that the burden of proving the guilt of the accused is upon the prosecution but on the contrary, the section is subject to that rule. The burden of proving a particular fact or a particular defence is a different matter. Sec. 106 does not enable the Judge to say to the jury that the accused must explain this and that he must satisfy him on this point or that or be found guilty. 1939 S. 209=I.L.R. (1940) Kar. 249. The burden of proof referred to in sec. 106 is that of introducing evidence merely. This section does not cast any burden on an accused person to prove that no crime was committed by proving facts specially within his knowledge; nor does it warrant the conclusion that if anything is unexplained which the Court thinks the accused could explain he ought therefore to be found guilty. 14 R. 666=168 I.C. 193=1937 R. 83 (F.B.). The burden of proving facts peculiarly within the knowledge of any person is on that person. See 9 W.R. 190; 1 P.L.I. 168; 47 M. 800; 20 I.C. 600=6 Bur.L.T. 129. See also 2 R. 549=1925 R. 143; 1942 N. 39; 1939 M.W.N. 881; 40 C.W.N. 938 (knowledge of plaintiff's right in design and user by defendant in trade-mark suit.) It is the duty of a party who has certain facts relating to his case within his personal knowledge to appear before the Court at a very early stage of the case as a witness and to give evidence relating to cross-examination by the other side. 139 I.C. 712=33 P.L.R. 906. Where a party does not go into the witness-box to support his allegations regarding facts which are within its special knowledge there arises a strong presumption against him. 138 I.C. 525=33 P.L.R. 207. A party's failure to go into the witness-box raises a strong presumption against the truth of his or her case. The fact of a party being a pardanashin lady is not a sufficient cause for not getting into the box in as much as she could get herself examined on commission. 187 I.C. 317=1940 O.W.N. 375=1940 O. 266. Sec. 106 cannot be utilised to help persons who are representatives of other parties and who step into their shoes. 30 L.W. 968. Where the question is whether plaintiff is authorised by the Managing Committee of an institution to institute a suit on its behalf, and the proof of the minutes of the meeting of the Managing Committee constituting such due authority is available it is sufficient to discharge any burden on the plaintiff under sec. 106, 65 I.A. 106=I. Illustrative Cases.—(When the goods are solely under the control of the bailee, the fact as to when loss, destruction or deterioration occurred is a matter specially within his knowledge and therefore the burden of proving that the loss occurred at a particular time and not subsequently must be on him. 1932 A.L.J. 798=1932 A. 584. Where an instrument hired by a person was for all practical purposes in his exclusive possession, it is for him to explain how it came to be damaged. It is for him to establish that it was a case of ordinary wear and tear and not of carelessness or negligence in any degree. 184 I. C. 36=1939 S. 245. Where a person accused of lurking house-trespass by night pleads in defence that he had a specific intention in entering the house, i.e., to carry on a love intrigue in secret and not intimidate, insult or annoy, the onus of proof is on him. 49 I.C. 103=40 A. 221; 37 A. 395=29 I.C. 67. See also 22 C. 164; 22 C. 591; 23 M. 152; 23 A. 124; 14 R. 666=168 I.C. 193=1937 R. 83 (F.B.) Employing girl as prostitute—Onus is on accused to show absence of intention—Penal Code, sec. 373. 71 I.C. 232=1922 C. 539. The presumption under sec. 106 is very weak as compared to the presumption of innocence when the trial is one for murder. If an accused after a case has been proved against him withholds evidence in disproof, inferences unfavourable to him may be drawn. 43 I.C. 241=19 Cr.L.J. 81=21 C.W.N. 1152. An accused person is always entitled to hold his tongue; but when the only alternative theory to his guilt is a remote possibility, which, if correct, he is in a position to explain the absence of an explanation must be considered in determining whether the possibility should be disregarded or taken into account. 43 I.C. 605=19 Cr. Where a person is charged with having been a member of an association declared unlawful by the Government under the Criminal Law Amendment Act, the burden of proof is not on the accused to prove that he discontinued his membership. It is for the prosecution to prove that he continued to be a member even subsequent to the notification by Government. The Act imposes no obligation on the member to do anything specific to terminate the membership and so there is no question of there being anything especially within the knowledge of the accused. 33 Bom. Sec. 107.—Sec. 107 does not apply to a petition for a declaration of nullity of marriage under the Indian Divorce Act. The Divorce Act governs such proceedings, and sec. 19 (1) indicates in plain language that a decree for nullity can only be given on proof of the fact that the former husband or wife was living at the time of the second marriage. There is no room left in such cases for the application of sec. 107, Evidence Act and it has therefore to be ignored. 1945 M.W.N. 651=58 L.W. 529=(1945) 2 M.L.J. 389. Secs. 107, 108 and 114.—The time or date of death of a person who has not been heard of for seven years and whose death is presumed under sec. 108, is not a matter of presumption, but of evidence. Neither sec. 107 nor sec. 114 of Act justifies such a presumption. The burden of proving that death occurred at a particular point of time is on the party who alleges the same. 21 Mys. Sec. 108.—When a person has not been heard of for seven years, there is a presumption that he is dead. There is no further presumption authorised by the Evidence Act. When the question is whether persons are partners, landlord, and tenant, or principal and agent, and it has been shown that they have been acting as such, the burden of proving that they do not stand, or have ceased to stand, to each other in those relationships respectively, is on the person who affirms it.

(C.C.) 136; 19 Luck. 581. Sec. 108 is a proviso to sec. 107. The rule in sec. 108 supersedes the rules in Hindu and Mahomedan Law. 43 M.L.J. 725; 2 Beng. L.R. 134; 9 Luck. 401=1934 O. 41. There can be a presumption and inference of death irrespective of sec. 108. 103 I.C. 329=1927 A. 687. The rules as to presumption of death contained in this section would govern the case of a Mahomedan who was missing for more than seven years. (7 A. 297, Foll.) Where in order to succeed in a suit it is necessary for a person to establish that a particular person was dead at a particular time, he has to prove the factum of his death at the same time by affirmative evidence either direct or circumstantial. 1932 A. 365=1932 A.L.J. 175; 11 O.W.N. 793=1934 O. 298 (F.B.). Where a husband and wife perish in a same boat disaster, there is no presumption of law arising from age or sex or state of health as to survivorship among them, nor is there any presumption that both died at the same time. The question is one of fact depending wholly on evidence, and if the evidence does not establish the survivorship of any one, the law will treat it as a matter incapable of being determined, the onus of proof being on the person asserting the affirmative. 77 C.L.J. 209. Where two brothers die in the same catastrophe and it is not known as to who died first there is no presumption either of survivorship or of contemporaneous death. In such cases the plaintiff must prove his assertion. Two brothers died in a fire and the widow of one of them sought to succeed to the entire properties on the ground that her husband being the younger of the two must be deemed to have survived the other. Held, there was no such presumption in the absence of direct evidence and that the onus of proving it lay upon her. 9 Luck. 461=1934 O. 101. This section raises a presumption of death at the end of a continuous absence of seven years and not at the time when the question is raised or the suit is instituted. The party on whom the burden of proving the life of the absentee lies cannot get rid of that burden by admitting the absence's death at some subsequent time. 8 I.C. 55; 35 C. 25; 37 C. 103; 33 C. 173 (P.C.). Where a person is not heard of for seven years, there is no presumption that he died after the expiry of seven years from the time when he was last heard of. The presumption is only that he is dead at the time when the dispute arises. 115 I.C. 626. The entry of mafrur does not connote "decease" and because a person has not been heard of for many years it does not mean that the death can be presumed to have occurred at a convenient time for the computation of the twelve years. The Court can however presume that death occurred seven years prior to the date of dispute. 13 R.D. 385. Sec. 110.—The presumption under S. 110 would apply only if the possession of the claimant (plaintiff) is prima facie not wrongful, and if the title of the defendant is not proved. It is necessary for the plaintiff to prove that his possession was of such a character as to lead to the presumption of title and not such a sort of possession as would be regarded as wrongful in its origin. The presumption under S. 110 will not apply when there is a statutory presumption in favour of the Government. I.L.R. (1942) Bom. 357=44 Bom.L.R. 295=A.I.R. 1942 Bom. 161. Plaintiff is not bound to prove adverse possession for sixty years to establish his title as against the Secretary of State for India in Council. (Ibid.). By virtue of sec. 110 a person in possession is deemed to be owner until the contrary is shown. 41 P.L.R. 123. See also 45 Mys.H.C.R. 57=17 Mys.L.J. 510. In the case of a boundary dispute between the parties the possession of the disputed land is an important element to be taken into consideration in determining the dispute. 1941 S. 632; 197 I.C. 756. Sec. 110 no doubt enacts that title is to be presumed from lawful possession. This is a rebuttable presumption and like all rebuttable presumption, must yield to proof. Where therefore title is proved or assumed the presumption created by sec. 110 can no longer apply. Madras Land Encroachment Act, sec. 2 declares, subject to a saving clause, that the Government is the owner of certain kinds of property including the beds of tanks. There is no conflict between sec. 110, and this provision. The title of the Government being statutorily declared, the rule of presumption enacted by sec. 110 is not brought into play. But there is nothing to prevent long possession being relied upon as evidence of a grant made by the original owner. 1938 M.W.N. 244=47 L.W. 438=1938 M. 193. The onus laid on a party by sec. 110 is discharged by his showing that the possession enjoyed by the other party rests on a basis inconsistent with a right of property. 172 I.C. 981=1938 P.C. 87 (P.C.). A plaintiff who has omitted to sue under sec. 9 of the Specific Relief Act, when first dispossessed, is not debarred when the summary relief under that section has become barred by limitation, from relying, in a suit for ejectment, on this section. As soon as he has proved that the defendant has dispossessed him, the onus is thrown upon the latter to prove his title. 2 P.L.J. 61; 38 I.C. 797. Where nothing else is known, the person in possession of property is presumed to be owner. 45 I.C. 217. Where plaintiff is in possession alleging ownership onus of proving that he is not owner lies on defendant. 103 I.C. 36. But where defendant is in possession the onus is on plaintiff. 10 L.L.J. 488. The mere fact that defendant claimed rent could not defeat the presumption of title arising in plaintiff's favour from the fact that the plaintiff had possession when the suit was instituted. 36 P.L.R. 64=1934 L. 324. Under this section it is presumed that a woman has power to dispose of all property which was in her possession at the time of her death. 1927 O. 618. Prior peaceful possession is prima facie evidence of ownership under sec. 110, and is a good title against all persons except the true owner and can be relied on in successfully maintaining a suit for ejectment against another who has no title to the land in disputes. 118 I.C. 680 (1). Where a person is in possession of property and he uses it for four months of every year for tethering his cattle such possession is prima facie evidence of title, but Court should not say that the person's ownership is established. 119 I.C. 701=1929 N. 318. Person in position of active confidence—Burden of proving bona fides of transaction is on him. 1933 L. 861. Sec. 111 cannot come into operation unless the good faith of the parties is questioned by any one. In the absence of any allegation as to want of good faith by the plaintiff, no Court can assume this fact suo motu and place the burden of proof of good faith on a defendant. 1943 R. D. 173. Sec. 111 has no application itself, as between parties to the transaction itself. It does not apply where the sole dispute on the pleadings is not one of the bona fides of any particular transaction, but is one as to the real nature of the transaction itself. When a question which is entirely outside one of good faith) and the transaction is impugned from another angle altogether, merely because a sale takes place between solicitor and client or between persons who have not that special relationship but some other analogous relationship, it does not mean that the method of impugning it should be different or the things to prove should in any way be varied. 1938 R. 412. Where a pleader who was engaged by a judgment-debtor in an execution proceeding advances money to him to pay off the decretal amount and takes a mortgage on the judgment-debtor's property in favour of his son, thereby securing a long term and profitable investment for his money, in view of the fiduciary relation existing between the pleader and his client it is incumbent on those seeking to enforce the mortgage to prove the utmost good faith on the part of the pleader in persuading his client to execute the mortgage. As the pleader knows that the onus of supporting his transaction would rest upon him, he must preserve the evidence which would be required to support it, if he desires that it should be upheld. 1936 O.W.N. 1033=164 I.C. 945. See also 1940 O.A. 910 (P.C.). Where the fact of undue influence was not seriously disputed the burden lies on him who desires to show that no undue influence was used and the transaction was made in good faith. 1934 A.L.J. 817=1934 A. 507. To treat undue influence as having been established by proof of the relations of the parties having been such that the one naturally relied upon the other for advice and the other was in a position to dominate the will of the first in giving it, is erroneous. That merely proves influence. It must be further established that a person in a position of domination has used the position to obtain unfair advantage for himself and so as to cause injury to the person relying upon his authority or aid. 10 L. 761=1929 L. 369.

Sec. 112: Proof of Paternity of Child.—The effect of sec. 112 is that where a child is born during lawful wedlock, that child will have to be assumed to be the child of the man who was at the time the husband of the mother, unless it is shown that they had no opportunity of sexual intercourse in consequence of which the child could have been begotten. Every assumption is to be made in favour of legitimacy of a child born in lawful wedlock, and the onus of proving non-access or illegitimacy, is on the party alleging the same. The law requires in such cases the positive proof of a negative fact, that is, non-access as between the parties to the marriage and the mere fact that they are living separately in two different houses is insufficient to establish non-access. The fact of non-access has to be proved like any other physical fact and may be established both by direct and circumstantial evidence of an unambiguous character, but unless such evidence is forthcoming, it will not be possible for any Court "to believe it to be probable that there was no access". An entry in the birth register containing the name of the mother only does not warrant the inference that the child born is not illegitimate. An entry in the birth register may be relevant under sec. 35 to show the date of birth, but the question as to how far the fact that the name of the mother and not that of the father was given by the informant would bear on the question of the child's legitimacy, even if it is assumed to be relevant, depends largely on the means the informant may be shown to have possessed of the knowledge in connection with the child's birth. If the informant is a stranger, who did not know the father, the statement, even if relevant, would be wholly unimportant, and the entry would be of no value when the informant is not examined and no explanation is given for his non-examination by the party relying on the entry in support of his plea of illegitimacy. 54 L.W. 411. See also (1943) 2 M.L.J. 108; I.L.R. (1942) Nag. 383=1942 N.L.J. 254=1942 Nag. 96; 1942 Mad. 129. Sec. 112 can have no application to a case where the maternity of a person is in dispute and not his paternity. 188 I.C. 1=52 L.W. 57=72 C.L.J. 263=1940 P.C. 93 (P.C.). In proceedings under sec. 488, Cr.P. Code, an admission of paternity of an illegitimate child by the alleged putative father is irrelevant in view of the clear wording of sec. 112, if the applicant mother fails to prove that she and her husband had no access at the time when the child could have been begotten. 1941 M.W.N. 1037=(1941) 2 M.L.J. 693=1942 Mad. 251; 56 L.W. 383=(1943) 2 M.L.J. 108. The burden of showing that parties to marriage had no access to each other at any time when child could have been begotten is on the person challenging legitimacy of the child. 66 M.L.J. 288 (P.C.). The parties to marriage were in touch with each other, residing for a short period in reasonable proximity, the wife being in the house of a relative of the husband. There was nothing to suggest that she was unfaithful or that the parties were on terms of personal hostility. Held, that if the child could have been begotten during this period, his legitimacy was undeniable. 66 M.L.J. 288 (P.C.). Nature of presumption under the section explained. 1934 M. 310=66 M.L.J. 279. See also 1934 M. 318=66 M.L.J. 283. The terms of sec. 112 must be given their due effect and any evidence to the effect that a wife has been leading an improper life, even if the Court should be prepared to accept it as true, will not rebut the presumption enacted in that section. A statement by the husband that a child in the womb of his wife was not his child and must have been procreated by somebody else is not entitled to any weight; nor does it amount to such proof, even assuming it to be true, as will displace the effect of sec. 112. The fact that the parties are governed by the Mahomedan Law makes no difference, so far as the application or effect of the presumption under sec. 112 is concerned. The fact that under that law there may be a divorce of a wife by the husband making oath accompanied by an imprecation as to his wife's fidelity, and that if he denies the parentage of the child with which the wife is then pregnant, it will be bastardised, cannot override the presumption enacted in sec. 112. 1937 M.W.N. 957. See also 1937 L. 266. Competency of husband or wife to give evidence of non-access—See I.L.R. (1945) Mad. 53=(1944) 1 M.L.J. 285. The presumption under sec. 112 applies quite irrespective of the fact whether the mother was married or not at the time of the conception. 1937 L. 784. The case of a married woman stands on a different footing from that of a spinster or a widow who may be living as a mistress with somebody. For a mistress it may be open to prove that the real father of the child born during the period of her concubinage is different from her paramour. In such a case the presumption which would naturally arise in respect of paternity of the child in favour of the paramour is capable of being rebutted. I.L.R. (1942) Nag. 383=1942 N.L.J. 254=1942 Nag. 96. In a divorce case where the paternity of the infant is in question, neither husband nor wife is permitted to give evidence of non-intercourse after marriage to bastardise a child born in wedlock. 39 P.L.R. 262=1937 L. 176. Sec. 112 merely requires proof to the satisfaction of the Court that the parties had no access to each other, not that there was no possibility of access. A finding that there was no access is a pure finding of fact. 150 I.C. 306=1934 N. 124. As to when the presumption is rebutted, see 1937 R. 67. The presumption regarding legitimacy cannot be rebutted by circumstances which only create doubts and suspicions. 39 P.L.R. J. & K. 51. See also 54 L.W. 411. Where the question of paternity is one of evidence only, the case is governed by sec. 112 and not by the personal law of the parties. 26 I.C. 996=16 Cr.L.J. 84. A legal presumption in favour of legitimacy will arise only if it is proved that there was a valid and lawful marriage between the parents of the person whose legitimacy is in question. But the burden of proving such a lawful marriage is on the person who claims to be legitimate, and if he does not establish that, he cannot rely on the presumption so as to shift the burden of proving the contrary on to those who allege illegitimacy,

The presumption of legitimacy created by sec. 112 can be rebutted only by proof of non-access leaving no room for doubt. Sec. 114: Scope of Section.—Section is not exhaustive. 46 P.L.R. 355, Sec. 114 includes, but is not limited to the presumption of 'regularity'. 160 I.C. 332=1936 C. 1. The effect of sec. 114 is to make it perfectly clear that Courts of justice are to use their own common sense and experience in judging the effect of particular facts and they are to be subjected to no technical rules whatever on the sub-

Illustrations.

The Court may presume—

- (a) that a man who is in possession of stolen goods soon after the theft is either the thief or has received the goods knowing them to be stolen, unless he can account for his possession ;
- (b) that an accomplice is unworthy of credit, unless he is corroborated in material particulars ;
- (c) that a bill of exchange, accepted or endorsed, was accepted or endorsed for good consideration ;
- (d) that a thing or state of things which has been shown to be in existence within a period shorter than that within which such things or states of things usually cease to exist, is still in existence ;
- (e) that judicial and official acts have been regularly performed ;
- (f) that the common course of business has been followed in particular cases ;
- (g) that evidence which could be and is not produced would, if produced, be unfavourable to the person who withholds it ;
- (h) that, if a man refuses to answer a question which he is not compelled to answer by law, the answer if given, would be unfavourable to him ;
- (i) that when a document creating an obligation is in the hands of the obligor, the obligation has been discharged.

But the Court shall also have regard to such facts as the following, in considering whether such maxims do or do not apply to the particular case before it :—

ject. 151 I.C. 473=1934 C. 719 (F.B.). See also 164 I.C. 385=1936 R. 332; I. L.R. (1937) M. 299=(1937) 1 M.L.J. 543=1937 M. 182. The words of sec. 114 are general and there is no reason why a Court should not invoke the aid of that section in proper cases and raise a presumption as to the genuineness of old accounts even when they are unsigned if they come from proper custody and appear to have been kept regularly regard being had to the common course of private business. 45 P.L.R. 441. Presumption and inference, difference between. See 25 A.L.J. 833. Sec. 114 applies not only to civil but also to criminal cases. 187 I. C. 127=41 Cr.L.J. 401 (2)=1940 S. 42. Presumption as to ordinary course of business. Where a Judge signs a decree, the presumption is that he has satisfied himself that it had been prepared in accordance with the judgment. 10 O.W.N. 884=1933 O. 466. If the only evidence available is an order of the Court showing that attachment had been made, it would no doubt be presumed that all the necessary formalities were complied with. But where the execution record is available and the process-server's report regarding the attachment does not show that any copy of the order was posted on a conspicuous part of the Court house, the initial presumption is what is not mentioned therein was not done. 41 P.L.R. 149=1939 L. 284. If an official act has been proved to have been done, it must be presumed to have been regularly done. 182 I.C. 982=20 P.L.T. 677=1939 P. 364. Where sums are paid before the presiding officer of the Court at the time when a receipt was given for them, the presumption under sec. 114, is that the ordinary course of business was followed in the case in question. 1923 L. 566. The mere statement by appellant's counsel that these sums are not always paid at the time when the receipts are given was sufficient to throw the onus on the prosecution of proving that the plea was wrong. 1923 L. 566. Where the appearance of a legal practitioner had been noted by the Judge in his own handwriting but the legal practitioner denied his appearance, such denial being neither supported by the record, nor proved by any independent evidence. Held, that both on principle and authority it is the record made by the presiding Judge that is conclusive on the point and not what the practitioner chooses to state after four years. 12 Mys.L.J. 311=39 Mys.H.C.R. 461. School-leaving certificate issued by foreign State—Presumption of correctness. 99 I.C. 307=1927 B. 11. Where sons are recorded as jointly owning lands the presumption that their father owned it cannot be raised. 8 L. 30. Adoption ceremonies—Person enjoying status of adopted son for nearly 50 years—Presumption. 1937 L. 626. In a suit for redemption of an old mortgage where the original mortgagor is dead, and there is a lack of evidence owing to lapse of time presumptions are permissible to fill in gaps in the evidence which has been obliterated by the passage of time. 171 I. C. 174=1937 N. 43. The mere fact of marriage raises no presumption with regard to any properly standing in the name of a wife that the beneficial interest, must be in her husband. Before any such presumption can arise there must be some evidence that the property did not really belong to the wife but to the husband though standing in the name of the wife. 140 I. C. 678=1932 C. 829. An action taken by a properly constituted authority should always be held to be legal unless it is demonstrably not so. When therefore a rice mill is notified under sec. 193 (1), Local Boards Act, it must be taken that the President of the Panchayat Board issued the notification in conformity with the law and cannot be said to be invalid. 138 I.C. 583 (1)=1932 M. 508 (1924 M. 375, Rel. on). When a document is accepted by the Sub-Registrar as duly presented there is an initial presumption that the document was duly presented and that the person presenting it was duly authorised to do so. 15 L. 694=1934 L. 452. Under sec. 114 there is a presumption not only that official acts are regularly performed but also that ordinary business acts are normally carried out. Therefore, in the absence of any evidence to the contrary the Court can presume that a power-of-attorney which was stamped was in fact stamped by the proper officer in the Financial Commissioner's office. 196 I.C. 619=43 P.L.R. 499=1941 L. 345. As to presumption of regularity of official acts in settlement proceedings, see 1939 P. 364. See also 1941 R.D. 198. Police officer asked to remember certain date refusing to refresh memory—Adverse inference may be drawn. 164 I.C. 373=1936 L. 707. So also in the case of a party ordered to appear for further cross-examination not so appearing. See I.L.R. (1937) C. 203=64 C.L.J. 80=1937 C. 129.

Value of Presumption.—Conflicting presumptions neutralise each other and leave the case at large to be determined solely on the evidence given. 38 C.W.N. 861. When an accused was convicted under sec. 412 of the Penal Code, and the Judge holding that under sec. 114, he must be presumed to have known the nature of the dacoity, awarded him the maximum penalty, held, that as the presumption alone would not justify fixing the accused with knowledge, that the goods recovered from him had been obtained by dacoity, the sentence was excessive. 59 I.C. 204=32 C.L.J. 89. Presumption of fact are assumptions resulting from one's experience of the course of natural events of human conduct and human character, assumptions which one is entitled to make use of and has to make use of in the ordinary business of life as well as the business of Courts. A Judge of fact may raise such presumptions to assist him, if he thinks them likely in relation to the facts of the case with which he is dealing. It is always a question for the judge of fact in any particular case whether he will make use of such an assumption, whether he will raise such a presumption of fact. His discretion in the matter is subject to reconsideration by an appellate Court, if there is an appeal on facts. If the burden of proof lies upon one party, it is not reasonable to raise a presumption of fact which begs the question in favour of that party. 14 Mys. L.J. 491=42 Mys.H.C.R. 163.

Course of Natural Events.—An inference of approbation of a book of an objectionable character by persons having access to the library of an individual or association possessing it is not necessarily justifiable. 16 I.C. 257=16 C.W.N. 1105. Human conduct—Discovery on information.—When a man points out unknown matters to others, one may presume under sec. 114 that he is connected with the crime unless he can give some satisfactory explanation as to how he comes by that knowledge. 47 B. 74=24 Bom.L.R. 803=1923 B. 183. Where a lessee of a wakf property prima facie proves a heritable right in the tenure at a fixed rate an assumption that the grant was originally lawful can be made. The presumption of an origin in some lawful title which the Court has so often readily made in order to support possessory rights, long and quietly enjoyed where no actual proof of title is forthcoming, is one which is not a mere branch of the law of evidence. It is resorted to because of the failure of actual evidence. The matter is one of presumption based upon the policy of law but even considered as an inference from proved facts the grant presumed is the thing which may well be regarded as likely to have happened. At the same time it is not a presumption to be capriciously made nor is it one which a certain class of possessors is entitled to de jure. 34 C.W.N. 462=1930 P.C. 103=58 M. L.J. 641 (P.C.). Presumption of fact—Mortgage deed endorsed by mortgagee as fully satisfied—Presumption of satisfaction. 30 N.L.R. 196=1934 N. 29. A document on plain paper unstamped and unregistered and not produced till it was filed is presumed to be not genuine. 1930 P. 78. Of two conflicting statements of witness, the statement against interest should ordinarily be preferred. 1930 P. 293. The rule of evidence is in favour of presuming the continuity of things shown to exist at a prior date. There is no rule of evidence by which one can presume backwards. 38 C.W.N. 763=1934 C. 707. No presumption can be made that a state of things that once existed continued to exist when that would militate against the fundamental presumption of law in favour of innocence. So merely because a person is shown to have been a member of an assembly before it was declared unlawful, he cannot be presumed to have continued as a member thereof after it was declared unlawful, because the initial presumption of law is in favour of innocence and lawful conduct. 33 Bom.L.R. 90. Common course of conduct can only be that which is most common in the experience of the Judge who has to decide the point. 1928 N. 52. In the case of a young woman giving birth to her first child and entirely unattended during the process no presumption can reasonably be made under sec. 114 that the child was born alive. 1941 Pesh. 22.

Abandoning Accused—Presumption.—No presumption as to guilt can be raised from the fact that the accused has absconded. 21 I.C. 473=24 Cr.L.J. 601. See also 49 A. 57. No adverse inference can be drawn against accused for not disclosing his defence in the preliminary enquiry stage. 8 P.L.T. 656=1927 P. 292. It is to be presumed under sec. 114 that every official act is properly performed, but this presumption is hardly sufficient to satisfy a Court that such precautions have been taken as to render an identification truly valuable, e.g., mixing the accused in a large number of men dressed all alike. 67 I.C. 721=1922 L. 31.

Other miscellaneous presumptions.—Things prescribed by statute may be presumed to have been properly done. 48 A. 766. Presumption that a Court is satisfied about service of notice. See 102 I.C. 12=1927 L. 506. The possession of full bottles of wine in a person's house when the number of bottles is less than that allowed by law does not raise the presumption that the bottles were for sale. 14 I.C. 968=13 Cr.L. J. 424. The mere knowledge of the place of concealment does not necessarily lead to the conclusion that the person having such knowledge participated in the act of concealment, if the place is not his own. 43 P. L.R. 600=1941 L. 471. It is more than doubtful if any presumption under sec. 114 can arise against any person merely because his finger-prints were found upon a piece of stolen property. 196 I.C. 679=1941 C. 479. Legitimacy—Connection between man and woman permanent—Presumption. 62 I. C. 769=13 L.W. 511. A presumption of marriage may be drawn from long co-habitation, but if it is known that the connection started in mere concubinage, this presumption cannot arise. 98 I.C. 887=1927 L. 48; 1929 R. 64; I.L.R. (1942) 2 Cal. 299=46 C. W.N. 729=76 C.L.J. 301=1943 Cal. 76. In spite of the presumption of marriage arising from long co-habitation, the burden of proof of marriage actually lies with the person who desires to prove it. 1945 N.L.J. 489. Also the relationship of concubinage once found to exist is presumed under the law to continue until the contrary is proved. 98 I.C. 887. When signature on a document has been proved it is for the person signing to prove that it was affixed by him otherwise than voluntarily. 25 A.L.J. 883. The ordinary presumption that ghee is intended for human consumption is not a presumption of law but a supposition based on common sense when there is no assertion to the contrary. 48 C.L.J. 502=1929 C. 283. It might be presumed that persons who are presumed to know the law observed it and that, when two acts are done on the same day, the one necessary to be done first to give the other validity, was, in fact, done first. 1929 N. 257. The law presumes in favour of marriage and against concubinage when a man and a woman have cohabitated contemporary for a number of years. 56 I.A. 201=10 L. 725 (P.C.). But in case of persons who cannot prima facie contract a valid marriage living together as man and woman there is no presumption of valid marriage. 1929 N. 343. Where the long delay of the plaintiffs in bringing the suit has prejudiced the defendants and has prevented them from bringing the best evidence that would otherwise have been available to them, the tendency of the Court must invariably be to make an inference against the plaintiff unless good cause is shown and the Court should attach great importance to such presumption in testing the credibility of the evidence actually given. (14 M.I.A. 67; 1924 P. C. 137, Foll.) 118 I.C. 154=1929 A. 561. Failure of party coming forward with a case to give evidence on matters within his knowledge, ought to be a weighty factor when the value of the case put forward on his behalf is appraised. 36 P.L. R. 280=1934 L. 398; 148 I.C. 45=1934 L. 63 (2). Suit for breach of contract—Defendants denying any knowledge of contract—Defendants not going into witness-box—Inference need not be adverse to defendant. 149 I.C. 1119=1934 L. 59. It cannot be said that because a party does not examine all the persons named as witnesses, it should be presumed under S. 114 that the party's case must be false or that the allegations of the other side must be true. 1945 A.M.L.J. 77. Best evidence not produced though available raises adverse presumption. Inconsistent pleas and not proving pleas raised indicate falsity of defence. 33 C.W.N. 430=1929 P.C. 99=57 M.L.J. 565 (P.C.). Where there is no evidence that a non-compoundable offence was compounded, it is to be presumed that the Criminal Court acted according to law, and the presumption is that the criminal case was withdrawn and not compounded. 116 I.C. 749=1929 A. 456. Where a wife alleging that her husband is dead, fails to produce such evidence as she ought to know, a presumption arises against her. 117 I.C. 209=1929 N. 127. Where a mother and daughter met their death in the Quetta earthquake and there is no reliable evidence to show which of the two died first, there can be no presumption in law that the elder died before the younger. I.L.R. (1939) Kar. 509=183 I.C. 717=1939 S. 234. If an accused is to be convicted on his confession it must be taken as a whole and it would be unsafe to use the part against him and discredit the part in his favour. 1928 M. 493 (1)=54 M.L.J. 607. The mere signing of an entry does not raise an irrebuttable presumption of law against which no evidence can be let in. 1928 L. 820. Admission of execution of deed before Registrar—Presumption that the deed is valid. 1930 A. 605. Sec. 114 does not go so far as to enable the Court to presume that a certain state of things existed in the past without any proof from the party who is required to satisfy the Court on the point. 35 C.W.N. 133=1930 C. 815.

Illustrations—Scope of.—The Illustrations appended to sec. 114 are not statements of the law qualified only by particular exceptions. They are merely what they call themselves, illustrations or instances of the application of certain maxims out of many possible instances. 69 I.C. 257=17 N.L.R. 113. The illustrations appended to sec. 114 are not intended to lay down rules of law which are exhaustive of the resumptions that may be made under the provisions of the section itself or that they be intended to apply without exception. They are merely examples of circumstances in which certain presumptions may be made and other presumptions of a similar kind in similar circumstances may be made under the provisions of the section itself. Hence, it would be a reasonable inference to presume that people had committed theft or burglary if they were seen the next day with the stolen property in circumstances which suggested division of the booty. 944 A.L.J. 411=1944 A.W.R. (H.C.) 49=A.I.R. 1944 All. 281. See also 46 P.L.R. 355. S. 114 is general in its terms. Illustration (a) is only an illustration, and the fact that the section does not provide an illustration with reference to a dacoity does not mean that where the accused is in possession of property stolen at a dacoity, no presumption can be made either that he was one of the dacoits or that he had dishonestly received or retained the property, knowing or having reason to believe that the possession had been transferred by dacoity or knowing or having reason to believe that it was stolen property. 49 C.W.N. 392=A.I.R. 1945 Cal. 421. A Court may, in appropriate circumstances, presume that a man who is in possession of stolen goods soon after a theft, is either the thief or has received the goods knowing them to be stolen unless he can account for his possession, because if he cannot account for his possession he is likely to be the thief or to have received the goods knowing them to have been stolen. This applies to property criminally misappropriated which is also "stolen property". 58 L.W. 209=1945 M.W.N. 107=A.I.R. 1945 Mad. 208=(1945) 1 M.L.J. 202. See also (1943) 2 M.L.J. 334. The illustrations to sec. 114 show the extent to which Court may draw presumptions and clearly sec. 114 is no justification for a Court presuming without evidence that because a woman sleeps in a room with two cots her husband, an inmate of the house, must have slept on the other cot on a particular night. 1939 S. 30; 1939 S. 234=1939 (Kar.) 509. The question as to what amounts to recent possession sufficient to justify the presumption of guilt in any particular case, varies, according as the stolen article is, or is not, calculated to readily pass from hand to hand. But the strength and nature of such presumption must vary according to the seriousness of the offence and the nature of the property involved. 109 I.C. 801=1928 N. 213. See 111 I.C. 832 for nature of possession necessary. The mere fact that the accused person points out the place in which the stolen property is concealed does not give rise to any presumption under sec. 114 or justify his conviction of the offence of receiving stolen property. But that presumption would arise when the accused is not able to account for his possession of such stolen article. 32 Bom.L.R. 574=1930 B. 244. Accused proved to have disposed of property stolen—No evidence as to theft—Conviction not sustainable. 54 B. 171=1930 B. 155. When a presumption arises against the accused by reason of the proof of his possession of stolen property, he is no doubt required by law to account for his possession. But it does not necessarily mean that he should prove his plea to the hilt. It is enough if his explanation might reasonably be true and consistent with innocence. 1944 A.L.J. 445=1944 A.W.R. (H.C.) 272. The presumption that a person in possession of goods obtained by theft is aware of that circumstance is not confined to charges of theft but extends to all charges, however penal, not excluding even murder. 9 P. 606. Finger prints of accused found on plea of stolen property—Presumption: See 43 Cr.L.J. 64. The fact that cloths with blood stains are discovered in the house of the accused in a murder trial does not entitle the Court to make any presumption against the accused as to his guilt or as to the stains being of human blood, though the cloths admittedly belonged to the deceased. If the prosecution proves that any stain of human blood is found on the cloths, the accused might be called on to explain the fact, but when the prosecution failed and there was no evidence to prove that the stains were of human blood, the Court is wrong in making a presumption. 11 O.W.N. 969=1934 O. 373. See also 11 O.W.N. 950=1934 O. 388.

Illustration (a).—Ill. (a) to sec. 114 relates only to stolen property obtained by committing theft. In the case of property obtained by criminal misappropriation, although such property would no doubt be stolen property, the inference that a person who subsequently got possession of such property must have known that it was "stolen property," cannot be drawn in the case of such property, 1943 M.W.N. 580=56 L.W. 547=(1943) 2 M.L.J. 334. See also 1945 Mad. 208=(1945) 1 M.L.J. 202. The condition precedent for the application of Ill. (a) to S. 114, is that the accused must be in possession of stolen goods. But the production of property by itself would not necessarily prove his possession. It would at the most show that the accused had knowledge where the property was kept or concealed. Where the accused without stating that he had concealed stolen property, merely produces it from a place to which other people could have access, it would not be sufficient to establish his possession even though the property may be concealed, because it is consistent with any other person having done so and the accused might have merely knowledge of it. In the absence of any incriminating statement made by the accused leading to the discovery of property its production alone from another man's property or place or from a place of which he had only as to illustration (a) a shop-keeper has in his till a marked rupee soon after it was stolen, and cannot account for its possession specifically, but is continually receiving rupees in the course of his business :

joint possession would not be sufficient to establish his possession. The possession of the articles must be clearly traced to him in order to justify the presumption under the Illustration. 47 Bom.L.R. 63=A.I.R. 1945 Bom. 292. This illustration does not mean that the burden of proof is shifted on the accused. If the accused gives any explanation which in the opinion of the jury may possibly be true, although they do not necessarily believe it, then the Crown cannot rely upon the presumption and must prove the guilt of the accused just as in any other criminal case. 1933 Cr.C. 1523=1933 A. 893. See also 43 Cr.L.J. 911=1942 Pat. 439=1942 P.W.N. 35=23 Pat.L.T. 18. The following propositions regarding the burden of proof in criminal trials may be deduced from the decided cases:—General (1) That in a criminal case the onus of proving the main issue is always on the prosecution and it never shifts on to the accused. Conspiracy:—(2) That in a case of conspiracy, it is not enough that the prosecution theory is one theory which will explain the fact but it has got to be shown that it is the only theory which in a reasonable sense is compatible with the facts. (3) That under Ill. (a) to S. 114 of the Evidence Act, the Court may, but is not obliged to, make the presumption therein mentioned. (4) That even if the Court makes the presumption under Ill. (a) to S. 114 of the Evidence Act, the onus on the general issue is still on the prosecution. (5) That it is not the law that if the accused fails to account for his possession of the goods said to be stolen goods he must be convicted, if the other proved facts of the case do not predicate guilt. (6) That the accused is entitled to acquittal if he can give an explanation which may reasonably be true although the jury may not be convinced that it is true. (7) That the accused is not required to prove his explanation by adducing substantive evidence. In many cases it may be impossible for him to do so; particularly, if he alone knows the facts, for he cannot give evidence on oath on his behalf. (8) That the accused need not even give any explanation unless he is asked to account for his possession (Query). I.L.R. (1944) 1 Cal. 595=218 I.C. 345=46 Cr.L.J. 465=A.I.R. 1945 Cal. 93. The onus in a criminal case always rests on the prosecution and never shifts on to the accused. Before raising a presumption of guilt under sec. 114 (a) the jury or the Court will be entitled to take into consideration the explanation of the accused in defence, whether supported by evidence or not and to find out for itself whether the explanation given by the accused even though not believed in its entirety is such as to raise a reasonable doubt in the mind of the jury or the Court as to the guilt of the accused. 1941 O.A. 773=1941 O.W.N. 1061 (2)=1941 O. 618; 17

Luck. 182. The explanation required of an accused under Ill. (a) of S. 114 is an explanation of possession of stolen property. If he alleges that the so-called stolen property is not in fact stolen property but is the property of his relation, he offers no explanation of his possession of it, and the presumption under the section may be applied to him. 49 C.W.N. 392=A.I.R. 1945 Cal. 421. Where a person is found in possession of stolen property shortly after it was stolen, presumption under sec. 114 (a) arises, and hence Sessions Judge cannot expunge the charge under sec. 379, I.P. Code, without going into the evidence. 150 I.C. 558=1934 A. 495. See also 40 C.W.N. 1090; 1937 A. 47; 17 Mys.L.J. 158; 41 Cr.L.J. 44; 1936 N. 200; 17 P.L.T. 754 (Possession of stolen articles after lapse of a long time). See also 166 I.C. 582=1937 N. 17 (F.B.); 10 O.W. N. 47=1933 O. 117; 17 P.L.T. 754=173 I. C. 450; 1938 M. 477; 40 P.L.R. 58=1938 L. 252. From the mere fact that a deaf and dumb mute was found in possession of articles stolen and obtained by house-breaking, an inference under sec. 114, that that person should have committed the offence of house-breaking and theft cannot be drawn, because such a person cannot be made either to understand what he is asked or to give an explanation. It is only on failure to explain the possession when an explanation is asked for that the presumption under S. 114, arises. No conviction on such a presumption of guilt can be sustained. 58 L.W. 574=1945 M.W.N. 692=(1945) 2 M.L.J. 407. The question as to what amounts to recent possession sufficient to justify the presumption of guilt varies according as the stolen article is or is not calculated to pass readily from hand to hand. Articles like muskets and police great coats are not likely to pass readily from hand to hand, and their possession within 10 weeks of the theft can well be said to be recent. 1945 N.L.J. 17=A.I.R. 1945 Nag. 1. I.L.R. (1945) Nag. 151. The question as to what period is covered by the expression "soon after" in Ill. (a) must vary according to the circumstances of each case. The Court is not bound to draw this presumption and the Court must always ask itself whether in the circumstances of a particular case the presumption is one which in fairness to the accused can be drawn. 196 I. C. 526=43 Bom.L.R. 629=1941 B. 325. See also 47 Bom.L.R. 63. The Court is entitled to presume that a person found in possession of property which had been stolen is either the receiver or the actual thief. The nature of the presumption in each individual case depends entirely upon the nature of the evidence adduced. Where a long interval has elapsed before the stolen property has been recovered it is often unsafe to as-

as to illustration (b)—A, a person of the highest character, is tried for causing a man's death by an act of negligence in arranging certain machinery. B, a person of equally good character, who also took part in the arrangement, describes precisely what was done, and admits and explains the common carelessness of A and himself :

(a) applies also to property criminally misappropriated, which is also stolen property under this illustration.) Mere physical relation arising from the possession of the object is insufficient to amount to possession which connotes control over the object possessed. The possession of stolen property should be exclusive as well as recent. 149 I.C. 31=35 Cr.L.J. 994=1934 R. 80. A presumption under Ill. (a) is one which can be rebutted by the accused giving a reasonable explanation of his possession of the property in question. He is not bound to establish beyond all reasonable doubt that he obtained the property innocently. There is no question of the onus of proof being shifted on to the accused. If the explanation given by the accused is an eminently reasonable one and one which may well be true, the Court is bound to acquit the accused, even if it is not satisfied affirmatively that it is true. 23 P.L.T. 18. Ghee stolen from tins in a train was found in a railway wagon occupied by five porters and a policeman—No presumption can arise. 1929 S. 7=111 I.C. 732. The mere fact that a person points out the place in which stolen property is concealed does not give rise to any presumption under sec. 114, or justify his conviction for the offence of receiving stolen property, still less for the offence of theft. 40 Bom.L.R. 927=178 I.C. 330=1938 B. 463. (a) a presumption may be justifiable against a person found in possession of stolen property but not against one who is found in the company of such a person when he is offering it for sale. Unless the prosecution prove circumstances in which by statute a person may be presumed guilty under a particular section of the I.P. Code, the question of presumption of guilt does not arise. 43 Cr.L.J. 353=A.I.R. 1942 Pat. 250. The production of stolen property as a result of pressure or inducement by the Police does not stand on the same footing as an improperly obtained confession. When an involuntary confession leads to the recovery of stolen property, the recovery as regards its admissibility stands on the same footing as a recovery without an accompanying voluntary or involuntary confession and in the absence of an explanation by the possessor is subject to the presumption that the possessor is either the thief or a knowing receiver if the production is shortly after the theft. 44 P.L.R. 545=A.I.R. 1943 Lah 5.

Illustration (b).—[See also Notes under sec. 133.] As to who is an "accomplice," see 1934 S. 185=28 S.L.R. 336; 38 C.W.N. 777=1934 C. 678 (F.B.); 1934 L. 171. It has long been a rule of practice for a Judge to warn the jury of the danger of convicting a prisoner on the uncorroborated testimony of an accomplice, and it is in the discretion of the Judge to advise them not to convict upon such evidence, but the judge should point out to the jury that it is within their legal province to convict upon such unconfirmed evidence. This rule of practice, which has virtually become a rule of law has arisen in consequence of the danger of convicting a person upon the unconfirmed testimony of one who is admittedly a criminal. What is required as corroboration is some additional evidence rendering it probable that the story of the accomplice is true and that is reasonably safe to act upon it. It is not necessary to require confirmation of all the circumstances of the crime. It is sufficient if there is confirmation as to a material circumstance of a crime and of the identity of the accused in relation to the crime. 31 S.L.R. 82=1937 S. 162=169 I.C. 716. An accomplice is a person who is a guilty associate in crime or who sustains such a relation to the criminal act that he could be jointly indicted with the defendant (principal). The act of a detective in supplying marked money and placing bets with the accused for detection of a crime has not the element of mens rea as to illustration (b)—a crime is committed by several persons. A, B and C, three of the criminals are captured on the spot and kept apart from each other. Each gives an account of the crime implicating D, and the accounts corroborate each other in such a manner as to render previous concert highly improbable; and so cannot be treated as that of an accomplice and hence his evidence does not require corroboration. 1936 N. 245. But see 48 L.W. 322=1938 M. 893. An accomplice is a person who is a guilty associate in crime or who sustains such a relation to the criminal act that he could be jointly indicted with the principal. A person who cannot be so indicted owing to the absence of the element of mens rea he having acted under pressure exerted by the principal is not an accomplice and his evidence does not require corroboration. I.L.R. (1945) Nag. 315=1945 N.L.J. 134=A.I.R. 1945 Nag. 143. A person cannot be treated as an accomplice merely because he was present when the offence was committed and was fully aware of the person who committed it but did not disclose it to the proper authorities. I.L.R. (1945) Nag. 395=1945 N.L.J. 191=A.I.R. 1945 Nag. 186. A person who assisted the criminals to the extent of keeping a look-out to see whether the police were approaching, is an accomplice whose evidence requires corroboration. The corroborative evidence need not be such as to prove independently that the person named was guilty of the crime. Evidence proving that the accused were, at the time the crime was committed, near the scene of the crime and so placed as to justify the inference that they were accompanying persons whose complicity in the crime has been satisfactorily proved by independent evidence, is sufficient corroboration of the evidence of the accomplice. I.L.R. (1944) 2 Cal. 312. Although sec. 114, III. (b), provides that a Court may presume that the evidence of an accomplice is unworthy of credit, unless corroborated, the word 'may' is not 'must' and no decision of a Court can make it 'must'. 1941 A.W.R. Even where the object of the person who instigates another to commit crime is to catch him in the act of committing the crime, e.g., police decoys, the instigation amounts to an abetment of the offence, and the abettors must be regarded as accomplices when the object of the instigation is to make the offender commit the crime and the person who is instigated actually commits the offence. Even if they are not accomplices in the strict legal sense, their evidence has to be viewed with caution, and it is not safe to act upon their evidence without material corroboration. 48 L.W. 322=1938 M. 893. Need for corroboration specially in conspiracy cases. 1935 A. 162=155 I.C. 369. Where a charge of conspiracy depends upon the evidence of an approver, the judge should make up his mind whether he is going to believe the approver and if he thinks that the approver's evidence is unsatisfactory and suspicious, he should disbelieve it altogether. If on the contrary he comes to the conclusion that inasmuch as there is corroborative evidence, it does not matter much whether the approver is telling the truth or not, he would be approaching the case from a wrong point of view. 66 C.L.J. 575. See also 22 Pat. 681=1944 Pat. 67; 166 I.C. 667=1937 O. 259; 165 I.C. 138=1936 O. 413 (accessory after crime); 1937 R. 513. Indian law does not recognise any such thing as an accessory after the fact. A man who does not abet a crime cannot be regarded as an accomplice. Although a person who assists in disposal of the dead body may become liable to punishment under sec. 201, Penal Code, this is quite another offence, and helping to dispose of the body of a man who had been murdered, without having taken any part in the murder itself, does not make a man an accomplice with regard to the murder. 1937 R. 513; 1937 O. 259; 164 I.C. 677=1936 R. 373 (corroboration not necessary in every detail). material corroboration there should ordinarily be no conviction, when accused can explain for articles found with them. 76 I. C. 716=1923 L. 385. An approver is generally regarded as a person of little moral worth who is purchasing his own freedom at the expense of others, and though in law the accused can be convicted upon the uncorroborated evidence of the approver it is only prudent that the evidence of the approver should be corroborated. The corroboration should be with regard to the actual factum of the crime and also the identity of the accused. The corroboration required, however, is to be such as tends to convict the accused with the crime and need not be of such a nature that by itself it should be sufficient proof connecting the accused with the crime. The corroborative evidence may be circumstantial, but if it points clearly to the accused, it can be safely acted upon and made the basis of the conviction. The amount of corroborative evidence varies with the facts and circumstances of each particular case. But much or little the purpose of corroborative evidence is to satisfy the Court that the approver, when he implicates a particular individual, does so truly. I.L.R. The discovery of blood marks on the person and in the house of the accused as well as his suspicious conduct immediately after the murder were held to be sufficient corroboration of the evidence of the accomplice. 4 L.L.J. 405. An approver's evidence is in itself tainted evidence though in some cases it may be worthy of belief. 4 L.L.J. 284. To support a conviction on the statement of an approver especially of one whose initial statement was very long delayed the statement requires material corroboration connecting each individual accused with the crime committed. 63 I.C. 612=22 Cr.L. 76 (L.); 10 O.L.J. 280=1924 O. 65. Where there is nothing against an accused person but a confession made by a co-accused from the dock at the trial, a conviction cannot be supported. 118 I.C. 512=1929 M. 285. Extent of corroboration varies with the circumstances of each case including the character and antecedents of the approver. 1929 L. 550=107 I.C. 97. See also 1941 L. 82. The question as to whether corroboration is necessary, and, if so, to what extent is a question to be decided on the facts of each particular case. Much depends on the nature of the offence, the extent of the complicity of the witness in it and the circumstances under which the accomplice makes his statement. 1934 S. 185. The corroboration of the evidence of an approver need not consist of evidence which, standing alone, would be sufficient to justify the conviction of the accused person whom he seeks to implicate. If this were the law, it would be unnecessary to examine an approver at all. All that is required is that the corroboration should be sufficient to afford some sort of independent evidence to show that the approver is speaking the truth

Where an accomplice is coerced and threatened into submission to commit an offence he is not a criminal of the basest kind. The corroboration necessary to establish his credit will be less than if his complicity in the offence had been voluntary and spontaneous. 150 I. C. 917=1934 S. 78. The force of the presumption to be drawn varies as the malice to be imputed to the deponent. 1934 S. 78. The co-accused against whom a charge has been unconditionally withdrawn is a more reliable witness than the accomplice who is examined under conditional pardon, although proper corroboration is necessary in both cases. 144 I. Where the corroborating witness is apparently interested, he being inimical to the accused, the evidence of the approver cannot form any basis for conviction. 34 P. L. R. 1. Corroborative evidence is a question of law. 32 C. W. N. 945. The evidence of an accomplice stands on the same footing as any other evidence. The Court is not obliged to hold that he is unworthy of credit and must be corroborated. It is for the Court to consider after taking into consideration all the circumstances, one of these being that he is an accomplice, whether it does or does not rely on the evidence. To entirely rule out the uncorroborated evidence of an accomplice might in many cases lead to miscarriage of justice. 1941 O. A. 947=1941 O. W. N. 1255; 1929 C. 822; 1928 P. 630; 11 Pat. L. T. 545. To let the evidence of approvers go to a jury without giving them proper warning is a misdirection. For a Judge to withdraw consideration of the guilt or innocence of the accused from the jury by telling them that a conviction cannot be based upon uncorroborated testimony of an approver would be no less a misdirection and directly contrary to the statute. The Judge is bound to caution the jury and to advise them that generally speaking the natural presumption for them to make is that the evidence of the approvers is unreliable though they are not compelled in law to act on the presumption. Nature of corroboration required pointed out. 1933 P. 500. The production of stolen property by an accused person even from a place which is not in his own possession may be accepted as material corroboration of the evidence of an accomplice who has deposed that the accused joined him in committing the burglary or theft, 111 I. C. 447=29 Cr. L. J. 863.

The statement made by an accomplice should be accepted when it is strongly corroborated in material particulars by clear and cogent evidence the authenticity of which is not open to doubt. 120 I. Persons who were either instrumental in negotiating the bribe or in arranging for its payment are in the position of accomplices and it is highly unsafe to base a conviction under sec. 161 of the Penal Code on their testimony without independent corroboration. 11 P. L. R. 836. Ill. (b) to sec. 114 is to be read along with sec. 133, and neither rule is to be ignored in the exercise of judicial discretion. It is the duty of the Court which has to deal with an accomplice's testimony to consider whether the requisite corroboration is furnished by other evidence or facts proved in the case, though at the same time the Court may rightly, in exceptional cases, in the absence of this corroboration, give credit to the accomplice's testimony against the accused, if it sees good reason for doing so upon other grounds. Illustration (c).—In a suit on a bond the primary burden is on the plaintiff. He must prove execution and consideration. But once he proves or it is admitted, that the signature or thumb mark (it does not matter which) is the defendant's then the presumption arises and the burden shifts to the defendant. He can then either prove that he cannot be charged because of fraud, etc., or that the presumption under sec. 114 cannot on the facts fairly arise. If he succeeds in doing that, then the burden shifts back. I. L. R. (1939) N. 160=1939 N. 78. One cannot presume against the interest of an accused person that the ordinary official procedure was not carried out. 39 P.L.R. 629. The report of a Revenue Officer conducting a sale is admissible in evidence, and there is a presumption attaching to such report, it being for the objector to show that anything was done irregularly. 39 P.L.R. 187. If the only evidence available is an order of the Court showing that attachment had been made, it would no doubt be presumed that all the necessary formalities were complied with. But where the execution record is available and the process-server's report regarding the attachment does not show that any copy of the order was posted on a conspicuous part of the Court-house, the initial presumption is what is not mentioned therein was not done. 41 P.L.R. 149. Though ordinarily it may be presumed that a Government notification purporting to have been published in a Gazette of a certain date, was in fact so published, yet where the interval between the issue of a notification and action taken on it is so short, as e.g., a night, a Court might require stricter proof that all the formalities requisite to the act of notifying, or, in other words, publishing the notification, had actually been carried out. 33 Bom.L.R. 82. The presumption that official acts were rightly carried out applies to the return of a process under O. 21, r. 22, C.P. Code, as duly served so that the burden of proving that the record is wrong lies heavily on the judgment-debtor. 36 C.W.N. 242=1932 C. 627; see also 40 P.L.R. 142; 1938 R.D. 883; 1938 M. W.N. 421. It must be assumed that a Court, which passed a decree on a compromise assented to by a pleader of one of the parties, satisfied itself that the pleader was authorised to effect a compromise on behalf of his client, unless the contrary is established. 38 P.L.R. 467. The presumption in favour of official acts being properly done is destroyed when it is established that the investigating officers have not acted in a strict forward manner and have clearly made false statements in Court. 162 I.C. 969=1936 L. 409. See also 39 P.L.R. 187 (Report of Revenue Officer conducting sale). As to presumption regarding entries in jamabandi, see 13 L. 432=1932 L. 586; 29 N.L.R. 273=1937 N. 130. The presumption of correctness cannot apply to papers of a survey until final publication, but the presumption arising from the circumstance that official duties are taken to have been regularly performed applies. 1933 P. 468.

Illustration (f).—The mere fact that a cover insured for a certain amount is sent, raises a presumption in law that that cover contains the necessary amount of Government currency notes. 21 A.L.J. 865=1924 A. 205. The question whether, where a registered letter is returned by Post Office as refused, a presumption can be drawn as to due delivery or service of the letter by post must depend on particular circumstances of each case. Though it is open to the court under sec. 114 (f) to presume that the common course of business has been followed, it cannot hold that the posting of the letter proves delivery as it is a matter of common knowledge, that postal servants are not always diligent. 1933 R. 76=146 I.C. 422; 1937 P. 14 (Presumption as to publication of official notification). Where a certificate of posting is put in evidence, the presumption is that the letter was posted and that it reached its destination unless something is shown to the contrary. It is entirely wrong for the Court to work on the presumption that the certificate of posting is a forgery. 190 I.C. 533=1940 C. 227. When a member of the Bar writes a letter purporting to be instructed by a client, there is a presumption until the contrary is proved, that the letter is written under instructions. 144 I.C. 996=1933 R. 147.

Illustration (g).—As to scope of illustration, see 61 C. 711; 21 Pat. 735. Where the prosecution does not call all available eye-witnesses, the Court may draw an inference adverse to the prosecution. See 42 C. 422=27 I.C. 554; 51 I.C. 679=20 Cr.L.J. 519; but see contra 74 I.C. 434=1923 O. 217. On this point, see also 34 I.C. 987=12 P.R. 1916 (Cr.); 37 C.W.N. 1098=1933 C. 600. (As to presumption from "refusal" of a registered letter, see 3 Bom.L.R. 420). The non-production of material witnesses like the investigation officers is a serious omission which cannot but throw suspicion on the whole prosecution case. 1 P. 630=71 I.C. 219. See also 2 P. 309=74 I.C. 705; 1928 L. 125; 1929 P. 651; 168 I.C. 1=1937 P.C. 152 (P.C.) (Theft of goods from running train, which was covered by Risk-note B—Company withholding evidence of Guard—Adverse inference against railway may be drawn). Criminal trial—Some eye-witnesses not called—No reference favourable to accused can be drawn. 1 O.L.J. 68; 74 I.C. 434=1923 O. 217; 1945 A.M.L.J. 77 (failure to examine witness cited by party—No adverse inference to be drawn). It is a principle of law that if no books of account at all are kept or if they are so kept as to be unintelligible, or if they are destroyed or wrongfully withheld, and an account is directed by a Court every presumption will be made against the party to whose negligence or misconduct the non-production of proper accounts is due. If a party has books of account in his possession and will not produce them, an account may, nevertheless, be arrived at by presuming everything against him. I.L.R. (1943) Kar. 429. It is perfectly open to a party to refrain from producing any documents which he considers irrelevant; and if the opposite party is dissatisfied, it is for him to apply for an affidavit of documents and he can so obtain inspection and production of all that appear to him to be relevant and proper. If he fails to do so, neither he, nor the Court at his suggestion, is entitled to draw any inference as to the contents of such documents. 24 Pat. 541. Where there is a dispute as to the area actually settled with the defendants and the receipts given by the plaintiff for the nazarana paid which would enable the ascertainment of the actual area settled, are not produced by the defendants, it goes to show that the defendants are deliberately keeping them back as they went against them. 1940 R. D. 608=1941 A.W.R. (Rev.) 95=1941 O.A. Supp. 83. Where in a suit for damages for infringement of copyright, even after a notice the defendant fails to pro-as to illustration (h)—a man refuses to answer a question which he is not compelled by law to answer, but the answer to it might cause loss to him in matters unconnected with the matter in relation to which it is asked :

duce his account book there is a fair presumption that the account books have been deliberately suppressed by the defendants in order to conceal the actual profits realised by the sale of the books, and the Court is entitled to assume that the entire stock of copies of books published had been sold by the defendants and the sale proceeds appropriated by them. 55 A. 564=1933 A. L.J. 791=1933 A. 474. Where a person fails to produce the accounts in his possession showing the amount of expenses he has incurred which fact is proved by other evidence one would be justified in presuming from the non-production of such account that he was exaggerating the expenses incurred by him; but simply because of this non-production, one could not be justified in coming to the conclusion that no expenses had been proved. 1934 A. 71. See also 1936 A.W.R. 547; 1942 R. 52; 1942 N. 39. Where the non-production of accounts on either side is plausibly explained, no inference can be drawn against either one side or the other from that circumstance. 146 I.C. 31=10 O.W.N. 827=1933 O. 412. See also I. L.R. (1936) N. 142=164 I.C. 740=1936 N. 130 (non-production of evidence which is not relevant and necessary—Prosecution under sec. 408, I.P. Code). Although sec. 114 permits a Court to presume that evidence, which could be and is not produced, would, if produced, be unfavourable to the person who withholds it, it does not allow any such presumption to be made in the case of documents about which there is no certainty that they would even have been relevant evidence in the case. 1943 A.W.R. (H.C.) 256=A.I.R. 1944 All. 5. Several items of breaches of trust charged—Defence contention that interval between first and last charge was more than a year—Non-production of accounts by complainant. Held, that it was a legitimate inference that if they had been produced, they would not have supported the allegation made by complainant that the defalcation covered a period of only one year. 15 Pat.L.T. 647=1934 P. 132. As to presumption from non-production of account books by a company when no explanation for such non-production given, see 31 Bom.L.R. 1310; 1937 M. 816=(1937) 2 M.L.J. 559; I.L.R. (1942) Nag. 543=1942 N.L.J. 121=1942 Nag. 37; 1942 Rang. 52. If a defendant either suppresses his accounts or has falsified them, the Court will presume everything most unfavourable to him consistent with the established facts. 41 L.W. 104=1935 M. 152; 11 O.W.N. 880; 1928 L. 397; 44 A.W. 225=1937 M. 816=(1937) 2 M.L.J. 559. Where a defendant fails to produce his account books before the Court in time, and they are rejected by the Court when produced as having been produced too late, the penalty for this conduct of the defendant is only to deprive the defendant of the benefit of the evidence afforded thereby. But it is not open to the plaintiff who has opposed their production to contend that an adverse inference ought to be drawn against the defendant from their non-production. 1939 M.W.N. 841. The defendant's failure to go into the witness-box raises a strong presumption against the truth of her case. The fact of her being a pardanashin lady is not a sufficient excuse for her not getting herself examined even on commission. 1937 O.W.N. 1022. The failure to examine a material witness justifies the inference that the witness, if examined, would have deposed against the prosecution. 1928 L. 125. See also 1929 P. 561; 15 L. 407; 159 I.C. 808=1934 R. 130. The non-production of witnesses cited but unnecessarily cannot justify adverse inference. 120 I.C. 606=1930 L. 163. The failure of plaintiffs to go into witness-box goes strongly against them. 11 L. 142=1930 L. 1. Generally speaking there is a good deal to be said for the contention that a suit should succeed on the ground that the defendant had not cared to enter the witness-box and testify as to the truth of his case. But if a defendant is of opinion after the plaintiff's case had been completed that the evidence was so discrepant and doubtful as to make it impossible for any Court to believe it, then if he so liked to take the risk he is justified in not giving evidence. 1940 A.M.L.J. 93. In order to entitle the Court under sec. 114, III. (g), to draw inferences unfavourable to the person withholding evidence, the opposite party must satisfy the Court that such evidence was in existence and could be produced. 37 C.W.N. 657=35 Bom.L.R. 500=1933 P.C. 87=64 M.L.J. 413 (P.C.); 61 I.A. 177=57 M. 443=38 C.W.N. 669=67 M.L.J. 1 (P.C.).

See 2 C.L.R. 476; 22 B. 680. But see 1929 M. 399 (where the Government failed to produce original settlement record but no adverse inference was drawn). Persons accused of an offence may not have a very satisfactory explanation to offer for the circumstance in which they were found and they may prefer to say nothing. One cannot in all cases draw an adverse inference from the fact that the persons accused refuse to give their account of what happened. 1937 R. 516.

CHAPTER VIII.

ESTOPPEL.

115. When one person has, by his declaration, act or omission, intentionally caused or permitted another person to believe a thing to be true and to act upon such belief, neither he nor his representative shall be allowed, in any suit or proceeding between himself and such person or his representative, to deny the truth of that thing.

Illustration (i).—Where the mortgagor has produced the mortgage-deed with the stamps punched in the ordinary way, such production would raise a presumption that it had been paid up, but it would not help to prove that it had been paid before a particular date. 144 I.C. 175=1933 R. 61 (2). Sec. 115.—Section is not exhaustive, and estoppels are not confined to this section. 15 P. 721=17 P.L.T. 697=165 I.C. 98. See also 22 Pat. 554. The ordinary laws of estoppel that arise out of the conduct of the principals apply equally well to contracts entered into by a District Board through its executive officers, with different bus owners in respect of their licenses. 1937 M.W.N. 1223 (2). Defendant erecting building on debuttar land—Representation by receiver that he would become permanent tenant—Receiver is estoppel from ejecting defendant. 46 C.W. N. 483. Estoppel is nothing more, than a rule of evidence. The law of India and England is the same as regards estoppel. 1933 P. 708; 1939 P. 296=182 I.C. 618. The Law of estoppel which sec. 115 enacts is the same as the English Law. 65 I.A. 75=I.L.R. (1938) M. 360=(1938) 1 M.L.J. 268 (P.C.). Estoppel is both a rule of pleading and evidence and it extends to things which are matters of pleading and not proof. In India there is no room for any application of the doctrine of estoppel outside the provisions of sec. 115. A party is not estopped from suing; he is estopped from making the allegations necessary to enable his suit to succeed. 22 Pat. 554=A.I.R. 1944 Pat. 30. A party cannot be allowed to approbate and reprobate. Where a person with full knowledge of the facts in unmistakable terms admitted the waqf nature of a house he cannot subsequently be allowed to resile from the position. (1930 L. 686, Foll.) 183 I.C. 645=41 P.L.R. 342=1939 L. 63. There can be no estoppel when the true state of facts is known to the person pleading estoppel. 28 Pat.L.f. 213=A.I.R. 1942 Pat. 317. The principle of estoppel or res judicata has no application to income-tax cases. There is no estoppel against an assessee who makes admissions, but the admissions made by him are undoubtedly pieces of evidence in the case which can be considered. (1943) I.T.R. 16. There can be no estoppel by judgment or decree apart from the doctrine of res judicata unless the same matter is found to be in issue in the former trial as that now in question and unless the judgment was rendered on the merits. 1938 M.W.N. 224 (2)=47 L.W. 374. See also 1940 N. L.J. 1=1940 N. 163. A judgment not only creates a right, it works an estoppel. A judgment creating a charge on immovable property binds not only the parties to the suit but also their privies. The term "privy" is a term of the law meaning a partaker who is not a party, that is, in this connection, it includes all who derive title to the land, the subject of the charge from one who was a party to the suit by the decree in which the land was charged. It follows, therefore, that the charge is effective against a bona fide purchaser of the land for value without notice by reason of the law of estoppel by record. I.L.R. (1938) N. 431=172 I.C. 949=1938 N. 129. If a party persuades a Court to believe a certain false statement, that cannot operate as an estoppel between the parties to that proceeding in a different suit. The party concerned may be liable to other penalties civil or criminal but the statement cannot operate as estoppel. 1942 O. W.N. (B.R.) 578. A person claiming the benefit of a general estoppel under sec. 115 cannot be placed on exactly the same footing as a person who obtains a transfer from an ostensible owner and claims protection under sec. 41, T. P. Act. Sec. 41, T. P. Act, no doubt deals with a branch of estoppel; but sec. 115 does not impose on the person acting on the faith of a representation made to him the same duty of making inquiries into the truth of the representation as is imposed on a transferee from an ostensible owner by sec. 41, T. P. Act. 11 O.W.N. 1097=1934 O. 460. See 20 C. 296 (P.C.); 46 A. 728 (P.C.). As to conditions of applicability, see 138 I.C. 552. See also (1943) 2 M.L.J. 508; 1932 A. 643. It is not necessary to invoke successfully the defence of estoppel that the representation should be fraudulent. I.L.R. (1943) Kar. 227=A.I.R. 1943 Sind 177. Sec. 115 does not apply when there is no evidence that any representations were made. (1943) 1 M.L.J. 219. Representation—Promissory note by elder brother in Hindu joint family—Debt borrowed for private purpose—Endorsement of payment signed by executant and by younger brother—Liability of latter—Estoppel against denial does not arise. 1943 M.W.N. 26=(1943) 1 M.L.J. 104. A mere representation of intention cannot be the basis of estoppel. 1938 C. 172. The term "representative" in sec. 115 is not limited to a gratuitous transferee or to a subsequent transferee for value with notice. It includes a bona fide assignee for value without notice of the circumstances creating an estoppel. 1934 M. 302=66 M.L.J. 563. A party deriving interest from a person bound by an estoppel before the date on which the estoppel arises is not bound by that estoppel as his representative because an estoppel cannot affect the interests which had been acquired before the date on which the estoppel arose. 23 Pat.L.T. 213=A.I.R. 1942 Pat 317. Estoppel is a rule of civil action. There is no estoppel in Criminal Law. 40 A. 393=45 I.C. 519. Plea open to plaintiffs as well as defendants. 1927 O. 97. Plea open only to person for whom representation was meant, and hence in respect of declarations in sale proclamation only auction-purchaser can plead estoppel and not private purchaser from judgment-debtor. 1927 C. 34. Where plea of estoppel is not set up in the pleadings or issues, it cannot be availed of later, because estoppel is eminently a matter of pleadings. 119 I.C. 152=1929 M. 467; 22 C.W.N. 179; 43 I.C. 556=46 P.R. 1918; 44 I.C. 254; 52 I.C. 739; 23 C.L.J. 122; 16 N.L.J. 248; 14 L. 218=34 P.L.R. 149=1933 L. 179. It is not necessary for the purpose of sec. 115 that any fraud or deception should be pleaded. If it is found that any representation was intentionally made by one party and it was acted upon by the other party, the rule of estoppel will apply. 40 P.L.R. 848=178 I.C. 436=1938 L. 558. See also 41 P.L.R. 414=1939 L. 538; 1943 Sind 177. Where the case is one of two competing estoppels, one arising out of the execution of a mortgage and the other arising out of a judgment in the previous suit, the latter estoppel should prevail. In the words of Lord Coke "estoppel against estoppel setteth the matter at large." 8 O.W.N. 809=1931 O. 263. Under sec. 115, a person is estopped only when he has by his declaration or act intentionally caused or permitted another person to believe a thing to be true and to act upon such belief. If a person in suit claims a certain status on the strength of the interpretation put by him on a certain document, he cannot be said to have led the other party to believe a thing or act on its belief, for it was open to the latter to examine the document and to decide for himself whether the interpretation put by the opposite party was correct or not. 1940 O.W.N. 1233=1940 R.D. 582=1941 A.W.R. In the meantime the mortgagor sold the property to B privately and free from incumbrances and the decretal amount was deposited in Court. Held, that as A had disclosed the existence of prior mortgage and as he did not know that the property was sold privately to B free from incumbrances he was not estopped from suing on the prior mortgage. 1936 L. 1020. If the owner of the railway allows the railway represented by its manager to deal with third persons as a legal entity and to enter into a contract on that footing, he cannot, when a suit, is brought on such contract, assert his position as the proper party nor can the railway administration repudiate its liability to be sued. 1934 A.L.J. 1093=1934 A. 740. Where during the course of a winding up of a company a certain person gave an undertaking to the Court that he would pay a certain sum of money to the official liquidator if the assets of the company, namely, a mill, be handed over to him and he obtained possession he is estopped from resiling from it. 1930 A. 330. The admission of liability under a decree obtained against the ward does not create an estoppel and debar the Court of Wards from challenging the validity of the decree on the ground that certain formalities under the Court of Wards Act not having been complied with the decree was not validly obtained. 31 Funj.L.R. 749=1930 L. 798. =1933 L. 412; unless the act which the plaintiff did to his own prejudice is referable to the defendant's representation, no estoppel arises. 61 C. 64=151 I.C. 334=1934 C. 441. But see 35 C. 904=12 C.W.N. 721 (P.C.). There are three kinds of estoppel: (1) by record, see Evidence Act, secs. 40 and 44. 39 C.L.J. 40; 48 I.A. 49. (2) Estoppel by deed. See 12 L. 546. (3) Estoppel in pais or by conduct which is dealt with in secs. 115-117. To bring a case within the section there must be (1) a representation which amounts to an intentional causing or permitting belief in another, (2) a belief on the part of the other in its truth, (3) the declaration must have caused the other to act on the faith of it and alter his position. The law of estoppel draws a distinction between representations and omissions, and omission to speak will furnish a basis for estoppel, only when the circumstances are such as to throw upon the party sought to be bound by estoppel the duty to speak out the truth. 44 L.W. 859=1937 M. 158. Before an estoppel can take place, it would be necessary for the party relying on the same to establish that he had been led to do something detrimental to his own interests owing to the action of the other person. 119 I.C. 337=1929 O. 494. See also 1937 O.W.N. 423. No case of estoppel can be established by a party if it is not shown that any action of his was induced by any representation or conduct of the other party. 32 S.L.R. 340=172 I. C. 981=1938 P.C. 87 (P.C.). In order that a representation may operate as an estoppel it must be a representation of an existing fact and not of mere intention or future promises. 42 C. 254; 39 I.C. 385; 28 B. 399; 7 Bom.L.R. 184; 41 M. 315; 34 M.L.J. 463. See also 1937 N. 402. Also, estoppel does not confer any title but is merely a rule of evidence which prevents one party from denying the existence of a fact which he represented as existing and upon which representation another person had been induced to act to his detriment. 56 C. 989. The existence of estoppel does not depend on the motive or knowledge of the person making the representation and it is not essential that the intention of the person representing should be fraudulent. A rule of estoppel is purely personal against the person estopped and does not create any substantive right in rem. except against the person estopped or against his representative. No estoppel can ensue on a representation of a mere opinion or of a point of law. 110 I.C. 665=1928 A. 459. See also 101 I.C. 803. Doctrine of estoppel cannot be invoked by the defendant claiming from her husband, through whose concealed fraud the plaintiff was kept in ignorance of his real rights and was in consequence induced to execute a release of all his claims. 36 C.W.N. 758=55 C.L.J. 420. Where a person who has not been appointed executor of a will either expressly or by implication, describes himself as an executor under a mistake about his legal position, this would not make him an executor or raise an estoppel against him. 183 I.C. 885=12 R.P.C. 78=1939 O. When a recital is intended to be a statement which all the parties to the deed have mutually agreed to admit as true it is an estoppel upon all. But, when it is intended to be the statement of one party only the estoppel is confined to that party and the intention is to be gathered from construing the instrument. The recital however cannot operate as against a third party. 1933 P. 708. See also 19 P.L.T. 421=1938 P. 431. Where a municipality owing to some mistake failed to recover a particular tax, it cannot be pleaded that they are estopped from recovering it, when they later on make attempts to collect it. The question as to what is the proper basis for the valuation of a suit under O. 21, r. 63 of the C.P. Code by an unsuccessful claimant whether it is the amount of the decree sought to be executed or value of property proceeded against, is one of law and a party who has acted in the lower Court on one basis is not precluded from maintaining the contrary in the appellate Court. 55 A. 315=1933 A. 249 (F.B.). If in a proceeding under O. 21, r. 58, C.P. Code, the decree-holder omits to raise the plea that the proceeding ought to be under sec. 47, C.P. Code and not under O. 21, r. 58, he is not thereby estopped from pleading that in defence in a regular suit filed under O. 21, r. 63. 1934 A. 699. Acquiescence in an invalid and illegal objection does not bind the plaintiff or prevent him from exercising his right. 1933 S. 258. Nor does estoppel arise where statement is due to a mistake, e.g., a policy began by stating that A had paid the company a certain sum by way of premium. Held, that the existence of these words in the policy does not prevent the company from asserting that the premium was not in fact paid. 1934 R. 343. See also 1938 A.W.R. 16=1938 R.D. 4. Where in enhancement proceedings relating to a holding, the landlord, misled by the patwari's entry, described the tenant as also the tenant of an adjacent piece of fallow land, he is not precluded from contesting the status of the occupier and from bringing a suit that the defendant was not a tenant of the fallow land. 14 L.R. 68 (Rev.)=17 R.D. 62. Where certain payments by way of bazaar dues are made by the defendants in ignorance of their legal position, they are not estopped from questioning the right to recover such dues. Further there can be no estoppel against a statutory provision. 190 I.C. 143=1940 A.W.R. (C. C.) 357=1940 O.A. 746=1940 O.W.N. 782=1940 O. 409. There can be no estoppel where a man misconceived the legal effect of an order which was of no legal force. 27 M.L.J. 465. Consent decree—Estoppel—Test.—The test for determining whether there is an estoppel in any particular case in consequence of a decree passed on a compromise must depend upon the answer to the question "Did the parties decide for themselves the particular matter in dispute by the compromise and was the matter expressly embodied in the decree of the Court passed on the compromise or was it necessarily involved, in, or was it the basis of, what was em-

Where under a compromise between a Hindu widow and the reversioners, the reversioners take up the management of the property agreeing to pay off the debts due to the creditors of the widow, they are not estopped from subsequently denying that the debt due to certain creditors is binding on the estate, when the compromise has not influenced the conduct of the creditors in any manner and it cannot be said that they were misled into acting in a particular way which they would not have done but for the compromise. 199 I.C. 425=14 R.C. 19=A.I.R. 1942 Cal. 448. Where an ex parte decree passed against a defendant is directed to be set aside on payment of costs, the mere acceptance by the plaintiffs' counsel of a portion of the costs, paid by the defendant will not preclude the plaintiff from filing an application in revision against the order setting aside the ex parte decree, unless a conscious decision to abandon the plaintiff's right of filing such an application has been taken by his counsel after a full comprehension of all the facts. 1944 N.L.J. 134.

A compromise in contravention of provisions of law cannot operate as estoppel. 1936 R.D. 565. But where in a deed, the term which is in contravention of the statute is separable, the deed is void in respect of that party only, and the rest being severable, estoppels may arise in respect of the parts which are good. 63 C.L.J. 52=1936 C. 774. Mere silence cannot amount to a representation so as to give rise to an estoppel, but where there is a duty to disclose, deliberate silence may become significant and amount to a representation giving rise to an estoppel. 47 Bom.L.R. 470=A.I.R. 1945 Bom. 511. A person is not justified in keeping silent when he is aware that another person has encroached upon his land and is erecting a costly building. See also 1940 O. 164; 1939 L. 502; 46 C.W.N. 483. Silence may amount to acquiescence if it is an omission to act according to the circumstances of a particular case. Where a site is sold with a condition attached that it should not be used as a shop, but it is allowed to be used as a shop by the first vendee and his successors and the shop is even re-built without any objection being raised by the vendor, the latter is estopped from raising the objection subsequently. 42 P.L.R. 133. An admission inferred from conduct does neither amount to an estoppel nor is a conclusive proof of the matter admitted, but it is certainly a strong prima facie evidence and may be conclusive when not rebutted by any evidence. 1939 M.L.R. 229 (Civ.). Where after an order for ejectment under sec. 61 of the Oudh Rent Act for arrears of rent, the landlord files a fresh suit for arrears of rent, it operates as an admission on the part of the Zamindar that the defendant is his tenant in spite of the previous decree for his ejectment and operates also as an estoppel under sec. 115 against the landlord seeking execution of his ejectment decree. 1941 R.D. 415. Attestation of a deed by itself estops a man from denying nothing whatever excepting that he has witnessed the execution of the deed. It conveys neither directly nor by implication any knowledge of the contents of the document, and it ought not to be put forward alone for the purpose of establishing that a man consented to the transaction which the document effects. Of course, there may be cases in which attestation is made in circumstances when coupled with other evidence of consent and acquiescence in the execution of a document, it is relevant to the question whether the attesting witness had knowledge of the contents and agreed to them. 1937 P.W.N. 144=170 I.C. 1005=1937 P. 353. If an agreement is found to be in contravention of a statute or against public policy a party cannot be held estopped from pleading or proving facts which would render the agreement void ab initio. 309=1941 R. 234; 1940 A.W.R. (B.R.) 144. There can be no estoppel against an act of the legislature. When therefore the legislature has declared that no adoption would be valid without a registered adoption deed the plaintiff is not estopped by her conduct from disputing the validity of defendant's adoption for want of a registered deed. 1939 A.M.L.J. 60 (C.). See also 1941 R. 234. In case of a statute enacted for the benefit of a section of the public, that is, on grounds of public policy, where the statute imposes a duty of a positive kind, not avoidable by the performance of any formality for the doing of the very act which the party suing seeks to do, it is not open to the opposite party to set up an estoppel to prevent it. This conclusion must follow from the circumstances that an estoppel is only a rule of evidence by a party to an action; it cannot therefore avail in such a case to release the party suing from an obligation to obey such a statute nor can it enable the opposite party to escape from a statutory obligation of such kind on his part. It is immaterial whether the obligation is onerous or otherwise to the party suing. The duty of each party is to obey law. 1937 M.W.N. 663=1937 P.C. 114 (P.C.). An ultra vires statute cannot be validated by acquiescence but an acquiescing party may be estopped from questioning it. 1939 N. 44=1939 N.L.J. 439. It is true that if there is a representation, by one of the parties to a suit or proceeding, of certain facts which would necessitate some other proceeding, and as a result of that representation being accepted the Court passes a certain order, then the party making that representation would be estopped from stating in separate proceedings that the facts represented were not true. No party can, however, be estopped because of a legal argument put forward on his behalf. (1943) 2 M.L.J. 508. It is quite true that there can be no estoppel against a statute but this well-recognised rule does not imply that there can be no estoppel even against a plea of a fact which has to be established before the application of the statute can be invoked. A man may not estop himself by any conduct of his from pleading that an alienation made by him is in contravention of a provision of the Punjab Alienation of the Land Act. He may, however, estop himself by such conduct from pleading that he is a member of a tribe to which protection is afforded by the Act. 47 P.L.R. 385. Every body is supposed to know the law or at least to have so much opportunity of knowing the law as another so that a wrong belief on a point of law cannot strictly be said to be caused by a misrepresentation on the part of another. 173 I.C. 991=1938 C.W.N. 355=1938 O. 110. See also 1943 R. D. 359; (1942) 2 M.L.J. 97. Estoppel under sec. 115 consists not in putting forward a particular view of the law, but in making a particular representation on a point of fact. In a suit for arrears of rent in a Revenue Court the defendants pleaded that, on the allegations in the plaint, the plaintiff had not established that the property formed part of an estate, and, therefore, no suit lay in the Revenue Court. This plea was upheld by the Court which returned the plaint for presentation to the proper Court. The plaintiff then filed the suit in the Civil Court and the defendants now contended that the Civil Court had no jurisdiction to entertain the suit on the ground that the plaintiff had not made out that the land on which the rent was due was a portion of an estate. Held, that there was no question of estoppel in the case at all and the defendants were not estopped from contending that the Civil Court had no jurisdiction. 55 L.W. 396=A.I.R. 1943 Mad. 22=(1942) 2 M.L.J. 97. Where in answer to a letter from an owner of certain premises, the Calcutta Corporation informed him that a certain amount was due on account of the arrears of the municipal consolidated rates, and the amount mentioned by it was by a mistake less than the amount that was actually due. Held, (i) that the Corporation was not estopped from recovering the sum actually due. It is an elementary principle that there is no estoppel against the law under the provisions of the Calcutta Municipal Act there is a statutory obligation imposed respectively on the corporation and the rate-payer to collect and pay the rates—these rates being secured by a first charge on the premises and there being no power to remit the taxes unless they appear to be irrecoverable; (ii) that a purchaser of the premises from the owner was in no better position than his vendor and could not, therefore, defeat his statutory liabilities by a plea of estoppel. 50 C.W.N. 263.

Doctrine of Estoppel and Acquiescence, distinguished.—The doctrine of acquiescence is only another phase of estoppel. The foundation of the doctrine of estoppel and acquiescence is that one party has made to the other representations which were intended to be and were in fact acted upon by that other spending money or doing an act which he would not have otherwise done, which involved expenditure or a change of position. In the case of estoppel the material representations are active, while in the case of acquiescence the representations are to be inferred from silence. The doctrine of acquiescence also goes by the name of the doctrine of standing by. If an owner of land finds another person trespassing upon his land and building on it, mere silence or inaction on his part at the time will not be sufficient to support a case of acquiescence. Mere silence or mere inaction cannot be construed to be a representation. To support a case of acquiescence there must be something more than mere silence or inaction. Inaction or silence in circumstances which acquire a duty to speak is the foundation of the doctrine. When inaction or silence would amount to fraud or deception, then and then only can the doctrine of standing by or acquiescence be applied. The party seeking the aid of the doctrine has to prove (1) that he made a mistake of his legal rights; (2) that he expended money or did some act on the faith of the mistaken belief; (3) that the legal owner or possessor of the legal right knew of his own right which is inconsistent with the right claimed by the party relying on the doctrine; (4) that the possessor of the legal right knew of the mistaken belief of the other; and (5) that the legal owner encouraged the other party in his expenditure of money or in the other acts, either directly or by abstaining from asserting his legal rights. 40 C.W.N. 1370=1936 C. 711. quære, whether it is possible for one of the parties to the orders to stand by the order in one suit while repudiating the order in the other. 1929 P.C. 289=57 M.L.J. 429 (P.C.). For purposes of estoppel, an order by consent, is as effective as an order of the Court made otherwise than by consent. In other words the only difference between an order made by consent and one not so made is that the first stands unless and until it is discharged by mutual agreement or is set aside by an order of the Court; the second stands unless and until it is discharged on appeal. A consent order even where it has been obtained by fraud or mistake, is not a nullity. The order stands until it has been effectively set aside. (Ibid.) A party to a consent decree is estopped from going behind the terms to which he has voluntarily submitted on the ground that the decree was wrongly passed. 26 S.L.R. 395. The facts that the reversioner to the estate of a widow's husband had received some items of property from the widow in consideration of relinquishing as reversionary right to the remainder and that his son, himself inherited those items which the father had received, could not operate as estoppel against the son from questioning the subsequent alienation by the widow in favour of others. 1933 M. 637=

A Burmese wife refrained from making any claim in her husband's payin property but referred to it as her husband's property and attested the mortgage-deed, and made payment of interest thereon. Landlord and Tenant.—[See also Notes under sec. 116.] See 1939 Pat. 296. The acceptance by the landlord of rent at uniform rate does not by itself raise any estoppel against the landlord, because there is no representation thereby that it would confer permanent tenancy on the lessee. 58 B. 419=36 Bom.L.R. 359=1934 B. 194. Where in rent receipts given by the agent of the Zamindar, the tenants are described as occupancy tenants, in the absence of evidence to show that the agent had power to confer occupancy rights, the Zamindar is not estopped from asserting that the tenants had no occupancy rights. Though a tenant can never be estopped from claiming occupancy rights in respect of land in an estate by reason of the Statute he will be estopped from saying that the land is an estate. If he has previously taken it on the footing that it is not an estate it may be that the estoppel extends only up to his surrendering vacant possession; after he surrenders, he may agitate any question he likes. But he cannot keep the possession which he obtained by representing that he will not claim the land to be an estate. 119 I.C. 577=1929 M. 529. Although if a person went into possession of properties under a will conferring a life-estate on him, he may be estopped from denying the title of the remainder-man, a person who entered into possession after his father's death without any title at all cannot be affected by any estoppel to which his father might have been subject, because his father had nothing to pass to him and he took nothing through his father. The mere fact that he would have succeeded as heir to his father if his father had left an heritable estate does not make him a privy of his father for the purpose of the rule of estoppel laid down in *Board v. Even a mere attornment creates an estoppel against the tenant but such estoppel is not the same as the statutory estoppel under sec. 116. There are other kinds of estoppel between tenant and landlord falling outside the scope of sec. 116. Such an estoppel would not prevent the tenant from showing that he attorned in ignorance of the fact that the person to whom he attorned had no title. A mere attornment does not create a new tenancy. The only effect of a mere attornment is the substitution of a new landlord in place of the old and the tenancy continues on the same terms. 47 Bom.L.R. 209. I.L.R. (1945) Bom. 343=1945 Bom. 399. Sec. 116 is not exhaustive and does not contain the whole law of estoppel. The section in terms applies only to cases where the tenancy continues. A similar estoppel exists in the case of a tenant holding over and the tenant cannot deny his landlord's title while he continues in possession. He must either give up possession or must have been evicted by title paramount. 22 Pat. 513=A.I.R. 1944 Pat. 77. Sec. 116 presupposes that the person affected by the estoppel is a tenant. Estoppel under the section arises therefore only when or after the tenancy is admitted or proved. I.L.R. (1943) Nag. 340. See also 1944 A.L.J. (Supp.) 15; 1942 N.L.J. 136. It is true that once a valid and subsisting lease is established between the parties, the lessee may be bound by the principle of estoppel and may be debarred from disputing the question of title of the lessor, but that does not prevent the alleged lessee to deny the lease and to deny his own status as a lessee. He is bound by the rule of estoppel only when he acts as a lessee and in that capacity, tries to refuse the title of his own lessor. That well-established principle of estoppel as between lessor and lessee as enacted in sec. 116 of the Evidence Act does not prevent any defendant to make out the case that he has never been a lessee, and the lessee purporting to make him a lessee was never a valid document, and in that behalf, to plead such circumstances as may invalidate the lease or otherwise make it null and void. 223 I.C. 303. Section is applicable to the case of immovable property only. 4 R. 503=1927 R. 94. It is only so long as the tenancy is subsisting and the tenant is in possession, that a tenant cannot set up the title of a third person. Where, before the lease is to take effect the lessee discovers that the lessor had no title and takes a new lease from the real owner and enters into possession thereunder, he is not estopped from denying the first lessor's title. (1937) 1 M.L.J. 679=1937 Mad. 882=I.L.R. (1937) Mad. 638 (F.B.). See also 17 Mys.L.J. 310. The rule of estoppel embodied in sec. 116 of the Evidence Act only applies to the denial of the title of the landlord at the beginning of the tenancy. The doctrine which operates between landlord and tenant has no application to the same parties, even while the tenancy exists when the question of title arises between them not in the relationship of landlord and tenant, but of vendor and purchaser. 1945 Mad. 321=(1945) 1 M.L.J. 475. Once a complete relationship of landlord and tenant is established, the rule of estoppel comes into operation and prevents the tenant from denying the authority and title which he admitted to rest in the landlord who inducted him into possession of the land. 73 C.L.J. 281=1941 Cal. 408. See also 46 Mys.H.C.R. 547; 49 Mys.H.C.R. 287. A tenant cannot be permitted to show that in granting him the lease, the landlord acted as agent of another person who was the real owner, and that the liability to pay rent to the lessor cannot be discharged by payment to that alleged owner. 53 L.W. 492=1941 Mad. 607=(1941) 1 M.L.J. 554. Sec. 116 only estops a tenant from pleading that at the time of leasing the land his lessor had no title; if the lessor loses possession and the tenant becomes liable to another for the rent, he is not estopped from disputing his lessor's claim. 1936 R.D. 384. See also 186 I.C. 274; 1940 A.W.R. (B.R.). 171. Sec. 116 does not estop a tenant from denying the right, as his landlord, of person who claims to have succeeded to the landlord who put the tenant in possession. 182 I.C. 533=41 P.L.R. 346=1939 L. 49. See also 1940 Lah. 341. There is no warrant for holding that the estoppel under sec. 116 only arises in favour of a landlord who puts the tenant into possession. It is wide enough to cover any case of a grantee who occupies and enjoys under a grant disputing the grantor's title. 47 Bom.L.R. 209. In view of sec. 116, it is not open to a sub-tenant who has executed a kabuilyat to deny the title and rights of the sub-tenant to lease land. 1942 O.W.N. (B.R.) 381. In a suit by a landlord for rent, it is open to the tenant to plead in defence that the title of the plaintiff has, subsequent to the commencement of the tenancy, passed to somebody else, and that as such he was not entitled to the rent. Sec. 116 does not prevent a tenant from pleading that the title of the original lessor has since come to an end. 1939 A.L.J. 913=1939 All. 670. If a kanomdar attempts to resist a suit for redemption on the ground that his landlord has lost his title by reason of a Court sale of his interest in the property, it is not enough for the kanomdar, who is in the position of a lessee and a mortgagee to show that a third party had become the purchaser of the plaintiff's interest in the property. He must go further and prove that as the result of this purchase, there was an eviction of him by title paramount or an equivalent of some such eviction and that he attorned to the holder of the title paramount. If he does not prove these facts he still continues under the original tenancy and the bar imposed by sec. 116, Evidence Act, operates during the continuance of the tenancy which is not determined automatically by the Court sale. He would be estopped under sec. 116, until there is eviction by superior title or until he surrenders possession. 1945 M. W.N. 233 (2) = 58 L.W. 167 (1) = (1945) 1 M.L.J. 269. Party acquiring by adverse possession—Permissive possession after, no estoppel. 1929 R. 170. Section not exhaustive. 32 C.W.N. 867. Sec. 116 does not deal or profess to deal with all kinds of estoppel or occasions of estoppel which may arise between landlord and tenant. It deals with one cardinal and simple estoppel and states it first as applicable between landlord and tenant and then as between licensor and licensee, a distinction which corresponds to that between the parties to an action for rent and the parties to an action for use and occupation. The section postulates that there is a tenancy still continuing, that it had its beginning at a given date from a given landlord. It provides that neither a tenant nor any one claiming through a tenant shall be heard to deny that that particular landlord had at that date a title to the property. In the ordinary case of a lease intended as a present demise, the section applies against the lessee, any assignee of the term and any sub-lessee or licensee. What all such persons are precluded from denying is that the lessor had a title at the date of the lease and there is no exception even for the case where the lease itself discloses the defect of title. The principle does not apply to disentitle a tenant to dispute the derivative title of one who claims to have since become entitled to the reversion, though in such cases there may be other grounds of estoppel, e.g., by attornment, acceptance of rent, etc. In this sense it is true that the principle only applies to the landlord who "let the tenant in" as distinct from any other person claiming to be reversioner. Nor does the principle apply to prevent a tenant from pleading that the title of the original lessor has since come to an end. There is in English case law some authority for the view that a tenant is only estopped from denying his landlord's title if at the time when he took his lease he was not already in possession of the land. But in sec. 116 the Indian Legislature has formulated no such condition. 41 C.W.N. 1253 = 1937 P.C. 251 = (1937) 2 M.L.J. 286 (P.C.). A lessee of land is under an obligation to surrender possession of the premises demised to his lessor from whom he derived possession; and until he fulfils that obligation, he is bound to pay his lessor either rent or damages for use and occupation. It is no doubt open to the sub-lessee to show that his title having expired he has surrendered possession to the original landlord from whom his lessor derived possession or to a person claiming by title paramount. In such cases no question of estoppel would arise; but when he is unable to plead a valid defence to his obligation to surrender possession, it would not be open to him to resist his lessor's demand for damages for the use and occupation during the period he has been in possession until he surrenders possession to the lessor. Even though, therefore, the original lessee's title may have expired, by the expiration of the term of his lease, until the sub-lessee shows that he has renounced the obligation of surrendering possession to him by commencing to hold under some other person either the landlord of the original lessee, (i.e., his lessor) or a person claiming by title paramount or by delivering possession to him, the mere fact that the original lessee's title has expired is no defence to a suit by him against the sub-lessee for arrears of rent or damages for use and occupation. 1937 M. 478 = (1937) 1 M.L.J. 566. A tenant cannot escape estoppel merely by saying that his tenancy under the landlord was terminated either by delivery of possession under a decree for possession or by the landlord's own act in determining the tenancy and bringing the suit for ejectment. Nor can he escape it merely by saying that he came to an arrangement with a third person claiming a paramount title and attorned to him. The estoppel, however, disappears if the landlord's title is extinguished subsequent to the inception of the tenancy, or if there is eviction by title paramount. No physical dispossession by the person claiming paramount title is necessary. If the true owner is armed with a legal process of eviction which cannot be lawfully resisted, even though the tenant is put out of possession, the threat to put him out of possession amounts in law to eviction. If, under such circumstances, the tenant, openly and to the knowledge of his landlord, attorns to the true owners, the estoppel is gone. The attornment, however, must be under compulsion, and the party evicting must have a good title and the tenant must have quitted against his will. 22 Pat. 513 = 1944 Pat. 77. Ejectment suit by landlord—Adverse rights claimed by tenant—Independent suit as the remedy. 1928 C. 546; 35 C.W.N. 652. Sec. 116 presupposes a provable contract of tenancy. When there is no denial of the landlord's title but only a de-nal of a contract of tenancy, the section is not a bar. There can be no estoppel on a matter of law. 164 I.C. 557=19 N.L.J. 179=1936 N. 174. See also 1944 R.D. 377=1944 A.W.N. (Rev.) 200. If once the relation of landlord and tenant is established between the parties, the tenant would be estopped from disputing the landlord's title. There are no words in sec. 116 to show that the tenant must be put into possession by the landlord in order to estop the tenant from disputing the landlord's title. 30 Bom.L.R. 741=1928 B. 265; 139 I.C. 46=33 P.L.R. 799 (2); 36 Bom.L.R. 1074. Sec. 116 does not estop a tenant from denying the right as his landlord, of person who claims to have succeeded to the landlord who put the tenant in possession. 1939 L. 49. Where the rent suit is brought by the daughters claiming to be heirs to the leasehold rights alleged to be the stridhan of their mother, though the tenants cannot dispute the title of their mother at the commencement of the lease they can dispute the derivative title of the plaintiffs. It is in such a case incumbent upon the plaintiffs to prove that the leasehold rights in question were the stridhan of their mother and they are entitled to inherit the said rights according to Hindu Law. 1940 Lah. 341. Sec. 116 of the Evidence Act only estops a tenant from disputing his landlord's title during the continuance of the tenancy. Where the tenancy originated in a lease, the estoppel continues even after the expiration of the period of the lease, unless the tenant has openly surrendered possession or has at least given notice to his landlord that he claims under his own title. But in the absence of evidence to prove that the tenant paid rent to the landlord after the expiry of the lease, or that the landlord assented to the possession of the tenant after the determination of the lease or that the tenant accepted the title of the landlord after that, it cannot be inferred that the relationship of landlord and tenant continued after such determination, and Art. 139 of the Limitation Act bars any suit to recover possession from the tenant after the expiry of twelve years from the date when the tenancy was determined. When the tenant has proved that the tenancy has been determined by efflux of time it is for the landlord to prove that any tenancy was created or arose after such date. 176 I.C. 84=46 L. W. 848=1938 M. 73. A tenant is not estopped merely because, by the tenancy he acknowledges the title of his landlord, and a tenant may always explain and thereby render inconclusive acts done through mistake or misapprehension. It is permissible to a tenant to deny his lessor's title if it is shown that he executed the lease in ignorance. 177 I.C. 599=1938 R. 227. Sec. 118: Scope of Section.—Sec. 118 suggests that in India the rule generally is in favour of the admission of all the evidence of doubtful character though the weight to be attached will be a matter for the Court's discretion. 34 I.C. 976=18 Bom. Sec. 118 vests in the Court the discretion to decide whether an infant is or is not disqualified to be a witness by reason of understanding or lack of understanding; but this discretion must be exercised in a judicial manner. No doubt, the proposition that the competency of the witness to understand and give rational answers should be tested by Court by interrogating him before his examination is commenced, is not quite justified by the provisions of the section. Explanation.—A lunatic is not incompetent to testify, unless he is prevented by his lunacy from understanding the questions put to him and giving rational answers to them.

116. No tenant of immoveable property, or person claiming through such tenant, shall, during the continuance of the tenancy, be permitted to deny that the landlord of such tenant had, at the beginning of the tenancy, a title to such immoveable property; and no person who came upon any immoveable property by the licence of the person in possession thereof shall be permitted to deny that such person had a title to such possession at the time when such licence was given.

119. A witness who is unable to speak may give his evidence in any other manner in which he can make it intelligible, as by Dumb witnesses. writing or by signs; but such writing must be written and the signs made in open Court. Evidence so given shall be deemed to be oral evidence.

Parties to civil suit and their wives or husbands. Husband or wife of person under criminal trial.

120. In all civil proceedings the parties to the suit, and the husband or wife of any party to the suit, shall be competent witnesses. In Criminal proceedings against any person, the husband or wife of such person, respectively, shall be a competent witness.

should be pursued where the circumstances of the case make it plainly desirable. 43 C. W.N. 1117. Witness may be competent without being compellable. See Field, p. 402 (6th Ed.). Test of competency is that witness should be able to understand questions put to him. 102 I.C. 349=8 P.L.T. 594; 1928 L. 903; 1930 Sind 120 (understanding is the sole test of competency). The absence of such examination does not invalidate the trial. 41 C. 406=14 Cr.L.J. 485. As to competency to testify, see also 23 A. 90; 11A. 180. As to child witness, see also 15 Cr.L.J. 161; I.L.R. (1941) 2 Cal. 180; 20 Bom.L.R. 365; 16 B. 359; 16 M. 105; 10 A. 207; 3 P.L.T. 649=66 I.C. 73; 41 M. 365=34 M.L.J. 460; 1928 L. 903; 1930 L. 337. Should not be examined if unable to give relevant information. Notwithstanding sec. 5 of the Oaths Act, a child's evidence is not inadmissible merely on the ground that no oath was administered to it. Sec. 13 of the Oaths Act governs such cases. 22 I.C. 737=38 M. 550. When two persons though accused of complicity in the same offence are tried separately, each is a competent witness at the trial of the other, though the case could be different if they are tried together. 45 C. 720=22 C.W.N. 405. Evidence of husband to disprove access on the question of legitimacy of child born during wedlock. See 38 M. 466=25 M. L.J. 594. (Cr.). 1 Accomplice evidence. 8 P.R. 1904 (Cr.). Evidence of witness illegally pardoned by police. 16 B. 661=Rat. 776. See also 19 B. 363. Unless there is something shown against the witness, his evidence should not be discarded merely because he is related to the party when he is a man who prima facie must be regarded as respectable and reliable. 145 I.C. 330=1933 R. 162.

Sec. 119.—See 5 O.C. 246. Sec. 119 applies to the case of a witness who has taken a religious vow of silence and gives his evidence in writing to questions put to him. It is not the practice of the Courts to force any man to act contrary to his religious convictions so long as his acts are legal, and if a witness's religion forbids him to speak the Court will not compel him to speak and he must be deemed "unable to speak" within the meaning of sec. 119. The evidence of such a witness given and taken in writing in open Court is properly taken and is not inadmissible, 20 Pat. 898=1942 P.W.N. 23=23 Pat.L.T. 332=1942 Pat. 183. When a witness is so deaf and dumb, that it is impossible to make him understand the question put to him, in cross-examination, he cannot be a competent witness and his evidence ought to be struck out and a conviction based solely on his evidence ought to be quashed. 14 I.C. 655=1912 M.W.N. 100.

Sec. 120: Illustrative Cases.—Where the husband in divorce proceedings relied on the birth of a child as evidence of adultery under secs. 118 and 120, his evidence as to non-access was admissible. 38 M. 466=25 M.L.J. 594. A child born 11 months after the marital intercourse between its parents had ceased, is illegitimate. (Ibid.) A person against whom are launched proceedings for order for maintenance under sec. 488, Cr.P. Code, is competent witness on his own behalf in such proceedings. 18 A. 107. Scope of Sections.—Questions mentioned in secs. 121, 124 and 125 are not barred. The witness has simply a privilege of refusing to answer them and a Magistrate may warn the witness of his privilege. But he cannot disallow such questions. 10 I.C. 917=12 Cr.L.J. 277. As to whether a Judge can be witness in a case tried by himself, see 4 B.L.R. (Cr.) 15; 20 W.R. (Cr.) 76; 2 C. 405; 23 W.R. Sec. 122: Scope of Section.—See 22 M. 1 at 3; 35 Bom.L.R. 174=1933 B. 153.

Application of Section.—The restriction in sec. 122 is not one that can be waived or that a Court can relax, so that disclosure by a widow of certain communications made to her by her husband immediately before his death cannot only be not compelled but should not be permitted at all. 23 I.C. 511=40 C. 891. Under sec. 122, the consent to the evidence being given cannot be implied. It is incumbent upon the Court to ask a party against whom the evidence is to be given whether he or she would consent to the evidence, being given and not to admit it unless such consent is given. 171 I. C. 529=38 Cr.L.J. 1089=1937 R. 347; 27 P. R. (Cr.) 1913=19 I.C. 1004. No statement of an incriminating nature made by the accused as to her guilt under sec. 302 to her husband could be received in evidence. 1923 L. 40 (10 P.R. 1914, Foll.) See also 27 I.C. 664=34 P.R. 1914 (Cr.); 14 Cr.L. J. 273=19 I.C. 705. A woman's confession to her husband is inadmissible in view of sec. 122. An offence against a person in the section does not include an offence against a son though it may cause grief to the father. 10 P.R. (Cr.) 1914; 25 I.C. 525. Communication by an arbitrator to his wife shortly before his death that he accepted bribe from a party can be permitted to be disclosed only if sec. 122 is fulfilled. 1930 L. 280 (2). On a trial for breach of trust by a public servant, a letter of the accused to his wife found by the police was held admissible against him in evidence. 22 M. 1. Secs. 122 and 123.—See 45 L.W. 470= (1937) 1 M.L.J. 613.

Sec. 123.—The privilege in respect of official and State documents from production in Court is a narrow one, most sparingly to be exercised. Scope of privilege pointed out. 35 C.W.N. 1121=61 M.L.J. 943 (P. C.). See also 1944 Sind 145. Under sec. 123 when a Government official desires to claim privilege, it is desirable, even if it is not essential, that he should put in a statement stating that he has considered the documents carefully and has come to the conclusion that they cannot be produced without injury to the public interests. He ought not to take the responsibility of withholding production except in cases where the public interest would otherwise be damaged, for example, where disclosure would be injurious to national defence, or to good diplomatic relations, or where the practice of keeping a class of documents secret is necessary for the proper functioning of the public service. 1946 N.L.J. 205. For the purpose of sec. 123 the Court cannot be invited to discuss the question if a particular document falls within the description of "an unpublished official record." The decision of the public officer concerned is final on that question. (8 Q.B. 255; 48 C. 304; 1930 M. 342, Foll.) 8 Mys.L.J. 474.

The Zaildari book and an application by the Zaildar to the Collector praying for the deletion of certain remarks therein, are not in their very nature unpublished official records, and no privilege in respect of these documents can, therefore, be claimed under sec. 123. The Head of Department may be the final judge as to whether a certain document does or does not relate to matters of state but he cannot be the final Judge as to whether the document has been published or not and whether it is official or not. 48 P.L.R. 41. The use of the word 'concerned' in relation to the head of the department shows that the affidavit must contain a sworn statement by the head of the department in whose custody the documents happen to be at the time when discovery and production is claimed. The principle and the foundation on which sec. 123 rests is concern for the public interest. If an affidavit is made by the head of the department that he does not wish to produce certain documents as they constitute unpublished official records relating to affairs of State he is deposing by implication that the production of those documents will be prejudicial to public interest. The words "Head of the Departments concerned" are not only applicable to the Ministers in the case of Provincial Government and to the Members of the Viceroy Executive Council so far as the Central Government is concerned. Therefore the affidavits by the Chief Secretary of Provincial Government or Home Secretary of Central Government are good. A.I.R. 1944 Lah. 209. See also 1944 Sind 145. Record evidencing interference by Government with pending judicial proceedings—If privileged. Departmental enquiry papers are not unpublished document relating to affairs of State. See 161 I.C. 668=1936 N. 25.

Secs. 123 and 124: Public officer—duty of Court.—Where a public officer declines to produce certain document, claiming privilege under secs. 123 and 124, it is for the Court to satisfy itself that the documents relate to any State affair or that their production will be detrimental to public interests and it is not for the public officer to decide whether the documents are privileged. The privilege regarding production of documents is a narrow one and the mere fact that their production is likely to prejudice the Crown's case is no reason for their non-production. 161 I.C. 668=1936 N. 25. Statements made to and recorded by a Forest Range Officer in the course of an investigation into an offence under the Madras Forest Act do not relate to any affairs of State nor can they be said to be communications made in official confidence the disclosure of which would be injurious to public interests. No privilege can be claimed in respect of such statements under secs. 123 and 124. It will be for the Court after perusing the statements and considering the objections as to their admissibility to decide whether they are admissible or not. 1937 M.W.N. 322=45 L.W. 470=(1937)

1 M.L.J. 613. Where the State is not a party, the following rules govern the question of production of records, claim of privilege, etc.—(1) All documents called for must be produced. (2) In case of State documents the privilege should be claimed by the witness who is summoned to produce them. (3) When objection is taken the Court cannot inspect the document but can take other evidence to determine its nature. (4) Ordinarily it is enough if the head of the department certifies that it refers to an affair of state. (5) The Court need not accept it as final but may require further evidence. (6) If the Court decides that it is not privileged, the document should be tendered in evidence. (7) If the Court considers it a State document, it cannot be admitted in evidence unless with the permission of the head of the department. 1938 N. 358. The accidents' register kept by a medical practitioner is not a privileged document, and a Magistrate cannot therefore refuse to cause production of the same. 1939 M.W.N. 1128 (2)=50 L.W. 796=1940 Mad. 240. Under sec. 123 it is only when the document deals with affairs of State that privilege can be rightfully claimed under the section. The diary of a foot constable who was shadowing the movements of a suspect could not possibly become an affair of State within the accepted meaning of the words. 188 I.C. 717=42 P.L.R. 484=1940 Lah. 217.

Secs. 123, 124 and 125.—A Police witness in proceedings under Ch. VIII, Cr. P. Code, cannot claim privilege when asked about a statement made or given to him by one of the witnesses. If such a statement was given in the course of an investigation, the plea of privilege might be based on sec. 124 of the Evidence Act, as sec. 125 refers to information given before the initiation of proceedings and sec. 123 cannot apply. Such a plea of privilege cannot be allowed, for a statement by a person who afterwards gives evidence as to the facts in that statement cannot be said to have been a statement made in official confidence, nor can a police officer be heard to say that the public interest will suffer if the accused are allowed their right of cross-examination. I.L.R. (1942) Kar. 252=A.I.R. 1942 Sind 122=44 Cr.L.J. 378.

Secs. 123, 124 and 162.—Sec. 162 deals with the production of documents in answer to summons and it is obligatory on a witness so summoned, to produce the documents called for by the Court; he has no right to determine whether the documents shall be produced. When producing them, it is for him to claim privilege, if the documents are privileged, and it is the duty of the Court to determine whether the documents shall be admitted and exhibited. Secs. 162 and 123 protect the discovery of documents relating to matters of State. There is difference between a private witness called upon to produce documents and a public officer summoned to produce

Explanation.—"Revenue-officer" in this section means any officer employed in or about the business of any branch of the public revenue.]

126. No barrister, attorney, pleader or vakil shall at any time be permitted, unless with his client's express consent, to disclose any communication made to him in the course and for the purpose of his employment as such barrister, pleader, attorney or vakil, by or on behalf of his client, or to state the contents or condition of any document with which he has become acquainted in the course and for the purpose of his professional employment, or to disclose any advice given by him to his client in the course and for the purpose of such employment :

Provided that nothing in this section shall protect from disclosure—

(1) any such communication made in furtherance of any [illegal]¹ purpose ;

(2) any fact observed by any barrister, pleader, attorney or vakil, in the course of his employment as such, showing that any crime or fraud has been committed since the commencement of his employment.

It is immaterial whether the attention of such barrister, [pleader]², attorney or vakil was or was not directed to such fact by or on behalf of his client.

Explanation.—The obligation stated in this section continues after the employment has ceased.

Illustrations.

(a) A, a client, says to B, an attorney—"I have committed forgery and I wish you to defend me."

As the defence of a man known to be guilty is not a criminal purpose, this communication is protected from disclosure.

(b) A, a client, says to B, an attorney—"I wish to obtain possession of property by the use of a forged deed on which I request you to sue."

The communication, being made in furtherance of a criminal purpose, is not protected from disclosure.

(c) A, being charged with embezzlement, retains B, an attorney, to defend him. In the course of the proceedings, B observes that an entry has been made in A's account book, charging A with the sum said to have been embezzled, which entry was not in the book at the commencement of his employment.

This being a fact observed by B in the course of his employment, showing that a fraud has been committed since the commencement of the proceedings, it is not protected from disclosure.

it protects the name of a spy or informant not the nature of the information and it has no application to an informant who lays a sworn information and thereby initiates criminal proceedings. This rule is clearly applicable to gambling cases. 29 I.C. 79=16 Cr.L.J. 447. In criminal prosecutions the witnesses for the Crown are privileged from disclosing the channel through which they received or communicated information. But this privilege cannot be claimed by a detective. 42 C. 957=19 C.W.N. 676.

Sec. 126.—Sec. 126 is not restricted only to oral communications made to the pleader by the client, but extends also to facts observed by the pleader in the course of and for the purpose of his employment and he is not bound to disclose them without the consent of the client. 152 I.C. 164=1934 L. 269. The privilege afforded to a legal adviser under sec. 126 is of a very limited character. It protects only such communications as are made to the legal adviser in confidence, in the course and for the purpose of his employment. And if the communication is not made in confidence then, communication is in no sense privileged. 1933 Sind. 47. A failure on the part of a client to claim privilege when he is under cross-examination does not amount to "express consent" given by him to his legal adviser to disclose a communication which is otherwise privileged under the section. (Ibid.). There is no privilege to communications made before the creation of the relationship of pleader and a client. Where two persons have a dispute about a claim made by one of them upon the other and both seek the help of a pleader, and one of them makes a statement to the pleader, the statement so made to the pleader by one of the parties is admissible. The test is whether the communication is made to the witness in his character of legal adviser. Further, in order to attract sec. 126 the communications by the party to his pleader must be confidential. 58 C. 1379=1932 C. 148. But the mere presence of friends of clients specially when such friends occupy more or less the same position as he himself, does not destroy the privilege. 1933 Sind. 47. There must be definite charge of fraud and something to support the charge before the claim of privilege can be overruled; and the legal practitioner can then be rightly compelled to answer the question with regard to the contents of the document at the instance

Section 126 to apply to interpreters, etc.

127. The provisions of section 126 shall apply to interpreters, and the clerks or servants of barristers, pleaders, attorneys and vakils.

128. If any party to a suit gives evidence therein at his own instance or, otherwise, he shall not be deemed to have consented thereby to such disclosure as is mentioned in section 126; and, if any party to a suit or proceeding calls any such barrister, [pleader],¹ attorney or vakil as a witness, he shall be deemed to have consented to such disclosure only if he questions such barrister, attorney or vakil on matters which, but for such question, he would not be at liberty to disclose.

129. No one shall be compelled to disclose to the Court any confidential communication which he has taken place between him and his legal professional adviser, unless he offers himself as a witness, in which case, he may be compelled to disclose any such communications as may appear to the Court necessary to be known in order to explain any evidence which he has given, but no others.

130. No witness who is not a party to a suit shall be compelled to produce his title deeds to any property or any document in virtue of which he holds any property as pledgee or mortgagee, or any document the production of which might tend to criminate him, unless he has agreed in writing to produce them with the person seeking the production of such deeds or some person through whom he claims.

Production of documents which another person, having possession, could refuse to produce.

131. No one shall be compelled to produce documents in his possession, which any other person would be entitled to refuse to produce if they were in his possession, unless such last-mentioned person consents to their production.

132. A witness shall not be excused from answering any question as to any matter relevant to the matter in issue in any suit or in any civil or criminal proceeding, upon the ground that the answer to such question will criminate, or may tend directly or indirectly to criminate, such witness, or that it will expose or tend, directly or indirectly to expose, such witness to a penalty or forfeiture of any kind :

when approver is a scoundrel, is not warranted. 77 I.C. 429=1924 R. 173. The probative value of the evidence of an accomplice is practically the same as the confession of a co-accused. 24 F.C. 156 (38 B. 156, Foll.). A conviction based on the evidence of an accomplice or the confession of a co-accused is not illegal, though it is not safe to act on such testimony, unless corroborated in material particulars. 24 I.C. 153=15 Cr.L.J. 417; 1929 N. 215; 7 O. W.N. 862.

..What is good corroboration and what is not.—Corroborative evidence should confirm in some material particulars not only the evidence that the crime has been committed but also that the accused committed it. 1933 L. 295=1933 Cr.C. 394. The nature of corroboration necessarily varies according to the particular circumstances of the offence charged. The corroboration need not be such as to confirm the accomplice in every detail of the crime; nor need it be by direct evidence that the accused committed the crime. It is sufficient if it is merely circumstantial evidence of his connection with the crime. (Ibid.) In all cases depending upon informer's evidence the degree of support required for the evidence depends in each case upon the individual's credit. 15 I.C. 987=16 C. W.N. 669. All persons coming technically within the category of accomplices cannot be treated as precisely on the same footing. 13 P.L.T. 802=1933 P. 96. An approver's evidence supported by the retracted confession of co-accused behind the back of the accused is not sufficient to convict the accused. Such a retracted confession is not a corroborated one of a high value. 18 I.C. 672=11 A.L.J. 73. It is unsafe to rely upon the uncorroborated testimony of the approver; the corroboration must be of the statement connecting the accused with the offence. 12 I.C. 513=12 Cr.L.J. 537 (A.); 1929 M.W.N. 794. There is nothing in sec. 133 to suggest that the statement of one approver cannot be regarded as corroborating that made by another approver. No doubt if it could be shown that the approvers had ample opportunity of consultation this corroborative value would be greatly diminished. 1923 L. 666. See also 76 I.C. 698=1923 L. 335; 1923 L. 152; 96 I.C. 127=1926 A. 705; 146 I.C. 364=1933 L. 946. Courts must exercise great caution. If there are circumstances which indicate inducement or pressure which is not recognised by law. 148 I.C. 745=1934 L. 583. See also 34 P.L.R. 2. Confession of one accused cannot be said to be corroborated by the confession of another as against a third accused who has not confessed at all. But between the first two the confession of one may be said to be corroborated by the confession of the second and vice versa. 60 I.C. 786=22 Cr.L.J. 290 (L.). (38 B. 156, Dist.) The rule that testimony of an approver must be corroborated not only as to the crime but also as to the identity of each accused person and that the corroboration must proceed from an untainted source is not a technical rule, but is founded on long judicial experiment. 38 C. 559=10 I.C. 582=15 C.W.N. 593; 1929 N. 222; 1929 L. 850=34 P.L.R. 866. The fabrication of a false defence cannot be regarded as sufficient to corroborate an approver. The evidence of one approver cannot be said to corroborate another except where both have, at the earliest opportunity and before there has been any chance of consultation, deposed to the same acts as having been committed by particular accused person. 3 L. 144=68 I.C. 113=1922 L. 1. An accused should not be convicted on the statement of an approver unless such testimony is strongly corroborated and the corroboration distinctly implicates the accused with crime committed. 40 I.C. 696=9 P.W.R. (Cr.) 1917; 39 I.C. 680=9 P.R. (Cr.) 1917; 1930 P. 164=11 P.L.T. 545; 146 I.C. 701=1933 N. 352; 147 I.C. 1172=1934 C. 114. The evidence of one accomplice is not sufficient corroboration of the evidence of other accomplices, nor are previous statements, made by the same person sufficient. 21 M.L.J. 283=9 I.C. 897; 1928 N. 215; 1929 L. 850; 1933 C. 146; 146 I.C. 1064=1933 O. 355. Accomplices in different stages of crime—Their evidence is not mutually corroborative. 1933 M.W.N. 1129. See also 146 I.C. 701=1933 N. 352. In cases where a judge combines the functions of a judge and jury, he is bound under law to scrutinise the accomplice's evidence—with the same degree of care and caution, which is required of him in a trial by jury; and, just as he is bound to give a warning to the jury, he must warn himself that it is unsafe to convince a person on accomplice evidence in the absence of substantial corroboration by independent evidence. 114 I.C. 457=1929 N. 215; 1934 C. 114=37 C.W.N. 934. It is mainly the duty of the prosecution to bring the accomplice character of the evidence to the notice of the Court and then invite it to believe it by reference to the corroborative evidence on record. An accused is under no legal obligation to do so. (Ibid.) See also 1941 O.A. 1018=1941 A.W.R. (C.C.) 402. An accomplice is a competent witness against an accused and a conviction will not be illegal if it proceeds upon his uncorroborated testimony; but this absolute rule of law as regards the evidence of accomplice is subject to a rule of guidance contained in Ill. (b) of sec. 114 that an accomplice is unworthy of credit unless it is corroborated in material particulars. 114 I.C. 609=1929 N. 233. The foremost essential condition for accepting the approver's statement is that it must be a trustworthy statement. 114 I.C. 623 =1929 N. 222. Where the accomplice's evidence is found to be truthful, there is no need for corroboration. 9 P.L.T. 672; 1930 M.W.N. 169. Credibility of approver's testimony depends upon the extent of removal of "taint" in his evidence. 1929 L. 850. Where the evidence of an accomplice is corroborated only as regards some accused, conviction of others is bad. 1929 M. 222. See also 146 I.C. 934=1933 P. 121. Corroboration may be circumstantial. 1930 N. 97; 1933 L. 294. If the evidence of an approver is discarded, it must be discarded as a whole and the defence cannot base arguments on it any more than the prosecution. 1930 P. 164. The rule in sec. 114, illus. (b) that an accomplice is unworthy of credit unless, he is corroborated in material particulars has become a rule of practice of so universal application that it has now almost acquired the force of law. 120 I.C. 721=1930 N. 97. See also 184 I.C. 545=1939 Rang. 361.

The practice of tendering witnesses for cross-examination in a criminal trial is inconsistent with sec. 183 and ought not to be employed in the case of a witness whose evidence is not merely formal; such a practice leads to confusion and does not conduce to the discovery of the truth. I.L.R. (1942) Bom. 384=43 Cr.L.J. 529=44 Bom.L.R. 27=A.I.R. 1942 Bom. 71 (F.B.). See also 43 Bom. L.R. 946=1942 Bom. 71; 1942 Bom. 37.

RETRACTED STATEMENT IS ADMISSIBLE.—A retracted statement of an approver is admissible as evidence against an accused person. 61 I.C. 528=12 L.W. 385. May be sufficient corroboration of the approver's story as against himself but not against a co-accused. 20 Cr.L.J. 188=49 I.O. 604. If there is no other reliable evidence in corroboration, the evidence of the approver, coupled with the retracted confession of a co-accused, is not sufficient for conviction. 55 A. 91=1933 A. 31.

DELAY IN MAKING STATEMENTS.—Long delay in making their statements would make their evidence liable to grave suspicion. 67 I.C. 828 (2)=2 L.L.J. 296.

At the same time the law does not lay down that the statement of witnesses must necessarily be accepted as true unless the opposite party produces evidence of its own to contradict them. 1942 O.W.N. (B.R.) 397 (2)=1942 E.D. 486 (2).

SEC. 135.—Order of examination of witnesses generally left to discretion of counsel. 5 C.W.N. 15. Where at the trial the prosecution witnesses who had been summoned were present in the Court as also the complainant and though the accused for certain reasons of his own wanted to cross-examine the witnesses before the complainant the Court insisted on the complainant being examined first on the ground that his state of health necessitated that course. Held, that the Magistrate should have acceded to the request of the pleader of the accused and directed the cross-examination of the witnesses before the complainant. 37 C.W.N. 288=1933 C. 189. Where the witnesses are not summoned at the instance of the accused for cross-examination, but are summoned for examination in a de novo trial, the order in which these witnesses are to be examined in chief rests at the discretion of the prosecution. The examination and cross-examination must relate to relevant facts, but the cross-examination may extend to the facts to which the witness testified in-chief, in order to bring out the explanation of matters referred to in his evidence; and, if new matter is introduced in cross-examination, the party who called him may introduce further evidence in support of the matter.

Cross-examination of person called to produce a document.

Witnesses to character.

Leading questions.

When they must not be asked.

The Court shall permit leading questions as to matters which are introductory or undisputed, or, which have, in its opinion, been already sufficiently proved.

When they may be asked.

144. Any witness may be asked, whilst under examination, whether any contract, grant or other disposition of property, as to which he is giving evidence, was not contained in a document, and if he says that it was, or if he is about to make any statement as to the contents of any document, which, in the opinion of the Court, ought to be produced, the adverse party may object to such evidence being given until such document is produced, or until facts have been proved which entitled the party who called the witness to give secondary evidence of it.

ness and not merely on the matters arising in the cross-examination on the second day. The law does not contemplate the placing of any such restriction on the right of re-examination conferred by sec. 138 and it is not open to the Court to take it away. If the matter elicited in re-examination gives rise to any suspicion that it has been the result of tutoring with regard to any matter covered on the last day of the cross-examination, it would be open to the Judge to draw the attention of the jury to the fact that the lapse of time may have given an opportunity for preparation; but this would not be a ground for refusing to let questions in re-examination being put. 195 I.C. 107—1941 P.W.N. 255—22 P.L.T. 327—1941 P. 362. To tender a witness for cross-examination in a Sessions trial is a very irregular course. The practice of tendering a witness for cross-examination is inconsistent with sec. 138. Such a course should, if at all, be adopted only in the cases of witnesses of secondary importance. Where the prosecution have already got sufficient evidence on a particular point, and do not want to waste time by examining a witness who was examined in the lower Court but at the same time do not want to deprive the accused of his right of cross-examining such witness they tender him for cross-examination. But the witness should, strictly speaking, be asked by the prosecution, with the consent of the accused's pleader and the leave of the Court, whether his evidence in the lower Court is true. If he gives a general answer as to the truth of his evidence 139. A person summoned to produce a document does not become a witness by the mere fact that he produces it, and cannot be cross-examined unless and until he is called as a witness.

140. Witnesses to character may be cross-examined and re-examined.

141. Any question suggesting the answer which the person putting it wishes or expects to receive is called a leading question.

142. Leading questions must not, if objected to by the adverse party, be asked in an examination-in-chief, or in a re-examination, except with the permission of the Court.

in the lower Court, he can be cross-examined on that. But he must in some way be examined-in-chief before he can be cross-examined. In any case the practice of tendering a witness for cross-examination certainly should not be employed in the case of an important witness. 43 Bom.L.R. 946; 1942 Bom. 87—1.L.R. Sec. 143.—In the course of cross-examination by the defence for eliciting facts in their favour from the prosecution witnesses the defence are entitled under sec. 143 to ask leading questions. 19 G.W.N. 676—42 C. 957. The Court may, in its discretion under sec. 143, permit the prosecution to cross-examine a witness even though he had been originally called by them with regard to the matters elicited by the defence. 42 C. 957. Leading questions such as can properly be put in cross-examination of a hostile witness cannot be put by the Public Prosecutor in examination-in-chief. 2 P.L.T. 757. If a Judge disallows a question, the pleader should have the question, and order disallowing it recorded, if such a refusal is illegal. 36 L. C. 468—9 Bur.L.T. 133. On this section, see 37 C. 487.

Sec. 144.—See 35 C. 141; 19 A. 390 at 421; 12 Or.L.J. 214.

Explanation.—A witness may give oral evidence of statements made by other persons about the contents of documents if such statements are in themselves relevant facts.

Illustration.

The question is whether A assaulted B.

C deposes that he heard A say to D—" B wrote a letter accusing me of theft, and I will be revenged on him." This statement is relevant, as showing A's motive for the assault, and evidence may be given of it, though no other evidence is given about the letter.

145. A witness may be cross-examined as to previous statements made by him in writing or reduced into writing, and relevant to matters in question, without such writing

Sec. 145.—As to applicability of section to police diaries, see Cr.P. Code, sec. 172. Scope and application of the section. See 19 A. 390; Rat. 610 and 924; 11 B.H.C.R. 120; 20 C. 642; 31 O. 142; 33 O. 1023; 28 C.W.N. 587; 74 C.L.J. 547. Without complying with the procedure laid down in sec. 145 an admission contained in a previous statement cannot be used as legal evidence against a party. 47 P.L.R. 391=1946 Lab. 65 (F.B.). A previous statement made by a witness can be admitted in evidence although the provisions of sec. 145 have not been strictly complied with, where the witness has been cross-examined generally as to the circumstances under which the previous statement was made and in some detail as to particular statements made, and the failure to put each individual statement has not resulted in any miscarriage of justice. 200 I.C. 328=43 Cr.L.J. 693=74 C.L.J. 547=A.I.R. 1942 Cal. 277. In order that previous statement reduced to writing may be used for the purposes of cross-examination under sec.

145, it is not necessary that it must have been reduced to writing by a person having jurisdiction to do so. 24 Pat. 623. Where documents are desired to be used for the purpose of contradicting a witness under sec. 145, they should be filed immediately after the examination of the witness and his attention must be drawn to them before they could be proved. It is not permissible to prove them at a hearing subsequent to the examination of the witness. 1944 R.D. 349. An illiterate person is not immune from the processes of law with regard to contradiction by a previous statement, because sec. 145 makes not the slightest difference whether the witness is literate or illiterate. 182 I.C. 935=41 P. L.R. 775=1939 L. 268. Where an approver goes back upon his confession, it can be used to contradict him when he is treated as a hostile witness, but it is not substantive evidence and cannot be used to contradict a co-accused's confession. 184 I.C. 274=1939 N.L.J. 442=1939 N. 295=I.L.R. (1941) N. 506. Before a previous statement of a witness in writing can be used to contradict his evidence, his attention must be specifically drawn to the statement sought to be used under sec. 145. That is however necessary only if the document containing the statement becomes relevant solely under the section and is otherwise irrelevant and inadmissible. If the document is otherwise relevant and admissible as an admission under sec. 21 of the Act, it is not necessary to observe the provision of sec. 145 before using it. 17 P.L.T. 621=1936 P. 588. See also 1939 M.L.R. 76 (Cr.); 1944 R.D. 349. Where the whole of the previous statement made by the witness is read out to him and he is cross-examined in respect of it but he gives evasive replies, sec. 145 is fully complied with although the witness is not specifically asked about particular portions of that statement. 40 P.L.R. 471. There is no duty cast upon counsel who wishes to cross-examine a witness by putting to him a previous statement, first to prove that statement. Sec. 145 has to be read with sec. 162, Cr. P. Code, and quite clearly indicates that the attention of a witness is to be called to the previous statement before the writing can be proved. If the witness admits the previous statement, or explains any discrepancy or contradiction, it obviously makes it unnecessary for the statements thereafter to be proved. On the other hand if the statement still requires to be proved that can be done by calling the person before whom it was made. I.L.R. (1939) L. 509=41 P.L.R. 775=1939 L. 268. A document which is used to contradict a witness must be put to the witnesses. Simply because the witness does not go into the witness-box, the Court is not entitled to break the law and admit such document. 150 I.C. 841=1934 P. 55 (2). Section can be used only to show that the witness is contradicting something he has said before; but not to show that he had omitted to state in former inquiry to the Police what he was stating at the trial. 56 M. 475=1933 M. 372 (2)=64 M.L.J. 519. It is open to counsel for the accused to bring out by questions in cross-examination discrepancies between the evidence of the witnesses as given in Court and the statements as made to the police with a view to throwing doubt on the credibility of their testimony. 45 P.L. R. 155. Sec. 145 does not militate in any way against previous statements being used by way of corroboration of statement put in under sec. 288, Cr. P. Code, which are

(a) A barrister is instructed by an attorney or vakil that an important witness is a dakait. This is a reasonable ground for asking the witness whether he is a dakait.

(b) A pleader is informed by a person in Court that an important witness is a dakait; the informant, on being questioned by the pleader, gives satisfactory reasons for his statement. This is a reasonable ground for asking the witness whether he is a dakait.

(c) A witness, of whom nothing whatever is known, is asked at random whether he is a dakait. There are here no reasonable grounds for the question.

(d) A witness, of whom nothing whatever is known, being questioned as to his mode of life and means of living gives unsatisfactory answers. This may be a reasonable ground for asking him if he is a dakait.

Questions intended to insult or annoy.

152. The Court shall forbid any question which appears to it to be intended to insult or annoy, or, which, though proper in itself, appears to the Court needlessly offensive in form.

153. When a witness has been asked and has answered any question which is relevant to the inquiry only in so far as it tends to shake his credit by injuring his character, no evidence shall be given to contradict him; but if he answers falsely, he may afterwards be charged with giving false evidence.

Exception (1).—If a witness is asked whether he has been previously convicted of any crime and denies it, evidence may be given of his previous conviction.

Exception (2).—If a witness is asked any question tending to impeach his impartiality and answers it by denying the facts suggested, he may be contradicted.

The evidence is not admissible.

(c) A affirms that on a certain day he saw B at Lahore.

A is asked whether he himself was not on that day at Calcutta. He denies it.

Evidence is offered to show that A was on that day at Calcutta.

The evidence is admissible, not as contradicting A on a fact which affects his credit, but as contradicting the alleged fact that B was seen on the date in question in Lahore.

In each of these cases the witness might, if his denial was false, be charged with giving false evidence.

(d) A is asked whether his family has not had a blood-feud with the family of B against whom he gives evidence.

He denies it. He may be contradicted on the ground that the question tends to impeach his impartiality.

154. The Court may, in its discretion, permit

Questions by party to his own witness. the person who calls a witness to put any questions to him which might be put in cross-examination by the adverse party.

SEC. 154.—See 28 C. 594; 13 C. 53; 12 M.I.A. 380. The circumstances in which a witness may be cross-examined by the party calling him are not laid down in sec. 154, which leaves the matter entirely to the discretion of the Court. The mischief begins when the grant of permission itself is considered to be equivalent to an adjudication or to an expression of opinion by the Court adverse to the veracity of the witness instead of being treated merely as a permission to test veracity of a witness, a permission which can hardly be refused when any witness makes an unexpected statement adverse to the case of the prosecution. 144 I.C. 936=1933 P. 488; 166 I.C. 726=38 Cr. L.J. 271=1937 P. 34. See also 14 Pat. L. T. 494=1933 P. 517. If a party calling a witness wants to challenge his veracity or to get certain admissions detracting from the value of his evidence given beforehand, the proper procedure is to resort to sec. 154, which gives the discretion to the Court to permit the party calling the witness to put questions to that witness by way of cross-examination. There is no provision in the Evidence Act or in the Criminal Procedure Code which justifies a Magistrate recording the evidence of a witness to make at the end of his deposition a note to the effect that he is "declared hostile". Such a note has absolutely no significance in law. The opposite party is entitled to rely on the evidence of such witness. (1945) P.W. N. 241. As to the evidence of hostility and principles governing discretion of Court, see 1933 N. 384; 152 I.C. 1021=1935 P. 1033. When a witness becomes hostile it would in certain cases be unsafe to accept any portion of the testimony which he has rendered in examination-in-chief. To pick and choose between the statements which such a witness makes in examination-in-chief would sometimes be an unsound proceeding. But it would be quite wrong to hold that a Court is entirely debarred from bringing its judicial discretion to bear on materials which cross-examination elicits and of deciding whether the truth lies there. 44 C.W.N. 999=

1940 C. 586. It is now settled that the evidence of a witness who is cross-examined by the party calling him is still evidence and can be relied on by either party, the credibility of the facts deposed being a matter for the jury. There is no legal objection to permission to treat a witness as hostile being granted freely, although it is preferable to avoid the use of the words "declared hostile" which by association have come to carry by implication a misleading significance. 19 P. 369=1940 P. 289=22 P.L.T. 93. The power given by sec. 154 is a discretionary one and will not be reviewed by the appellate Court provided there was some material on which such discretion can be exercised. The mere fact however that a witness does not adhere to or subsequently makes a statement different from his previous statement does not of itself justify the employment of the power given by sec. 154. 11 B. 4=1933 B. 57. See also 166 I.C. 726=1937 P. 34; 1945 Cal. 159. That the answer of the witness is in direct conflict with other evidence is no ground to treat him as hostile and allow cross-examination. 55 M. 904=1936 M. 516=71 M.L.J. 231. Hostile witness, who is a witness is not necessarily hostile because in an absent-minded moment he admits the truth. Before a prosecution witness can be declared hostile, there must be good ground for believing that the statement he made in favour of the defence is due to enmity to the prosecution. 44 I.C. 33=3 P.L.J. 419. See also 61 C. 399=38 C. W.N. 659=1934 C. 636. A witness who is unfavourable is not necessarily hostile; a hostile witness is one who from the manner in which he gives his evidence show that he is not desirous of telling the truth. 49 C. 93=1922 C. 267. (47 C. 1043, Ref.) 34 C.W.N. 536=1930 C. 376. Where a witness has been tendered but not examined by the prosecution, the prosecution cannot cross-examine that witness. Sec. 154 does not authorise such cross-examination. 7 P. 55=1938 P. 203. A prosecution witness who was declared hostile and permitted to be cross-examined by the prosecution in the committing

Impeaching credit of witness.

155. The credit of a witness may be impeached in the following ways by the adverse party, or, with the consent of the Court, by the party who calls him—

- (1) by the evidence of persons who testify that they, from their knowledge of the witness, believe him to be unworthy of credit ;
- (2) by proof that the witness has been bribed, or has ¹[accepted] the offer of a bribe, or has received any other corrupt inducement to give his evidence ;
- (3) by proof of former statements inconsistent with any part of his evidence which is liable to be contradicted ;
- (4) when a man is prosecuted for rape or an attempt to ravish, it may be shown that the prosecutrix was of generally immoral character.

Explanation.—A witness declaring another witness to be unworthy of credit may not, upon his examination-in-chief, give reasons for his belief, but he may be asked his reasons in cross-examination, and the answers which he gives cannot be contradicted, though, if they are false, he may afterwards be charged with giving false evidence.

LEG. REF.

Court, cannot be treated at once as a hostile witness and cross-examined by the prosecution in the Sessions Court without being examined-in-chief. 196 I.C. 439=45 C. W.N. 763=1941 C. 533. Where a witness turns hostile and is cross-examined by the party calling him, the evidence of such a witness need not be rejected in toto. It is a question for the Judge to decide whether in spite of the witness having been discredited on one point his testimony may be considered on another. 1933 M. 137=56 M. 7=64 M.L.J. 208. Before a party calling a witness can cross-examine him it is not necessary that the witness should first of all be declared hostile. In this respect sec. 154 gives an unqualified discretion to the Judge quite apart from any question of the hostility or otherwise of the witness. It is, however, necessary before the procedure of sec. 154 can be adopted, either for permission of the Court to be obtained or for it to be given by the Court without its being sought. Such permission should be signified if not in words, by some other action of the Court indicating its permission during the cross-examination of the witness by the party calling him. 56 M. 7; 1933 N. 389. See also 58 C. 1404. A party is allowed to cross-examine his own witness because the witness displays hostility and not necessarily because he displays untruthfulness. The fact that the witness is being cross-examined does not imply an admission that all the witness's statements are falsehoods. On the other hand, the main purpose of cross-examination is to obtain admission. Consequently the prosecution is entitled to rely on a part of the witness's evidence even though he has turned hostile. 9 P. 474=1930 P. 247. Secs. 143 and 154 do not give power to the prosecution to put leading questions to their own witnesses even with the assent of the Judge. The meaning of sec. 154 is that they may, with the permission of the Court, treat a witness as hostile and cross-examine him. The wording of sec. 154 shows that the legislature did not intend to distinguish the law in this country from the law which obtains in England. 50 C.L.J. 467=1930 C. 139. It must be understood that a witness should be cross-examined to be discredited altogether and not merely to get rid of part of his testimony. 71 I.C. 657=37 C. L.J. 173=1923 C. 463. Evidence is offered to show that, on a previous occasion, C said that the wound was not given by A or in his presence.

The evidence is admissible.

other circumstances which he observed at or near to the time or place at which such relevant fact occurred, if the Court is of opinion that such circumstances, if proved, would corroborate the testimony of the witness as to the relevant fact which he testifies.

Illustration.

A, an accomplice, gives an account of a robbery in which he took part. He describes various incidents unconnected with the robbery which occurred on his way to and from the place where it was committed.

Independent evidence of these facts may be given in order to corroborate his evidence as to the robbery itself.

589. The statement to the police is not evidence like a statement made on oath before a competent authority. (Ibid.) Receiver's report to the District Judge that he was wrongfully confined and obstructed in the discharge of his duties about 24 hours after the occurrence did not come under the provisions of sec. 157, as it was not made at or about the time of, occurrence but 24 hours after, and as it was not made to a person who had power to investigate the fact, and that therefore the prosecution could not have used it to corroborate the witnesses, but that it was open to the defence to have used sec. 155 to impeach the credit of the Receiver. 55 C. 879=111 I.C. 327=1928 C. 732.

SEC. 155.—On this section, see 104 I.C. 377=1927 R. 247; 25 A.L.J. 994; 1939 N. 13; 54 M.L.J. 545 (P.C.). Section if affected by sec. 162, Cr.P. Code. 4 R. 72. See also 14 Pat.L.T. 543=1933 P. 589. A confession by an accomplice to an Excise Officer is inadmissible as a piece of substantive evidence as against the other accused, even if the latter had been tried along with the maker and a fortiori that it is inadmissible as a piece of substantive evidence in a separate proceeding against the other accused. But where the maker is examined as a witness on behalf of the other accused it is admissible for the purpose of impeaching his credit in respect of the later statement made by him in his evidence in Court under the provisions of sec. 155. 61 C. 967=38 C.W.N. 1005=1934 C. 616. The language of sec. 155 (3) is prima facie wide enough to permit such question as asking the investigating officers if certain witnesses made certain statements. But where the evidence has been reduced into writing it is undesirable to permit the putting of such questions. In such a case the written record made by the police officer is the only proper and right thing to prove to discredit the witnesses. If the police diary is used the provisions of sec. 145, Evidence Act, and sec. 162, Cr.P. Code, will have to be borne in mind. A copy of the statement made before the police cannot be used as against the witness till he has been confronted with it. The right procedure then when a prosecution witness is contradicting himself is to ask the Judge to look into the diary and decide whether the accused person should not have a copy of the statement. 26 A.L.J. 139. Sec. 162 (1), Cr.P. Code, by enacting that no statement made to the police officer or any record thereof shall be used "for any purpose at any enquiry or trial" repeals by implication sec. 157 so far as concerns statements made by a police officer in the course of an investigation. 14 P.L.T. 543=1933 P. 589. sec. 155 (3) does not render nugatory the clear and explicit provisions of sec. 145 and in fact takes for granted the existence and binding effect of those provisions. 32 P.L.R. 259=1931 L. 38. a piece of land, the lower Court granted the plaintiff a decree on the strength of the statement made by a witness in the box which was corroborated by a recital in the mortgage bond between two strangers to the suit about the boundaries of the suit property. Held, that such recital was not evidence and as the document was not produced by that witness his testimony could not be relied on. 146 I.C. 192=34 P.L.R. 917.

SEC. 157: MEANING OF WORDS.—The words “legally competent” mean having power under some law, statutory or otherwise. The section is controlled by sec. 162, Cr.P. SCOPE AND APPLICATION OF SECTION.—12 Bom.L.R. 663; 25 M. 183 (210); 7 A.L.J. 458; 53 B. 699 (P.C.); 34 C. 129; 2 C.W.N. 704; 4 Bom.L.R. 434. Sec. 157 provides an exception to the general rule excluding hearsay evidence and in order to bring a statement within the exception, the duty is cast on the prosecution to establish by clear and unequivocal evidence the proximity of time between the taking place of the fact and the making of the statement. 110 I.C. 676=1928 L. 647. Ordinarily before the corroborative evidence is admissible, the evidence sought to be corroborated must be given. Where in support of the plaintiff's case a witness for the plaintiff produces a letter written to him by another witness but before the production of such letter the witness does not make any statement whatsoever, which is sought to be corroborated by the letter, the letter cannot be admissible in evidence under Sec. 157. 1937 M. 861. Reference by witness to deed to which he was not party not permissible. 40 P.L.R. 968=1938 L. 635. In a charge under sec. 161, I.P. Code, of having received a bribe, the bribe-giver is in the position of an accomplice, and as a matter of expediency, his evidence must be corroborated in material particulars implicating the accused. It is highly doubtful if an accomplice can corroborate himself; assuming that he can, statement made by the bribe-giver to third parties are inadmissible in evidence if made long after the event. The statements to be admissible must have been made at or “about the same time,” which means within a reasonably short time after the event, when a reasonable opportunity for making presented itself, whether the statements were so made is a question of fact in each case. 1945 M.W.N. 114=58 L.W. 171= (1945) 1 M.L.J. 197. Under sec. 63 (1) of the Bombay City Police Act, although the documents containing statement of witnesses made before the police in the course of investigation cannot be tendered in evidence on behalf of the prosecution, yet the oral statements of witnesses recorded in the panchanama in the presence of the police at an identification parade in the course of investigation are admissible in evidence to corroborate the statements of those witnesses at the trial, under S. 157. 47 Bom.L.R. 992.

ILLUSTRATIVE CASES.—Where a party files a petition on the date of hearing asking for adjournment on the ground that his pleader cannot attend Court that day on account of hartal, the fact of filing the petition as well as its contents can be proved and are admissible, though not perhaps sufficient to charge the pleader with professional misconduct. 49 C. 732=26 C.W.N. 589 (F.B.). First information report is admissible. 54 C. 237=99 I.C. 227=1927 C. 17. See also 165 I.C. 146=38 P. L.R. 203=1936 L. 833. Statements in the first information report can only be used for the purpose of the contradicting or corroborating a witness and for no other purpose. 31 L.W. 51=1930 M. 632 (2). Where a statement made to a police officer is not the first information under sec. 154 of Cr. P. Code, the Magistrate must take from the police officer a statement that the particular statement was made to him. 61 I.C. 650=22 Cr.L.J. 410 (C.). See also 5 L. 324=82 I.C. 129=1924 L. 609. A kanungo deputed to make inquiry under sec. 148 of the Cr.P. Code may give his deposition and his report is admissible to corroborate his sworn testimony. 12 I.C. 88=12 Cr.L.J. 480 (C.). A statement made to the Deputy Superintendent of Police in which the informant gave an account of what occurred is admissible in evidence as the Deputy Superintendent of Police is an officer legally competent to investigate the facts of a murder and dacoity, within the meaning of sec. 157. 45 M.L.J. matters may be proved either in order to contradict or to corroborate it, or in order to impeach or confirm the credit of the person by whom it was made, which might have been proved, if that person had been called as a witness and had denied upon cross-examination the truth of the matter suggested.

279=75 I.C. 695=1923 M. 694. Statements by witnesses recorded by a Police Superintendent during investigation are not admissible in evidence nor oral evidence based on such statement. 45 M. 766 (35 M. 397, Ref. to). The 'local area' of an officer of C.I.D. is the Presidency of Madras and he is therefore competent to investigate an offence under the Cr.P. Code. An Inspector of the C.I.D. is not one of the officers legally entitled to investigate an offence under secs. 157 to 167 of the Cr.P. Code, and so his evidence is not admissible under sec. 157. 35 M. 247=22 M.L.J. 490=14 I.C. 859. But see 1927 C. 17=44 C.L.J. 253. An officer of the C.I.D. who investigates a matter under the order of his superior is not an officer "legally competent" within the meaning of sec. 157 as he does not derive his power from the Police Act or the Cr.P. Code. 35 M. 397=13 Cr.L.J. 352=14 I.C. 896 (F. B.). A headman cannot examine witnesses on oath in the course of an inquiry in a criminal case. The statement made to headman can only be used in the manner provided for in secs. 145 and 157, Evidence Act. 144 I.C. 349=34 Ch.L.J. 781=1933 R. 119. A panchanama is not evidence of the statements contained therein and it should be proved and exhibited as relevant evidence of those statements. 12 I.C. 209=12 Cr.L.J. 489. See also 1939 M. A statement admissible under sec. 157 can be proved by a person to whom it was made. Evidence of a person who hears a statement being made is as direct proof of the same as the evidence of a person who sees a deed in proof of the deed being done. 58 I.C. 344=21 Cr.L.J. 760. In the absence of substantive evidence, first information report cannot be used as corroborative evidence. 6 R. 481=1928 R. 295. A letter written by a police officer to his superior expressing that a certain person would make a certain statement for a certain sum of money is not under sec. 157 receivable in evidence for any purpose. 6 R. 142=1928 P. C. 54=54 M.L.J. 545 (P.C.). Prior whole statement of a witness cannot be admitted—Even admissible parts cannot be admitted before witness is examined. 22 S.L.R. 309. See also 1933 M.W.N. 1148. Where a person has been examined as a witness, a statement said to have been made by him to another is not admissible when no question is put to the witness as to whether the particular statement had been made to such other person. 151 I.C. 437=35 C.L.J. 1332=1924 S. 100. Sec. 157 cannot be invoked to let in statements made by somebody else as evidence for the purpose of corroboration of a witness examined in the case. 110 I.C. 521=1928 C. 893. Any Magistrate is competent to hold a test identification and can prove the statements made before him under sec. 157 even though he is not empowered to deal with the matter under enquiry. 33 C. W.N. 616=1928 C. 50. Recital as to date of birth of the mortgagor contained in an application by his brother is admissible. 1929 A. 550. But a statement by father in vaccination register made 3 years after birth of child cannot be relied upon to prove paternity of the child. 1929 M.W.N. 696. A recital of the date of birth of a minor in a guardianship application can be used as a corroborative evidence under sec. 157, in support of the oral testimony of the applicant in a subsequent suit, if the application was made before a competent authority and long before the subsequent dispute arose. 199 I.C. 19=A.I.R. 1942 Cal. 438. Oral evidence of what the witness had said on the occasion of an identification parade held by the Bombay Police in the course of investigation and recorded in a panchanama written on that occasion in the presence of a competent police officer is admissible for purposes of corroboration under sec. 157. 32 Bom.L.R. 327=1930 B. 158. On this see also 180 I.C. 239=1939 Pesh. 4. In proceedings under sec. 107, Cr.P. Code, sanchas or reports made by the prosecution witnesses on various dates against the accused in the absence of the latter are not substantive evidence of the matters mentioned in them; but under sec. 157, such reports can be used in order to corroborate what the witnesses testify to in Court when they are examined in Court. 21 P.L.T. 652=1940 P. 252.

RECITAL AS TO BOUNDARIES.—A recital regarding boundaries in a document executed between strangers to the suit relating to lands, adjoining the suit lands and in which the suit land is referred as a boundary is not admissible under sec. 13 but may be admissible if the executant is called and depose to the boundary to corroborate him under sec. 157, or if he is dead under sec. 32. 145 I.C. 944 (2)=1933 P. 636; 1940 M.W.N. 80=1940 M. 450.

SEC. 158.—Statements made before the Sub-Registrar by the deceased attestors to a will are admissible under sec. 32 (7) taken with sec. 158 but not under sec. 33. Under sec. 158, even prior statements of deceased persons can be admitted both for contradiction and corroboration. 1933 M.W.N. 1148. See 8 P.L.T. 510=5 P. 777=1927 P. 91. As to scope of section, see 1926 L. 122.

SECS. 158 AND 159: LIST OF STOLEN THINGS GIVEN BY INFORMANT—ADMISSIBILITY.—A list of the stolen things given to supplement the first information report is admissible and can be referred to under sec. 159 and proved under sec. 159. The fact that a copy of such a list had been given to the police would not affect the admissibility of the informant's list. 1933 Cr.C. 1503=1933 L. 987.

SEC. 159: REFRESHING MEMORY.—A witness can be allowed to refresh his memory by reference to any memorandum or other writing prepared by the witness, if there is a lapse of memory on a point asked of the witness. On this section, see also 8 C. 732; 19 C.W.N. 890; 11 B.H.C. 123; 11 B. 657; 32 M. 384; 1926 L. 51; 1930 N. 24 (1). Where the writing brings to the mind of the witness neither any recollection of the facts mentioned in it or any recollection of the writing itself but which nevertheless enables him to swear to a particular fact from the conviction of his mind on seeing a writing, which he knows to be genuine, the witness may refresh his memory by referring to the writing. 49 C. 573=26 C.W.N. 680=35 C.L.J. 279. Sec. 159 does not render the notes of a speech inadmissible in evidence. 1930 L. 867. Where a witness refreshing his memory refers to notes taken by another of a speech made at a meeting, it is necessary under sec. 159, that such notes should have been read by him immediately after the meeting and not merely read out to him. If the witness had read the notes himself, there would be naturally greater guarantee of their correctness. 44 P.L.R. 167. For purposes of sec. 159, it is not requisite that the writing used to refresh memory of a witness should have been admitted in evidence. 47 B.L.R. 992; 55 I. A. 107=7 P. 305. Accordingly, a document not produced in Court within the proper time and in consequence rejected as evidence under the provisions of O. 13, r. 2, C.P. Code, may nevertheless be referred to by the party producing it or his witness to refresh his memory of the document if otherwise within the purview of sec. 159. "The weight of the evidence, the objection to the document upon the ground that it not having been produced at the proper time, renders its authenticity, the subject of suspicion and all other grounds upon which a document can be successfully impeached still remain open but refusal to permit a man to refresh his memory by proper relevant contemporaneous documents might lead to a grave injustice." 55 I.A. 107=7 P. 305=32 C.W.N. 565 (P.C.). Memoranda kept by a witness can be used in evidence not by itself but as corroborating a witness or refreshing his memory. (10 N.L.R. 44, at p. 47, Rel. on.) 120 I.C. 224=1930 N. 24 (1). When a witness wants to refresh his memory under sec. 159, he is to do so by referring in Court to the document which he had read at or near the time of the transaction, and it is the fact that he had known it to be correct when he read it that is the justification of his doing so. It is quite immaterial that a document to which the witness refers in Court was not printed by the witness himself or in his presence. It is essential only that he should have read it at or soon after the transaction, to which it relates. 120 I.C. 798=1930 L. 371. The word "writing" used in sec. 159 includes also printed matter. (Ibid.) There is a common practice in the Punjab of referring to statements in the first information reports, medico-legal reports and so forth as if they were evidence. This is not justified by law. The proper course is for the witness to refer to the document which he has prepared at the time under sec. 159 and state in Court everything which the prosecution or counsel for defence or the trying Magistrate, or Judge considers material. 39 P.L.R. 290=1937 L. 475.

HOROSCOPE—ADMISSIBILITY.—A horoscope is admissible in evidence in proof of age and though it may not be relied on as a probative document in itself, it can be used for the purpose of refreshing the memory of the witness under sec. 159. 12 Mys.L.J. 133=39 Mys.H.C.R. 406. There is no provision in the Evidence Act by which panchayatnamahs prepared by the police for the recovery of articles on information given by the accused can be used as substantive evidence. If they are prepared at the time, they can be used by the witness for the purpose of refreshing their memories in the witness-box under sec. 159 but in themselves they are not evidence. 1939 M.W.N. 465.

POST MORTEM REPORT.—Secs. 159 to 161 permit a limited use being made of post mortem notes of Medical Officer, namely, that they may be used by the witness who made them for refreshing his memory or by a party for the purpose of contradicting the witness. It is extremely undesirable that such notes of post mortem examination be put in evidence through the medical Officer

The witness may also refer to any such writing made by any another person, and read by the witness within the time aforesaid, if when he read it, he knew it to be correct.

When witness may use copy of document to refresh memory. Whenever a witness may refresh his memory by reference to any document, he may, with the permission of the Court, refer to a copy of such document :

Provided the Court be satisfied that there is sufficient reason for the non-production of the original.

An expert may refresh his memory by reference to professional treatises.

160. A witness may also testify to facts mentioned in any such document as is mentioned in section 159 although he has no specific recollection of the facts themselves, if he is sure that the facts were correctly recorded in the document.

A book-keeper may testify to facts recorded by him in books regularly kept in the course of business, if he knows that the books were correctly kept although he has forgotten the particular transactions entered.

SECS. 159 AND 160: POLICE INVESTIGATION—ADMISSIONS MADE BY ACCUSED IN PRESENCE OF MAGISTRATE—ORAL EVIDENCE OF MAGISTRATE—USE OF MEMORANDUM.—Where during the investigation of a criminal case a Magistrate is associated with the investigating officer, and in the presence of such Magistrate, the accused points out places alleged to be connected with the crime and makes admissions which do not lead to the discovery of any fact and the Magistrate does not record the admissions in accordance with the provisions of sec. 164 of the Cr.P. Code but makes a memorandum of the conduct and admissions of the accused, the oral evidence of the Magistrate is admissible to prove the admissions of the accused. Ordinarily the written memorandum of the Magistrate is not admissible though the Magistrate under the provisions of sec. 159 can refresh his memory when under examination by referring to the memorandum. It must be shown to the adverse party and the witness may be cross-examined on it. Where the Magistrate has, however, no specific recollection of the facts themselves but he is sure that the facts were correctly recorded in the document, both the testimony of the witness and the contents of the memorandum are admissible under sec. 160, the two being the equivalent of a present positive statement of the witness affirming the truth of the memorandum. The fact that the Magistrate is empowered to record the confession of an accused person under sec. 164 would not affect the question of the admissibility of such evidence. 14 L. 290=1933 L. 716 (F.B.). See also 1936 B. 42. (Statement of deceased person); 1943 M.W.N. 222=(1943) 1 M.L.J. 343 (Proof of shorthand notes of speech at a meeting taken by a Police Officer).

SECS. 159 AND 161: PANCHANAMAS CONTAINING CONFESSION, HOW TO BE USED.—No doubt an entry in any public record stating a relevant fact and made by a public servant in the discharge of his official duty, or by any other person in performance of the duty specially enjoined by the law is itself a relevant fact. But where panchanamas contain confession which cannot be given in evidence because of sec. 26, the proper way of dealing with a panchanama containing such an entry is to place it into the hands of a witness and to allow him to use it to refresh his memory. If he finds in it anything of which evidence can lawfully be given, he may give such evidence in the ordinary way; but the document itself should be excluded. 144 I.C. 772=1933 S. 220. See also 1939 M.W.N. 465.

SEC. 160.—See also notes under sec. 159. See 19 A. 390 (Special Diary); 11 B. 657; 31 C. 1050; 32 M. 384; 11 B.H.C. 120 (Statement to police officers); 97 I.C. 300=1926 C. 998=43 C.L.J. 479 (Engineer's report); 1936 R. 42 (Statement by deceased person). Where no attempt is made by a witness to state orally before the Court, what the accused in the case was alleged to have said, nor does he state before the Court, that although he has no specific recollection of the facts themselves, he was sure that the facts were correctly reported by him in his report, the evidence of such witness is inadmissible in evidence. 40 P.L.B. 872=177 I.C. 707=1938 L. 629.

162. A witness summoned to produce a document shall, if it is in his possession or power, bring it to Court, notwithstanding any objection which there may be to its production or to its admissibility. The validity of any such objection shall be decided on by the Court.

The Court, if it sees fit, may inspect the document, unless it refers to matters of state, or take other evidence to enable it to determine on its admissibility.

If for such a purpose it is necessary to cause any document to be translated, the Court may, if it thinks fit, direct the translator to keep the contents secret, unless the document is to be given in evidence; and, if the interpreter disobeys such direction, he shall be held to have committed an offence under section 166 of the Indian Penal Code.

Sec. 162.—See 41 Bom.L.R. 391, cited under secs. 123 and 124. Sec. 162 refers to official as well as private documents, and provides in the second paragraph that when a document, in respect of which an objection to production or admissibility is raised refers to matters of state, the Court has no power to inspect the document, with regard to other documents, in respect of which privilege is claimed, the Court, if it thinks fit, may inspect the documents. The officer claiming the privilege must appear and produce the document in Court and satisfy the Court that his claim is well founded. It is not for him to decide whether the document should or should not be produced. It is for the Court to decide it. Once the Court holds that the document is one with regard to which privilege can be claimed, in other words, that it is a communication made to a public officer in official confidence or that it is an unpublished official record relating to affairs of state which it would not be in the public interest to disclose, the question whether privilege should be claimed for it or not is entirely within the discretion of the officer in charge of the document. The Court, for the purpose of deciding whether the claim to privilege is well founded or not, is not entitled to look at the document. It must decide the question of the validity of the objection without looking at the document. 46 Bom. L.R. 802=219 I.C. 290=1945 Bom. 122. The privilege claimable is in respect of official and confidential documents is a narrow one and is based on the principle that the information contained in official documents cannot be disclosed where the disclosure would not be in public interest. The circumstance that the documents are confidential or official is by itself no reason for their non-production and the Court is always entitled to summon them and to examine how far the privilege claimed is reasonable and is justified. 11 Mys.L.J. 171.

See 3 C. 742; 16 C.W.N. 431=15 I.C. 77; 45 I.C. 898. See also I.L.R. (1940) N. 280; 47 C.W.N. 928=1943 Cal. 539. Police during an investigation seized account books of a certain person and made copies of it in their diary. In a later civil suit that person denied that he kept accounts and hence the other party called for the copies of the account books made by the police to be produced in evidence. Police refused to produce the copies claiming the privilege of "State document". Held, where account books were not state documents, copies of them could not assume this important shape simply because they were written in the course of a police investigation. Neither the police nor any other person can evade the normal rules of disclosure by the simple expedient of entering matter for which no privilege can be claimed into an otherwise privileged document. 1938 N. 358.

QUAERE.—Whether and how far sec. 162, which disentitles the Court from inspecting state documents, has been abrogated or modified by necessary implication by O. 11, R. 19 (2), C.P. Code, which places no limitation on the power of the Court to inspect documents. 47 C.W.N. 928=A.I.R. 1943 Cal. 539. Sec. 162 has divided privileged documents into two categories. The Court can inspect documents for the purpose of deciding the question of privilege only if those documents do not refer to matters of State. In other words an exception is made in respect of documents that refer to matters of State. The provisions of O. 19, R. 2, C.P. Code, being general and the provisions of sec. 162, Evidence Act, being restricted so far as they relate to documents relating to affairs of State the special provisions of sec. 162 relating to documents of State must be enforced in preference to the general provisions embodied in the Code of Civil Procedure. It is therefore not open to the Court to peruse the documents for which privilege

163. When a party calls for a document which he has given the other party notice to produce, and such document is produced and inspected by the party calling for its production, he is bound to give it as evidence if the party producing it requires him to do so.

Giving, as evidence, of document called for and produced on notice.

Using, as evidence, of document production of which was refused on notice.

164. When a party refuses to produce a document which he has had notice to produce, he cannot afterwards use the document as evidence without the consent of the other party or the order of the Court.

Illustration.

A sues B on an agreement and gives B notice to produce it. At the trial A calls for the document and B refuses to produce it. A gives secondary evidence of its contents. B seeks to produce the document itself to contradict the secondary evidence given by A, in order to or show that the agreement is not stamped. He cannot do so.

165. The Judge may, in order to discover or to obtain proper proof of relevant facts, ask any question he pleases, in any form, at any time, of any witness, or of the parties about any fact relevant or irrelevant; and may order the production of any document or thing: and neither the parties nor is claimed in order to determine whether the documents constitute official records relating to affairs of State. A.I.R. 1944 Lah. 209. See also I.L.R. (1945) Lah. 219=46 P.L.R. 273=1944 Lah. 434.

Sec. 163.—Production of documents by defendant—Inspection by plaintiff—Court cannot admit without proof. 72 I. C. 459=18 L.W. 165=1923 M. 607. Sec. 163 does not render proof of the document unnecessary nor alter the normal incidence of burden of proof. Quære, whether sec. 163 is applicable to accounts produced under the procedure for discovery or only to accounts produced after the trial has begun. 1923 M. 607. Under sec. 163 it is the duty of the plaintiff to require the defendant who has taken inspection to tender the account books as evidence of both parties. Such account books need no further proof and are admissible in toto. 106 I.C. 395 (2)=1928 N. 119. Under sec. 163, an inspection of documents by the adversary entitles the party producing them to tender them as evidence of both parties. Such documents must be admitted in toto. 43 P.L.R. 123; 195 I.C. 275=1941 L. 228. Sec. 163 is applicable to criminal trials as well as to civil actions. If during cross-examination of a witness the counsel for the accused calls for the statement of that witness recorded by the police in Calcutta during investigation and inspects it for the purpose of contradicting the witness, the Government Counsel is entitled to require the counsel for the accused to give the whole of the statement as evidence excluding only such portions as are not relevant to the case, although that would bring on the record those parts of the statement which are corroborative of the witness's evidence at the trial in addition to those brought on the record by counsel for the accused as being contradictory of that evidence. But where there is no formal notice or requisition from the accused calling for the police diary and the Government counsel produces it stating that he will not "rely on the strict technicality" thereby giving the impression, although the impression is unintended, that he will not require counsel for the accused to put in the document as a whole, the accused cannot be compelled to give as evidence the entire statement in question. Sec. 165: Object of Section.—Under S. 165 the Court cannot order the production by a party of any document or thing, no matter how irrelevant, into Court, unless the object is to obtain indicative evidence which may lead to discovery of relevant evidence of any fact in any matter then before the Court. 57 M. 635=1934 M. 199 (2)=66 M.L.J. 498. The provisions of the section cannot be used in contravention of sec. 162, Cr.P. Code. 4 R. 371=99 I.C. 1019=1927 R. 74; 27 Cr.L.J. 277=92 I.C. 453. Mere sending for document does not make evidence in the case. 11 B.H.C.R. 166. In criminal cases, the moment witness commences giving evidence which is inadmissible, he should be stopped by the Court. 7 W.R. (Cr.) 25. See also Field, 5th Ed., p. 482. of itself for a new trial or reversal of any decision in any case, if it shall appear to the Court before which such objection is raised, that independently of the evidence objected to and admitted, there was sufficient evidence to justify the decision, or that, if the rejected evidence had been received, it ought not to have varied the decision.

SCHEDULE.

ENACTMENTS REPEALED.

[Repealed by Act I of 1938.]

Sec. 167: Scope of Section.—Sec. 167 applies to second appeals on the civil side or cases tried by a jury on the criminal side; and not to first appeals where the facts are a matter for decision of the Appellate Court. 1934 P. 605. Under sec. 167, improper admission is no ground for a new trial if there is other evidence sufficient to support the conviction. 59 I.C. 560=22 Cr. L.J. 128. See also 1940 N. 118; 82 I.C. 283=25 Cr.L.J. 1275; 89 I.C. 189=1927 C. 1=31 C.W.N. 32; 95 I.C. 273=1926 P. 211=7 P.L.T. 673. See also 35 Bom L.R. 174=1933 B. 153; 152 I.C. 829=1934 P. 617 (2). Where there has been an improper admission of evidence, a Judge would be acting correctly under sec. 167 if he comes to the conclusion that the rest of the evidence is sufficient to justify the conviction. 39 Cr. L.J. 427=174 I.C. 523=1938 N. 325. The acceptance of inadmissible evidence is not a ground to set aside a judgment or grant a new trial, if there is other evidence upon which the finding could be arrived at. And the High Court can in second appeal see whether there is such other evidence justifying the decision, and if there is such evidence, it cannot order a new trial. 150 I.C. 841=1934 P. 55 (2). See also (1943) 2 M. L.J. 672. A document was proved in the trial Court by a person who had obtained it from the writer and admitted in evidence, without the writer being examined and no objection was raised to such admission.

Held, the non-examination of the writer would not make it inadmissible and the objection in revision had no weight. 59 C.L.J. 467=1934 C. 834. Where the High Court after excluding the evidence improperly admitted, found that the remaining evidence was not of such a character that a conviction might reasonably be based upon it, the conviction and sentence were set aside. 1 C. 207; 2 B. 61; 9 B.H.C.R. 358. Duty of appellate Court where evidence has been improperly admitted in the lower Court. See 15 W.R. (P.C.) 8; 6 B.L.R. 495; 14 M.I.A. 86; 6 M.I.A. 232; 8 M.I.A. 199; 7 C. 293; 8 C. 739. Effect of relevant evidence improperly proved. See 11 B. 320; 6 C.L.R. 497. Effect of evidence admitted at improper stage of the case. See 13 M. I.A. 83. Additional evidence in appellate Court, where relevant evidence was improperly shut out in lower Court. 4 A. 306. A Magistrate cannot import his personal opinion about the personal character, in the decision of the case before him nor can he refuse to believe evidence in the accused's favour on that account. 20 Cr.L.J. 283; 50 I.C. 171. A misdirection to the jury is strictly not a case of improper admission or a rejection of evidence within the meaning of sec. 167. 42 I.C. 161=18 Cr.L.J. 929 (F.B.).

An Act to impose a tax on excess profits arising out of certain businesses.

WHEREAS it is expedient to impose a tax on excess profits arising out of certain businesses in the conditions prevailing during the present hostilities; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Short title, extent and commencement.

1. (1) This Act may be called THE EXCESS PROFITS TAX ACT, 1940.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India.

(3) It shall come into force on such date as the Central Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, appoint.

Definitions.

2. In this Act, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context,—

(1) “ accounting period ” in relation to any business means—

(a) where the accounts of the business are made up for successive periods of twelve months, each of such periods ;

[O. 48, C.P. Code, supra.] The High Court upon the hearing of second or special appeal have remanded cases for reconsideration and fresh decision by the lower appellate Court where important evidence had not been carefully considered by such Court (1 Jur.N.S. 35); where the judgment of the lower appellate Court was based on part of the evidence only (24 W.R. 160; 24 W.R. 293); where the importance of a particular piece of evidence has been much under-rated (24 W.R. 192); where witnesses were discredited for general reasons not affecting the credit of any individual deponent (24

W.R. 251). In second appeal the finding of the lower Courts cannot be interfered with, however erroneous they may appear to be unless there be an error or defect in procedure, provided they had before them evidence proper for their consideration in support of their findings. But a finding without evidence to support it is a substantial error in the proceedings and a good ground for second appeal. 14 C. 740=14 I.A. 101 (P.C.); 17 C. 297=16 I.A. 233 (P.C.); 18 C. 23; 19 C. 249=19 I.A. 1 (P.C.); 20 C. 93; 9 C. 309; 17 C. 875=17 I.A. 65 (P.C.).

(b) in any other case, such period as the Excess Profits Tax Officer may determine :

Provided that in determining any accounting period under sub-clause (b) the Excess Profits Tax Officer shall have regard to the period, if any, which is, or has been, determined as the previous year for that business for the purposes of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922 ;

(2) "Appellate Assistant Commissioner" means a person appointed to be an Appellate Assistant Commissioner of Excess Profits Tax under section 3 ;

(3) "average amount of capital" means the average amount of capital employed in any business as computed in accordance with the Second Schedule ;

(4) "Board of Referees" means a Board of Referees appointed under section 3 ;

(5) "business" includes any trade, commerce or manufacture or any adventure in the nature of trade, commerce or manufacture or any profession or vocation, but does not include a profession carried on by an individual or by individuals in partnership if the profits of the profession depend wholly or mainly on his or their personal qualifications unless such profession consists wholly or mainly in the making of contracts on behalf of other persons or the giving to other persons of advice of a commercial nature in connection with the making of contracts ;

Provided that where the functions of a company or of a society incorporated by or under any enactment consist wholly or mainly in the holding of investments or other property, the holding of the investments or property shall be deemed for the purpose of this definition to be a business carried on by such company or society :

Provided further that all businesses to which this Act applies carried on by the same person shall be treated as one business for the purposes of this Act ;

(6) "chargeable accounting period" means—

(a) any accounting period falling wholly within the term beginning on the 1st day of September, 1939, and ending on the ¹[31st day of March, 1946], and ;

(b) where any accounting period falls partly within and partly without the said term, such part of that accounting period as falls within the said term ;

(7) "Commissioner" means a person appointed to be a Commissioner of Excess Profits Tax under section 3 ;

(8) "company" means a company as defined in the Indian Companies Act, 1913, or formed in pursuance of an Act of Parliament or of Royal Charter or Letters Patent, or of an Act of the Legislature of a British possession or of a law of an Indian State, and includes any foreign association whether incorporated or not which the Central Board of Revenue may, by general or special order, declare to be a company for the purposes of this Act ;

(9) "deficiency" of profits means—

(i) where profits have been made in any chargeable accounting period, the amount by which such profits fall short of the standard profits ;

(ii) where a loss has been made in any chargeable accounting period, the amount of the loss added to the amount of the standard profits ;

(10) "director" includes any person occupying the position of a director by whatever name called and also includes any person who—

Sec. 2 (5) and (19).—Income derived from properties taken over in discharge of loans made in the course of a foreign money-lending business and treated as assets of the business can be assessed as part of the profits of that business when remitted to British India. In respect of such income the assessee is liable to excess profits tax by reason of sec. 2 (5) and (19) of the Act read with r. 4 (2) of Sch. I to the Act. Similarly, income from rubber estates owned by an assessee in a foreign country must be held to represent profits and gains of a business within the meaning of the Act and liable to excess profits tax under sec. 2 (5) and (19) read with the first schedule to the Act. (i) is a manager of the company or concerned in the management of the business; and

(ii) is remunerated out of the funds of the business; and

(iii) is the beneficial owner of not less than twenty per cent. of the ordinary share capital of the company;

(11) "dividend" has the meaning assigned to the expression in section 2 of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922;

(12) "Excess Profits Tax Officer" means a person appointed to be an Excess Profits Tax Officer under section 3;

(13) "income" has the meaning assigned to the expression in section 2 of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922;

(14) "fixed rate" in relation to dividends on share capital, other than ordinary share capital, includes a rate fluctuating in accordance with the maximum rate of income-tax;

(15) "Inspecting Assistant Commissioner" means a person appointed to be an Inspecting Assistant Commissioner of Excess Profits Tax under section 3;

(16) "loss" means a loss computed in the same manner as, for the purposes of this Act, profits are to be computed;

¹[(16-A) "ordinary share capital" has the meaning assigned to that expression in sub-section (8) or section 9;]

(17) "person" includes a Hindu undivided family;

(18) "prescribed" means prescribed by rules made under this Act;

(19) "profits" means profits as determined in accordance with the First Schedule;

(20) "standard profits" means standard profits as computed in accordance with the provisions of section 6;

(21) "statutory percentage" means—

(a) in relation to a business carried on by a body corporate (other than a company the directors whereof have a controlling interest therein), eight per cent. per annum;

²[(b) in relation to a business carried on by a partnership of which one or more partners is a body corporate (other than a company the directors whereof have a controlling interest therein), such a rate per cent. as is equivalent to—

(i) eight per cent. per annum on so much of the average amount of the capital employed in the business during the chargeable accounting period as represents the share of any such body corporate; and

(ii) ten per cent. per annum on the remainder of that amount;

(c) in relation to a business to which neither sub-clause (a) nor sub-clause (b) applies, ten per cent. per annum :]

Provided that in relation to any decrease of capital the statutory percentage shall be in all cases six per cent. :

Provided further that where the business was commenced on or after the 1st day of July, 1938, the foregoing percentages shall be increased from eight, ten and six per cent. to ten, twelve and eight per cent. respectively;

(22) "written down value" has the meaning assigned to that expression in sub-section (5) of section 10 of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922.

3. (1) There shall be the following classes of excess profits tax authorities for the purposes of this Act, namely :—

(a) the Central Board of Revenue;

(b) Commissioners of Excess Profits Tax;

(c) Assistant Commissioners of Excess Profits Tax, who may be either Appellate Assistant Commissioners of Excess Profits Tax or Inspecting Assistant Commissioners of Excess Profits Tax;

(d) Excess Profits Tax Officers;

(e) Boards of Referees.

(2) Every Commissioner of Excess Profits Tax, Appellate Assistant Commissioner of Excess Profits Tax, Inspecting Assistant Commissioner of Excess Profits Tax and Excess Profits Tax Officer shall be a person who is exercising the functions of Commissioner of Income-tax, Appellate Assistant Commissioner of Income-tax, Inspecting Assistant Commissioner of Income-tax and Income-tax Officer, respectively, under the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922.

(3) The Central Board of Revenue shall, subject to the provisions of sub-section (2), appoint such persons as Commissioners of Excess Profits Tax, Appellate Assistant Commissioners of Excess Profits Tax, Inspecting Assistant Commissioners of Excess Profits Tax and Excess Profits Tax Officers as it thinks fit and such persons shall perform their functions in respect of such cases as the Central Board of Revenue may assign to them :

Provided that such directions shall be made entirely at the discretion of the Central Board of Revenue, and, in particular, it shall be competent for that Board to assign a case or class of cases to an officer who is not exercising in respect of that case or class of cases the corresponding functions in relation to the charge of income-tax under the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922.

(4) All officers and persons employed in the execution of this Act shall observe and follow the orders, instructions and directions of the Central Board of Revenue :

Provided that nothing in this sub-section applies to a Board of Referees :

Provided further that no such orders, instructions or directions shall be given so as to interfere with the discretion of the Appellate Assistant Commissioner in the exercise of his appellate functions.

(5) A Board of Referees shall consist of not less than three and not more than five persons, of whom not less than one-half shall be non-officials having business experience, and one shall be a judicial officer who has exercised the powers of a District Judge or who possesses such qualifications as are normally required for appointment to the post of District Judge, and who has held judicial office for a period of not less than ten years.

(6) Subject to the provisions of sub-section (5), the Central Government may make rules regulating the formation, composition and procedure of Boards of Referees.

¹4. (1) Subject to the provisions of this Act, there shall, in respect of any business to which this Act applies, be charged, levied and paid on the amount by which the profits during any chargeable accounting period exceed the standard profits a tax (in this Act referred to as "excess profits tax") which shall, in respect of any chargeable accounting period ending on or before the 31st day of March, 1941, be equal to fifty per cent. of that excess and shall, in respect of any chargeable accounting period beginning after that date, be equal to such percentage of that excess as may be fixed by the annual Finance Act :

LEG. REF.

¹ Sec. 4 has been re-numbered as sub-S. (1) and to the section as so re-numbered sub-S. (2) has been added by Act XI of 1941.

Sec. 4.—Where the Managing Agency Agreement between a company and its Managing Agent provides for payment of commission to the Managing Agent to a certain percentage of the annual net profits of the company, excess profits tax payable or paid by the company under the Excess Profits Tax Act should be deducted in ascertaining the annual net profits of the company for the purpose of the calculation of the managing agent's commission, though there is no provision in the agreement for deduction of any tax on income. Although Excess Profits Tax Act has some of the features of income-tax and the assessment is made on the same principles as assessment of income-tax and the tax has to be recovered in the same manner also, yet there is a vital distinction between the two taxes. Income-tax is a tax on all income with certain exceptions, whereas excess tax is a tax levied only on a certain profits of the owner of a business. The object of the excess profits tax is not merely to raise revenue, but also to prevent the owner of the business from making a large fortune out of what is a national danger; in effect, though not in form, it is partly of a prohibitive character: it prohibits the owner of a business from retaining more

Provided that any profits which are, under the provisions of sub-section (3) of section 4 of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, exempt from income-tax, and all profits from any business of life insurance shall be totally exempt from excess profits tax under this Act.¹

[Provided further that, in the case of any business which includes the mining of any mineral, any bonus paid by or through the Central Government in respect of increased output of the mineral shall be totally exempt from excess profits tax under this Act.] (Added by Ordinance VIII of 1944).

²[(2) Where a chargeable accounting period falls partly before and partly after the end of March, 1941, the foregoing provisions of this section shall apply as if so much of that chargeable accounting period as falls before, and so much of that chargeable accounting period as falls after, the said end of March were each a separate chargeable accounting period, ³[and as if the excess of profits of that separate chargeable accounting period were an apportioned part of the excess of profits arising in the whole period determined* in accordance with the provisions of section 7-A].]

5. This Act shall apply to every business of which any part of the profits made during the chargeable accounting period is chargeable to income-tax by virtue of the provisions of sub-clause (i) or sub-clause (ii) of clause (b) of sub-section (1) of section 4 of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, or of clause (c) of that sub-section :

Provided that this Act shall not apply to any business the whole of the profits of which accrue or arise without British India where such business is carried on by or on behalf of a person who is resident but not ordinarily resident in British India unless the business is controlled in British India :

Provided further that where the profits of a part only of a business carried on by a person who is not resident in British India or not ordinarily so resident accrue or arise in British India or are deemed under the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, so to accrue or arise, then, except where the business being the business of a person who is resident but not ordinarily resident in British India is controlled in India, this Act shall apply only to such part of the business, and such part shall for all the purposes of this Act be deemed to be a separate business :

³[Provided further that this Act shall not apply to any business the whole of the profits of which accrue or arise in an Indian State, and where the profits of a part of business accrue or arise in an Indian State, such part shall, for the purposes of this provision, be deemed to be a separate business the whole of the profits of which accrue or arise in an Indian State, and the other part of the business shall, for all the purposes of this Act, be deemed to be a separate business.]

6. (1) For the purposes of this Act, the standard profits of a business in relation to any chargeable accounting period shall, subject to the provisions of sub-sections (3) and (4), be an amount bearing to the profits of the business during the standard period, if it

Sec. 6: Scheme and object of—Standard profits—Computation of—Average amount respect of that business a standard period is available, the same proportion as the chargeable accounting period bears to the standard period :

Provided that if the average amount of capital employed in the business during such chargeable accounting period is greater or less than the average amount of capital employed during the standard period, such amount shall be increased or decreased, as the case may be, by an amount calculated by applying the statutory percentage to the amount of such increase or decrease :

Provided further that in the case of a business which was commenced on or after the 31st day of March, 1936, the standard profits shall, at the option of the person carrying on the business, be an amount calculated by applying the statutory percentage to the average amount of capital employed in the business during such chargeable accounting period.

(2) For the purposes of this section the standard period shall, at the option of the person carrying on the business, be—

(a) the "previous year" as determined under section 2 of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, for the purpose of the income-tax assessment for the year ending on the 31st day of March, 1937, or the previous year as so determined for the year ending on the 31st day of March, 1938 ; or

(b) the "previous year" as so determined for the year ending on the 31st day of March, 1937, and that for the year ending on the 31st day of March, 1939; or

(c) the "previous year" as so determined for the year ending on the 31st day of March, 1938, and that for the year ending on the 31st day of March, 1939 ; or

(d) the "previous year" as so determined for the year ending on the 31st day of March, 1939, and that for the year ending on the 31st day of March, 1940 :

Provided that in no case shall any period of less than nine months be taken as a standard period.

(3) If, within the period specified in the notice issued under sub-section (1) of section 13, ¹[or within the extended period allowed by the Excess Profits Tax Officer under the proviso to that sub-section] the person carrying on the business makes an application to the Excess Profits Tax Officer in this behalf, the Excess Profits Tax Officer shall refer the application to the Board of Referees, and if the Board is satisfied that during the standard period the profits of the business were less than might at the beginning of that period have been reasonably expected, it may direct that the standard profits shall be computed as if the profits during the standard period were such greater amount as it thinks just :

Provided that such amount shall not exceed the statutory percentage of the average amount of the capital employed in the business unless the Board is satisfied that owing to some specific cause peculiar to the business it is just that a greater amount should be allowed :

²[Provided further that a determination on an application under this sub-section—

(a) shall have effect with respect to all subsequent chargeable accounting periods ;

(b) shall exclude any further application under this sub-section.]

(4) The standard profits shall be taken to be rupees thirty-six thousand in any case in which the standard profits computed in accordance with sub-section (1) are less than this sum :

² Added by Act XLII of 1940.

of capital.—The object of the Excess Profits Tax Act is to tax the excess profits over the standard profits. The scheme of sec. 6 is to compare the average amount of capital during the standard period with the average amount of capital during the chargeable accounting period, and make adjustments in the standard profits on the footing of the increase in the capital during the chargeable accounting period. What is relevant for this purpose is the average amount of capital for the standard period and not amount of capital ascertained as in use on the last date of the standard period. The object of Sch. II is to prescribe rules for computing the average amount of capital. 1945 I.T.R. 445=47 Bom.L.R. 797.

Provided that if the chargeable accounting period is greater or less than one year the sum of rupees thirty-six thousand shall for the purpose of this sub-section be increased or decreased proportionately.

(5) Where the standard period includes any period prior to the commencement of Part III of the Government of India Act, 1935, during which Burma was part of British India, there shall, in computing the standard profits of a business under this section, be excluded from the profits of the business during the standard period so much of such profits as arose or accrued or were received in Burma unless such profits are also included in the profits of the business during the chargeable accounting period.

7. Where a deficiency of profits occurs in any chargeable accounting period in any business, the profits of the business chargeable with excess profits tax shall be deemed to be reduced and relief shall be granted in accordance with the following provisions :—

(a) the aggregate amount of the profits so chargeable for the previous chargeable accounting periods shall be deemed to be reduced by the amount of the deficiency of profits and the amount of excess profits tax payable in respect thereof shall be deemed to be reduced accordingly and the relief necessary to give effect to the reduction shall be given by repayment or otherwise ;

(b) where the amount of the deficiency of profits exceeds the aggregate amount of the profits so chargeable for the previous chargeable accounting periods, or where there is no previous chargeable accounting period, the balance of the deficiency of profits or the whole of the deficiency, as the case may be, shall be applied in reducing any profits so chargeable for the next subsequent chargeable accounting period, and if and so far as it exceeds the amount of those profits, any profits so chargeable for the next subsequent chargeable accounting period and so on.

¹[Provided that a deficiency of profits occurring in a chargeable accounting period beginning on or after the 1st day of April, 1941, shall first be applied so as to reduce profits chargeable to tax arising in another chargeable accounting period beginning on or after the said 1st day of April, and a deficiency of profits occurring in a chargeable accounting period ending on or before the 31st day of March, 1941, shall first be applied so as to reduce profits chargeable to tax arising in another chargeable accounting period ending on or before the said 31st day of March ; and where owing to an insufficiency of profits for chargeable accounting periods ending on or before the said 31st day of March, or, as the case may be, beginning on or after the said 1st day of April, the whole or any part of the deficiency is applied otherwise than as aforesaid,—

(a) the application shall be treated as provisional only ; and

(b) if it thereafter appears that there is no longer such an insufficiency as aforesaid, such adjustment shall be made as the Central Board of Revenue may, by written order direct :

Provided further that where a chargeable accounting period falls partly before and partly after the end of March, 1941, the provisions of the preceding proviso shall apply as if so much of the chargeable accounting period as falls before, and so much of the chargeable accounting period as falls after, the said end of March, were each a separate chargeable accounting period, and as if the deficiency of profits of that separate chargeable accounting period were an apportioned part of the deficiency of profits occurring in the whole period ; and any apportionment required to be made by this proviso shall be made by reference to the number of months or fractions of months in each of the parts of the whole chargeable accounting period.]

²[7-A. (1) In the case of a chargeable accounting period such as is referred to in sub-section (2) of section 4, the excess of profits of each of the separate chargeable accounting periods into which the whole chargeable period is deemed to be divided for the purposes of that sub-section, shall be determined in accordance with the provisions of sub-sections (2), (3) and (4) and, in those sub-sections—

(a) references to the whole period, the first part of the period, and the second part of the period shall be construed, respectively, as references to the whole of the chargeable accounting period deemed to be divided, so much thereof as falls before the end of March, 1941, and so much thereof as falls after the said end of March;

(b) "excess profits" means the amount by which the profits for any period exceed the standard profits for that period.

(2) The profits or loss of, and the standard profits for, the whole period shall be computed first on the basis that rule 5-A of the First Schedule and rule 2-A of the Second Schedule do not apply to the period, and secondly on the basis that the said rules do apply to the period, and it shall then be ascertained, on each basis, whether there are excess profits or a deficiency of profits for the whole period, and, if so, what is the amount thereof.

(3) There shall be deemed to be for the first part of the period excess profits or a deficiency of profits, as the case may be, equal to an apportioned part of the excess profits or deficiency of profits ascertained under sub-section (2) on the first basis mentioned therein, and there shall be deemed to be for the second part of the period excess profits or a deficiency of profits, as the case may be, equal to an apportioned part of the excess profits or deficiency of profits ascertained under sub-section (2) on the second basis mentioned therein; and, for the purpose of giving relief for deficiencies of profits under section 7, the first part of the period and the second part of the period shall each be treated as if it were a separate chargeable accounting period.

(4) Any apportionment required to be made by sub-section (3) shall be made by reference to the number of months and fractions of months in each of the parts of the whole period.]

8. (1) As from the date of any change in the persons carrying on a business, the business shall, subject to the provisions of this section, be deemed for all the purposes of this Act except for the purposes of determining the amount of the statutory percentage to have been discontinued, and a new business to have been commenced.

(2) Where the change took place before the 1st day of September, 1939, and consisted in the death or retirement of a partner, or the taking in of a partner, the persons carrying on the business after the change may, by notice given in writing before the prescribed date to the Excess Profits Tax Officer, elect that, for the purposes of the provisions of this Act relating to the computation of standard profits, the business shall not be deemed to have been discontinued.

(3) A business shall not, for the purposes of the provisions of this Act relating to the computation of standard profits, be deemed to be discontinued by reason of any change occurring on or after the 1st day of September, 1939, in the persons carrying it on, and the standard profits of the business in relation to any chargeable accounting period shall be computed accordingly, and, in particular, in computing the capital employed in the business after the change, ¹and in considering, for the purposes of computing the profits of, and the capital employed during any chargeable accounting period, whether any and, if so, what deductions are to be made in respect of depreciation of buildings,

(4) Where, on or after the 1st day of September, 1939, two or more businesses are amalgamated, the resulting business shall be treated for the purposes of the provisions of this Act relating to the computation of standard profits as if—

(a) it had been in existence throughout the period during which there were in existence any of the former businesses;

(b) any profits made or losses incurred or capital employed in any of those former businesses had been made, incurred or employed in the resulting businesses; and

(c) any assets of any of those former businesses had become assets of the resulting businesses when they became assets of the former business;

and, in particular, in computing the capital employed in the resulting business, [and in considering, for the purposes of computing the profits of, and the capital employed during, any chargeable accounting period whether any and, if so, what deductions are to be made in respect of depreciation of buildings, plant and machinery]¹; no regard shall be had to any consideration given in respect of the transfer of any of those former businesses or any of the assets thereof on the occasion of the amalgamation.

(5) Where on or after the 1st day of September, 1939, part of a business is transferred as a going concern, by the person theretofore carrying it on to another person, the part transferred and the part not transferred shall each be deemed for the purposes of the provisions of this Act relating to the computation of standard profits to be a continuation of the original business, and the said provisions, including the provisions of this section relating to amalgamations, shall apply accordingly, [* * *]:

Provided that, for the purposes aforesaid, such apportionments shall be made of the profits made, and losses incurred, and the capital employed, in the original business, and of any assets of the original business as may appear to the Excess Profits Tax Officer, or on appeal in the prescribed time and manner to the Board of Referees, to that Board, to be just.

(6) Notwithstanding anything in the foregoing provisions of this section, where a business was carried on immediately before the 1st day of April, 1936, and that business, or the main part of that business, was transferred after the said day and before the 1st day of September, 1939, by the person carrying it on to another person, the Excess Profits Tax Officer, if he is satisfied that the business carried on after the transference was not substantially different from the business or part transferred, shall, on the application of the person carrying on the business after the transference, treat that person, for the purposes of the provisions of this Act relating to the computation of standard profits, as if he had carried on the transferred business or part of the business as from the date of the commencement of that business, [* * *].

(7) Where, on or after the 1st day of September, 1939, a partner in a firm carrying on a business to which this Act applies dies, then notwithstanding anything contained in sub-section (1) any deficiency of profits in respect of any chargeable accounting period ending on or before the date of his death shall, if it has not been fully applied in reducing the profits of any chargeable accounting period under section 7, be carried forward and applied in reducing any profits from the same business carried on by the surviving partner or partners in the first chargeable accounting period after the death of the partner, and if and so far as it exceeds the amount of those profits, in reducing any profits from such business in the next subsequent chargeable accounting period and so on.

(c) a business is, by virtue of sub-section (5) to be treated as a continuation of another business ; or

(d) any person who is carrying on a business after a transfer is treated, by virtue of sub-section (6), as having carried on the business as from a date before the transfer, the provisions of this Act relating to the computation of profits and capital for the purposes of excess profits tax shall, both as respects the standard period and any chargeable accounting period, have effect subject to such modifications, if any, as the Excess Profits Tax Officer may think just, and the Excess Profits Tax Officer may make such alterations in the periods which would otherwise be the chargeable accounting periods of the business as he thinks proper :

Provided that if the Excess Profits Tax Officer makes any such modifications and the person carrying on the business is dissatisfied with the modifications so made, or if the person carrying on the business is dissatisfied with the refusal of the Excess Profits Tax Officer to make any such modifications, he may, at any time before the expiry of forty-five days from the date on which the order of the Excess Profits Tax Officer is communicated to him, appeal to the Board of Referees through the Excess Profits Tax Officer.]

9. (1) Where any interest, annuity, or other annual payment, or any royalty, or rent, is paid by one company to another company and one of those companies is a subsidiary of the other, or both are subsidiaries of a third company, the capital profits and losses of both companies shall be computed for the purposes of this Act as if—

(a) the interest, annuity, annual payment, royalty or rent were not payable ;

(b) any debt in respect of which any such interest is payable did not exist ; and

(c) any asset in respect of which any such royalty or rent is payable were the property of the company paying the royalty or the rent.

[(1-A) Where—

(a) any debt is owing to any company by another company ; and

(b) one of those companies is a subsidiary of the other, or both are subsidiaries of a third company ; and

(c) no interest is payable in respect of the debt, but the circumstances in which the debt came into existence or is allowed to continue to exist are such that the debt represents in substance capital employed in the business of the debtor company, the capital of both companies shall be computed as if the debt did not exist.]

(2) Where—

(a) a company (hereinafter referred to as “ the principal company ”) is resident in British India and is not a subsidiary of any other company resident in British India ; and

(b) during the whole or any part of any chargeable accounting period of the principal company, another company, whether or not resident or carrying on business within British India (hereinafter referred to as “ the subsidiary company ”) is a subsidiary of the principal company, the following provisions of this section shall, subject to the provisions of section 5, have effect in relation to that chargeable accounting period.

(3) If the subsidiary company is a subsidiary of the principal company throughout the chargeable accounting period, such capital employed in, and profits or losses arising from, the business of the subsidiary company as is employed or arise in—

(i) the chargeable accounting period ; or

(ii) any year constituting or comprised in the standard period of the principal company, shall be treated for the purposes of this Act as if it or they were capital employed in, or as the case may be, profits or losses arising from, the business of the principal company.

(4) If the subsidiary company is a subsidiary of the principal company during part only of the chargeable accounting period, the excess or deficiency of profits of the subsidiary company for that part of that period shall be treated as increasing or, as the case may be, decreasing the excess or deficiency of profits of the principal company for the whole period and shall not be deemed to be an excess or deficiency of profits of the subsidiary company.

In this sub-section, the expression "excess" and "deficiency" mean, in relation to profits, an excess or deficiency in relation to the standard profits of the subsidiary company or, as the case may be, the principal company.

(5) In any case to which sub-section (3) or sub-section (4) applies, such alteration, if any, of the periods which would otherwise be the chargeable accounting periods of the subsidiary company shall be made as the Central Board of Revenue may direct.

(6) For the purposes of this section, a company shall be deemed to be a subsidiary of another company if and so long as not less than nine-tenths of its ordinary share capital is owned by that other company, whether directly or through another company or other companies, or partly directly or partly through another company or other companies.

(7) The amount of ordinary share capital of one company owned by a second company through another company or other companies, or partly directly and partly through another company or other companies shall be determined in accordance with the provisions of the Third Schedule.

(8) In this section and the Third Schedule references to ownership shall be construed as references to beneficial ownership, and the expression "ordinary share capital", in relation to a company, means all the issued share capital (by whatever name called) of the company, other than capital the holders whereof have a right to a dividend at a fixed rate but have no other right to share in the profits of the company.

(9) The principal company shall be entitled to allocate to its subsidiary company or companies the respective proportionate shares of the excess profits tax payable by the whole group.

(10) The excess profits tax payable by virtue of this section by the principal company in respect of the profits of any subsidiary company shall, for the purposes of section 12, be deemed to have been paid by the subsidiary company and not by the principal company.

¹[10. (1) In computing profits for the purposes of this Act no deduction shall be made in respect of any transaction or operation of any nature if and so far as it appears that the transaction or operation has artificially reduced or would artificially reduce the profits.

(2) If the Excess Profits Tax Officer is satisfied that any person has entered into or carried out any transaction or operation by which the profits have been or would be artificially reduced, he may, with the previous approval of the Inspecting Assistant Commissioner, direct that such person shall pay, in addition to any excess profits tax for which he is or would, but for such transaction or operation, be liable, a penalty not exceeding the tax evaded or sought to be evaded.

providing for the granting of relief in that country where excess profits tax has also been charged in British India :

Provided that where, under the provisions of this Act relating to deficiencies of profits or under any corresponding law in force in the said country without British India, relief is given by way of repayment from excess profits tax chargeable for any chargeable accounting period previous to that in which the deficiency occurs, the amount of the deduction allowed under sub-section (1) or sub-section (2) shall not be altered, but the amount repayable shall be taken into account in computing the profits and gains of the business for the purposes of income-tax as if it were a profit of the business accruing in the ¹[previous year (as determined for that business for the purposes of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922)] in which the deficiency or profits occurs.

13. (1) The Excess Profits Tax Officer may, for the purposes of this Act, require any person whom he believes to be engaged in any business to which this Act applies, or to have been so engaged during any chargeable accounting period, or to be otherwise liable to pay excess profits tax, to furnish within such period, not being less than sixty days from the date of the service of the notice, as may be specified in the notice, a return in the prescribed form and verified in the prescribed manner setting forth (along with such other particulars as may be provided for in the notice) with respect to any chargeable accounting period specified in the notice the profits of the business and the standard profits of the business as computed in accordance with the provisions of section 6 or the amount of deficiency available for relief under section 7 :

Issue of notice for assessment. Provided that the Excess Profits Tax Officer may, in his discretion, extend the date for the delivery of the return.

(2) The Excess Profits Tax Officer may serve on any person, upon whom a notice has been served under sub-section (1), a notice requiring him on a date to be therein specified to produce, or cause to be produced, such accounts or documents as the Excess Profits Tax Officer may require and may from time to time serve further notices in like manner requiring the production of such further accounts or documents or other evidence as he may require :

Provided that the Excess Profits Tax Officer shall not require the production of any accounts relating to a period prior to the "previous year" as determined under section 2 of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, for the purpose of the Income-tax assessment for the year ending on the 31st day of March, 1937.

14. (1) The Excess Profits Tax Officer shall, by an order in writing after considering such evidence, if any, as he has required under section 13, assess to the best of his judgment the profits liable to excess profits tax and the amount of excess profits tax payable on the basis of such assessment, or if there is a deficiency of profits, the amount of that deficiency and the amount of excess profits tax, if any, repayable and shall furnish a copy of such order to the person on whom the assessment has been made.

(2) Excess Profits Tax payable in respect of any chargeable accounting period shall be payable by the person carrying on the business in that period.

(3) Where two or more persons were carrying on the business jointly in the chargeable accounting period, the assessment shall be made upon them jointly and, in the case of a partnership, may be made in the partnership name.

(4) Where by virtue of the foregoing provisions an assessment could, but for his death, have been made on any person either solely or jointly with any other person or persons, the assessment may be made on his legal representative either solely or jointly with that other person or persons, as the case may be.

²[14-A. (1) The Excess Profits Tax Officer, before proceeding to make an assessment (in this section referred to as the regular assessment) under section 14, may, at any time after the expiry of the period specified in the notice issued under sub-section (1) of section 13 as that within which the return therein referred to is to be furnished, and whether the return has or has not been furnished, proceed to make in summary manner a provisional assessment of the amount by which the profits of the chargeable accounting period exceed the standard profits, and the amount of excess profits tax payable thereon.

(2) Before making such provisional assessment the Excess Profits Tax Officer shall give notice in the prescribed form to the person on whom assessment is to be made of his intention to do so, and shall with the notice forward a statement of the amount of the proposed assessment, and the said person shall be entitled to deliver to the Excess Profits Tax Officer at any time within fourteen days of receipt of the said notice a statement of his objections, if any, to the amount of the proposed assessment.

(3) On expiry of one month from the date of service of the notice referred to in sub-section (2), or earlier if the assessee agrees to the proposed assessment, the Excess Profits Tax Officer may, after taking into account the objections, if any, made under sub-section (2), make a provisional assessment, and shall furnish a copy of the order of assessment to the assessee :

Provided that assent to the amount of the assessment, or failure to make objection to it, shall in no way prejudice the assessee in relation to the regular assessment.

(4) In making any such provisional assessment the Excess Profits Tax Officer shall make allowances for any deficiencies of profits for previous chargeable accounting periods which are under the provisions of section 7 to be set off against the excess profits of the chargeable accounting period in respect of which the assessment is being made :

Provided that where such deficiencies of profits have not been determined under sub-section (1) of section 14, the Excess Profits Tax Officer shall estimate the amount thereof to the best of his judgment.

(5) There shall be no right of appeal against a provisional assessment made under this section, and it shall, until a regular assessment is made in due course under section 14, determine the amount of excess profits tax due from the assessee.

(6) If, when a regular assessment is made in due course under section 14 the amount of excess profits tax payable thereunder is found to exceed that determined as payable by the provisional assessment, it shall be reduced by the amount determined as payable by the provisional assessment.

(7) If, when a regular assessment is made in due course under section 14, the amount of excess profits tax payable thereunder is found to be less than that determined as payable by the provisional assessment, any excess of tax paid as a result of the provisional assessment shall be refunded to the assessee together with interest at 5 per cent. per annum calculated from the date of payment of such excess tax to be the date of the order of refund, both days inclusive.]

15. If, in consequence of definite information which has come into his possession, the Excess Profits Tax Officer discovers that profits escaping assessment, profits of any chargeable accounting period chargeable to excess profits tax have escaped assessment, or have been underassessed, or have been the subject of excessive relief, he may at any time within five years of the end of the chargeable accounting period in question serve on the person liable to such tax a notice containing all or any of the requirements which may be included in a notice under section 13, and may proceed to assess or re-assess the amount of such profits liable to excess profits tax and the provisions of this Act shall, so far as may be, apply as if the notice were a notice issued under that section.

16. If the Excess Profits Tax Officer, the Appellate Assistant Commissioner or the Commissioner, in the course of any proceedings under this Act, is satisfied that any person has, without reasonable cause, failed to furnish the return required under sub-section (1) of section 13, or to produce or cause to be produced the accounts or documents or other evidence required by the Excess Profits Tax Officer under sub-section (2) of that section, or has concealed particulars of the profits made by or capital employed in the business, or has deliberately furnished inaccurate particulars of such profits or capital, he may direct that such person shall pay by way of penalty, in addition to the amount of any excess profits tax payable, a sum not exceeding—

(a) where the person has failed to furnish the return required under sub-section (1) of section 13, the amount of the excess profits tax payable; and

(b) in any other case, the amount of excess profits tax which would have been avoided if the return made had been accepted as correct:

Provided that the Excess Profits Tax Officer shall not impose any penalty under this section without the previous approval of the Inspecting Assistant Commissioner.

17. (1) Any person aggrieved by a decision made in pursuance of section 8, or objecting to the amount of excess profits tax for which he is liable as assessed by the Excess Profits Tax

Appeals.

Officer or denying his liability to be assessed under this Act, or objecting to any penalty imposed by the Excess Profits Tax Officer, or to the amount of any deficiency of profits as assessed by the Excess Profits Tax Officer, or to the amount allowed by the Excess Profits Tax Officer by way of relief under any provision of this Act or to any refusal by the Excess Profits Tax Officer to grant relief may appeal to the Appellate Assistant Commissioner:

Provided that no appeal shall lie against a determination of the amount of the profits of any standard period where those profits have been determined in accordance with the ¹[second proviso] to rule 1 of the First Schedule except in respect of adjustments made under the provisions of that Schedule:

²[Provided further that no appeal shall lie under this section against any apportionment made by the Excess Profits Tax Officer under the proviso to sub-section (5) of section 8, against any ³[refusal to make modifications or against any modifications] made by the Excess Profits Tax Officer under sub-section (8) of section 8, against any decision of the Excess Profits Tax Officer under rule 11 of the First Schedule or against any decision of the Board of Referees or the Central Board of Revenue.

(2) An appeal shall ordinarily be presented within forty-five days of receipt of the notice of demand relating to the assessment or penalty objected to, or in the case of an appeal against the assessment of a deficiency of profits, within forty-five days of the receipt of the copy of the order determining the deficiency, or in the case of an appeal against the amount of a relief granted or a refusal to grant relief, within forty-five days of the receipt of the intimation of the order granting or refusing to grant the relief, but the Appellate Assistant Commissioner may admit an appeal after the expiration of that period if he is satisfied that the appellant had sufficient cause for not presenting it within that period.

(3) An appeal shall be in the prescribed form and shall be verified in the prescribed manner.

(4) The Appellate Assistant Commissioner shall hear and determine the appeal, and, subject to the provisions of this Act, shall pass such orders as he thinks fit, and such orders may include an order enhancing the assessment or a penalty:

Provided that an order enhancing an assessment or penalty shall not be made unless the person affected thereby has been given a reasonable opportunity of showing cause against such enhancement.

(5) The procedure to be adopted in the hearing and determination of appeals shall be in accordance with the rules made in this behalf by the Central Board of Revenue.

18. (1) Any person objecting to an order passed by an Appellate Assistant Commissioner imposing on him a penalty under section 16 or enhancing his assessment or enhancing a penalty under section 17 may appeal to the Commissioner within thirty days of the date on which he was served with notice of such order.

Appeal to Commissioner against Appellate Assistant Commissioner's orders, imposing penalties or enhancing assessments or penalties.

¹Substituted by Act XI of 1941.

C.C.M.—312

²Substituted by Act XLII of 1940.

³Inserted by Act XI of 1941.

(2) In disposing of the appeal the Commissioner may, after giving the appellant an opportunity of being heard, pass such orders thereon as he thinks fit.

(3) On the coming into operation of Part II of the Indian Income-tax (Amendment) Act, 1939, this section shall cease to have effect.

19. (1) The Commissioner may of his own motion call for the record of any proceeding under this Act which has been taken by any Excess Profits Tax Officer or Appellate Assistant Commissioner subordinate to him, and on receipt of the record may make such enquiry, or cause such enquiry to be made, and, subject to the provisions of this Act, may pass such orders thereon (including an order enhancing an assessment) as he thinks fit :
 Power of revision.

Provided that he shall not pass any order prejudicial to a person to whose business this Act applies without hearing him, or giving him a reasonable opportunity of being heard.

(2) On the coming into operation of Part II of the Indian Income-tax (Amendment) Act, 1939, sub-section (1) shall cease to have effect, but thereafter any Excess Profits Tax Officer or any person in respect of whose business an order under section 14 has been passed who objects to an order passed by an Appellate Assistant Commissioner under section 16 or section 17 may, within the prescribed time and in the prescribed manner, appeal against such order to the Appellate Tribunal constituted under the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, and that Tribunal shall have all such powers in disposing of the appeal as it has in respect of appeals preferred to it under the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922.

20. The Commissioner may, at any time within four years from the date of any order passed whether by himself or by any Appellate Assistant Commissioner or Excess Profits Tax Officer under this Act, rectify any mistake in any evidence recorded during assessment or appellate proceedings, or any mistake apparent from the record and shall within the like period rectify any mistake apparent from the record which has been brought to his notice by a person to whose business this Act applies :
 Rectification of mistakes.

Provided that no such rectification shall be made having the effect of enhancing the liability of any person unless that person has been given a reasonable opportunity of being heard.

21. The provisions of sections 4-A, 4-B, 10, 13, 24-B, 29, 36 to 44-C (inclusive) 45 to 48 (inclusive), 49-E, 49-F, 50, 54, 61 to 63 (inclusive), 65 to 67-A (inclusive) of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, shall apply with such modifications, if any, as may be prescribed, as if the said provisions were provisions of this Act and referred to excess profits tax instead of to income-tax, and every officer exercising powers under the said provisions in regard to income-tax may exercise the like powers under this Act in regard to excess profits tax in respect of cases assigned to him under sub-section (3) of section 3 as he exercises in relation to income-tax under the said Act :
 Application of provisions of Act XI of 1922.

Provided that references in the said provisions to the assessee shall be construed as references to a person to whose business this Act applies.

22. (1) Notwithstanding anything contained in the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, all information contained in any statement or return made or furnished under the provisions of that Act or obtained or collected for the purposes of that Act may be used for the purposes of this Act.
 Income-tax papers to be available for the purposes of this Act.

(2) All information contained in any statement or return made or furnished under the provisions of this Act or obtained or collected for the purposes of this Act may be used for the purposes of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922.

23. If any person fails, without reasonable cause or excuse, to furnish in due time, any return or statement, or to produce, or cause to be produced, any accounts or documents required to be produced under section 19, he shall on conviction by a Magistrate be punishable with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees, and with a further fine which may extend to fifty rupees for every day during which the default continues.
 Failure to deliver returns & statements.

24. If a person makes in any return required under section 13 any statement which is false, and which he either knows or believes to be false, or does not believe to be true, he shall be punishable on conviction by a Magistrate with simple imprisonment which may extend to six months, or with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees, or with both.

25. (1) A person shall not be proceeded against for an offence under section 23 or section 24 except at the instance of the Inspecting Assistant Commissioner.

(2) No prosecution for an offence punishable under section 23 or section 24 or under the Indian Penal Code shall be instituted in respect of the same facts as those in respect of which a penalty has been imposed under this Act.

(3) The Inspecting Assistant Commissioner may, either before or after the institution of proceedings, compound any offence punishable under section 23 or section 24.

26. (1) If ¹[on an application made to it through the Excess Profits Tax Officer] the Central Board of Revenue is satisfied in the case of any business that special circumstances exist which render it inequitable that the standard profits of the business in relation to any chargeable accounting period should be computed in accordance with the provisions of sub-section (1) of section 6, and that no relief or insufficient relief has been granted under the provisions of sub-section (3) of that section, the Central Board of Revenue may direct that the standard profits of the business shall be computed to be such greater amount as the Central Board of Revenue thinks just :

Provided that such amount shall not exceed the statutory percentage of the average amount of the capital employed in the business unless the Central Board of Revenue is satisfied that owing to some specific cause peculiar to the business it is just that a greater amount should be allowed and that the relief, if any, afforded, by the Board of Referees under sub-section (3) of section 6 is inadequate :

(a) shall have effect with respect to all subsequent chargeable accounting periods ;

(b) shall exclude any further application under this sub-section.]

(2) Without prejudice to the generality of the provisions of sub-section (1) the Central Board of Revenue shall, in considering the making of a direction under that sub-section, have regard to the following circumstances, namely :—

(a) that the capital employed in a business commenced on or after the 1st day of July, 1938, is so small in relation to the volume of the activities of the business that to compute the standard profits in accordance with the provisions of section 6 would be inequitable, taking into account the normal profits made in similar businesses ;

(b) that owing to the nature of the business heavy expenditure by way of preliminary expenses or expenses in connection with experimental or development work has been incurred in accounting periods closely preceding the chargeable accounting period and that during the chargeable accounting period such expenditure would normally fall to be written off wholly or partly in the books of the person chargeable to excess profits tax ;

(c) that the business is of a pioneer nature, that is to say, is concerned with an industrial process or a form of manufacture or production not undertaken in British India before the 1st day of April, 1932, and has not been in existence long enough to have paid income-tax for the previous year as determined for the purpose of the income-tax assessment for the year beginning on the 1st day of April, 1937.

(3) If ¹[on an application made to it through Excess Profits Tax Officer] the Central Board of Revenue is satisfied that the computation in accordance with the provisions of Schedule I of the profits of a business during any chargeable accounting period would be inequitable, owing to any of the following circumstances, namely :—

(a) any postponement or suspension, as a consequence of the present hostilities of renewals or repairs, or

(b) the provision of buildings, plant or machinery which will not be required for the purposes of the business after the termination of the present hostilities, or

(c) difficulties in bringing into British India income arising outside British India where the country in which the income accrued prohibits or restricts by its laws the remittance of money to British India, and loss in the remittance to British India of such income because of fluctuations in the rate of exchange between that country and British India ²[or]

[(d) in the case of any business which includes the winning of any mineral (including mineral oil) the winning of which is of exceptional importance for the prosecution of the present war, an increase in the output of the mineral which was essential in the national interest and which has had the effect of shortening the period during which but for such increased war-time output the source of the mineral might have been expected to be exhausted.]

The Central Board of Revenue may direct that such allowances shall be made in computing the profits of the business during that chargeable accounting period as the Central Board of Revenue thinks just :

Provided that in making such direction the Central Board of Revenue may impose such conditions as it deems appropriate.

³[(4) An application to the Central Board of Revenue under this section shall be presented to the Excess Profits Tax Officer before the expiry of the period specified in the notice issued under sub-section (1) of section 13 or of the extended period allowed by the Excess Profits Tax Officer under the proviso to that sub-section, but in the case of an application under sub-section (1) of this section, if the person carrying on the business has made or is making an application under sub-section (3) of section 6, the application shall be presented to the Excess Profits Tax Officer before the expiry of forty-five days from the date on which the order of the Board of Referees disposing of the application under sub-section (3) of section 6 is communicated to the person who has made that application].

27. (1) The Central Board of Revenue may, subject to the control of the Central Government, make rules for carrying out the purposes of this Act.

Power to make rules.

(2) Without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing power, such rules may—

(a) prescribe the procedure to be followed on appeals, applications for rectification of mistakes, and applications for refunds ;

(b) provide for the adaptation to excess profits tax of any of the provisions of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, which are made applicable to excess profits tax by section 21 ; or of any rules made under any such provision ;

(c) provide in regard to companies whose business consists wholly or mainly in the dealing in or holding of investments for the granting of exemption or relief from liability to excess profits tax of profits derived from investments in other companies the profits of which have been subjected to excess profits tax in British India ;

(d) provide for any matter which by, or under, this Act is to be prescribed.

(3) The power to make rules conferred by this section shall be exercised in like manner as the power to make rules under section 59 of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922.

SCHEDULE I.

[See section 2 (19).]

Rules for the computation of profits for purposes of Excess Profits Tax.

1. The profits of a business during the standard period, or during any chargeable accounting period, shall be separately computed, and shall, subject to the provisions of this Schedule, be computed on the principles on which the profits of a business are computed for the purposes of income-tax under section 10 of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922 :

Provided ³[further] that where the profits during any standard period have already been determined for the purpose of an assessment under the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, such profits as so determined shall, subject to the adjustments required by this Schedule, be taken as the profits during that period for the purpose of excess profits tax :

Provided further that where a standard period or chargeable accounting period is not an accounting period, the profits or losses of the business during any accounting periods wholly or partly included within the standard period or chargeable accounting period shall be so computed as aforesaid, and such division and apportionment to specific periods of those profits or losses and such aggregation of those profits and losses, or any apportioned part thereof shall be made as appears necessary to arrive at the profit during the standard period or chargeable accounting period : and any such apportionment shall be made in proportion to the number of months or fractions of months in the respective periods unless the Excess Profits Tax Officer, having regard to any special circumstances, otherwise directs.

2. The profits of a business during the standard period shall be computed on the same basis and in the same manner as the profits of that business are under the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, as amended by the Indian Income-tax (Amendment) Act, 1939, computed for the chargeable accounting period, notwithstanding that the Indian Income-tax (Amendment) Act, 1939, may not have been in force in the standard period.

3. (1) The principle of adding the allowance for depreciation for any one period to the allowance for depreciation for any subsequent period and deeming it to be part of the allowance for such subsequent period shall not be followed.

(2) No allowance shall be made for any loss other than a loss sustained in a business to which this Act applies.

(3) Nothing in this Act shall be construed as permitting the application, in computing profits for the purposes of the excess profits tax, of the provisions of sub-section (2) of section 24, of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922.

4. (1) Income received from investments shall be included in the profits in the cases and to the extent provided in sub-rules (2), ⁴[(2-A)] and (4) of this rule and not otherwise.

(2) In the case of the business of a building society, or of a money-lending business, banking business, insurance business or business consisting wholly or mainly in the dealing in or holding of investments the profits shall include all income received from investments, whether or not such income is included in the profits charged under section 10 of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, or is charged under any other section of that Act, or has been subjected to deduction of tax at source or is free of or exempt from income-tax.

LEG. REF.

¹Added by Act XLII of 1940.

²Inserted by Act XI of 1941.

³Inserted by Act XLII of 1940.

Sch. I, R. 1: Construction—Computation of profits.—R. 1 of Sch. I cannot be read as providing that the computation of capital has to be according to the schedule. The plain meaning of the rule is that the profits of a business shall be computed according to sec. 10 of the Income-tax Act, but subject to the rules found in the schedule. It is not correct to say that no reference should be made to the Income-tax Act to ascertain the profits under the Excess Profits Tax Act. 1945 I.T.R. 445=47 Bom.L.R. 797.

Sch. I, R. 5: Construction and scope—Computation of profits—Mode of.—By virtue of r. 5 of Sch. I, the Legislature has provided that borrowings from banks of the type mentioned in the rule and in the shape of debentures issued to the public should not be excluded in arriving at the average amount of capital for the chargeable accounting period. The opening words of r. 5 deal with the increase contemplated after the closure of the standard period. It does not deal with the question of amount at all. "Increase" necessarily means "more than." If r. 5 is read naturally, it must be held that it grants a certain privilege to the assessee who had increased his capital after the standard period had come to an end. The interest paid by the assessee in respect of that portion of the increased capital (consisting of borrowings from the Banks mentioned in the rule and the debentures) has to be retained on the debit side and not excluded. The increase or decrease of capital has to be considered, and on the ascertainment of that the statutory percentage to the standard profits has to be applied. 1945 I.T.R. 445=47 Bom.L.R. 797.

¹[(2-A) In the case of a business part of which consists in banking, insurance or dealing in investments, not being a business to which sub-rule (2) of this rule applies, the profits shall include all income received from investments held for the purposes of that part of the business, being income to which the persons carrying on the business are beneficially entitled.]

(3) Notwithstanding anything contained in sub-rule (2), ¹[or (2-A)] where the profits of a subsidiary company are under the provisions of section 9 to be included in the profits of the principal company for the purposes of assessment to excess profits tax, dividends from the subsidiary company out of such profits shall not also be included in the profits of the principal company.

(4) In the case of a business which consists wholly or partly in the letting out of property on hire, the income from the property shall be included in the profits of the business whether or not it has been charged to income-tax under section 9 of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, or under any other section of that Act.

5. If at any time after the close of the standard period, any increase in the capital employed in a business has been effected by means of a loan from a bank carrying on a bona fide banking business, or by means of a public issue of debentures secured on the property of the company, the interest on so much of the loan or debentures as has been utilised in effecting the increase in the capital shall not be deducted in computing the profits for the purposes of excess profits tax and, notwithstanding the provisions of rule 2 of Schedule II, that amount of such loan or debentures shall not be deducted in arriving at the amount of the capital employed in the business.

²[5-A. (1) In computing for any chargeable accounting period ending after the end of March, 1941, and in relation thereto for the standard period, if any, the profits of a business other than a business to which sub-rule (2) of rule 4 of this schedule, applies or the profits of a part of a business other than a part of a business to which sub-rule (2-A) of the said rule applies, no deduction shall be made in respect of interest on borrowed money or in respect of any other consideration given for the use of borrowed money :

Provided that, as respects any such chargeable accounting period which commences before the said end of March, the application of this rule shall be subject to the provisions of section 7-A of this Act :

Provided further that this rule shall not apply to the computation of profits of any business for any chargeable accounting period the standard profits for which are ascertained by reference to the minimum amount specified in sub-section (4) of section 6 of this Act :

Provided further that where a direction has been given by a Board of Referees under sub-section (3) of section 6, or by the Central Board of Revenue under sub-section (1) of section 26 of this Act, that the standard profits shall be computed as if the profits during the standard period were such greater amount as it thinks just, such amount shall be increased by the amount of the interest on or other consideration for the borrowed money during the standard period.

(2) In this rule and in rule 2-A of the Second Schedule "borrowed money" means borrowed money which, apart from the provisions of the said rule 2-A, would have been deductible in computing capital].

6. No deduction shall be made on account of liability to pay, or payment of, income-tax, super-tax, or excess profits tax.

7. ³[(1) In the case of a business carried on, in any accounting period which constitutes or includes a chargeable accounting period, by a company the directors whereof have throughout that accounting period a controlling interest therein,—

(a) In computing the profits for that accounting period ; and

(b) if the standard profits of the business are computed by reference to the profits of a standard period, also in computing in relation to any such chargeable accounting period, the profits for the standard period, no deduction shall be made in respect of directors' remuneration.]

⁴[(2) In sub rule (1) of this rule the expression " directors' remuneration" does not include—

(a) the remuneration of any director who is required to devote substantially the whole of his time to the service of the company in a managerial or technical capacity and is not the beneficial owner of, or able, either directly or through the medium of other companies or by any other indirect means, to control, more than five per cent. of the ordinary share capital of the company, or

(b) the remuneration of any managing agent where such remuneration is included in the profits of the managing agent's business for the purposes of excess profits tax.]

⁵[(3) If, in the case of a business carried on by a company in any accounting period which constitutes or includes a chargeable accounting period, the directors of the company—

(a) have during any part of that accounting period, or

(b) had during the whole or any part of any previous accounting period which includes the whole or any part of any chargeable accounting period, or the whole or any part of the standard period (if any),

a controlling interest therein, and the case is not one to which sub-rule (1) of this rule applies, then, except in so far as the Central Board of Revenue otherwise directs, no deduction shall be made in respect of directors' remuneration either in computing the profits for the first-mentioned accounting period or in computing in relation to any chargeable accounting period wholly or partly included in that accounting period, the profits of the standard period (if any).]

8. In the case of a business carried on by a company, if the standard profits of the company are computed by reference to the profits during a standard period, no deduction shall be allowed in respect of remuneration paid to a managing agent in excess of the amount which would have been payable to that managing agent if the agreement in force in the standard period had been in force in the chargeable accounting period, except where such remuneration is subjected to excess profits tax in the hands of the managing agent.

9. Where the performance of a contract extends beyond the accounting period, there shall (unless the Excess Profits Tax Officer, owing to any special circumstances, otherwise directs) be attributed to the accounting period such proportion of the entire profits or loss which has resulted, or which it is estimated will result, from the complete performance of the contract as is properly attributable to the accounting period, having regard to the extent to which the contract was performed therein :

Provided that when any such contract has been completed and the profits have been finally ascertained, if the aggregate of the amounts attributed to previous accounting periods exceeds the profit, as finally ascertained, from the complete performance of the contract, an adjustment shall be made to reduce the amounts so attributed to the various chargeable accounting periods to the amount of the profits as finally ascertained.

10. In respect of any building erected on or after the 1st day of September, 1939, which during any chargeable accounting period has ceased to be required for the purposes of the business or has been sold, any amount by which the value of the building at the date when it ceased to be required for the purposes of the business or the price obtained for the building, as the case may be, falls short of the written down value of the building shall be allowed as a deduction in arriving at the profits of that chargeable accounting period.

Any person who is dissatisfied with a determination of the Excess Profits Tax Officer under this rule may, at any time before the expiry of forty-five days from the date on which such determination is communicated to him, appeal to the Board of Referees through the Excess Profits Tax Officer.]

²[12. (1) In computing the profits of any chargeable accounting period no deduction shall be allowed in respect of expenses in excess of the amount which the Excess Profits Tax Officer considers reasonable and necessary having regard to the requirements of the business and, in the case of directors' fees or other payments for services, to the actual services rendered by the person concerned :

Provided that no disallowance under this rule shall be made by the Excess Profits Tax Officer unless he has obtained the prior authority of the Commissioner of Excess Profits Tax.

(2) Any person who is dissatisfied with the decision of the Excess Profits Tax Officer under this rule may appeal in the prescribed time and manner to the Appellate Tribunal.]

³[(3) In relation to chargeable accounting periods ending after the 31st day of December, 1942, the Central Government may make rules for determining the extent to which deductions shall be allowed in respect of bonuses or commissions paid.]

SCHEDULE II.

[See section 2 (3).]

Rules for computing the average amount of capital.

1. (1) Subject to the provisions of this Schedule, the average amount of the capital employed in a business (so far as it does not consist of money) shall be taken to be—

(a) so far as it consists of assets acquired by purchase on or after the commencement of the business, the price at which those assets were acquired, subject to the deductions hereafter specified ;

(b) so far as it consists of assets being debts due to the person carrying on the business, the nominal amount of those debts, subject to the said deductions ;

(c) so far as it consists of any other assets which have been acquired otherwise than by purchase as aforesaid, the value of the assets when they became assets of the business, subject to the said deductions.

(2) The price or value of any assets other than a debt shall be subject to such deductions for depreciation as are necessary to reduce the asset to its written down value ⁴[and to such other deductions in respect of reduce values of assets as are allowable in computing profits for the purpose of income-tax] ⁴[and, in the case of a debt, the nominal amount of the debt shall be subject to any deduction which has been allowed in respect thereof for income-tax purposes.]

(3) Where the price of any asset has been satisfied otherwise than in cash, the then value of the consideration actually given for the asset shall be treated as the price at which the asset was acquired.

² Added by Act XXIV of 1941.

³ Added by Ordinance XVI of 1943.

⁴ Inserted by Act XLII of 1940.

Notes.—Sch. II.—The object of Sch. II is to prescribe rules for computing the average amount of capital. 47 Bom.L.R. 797.

2. (1) Any borrowed money and debts shall be deducted, [and in particular there shall be deducted any debts incurred in respect of the business for income-tax or super-tax or excess profits tax, or for advance payments due under any provision of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922 (XI of 1922) or for any further sum payable in relation to excess profits tax under section 2 of the Excess Profits Tax Ordinance, 1943 (XVI of 1943):]¹

Provided that any such debt for income-tax or super-tax or excess profits tax shall, for the purposes of this Schedule, be deemed to have become due—

(a) in the case of income-tax and super-tax on the last day of the period of time within which the tax is payable under section 45 of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922;

(b) in the case of excess profits tax, on the first day after the end of the chargeable accounting period in respect of which the tax is assessable notwithstanding that the excess profits tax may not have been assessed until after that date.

²[(c) in the case of any advance payment due under any provision of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922 (XI of 1922), on the date on which under the provisions of that section, the payment first became due;

(d) in the case of any further sum payable in relation to excess profits tax under section 2 of the Excess Profits Tax Ordinance, 1943 (XVI of 1943), on the date on which under the provisions of that section, the further sum became payable.]

³[The debts to be deducted under this sub-rule shall include any such sums in respect of accruing liabilities as are allowable as a deduction in computing profits for the purposes of excess profits tax or would have been so allowable if the period for which the amount of capital is being computed had been a chargeable accounting period; and the said sums shall be deducted notwithstanding that they have not become payable.]

(2) Where any debt for the excess profits tax assessable in respect of any period is to be deducted under this rule, the amount thereof shall not be reduced as the result of any relief to be given in respect of a deficiency of profits occurring in any subsequent period, and the amount of any such relief shall be treated as having become an asset of the business on the first day after the end of the chargeable accounting period in which the deficiency occurred.

⁴2-A. In computing for any chargeable accounting period ending after the end of March, 1941, and in relation thereto for the standard period, if any, the average capital of a business other than a business to which sub-rule (2) of rule 4 of the First Schedule applies, or the average capital of a part of a business other than a part of a business to which sub-rule (2-A) of the said rule applies, no deduction shall be made in respect of borrowed money :

Provided that, as respects any such chargeable accounting period which commences before the said end of March, the application of this rule shall be subject to the provisions of section 7-A of this Act :

Provided further that the same deduction shall be made in respect of accruing liabilities for interest as would have been made if this rule had not been enacted.]

3. (1) Any investments the income from which is by virtue of the provisions of the First Schedule not to be taken into account in computing the profits of the business, and moneys ⁵[or as regards any chargeable accounting period ending after the 31st day of December, 1942, any trading stock or stock of raw materials] not required for the purposes of the business, shall be left out of account, but where any investments in the beneficial ownership of the person carrying on the business are so left out of account, the sum (if any) to be deducted under ⁶[rule 2 of this Schedule] in respect of borrowed money shall be computed as if the principal of the borrowed money were reduced by the value of those investments :

Provided that where the person carrying on the business is not a company, no reduction shall be deemed to be made in the principal of any borrowed money in respect of any investments unless the investments are mortgaged, charged or pledged as security for the repayment of that money and the interest thereon.

⁷[(2) The Central Government may make rules defining for the purposes of this rule the principles to be followed in leaving out of account trading stock and stocks of raw materials.]

4. Notwithstanding anything contained in rule 3, in the case of the business of shipping, to which this Act applies, the sale proceeds of any tonnage sold or the amount of compensation in respect of loss of ships or the amount of accumulation of reserves, whether invested or not, shall be taken into account in computing the average amount of capital employed in such business :

Provided that any income received from investment of such funds shall be included in computing profits for purposes of the excess profits tax.

5. For the purpose of ascertaining the average amount of capital employed in a business during any period, the profits or losses made in that period shall, except so far as the contrary is shown be deemed—

(a) to have accrued at an even rate throughout the period; and

(b) to have resulted, as they accrued, in a corresponding increase or decrease, as the case may be, in the capital employed in the business.

6. Where, in accordance with the [2nd or 3rd proviso] to section 5 of this Act, this Act is applicable to part only of a business, the capital employed in that part shall be computed separately from any other capital of the person carrying on the business, and all references to capital employed in a business shall be construed as references to capital employed in that part of the business only.

(a) the Central Board of Revenue is satisfied, as respects any assets of any business the standard profits of which are computed by reference to the profits of a standard period, that during that period or any part thereof those assets were inherently unproductive, and

(b) an application that this rule shall have effect is made through the Excess Profits Tax Officer to the Central Board of Revenue by the person carrying on the business, then, in computing the average amount of the capital employed in the business in the standard period and in all chargeable accounting periods, those assets, and any other assets of the business, shall be treated as not having been assets thereof during any part of the period during which, in the opinion of the Central Board of Revenue, they were inherently unproductive :

Provided that in the case of a business the standard profits of which depend directly or indirectly upon a direction of the Board of Referees under sub-section (3) of section 6, or of the Central Board of Revenue under sub-section (1) of section 26 of this Act or of the provisions of this rule shall have effect to such extent only as the Central Board of Revenue thinks proper :

Provided further that an application to the Central Board of Revenue under this rule shall be presented to the Excess Profits Tax Officer before the expiry of the period specified in the notice issued under sub-section (1) of section 13 of this Act or of the extended period allowed by the Excess Profits Tax Officer under the proviso to that sub-section.

(2) Where sub-rule (1) of this rule has effect on the application of the person carrying on any business, any computation of capital of the business made before the making of the application, and any assessment affected by that computation shall be revised accordingly.]

SCHEDULE III.

[See Section 9 (7).]

Rules of determining the amount of capital held by a company through other companies.

1. Where, in the case of a number of companies, the first directly owns ordinary share capital of the second and the second directly owns ordinary share capital of the third, then, for the purposes of this Schedule, the first shall be deemed to own ordinary share capital of the third through the second and, if the third directly owns ordinary share capital of a fourth, the first shall be deemed to own ordinary share capital of the fourth through the second and third, and the second shall be deemed to own ordinary share capital of the fourth through the third, and so on.

2. In this Schedule—

(a) any number of companies of which the first directly owns ordinary share capital of the next and the next directly owns ordinary share capital of the next but one and so on, and, if they are more than three, any three or more of them, are referred to as “a series” ;

(b) in any series—

(i) that company which owns ordinary share capital of another through the remainder is referred to as “the first owner” ;

(ii) that other company the ordinary share capital of which is so owned is referred to as “the last owned company” ;

(iii) the remainder, if one only, is referred to as an “intermediary” or, if more than one is referred to as a “chain of intermediaries” ;

(c) a company in a series which directly owns ordinary share capital of another company in the series is referred to as an “owner” ;

(d) any two companies in a series of which one owns ordinary share capital of the other directly, and not through one or more of the other companies in the series, are referred to as being directly related to one another.

3. Where every owner in a series owns the whole of the ordinary share capital of the company to which it is directly related, the first owner shall be deemed to own through the intermediary or chain of intermediaries the whole of the ordinary share capital of the last owned company.

4. Where one of the owners in a series owns a fraction of the ordinary share capital of the company to which it is directly related, and every other owner in the series owns the whole of the ordinary share capital of the company to which it is directly related, the first owner shall be deemed to own that fraction of the ordinary share capital of the last owned company through the intermediary or chain of intermediaries.

5. Where—

(a) each of two or more of the owners in a series owns a fraction, and every other owner in the series owns the whole, of the ordinary share capital of the company to which it is directly related ; or

(b) every owner in a series owns a fraction of the ordinary share capital of the company to which it is directly related ; the first owner shall be deemed to own through the intermediary or chain of intermediaries such fraction of the ordinary share capital of the last owned company as results from the multiplication of those fractions.

6. Where the first owner in any series owns a fraction of the ordinary share capital of the last owned company in that series through the intermediary or chain of intermediaries in the series and also owns another fraction or other fractions of the ordinary share capital of the last owned company either—

- (a) directly; or
 - (b) through any intermediary or intermediaries which is not a member or are not members of that series; or
 - (c) through a chain or chains of intermediaries of which one or some or all are not members of that series; or
 - (d) in a case where the series consists of more than three companies, through an intermediary or intermediaries which is a member or are members of the series, or through a chain or chains of intermediaries consisting of some but not all of the companies of which the chain or chains of intermediaries in the series consists;
- then, for the purpose of ascertaining the amount of the ordinary share capital of the last owned company owned by the first owner, all those fractions shall be aggregated and the first owner shall be deemed to own the sum of those fractions.

THE EXCESS PROFITS TAX ORDINANCE (XVI OF 1943).

[17th May, 1943.]

An ordinance to make certain provisions in connection with the tax on excess profits.

WHEREAS an emergency has arisen which renders it necessary to make certain provisions in connection with the tax on excess profits;

NOW, THEREFORE, in exercise of the powers conferred by section 72 of the Government of India Act, as set out in the Ninth Schedule to the Government of India Act, 1935 (26 Geo. 5, c. 2), the Governor-General is pleased to make and promulgate the following Ordinance:—

Short title extent and commencement. 1. (1) This Ordinance may be called THE EXCESS PROFITS TAX ORDINANCE, 1943.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India.

(3) It shall come into force at once.

2. (1) When excess profits tax charged under the provisions of the Excess Profits Tax Act, 1940 (XV of 1940) in respect of any chargeable accounting period ending after the 31st day of December, 1942, becomes payable under that Act after assessment made under section 14 of that Act, the person liable to pay such excess profits tax shall deposit with the Central Government, before such date as may be specified in a notice in this behalf in such form as may be prescribed by rules made under sub-section (5) issued to him by the Excess Profits Tax Officer, a further sum equal to one-fifth of the amount of the said excess profits tax; and the provisions of section 10 of the Indian Finance Act, 1942 (XII of 1942), shall, save in so far as they are inconsistent with this section, apply in respect of such deposits as they apply in respect of the voluntary deposits for which provision is made in the said section 10:

["Provided that, in respect of any chargeable accounting period ending after the 31st day of December, 1943, the provisions of this sub-section shall have effect as if, in relation to any person who is a company, for the words 'one-fifth' the words 'nineteen-six-fourths' were substituted and as if, in relation to any other person, for the words 'one-fifth' the words 'seventeen-sixty-fourths' were substituted:

Provided further that if, in respect of any chargeable accounting period ending after the 31st day of December, 1943, a person who has deposited a further sum equal to seventeen-sixty-fourths of the excess profits tax payable shows that the amount of the income-tax and super-tax payable in respect of the excess profits arising in such period exceeds fifteen-sixty-fourths of the amount of the excess profits tax payable, so much of the deposit shall be refunded as will secure that the total of the deposit made and the income-tax and super-tax payable in respect of the excess profits arising in such period does not exceed one-half of the excess profits tax payable."] (Added by Finance Act, 1944).

["(1-A) In respect of any chargeable accounting period ending after the 31st day of December, 1943, in respect of which a provisional assessment of excess profits tax is made under section 14-A of the Excess Profits Tax Act, 1940 (XV of 1940), the person liable to pay such excess profits tax shall deposit in the manner laid down in sub-section (1) a further sum equal to nineteen-sixty-fourths of the amount of the said excess profits tax if such person is a company and seventeen-sixty-fourths of the said amount if such person is not a company; and the provisions of sub-sections (6) and (7) of the said section 14-A shall apply to any payment made under this sub-section as they apply to a payment of excess profits tax.] (Inserted by Finance Act, 1944.)

(2) The provisions of sub-section (1) of section 10 of the Indian Finance Act, 1942 (XII of 1942), in so far as they enable the making of voluntary deposits, shall cease to have effect except in relation to excess profits tax charged in respect of a chargeable accounting period ending on the 31st day of December, 1942, or earlier.

(3) Any further sum such as is referred to in sub-section (1) deposited in accordance with that sub-section shall be repaid by the Central Government within twelve months of the date of termination of the present hostilities or within twenty-four months of the date on which the deposit was made, whichever is later.

(4) The provisions of law applicable to the payment and recovery of excess profits tax contained in sections 45 and 46 [except sub-sections (1) and (1-A) thereof] of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922 (XI of 1922), as applied by section 21 of the Excess Profits Tax Act, 1940 (XV of 1940), shall apply to the payment and recovery of the deposits required by ¹[sub-section (1) (1-A) of this section] as if the notice referred to in sub-section (1) of this section were a notice of demand under section 29 of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922 (XI of 1922), and as if a default in making payment of such deposit were a default in making payment of excess profits tax.

(5) The power to make rules for carrying out the purposes of section 10 of the Indian Finance Act, 1942 (XII of 1942), conferred by sub-section (3) of that section shall include a power to make rules for carrying out the purposes of this section.

(Secs. 3, 4 and 5—Repealed by Ordinance I of 1946).

THE INCOME-TAX AND EXCESS PROFITS TAX (EMERGENCY) ORDINANCE (LX OF 1942).²

[14th November, 1942.]

An Ordinance to remove certain difficulties caused by the destruction of documents and records pertaining to the collection of Income-tax and Excess Profits Tax.

WHEREAS an emergency has arisen which makes it necessary to remove certain difficulties caused by the destruction of documents and records pertaining to the collection of Income-tax and Excess Profits Tax;

NOW, THEREFORE, in exercise of the powers conferred by section 72 of the Government of India Act, as set out in the Ninth Schedule to the Government of India Act, 1935, the Governor-General is pleased to make and promulgate the following Ordinance:—

1. (1) This Ordinance may be called THE Short title and commence- INCOME-TAX AND EXCESS PROFITS TAX (EMERGENCY)
ment. ORDINANCE, 1942.

(2) It shall come into force at once.

lation, 1940, in B. C. Worth's Emergency Legislation, Title "Income-tax" [18] 1-3.

2. (1) Where documents or records pertaining to the assessment, collection or payment of income-tax or excess profits tax and to secure returns. have been damaged, lost or destroyed as a result of riot or civil commotion, the authority authorised under the Indian Income-Tax Act, 1922, or the Excess Profits Tax Act, 1940, as the case may be, to issue any notice for any of the purposes of either Act, may, notwithstanding anything contained in either of the said Acts, and notwithstanding that such notice has already been issued or has already been issued and has been or is alleged to have been complied with, or where such notice has already been issued, that the time within which the notice is to be issued has already expired, may re-issue such notice, and any notice so re-issued shall in all respects have the same effect as if it were the original notice, and any proceedings that could have been taken in pursuance of or subsequent to the original notice may be taken in like manner in pursuance of or subsequent to the notice so re-issued:

Provided that in respect of assessments or re-assessments made in the course of any proceeding taken under the powers conferred by this sub-section the periods of eight and four years mentioned in sub-section (2) of section 34 of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, shall be deemed to commence on and to run from the date on which the notice under sub-section (2) of section 22 or sub-section (1) of section 34 of that Act is re-issued under the powers conferred by this sub-section:

Provided further that where a person proves to the satisfaction of the Income-tax Officer or the Excess Profits Tax Officer, as the case may be, that he has already been assessed in respect of the income or the excess profits in respect of which notices under section 22 or section 34 of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, or under section 13 or section 15 of the Excess Profits Tax Act, 1940, have been re-issued and that he has paid the tax, he shall not be subject to fresh assessment.

(2) Any return or information required or which could be required under the provisions of either of the said Acts to be furnished by any person shall, if the Income-tax Officer or the Excess Profits Tax Officer so requires at any time, be again furnished by such person notwithstanding that it may have been or is alleged to have been already furnished, and any failure to comply with any such requirement by an Income-tax Officer or Excess Profits Tax Officer shall involve the same consequences as if the return or information had been altogether withheld.

3. If any question arises whether a document or record has been damaged, lost or destroyed as a result of riot or civil commotion, the matter shall be referred to the Commissioner of Income-tax or to the Commissioner of Excess Profits Tax, as the case may be, and his decision shall be final.

4. The Central Government may make rules providing for any matter necessary to carry into effect the purposes of this Ordinance.

THE CENTRAL EXCISES AND SALT ACT (I OF 1944).

[20th February, 1944.

[N.B.—Amended by Finance Acts 1944, 1945 and 1946 and Act VI of 1945].

An Act to consolidate and amend the law relating to central duties of excise and salt;
[24th February, 1944.

WHEREAS it is expedient to consolidate and amend the law relating to central duties of excise on goods manufactured or produced in British India and to salt;

It is hereby enacted as follows:—

CHAPTER I.

Short title, extent and commencement.

1. (1) This Act may be called THE CENTRAL EXCISES AND SALT ACT, 1944;

(2) It extends to the whole of British India;

(3) It shall come into force on such date as the Central Government may, by notification, in the official Gazette, appoint in this behalf.

Definitions.

2. In this Act, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context,—

(a) “broker” or “commission agent” means a person who in the ordinary course of business makes contracts for the sale or purchase of excisable goods for others;

(b) “Central Excise Officer” means any officer of the Central Excise Department, or any person (including an officer of the Provincial Government) invested by the Central Board of Revenue with any of the powers of a Central Excise Officer under this Act;

(c) “curing” includes writing, drying, fermenting and any process for redering an unmanufactured product fit for marketing or manufacture;

(d) “excisable goods” means goods specified in the First Schedule as being subject to a duty of excise and includes salt;

(e) “factory” means any premises, including the precincts thereof, wherein or in any part of which excisable goods other than salt are manufactured, or wherein or in any part of which any manufacturing process connected with the production of these goods is being carried on or is ordinarily carried on;

(f) “manufacture” includes any process incidental or ancillary to the completion of a manufactured product; and

(i) in relation to tobacco includes the preparation of cigarettes, cigars, cheroots, biris, cigarette or pipe or hookah tobacco, chewing tobacco or snuff; and

(ii) in relation to salt, includes collection, removal, preparation, steeping, evaporation, boiling, or any one or more of these processes, the separation or purification of salt obtained in the manufacture of saltpetre, the separation of salt from earth or other substance so as to produce alimentary salt, and the excavation or removal of natural saline deposits or efflorescence; and the word “manufacturer” shall be construed accordingly and shall include not only a person who employs hired labour in the production or manufacture of excisable goods, but also any person who engages in their production or manufacture in his own account if those goods are intended for sale;

(g) “prescribed” means prescribed by rules made under this Act;

(h) “sale” and “purchase”, with their grammatical variations and cognate expressions, mean any transfer of the possession of goods by one person to another in the ordinary course of trade or business for cash or deferred payment or other valuable consideration;

(i) “saltpetre” includes rasi, sajji, and all other substances manufactured from saline earth, and kharinun and every form of sulphate or carbonate of soda;

(j) “salt factory” includes—

(i) a place used or intended to be used in the manufacture of salt and all embankments, reservoirs, condensing and evaporating pans, buildings and waste places situated within the limits of such place, as defined from time to time by the Collector of Central Excise;

(ii) all drying grounds and storage platforms and storehouses appertaining to any such place;

(iii) land on which salt is spontaneously produced;

and a "private salt factory" is one not solely owned or not solely worked by the Central Government;

(k) "wholesale dealer" means a person who buys or sells excisable goods wholesale for the purpose of trade or manufacture, and includes a broker or commission agent who, in addition to making contracts for the sale or purchase of excisable goods for others, stocks, such goods belonging to others as an agent for the purpose of sale.

CHAPTER II.

LEVY AND COLLECTION OF DUTY.

3. (1) There shall be levied and collected in such manner as may be prescribed duties of excise on all excisable goods other than salt which are produced or manufactured in British India, and a duty on salt manufactured in, or imported by land into any part of British India as, and at the rates, set forth in the First Schedule.

(2) The Central Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, fix, for the purpose of levying the said duties, tariff values of any articles enumerated, either specifically or under general headings, in the First Schedule as chargeable with duty ad valorem and may alter any tariff values for the time being in force;

(3) Different tariff values may be fixed for different classes or descriptions of the same article.

4. Where under this Act any article is chargeable with duty at a rate dependent on the value of the article, such value shall be deemed to be the wholesale cash price for which an article of the like kind and quality is sold or is capable of being sold for delivery at the place of manufacture and at the time of its removal therefrom, without any abatement or deduction whatever except trade discount and the amount of duty then payable.

5. The Central Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, impose on any excisable goods other than salt brought into British India from the territory of any Indian State, not being territory which has been declared under section 5 of the Indian Tariff Act, 1934 (XXXII of 1934), to be foreign territory for the purposes of that section, a duty of customs equivalent to the duty imposed by this Act on the like goods produced or manufactured in British India.

6. The Central Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, provide that, from such date as may be specified in the notification, no person shall, except under the authority and in accordance with the terms and conditions of a licence granted under this Act, engage in—

(a) the production or manufacture or any process of the production or manufacture of any specified excisable goods or of saltpetre or of any specified component part or ingredients of such goods or of specified containers of such goods, or

(b) the wholesale purchase or sale (whether on his own account or as a broker or commission agent) or the storage of any excisable goods specified in this behalf in Part A of the Second Schedule.

7. Every licence under section 6 shall be granted for such area, if any, for such period, subject to such restrictions and conditions and in such form and containing such particulars, as may be prescribed.

8. From such date as may be specified in this behalf by the Central Government by notification in the official Gazette, no person shall, except as provided by rules made under this Act, have in his possession any excisable goods specified in this behalf in Part B of the Second Schedule in excess of such quantity as may be prescribed for the purposes of this section as the maximum amount of such goods or of any variety of such goods which may be possessed at any one time by such a person.

Offences and Penalties.

9. Whoever commits any of the following offences, namely:—

(a) contravenes any of the provisions of a notification issued under section 6 or of section 8, or of a rule made under clause (iii) of sub-section (2) of section 37;

(b) evades the payment of any duty payable under this Act;

(c) fails to supply any information which he is required by rules made under this Act to supply, or (unless with a reasonable belief, the burden of proving which shall be upon him, that the information supplied by him is true), supplies false information;

(d) attempts to commit, or abets the commission of, any of the offences mentioned in clauses (a) and (b) of this section; shall, for every such offence, be punishable with imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months, or with fine which may extend to two thousand rupees, or with both.

10. Any Court trying an offence under this Chapter may order the forfeiture to His Majesty of any goods in respect of which the Court is satisfied that an offence under this Chapter has been committed, and may also order the forfeiture of any receptacles, packages or coverings in which such goods are contained and the animals, vehicles, vessels or other conveyances used in carrying the goods, and any implements or machinery used in the manufacture of the goods.

11. In respect of duty and any other sums of any kind payable to the Central Government under any of the provisions of this Act or of the rules made thereunder, the officer empowered by the Central Board of Revenue to levy such duty or require the payment of such sums may deduct the amount so payable from any money owing to the person from whom such sums may be recoverable or due which may be in his hands or under his disposal or control, or may recover the amount by attachment and sale of excisable goods belonging to such person; and if the amount payable is not so recovered he may prepare a certificate signed by him specifying the amount due from the person liable to pay the same and send it to the Collector of the district in which such persons resides or conducts his business and the said Collector, on receipt of such certificate, shall proceed to recover from the said person the amount specified therein as if it were an arrear of land-revenue.

12. The Central Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, declare that any of the provisions of the Sea Customs Act, 1878, relating to the levy of and exemption from customs duties, drawback of duty, warehousing, offences and penalties, confiscation, and procedure relating to offences and appeals shall, with such modifications and alterations as it may consider necessary or desirable to adapt them to the circumstances, be applicable in regard to like matters in respect of the duties imposed by section 3.

CHAPTER III.

POWERS AND DUTIES OF OFFICERS AND LANDHOLDERS.

13. (1) Any Central Excise officer duly empowered by the Central Government in this behalf may arrest any person whom he has reason to believe to be liable to punishment under this Act.

(2) Any person accused or reasonably suspected of committing an offence under this Act or any rules made thereunder, who on demand of any officer duly empowered by the Central Government in this behalf refuses to give his name and residence, or who gives a name or residence which such officer has reason to believe to be false may be arrested by such officer in order that his name and residence may be ascertained.

14. (1) Any Central Excise officer duly empowered by the Central Government in this behalf shall have power to summon any person whose attendance he considers necessary either to give evidence or to produce a document or any other thing in any inquiry which such officer is making for any of the purposes of this Act. A summons to produce documents or other things may be for the production of certain specified documents or things or for the production of all documents or things of a certain description in the possession or under the control of the person summoned.

(2) All persons so summoned shall be bound to attend, either in person or by an authorised agent, as such officer may direct; and all persons so summoned shall be bound to state the truth upon any subject respecting which they are examined or make statements and to produce such documents and other things as may be required:

Provided that the exemptions under sections 132 and 133 of the Code of Civil Procedure shall be applicable to requisitions for attendance under this section.

(3) Every such inquiry as aforesaid shall be deemed to be a "judicial proceeding" within the meaning of section 193 and section 228 of the Indian Penal Code.

15. All officers of Police and Customs and all officers of Government engaged in the collection of land-revenue, and all Central Excise Officers, village officers are hereby empowered and required to assist the Central Excise officers in the execution of this Act.

16. Every owner or occupier of land, and the agent of any such owner or occupier, in charge of the management of that land, if contraband excisable goods are manufactured thereon, shall in the absence of reasonable excuse be bound to give notice of such manufacture to a Magistrate, or to an officer of the Central Excise, Customs, Police, or Land Revenue Department, immediately the fact comes to his knowledge.

17. Any owner or occupier of land, or any agent of such owner or occupier in charge of the management of that land, who wilfully connives at any offence against the provisions of this Act or of any rules made thereunder shall for every such offence be punishable with imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months, or with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees, or with both.

18. All searches made under this Act or any rules made thereunder and all arrests made under this Act shall be carried out in accordance with the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898 (V of 1898), relating respectively to searches and arrest made under that Code.

19. Every person arrested under this Act shall be forwarded without delay to the nearest Central Excise officer empowered to send persons so arrested to a Magistrate, or, if there is no such Central Excise officer within a reasonable distance, to the officer-in-charge of the nearest police station.

20. The officer-in-charge of a police-station to whom any person is forwarded under section 19 shall either admit him to bail to appear before the Magistrate having jurisdiction, or in default of bail forward him in custody to such Magistrate.

21. (1) When any person is forwarded under section 19 to a Central Excise officer empowered to send persons so arrested to a Magistrate, the Central Excise officer shall proceed to enquire into the charges against him.

(2) For this purpose the Central Excise officer may exercise the same powers and shall be subject to the same provisions as the officer-in-charge of a police-station may exercise and is subject to under the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898 (V of 1898), when investigating a cognizable case:

Provided that—

(a) if the Central Excise officer is of opinion that there is sufficient evidence or reasonable ground of suspicion against the accused person, he shall either admit him to bail to appear before a Magistrate having jurisdiction in the case, or forward him in custody to such Magistrate;

(b) if it appears to the Central Excise officer that there is not sufficient evidence or reasonable ground of suspicion against the accused person, he shall release the accused person on his executing a bond, with or without sureties as the Central Excise officer may direct to appear, if and when so required before the Magistrate having jurisdiction, and shall make a full report of all the particulars of the case to his official superior.

22. Any Central Excise or other officer exercising powers under this Act or under the rules made thereunder who—

(a) without reasonable ground of suspicion searches or causes to be searched any house, boat or place;

(b) vexatiously and unnecessarily detains, searches or arrests any person;

(c) vexatiously and unnecessarily seizes the movable property of any person, on pretence of seizing or searching for any article liable to confiscation under this Act;

(d) commits, as such officer, any other act to the injury of any person, without having reason to believe that such act is required for the execution of his duty; shall, for every such offence, be punishable with fine which may extend to two thousand rupees.

Any person wilfully and maliciously giving false information and so causing an arrest or a search to be made under this Act shall be punishable with fine which may extend to two thousand rupees or with imprisonment for a term which may extend to two years or with both.

23. Any Central Excise officer who ceases or refuses to perform or withdraws himself from the duties of his office, unless he has obtained the express written permission of the Collector of Central Excise, or has given to his superior officer two months' notice in writing of his intention or has other lawful excuse, shall on conviction before a Magistrate be punishable with imprisonment for a term which may extend to three months, or with fine which may extend to three months' pay, or with both.

CHAPTER IV.

TRANSPORT BY SEA.

24. When any excisable goods are carried by sea in any vessel other than a vessel of the burden of three hundred tons and upwards, the owner and master of such vessel shall each be punishable with imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months, or with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees, or with both.

Exceptions.

25. Nothing in section 24, applies to—

(a) any excisable goods covered by a permit granted under rules made under this Act;

(b) any excisable goods covered by a pass granted by any officer whom the Central Board of Revenue may appoint in this behalf;

(c) such amount of excisable goods carried on board any vessel for consumption by her crew or by the passengers or animals (if any) on board as the Central Board of Revenue may from time to time exempt from the operation of section 24.

26. When any officer empowered by the Central Board of Revenue, to act under this section has reason to believe, from personal knowledge or from information taken down in writing, that any excisable goods are being carried, or have within the previous twenty-four hours been carried, in any vessel so as to render the owner or master of such vessel liable to the penalties imposed by section 24, he may require such vessel to be brought to and thereupon may—

(a) enter and search the vessel;

(b) require the master of the vessel to produce any documents in his possession relating to the vessel or the cargo thereof;

(c) seize the vessel if the officer has reason to believe it liable to confiscation under this Act, and cause it to be brought with its crew and cargo into any port in British India; and

(d) where any excisable goods are found on board the vessel, search and arrest without a warrant any person on board the vessel whom he has reason to believe to be punishable under section 24.

27. Any master of a vessel refusing or neglecting to bring to the vessel or to produce his papers when required to do so by an officer acting under section 26, and any person obstructing any such officer in the performance of his duty, may be arrested by such officer without a warrant, and shall be punishable with imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months or with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees, or with both.

28. (1) Every vessel (including all appurtenances) in which any excisable goods are carried so as to render the owner or master of such vessel liable to penalties imposed by section 24, the cargo on board such vessel and the excisable goods in respect of which an offence under this Act has been committed shall be liable to confiscation on the orders of the officer empowered in this behalf by the Central Government.

(2) Whenever any Customs-officer is satisfied that any article is liable to confiscation under this section he may seize such article, and shall at once report the seizure to his superior officer for the information of the officer empowered to order confiscation under sub-section (1) and such officer may, if satisfied on such report or after making such inquiry as he thinks fit, that the article so seized is liable to confiscation, either declare it to be confiscated, or impose a fine in lieu thereof not exceeding the value of the article.

29. Any offence punishable under section 24 or section 27 may be deemed to have been committed within the limits of the jurisdiction of the Magistrate of any place where the offender is found, or to which, if arrested under section 26 or section 27, he may be brought.

30. The Central Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, exempt the carriage of excisable goods within any local limits or in any class of vessels from the operation of this Chapter, and, by like notification, again subject such carriage to the operation of this Chapter.

CHAPTER V.

SPECIAL PROVISIONS RELATING TO SALT.

31. The proprietor of a private salt factory who has by virtue of a sanad granted by the British or any former Government, a special and permanent right to manufacture salt, or to excavate or collect natural salt, shall on application made in accordance with the rules made under this Act be entitled to a licence for such purpose and to the annual renewal thereof, unless on a breach of the provisions of this Act, his licence has been cancelled by an officer duly empowered by the Central Government in this behalf.

32. Every proprietor of a private salt-work, other than a private salt factory, to which section 31 applies, of which, under the provisions of section 17 of the Bombay Salt Act, 1890 (Bom. II of 1890), the proprietor was entitled on application to a licence to manufacture or to excavate or collect natural salt at such factory, shall continue to be entitled, on application made in accordance with the rules made under this Act, to a licence for such purpose and to the annual renewal thereof, unless on a breach of the provisions of this Act his licence has been cancelled by an officer duly empowered by the Central Government in this behalf:

Provided that the Collector of Central Excise may at any time withdraw or withhold a licence from the proprietor of any such salt factory, if no salt has been manufactured, excavated or collected in such salt factory for the three years ending on the thirtieth day of June last preceding the date of his order, or, with the previous sanction of the Central Board of Revenue, if such salt factory has not produced, on an average, during the said three years, at least five thousand maunds of salt per annum.

CHAPTER VI.

ADJUDICATION OF CONFISCATIONS AND PENALTIES.

33. Where by the rules made under this Act any thing is liable to confis-

Power of adjudication. cation or any person is liable to a penalty, such confiscation or penalty may be adjudged—

(a) without limit, by a Collector of Central Excise;

(b) up to confiscation of goods not exceeding five hundred rupees in value and imposition of penalty not exceeding two hundred and fifty rupees, by an Assistant Collector of Central Excise:

Provided that the Central Board of Revenue may, in the case of any officer performing the duties of an Assistant Collector of Central Excise, reduce the limits indicated in clause (b) of this section, and may confer on any officer the powers indicated in clause (a) or (b) of this section.

34. Wherever confiscation is adjudged under this Act or the rules made thereunder, the officer adjudging it shall give Option to pay fine in lieu of confiscation. the owner of the goods an option to pay in lieu of confiscation such fine as the officer thinks fit.

35. (1) Any person deeming himself aggrieved by any decision or order passed by a Central Excise officer under this Act or Appeals.

the rules made thereunder, may, within three months from the date of such decision or order, appeal therefrom the Central Board of Revenue, or, in such cases as the Central Government directs, to any Central Excise officer not inferior in rank to an Assistant Collector of Central Excise officer not inferior in rank to an Assistant Collector of Central Excise and empowered in that behalf by the Central Government. Such authority or officer may thereupon make such further inquiry and pass such order as he thinks fit, confirming, altering or annulling the decision or order appealed against:

Provided that no such order in appeal shall have the effect of subjecting any person to any greater confiscation or penalty than has been adjudged against him in the original decision or order.

(2) Every order passed in appeal under this section shall, subject to the power of revision conferred by section 36, be final.

36. The Central Government may on the application of any person aggrieved by any decision or order passed under this Act or the rules made thereunder by any Central Excise officer or by the Central Board of Revenue, and from which no appeal lies, reverse or modify such decision or order.

CHAPTER VII.

Power of Central Government to make rules.

37. (1) The Central Government may make rules to carry into effect the purposes of this Act.

(2) In particular, and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing power, such rules may—

(i) to provide for the assessment and collection of duties of excise, the authorities by whom functions under this Act are to be discharged, the issue of notices requiring payment, the manner in which the duties shall be payable, and the recovery of duty not paid;

(ii) prohibit absolutely, or with such exceptions, or subject to such conditions as the Central Government thinks fit, the production or manufacture, or any process of the production or manufacture, of excisable goods, or of any component parts or ingredients or containers thereof, except on land or premises approved for the purpose;

(iii) prohibit absolutely, or with such exceptions, or subject to such conditions, as the Central Government thinks fit, the bringing of excisable goods into British India from the territory of any specified Prince or Chief-in-India, or the transit of excisable goods from any part of British India to any other part thereof;

(iv) regulate the removal of excisable goods from the place where produced, stored or manufactured or subjected to any process of production or manufacture and their transport to or from the premises of a licensed person, or a bonded warehouse, or to a market;

(v) regulate the production or manufacture, or any process of the production or manufacture, the possession, storage and sale of salt, and so far as such regulation is essential for the proper levy and collection of the duties imposed by this Act, of any other excisable goods, or of any component parts or ingredients or containers thereof;

(vi) provide for the employment of officers of the Crown to supervise the carrying out of any rules made under this Act;

(vii) require a manufacturer or the licensee of a warehouse to provide accommodation within the precincts of his factory or warehouse for officers employed to supervise the carrying out of regulations made under this Act and prescribe the scale of such accommodation;

(viii) provide for the appointment, licensing, management and supervision of bonded warehouses and the procedure to be followed in entering goods into and clearing goods from such warehouses;

(ix) provide for the distinguishing of goods which have been manufactured under licence, of materials which have been imported under licence, and of goods on which duty has been paid, or which are exempt from duty under this Act;

(x) impose on persons engaged in the production or manufacture, storage or sale (whether on their own account or as brokers or commission agents) of salt, and, so far as such imposition is essential for the proper levy and collection of the duties imposed by this Act, of any other excisable goods, the duty of furnishing information, keeping records and making returns, and prescribe the nature of such information and the form of such records and returns, the particulars to be contained therein, and the manner in which they shall be verified;

(xi) require that excisable goods shall not be sold or offered or kept for sale in British India except in prescribed containers, bearing a banderol, stamp or label of such nature and affixed in such manner as may be prescribed;

(xii) provide for the issue of licences and transport permits and the fees, if any, to be charged therefor:

Provided that the fees for the licensing of the manufacture and refining of salt and saltpetre shall not exceed, in the case of each such licence, the following amounts, namely:—

	Rs.
Licence to manufacture and refine saltpetre and to separate and purify salt in the process of such manufacture and refining	.. 2
Licence to manufacture saltpetre	.. 2
Licence to manufacture sulphate of soda (Kharinun) by solar heat in evaporating pans	.. 10
Licence to manufacture sulphate of soda (Kharinun) by artificial heat	.. 2
Licence to manufacture other saline substances	.. 2

(xiii) provide for the detention of goods, plant, machinery or material, for the purpose of exciting the duty, the procedure in connection with the confiscation, otherwise than under section 10 or section 28, of goods in respect of which breaches of the Act or rules have been committed, and the disposal of goods so detained or confiscated;

(xiv) authorise and regulate the inspection of factories and provide for the taking of stamps, and for the making of tests, of any substance produced therein, and for the inspection or search of any place or conveyance used for the production, storage, sale or transport of salt, and so far as such inspection or search is essential for the proper levy and collection of the duties imposed by this Act, of any other excisable goods;

(xv) authorise and regulate the composition of offences against, or liabilities incurred under, this Act or the rules made thereunder;

(xvi) provide for the grant of a rebate of the duty paid on goods which are exported out of India or shipped for consumption on a voyage to any port outside India;

Provided that rules made under this clause shall provide that when steel ingots on which the duty of excise imposed by this Act has been paid, or articles of iron or steel manufactured in British India from such ingots, are exported out of India, there shall be payable to the exporter of such ingots or articles, subject to such conditions as may be prescribed, a refund at the following rates, namely:—

on ingots, blooms and billets—

a refund at the rate of four rupees per ton, on other manufactures of iron or steel—

(a) not fabricated—a refund at the rate of five and one-third rupees per ton;

(b) fabricated—a refund at the rate of six rupees per ton;

(xvii) exempt any goods from the whole or any part of the duty imposed by this Act;

(xviii) define an area no point in which shall be more than one hundred years from the nearest point of any place in which salt is stored or sold by or on behalf of the Central Government, or of any factory in which saltpetre is manufactured or refined, and regulate the possession, storage and sale of salt within such area;

(xix) define an area round any other place in which salt is manufactured, and regulate the possession, storage and sale of salt within such area;

(xx) authorise the Central Board of Revenue or Collectors of Central Excise appointed for the purposes of this Act to provide, by written instructions, for supplemental matters arising out of any rule made by the Central Government under this section.

(3) In making rules under this section, the Central Government may provide that any person committing a breach of any rule shall, where no other penalty is provided by this Act, be liable to a penalty not exceeding two thousand rupees and that any article in respect of which any such breach is committed shall be confiscated.

38. All rules made and notifications issued under this Act shall be made

Publication of rules and notifications. and issued by publication in the official Gazette. All such rules and notifications shall thereupon have effect as if enacted in this Act:

Provided that every such rule shall be laid as soon as may be after it is made before each of the Chambers of the Central Legislature while it is in session, for a total period of thirty days which may be comprised in one session or in two or more sessions, and if before the expiry of that period, or where the period, for which the rule is so laid before one Chamber does not coincide with that for which it is now laid before the other, before the expiry of the later of these periods both Chambers agree in making any modification in the rule or both Chambers agree that the rule should not be made, the rule shall thereafter have effect only in such modified form or be of no effect, as the case may be.

39. The enactment specified in the [Third Schedule]¹ are hereby repealed to the extent mentioned in the fourth column thereof. But all rules made, notifications published, licences, passes or permits granted, powers conferred and other things done under any such enactment and now in force shall, so far as they are not inconsistent with this Act, be deemed to have been respectively made, published, granted, conferred or done under this Act.

Bar of suits and limitation of suits and other legal proceedings.

(2) No suit, prosecution, or other legal proceedings shall be instituted for anything done or ordered to be done under this Act after the expiration of six months from the accrual of the cause of action or from the date of the act or order complained of.

THE SCHEDULE.

THE FACTORIES ACT (XXV OF 1934).

[Am. Acts XI of 1935; VIII of 1936; XVII of 1940; Madras Act VI of 1941; Acts XVI of 1941, XIV of 1944; III of 1945; and X of 1946; and Rep. in part by Act XX of 1937].

[20th August, 1934.

An Act to consolidate and amend the Law regulating labour in factories.

WHEREAS it is expedient to consolidate and amend the Law regulating labour in factories; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

Short title, extent and commencement.

- 1. (1) This Act may be called THE FACTORIES Act, 1934.

SEC. 1: OBJECT OF THE ACT.—The object of the Act is to protect human beings from being subjected to unduly long hours of bodily strain or manual labour. It also provides that employees should work in healthy and sanitary conditions so far as the manufacturing process will allow and that precautions should be taken for their safety and for the prevention of accidents. In order to obtain the information necessary to ensure that its objects are carried out, the Local Government are empowered to appoint, inspectors, to call for returns, and to see that the prescribed registers are duly kept. This is part of the machinery which enables the authorities to maintain effective supervision, and it is undoubtedly important that there should be substantial compliance with these provisions of the Act. 38 C.W.N. 1008=152 I.C. 556=1934 C. 730 (Per McNair, J.). At the same time, it should not be forgotten that the Act is sanctioning interference with the ordinary rights of the citizen and that the inquisitorial powers which are given should be used with tact and circumspection. 38 C.W.N. 1008=152 I.C. 556=1934 C. 730.

CONSTRUCTION OF THE ACT.—The provisions of the Act have to be construed in favour of the employee and strictly in favour of the employer. 152 I.C. 556=38 C.W.N. 1008=1934 C. 730. "A law which is enacted for the benefit of the employee should not

(2) It extends to the whole of British India, including British Baluchistan and the Sonthal Parganas.

(3) It shall come into force on the 1st day of January, 1935.

2. [Cf. Old Act, section 2 and section 156, English Act.] In this Act, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context,—

(a) “adolescent” means a person who has completed his fifteenth but has not completed his seventeenth year;

(b) “adult” means a person who has completed his seventeenth year;

(c) “child” means a person who has not completed his fifteenth year;

(d) “day” means a period of twenty-four hours beginning at midnight;

(e) “week” means a period of seven days beginning at midnight on Saturday night;

be used merely for the purpose of harassing the employer. The launching of a test case in respect of an infringement of provisions which are not generally available, the meaning of which is doubtful to the authorities themselves and which the factory management honestly complied with as they understood them, asking for further enlightenment from the authorities without getting any, is to be strongly deprecated.” (Ibid.) “I am fully alive to the great importance of Factory Acts being properly enforced for the protection of workmen, and I have no doubt that in India it is particularly necessary that their beneficial provisions should be carried out. On the other hand one must also bear in mind that the employers’ position has to be considered too. It may be that without any negligence on their part defects will exist in their factories, but if they are to be proceeded against in a Criminal Court for alleged negligence then it would seem only fair that the matter should be clearly brought home to them. That I have no doubt is the reason why the Legislature has distinctly specified what the inspector has to do. Whether a particular accused in any case was negligent or not does not concern this question of general principle on the construction of the Act”. 85 I.C. 226=26 Bom. L.R. 1245=1925 B. 143=26 Cr.L.J. 492.

CRITICISM ON THE DRAFTING OF THE ACT (XII OF 1911).—“We desire to point out to the authorities concerned that it will be difficult to uphold prosecutions under many of the sections of this Act, unless they are amended, especially in cases of factories to which exemptions have been granted”. 35 C.W.N. 1108. “The Act is carelessly and loosely drawn. It seems to consist mainly of parts of the English Act taken from their context and patched together. It is a penal statute, and as such it is essential that its terms should be clear, definite and unambiguous. On the contrary, it is difficult—If not impossible for a lawyer still less a layman, to understand many of its provisions.” 35 C. W. N. 1108. “There are many provisions in the Act which are confused and ambiguous, and the rules and forms provided do not tally with the requirements of the section.

The truth seems to be that the application of the Act to special factories has never been properly thought out. Drastic redrafting amendment of this important Act seem to be required urgently”. 35 C.W.N. 1108.

APPLICATION OF THE ACT TO CROWN FACTORIES.—Crown factories had from the beginning been brought under the operation of the Act, which followed in this respect the British law on the subject. This had been another subject of discussion when the Bill was introduced, and the conclusion to which the Committee had come on full consideration was, that Crown factories should be brought within the scope of the Act, but that the power to exempt them temporarily, in cases of emergency, should be reserved to the Government. It was quite necessary that such power should be reserved in order to avoid great inconvenience and mischief. It would be sufficient to instance the case of the Mint, and of the powder and gun manufacturies in time of war, to show the necessity for such a provision. (Proceedings in Council. Fort St. George Gazette, 4th May, 1881).

Sec. 2, CL. (a): “ADOLESCENT”.—The expression used in the English Act is “young person” which expression is defined to mean a person who has ceased to be a child and is under the age of eighteen years. (English Act, sec. 156). The Indian Law fixes the age at seventeen.

CL. (b): “ADULT”.—Under the English Act, a person would be an adult only after completing his eighteenth year.

CL. (c): “CHILD”—ENGLISH ACT.—The expression “child” has been defined by the English Act as follows:—“The expression “child” means a person who is under the age of fourteen years and who has not, being of the age of thirteen years obtained the certificate of proficiency or attendance at school mentioned in Part III of this (English Act) Act” (Sec. 156).

CL. (d): “DAY”—ENGLISH LAW.—Under the English Act, the expression “night” has been defined to mean the period between nine o’clock in the evening and six o’clock in the succeeding morning (Sec. 156).

(f) "power" means electrical energy, and any other form of energy which is mechanically transmitted and is not generated by human or animal agency;

(g) "manufacturing process" means any process—

(i) for making, altering, repairing, ornamenting, finishing or packing, or otherwise treating any article or substance with a view to its use, sale, transport delivery or disposal, or

(ii) for pumping oil, water or sewage, or

(iii) for generating, transforming or transmitting power;

(h) "worker" means a person employed, whether for wages or not, in any manufacturing process, or in cleaning any part of the machinery or premises used for a manufacturing process, or in any other kind of work whatsoever incidental to or connected with the manufacturing process or connected with the subject of the manufacturing process, but does not include any person solely employed in a clerical capacity in any room or place where no manufacturing process is being carried on;

(j) "factory" means any premises including the precincts hereof whereon twenty or more workers are working, or where working on any day of the

CL. (f): "ANY OTHER FORM OF ENERGY WHICH IS MECHANICALLY TRANSMITTED".—These words must be construed ejusdem generis with electric, steam or water power and do not include hand power. [Wilmott v. Paton, (1902) 1 K.B. 237].

CL. (g): "PROCESS".—"Process" has been defined by the English Act as including the use of any locomotive (Sec. 156).

"MANUFACTURING PROCESS".—These words merely refer to the particular business carried on and do not necessarily refer to the production of some article. So that laundries, carpet beating or bottle washing works, etc., are factories within the Act if mechanical power is used [Owner v. Cottingham Sanitary Steam Laundry Co., Ltd., (1910) 74 J.P. 219; Johnstone v. Lalonde Bros. and Parhal, (1912) 2 K.B. 218. See also Royal Masonic Institution for Boys v. Parkes, (1912) 3 K.B. 212 and Patterson v. Hunt, (1909) 73 J.P. 496]. Putting ginned cotton into bales and having it pressed must be considered work connected with the manufacturing process and the men engaged in the work must be deemed to be employed in the factory. 143 I.C. 772=1933 N. 283.

CL. (h): "WORKER".—Cf. the definition of "Workmen" in the Indian Workmen's Compensation Act, Sec. 2, cl. (n).

CL. (j): "FACTORY".—The definition in this cl. (j) applies to the term "factory" used in sec. 9 (3) of Cotton Ginning and Pressing Factories Act, 1925. 1937 M.W.N. 1335. See also I.L.R. (1937) Nag. 88=1937 Nag. 311. By a factory is meant premises where anything is done towards the making or finishing of an article up to the stage when it is ready to be sold or is in a suitable condition to be put on the market. 109 I.C. 599=8 L. 666=29 P.L.R. 234=29 Cr.L.J. 583=A.I.R. 1928 L. 78. See also 1 N.L.R. 115. A factory includes everything, machine rooms, sheds, godowns, yards. If within these premises or precincts mechanical power is used in aid of any process for altering for transport or sale of any article, then these premises or precincts are a factory. 50 M. 834=1927 M. 345=52 M.L.J. 207. The drying yard used for drying groundnuts, where machinery for decorticating the groundnuts was working is a part of factory, although there is no connection with machinery or any work incidental to the manufacturing process. (Ibid.)

RAILWAY WORKSHOPS are 'factories'. 119 I.C. 722=1929 Lah. 573. A Gurhal Ghar is a 'factory', even though the engine shed is a separate building and less than twenty persons are employed therein, but over twenty persons are employed in the Gurhal Ghar inclusive of those employed on the crushers and those employed in the boiling shed, and these latter must be said to be employed both "on the premises, and within the precincts of the Gurhal Ghar". 32 Bom.L.R. 329=1930 Bom. 162=31 Cr.L.J. 1094.

TWO OR MORE BUILDINGS entirely separate from each other may in certain circumstances form part of one and the same factory. See L.C.C. and Tuffs, In re, (1903) 86 J.P. 29; Hoyle v. Gram, (1862) 12 C.B. 124.

"USE OF POWER IN PART OF BUILDING".—Every part of the premises unless specially exempted forms part of a factory, although power may only be used in one part [Taylor v. Hickes; Hardcastle v. Jones, (1862) 3 B. and S. 153; Palmer's Shipbuilding Co. v. Chaytor, (1869) 4 Q.B. 209; But see Vines v. Inglis, (1915) S.C. 18]. The definition of "factory" is intended not to cover merely individual business in any premises but is intended to denote any premises as a composite whole with a central source of power, i.e., either steam, water, or other electrical or mechanical power. 57 B. 150=35 Bom. L.R. 83=1933 Bom. 109.

"WORKPLACE" is not defined either in this Act or in the English Act, but in Bennett v. Hardinge, (1900) 2 Q.B. 397, Channel, J., said:—"I think that a workplace must be a place where some work is being perpetually preceding twelve months, and in any part of which a manufacturing process is being carried on with the aid of power, or is ordinarily so carried on, but does not include a mine subject to the operation of the Indian Mines Act, 1923;

(k) "machinery" includes all plant whereby power is generated, transformed, transmitted or applied;

(l) "occupier" of a factory means the person who has ultimate control over the affairs of the factory:

or permanently done, I do not say that the mere presence of workmen in repairing a private house would make it a workplace . . .

N.B.—"The Act mainly deals with labour employed in what may be described as perennial factories (i.e.) excluding those which deal mainly with agricultural products in the raw state, and work for part of the year only; and all those establishments which either use no mechanical power or, using power, employ less than 20 persons. These also are excluded from the definition of "factories". See Whitley Commission Rep., p. 6.

PERSONS EMPLOYED IN THE FACTORY.—A person who works in a factory, whether for wages or not, may be deemed to be employed in that factory. Where it is shown that certain persons were engaged in the factory in one of the ways specified in sec. 2 (2) [of the old Act of 1911] it must be presumed they were 'employed' in the factory. 61 Cal. 332=35 Cr.L.J. 1401=38 C. W.N. 801=1934 Cal. 546. See sec. 2, cl. (2) of the old Act, XII of 1911. Persons employed merely for selling the manufactured articles do not come within the definition of "employed" in that factory even though they happen to occupy a room at the factory for the sake of convenience. 109 I. C. 599=8 L. 666=29 P.L.R. 234=29 Cr.L.J. 583=1928 Lah. 78. It is not correct to say that the Factories Act affects only manual labourers. 152 I.C. 556=38 C.W. N. 1008=A.I.R. 1934 Cal. 730.

POWER.—See sec. 2, cl. (f), supra.

SECS. 2 (j) AND 5.—The notification of the Central Provinces Government No. 202-2644 VII, dated 17th January 1939, which declares that all places in Central Provinces, wherein manufacturing process is carried on with the aid of power and wherein on any one day of the twelve months preceding the date of the notification ten or more workers were employed, to be factories under the Factories Act is intra vires of the power given to the Provincial Government by sec. 5 (1) of the Factories Act. The notification is not universal but selective and it does not render sec. (5) (j) of the Act nugatory inasmuch as the Act applies to the whole of British India while the notification applies only to Central Provinces. 1941 N.L.J. 471=I.L.R. (1942) N. 402=A.I.R. 1941 Nag. 337.

SEC. 2 (k): ENGLISH ACT.—Under the English Act the expression "machinery" includes any driving strap or band (sec. 156).

The expression "mill-gearing" comprehends every shaft, whether upright, oblique or horizontal, and every wheel, drum or pulley or other appliance by which the motion of the first moving power is communicated to any machine appertaining to a manufacturing process. (Ibid.)

CL. (l): [See also Notes under sec. 70, infra.] "OCCUPIER".—The word "occupier" in general means a person who occupies the factory either by himself or his agent. He may be an owner, he may be a lessee or even a mere licensee, but he must have the right to occupy the property and dictate how it is to be managed. 55 B. 366=32 Cr.L.J. 1063 (1)=33 Bom.L.R. 309=1931 B. 308. See also Rat. 902. The definition of "occupier" in the Act is not an exhaustive definition and there is nothing in it which in any way limits the normal meaning of the word "occupier" as indicating a person who is in actual possession and control of a factory. 50 B. 34=27 Bom.L.R. 1405=27 Cr.L.J. 165=1926 B. 57. The word "Munim" as commonly used does connote agency, and persons dealing with the chief authority in charge of the factory where it is situated would look upon him as the agent of the owner or occupier. If there is a special contract of service or agency between him and his master, he must prove it. 19 N.L.J. 247. The word "occupier" bears the same meaning in this Act as it bears in similar enactments in England, that is a person who regulates a factory and controls the work that is done there. 20 I.C. 144=14 Cr.L.J. 384=15 Bom.L.R. 328. The question who is the occupier of a factory must depend among others, upon these considerations, namely:—Who alone has the right of using the factory for the purposes for which it is constructed and worked; who has the right of regulating and controlling it; whose is the predominant possession of and general superintendence over it. 10 Bom.L.R. 38=7 Cr.L.J. 44. The manager of a factory who resides in a part of the premises in which the factory is, is not an occupier of the factory within the meaning of the Act. 29 B. 423=7 Bom.L.R. 454; 2 Cr.L.J. 428.

OWNER'S LIABILITY.—Even if the accused, who is the owner of a factory, shows that he knows nothing about the management of the factory and that he has left the whole conduct of its affairs to a manager appointed by him for the purpose, he is not free

Provided that where the affairs of a factory are entrusted to a managing agent, such agent shall be deemed to be the occupier of the factory;

(m) where work of the same kind is carried out by two or more sets of workers working during different periods of the day, each of such sets is called a "relay," and the period or periods for which it works is called a "shift"; and

(n) "prescribed" means prescribed by rules made by the Provincial Government under this Act.

References to time of day. 3. [Cf. S. 51, Old Act.] References to time of day in this Act or references—

(2) The Provincial Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, declare any specified factory in which manufacturing processes are ordinarily carried on for not more than one hundred and eighty working days in the year and cannot be carried on except during particular seasons or at times dependent on the irregular action of natural forces, to be a seasonal factory for the purposes of this Act.

In order to fix liability on any person other than the occupier of a factory, it is incumbent upon the latter to give the strictest proof of circumstances exonerating himself, and it is plain on the face of the section that the burden of proving absence of knowledge or consent on his part lies entirely upon him. 25 C. 454.

Powers to declare departments to be separate factories.

7. Where the Provincial Government is satisfied that, following upon a change of occupier of a factory or in the manufacturing processes carried on therein, the number of workers for the time being working in the factory is less than twenty and is not likely to be twenty or more on any day during the ensuing twelve months, it may, by order in writing, exempt such factory from the operation of this Act:

Power to exempt on a change in the factory.

Provided that any exemption so granted shall cease to have effect on and after any day on which twenty or more workers work in the factory.

8. [Cf. Ss. 56 and 57, Old Act.] In any case of public emergency the ¹[Provincial Government] may, by notification in the Official Gazette, exempt any factory from any or all of the provisions of this Act for such period as he may think fit.

Power to exempt during public emergency.

SEC. 6: EXTENT OF A FACTORY.—Subject to certain specified exceptions the area of the factory or workshop is the whole space contained within its walls. "In the case of factories.....etc., the walls or fences built around the factory.....fix the boundaries and determine the area." Back v. Dick, (1906) A.C. 325, per Lord Atkinson, at p. 334.

MORE THAN ONE FACTORY IN A SINGLE BUILDING.—More than one factory or workshop may be contained in a single building or group of buildings; and different parts of the same building may constitute separate factories or workshops. (See 14 Hals. Laws of England, pp. 559-570.) "I cannot help thinking that we should be in great difficulties if we were to hold that the mere fact of one factory overlapping another caused them to be within the same curtilage." Per Kennedy, J., in Brass v. London County Council, (1924) 2 K.B. 336. In Vines v. Inglis, (1915) S.C. (J.) 18; 24 Digest 902 (b), a building consisted of a retail shop on the ground floor a millinery room in which no mechanical power was used on the next floor, and a non-textile factory for dress-making on the top floor, in which mechanical power was used, but not in respect of the millinery work. It was held that the millinery room was not a factory. A part of a factory may, under circumstances, be declared for the purposes of the Act to be a separate factory or workshop. [English Facories Act, 1901, sec. 149, cl. (2).] Different branches or departments of work carried on in the same factory or workshop shall, for all or any of the purposes of the Act, be treated as if they were different factories or workshops. (English Factories Act, 1901, sec. 150).

SEPARATE BUILDINGS CONSTITUTING SAME FACTORY.—Separate buildings, even though, a considerable distance apart, may, if used for one continuous manufacturing process, constitute a single factory or workshop. [English Factories Act, 1901, sec. 149, cl. (4).] The place where the product of a factory is delivered, even if directly connected with the place of production, is not necessarily a part of the factory. Spacey v. Dowlais, (1905) 2 K.B. 879 (C.A.).

ROOMS USED SOLELY FOR SLEEPING PURPOSES.—Rooms used solely for sleeping purposes and places within the precincts of a factory solely used for some purpose other than the manufacturing process are excluded from the operation of the Factories Act, [English Factories Act, 1901, sec. 149, cl. (4). Lewis v. Gilberston, (1904) 91 L.T. 377.]

SEC. 7: STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.—"This is a new clause designed to enable the Local Government to exempt from the Act premises which by reason of a change in their use should no longer be treated as factories."

SEC. 8: STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.—Exceptional power given under this section is intended only for a serious general emergency such as might be caused by a war.

9. [Cf. S. 33, Old Act.] (1) Before work is begun in any factory after the commencement of this Act, or before work is begun in any seasonal factory each season, the occupier shall send to the Inspector a written notice containing—

(a) the name of the factory and its situation,
 (b) the address to which communications relating to the factory should be sent,
 (c) the nature of the manufacturing processes to be carried on in the factory,

(d) the nature and the amount of the power to be used, [* *]¹

(e) the name of the person who shall be the manager of the factory for the purposes of this Act,

(f) such other particulars as may be prescribed for the purposes of this Act.]

(2) Whenever another person is appointed as manager, the occupier shall send to the Inspector a written notice of the change, within seven days from the date on which the new manager assumes charge.

(3) During any period for which no person has been designated as manager of a factory under this section, or during which the person designated does not manage the factory, any person found acting as manager, or, if no such person is found, the occupier himself, shall be deemed to be the manager of the factory for the purposes of this Act.

CHAPTER II.

THE INSPECTING STAFF.

10. [Cf. S. 4, Old Act.] (1) The Provincial Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, appoint such persons as it thinks fit to be Inspectors for the purposes of this Act within such local limits as it may assign to them respectively.

(2) The Provincial Government may, by notification as aforesaid, appoint any person to be a Chief Inspector, who shall, in addition to the powers conferred on a Chief Inspector under this Act, exercise the powers of an Inspector throughout the province.

(3) No person shall be appointed to be an inspector under sub-section (1) or a Chief Inspector, under sub-section (2) or, having been so appointed, shall continue to hold office, who is or becomes directly or indirectly interested in a factory or in any process or business carried on therein or in any patent or machinery connected therewith.

(4) Every District Magistrate shall be an Inspector for his district.

(5) The Provincial Government may also, by notification as aforesaid, appoint such public officers as it thinks fit to be additional Inspectors for all or any of the purposes of this Act, within such local limits as it may assign to them respectively.

(6) In any area where there are more Inspectors than one, the Provincial Government may, by notification as aforesaid, declare the powers which such Inspectors shall respectively exercise, and the Inspector to whom the prescribed notices are to be sent.

(7) Every Chief Inspector and Inspector shall be deemed to be a public servant within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code and shall be officially subordinate to such authority as the Provincial Government may specify in this behalf.

LEG. REF.

¹ The word "and" omitted and cl. (f)

11. [Cf. S. 5, Old Act.] Subject to any rules made by the Provincial Government in this behalf, an Inspector may, within the local limits for which he is appointed,—

(a) enter, with such assistants (if any), being persons in the ¹[service of the Crown] or of any municipal or other public authority, as he thinks fit, any place which is, or which he has reason to believe to be, used as a factory or capable of being declared to be a factory under the provisions of section 5;

(b) make such examination of the premises and plant and of any prescribed registers, and take on the spot or otherwise such evidence of any persons, as he may deem necessary for carrying out the purposes of this Act; and

(c) exercise such other powers as may be necessary for carrying out the purposes of this Act:

Provided that no one shall be required under this section to answer any question or give any evidence tending to criminate himself.

12. [Cf. Ss. 6 to 8, Old Act.] (1) The Provincial Government may appoint such registered medical practitioners as it thinks fit to be certifying surgeons for the purposes of this Act within such local limits as it may assign to them respectively.

(2) A certifying surgeon may authorise any registered medical practitioner to exercise any of his powers under this Act:

Provided that a certificate of fitness for employment granted by such authorized practitioner shall be valid for a period of three months only, unless it is confirmed by the certifying surgeon himself after examination of the person concerned.

Explanation.—In this section a “registered medical practitioner” means any person registered under the Medical Act, 1858, or any subsequent enactment amending it, or under any Act of any legislature in British India providing for the maintenance of a register of medical practitioners, and includes, in any area where no such register is maintained, any person declared by the Provincial Government, by notification in the Official Gazette, to be a registered medical practitioner for the purposes of this section.

CHAPTER III.

HEALTH AND SAFETY.

13. [Cf. Ss. 9 (a) and 37 (2) (e), Old Act and S. 1, English Act.] Every factory shall be kept clean and free from effluvia arising from any drain, privy or other nuisance, and shall be cleansed at such times and by such methods as may be prescribed, and these methods may include lime-washing, or colour-washing, painting, varnishing, disinfecting and deodorising.

14. [Cf. Ss. 9 (c), 10 and 37 (2) (e), Old Act and Ss. 1, 7 and 74, English Act.] (1) Every factory shall be ventilated in accordance with such standards and by such methods as may be prescribed.

(2) Where gas, dust or other impurity is generated in the course of work, adequate measures shall be taken to prevent injury to the health of workers.

(3) If it appears to the Inspector that in any factory gas, dust or other impurity generated in the course of work is being inhaled by the workers to an injurious extent, and that such generation or inhalation could be prevented by the use of mechanical or other devices, he may serve on the manager of the factory an order in writing, directing that mechanical or other devices for prevent-

(4) The Provincial Government may make rules for any class of factories requiring mechanical or other devices to be provided and maintained for preventing the generation or inhalation of gas, dust or other impurities, which may be injurious to workers and specifying the nature of such devices.

15. [Cf. Ss. 9 (d), 12 and 37 (2) (g), Old Artificial humidification. Act and Ss. 90-96, English Act.] (1) The Provincial Government may make rules—

(a) prescribing standards for the cooling properties of the air in factories in which the humidity of the air is artificially increased;

(b) regulating the methods used for artificially increasing the humidity of the air; and

(c) directing prescribed tests for determining the humidity and cooling properties of the air to be carried out and recorded.

(2) In any factory in which the humidity of the air is artificially increased, the water used for the purpose shall be taken from a public supply or other source of drinking water, or shall be effectively purified before it is so used.

(3) If it appears to the Inspector that the water used in a factory for increasing humidity which is required to be effectively purified under subsection (2) is not effectively purified, he may serve on the manager of the factory an order in writing, specifying the measures which in his opinion should be adopted, and requiring them to be carried out before a specified date.

16. [Cf. S. 6, English Act] If it appears to the Chief Inspector or to an Inspector specially authorized in this behalf by the Provincial Government that the cooling properties of the air in any factory are at times insufficient to secure workers against injury to health or against serious discomfort, and that they can be to a great extent unreasonable in the circumstances, the Chief Inspector may serve on the manager of the factory an order in writing, specifying the measures which in his opinion should be adopted, and requiring them to be carried out before a specified date.

17. [Cf. Ss. 1 and 3, English Act and Ss. 9 (b) and 37 (2) (f), Old Act.] Overcrowding. In order that no room in a factory shall be crowded during working hours to a dangerous extent or to an extent which may be injurious to the health of the workers, the proportion which the number of cubic feet of space in a room and the number of superficial feet of its floor area bears to the number of workers working at any time therein shall not be less than such standards as may be prescribed either generally or for the particular class of work carried on in the room.

18. [Cf. S. 11, Old Act.] (1) A factory shall Lighting. be sufficiently lighted during all working hours.

(2) If it appears to the Inspector that any factory is not sufficiently lighted, he may serve on the manager of the factory an order in writing, speci-

19. [Cf. S. 75, English Act and Ss. 14 and 37 (2) (i), Old Act.] (1) In every factory a sufficient supply of water fit for drinking shall be provided for the workers at suitable places.

(2) The supply required by sub-section (1) shall comply with such standards as may be prescribed.

(3) In every factory ¹[* * *] a sufficient supply of water suitable for washing shall be provided for the use of workers, at suitable places and with facilities for its use, according to such standards as may be prescribed.

20. [Cf. S. 9, English Act and Ss. 13 and 37 (2) (h), Old Act.] For every factory sufficient latrines and urinals, according to the prescribed standards, shall be provided, for male workers and for female workers separately, of suitable patterns and at convenient places as prescribed, and shall be kept in a clean and sanitary condition during all working hours.

21. [Cf. S. 16, English Act and S. 15, Old Act.] In every factory the doors of each room in which more than twenty persons are employed shall, except in the case of sliding doors, be constructed so as to open outwards, or, where the door is between two rooms, in the direction of the nearest exit from the building, and no such door shall be locked or obstructed while any work is being carried on in the room.

22. [Cf. Ss. 16, 17 and 37 (2), Old Act.] In every factory such precautions against fire shall be taken as may be prescribed.

old sec. 9 (b) and sec. 37 (2) (f) with an addition enabling the Local Government to prescribe standards of floor space.

SEC. 18: STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.—Sub-cl. (1) and (2) reproduce the substance of old sec. 11. In sub-cl. (3) it is proposed to enable the Local Governments to prescribe standards of lighting by rule for particular classes of factories.

SEC. 19: STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.—Sub-cl. (1) combines old secs. 14 and 37 (2) (i); sub-cl. (2) is new and is based on a recommendation of Labour Commission. The change made by the Select Committee is designed to ensure that drinking water is supplied whether standards are prescribed or not.

SECS. 22 AND 23.—The expression "precautions against fire" in sec. 22 of the Factories Act mean precautions against the occurrence or outbreak of fire and would not cover precautions against the consequences of fire. Sec. 23 deals expressly with precautions against the consequences of fire by providing means of escape. Reading the two secs. 22 and 23 together, the intention of the legislature is that in the case of precautions against the occurrence of fire, the matter should be dealt with by rules which would govern all factories, but that in dealing with precautions against the consequences of fire, it was recognised that all factories could not be dealt with in like manner, and sec. 23 therefore contains a general provision that provision shall be made for such means of escape as can be reasonably required in the circumstances of each factory, and then leaves it to the Inspector to determine whether such precautions have been taken, and if he thinks that the necessary provisions have not been made, he is given power to serve on the manager of a factory a notice, breach of which would amount to an offence under sec. 60 (a) (iii) of the Factories Act. There is no power under sec. 22 to make general rules covering the subject of means of escape against fire which is dealt with by sec. 23; and sec. 22 is not to be enforced by means of rules. R. 37 of the rules under the Act is therefore ultra vires, as it deals with a matter which does not fall under sec. 22 or under sec. 32, which is the rule-making section, but deals with a matter falling under sec. 23 which does not enable rules to be made. Breach

23. [Cf. S. 16, Old Act and S. 14, English Act.] (1) Every factory shall be provided with such means of escape in the face of fire [as may be prescribed.]¹

Means of escape.

(2) If it appears to the Inspector that any factory is not so provided, he may serve on the manager of the factory an order in writing, specifying the measures which in his opinion should be adopted, and requiring them to be carried out before a specified date.

(3) The means of escape shall not be obstructed while any work is being carried on in the factory.

24. [Cf. S. 10, English Act and S. 18, Old Act.]

Fencing.

(1) In every factory the following shall be kept adequately fenced, namely:—

(a) every exposed moving part of a prime mover and every flywheel directly connected to a prime mover;

(b) every hoist or lift, hoist-well, or lift-well, and every trap-door or similar opening near which any person may have to work or pass; and

(c) every part of the machinery which the Provincial Government may prescribe.

(2) If it appears to the Inspector that any other part of the machinery in a factory is dangerous if not adequately fenced, he may serve on the manager of the factory an order in writing, specifying the measures which in his opinion should be adopted, and requiring them to be carried out before a specified date.

(3) All fencing required by or under this section or under sub-section (1) of section 26 shall be maintained in an efficient state at all times when the workers have access to the parts required to be fenced except where they are under repair or are under examination in connexion with repair or are necessarily exposed for the purpose of cleaning or lubricating or altering the gearing or arrangements of the machinery.

SEC. 23: ENGLISH LAW—FIRE.—Factories and workshops are to be furnished with a certificate that they are provided with such means of escape in case of fire as can reasonably be required. It is the duty of the district council to ascertain whether factories and workshops are provided with such means of escape from fire and where necessary to require its provision. The County Court has jurisdiction, on application, to apportion the cost of complying with the requirement between the owner and the occupier of the factory or workshop in a just and equitable manner (sec. 14). See Monk v. Arnold, (1902) 1 K.B. 761; Horner v. Franklin, (1904) 2 K.B. 877; (1905) 1 K.B. 479 [Sec. 14, English Factory and Workshop Act (1901)].

SEC. 24: REPORT OF SELECT COMMITTEE.—Sub-cl. (3) has been expanded so as to apply to any fencing which may be required in pursuance of an order under sec. 26 (1) and to make it clear that fencing may be removed for necessary attention to machinery.

SAFETY PROVISIONS IN ENGLISH LAW.—The

Act contains many provisions for securing the safety of the persons employed and also of the public. Thus, it is provided that in every factory every hoist or teagle and every fly-wheel directly connected with the steam, or water, or other mechanical power, whether in the engine house or not, and every part of any water-wheel or engine worked by such power, must be securely fenced. Every wheel-race not otherwise secured must be securely fenced close to the edge. All dangerous parts of the machinery must either be securely fenced or be in such position or of such construction as to be equally safe to every person as they would be if securely fenced. The fencing is to be maintained in an efficient state. [As to the extent of obligation to fence, see Redgrave v. Lloyd, (1895) 1 Q.B. 876 and Hindle v. Birtwistle, (1897) 1 Q.B. 192. See also sec. 10, English Factory and Workshop Act (1901) and Rules.]

The fact that the machinery is so situated that there is little or no danger of accidents happening is no justification for not carrying out the requirements of a statute as to fencing [see Doel v. Shepherd, (1856) 25 L.J.Q.B. 124]; but it is only necessary to keep up the fence when the parts required to be fenced are in motion for some manufacturing process. [Coe v. Platt, (1851) 6 Ex. 252]; but the obligation to fence machinery is absolute [Watkins v. Naval

(4) Such further provisions as may be prescribed shall be made for the protection from danger of persons employed in attending to the machinery in a factory.

25. [Cf. Ss. 17-19, English Act.] If it appears to the Inspector that any building or part of a building, or any part of the ways, machinery or plant in a factory is in such a condition that it may be dangerous to human life or safety, he may serve on the manager of the factory, an order in writing requiring him before a specified date—

Power to require specifications of defective parts or tests of stability.

(a) to furnish such drawings, specifications and other particulars as may be necessary to determine whether such building, ways, machinery or plant can be used with safety, or

(b) to carry out such tests as may be necessary to determine the strength or quality of any specified parts and to inform the Inspector of the results thereof.

26. [Cf. Ss. 17 to 19, English Act and 18-A, Old Act.] (1) If it appears to the Inspector that any building or part of a building or any part of the ways, machinery or plant in a factory is in such a condition that it is dangerous to human life or safety, he may serve on the manager of the factory an order in writing specifying the measures which in his opinion should be adopted, and requiring them to be carried out before a specified date.

(2) If it appears to the Inspector that the use of any building or part of a building or of any part of the ways, machinery or plant in a factory involves imminent danger to human life or safety, he may serve on the manager of the factory an order in writing prohibiting its use until it has been properly repaired or altered.

27. [Cf. S. 13, English Act.] (1) No woman or child shall be allowed to clean or oil any part of the machinery of a factory while that part is in motion under power or to work between moving parts or between fixed and moving parts of any machinery which is in motion under power.

Colliery Co., (1921) A.C. 693; Purcell v. Talbot (Clement), Ltd., (1914) 79 J.P. 1] and is unaffected by the fact that, with regard to some particular machine, it may be commercially impracticable or mechanically impossible to fence it securely [Davies v. Owen (Thomas) & Co., (1919) 2 K.B. 39. See also Jackson v. Milliner Motor Body & Co., (1911) 1 K.B. 546.]

Moreover, the defence of common employment is not applicable where the injury has been caused by the neglect of the employer to carry out his statutory obligations to fence his machinery (Britton v. G.W.R., 7 Ex. 130) nor where the employer has failed to maintain or repair the fencing for his machinery [Holmes v. Clarke, (1862) 31 L.J. Ex. 356; Groves v. Wimborne (Lord), (1898) 2 Q.B. 402], and in fact that the statute imposes a penalty for omission to fence does not bar an action for damages by the workman. (Ibid.) Sub-sec. (2) includes all machinery in a factory and it is for the Court to say if it is dangerous. [Redgrave v. Lloyd, (1895) 1 Q.B. 876.]

Machinery is dangerous if in the ordinary course of human affairs danger may reasonably be anticipated from the use of it without protection. [Hindle v. Birtwistle, (1897) 1 Q.B. 192.] See Encyclopaedia of the Laws of England, 2nd Ed., Title "Factories."

The numerous provisions in the Procedure Code for service of notices or orders are intended to make it certain that a particular process or an order of the Court is brought to the specific notice of the individual affected. A mere knowledge that proceedings may be instituted or something of that sort is not sufficient to take the place of the imperative directions in the Code as to service on the actual individual. The words in sec. 18 (2) "serve on the Manager an order in writing" mean that such an order as is referred to in Form O should be served definitely on the manager of the factory and that it should specify exactly what measures the manager is to take in order to remove the danger. But a mere note of a visit is not such an order as is contemplated therein. 85 I.C. 226=26 Bom. L.R. 1245=26 Cr.L.J. 482=1925 Bom. 143. As to the necessity for order or notice by Inspector, see 12 Bom.L.R. 225.

SEC. 27: STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.—This is based on old sec. 19; but it

(2) The Provincial Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, prohibit, in any specified factory or class of factories, the cleaning or oiling by any person of specified parts of machinery when these parts are in motion under power.

28. [Cf. Ss. 76 to 78, English Act and S. 19-A, Old Act.] (1) The Provincial Government may make rules prohibiting the admission to any specified class of factories, or to specified parts thereof, of children who cannot be lawfully employed therein.

(2) If it appears to the Inspector that the presence in any factory or part of a factory of children who cannot be lawfully employed therein may be dangerous to them or injurious to their health, he may serve on the manager of the factory an order in writing directing him to prevent the admission of such children to the factory or any part of it.

29. [Cf. S. 20, Old Act and S. 24, English Act.] No woman or child shall be employed in any part of a factory for pressing cotton in which a cotton-opener is at work:

Provided that, if the feed-end of a cotton-opener is in a room separated from the delivery end by a partition extending to the roof, or to such height as the Inspector may in any particular case specify in writing, women and children may be employed on the side of the partition where the feed-end is situated.

30. [Cf. S. 34, Old Act and Ss. 19-22, English Act.] Where in any factory an accident occurs which causes death, or which causes any bodily injury whereby any person injured is prevented from resuming his work in the factory during the forty-eight hours after the accident occurred, or which is of any is proposed to extend to the oiling of machinery the prohibition which at present applies to the cleaning of machinery and to extend it to work done between moving parts as well as between fixed and moving parts. As to what is cleaning machinery, see Taylor v. Mark, (1911) 1 K.B. 145.

SEC. 28: STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.—Sub-cl. (2) reproduces the substance of old sec. 19-A. In sub-cl. (1) it is proposed to give the Local Governments general powers to exclude non-working children with a view to their protection.

ENGLISH LAW.—A child is not allowed to clean, in a factory, any part of any machinery, or any place under any machinery other than overhead mill-gearing, while it is in motion by the aid of steam, water or other mechanical power. A young person is not allowed to clean any dangerous part of machinery while it is so in motion. Neither a woman nor a young person is allowed to clean mill gearing machinery when in motion. [Sec. 13, English Factory and Workshop Act, 1901; Pearson v. Belgian Mills Co., (1896) 1 Q.B. 244.] A young person employed in a mill oiled part of the machinery during meal times, contrary to orders and for his own amusement. The occupier of the mill was held to have committed an offence. [Prior v. Slaithewait Spinning Co., (1898) 1 Q.B. 881. But see Robinson v. Melville, (1890) 17 R. 62. See also Graves v. Duncan, (1899) 1 F. 72.]

SEC. 29.—The provisions of the section are not fulfilled if there is a door made in a partition between the two portions of the room and that door is shown to be open at a particular time, or even although it is shut, yet it is not locked or other effective means taken to prevent its being opened by a woman or child wishing to get into the press room or prohibited area. 94 I.C. 949=50 B. 34=27 Bom.L.R. 1405=27 Cr.L.J. 165=1926 Bom. 57.

SEC. 30: "PERSONS" INCLUDES PLURAL—SINGLE ACCIDENT—SEVERAL INJURED—FAILURE TO NOTIFY—SINGLE OFFENCE.—The word "person" includes the plural and consequently where as a result of a single accident more persons than one are injured the accident cannot be split up into as many persons injured and the notice contemplated is single notice of the accident which the manager is required to submit to the authorities and therefore contravention of this rule is one offence which cannot in its turn be split up into as many offences as the number of casualties. 31 Cr.L.J. 569=125 I.C. 380=1930 Lah. 658. The duty to inform the authority under the Factories Act under sec. 34 is laid on the manager. It is therefore primarily the manager who is to be supposed to have contravened this provision of the Act, but both the occupier and manager are made responsible jointly and severally for this contravention. A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 658.

nature which may be prescribed in this behalf, the manager of the factory shall send notice thereof to such authorities, and in such form and within such time as may be prescribed.

31. [Cf. S. 50, Old Act.] (1) The manager of a factory on whom an order in writing by an Inspector has been served under the provisions of this Chapter, or the occupier of the factory, may, within thirty days of the service of the order, appeal against it to the Provincial Government, or to such authority as the Provincial Government may appoint in this behalf; and the Provincial Government or appointed authority may, subject to rules made in this behalf by the Provincial Government, confirm, modify or reverse the order.

(2) The appellate authority may, and if so required in the petition or appeal shall, hear the appeal with the aid of assessors one of whom shall be appointed by the appellate authority and the other by such body representing the industry concerned as the Provincial Government may prescribe in this behalf:

Provided that if no assessor is appointed by such body, or if the assessor so appointed fails to attend at the time and place fixed for hearing the appeal, the appellate authority may, unless satisfied that the failure to attend is due to sufficient cause, proceed to hear the appeal without the aid of such assessor, or if it thinks fit, without the aid of any assessor.

(3) In the case of an appeal against an order under section 16 the appellate authority shall, and in any other case except an appeal against an order under sub-section (2) of section 26 or sub-section (2) of section 28 the appellate authority may, suspend the order appealed against pending the decision of the appeal, subject however to such conditions as to partial compliance or the adoption of temporary measures as it may choose to impose in any case.

Power of Provincial Government to make rules to supplement this Chapter.

32. The Provincial Government may make rules—

(a) providing for any matter which, according to any of the provisions of this Chapter, is or may be prescribed;

(b) requiring the managers of factories to maintain stores of first-aid appliances and provide for their proper custody;

(c) providing against danger arising from the use of mechanical transport in factories, other than railways subject to the Indian Railways Act, 1890;

(d) prescribing the manner of the service of orders under this Chapter on managers of factories;

(e) regulating the procedure to be followed in presenting and hearing appeals under section 31, and the appointment and remuneration of assessors;

(f) regulating the exercise by Inspectors of their powers under this Chapter; and

(g) providing for any other matter which may be expedient in order to give effect to the provisions of this Chapter.

SEC. 32 (g).—R. 55 of the Bombay Factory Rules, 1935, is not ultra vires. 45 Cr. L.J. 761=46 Bom.L.R. 455=A.I.R. 1944 Bom. 250.

MANAGER'S ABSENCE FROM DUTY NOT NOTIFIED—LIABILITY FOR INFRINGEMENT.—Where the person, who is charged with offences under the Factories Act, was absent from his duties as manager at the time when the alleged infringements of the Act took place, he cannot be prosecuted for infringements of the Act which took place during his absence although the absence was not notified to the authorities as required by law, for which non-compliance the occupier could be held liable. 152 I.C. 506=38 C.W.N. 1008 =A.I.R. 1934 Cal. 730.

33. [Cf. Ss. 73-79, English Act.] (1) The Provincial Government may make rules requiring that in any specified factory, wherein more than one hundred and fifty workers are ordinarily employed, an adequate shelter shall be provided for the use of workers during periods of rest, and such rules may prescribe the standards of such shelters.

Additional power to make health and safety rules relating to—shelters during rest,— rooms for children,—

(2) The Provincial Government may also make rules—

(a) requiring that in any specified factory, wherein more than fifty women workers are ordinarily employed, a suitable room shall be reserved for the use of children under the age of six years belonging to such women, and

(b) prescribing the standards for such rooms and the nature of the supervision to be exercised over the children therein.

(3) The Provincial Government may also make rules, for any class of certificates of stability,— factories and for the whole or any part of the province, requiring that work on a manufacturing process carried on with the aid of power shall not be begun in any building or part of a building erected or taken into use as a factory after the commencement of this Act, until a certificate of stability in the prescribed form, signed by a person possessing the prescribed qualifications, has been sent to the Inspector.

(4) Where the ²[Provincial Government] is satisfied that any operation in a factory exposes any persons employed upon it to hazardous operations. a serious risk of bodily injury; poisoning or disease, he may make rules applicable to any factory or class of factories in which the operation is carried on—

(a) specifying the operation and declaring it to be hazardous,

(b) prohibiting or restricting the employment of women, adolescents or children upon the operation,

(c) providing for the medical examination of persons employed or seeking to be employed upon the operation and prohibiting the employment of persons not certified as fit for such employment, and

(d) providing for the protection of all persons employed upon the operation or in the vicinity of the places where it is carried on.

RESTRICTIONS ON WORKING HOURS OF ADULTS.

34. [Cf. Old section 27.] No adult worker shall be allowed to work in a factory for more than ²[forty-eight] hours in any week, or, where the factory is a seasonal one, for more than ²[fifty] hours in any week:

Provided that an adult worker in a non-seasonal factory engaged in work which for technical reasons must be continuous throughout the day may work for fifty-six hours in any week.

Weekly holiday.

35. [Cf. Old section 22.] (1) No adult worker shall be allowed to work in a factory on a Sunday unless—

(a) he has had or will have a holiday for a whole day on one of the three days immediately before or after that Sunday, and

(b) the manager of the factory has, before that Sunday or the substituted day, whichever is earlier,—

(i) delivered a notice to the office of the Inspector of his intention to require the worker to work on the Sunday and of the day which is to be substituted, and

(ii) displayed a notice to that effect in the factory:

Provided that no substitution shall be made which will result in any worker working for more than ten days consecutively without a holiday for a whole day.

(2) Notices given under sub-section (1) may be cancelled by a notice delivered to the office of the Inspector and a notice displayed in the factory not later than the day before the Sunday or the holiday to be cancelled, whichever is earlier.

(3) where, in accordance with the provisions of sub-section (1), any worker works on a Sunday and has had a holiday on one of the three days immediately, before it, that Sunday shall, for the purpose of calculating his weekly hours of work, be included in the preceding week.

(a) so that no period shall exceed six hours, and so that no worker shall work for more than six hours before he has had an interval for rest of at least one hour;

(b) so that no period shall exceed five hours and so that no worker shall work for more than five hours before he has had an interval for rest of at least half an hour, or for more than eight and a half hours before he has had at least two such intervals.

SEC. 39.—Sec. 39 (1) of the Act and R. 70 require that a notice of periods of work for adults in English and in the language of the majority of the workers shall be affixed at the main entrance of the factory. OBJECT OF THE SECTION.—The main object of the section is not to ensure that the manager and no one else should fix the hours but that the hours should be fixed and regular hours of employment are to be fixed; they are not to be subject to sudden or casual alteration at any one's discretion or caprice. 58 Bom. 137=35 Cr.L.J. 542=35 Bom.L.R. 1167=1934 Bom. 43.

In order to prevent the evasion of the Act, it is proposed to provide that changes should be notified to the Inspector before they are made, and that his previous sanction should be required if a change has to be made within a week of the previous change.

REPORT OF SELECT COMMITTEE.—We have re-drafted and re-arranged the provisions contained in cls. 40 and 41 of the Bill (secs. 39 and 40 of this Act) as introduced with a view to expressing more clearly the intention of those clauses. The latter part of sub-cl. (4), cl. 39, formerly sub-cl. (3) of cl. 40,

(7) Where any group is to work on a system of shifts and the relays are to be subject to predetermined periodical changes of shifts, the manager of the factory shall draw up a scheme of shifts whereunder the periods within which any relay of the group may be required to work and the relay which will be working at any time of the day shall be known for any day.

(8) The Provincial Government may make rules prescribing forms of the Notice of Periods for Work for Adults and the manner in which it shall be maintained.

40. [Cf. Old Act, section 36.] (1) A copy of the Notice referred to in sub-section (1) of section 39 shall be sent in duplicate to the Inspector within fourteen days after the commencement of this Act, or, if the factory begins work after the commencement of this Act, before the day on which it begins work.

(2) Any proposed change in the system of work in a factory which will necessitate a change in the Notice shall be notified to the Inspector in duplicate before the change is made, and except with the previous sanction of the Inspector, no such change shall be made until one week has elapsed since the last change.

41. [Cf. Old Act, sections 35 and 37 (2).] (1) The manager of every factory shall maintain a Register of Adult Workers showing—

- (a) the name of each adult worker in the factory;
- (b) the nature of his work;
- (c) the group, if any, in which he is included;
- (d) where his group works on shifts, the relay to which he is allotted; and
- (e) such other particulars as may be prescribed:

Provided that, if the Inspector is of opinion that any muster roll or register maintained as part of the routine of a factory gives in respect of any or all of the workers in the factory the particulars required under this section he may, by order in writing, direct that such muster roll or register shall to the corresponding extent be maintained in place of and be treated as the Register of Adult Workers in that factory:

Provided further that, where the Provincial Government is satisfied that the conditions of work in any factory or class of factories are such that there is has been omitted as not relevant to the preparation of the notice, and as covered by the provisions of cl. 41.

SECS. 39, 42 AND 60.—Failure to comply with old sec. 36 would not in itself amount to a breach of the provisions of this section or justify the conviction under sec. 60. 58 B. 137=35 Cr.L.J. 542=35 Bom.L.R. 1167 1934 B. 43. A factory which is exempt from the provisions of sec. 37 under the rules framed under sec. 43 (2) (d) cannot be held to be exempt also from the provisions of secs. 39 and 40. Therefore where there is a breach of the provisions of sec. 42 read with sec. 39, the fact that under the rules the factory is exempt from the provisions of sec. 37 does not afford any defence to a prosecution under sec. 60 (b) (i). I. L. R. (1937) Bom. 175=38 Bom.L.R. 1181=38 Cr.L.J. 304=A.I.R. 1937 Bom. 52.

POWER OF CHANGING WORKING HOURS CANNOT BE EXERCISED BY MANAGER AFTER MILL STARTS WORKING.—The manager and he alone can change the working hours on complying with the conditions stated in old sec. 36 (3) of the Act, but that power of change cannot be exercised by the manager after the mill starts working on the period fixed by him. Any change subsequently made therein could not be covered by the change in the standing orders as contemplated by sec. 36 (3), but would be an unauthorised departure from the fixed period on a particular day. Although the hours fixed on the night in question were 12-30 A.M. to 5-30 A.M., the mills stopped working for about 15 minutes on account of a break-down and the manager extended the closing hour to 5-45 A.M., and issued an order to that effect and informed the workmen and the Inspector of Factories of that change and its reason, held, that the accused must be convicted under old sec. 41 (now sec. 60). 58 Bom. 137=35 Cr.L.J. 542=35 Bom.L.R. 1167=1934 B. 43.

SEC. 41.—The section is mandatory, and it makes the position clear that in the absence of an order by the Inspector, one register in a prescribed form of all persons employed and of the hours and nature of their employments must be kept. It cannot be supplemented by a time-sheet. 152 I.C. 566=38 C.W.N. 1008=1934 C. 730. See also 1942 N.L.J. 518 cited under sec. 60.

no appreciable risk of contravention of the provisions of this Chapter in the case of that factory or factories of that class, as the case may be, the Provincial Government may, by written order, exempt, on such conditions as it may impose, that factory or all factories of that class, as the case may be, from the provisions of this section.

(2) The Provincial Government may make rules prescribing the form of the Register of Adult Workers, the manner in which it shall be maintained and the period for which it shall be preserved.

42. [Cf. section 26.] No adult worker shall be allowed to work otherwise than in accordance with the Notice of Periods for Work for Adults displayed under sub-section (1) of section 39 and the entries made beforehand against his name in the Register of Adult Workers maintained under section 41.

Hours of work to correspond with notice under section 39 and Register under section 41.

43. [Cf. Old Act, sections 29, 30, 32 and 32-A.] (1) The Provincial Government may make rules defining persons, who hold positions of supervision or management or are employed in a confidential position in a factory, and the provisions of this Chapter¹ [other than the provisions of clause (b) of sub-section (1) of section 45 and the provisos to that sub-section] shall not apply to any person so defined.

Power to make rules exempting from restrictions.

(2) The Provincial Government may make rules for adult workers providing for the exemption, to such extent and subject to such conditions as may be prescribed in such rules,—

(a) of workers engaged on urgent repairs—from the provisions of sections 34, 35, 36, 37 and 38;

(b) of workers engaged in work in the nature of preparatory or complementary work which must necessarily be carried on outside the limits laid down for the general working of the factory—from the provisions of sections, 34, 36, 37 and 38;

(c) of workers engaged in work which is necessarily so intermittent that the intervals during which they do not work while on duty ordinarily amount to more than the intervals for rest required under section 37—from the provisions of sections 34, 36, 37 and 38;

(d) of workers engaged in any work which for technical reasons must be carried on continuously throughout the day—from the provisions of sections 34, 35, 36, 37 and 38;

LEG. REF.

SEC. 42: REPORT OF THE SELECT COMMITTEE.—“The prohibition contained in this clause was contained by implication in cl. 60 of the Bill as introduced. We have inserted it explicitly in this new clause, and in cl. 57, the analogous clause relating to children, with a view to the simplification of cl. 60 relating to penalties”. It is no defence to a breach of the provisions of this section, that the factory has been exempted from the provisions of sec. 37 under rules framed under sec. 43 (2) (d). I.L.R. (1937) Bom. 175 = 38 Cr.L.J. 304 = 38 Bom.L.R. 1181 = A.I.R. 1937 Bom. 52. See also 1938 N.L.J. 217 = 1938 Nag. 406 = I.L.R. (1940) Nag. 257.

SEC. 43 (2) (d).—Exemption of a factory from provisions of sec. 37, under rules made under this clause, does not operate as exemption under secs. 39 and 40 also. Where, therefore, several hands are found working at a time shown as period of rest in the notice displayed under sec. 39 (1), there is clear breach of terms of sec. 42, and an offence under sec. 60 (b) (i) is committed. Exemption from provisions of sec. 37 is no valid defence. I.L.R. 1937 Bom. 175 = 38 Bom.L.R. 1181 = 38 Cr.L.J. 304 = 1937 Bom. 52. The provisions of r. 112 (c) (5) (1) and r. 112 (c) (5) (iii) are not alternative in the sense that if the provisions of sub-r. 5 (iii) are observed it is not necessary to observe the requirements of sub-r. 5 (1) of r. 112 (c) of Bihar and Orissa Factory Rules framed under sec. 43 of the Factories Act. The word “or” occurring between one sub-clause and another in r. 112 (c) cannot be interpreted in such a way as to make the sub-rules alternative. 1938 P.W.N. 903 = 40 Cr.L.J. 160 = A.I.R. 1939 Pat. 163.

(e) of workers engaged in making or supplying articles of prime necessity which must be made or supplied every day—from the provisions of section 35;

(f) of workers engaged in a manufacturing process which cannot be carried on except during fixed seasons—from the provisions of section 35;

(g) of workers engaged in a manufacturing process which cannot be carried on except at times dependent on the irregular action of natural forces—from the provisions of section 35 and section 37; and

(h) of workers engaged in engine-rooms or boiler-houses—from the provisions of section 35.

(3) Rules made under sub-section (2) providing for any exemption may also provide for any consequential exemption from the provisions of section 39 and 40 which the Provincial Government may deem to be expedient, subject to such conditions as it may impose.

(4) In making rules under this section the Provincial Government shall prescribe the maximum limits for the weekly hours of work for all classes of workers, and any exemption given, other than an exemption under clause (a) of sub-section (2), shall be subject to such limits.

(5) Rules made under this section shall remain in force for not more than three years.

44. [Cf. Old Act, section 30 (2).] (1) Where the Provincial Government is satisfied that, owing to the nature of the work carried on or to other circumstances, it is unreasonable to require that the periods of work of any adult workers in any factory or class of factories should be fixed beforehand, it may, by written order, relax or modify the provisions of sections 39 and 40 in respect of such workers to such extent and in such manner as it may think fit, and subject to such conditions as it may deem expedient to ensure control over periods of work.

(2) The Provincial Government, or subject to the control of the Provincial Government the Chief Inspector, may, by written order, exempt, on such conditions as it or he may deem expedient, any or all of the adult workers in any factory, or group or class of factories, from any or all of the provisions of sections 34, 35, 36, 37, 38, 39 and 40, on the ground that the exemption is required to enable the factory or factories to deal with an exceptional press of work.

(3) Any exemption given under sub-section (2) in respect of weekly hours of work shall be subject to the maximum limits prescribed under sub-section (4) of section 43.

¹[(4) An order under sub-section (2) shall remain in force for such period, not exceeding two months from the date on which notice thereof is given to the manager of the factory, as may be specified in the order:

Provided that if in the opinion of the Provincial Government the public interest so requires, the Provincial Government may from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, extend the operation of any such order for such period, not exceeding six months at any one time, as may be specified in the notification.]

SECS. 45 AND 54: TEMPORARY AMENDMENT OF SECS. 45 AND 54, ACT XXV OF 1934.—Until the termination of the hostilities in being at the commencement of this Act the first proviso to sub-sec. (1) of sec. 45 and the proviso to sub-sec. (3) of sec. 54 of the said Act shall have effect as if for the figures and letters "7-30 P.M.," the figures and letters

"8-30 P.M.," had been substituted. (Act XIV of 1944, sec. 5).

SEC. 45: GINNING FACTORIES.—All that the law authorises the Inspector to do in the case of a ginning factory is to express his opinion and not to issue orders. The Inspector has no right to issue a general prohibition against the employment of women at night without going into the question whether the staff is sufficient. 61 I.C. 225=19 A.L.J. 503=22 Cr.L.J. 369=1921 All. 229.

Further restrictions on the employment of women.

(1) The provisions of this Chapter shall, in their application to women workers in factories, be supplemented by the following further restrictions, namely:—

(a) no exemption from the provisions of section 36 may be granted in respect of any women; and

(b) no women shall be allowed to work in a factory except between 6 A.M. and 7 P.M.:

Provided that the Provincial Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, in respect of any class or classes of factories and for the whole year or any part of it, vary the limits laid down in clause (b) to any span of ¹[ten and half hours, or where the factory is a seasonal one, of eleven and half hours] between 5 A.M. and 7-30 P.M.:

Provided further that, in respect of any seasonal factory or class of seasonal factories in a specified area, the Provincial Government may make rules imposing a further restriction by defining the period or periods of the day within which women may be allowed to work, such that the period or periods so defined shall lie within the span fixed by clause (b) or under the above proviso and shall not be less than ten hours in the aggregate.

(2) The Provincial Government may make rules providing for the exemption from the above restrictions, to such extent and subject to such conditions as it may prescribe, of women working in fish-curing or fish-canning factories where the employment of women beyond the said hours is necessary to prevent damage to or deterioration in any raw material.

(3) Rules made under sub-section (2) shall remain in force for not more than three years.

night, the ensuing day for him shall be deemed to be the period of twenty-four hours beginning when such shift ends, and the hours he has worked after midnight shall be counted towards the previous day:

Provided that the Provincial Government may, by order in writing, direct that in the case of any specified factory or any specified class of workers therein the ensuing day shall be deemed to be the period of twenty-four hours beginning when such shift begins and that the hours worked before midnight shall be counted towards the ensuing day.

Extra pay for overtime.

47. ²[(1) Where a worker—

(a) in a non-seasonal factory works for more than nine hours in any day or for more than forty-eight hours in any week, or

(b) in a seasonal factory works for more than nine hours in any day or for more than fifty hours in any week,— he shall be entitled in respect of the overtime worked to pay at the rate of twice his ordinary rate of pay.]

(2) Where any workers are paid on a piece rate basis, the Provincial Government in consultation with the industry concerned may, for the purposes of this section, fix time rates as nearly as possible equivalent to the average rate of earnings of those workers, and the rates so fixed shall be deemed to be the ordinary rates of pay of those workers for the purposes of this section.

(3) The Provincial Government may prescribe the registers that shall be maintained in a factory for the purpose of securing compliance with the provisions of this section.

48. No adult worker shall be allowed to work in any factory on any day on which he has already been working in any other factory, save in such circumstances as may be prescribed.

49. The Provincial Government may make rules providing that in any specified class or classes of factories work shall not be carried on by a system of shifts so arranged that more than one relay of workers is engaged in work of the same kind at the same time, save with the permission of the Provincial Government and subject to such conditions as it may impose, either generally or in the case of any particular factory.

49-A. (1) The provisions of this Chapter shall not apply to a seasonal factory.

(2) The provisions of this Chapter shall not operate to the prejudice of any rights to which a worker may be entitled under any other enactment, or under the terms of any award, agreement or contract of service.

49-B. (1) Every worker who has completed a period of twelve months continuous service in a factory shall be allowed, during the subsequent period of twelve months, holidays for a period of ten, or, if a child, fourteen consecutive days, inclusive of the day or days, if any, on which he is entitled to a holiday under sub-section (1) of section 35.

(2) If a worker fails in any one such period of twelve months to take the whole of the holidays allowed to him under sub-section (1), any holidays not taken by him shall be added to the holidays to be allowed to him under sub-section (1) in the succeeding period of twelve months, so however that the total number of days holidays which may be carried forward to a succeeding period shall not exceed ten or, in the case of a child, fourteen.

(3) If a worker entitled to holidays under sub-section (1) is discharged by his employer before he has been allowed the holidays, or if, having applied for and having been refused the holidays, he quits his employment before he has been allowed the holidays, the employer shall pay him the amount payable under section 49-C in respect of the holidays.

Explanation.—A worker shall be deemed to have completed a period of twelve months continuous service in a factory notwithstanding any interruption in service during those twelve months brought about by sickness, accident or authorised leave not exceeding ninety days in the aggregate for all three, or by a lock-out, or by a strike which is not an illegal strike, or by intermittent periods of involuntary unemployment not exceeding thirty days in the aggregate; and authorized leave shall be deemed not to include any weekly holiday allowed under section 35 which occurs at the beginning or end of an interruption brought about by the leave.

49-C. Without prejudice to the conditions governing the day or days, if any, on which the worker is entitled to a holiday under sub-section (1) of section 35, the worker shall, for the remaining days of the holidays allowed to him under section 49-B, be paid at a rate equivalent to the daily average of his wages as defined in the Payment of Wages Act, 1936 (IV of 1936), for the days on which he actually worked during the preceding three months, exclusive of any earnings in respect of overtime.

SPECIAL PROVISIONS FOR ADOLESCENTS AND CHILDREN.

Prohibition of employment of young children.

50. [Cf. section 62, Eng. Act.] No child who has not completed his twelfth year shall be allowed to work in any factory.

Non-adult workers to carry tokens giving reference to certificates of fitness.

51. [Cf. sections 62 and 63, Eng. Act.] No child who has completed his twelfth year and no adolescent shall be allowed to work in any factory unless—

(a) a certificate of fitness granted to him under section 52 is in the custody of the manager of the factory, and

(b) he carries while he is at work a token giving a reference to such certificate.

52. [Cf. sections 63 to 67, Eng. Act.] (1) A certifying surgeon shall, on the application of any young person who wishes to work in a factory, or of the parent or guardian of such person, or of the manager of the factory in which such person wishes to work, examine such person and ascertain his fitness for such work.

(2) The certifying surgeon, after examination, may grant to such person, in the prescribed form,—

SEC. 52: MADRAS AMENDMENT.—For sub-sec. (1) of sec. 52 of the Factories Act, 1934, the following sub-section shall be substituted namely:—“(1) A certifying surgeon shall on the application of any young person or his parent or guardian accompanied by a document signed by the manager of a factory that such person will be employed therein if certified to be fit for work in a factory, or on the application of the manager of the factory in which any young person wishes to work, examine such person and ascertain his fitness for work in a factory”. (a) a certificate of fitness to work in a factory as a child, if he is satisfied that such person has completed his twelfth year, that he has attained the prescribed physical standards (if any), and that he is fit for such work; or

(b) a certificate of fitness to work in a factory as an adult, if he is satisfied that such person has completed his fifteenth year and is fit for a full day's work in a factory.

(3) A certifying surgeon may revoke any certificate granted under sub-section (2) if, in his opinion, the holder of it is no longer fit to work in the capacity stated therein in a factory.

(4) Where a certifying surgeon or a practitioner authorized under sub-section (2) of section 12 refuses to grant a certificate or a certificate of the kind requested, or revokes a certificate, he shall, if so requested by any person who could have applied for the certificate, state his reasons in writing for so doing.

53. [Cf. Ss. 63-67, Eng. Act.] (1) An adolescent who has been granted a certificate of fitness to work in a factory as an adult, under clause (b) of sub-section (2) of section 52, and who, while at work in a factory, carries a token giving reference to the certificate, shall be deemed to be an adult for all the purposes of Chapter IV.

(2) An adolescent who has not been granted a certificate of fitness to work in a factory as an adult, under sub-section (2) of section 52, shall, notwithstanding his age, be deemed to be a child for the purposes of this Act.

54. [Cf. Old S. 23 (b), S. 1 (2) and S. 25 also Ss. 23-30 of the Eng. Act.] (1) No child shall be allowed to work in a factory for more than five hours in any day.

(2) The hours of work of a child shall be so arranged that they shall not spread over more than seven-and-a-half hours in any day.

(3) No child shall be allowed to work in a factory except between 6 A.M. and 7 P.M.:

Provided that the Provincial Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, in respect of any class or classes of factories and for the whole year or any part of it, vary these limits to any span of thirteen hours between 5 A.M. and 7-30 P.M.

(4) The provisions of section 35 shall apply also to child workers, but no exemption from the provisions of that section may be granted in respect of any child.

(5) No child shall be allowed to work in any factory on any day on which he has already been working in another factory.

55. [Cf. S. 32, Eng. Act.] (1) There shall be displayed and correctly maintained in every factory, in accordance with the provisions of sub-section (2) of section 76, a Notice of Periods for Work for Children, showing clearly the periods within which children may be required to work.

(2) The periods shown in the Notice required by sub-section (1) shall be fixed beforehand in accordance with the method laid down for adults in section 39 and shall be such that children working for those periods would not be working in contravention of section 54.

(3) The provisions of section 40 shall apply also to the Notice of Periods for Work for Children.

(4) The Provincial Government may make rules prescribing forms for the Notice of Periods for Work for Children and the manner in which it shall be maintained.

Register of Child Workers.

56. [Cf. Ss. 39-41 supra.] (1) The manager of every factory in which children are employed shall maintain a Register of Child Workers showing—

- (a) the name of each child worker in the factory,
- (b) the nature of his work,
- (c) the group, if any, in which he is included,
- (d) where his group works on shifts, the relay to which he is allotted,
- (e) the number of his certificate of fitness granted under section 52, and
- (f) such other particulars as may be prescribed.

(2) The Provincial Government may make rules prescribing the form of the Register of Child Workers, the manner in which it shall be maintained, and the period for which it shall be preserved.

57. [Cf. S. 32, Eng. Act.] No child shall be allowed to work otherwise than in accordance with the notice of Periods for Hours of work to correspond with Notice and Register.

Work for Children displayed under sub-section (1) of section 55 and the entries made beforehand against his name in the Register of Child Workers maintained under sub-section (1) of section 56.

Power to require medical examination.

58. [Cf. S. 8-A of the Old Act.] Where an Inspector is of opinion—

(a) that any person working in a factory without a certificate of fitness is a child or an adolescent, or

(b) that a child or adolescent working in a factory with a certificate is no longer fit to work in the capacity stated therein, he may serve on the manager of the factory a notice requiring that such person, or that such child or adolescent, as the case may be, shall be examined by a certifying surgeon or by a practitioner authorised under sub-section (2) of section 12, and such person, child or adolescent shall not, if the Inspector so directs, be allowed to work in any factory until he has been so examined and has been granted a certificate of fitness or a fresh certificate of fitness, as the case may be.

Power to make rules.

59. [Cf. S. 126, Eng. Act.] The Provincial Government may make rules—

(a) prescribing the forms of certificates of fitness to be granted under section 52, providing for the grant of duplicates in the event of loss of the original certificates, and fixing the fees which may be charged for such certificates and such duplicates;

(b) prescribing the physical standards to be attained by children and adolescents;

(c) regulating the procedure of certifying surgeons under this Chapter, and specifying other duties which they may be required to perform in connexion with the employment of children and adolescents in factories; and

(d) providing for any other matter which may be expedient in order to give effect to the provisions of this Chapter.

Provided that the Provincial Government may by notification in the Official Gazette, declare any premises to be a small factory, notwithstanding that less than ten workers are working thereon, if such premises would otherwise be a small factory.

(2) For the purposes of this Chapter an adolescent holding a certificate granted under this Act to work as an adult shall be deemed to be an adult.

59-B. (1) All the provisions of this Act, except clause (j) of section 2, sections 4, 5, 6 and 7, sub-sections (1) and (4) of section 14, sections 15, 21, 22 and 25, sub-sections (1), (2) and (3) of section 33 and Chapter IV shall apply to, and in relation to, all small factories wherein any worker who is not, or is not deemed to be, an adult is employed; and in the provisions hereby made so applicable every reference to a factory shall be deemed to include, so far as may be, a reference to a small factory.

(2) The aforesaid provisions shall cease to apply to a small factory on the expiry of six months from the receipt by the Inspector of a notice in writing from the occupier that he has ceased to employ therein any worker who is not, or is not deemed to be, an adult, unless any such worker is employed therein on any day of the said six months:

Provided that if any such worker is thereafter employed in the small factory, the said provisions of this Act shall again apply thereto.

59-C. The provisions of this Chapter shall be in addition to, and not in derogation of, the provisions of the Employment of Children Act, 1938.

Sec. 43-A which provided for the grant of compensation to injured workers out of fines has been omitted, as adequate provision has been made by Workmen's Compensation Act. (Objects and Reasons).

REPORT OF SELECT COMMITTEE.—“We have re-cast in a more succinct form the list of offences contained in the clause. We have also provided both here and in cl. 65 that where the manager and occupier were held jointly responsible for the breach of the law, the combined penalty shall not be in excess of the maximum penalty that might be inflicted on either of them”.

SEC. 60: CONSTRUCTION OF SECTION.—The section is a penal one, it ought to be construed strictly. The occupier and manager both or either of them can be required to pay a fine which may extend to Rs. 200 (now Rs. 500) but between the two they cannot be required to pay any sum exceeding that limit for each offence. (45 Bom. 220 =1921 Bom. 322). See now the change in the present Code explained in the Report of the Select Committee. See also sec. 65 infra. Factory Acts should be properly enforced for protection of workmen, but on the other hand one must also bear in mind that the employer's position has to be considered too.

It may be that without any negligence on their part defects will exist in their factories, but if they are to be proceeded against in a Criminal Court for alleged negligence, then it would seem that the matter be clearly brought home to them. 26 Bom. L.R. 1245=26 Cr.L.J. 482=1925 Bom. 143. The Act is a special Act, and the absence of definite evidence to show that a boy of seven or eight years old, was employed or allowed to work in contravention of the provisions of the Act, a conviction under the Act is illegal. 49 I.C. 860=20 Cr.L.J. 236 =17 A.L.J. 223.

LIABILITY OF MANAGER AND OCCUPIER JOINT AND SEVERAL.—The Act provides that both the occupier and manager shall be jointly and severally liable to fine for any of the offences committed under the Act. This joint and several fine imposed on both the occupier and manager is irrespective of the fact as to which of the two had committed the offence. The duty to inform the authority under the Act is laid on the manager. It is therefore primarily the manager who is to be supposed to have contravened this provision of the Act, but both the occupier and manager are made responsible jointly and severally for this contravention. 31 Cr.L.J. 869 (2)=125 I.C. 380 (2)=1930 Lah. 658. See also 55 Bom. 366=32 Cr.L.J. 1063=33 Bom.L.R. 309.

See also Report of Select Committee. The word "occupier" denotes a person who is either a proprietor or otherwise entitled to be in possession of the factory and control its working. He may or may not actually occupy the building and even if he carries on the work through an agent he does not cease to be the occupier. He cannot therefore be any one who is a mere servant charged with specific duties either in regard to the control of the machinery, workmen or office. A mukaddam is really a foreman of the operatives and a servant of the factory. He is neither a managing agent nor a person authorised to represent the occupier. He cannot therefore be regarded as an occupier or manager. He cannot be tried jointly with the manager for an offence under sec. 41 (a) of the old Act but can be tried under sec. 42 (1) on the complaint of the manager. 34 Cr.L.J. 821=29 Nag.L.R. 72=1932 Nag. 100. If more than one person is unlawfully employed the manager and agent are liable for as many offences as there are persons so employed. 45 Bom. 220=1921 Bom. 322. The owners and occupiers of a factory cannot relieve themselves of their responsibilities regarding compliance with the requirements of the Factories Act by appointing a manager; they must see that the manager carries out his duties. It is only when the manager has acted in express disobedience of their order and they have done their best to see that the provisions of the Act are complied with, that they can themselves escape liability. Sec. 60 makes it clear that both the manager and occupier are liable. A manager is not a 'managing agent' within the meaning of that expression as used in the proviso to the definition of 'occupier' and hence cannot be deemed to be the occupier of the factory. The fact that the "occupiers" were ignorant persons who trusted to the knowledge and good sense of their manager may be a ground for awarding a smaller punishment but not for acquitting them. 55 L.W. 253=A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 347 (1)=(1942) 1 M.L.J. 104. See also 44 Bom.L.R. 810=1943 Bom. 5 (Breach of Rule 37—Offence).

OMITTING TO FENCE ENGINE WITHIN PREMISES.—The manager of the concern is liable to be prosecuted for not properly fencing the engine found in the premises. 31 Cr.L.J. 1094=33 Bom.L.R. 329=1930 Bom. 162.

PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE.—Where the manager is prosecuted under sec. 60 (b) (i) read with sec. 42 for allowing work to be done beyond the prescribed period, it is no defence to plead that the accused acted in good faith honestly believing in the clock in the factory to be correct and that he is protected by sec. 81. It is enough in a prosecution under the Act to prove that the accused has infringed the Act or rules under the Act and it is not necessary to show that accused intended to infringe the Act or the rules. 1938 N.L.J. 217=A.I.R. 1938 Nag. 406. See also I.L.R. (1940) Nag. 257. It is not necessary that an order or notice from the Inspector of Factories should be issued to a person, who has not conformed to the rules made under the Act, before he can be charged for any offence under it. It is the duty of such person to obey the rules, and in case of his disobedience, he becomes liable to conviction whether there was any order or not from the Inspector, calling upon him to obey the rules. 12 Bom.L.R. 225. See also L.B.R. (1893-1900) 407. Management acting in good faith—Launching of prosecution as test case—Propriety of. Where the authorities themselves are doubtful about the applicability of certain provisions of the Act, but the management act reasonably and shows a genuine desire to meet any complaint and to rectify irregularities, and there is no absence of good faith, the launching of a test case in respect of trivial and technical infringements of the provisions of the Act is uncalled for. 152 I.C. 566=38 C.W.N. 1008=1934 Cal. 730. Penalties in cases against factory owners who are exploiting labour must be deterrent, especially in view of the fact that detection is frequently avoided. 19 N.L.J. 247.

SECS. 60 (b) AND 81.—Where acting on the assurance of the authorities concerned a factory doing urgent military orders works overtime fully believing that the necessary exemption would be given, the manager and occupier of the factory cannot be convicted of an offence under sec. 60 (b) (i) of the Fac-

(c) there is any contravention of any of the provisions of sections 39 to 41 inclusive or of any rule made under section 39, section 41 or section 47, or of any condition attached to any exemption granted under section 41 or to any modification or relaxation made under section 44, or

(d) any person is not paid any extra pay to which he is entitled under the provisions of section 47, or has been convicted of any offence punishable under clauses (b) to [(g)]² inclusive of section 60 is again guilty of an offence involving a contravention of the same provision, he shall be punishable on the second conviction with fine which may extend to seven hundred and fifty rupees and shall not be less than one hundred rupees, and if he is again so guilty, shall be punishable on the third or any subsequent conviction with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees and shall not be less than two hundred and fifty rupees:

Provided that for the purposes of this section no cognizance shall be taken of any conviction made more than two years before the commission of the offence which is being punished.

tories Act. The case is covered by sec. 81, as there was no deliberate breach of the rules. 1943 Oudh 308=1943 O.W.N. 171.

SECS. 60 (c) AND 71.—Where in a factory there was a delay of a few minutes in posting the attendance register though the occupier had appointed a well-paid and efficient manager and there was no deliberate breach of the rule it was held there could be no conviction under sec. 60 (c) and that the occupier was entitled to the benefit of sec. 71. 10 Luck. 251; 1943 Oudh 311=1943 O.W.N. 174.

SECS. 60 (c), 63 AND 41 AND R. 71.—There is nothing in sec. 41 (2) as to the availability of the register of adult workers for inspection. Failure to produce the register on demand would be a breach of secs. 11 and 63 but it would not be a breach of any rule made under sec. 41 (2) since the availability of the register cannot possibly be brought within the words "the manner in which it shall be maintained" occurring in sec. 41 (2). The words in R. 71 "the register shall always be kept available during working hours for immediate inspection" are thus not ultra vires of the Act but these words are ultra vires of any rule made under sec. 41. Consequently the owner and occupier of the factory who was not present himself and from whom no demand for the production of the register was made cannot be made liable under sec. 60 (c) of the Act which relates to secs. 39, 40, 41, 44 & 447 only. The breach in question is one punishable under sec. 63 of the Act which deals with wilful obstruction of an Inspector or failure to produce on demand any register in the custody of the person from whom the demand for inspection is made. The correct person to prosecute is not the owner but the person from whom the demand is made. 1942 N.L.J. 518=1943 Nag. 79=I.L.R. (1943) Nag. 38.

SEC. 61: STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.—This follows a recommendation of the Labour Commission and is designed to secure in suitable cases adequate penalties in the case of repeated offences.

REPORT OF SELECT COMMITTEE.—We have provided for a gradual increase of the penalty in the case of repeated offences, and we have limited the operation of the whole clause to offences relating to the provisions of Chapters IV and V, and it is only in respect of such offences that the need of such a provision has been felt.

Provided further that the Court, if it is satisfied that there are exceptional circumstances warranting such a course, may, after recording its reasons in writing, impose a smaller fine than is required by this section.

Penalty for failure to give notice of commencement of work or of change of manager. 62. An occupier of factory who fails to give any notice required by sub-section (1) or sub-section (2) of section 9 shall be punishable with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees.

63. [Cf. S. 43, Old Act.] Whoever wilfully obstructs an Inspector in the exercise of any power under section 11, or fails to produce on demand by an Inspector any registers or other documents in his custody kept in pursuance of Penalty for obstructing Inspector. this Act or of any of the rules made thereunder, or conceals or prevents any worker in a factory from appearing before or being examined by an Inspector, shall be punishable with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees.

64. [Cf. S. 41 (j), Old Act.] A manager of a factory who fails to give notice of an accident as required under section 30 shall be punishable with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees.

Penalty for failure to give notice of accidents. 65. [Cf. S. 41, Old Act.] If in respect of any factory any return is not furnished as required under section 77, the manager and the occupier of the factory shall each be liable to fine which may extend to five hundred rupees:

Provided that if both the manager and the occupier are convicted, the aggregate of the fines inflicted shall not exceed this amount.

66. [Cf. S. 43, Old Act.] Whoever smokes, or uses a naked light or causes or permits any such light to be used in the vicinity of any inflammable material in a factory shall be punishable with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees.

Penalty for smoking or using naked light in vicinity of inflammable material.

Exception.—This provision does not extend to the use, in accordance with such precautions as may be prescribed, of a naked light in the course of a manufacturing process.

67. [Cf. S. 139, Eng. Act and S. 44, Old Act.] Whoever knowingly uses or attempts to use, as a certificate granted to himself under section 52, a certificate granted to another person under that section, or who, having procured such a certificate, knowingly allows it to be used, or an attempt to use it to be made

SEC. 63.—No sore of vicarious responsibility is recognized by this Act in respect of offences referred to in this section. Where the Assistant Manager failed to produce register on demand by the Inspector, alleging that the same was with the Manager who had left the office, the Manager cannot be convicted under this section even if he was really hiding himself in the factory in order to avoid meeting the Inspector. 41 C. W. N. 740.

SEC. 64.—See 1930 L. 658; L.B.R. (1893-1900) 407 cited under sec. 70 infra.

SEC. 65: LIABILITY OF OCCUPIER AND MANAGER.—Liability of the occupier and manager of a factory to be sentenced for an offence under sec. 41 is joint and several. Where, therefore, both are tried jointly for an offence under the section they cannot each be sentenced to the maximum penalty provided by the section but their joint liability to pay fine should not exceed the maximum. 21 Cr.L.J. 728=58 I.C. 152=45 B. 220=22

Bom.L.R. 904. See also 10 Bom.L.R. 38=7 Cr.L.J. 44. See also notes under sec. 60 supra.

CASE-LAW UNDER THE OLD ACT.—Separate sentences of fine on the occupier and manager in one trial under sec. 41 of the Act are illegal. An occupier is the controller for the time being of factory and may be either an owner of a lessee or a mortgagee with possession. The manager merely carries out the occupier's orders to work the factory. If there is no manager, the occupier himself is deemed to be the manager. 13 P.R. (Cr.) 1918=45 I.C. 159=19 Cr.L.J. 495. The manager of a mill who employs a number of workmen to work in his mill after 7 p.m., is liable to be convicted and sentenced separately in respect of each such workman under the provisions of sec. 41 (a) read with sec. 29 (i) of the Factories Act. 53 I.C. 935=20 Cr. L.J. 837=21 Bom.L.R. 1059. See also 44 B. 88. On this section, see also 45 B. 220=1921 B. 322 cited under sec. 60 supra.

by another person, shall be punishable with fine which may extend to twenty rupees.

68. [Cf. S. 148, Eng. Act.] If a child works in a factory on any day on which he has already been working in another factory, the parent or guardian of the child or the person having custody of or control over him, or obtaining any direct benefit from his wages, shall be punishable with fine which may extend to twenty rupees, unless it appears to the Court that the child so worked without the consent, connivance or wilful default of such parent, guardian or person.

69. [Cf. S. 41 (1), Old Act.] A manager of a factory who fails to display the notice required under sub-section (1) of section 76 or by any rule made under this Act, or to display or maintain any such notice as required by sub-section (2) of that section, shall be punishable with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees.

70. [Cf. Ss. 140 and 141, Eng. Act.] (1) Where the occupier of a factory is a firm or other association of individuals, any one of the individual partners or members thereof may be prosecuted and punished under this Chapter for any offence for which the occupier of the factory is punishable:

Provided that the firm or association may give notice to the Inspector that it has nominated one of its number who is resident in British India to be the occupier of the factory for the purposes of this Chapter, and such individual shall so long as he is so resident be deemed to be the occupier for the purposes of this Chapter until further notice cancelling his nomination is received by the Inspector or until he ceases to be a partner or member of the firm or association.

SEC. 70: WHO IS OCCUPIER—LIABILITY OF OCCUPIER—OLD CASES.—The term "occupier" generally means a person who controls the factory or workshop and the work that is done there, and includes the owner of the factory. 15 Bom.L.R. 328=20 I.C. 144=14 Cr.L.J. 384. The word "occupier" denotes a person who is either a proprietor or otherwise entitled to be in possession of the factory and control its working. He may or may not actually occupy the building and even if he carries on the work through an agent he does not cease to be the occupier. He cannot therefore be any one who is a mere servant charged with specific duties either in regard to the control of the machinery, workmen, or office. A mukaddam is really a foreman of the operatives and a servant of the factory. He is neither a managing agent nor a person authorised to represent the occupier. He cannot therefore be regarded as an occupier or manager. He cannot be tried jointly with the manager for an offence under sec. 41 (a) of the Old Act but cannot be tried under sec. 42 (i) on the complaint of the manager. 144 I.C. 693=34 Cr.L.J. 821=1933 N. 100. The word "occupier" in general means a person who occupies the factory either by himself or his agent. He may be an owner, he may be a lessee or even a mere licensee but he must have the right to occupy the property and dictate how it is to be managed. 55 B. 366=32 Cr.L.J. 1063 (i)=33 Bom.L.R. 309=1931 B. 308. Even if the accused, who is the owner of a factory shows that he knows nothing about the management of the factory and that he has left the whole conduct of its affairs to a manager appointed by him for the purpose, he is not free from the liability imposed on him by sec. 41 (a) of the Old Act. (Ibid.) Several persons may at the same time be occupiers of premises within the meaning of the Act for different purposes. Wearings v. Kirk, (1904) 1 K.B. 213 (C. A.). Per Mathew, L.J., at p. 217. The proprietor of a factory who lives for the greater part of the year in a house on the factory premises is an occupier for the purposes of the Act. Rat. 901. But see 29 B. 423; 7 Bom. L.R. 454 (contra). The provisions of Factories Act throw upon the occupier the responsibility of keeping the register. The responsibility is personal; and he cannot get rid of it by saying that he had delegated the duty to another person. 11 Bom.L.R. 12=9 Cr. L.J. 160=1 I.C. 102. The mere fact that a Municipality and the Factory were jointly responsible to keep a factory in a cleanly state will not discharge the occupier from his liability under Factories Act. The provisions of old sec. 17 is of a highly penal character and must be construed strictly in favour of the accused. 25 C. 454. Though the duty to inform the authority about accident is laid on the manager by sec. 34 (Old Act), the occupier and manager are made jointly and severally responsible for the contravention under this clause. 1930 L. 658. See also L.B.R. (1893-1900) 407.

(2) Where the occupier of a factory is a company, any one of the directors thereof, or, in the case of a private company, any one of the shareholders thereof, may be prosecuted and punished under this Chapter for any offence for which the occupier of the factory is punishable:

Provided that the company may give notice to the Inspector that it has nominated a director, or, in the case of a private company, a shareholder, who is resident in either case in British India, to be the occupier of the factory for the purposes of this Chapter, and such director or shareholder shall so long as he is so resident be deemed to be the occupier of the factory for the purposes of this Chapter until further notice cancelling his nomination is received by the Inspector or until he ceases to be a director or shareholder.

71. [Cf. Ss. 140 and 141, Eng. Act and S. 42 Old Act.] (1) Where the occupier or manager of a factory is charged with an offence against this Act, he shall be entitled upon complaint duly made by him to have any other person whom he charges as the actual offender brought before the Court at the time appointed for hearing the charge; and if, after the commission of the offence has been proved, the occupier or manager of the factory proves to the satisfaction of the Court—

SEC. 71: SCOPE.—See 19 Luck. 251. By this section “a prima facie liability is imposed upon the occupier or manager or dominus from which, however, he can extricate himself; otherwise he remains liable. The scheme of the Act is first to find the de facto employer: An information may be laid against the occupier. His way of escape is provided for by this section. He may set up a defence not unlike the defence of warranty which the seller of food may set up under the English sale of Food and Drugs Act. He may show that the offence was not committed by his fault. To do this he must bring the real offender before the Court.” Ward v. Smith, (1913) 3 K.B. 154. (Phillimore, J.). See also 45 I.C. 159=13 P.R. 1918 (Cr.)=19 Cr.L.J. 495. This section provides a remedy for an occupier or manager who is the victim of some other person's neglect; but he must take a certain step to assure the culprit's conviction and not merely attempt to exculpate himself.

PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE.—The structure of sec. 42 of the old Factories Act (1911) indicates that one proceeding is split up into two proceedings; and while the manager or occupier is accused of having committed an offence under the Act, he is also a complainant on his complaint against the other person or persons he has brought in. In the proceedings in which the manager or the occupier is the complainant he is liable to be cross-examined by the other person or persons who has or have been brought before the Court on his complaint. This must mean that the manager or occupier qua complainant must give evidence himself. There is no substance in the objection that the manager or occupier who initially is charged with an offence against the Act cannot go into the witness and give evidence himself, because he goes into the witness-box as an accused in the case originally started against him, but in his own right as a complainant on his complaint against the other person or persons whom he has brought in. It is not a material irregularity to dispose of the two matters by one judgment or to record the evidence in the two matters together. 30 Cr.L.J. 818=56 C. 400=32 C.W.N. 922=1928 C. 557. When the manager or occupier of a factory is charged with an offence, he is entitled to make a complaint against those whom he considers the offenders and to have such persons brought before the Court at the time appointed to hear the charge brought against them. The effect is to split up one criminal proceeding into two; one carried on by the Inspector of Factories and another by the manager or the occupier. The manager or occupier in his capacity as the complainant is entitled to testify against the persons charged by him and is also liable to be cross-examined. But the carriage of proceedings remains with the original complainant, vis., the Inspector of Factories, on whom lies the onus of proving that the offence has been committed. In this proceeding both parties complained against vis., the manager or the occupier and the third party brought into Court at their instance, are entitled to cross-examine the prosecution witnesses and to lead evidence to disprove the charge. But in as much as they are the accused persons they would not be entitled to enter the witness-box. If the commission of the offence itself is not proved both parties complained against must be acquitted. The law holds the manager and the occupier primarily responsible for enforcing the execution of the Factories Act and they cannot escape their liability to prove due diligence or commission of the offence without their knowledge, consent or connivance and without adducing affirmative proof in that behalf. They cannot, therefore, be deemed to have exculpated themselves only because the actual offender admits that he has committed the offence. 1943 N.L.J. 399=1943 Nag. 243=I.L.R. (1943) Nag. 362. Where a complaint is lodged by an accused under sec. 71 of the Act, the Factory Inspector, as com-

(a) that he has used due diligence to enforce the execution of this Act, and

(b) that the said other person committed the offence in question without his knowledge, consent or connivance, that other person shall be convicted of the offence and shall be liable to the like fine as if he were the occupier or manager, and the occupier or manager shall be discharged from any liability under this Act.

(2) When it is made to appear to the satisfaction of the Inspector at any time prior to the institution of the proceedings—

(a) that the occupier or manager of the factory has used all due diligence to enforce the execution of this Act, and

(b) by what person the offence has been committed, and

(c) that it has been committed without the knowledge, consent or connivance of the occupier or manager, and in contravention of his orders, plainant in the original complaint, can cross-examine the accused when he goes into the witness-box to prove his own complaint. The effect of sec. 71 is that when an occupier or manager is charged and the Inspector proves that an offence has been committed, a special statutory defence open to the occupier or manager, which such statutory defence involves his lodging complaint against a third party which complaint has to be heard at the same time as the original complaint. The two complaints are both in connection with the same offence and must be dealt with together. In the interests of Justice the Factory Inspector should have the right to cross-examine a person whom he has charged if that person chooses to go into the witness-box to set up a statutory defence. I.L.R. (1940) Bom. 420 =42 Bom.L.R. 482=A.I.R. 1940 Bom. 265. But see also 43 C.W.N. 1223. Under sec. 71 the person who claims the exemption from liability on the ground that he used due diligence and that another person than himself was responsible for the offence, has the onus on him to show that he comes within the provisions of the section. 1938 P.W.N. 903=40 Cr.L.J. 160=A.I.R. 1939 Pat. 163. When the occupier or manager who is charged, with an offence, makes a complaint under sec. 71, against those whom he considers the offenders his examination under sec. 200, Cr.P.Code, like any other complaint will not be illegal even though the Magistrate has already taken cognisance of the offence on the complaint of the Inspector of Factories. Such an examination would serve to prevent the occupier and the manager from abusing the right of cross-examination when the charge is heard. 1943 Nag. 243=I.L.R. (1943) Nag. 362.

PROCEDURE—DISCHARGE OF OWNER OR OCCUPIER AND CONVICTION OF ACTUAL OFFENDER ON LATTER PLEADING GUILTY—LEGALITY.—If a complaint is made by the Inspector of Factories against the manager or occupier of a factory charging him with an offence under the Factories Act, the latter is entitled under sec. 71 of that Act to complain against the actual offender, and if he does so, the actual offender is given notice and brought before the Court and the trial proceeds as against both persons complained against. The carriage of proceedings is with the original complainant on whom the onus lies of proving that the offence has been committed. Both parties complained against are entitled to cross-examine the prosecution witnesses at this stage, and to lead evidence to disprove the charge, but being accused persons they would not be entitled to give evidence themselves. If the prosecution fails to prove the offence, both the accused must be acquitted. If the offence is proved, the Court should record an order to that effect and the manager or occupier is guilty under the Act. Sec. 71, however, affords him an opportunity of escaping liability, provided he can give satisfactory proof of the matters set out in Cls. (a) and (b) of sec. 71 (1), vis., that he had used due diligence and that the actual offender had committed the offence without his knowledge. The onus of proof, however, is now shifted to the manager or occupier and he is entitled to call evidence or to give evidence himself. The actual offender would be entitled to call evidence, but not give evidence himself. The difference in procedure being due to the fact that the actual offender occupies the role only of an accused, whereas the occupier or manager at this stage, besides being an accused, has to discharge the onus of positive proof required by sec. 71 (1) (a) and (b), and in all probability he alone is capable of proving certain facts of which proof is thereby required. The Crown which has initiated the proceedings, and has throughout retained the carriage of the proceedings, is entitled at this stage to cross-examine the occupier or manager if he gives evidence, and any witnesses called by him in support of his charge and to call rebutting evidence. The Magistrate has no power to convict the actual offender or discharge the occupier or manager until the proof envisaged by sec. 71 (1) (a) and (b) is before him, although the former pleads guilty to the charge against him. I.L.R. (1940) 1 Cal. 120=43 C.W.N. 1223 =1939 C. 724. Where in a factory there was a delay of a few minutes in posting the attendance register though the occupier had appointed a well paid and efficient manager and there was no deliberate breach of the rule it was held there could be no conviction under sec. 60 (e) and that the occupier was entitled to the benefit of sec. 71, 1943 O.W.N. 174=A.I.R. 1943 Oudh 311.

the Inspector shall proceed against the person whom he believes to be the actual offender without first proceeding against the occupier or manager of the factory, and such person shall be liable to the like fine as if he were the occupier or manager.

Presumption as to employment.

73. [Cf. S. 147, Eng. Act and S. 47, Old Act.] (1) When an act or omission would, if a person were under or over a certain age, be an offence punishable under this Act, and such person is in the opinion of the Court apparently under or over such age, the burden shall be on the accused to prove that such person is not under or over such age.

(2) A declaration in writing by a certifying surgeon relating to a worker that he has personally examined him and believes him to be under or over the age set forth in such declaration shall, for the purposes of this Act, be admissible as evidence of the age of that worker.

74. [Cf. S. 48, Old Act.] (1) No prosecution under this Act, except a prosecution under section 66, shall be instituted except by or with the previous sanction of the Inspector.

Cognizance of offences.

(2) No Court inferior to that of a Presidency Magistrate or of a Magistrate of the first class shall try any offence against this Act or any rule or order made thereunder other than an offence under section 66 or section 67.

75. [Cf. S. 146, Eng. Act and section 49, Old Act.] No Court shall take cognizance of any offence under this Act or any rule or order thereunder, other than an offence under section 62 or section 64, unless, complaint thereof is made within six months of the date on which the offence is alleged to have been committed:

Limitation of prosecutions.

Provided that when the offence consists of disobeying a written order made by an Inspector, complaint thereof may be made within twelve months of the date on which the offence is alleged to have been committed.

THE FATAL ACCIDENTS ACT (XIII OF 1855).¹

[27th March, 1855.]

An Act to provide compensation to families for loss occasioned by the death of a person caused by actionable wrong.

WHEREAS no action or suit is now maintainable in any Court against a person who, by his wrongful act, neglect or default may have caused the death of another person, and it is often times right and expedient that the wrong-doer in such case should be answerable in damages for the injury so caused by him; It is enacted as follows:—

1. Whenever the death of a person shall be caused by wrongful act, neglect or default, and the act, neglect or default is such

Suit for compensation to the family of a person for loss occasioned to it by his death by actionable wrong. as would (if death had not ensued) have entitled the party injured to maintain an action and recover damages in respect thereof, the party who would have been liable if death had not ensued shall be liable to an action or suit for damages, notwithstanding the death of the person injured, and although the death shall have been caused under such circumstances as amount in law to felony or other crime.

LEG. REF.

¹Short title, "The Indian Fatal Accidents Act, 1855. See the Indian Short Titles Act (XIV of 1897).

Based on the Fatal Accidents Act, 1846 (9 & 10 Vict., c. 93).

This Act has been declared to be in force in the whole of British India, except as regards the Scheduled Districts by the Laws Local Extent Act, 1874 (XV of 1874), S. 3.

Sec. 1.—To establish civil liability under the Act against any person, it must be proved either that he actually committed the wrongful act himself, or at least, that he actively aided or abetted its commission and so took part directly in causing it. 16 I.C. 491=117 P.R. 1912. It is not enough that he knew that the Act was likely to be committed or that it was committed in the prosecution of a common object. (Ibid.) Under Act XIII of 1855, in order that damages may be claimed, it is sufficient if a person by his wrongful act, neglect or default shall have caused the death of another person. These words do not mean that death must be the direct result of the injury caused. Damages may be claimed where the death was due to the injury caused by the striking having become septic. 144 I.C. 820=34 P.L.R. 656=1933 L. 770. Where a death is caused by wrongful act, the right of heirs of deceased to sue for damages is governed by the principle of the Act even where the Act is not in force. 64 I.C. 311. If a person who has obtained a decree under the Fatal Accidents Act dies after decree, his legal representatives are entitled to the benefit of the decree. 103 I.C. 297. The word "representative" in the Act has not the same meaning as "legal representative" under the Civil Procedure Code. It does not mean only executor or administrator, but includes all or any of the persons for whose benefit a suit can be brought under the Act. 1935 B. 333=159 I.C. 363=37 Bom.L.R. 410.

Basis of Compensation.—No very definite rule has been laid down as to how many years' income should be allowed as compensation to the heirs of the deceased in a suit under the Act. Every thing is to be taken into account, possibility of the earner's death, his age and earning capacity for calculating the amount of damages. 101 I.C. 642=1927 L. 417. See also 59 M. 402=1936 M. 247=70 M.L.J. 115. In assessing the damages in respect of a fatal accident many factors have to be considered in arriving at the amount which the claimant or dependent of the deceased is entitled to in respect of his or her future maintenance (e.g.) the possibility of his or her early death, of the deceased dying from other causes and of the deceased losing the employment on which he was engaged and being unemployed. The defendant is not entitled to a sum calculated on a number of years from the moment of her loss. Allowance must also be made for the fact that the defendant is receiving a lump sum. 1938 Mad. 117=1937 M.W.N. 921=46 L. W. 452. Assessment of damages under the Fatal Accidents Act must necessarily be rough and approximate, but it should not be arbitrary or whimsical. It should not be made merely with reference to the plaintiff's requirements, but where the evidence establishes that the plaintiff's requirements were being fairly met by the deceased on whom they were dependent, the Court would be justified in assessing the damages on that basis. (1939) 1 M.L.J. 143=1938 M.W.N. 1241=48 L.W. 865=1939 Mad. 261. Where a person is killed on account of the negligent driving of the car, and the relatives of the deceased sue for damages under the Fatal Accidents Act, the damages must be fixed solely with reference to the pecuniary loss sustained by the relatives of the deceased in respect of past contributions or in respect of reasonable expectation of future pecuniary benefit from the deceased. The plaintiffs must adduce evidence affording a reasonable basis for the ascertainment of the pecuniary loss so inflicted. If no such evidence is adduced and there is no proof of pecuniary loss, no compensation can be awarded. 59 M. 402=42 L.W. 327=1936 M. 247=70 M.L.J. 155. In a suit by the heirs of a person dying as a result of motor accident, for damages under the Fatal Accidents Act, although the deceased is proved to have been guilty of negligence, the claim will succeed, if the effect of the deceased's negligence could have been avoided by the exercise of reasonable care on the part of the driver of the vehicle. 163 I.C. 957=1936 R. 295. In cases arising under Fatal Accidents Act, actuarial tables of Insurance Company afford a good basis for calculation of "normal expectation of life" of the deceased. 162 I.C. 336=1936 L. 362. Reasonable sum and not actual loss is to be awarded. Length of life and value to the plaintiffs determine the amount of compensation. 96 I.C. 403=1926 N. 271. See also 59 M. 402=43 L.W. 327=1936 M. 247=70 M.L.J. 155. Value of life depends on the earning capacity of the deceased. 96 I.C. 681=1926 A. 703 (1922 C. 317, Foll.). The principle on which compensation under the Act will be awarded is the same as that under Lord Campbell's Act in England. It is compensation for the loss of the actual pecuniary benefit which the beneficiaries might reasonably have expected to enjoy, had the man not been killed. [38 T.L.R. 899 and (1922) 1 K.B. 329, Rel. on] 29 Bom.L.R. 402=102 I.C. 400=1927 B. 357. Where the sole source of income of the deceased was cultivation by personal labour, the probable duration of the capacity of the deceased to supply labour for cultivation must be taken into consideration while assessing damages for his death. 1927 A. 684, following 42 L.J. Ex. 153. In a suit for damages, any fine realised from the defendant and paid to the plaintiff in the criminal case against the defendant should be taken into consideration. 1927 A. 684. In a suit for damages under the Act no sentimental considerations are relevant. The plaintiff cannot get higher damages because the deceased was brutally murdered by the defendant than if the death had been due merely to an error of judgment. 1927 A. 684. See also 4 M.L.T. 238. In assessing damages under the Act, one cannot take into consideration the mental suffering of the survivors. The fact therefore that the widow of the deceased, being a Brahmin, cannot re-marry; cannot have children and is thus left at the early age of 16 years a widow for the rest of her life is for this purpose an irrelevant consideration. 1937 Nag. 354=I.L.R. (1938) Nag. 54. Appellate Court should not set aside award of lower Court unless it is capricious or unreasonable. See 96 I.C. 273=1926 A. 702.

High Court would not interfere if the amount awarded is sufficient protection or reasonable compensation. 96 I.C. 681=1926 A. 703. Whilst the erection of a wall upon land is an ordinary user of the land, nevertheless it is an uncommon occurrence for a wall to fall, and when it does fall an explanation should be forthcoming from those who are responsible for its repair. Where the owner of the wall fails to carry out the necessary repairs which are required, allowing it to get into a serious defective condition, he fails to use ordinary care and skill, and is guilty of a breach of duty and neglect. If as a result the wall falls and causes death to persons using a public latrine built against the wall and adjoining it, the owner of the wall is liable in damages to the wife, husband or children of the persons killed. 1937 M.W.N. 921=46 L.W. 452=I.L.R. (1938) Mad. 233=1938 M. 117. Liability for damages under—Motor car—Accident causing death—Mortgagee without possession of car not liable he not being its "owner". 1935 B. 333=159 I.C. 363=37 Bom.L.R. 410.

Funeral Expenses.—Funeral expenses and expenses alleged to have been incurred in the Police Court cannot be recovered in an action under the Act. 61 C. 480=38 C.W.N. 520=1934 C. 655.

Who can Institute Suit.—"Representative" meaning of. See 28 M. 479=15 M.L.J. 363. The word "representative" in the Act has a special meaning of its own. It has not the same meaning as "legal representative" in the C.P. Code. It means and includes all or any of the persons for whose benefit a suit under the Act could be maintained. It is not a surplusage in the case of Europeans and Eurasians and where there is no executor or administrator, the wife and children are entitled to maintain the action. 38 C.W.N. 520=61 C. 480=1934 C. 655. Court has power to divide damage claimed and award between some only of the parties for whose benefit the claim is made. 1922 C. 317. Compensation for death caused by railway accident—Discretionary with Court in apportioning among relatives—Circumstances to be taken into consideration—"Child"—Meaning. 22 I.C. 846=52 P.R. 1914. For purposes of awarding compensation under this section a son adopted after the death of the deceased is not a 'child' within the meaning of the section. (Ibid.) A co-parcener of the deceased man is not entitled to compensation under the Act. Compensation should be awarded looking to the members of the family of the deceased. 105 P. R. 1915=32 I.C. 18. See also 70 M.L.J. 155. In a claim for damages under the Act the reasonable expectation of pecuniary advantage by the relatives remaining alive may be taken into account by a jury and damages assessed as the probable pecuniary loss thereby occasioned. 69 I.C. 854. Landlord and tenant—Dwelling house in a bad state of repair—Licence to the privies

1[* * *] Every such action or suit shall be for the benefit of the wife, husband, parent and child, if any, of the person whose death shall have been so caused, and shall be brought by and in the name of the executor, administrator or representative of the person deceased; and in every such action the Court may give such damages as it may think proportioned to the loss resulting from such death to the parties respectively, for whom and for whose benefit such action shall be brought; and the amount so recovered, after deducting all costs and expenses, including the costs not recovered from the defendant, shall be divided amongst the before mentioned parties, or any of them, in such shares as the Court by its judgment or decree shall direct.

2. Provided always that not more than one action or suit shall be brought for, and in respect of the same subject-matter of complaint 2[* * * * *]:

Not more than one suit to be brought.

—Privy portion collapsing—Tenant killed

—Right of heirs to sue for damages. 29 Bom.L.R. 78. The fact that the deceased in some way provoked the quarrel as a result of which he died, is immaterial so far as regards the claim for damages under the Act is concerned. (Ibid.) The test of injury under this section, is not the legal liability alone, but the reasonable expectation of pecuniary advantage by the deceased's remaining alive. 112 P.R. 1913=20 I.C. 425. The reasonableness of the expectation is largely founded upon a record of pecuniary benefit received in the past and there must be something more than a mere speculation in the future. (Ibid.) (16 B. 254, Expl.). See also 1 A. 60. Nothing can be allowed to the survivors as compensation for mental suffering. See 4 M.L.T. 238 and cases referred to therein. 1927 A. 684. Effect of contributory negligence. See 85 P.R. 1894. In estimating the amount of damages to be awarded in an action under the Act, the Court must take into account all the circumstances which are material for considering the pecuniary loss sustained. The Court must view the matter broadly. 52 C. 602=89 I.C. 679=1925 C. 893. Death caused by negligence of Railway—Legal representatives—Suit for loss of currency notes in possession of deceased—Maintainability. 6 L. 451=90 I.C. 1026=1925 L. 636. Where an amount is paid to a Hindu widow under a private settlement as compensation to herself and her children for the death of her husband caused by a fatal accident, the amount must be apportioned between the widow and the children on the same principles which would have applied if the amount had been recovered by a suit or action in which case the Court fixing the amount of compensation apportions the amount among the dependents in proportion to the loss caused to each by the death of the deceased. There is no hard and fast rule as to the proportion in which the amount has to be divided where there are a number of persons suffering injury by the death of a relation on whom they were all dependant. Roughly the son and widow may be given equal shares, and a daughter a half of what a son takes. 1945 M.W.N. 755=58 L.W. 647=(1945) 2 M.L.J. 550.

Plaint—Averments in.—A plaint in a suit under the Act has to be very carefully drawn and should give full particulars of the person or persons for whom or on whose behalf the action has been brought and of the nature of the claim in respect of which damages are sought to be recovered. 61 C. 480=38 C.W.N. 520=1934 C. 655. See also 38 C.W.N. 551=1934 C. 632=59 C.L.J. 391. If all the persons for whose benefit the suit should have been brought are the plaintiffs and no further action can be brought in respect of the same subject-matter of the complaint, the purpose of the Act is served. So a suit by the wife and children is in order even if it is expressed to be for the benefit of the wife alone, where the children have agreed to forego their claim to compensation. 61 C. 480=38 C.W.N. 520=1934 C. 655. Suit for damages against several wrong-doers—No joint tort—Joint decree against all is justified. See I.L.R. (1939) Mad. 306=(1939) 1 M.L.J. 143=1939 M. 261=1938 M.W.N. 1241.

Scale of Costs for Pleader, in case where damages are awarded under this Act: see 52 C. 602=89 I.C. 679=1925 C. 893.

Secs. 1 and 2.—The cause of action for a suit under the Act is the loss resulting to the plaintiffs from the death of the deceased; and "loss" means the loss of pecuniary benefit which the plaintiffs would have got from the deceased if he had not died. The action is purely compensatory, and plaintiffs are entitled to compensation in respect of their reasonable expectation of the value of the services of the deceased which have been lost to them ever. 1935 B. 333=37 Bom.L.R. 410=159 I.C. 363.

Sec. 2.—Act does not create fresh liability

Provided that, in any such action or suit, the executor, administrator or representative of the deceased may insert a claim for Claim for loss to estate and recover any pecuniary loss to the estate of the may be added. deceased occasioned by such wrongful act, neglect or default, which sum, when recovered, shall be deemed part of the assets of the estate of the deceased.

3. The plaint in any such action or suit shall give a full particular of the person or persons for whom, or on whose behalf, Plaintiff shall deliver particulars, etc. such action or suit shall be brought, and of the nature of the claim in respect of such damages shall be sought to be recovered.

4. The following words and expressions are intended to have the meaning hereby assigned to them respectively, so far as such Interpretation clause. meanings are not excluded by the context or by the nature of the subject-matter; that is to say ¹[* * *] the word "person" shall apply to bodies politic and corporate; and the word "parent" shall include father and mother² and grandfather and grandmother; and the word "child" shall include son and daughter and grandson and grand-daughter and step-son and step-daughter.

THE FEDERAL COURT ACT (XXV OF 1937).

[7th October, 1937.]

An Act to empower the Federal Court to make rules for regulating the service of processes issued by the Court.

Sec. 3: Plaint—Contents of—Particulars
—The plaint in a suit under the Act should not only give full particulars of the person or persons for whose benefit or on whose behalf the suit is brought, but also the particulars of the nature of the loss for which damages are claimed. 1935 B. 333=159 I.C. 363=37 Bom.L.R. 410. Federal Court Rules (1942). O. 15, Rr. 6 and 7 and Limitation Act (IX of 1908). S. 5.—When it was discovered that one of the respondents to an appeal was dead on the date of the filing of the appeal, an application was made to the Federal Court that the name of his legal representative may be entered as a respondent to the appeal in place of the deceased. On the objections by the legal representative that the application should be on terms of O. 15, R. 6 of the Federal Court Rules have been filed in the High Court and not in the Federal Court and that there was no sufficient cause for the delay in taking the proper steps.

Held, that the case did not fall within the first of the two categories contemplated by R. 6 of O. 15 because the deceased person was not in the eye of the law a party to the appeal as originally preferred as he had died before the filing of the appeal. The addition of parties referred to in the Rule cannot cover the representative of a party

THE FEDERAL COURT ACT (XXI OF 1941).

[26th November, 1941.

An Act to empower the Federal Court to make rules for regulating the presentation of appeals lying to that Court.

WHEREAS it is expedient to empower the Federal Court to make rules for regulating the presentation of appeals lying to that Court, and for that purpose to repeal those provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, which now regulate that matter;

It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title and commencement.

1. (1) This Act may be called THE FEDERAL COURT ACT, 1941.

(2) It shall come into force on such date as the Central Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, appoint.

Repeal of section 111-A and rule 17 of Order XLV of the First Schedule Act V of 1908.

2. Section 111-A of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, and rule 17 of Order XLV of the First Schedule to the said Code shall be omitted.

3. The Federal Court may, with the approval of the Governor-General in his discretion, make rules for regulating the presentation and prosecution of appeals lying to that Court, including rules relating to the furnishing of security for costs, the proceedings, if any, to be had in High Courts in connection with such appeals, and the preparation and transmission to the Federal Court of the records in such appeals.

Power of Federal Court to make rules.

THE INDIAN (FEDERAL COURT JUDGES) ACT, 1942.

(5 and 6 Geo. 6, Ch. 7.)

[26th February, 1942.

An Act to extend the power of the Governor-General of India to make acting appointments of Judges of the Federal Court.

Be it enacted by the King's most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows:—

Amendment of S. 202 of the Government of India Act, 1935, 26 Geo. V and I. Edw. Sec. 2.

1. (1) At the end of section two hundred and two of the Government of India Act, 1935, there shall be added the following sub-section:—

in whose favour a decree had been passed. R. 7 also shows that the addition spoken of in R. 6 refers to an addition necessitated by a party already on the record "undergoing a change of status". Where the appeal has to be preferred for the first time against the heir of a person in whose favour the lower Court had passed a decree, the mere fact that an appeal had already been preferred as against other persons will not justify the application being treated merely as one to add a party. Even if it be so in form, it is in substance an appeal preferred against him for the first time, and it is only on that footing that the question of the application of S. 5 of the Limitation Act to such cases will arise. Held, further, that in the circumstances the delay must be held to have been satisfactorily explained. 1946 F. L.J. 25=50 C.W.N. (F.R.) 5=A.I.R. 1946 F.C. 13=(1946) 1 M.L.J. 327 (P.C.).

“(2) If the Governor-General in his discretion is satisfied, after considering a report from the Chief Justice of India—

(a) that in view of some personal interest which any Judge of the Federal Court has in the decision of any particular case, or of some part which any judge of the Federal Court has already taken, as judge or counsel or otherwise, in or in relation to any particular case (whether or not while it was before the Federal Court), that judge ought not to take part in the hearing and determination thereof, and

(b) that without Judge there are not sufficient Judges of the Federal Court available to sit for that purpose.

the Governor-General may in his discretion appoint a Judge of a High Court who is duly qualified for appointment as Judge of the Federal Court to act temporarily as a Judge of that Court, and the person so appointed shall, unless the Governor-General in his discretion thinks fit to revoke his appointment, be deemed to be a Judge of the Federal Court until that case has been heard and determined by the Federal Court.”

(2) The amendment made by this Act in the Government of India Act, 1935, shall be deemed to have been made therein immediately before the passing thereof.

(3) A copy of the said Act giving effect to—

(a) the amendments mentioned in sub-section (2) of section seventeen of the India and Burma (Miscellaneous Amendments) Act, 1940; and shall be prepared and certified by the Clerk of the Parliaments and deposited with the Rolls of Parliament, and His Majesty's printer shall print in accordance with the copy so certified all copies of the Government of India Act, 1935, which are printed after the said copy has been so prepared, certified and deposited.

(b) the amendment made by this Act.

Short title.

2. This Act may be cited as THE INDIA (FEDERAL COURT JUDGES) ACT, 1942.

THE FEDERAL COURT (SUPPLEMENTAL POWERS) ACT (XXVI OF 1942).

[1st October, 1942.

An Act to confer supplemental powers on the Federal Court.

WHEREAS it is expedient to confer certain supplemental powers on the Federal Court;

It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title.

1. This Act may be called THE FEDERAL COURT (SUPPLEMENTAL POWERS) ACT, 1942.

2. The Federal Court shall have power to delegate to the Registrar of the Court or any other official of the Court, by name or generally by designation, any judicial, quasi-judicial and non-judicial duties and the Registrar or such official in the discharge of any such delegated duties shall have power to administer oaths.

Adaptations of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, to provide for the summary assessments of income-tax on total incomes of less than Rs. 2,000.

1. The Income-tax Officer may, save where he has served a notice under sub-section (2) of section 22 of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, make a summary assessment of the income of an assessee to the best of his judgment, and shall serve on the assessee a notice of demand in a form to be prescribed by the Central Board of Revenue; and such notice shall be deemed to be a notice of demand under S. 29 of that Act.

2. Any assessee in respect of whom such summary assessment has been made may, within thirty days of receipt of the notice of demand, make an application to the Income-tax Officer for the cancellation or revision of the assessment, and the Income-tax Officer shall, after examining any accounts and documents and hearing any evidence which the assessee may produce, and such other evidence as the Income-tax Officer may require, determine, by order in writing, the amount of the tax, if any, payable by the assessee, and such determination shall be final:

Provided that, if any assessee making, such application files therewith a return of his income under sub-section (2) of S. 22 of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, the application shall be deemed to be a return under that sub-section and shall be dealt with accordingly.

3. A copy of an order under paragraph 2 shall be served on the assessee to whom it relates and shall be deemed to be a notice of demand under S. 29 of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922.

4. The above procedure shall apply also to the assessment and collection during the financial year 1933-34 of incomes of Rs. 1,000 and upward and less than Rs. 2,000 which have escaped assessment in the financial year 1932-33.

PART III.

ADAPTATIONS OF THE INDIAN INCOME-TAX ACT, 1922, TO PROVIDE FOR THE SUMMARY ASSESSMENTS OF INCOME-TAX ON TOTAL INCOMES OF LESS THAN RS. 2,000.

1. The Income-tax Officer may, save where he has served a notice under sub-section (2) of section 22 of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, make a summary assessment of the income of an assessee to the best of his judgment, and shall serve on the assessee a notice of demand in a form to be prescribed by the Central Board of Revenue; and such notice shall be deemed to be a notice of demand under S. 29 of that Act.

2. Any assessee in respect of whom such summary assessment has been made may, within thirty days of receipt of the notice of demand, make an application to the Income-tax Officer for the cancellation or revision of the assessment, and the Income-tax Officer shall, after examining any accounts and documents and hearing any evidence which the assessee may produce, and such other evidence as the Income-tax Officer may require, determine, by order in writing, the amount of the tax, if any, payable by the assessee, and such determination shall be final:

Provided that, if any assessee making such application files therewith a return of his income under sub-section (2) of S. 22 of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, the application shall be deemed to be a return under that sub-section and shall be dealt with accordingly.

3. A copy of an order under paragraph 2 shall be served on the assessee to whom it relates and shall be deemed to be a notice of demand under S. 29 of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922.

4. The above procedure shall apply also to the assessment and collection during the financial year 1934-35 of income of Rs. 1,000 and upward and less than Rs. 2,000 which have escaped assessment in the financial year 1933-34.

THE INDIAN FINANCE ACT, 1935.

[N.B.—Repealed in part by Act XX of 1937.]

The following Act, which has been assented to by the Central Government under the provisions of clause (b) of sub-section (1) of section 67-B of the Government of India Act, and has been expressed to be made by the Central Government under the provisions of sub-section (2) of the same section, is published in the Official Gazette, dated the 27th April, 1935.

WHEREAS it is expedient ¹[* * ] to fix rates of income-tax and super-tax ¹[ * *]; It is hereby enacted as follows:

Short title and extent. 1. (1) This Act may be called THE INDIAN FINANCE ACT, 1935.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India, including British Baluchistan and the Sonthal Parganas.

2, 3 and 4. [Omitted by Act XX of 1937.]

Income-tax and super-tax. 5. (1) Income-tax for the year beginning on the 1st day of April, 1935, shall be charged at the rates specified in Part I of the Second Schedule,¹ increased in each case, except in the case of total incomes of less than two thousand rupees falling under heading A in the said Part, by one-sixth of the amount of the rate.

(2) The rates of super-tax for the year beginning on the 1st day of April, 1935, shall, for the purposes of section 55 of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, be those specified in Part II of the Second Schedule, increased in each case by one-sixth of the amount of the rate.

(3) For the purposes of the Second Schedule "total income" means total income as determined for the purpose of income-tax, or super-tax; as the case may be, in accordance with the provisions of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922.

(4) For the purpose of assessing and collecting income-tax on total incomes of less than two thousand rupees the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922; shall be deemed to be subject to the adaptations set out in Part III of the Second Schedule.

(5) For the purpose of any assessment to be made for the year ending 31st March, 1936, the rate of income-tax applicable to such part of the total income of any person as is derived from salaries or from interest on securities paid in the year ending 31st March, 1935; shall be the previous year's rate; and for the purposes of refunds under sub-section (1) or sub-section (3) of section 48 in respect of dividends declared in the year ending 31st March, 1935; or of payments made in the said year of salaries or of interest on securities the rate applicable to the total income of the person claiming refunds shall be the previous year's rate.

Explanation.—In this sub-section the term “previous year's rate” with reference to any person means the rate of income-tax which would have been applicable to his total income if he had been assessed for the year ending 31st March, 1935; on a total income equal to that on which he is assessable for the year ending 31st March, 1936.

Inland postage rates.

Income-tax and super-tax.

8. (1) Subject to the provisions of sub-sections (2) and (3),—

(a) income-tax for the year beginning on the 1st day of April, 1942, shall be charged at the rates specified in Part I of Schedule II increased in the cases to which sub-paragraph (b) of paragraph A and paragraph B of that Part apply by a surcharge for the purposes of the Central Government at the rate specified therein in respect of each such rate of income-tax, and

(b) rates of super-tax for the year beginning on the 1st day of April, 1942, shall, for the purposes of section 55 of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, be those specified in Part II of Schedule II increased in the cases to which paragraphs A, B and C of that Part apply by a surcharge for the purposes of the Central Government at the rate specified therein in respect of each such rate of super-tax.

(2) In making any assessment for the year ending on the 31st day of March, 1943,—

(a) where the total income of an assessee, not being a company, includes any income chargeable under the head "Salaries" or under the head "Interest on Securities" or any income from dividends in respect of which he is deemed under section 49-B of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, to have paid income-tax imposed in British India, the income-tax payable by the assessee on that part of his total income which consists of such inclusions shall be an amount bearing to the total amount of income-tax payable according to the rates applicable under the operation of the Indian Finance Act, 1941, on his total income the same proportion as the amount of such inclusions bears to his total income;

(b) where the total income of an assessee, not being a company, includes any income chargeable under the head "Salaries" on which super-tax has been or might have been deducted under the provisions of sub-section (2) of section 18 of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, the super-tax payable by the assessee on that portion of his total income which consists of such inclusions shall be an amount bearing to the total amount of super-tax payable according to the rates applicable under the operation of the Indian Finance Act, 1941, on his total income the same proportion as the amount of such inclusions bears to his total income.

(3) In cases to which section 17 of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, applies, the tax chargeable shall be determined as provided in that section but with reference to the rates imposed by sub-section (1) of this section, and in accordance with the provisions of sub-section (2) of this section where applicable.

(4) For the purposes of this section and of the rates if tax imposed thereby, the expression "total income" means total income as determined for the purposes of income-tax or super-tax, as the case may be, in accordance with the provisions of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922.

(5) Notwithstanding anything contained in sub-section (1) or sub-section (2) no tax shall be payable in cases to which sub-paragraph (a) of paragraph A Part I of Schedule II applies where the assessee deposits with the Central Government in such manner and in accordance with such conditions as the Central Government may by rule prescribe for the purposes of this sub-section an amount representing not less than one rupee for every complete unit of twenty-five rupees by which his total income exceeds seven hundred and fifty rupees:

Provided that where the total income includes any income chargeable under the head "Salaries" or under the head "Interest on Securities" or any income from dividends in respect of which he is deemed under section 49-B of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, to have paid income-tax imposed in British India, the amount to be deposited by the assessee in order to obtain the exemption conferred by this sub-section shall be an amount bearing to the minimum required to be deposited under the foregoing provisions of this sub-section the same proportion as the amount of his total income diminished by the amount of such inclusions bears to the amount of his total income.

(6) A deposit made in accordance with the provisions of sub-section (5) shall not in any way be capable of being charged and shall not be liable to attachment under any decree or order of any Civil, Revenue or Criminal Court in respect of any debt or liability incurred by the depositor and neither the Official Assignee nor any receiver appointed under the Provincial Insolvency Act, 1920, shall be entitled to or have any claim on such deposit.

(7) Where the total income of an assessee referred to in sub-paragraph (b) of paragraph A of Part I of Schedule II does not exceed six thousand rupees, an amount representing one rupee for every complete unit of two hundred rupees of his total income as reduced by the deductions, if any, allowed under the second proviso to sub-section (1) of section 7, section 15 and sub-section (1) of section 58-B of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, shall be funded for the assessee's benefit and shall be paid to him on such date, not more than twelve months after the termination of the present hostilities, as the Central Government may fix:

Provided that nothing in this sub-section shall apply to any part of total income to which clause (a) of sub-section (2) applies.

Explanation.—In computing the amount to be funded under this sub-section if there is an incomplete unit amounting to one hundred rupees or more it shall be reckoned as a complete unit of two hundred rupees.

9. (1) In sub-clause (a) of clause (6) of section 2 of the Excess Profits Tax Act, 1940, for the words and figures "31st day of March, 1942", the words and figures "31st day of March, 1943" shall be substituted.

Continuance of and rate of Excess Profits Tax.

(2) The excess profits tax imposed by section 4 of the Excess Profits Tax Act, 1940, shall, in respect of any chargeable accounting period beginning after the 31st day of March, 1942, be an amount equal to sixty-six and two thirds per cent. of the amount by which the profits of the business during that chargeable accounting period exceed the standard profits.

10. (1) If before the 1st day of July, 1942, or within thirty days of the date on which any excess profits tax, charged under the provisions of the Excess Profits Tax Act, 1940, at the rate of sixty-six and two-thirds per cent. becomes payable, whichever of these dates is later, a further sum not exceeding one-fifth of the amount of the said excess profits tax is deposited with the Central Government the Central Government shall repay, at such date and subject to such conditions as it may hereafter determine, so much of the said excess profits tax as shall be equal to one-tenth of the amount thereof or to one-half of such further sum deposited, whichever is the less:

Provided that, if the said excess profits tax is thereafter reduced, whether by relief given in respect of a deficiency of profits, or by relief given in respect of double excess profits taxation or otherwise, and whether by refund or otherwise, the portion of the tax to be repaid under this section shall be correspondingly reduced:

Provided further that if the said excess profits tax is so reduced, the maximum sum that may be deposited with the Central Government under this section shall also be correspondingly reduced:

Provided further that the provisions of this section shall apply in respect of excess profits tax to which the section applies which became payable before the commencement of this Act if the further sum referred to herein is deposited before the 1st day of July, 1942:

Provided further that in relation to excess profits tax payable under the Excess Profits Tax Act, 1940, in respect of any profits which are also liable to assessment to excess profits tax under the law in force in the United Kingdom it shall be unnecessary to deposit the further sum referred to in this section, and the amount repayable by the Central Government under this section shall, subject to the first proviso, be one-tenth of the amount of the excess profits tax payable at the rate of sixty-six and two-thirds per cent. under the Excess Profits Tax Act, 1940.

(2) Any sum deposited with the Central Government under sub-section (1) shall carry simple interest at the rate of two per cent. per annum and shall be repaid within twelve months of the date of termination of the present hostilities.

(8) The Central Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, make rules for carrying out the purposes of this section and for prescribing the manner and conditions referred to in sub-section (5) of section 8.

THE INDIAN FINANCE ACT (VIII OF 1943).

An Act to fix the duty on salt manufactured in, or imported by land into, certain parts of British India, to fix maximum rates of postage under the Indian Post Office Act, 1898, to continue for a further period of one year the additional duties of customs imposed by section 6 of the Indian Finance Act, 1942, to fix rates of income-tax and super-tax, to continue the charge and levy of excess profits tax and fix the rate at which excess profits tax shall be charged, and to amend the Indian Finance (Supplementary—Extending) Act, 1931.

WHEREAS it is expedient to fix the duty on salt manufactured in, or imported by land into, certain parts of British India, to fix maximum rates of postage under the Indian Post Office Act, 1898 (VI of 1898), to continue for a further period of one year the additional duties of customs imposed by section 6 of the Indian Finance Act, 1942 (XII of 1942), to fix rates of income-tax and super-tax, to continue the charge and levy of excess profits tax and fix the rate at which excess profits tax shall be charged, and to amend the Indian Finance (Supplementary and Extending) Act, 1931; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

1. (1) This Act may be called THE INDIAN Short title and extent. FINANCE ACT, 1943.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India.

2. The provisions of section 7 of the Indian Salt Act, 1882 (XII of 1882), shall, in so far as they enable the Central Government to impose by rule made under that section a duty on salt manufactured in, or imported into, any part of British India, be construed as if, for the year beginning on the 1st day of April, 1943, they imposed such duty at the rate of one rupee and four annas per maund of eighty-two and two-sevenths pounds avoirdupois of salt manufactured in, or imported by land into, any such part, and such duty shall, for all the purposes of said Act, be deemed to have been imposed by rule made under that section.

3. For the year beginning on the 1st day of April, 1943, the Schedule contained in Schedule I to this Act shall be inserted in the Indian Post Office Act, 1898 (VI of 1898), as the First Schedule to that Act.

4. The additional duties of customs on certain goods chargeable with a duty of customs under the First Schedule to the Indian Tariff Act, 1934 (XXXII of 1934) or under the said Schedule read with any notification of the Central Government for the time being in force, imposed up to the 31st day of March, 1943, by section 6 of the Indian Finance Act, 1942 (XII of 1942), shall be levied and collected as provided in that section up to the 31st day of March, 1944.

Income-tax and super-tax. 5. (1) Subject to the provisions of sub-sections (2) and (3),—

(a) income-tax for the year beginning on the 1st day of April, 1943, shall be charged at the rates specified in Part I of Schedule II increased in the cases to which sub-paragraph (b) of paragraph A and paragraph B of that Part apply by a surcharge for the purposes of the Central Government at the rate specified therein in respect of each such rate of income-tax, and

(b) rates of super-tax for the year beginning on the 1st day of April, 1943, shall, for the purposes of section 55 of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922 (XI of 1922), be those specified in Part II of Schedule II increased in the cases to which paragraphs A, B and C of that Part apply by a surcharge for the purposes of the Central Government at the rate specified therein in respect of each such rate of super-tax.

(2) In making any assessment for the year ending on the 31st day of March, 1944,—

(a) where the total income of an assessee, not being a company, includes any income chargeable under the head "Salaries" or under the head "Interest on Securities" or any income from dividends in respect of which he is deemed under sec. 49-B of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922 (XI of 1922), to have paid income-tax imposed in British India, the income-tax payable by the assessee on that part of his total income which consists of such inclusions shall be an amount bearing to the total amount of income-tax payable according to the rates applicable under the operation of the Indian Finance Act, 1942, (XII of 1942), on his total income the same proportion as the amount of such inclusions bears to his total income;

(b) Where the total income of an assessee, not being a company, includes any income chargeable under the head "Salaries" on which super-tax has been or might have been deducted under the provisions of sub-section (2) of section 18 of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922 (XI of 1922), the super-tax payable by the assessee on that portion of his total income which consists of such inclusions shall be an amount bearing to the total amount of super-tax payable according to the rates applicable under the operation of the Indian Finance Act, 1942 (XII of 1942), on his total income the same proportion as the amount of such inclusions bears to his total income.

(3) In cases to which section 17 of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922 (XI of 1922), applies, the tax chargeable shall be determined as provided in that section but with reference to the rates imposed by sub-section (1) of this section, and in accordance with the provisions of sub-section (1) of this section where applicable.

(4) For the purposes of this section and of the rates of tax imposed thereby, the expression "total income" means total income as determined for the purposes of income-tax or super-tax, as the case may be, in accordance with the provisions of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922 (XI of 1922).

(5) Notwithstanding anything contained in sub-section (1) or sub-section (2) no tax shall be payable in cases to which sub-paragraph (a) of paragraph A of Part I of Schedule II applies where the assessee deposits with the Central Government in such manner and in accordance with such conditions as the Central Government may by rule prescribe for the purposes of this sub-section an amount representing not less than one rupee for every complete unit of twenty-five rupees by which his total income exceeds seven hundred and fifty rupees.

(6) A deposit made in accordance with the provisions of sub-section (5) shall not in any way be capable of being charged and shall not be liable to attachment under any decree or order of any Civil, Revenue or Criminal Court in respect of any debt or liability incurred by the depositor and neither the official Assignee nor any receiver appointed under the Provincial Insolvency Act, 1920 (V of 1920), shall be entitled to or have any claim or any such deposit.

(7) Where the total income of an assessee referred to in sub-paragraph (b) of paragraph A of Part I of Schedule II does not exceed six thousand rupees, an amount representing one rupee for every complete unit of two hundred rupees of his total income as reduced by the income, if any, exempt from tax under any provision of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922 (XI of 1922), or any notification issued thereunder shall be funded for the assessee's benefit and shall be paid to him on such date, not more than twelve months after the termination of the present hostilities, as the Central Government may fix:

Explanation.—In computing the amount to be funded under this sub-section if there is an incomplete unit amounting to one hundred rupees or more it shall be reckoned as a complete unit of two hundred rupees.

(8) Notwithstanding anything contained in sub-section (7) of section 8 of the Indian Finance Act, 1942 (XII of 1942), the amount to be funded under that sub-section for the assessee's benefit in respect of any assessment for the year ending on the 31st day of March, 1943, shall be calculated on his total income as reduced by the income, if any, exempt from tax under any provision of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922 (XI of 1922), or any notification issued thereunder.

(9) The Central Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, make rules prescribing the manner and conditions referred to in sub-section (5).

6. (1) In sub-clause (a) of clause (6) of section 2 of the Excess Profits Tax Act, 1940 (XV of 1940), for the words and figures "31st day of March, 1943" the words and figures "31st day of March, 1944" shall be substituted.

(2) The Excess profits tax imposed by section 4 of the Excess Profits Tax Act, 1940 (XV of 1940) shall, in respect of any chargeable accounting period beginning after the 31st day of March, 1943, be an amount equal to sixty-six and two-thirds per cent. of the amount by which the profits of the business during that chargeable accounting period exceed the standard profits.

7. In section 5 of the Indian Finance (Supplementary and Extending) Act, 1931, the words "motor spirit or kerosene" and the words and figures "or under the Motor Spirit (Duties) Act, 1917, or under the Indian Finance Act, 1922" shall be omitted, and for the words "or under any of the said Acts" the words "or under the said Act" shall be substituted.

THE INDIAN FINANCE ACT (1944).

[AMENDED BY ORDINANCE XXXIII OF 1944.]

[31st March, 1944.]

An Act to give effect to the financial proposals of the Central Government for the year beginning on the 1st day of April, 1944.

WHEREAS it is expedient to fix the duty on salt manufactured in, or imported by land into, British India, to fix maximum rates of postage under the Indian Post Office Act, 1898 (VI of 1898), to continue for a further period of one year the additional duties of customs imposed by section 6 of the Indian Finance Act, 1942 (XII of 1942), and to increase certain of those duties, to alter the duty of excise on tobacco and to impose duties of excise on betel-nuts, coffee and tea, to fix rates of income-tax and super-tax, and to continue the charge and levy of excess profits tax and make certain additional provisions relating thereto; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title and extent.

1. (1) This Act may be called THE INDIAN FINANCE ACT, 1944.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India.

2. The duty on salt manufactured in, or imported by land into, British India shall, for the year beginning on the 1st day of April, 1944, be at the rate of one rupee and nine annas per standard maund.

Fixation of salt duty.

3. For the year beginning on the 1st day of April, 1944, the Schedule contained in Schedule I to the Indian Finance Act, 1943 (VIII of 1943), shall again be inserted in the Indian Post Office Act, 1898 (VI of 1898), as the First Schedule to that Act.

Inland Postage rates.

4. (1) The additional duties of customs on certain goods chargeable with a duty of customs under the First Schedule to the Indian Tariff Act, 1934 (XXXII of 1934), or under the said Schedule read with any notification of the Central Government for the time being in force, imposed up to the 31st day of March, 1943, by sec. 6 of the Indian Finance Act, 1942 (XII of 1942), and continued up to the 31st day of March, 1944, by section 4 of the Indian Finance Act, 1943 (VIII of 1943), shall continue to be levied and collected as provided in section 6 of the Indian Finance Act, 1942, (XII of 1942), up to the 31st day of March, 1945, subject to the modification contained in sub-section (2).

Continuation of, and enhancement of, additional duties of customs imposed by section 6, Act XII of 1942.

(2) The additional duty to be levied and collected under the foregoing sub-section shall be one-half instead of one-fifth of the amount of the duty of customs specified in the First Schedule to the Indian Tariff Act, 1934 (XXXII of 1934), in the case of the following goods, namely:—

(a) spirits, comprised in Item No. 22 (4) and in Item No. 22 (5) of the said Schedule;

(b) tobacco, comprised in Item No. 24 and in Item No. 24 (3) of the said Schedule;

(c) cigars, comprised in Item No. 24 (1) of the said Schedule;

(d) cigarettes, comprised in Item No. 24 (2) of the said Schedule.

Alteration of excise duties on tobacco and imposition of excise duties on betelnuts, coffee and tea.

5. The amendments set out in Part I and Part II of the First Schedule shall be made respectively in the First and Second Schedules to the Central Excises and Salt Act, 1944 (I of 1944).

Income-tax and super-tax. 6. (1) Subject to the provisions of sub-sections (2), (3) and (5),—

(a) income-tax for the year beginning on the 1st day of April, 1944, shall be charged at the rates specified in Part I of the Second Schedule increased in each case by a surcharge for the purposes of the Central Government at the rate specified therein in respect of each such rate of income-tax, and

(b) rates of super-tax for the year beginning on the 1st day of April, 1944, shall, for the purposes of section 55 of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922 (XI of 1922), be those specified in Part II of the Second Schedule increased in the cases to which paragraphs A, B and C of that Part apply by a surcharge for the purposes of the Central Government at the rate specified therein in respect of each such rate of super-tax.

(2) In making any assessment for the year ending on the 31st day of March, 1945,—

(a) where the total income of an assessee, not being a company, includes any income chargeable under the head "Salaries" or under the head "Interest on Securities" or any income from dividends in respect of which he is deemed under section 49-B of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922 (XI of 1922), to have paid income-tax imposed in British India, the Income-tax payable by the assessee on that part of his total income which consists of such inclusions shall be an amount bearing to the total amount of income-tax payable according to the rates applicable under the operation of the Indian Finance Act, 1943 (VIII of 1943), on his total income the same proportion as the amount of such inclusions bears to his total income;

(b) where the total income of an assessee, not being a company, includes any income chargeable under the head "Salaries" on which super-tax has been or might have been deducted under the provisions of sub-section (2) of section 18 of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922 (XI of 1922), the super-tax payable by the assessee on that portion of his total income which consists of such inclusions shall be an amount bearing to the total amount of super-tax payable according to the rates applicable under the operation of the Indian Finance Act, 1943 (VIII of 1943), on his total income the same proportion as the amount of such inclusions bears to his total income.

(3) In making any assessment for the year ending on the 31st day of March, 1944, or the year ending on the 31st day of March, 1945,—

(a) where the total income of a company includes any profits and gains from life insurance business the super-tax payable by the company on that part of its total income which consists of such inclusion shall be in the case of an assessment for the first mentioned year at the rate of one anna and one pie in the rupee and in the case of an assessment for the second mentioned year at the rate of nine pies in the rupee;

(b) where the total income of an assessee not being a company, includes any profits and gains from life insurance business the income-tax and super-tax payable by the assessee on that part of his total income which consists of such inclusion shall be an amount bearing to the total amount of such taxes payable according to the rates applicable under the operation of the Indian Finance Act, 1942 (XII of 1942), on his total income the same proportion as the amount of such inclusion bears to his total income, so, however, that if the aggregate of the taxes so computed in respect of such inclusion exceeds the aggregate of the taxes on the same income payable by a company under the operation of the Indian Finance Act, 1942 (XII of 1942), the taxes payable on such inclusion shall be computed at the rates applicable to a company under the operation of the said Act.

(4) Where any assessment for the year ending on the 31st day of March, 1944, to which clause (a) or (b) of sub-section (3) is applicable has been completed at the rates of tax in operation under the Indian Finance Act, 1943 (VIII of 1943), it shall be revised by the Income-tax Officer in accordance with the provisions of clause (a) or (b), as the case may be, of sub-section (3) and the excess tax paid, if any, shall be refunded.

(5) In cases to which section 17 of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922 (XI of 1922), applies, the tax chargeable shall be determined as provided in that section but with reference to the rates imposed by sub-section (1) of this section, and in accordance with the provisions of sub-sections (2) and (3) of this section where applicable.

(6) For the purposes of this section and of the rates of tax imposed thereby, the expression "total income" means total income as determined for the purposes of income-tax or super-tax, as the case may be, in accordance with the provisions of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922 (XI of 1922).

(7) Where the total income of an assessee referred to in paragraph A of Part I of the Second Schedule does not exceed six thousand rupees, an amount representing one rupee for every complete unit of two hundred rupees of his total income as reduced by the income, if any, exempt from tax under any provision of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922 (XI of 1922), or any notification issued thereunder shall be funded for the assessee's benefit and shall be paid to him on such date, not more than twelve months after the termination of the present hostilities, as the Central Government may fix.

Explanation.—In computing the amount to be funded under this sub-section if there is an incomplete unit amounting to one hundred rupees or more it shall be reckoned as a complete unit of two hundred rupees.

(8) The provisions of section 23-A of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922 (XI of 1922), shall not apply in respect of profits and gains of the previous year for the assessment for the year ending on the 31st day of March, 1945.

7. (1) In sub-clause (a) of clause (6) of section 2 of the Excess Profits Tax Act, 1940 (XV of 1940), for the words and figures "31st day of March, 1944," the words and figures "31st day of March, 1945", shall be substituted.

(2) The excess profits tax imposed by section 4 of the Excess Profits Tax Act, 1940 (XV of 1940), shall, in respect of any chargeable accounting period beginning after the 31st day of March, 1944, be an amount equal to sixty-six and two-thirds per cent. of the amount by which the profits of the business during that chargeable accounting period exceed the standard profits.

Further provisions respecting excess profits tax. 8. (1) In sub-rule (1) of rule 2 of the Second Schedule to the Excess Profits Tax Act, 1940 (XV of 1940).—

(a) for the words "and in particular any debt for income-tax or super-tax or for excess profits tax in respect of the business shall be deducted" the following shall be substituted, namely:—

"and in particular there shall be deducted any debts incurred in respect of the business for income-tax or super-tax or excess profits tax, or for advance payments due under any provision of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922 (XI of 1922), or for any further sum payable in relation to excess profits tax under section 2 of the Excess Profits Tax Ordinance, 1943 (XVI of 1942)";

(b) after clause (b) of the proviso the following clauses shall be inserted, namely:—

"(c) in the case of any advance payment due under any provision of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922 (XI of 1922), on the date on which, under the provisions of that section, the payment first became due;

(d) in the case of any further sum payable in relation to excess profits tax under section 2 of the Excess Profits Tax Ordinance, 1943 (XVI of 1943), on the date on which, under the provisions of that section, the further sum became payable."

(2) To sub-section (1) of section 10 of the Indian Finance Act, 1942 (XII of 1942), the following proviso shall be added, namely:—

"Provided further that in respect of chargeable accounting periods ending after the 31st day of December, 1943, the amount repayable under this sub-section shall, subject to the provisions of the first of the foregoing provisos, be calculated by reference to the amount of the excess profits tax paid, and not by reference to the further amount deposited under this section".

(3) In section 2 of the Excess Profits Tax Ordinance, 1943 (XVI of 1943),—

(a) to sub-section (1) the following provisos shall be added, namely:—

"Provided that, in respect of any chargeable accounting period ending after the 31st day of December, 1943, the provisions of this sub-section shall have effect as if, in relation to any person who is a company, for the words 'one-fifth' the words 'nineteen-sixty-fourths' were substituted and as if, in relation to any other person, for the words 'one-fifth' the words 'seventeen-sixty-fourths' were substituted:

Provided further that if, in respect of any chargeable accounting period ending after the 31st day of December, 1943, a person who has deposited a further sum equal to seventeen-sixty-fourths of the excess profits tax payable shows that the amount of the income-tax and super-tax payable in respect of the excess profits arising in such period exceeds fifteen-sixty-fourths of the amount of the excess profits tax payable, so much of the deposit shall be refunded as will secure that the total of the deposit made and the income-tax and super-tax payable in respect of the excess profits arising in such period does not exceed one-half of the excess profits tax payable.";

(b) after sub-section (1) the following sub-section shall be inserted, namely:—

“(1-A) In respect of any chargeable accounting period ending after the 31st day of December, 1943, in respect of which a provisional assessment of excess profits tax is made under section 14-A of the Excess Profits Tax Act, 1940 (XV of 1940), the person liable to pay such excess profits tax shall deposit in the manner laid down in sub-section (1) a further sum equal to nineteen-sixty-fourths of the amount of the said excess profits tax if such person is a company and seventeen-sixty-fourths of the said amount if such person is not a company; and the provisions of sub-sections (6) and (7) of the said section 14-A shall apply to any payment made under this sub-section as they apply to a payment of excess profits tax.”;

(c) in sub-section (4) for the words, brackets and figure “sub-section (1) of the section”, where they occur for the first time, the words, brackets, figures and letter “sub-section (1) or (1-A) of this section” shall be substituted.

THE INDIAN FINANCE ACT, 1945.

An Act to give effect to the financial proposals of the Central Government for the year beginning on the 1st day of April, 1945.

WHEREAS it is expedient to fix the duty on salt manufactured in, or imported by land into, British India, to fix maximum rates of postage under the Indian Post Office Act, 1898 (VI of 1898), to continue for a further period of one year the additional duties of customs imposed by section 6 of the Indian Finance Act, 1942 (XII of 1942) and to modify certain of those duties, to alter the duty of customs and the duty of excise on tobacco, to fix rates of income-tax and super-tax, and to continue the charge and levy of excess profits tax;

It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title and extent.

1. (1) This Act may be called THE INDIAN FINANCE ACT, 1945.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India.

2. The duty on salt manufactured in, or imported by land into, British India shall, for the year beginning on the 1st day of April, 1945, be at the rate of one rupee and nine annas per standard maund.

3. For the year beginning on the 1st day of April, 1945, the Schedule contained in the First Schedule to this Act shall be inserted in the Indian Post Office Act, 1898 (VI of 1898), as the First Schedule to that Act.

4. (1) The additional duties of customs on certain goods chargeable with a duty of customs under the First Schedule to the

Continuation of, and enhancement of, additional duties of customs imposed by section 6, Act XII of 1942.

Indian Tariff Act, 1934, (XXXII of 1934), or under the said Schedule read with any notification of the Central Government for the time being in force, imposed up to the 31st day of March, 1943, by section 6 of the Indian Finance Act, 1942 (XII of 1942), and continued, subject to certain modifications, up to the 31st day of March, 1945, by section 4 of the Indian Finance Act, 1944, shall continue to be levied and collected as provided in section 6 of the Indian Finance Act, 1942 (XII of 1942) up to the 31st day of March, 1946, subject to the modifications contained in sub-section (2).

(2) The additional duty to be levied and collected under the foregoing sub-section shall be one-half instead of one-fifth of the amount of the duty of customs specified in the First Schedule to the Indian Tariff Act, 1934 (XXXII of 1934), in the case of spirits, comprised in Item No. 22 (4) and in sub-items (a), (c) and (d) of Item No. 22 (5) of the said Schedule; and no such additional duty shall be levied or collected on tobacco comprised in Items Nos. 24, 24 (1), 24 (2) and 24 (3) of the said Schedule.

Alteration of duty of customs on tobacco.

5. In the First Schedule to the Indian Tariff Act, 1934 (XXXII of 1934),—

(a) in Item No. 24, for the entry in the fourth column the entry “Rs. 8 per lb.” shall be substituted;

(b) in Item No. 24 (1), for the entry in the fourth column the following shall be substituted, namely:—

“The rate at which duty is for the time being leviable on articles included in Item No. 87 of this Schedule under this Act read with any other enactment in force, plus Rs. 7-8 per lb.”;

(c) in Item No. 24 (2), for the entry in the fourth column the following shall be substituted, namely:—

(d) in Item No. 24 (3), for the entries in the fourth and sixth columns, respectively, the entries “Rs. 7-8 per lb.” and “Rs. 7 per lb.” shall be substituted.

Alteration of duty of excise on tobacco.

6. In the First Schedule to the Central Excises and Salt Act, 1944 (I of 1944), in Item No. 9, under the heading “I. Unmanufactured tobacco”—

(a) for the entries (i), (ii) and (iii) contained in sub-item (i) beginning—

“(I) If flue-cured and intended for—

(a) manufacture into cigarettes containing—” the following shall be substituted, namely:—

	Per lb.
“(i) more than 60 per cent. weight of imported tobacco ..	Seven rupees and eight annas.
(ii) more than 40 per cent. but not more than 60 per cent. weight of imported tobacco. ..	Five rupees.
(iii) more than 20 per cent. but not more than 40 per cent. weight of imported tobacco ..	Three rupees and eight annas.
(iv) 20 per cent. or less than 20 per cent. weight of imported tobacco ..	Two rupees and eight annas.
(v) no imported tobacco ..	One rupee.”

and in the second column of clause (b) of that sub-item, for the words “Three rupees and eight annas” the words “Seven rupees and eight annas” shall be substituted;

(b) in sub-item (4), the word “stream” shall be omitted.

Income-tax and super-tax.

7. (1) Subject to the provisions of sub-sections (3), (4) and (5),—

(a) income-tax for the year beginning on the 1st day of April, 1945, shall be charged at the rates specified in Part I of the Second Schedule increased in each case by a surcharge for the purposes of the Central Government at the rate specified therein in respect of each such rate of income-tax, and -

(b) rates of super-tax for the year beginning on the 1st day of April, 1945, shall, for the purposes of section 55 of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, (XI of 1922), be those specified in Part II of the Second Schedule increased in the cases to which paragraphs A, B and C of that Part apply by a surcharge for the purposes of the Central Government at the rate specified therein in respect of each such rate of super-tax.

(2) If any provision is made in the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922 (XI of 1922), for the exemption from income-tax of a portion of the earned income included in the total income of an assessee, then, in making any assessment for the year ending on the 31st day of March, 1946, there shall be deducted from the total income of an assessee in accordance with such provision an amount equal to one-tenth of such earned income exclusive of any income chargeable under the head "Salaries" but not exceeding in any case two thousand rupees.

(3) In making any assessment for the year ending on the 31st day March, 1946, where the total income of an assessee, not being a company, includes any income chargeable under the head "Salaries" or under the head "Interest on Securities" or any income from dividends in respect of which he is deemed under section 49-B of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922 (XI of 1922), to have paid income-tax imposed in British India, the Income-tax payable by the assessee on that part of his total income which consists of such inclusions shall be an amount bearing to the total amount of income-tax payable according to the rates applicable under the operation of the Indian Finance Act, 1944, on his total income the same proportion as the amount of such inclusions bears to his total income.

(4) In making any assessment for the year ending on the 31st day of March, 1946,—

(a) where the total income of a company includes any profits and gains from life insurance business, the super-tax payable by the company on that part of its total income which consists of such inclusion shall be at the rate of six pises in the rupee;

(b) where the total income of an assessee, not being a company, includes any profits and gains from life insurance business, the income-tax and super-tax payable by the assessee on that part of his total income which consists of such inclusion shall be an amount bearing to the total amount of such taxes payable according to the rates applicable under the operation of the Indian Finance Act, 1942 (XII of 1942), on his total income the same proportion as the amount of such inclusion bears to his total income, so, however, that if the aggregate of the taxes so computed in respect of such inclusion exceeds the aggregate of the taxes on the same income payable by a company under the operation of the Indian Finance Act, 1942 (XII of 1942), the taxes payable on such inclusion shall be computed at the rates applicable to a company under the operation of the said Act.

(5) In cases to which section 17 of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922 (XI of 1922), applies, the tax chargeable shall be determined as provided in that section but with reference to the rates imposed by sub-section (1) of this section, and in accordance with the provisions of sub-sections (3) and (4) of this section where applicable.

(6) For the purposes of this section and of the rates of tax imposed thereby, the expression "total income" means total income as determined for the purposes of income-tax or super-tax, as the case may be, in accordance with the provisions of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922 (XI of 1922); and the expression "earned income" means earned income as defined for the purposes of the said Act.

(7) Where the total income of an assessee referred to in paragraph A of Part I of the Second Schedule does not exceed six thousand rupees, an amount representing one rupee for every complete unit of two hundred rupees of his total income as reduced by the income, if any, exempt from tax under any provision of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922 (XI of 1922), or any notification issued thereunder shall be funded for the assessee's benefit and shall be paid to him on such date not more than twelve months after the termination of the present hostilities, as the Central Government may fix:

Provided that the amount to be funded for the assessee's benefit shall in no case exceed two-fifths of the tax payable by him.

Explanation.—In computing the amount to be funded under this sub-section if there is an incomplete unit amounting to one hundred rupees or more it shall be reckoned as a complete unit of two hundred rupees.

(8) Notwithstanding anything contained in sub-section (7) of section 6 of the Indian Finance Act, 1944, the amount to be funded for the assessee's benefit under the provisions of that sub-section shall in no case exceed two-fifths of the amount of tax-payable by him in respect of his assessment for the year ending on the 31st day of March, 1945.

(9) The provisions of section 23-A of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922 (XI of 1922), shall not apply in respect of profits and gains of the previous year for the assessment for the year ending on the 31st day of March, 1946.

8. (1) In sub-clause (a) of clause (6) of section 2 of the Excess Profits Tax Act, 1940 (XV of 1940), for the words and figures "31st day of March, 1945", the words and figures "31st day of March, 1946", shall be substituted.

(2) The excess profits tax imposed by section 4 of the Excess Profits Tax Act, 1940 (XV of 1940) shall, in respect of any chargeable accounting period beginning after the 31st day of March, 1945, be an amount equal to sixty-six and two-thirds per cent. of the amount by which the profit of the business during that chargeable accounting period exceed the standard profits.

THE INDIAN FINANCE ACT (VII OF 1946.)

(Recd. Governor-General's assent on 30th March, 1946.)

An Act to give effect to the financial proposals of the Central Government for the year beginning on the 1st day of April, 1946.

WHEREAS it is expedient to fix the duty on salt manufactured in, or imported by land into, British India, to fix maximum rates of postage under the Indian Post Office Act, 1898 (VI of 1898), to continue, subject to certain modifications, for a further period of one year the additional duties of customs imposed by section 6 of the Indian Finance Act, 1942 (XII of 1942) to alter the duty of customs on cinematograph films, raw cotton and silver, to withdraw the duty of customs on raw cotton levied under the Cotton Fund Ordinance, 1942 (VIII of 1942), to impose a duty of customs on gold, to alter the duty of customs and the duty of excise on betelnuts, motor spirit, kerosene and minerals oils, to fix rates of income-tax and super-tax and to make certain provisions relating to income-tax, super-tax and excess profits tax.

It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title and extent. 1. (1) This Act may be called THE INDIAN FINANCE ACT, 1946.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India.

Fixation of salt duty. 2. The duty on salt manufactured in, or imported by land into, British India, for the year beginning on the 1st day of April, 1946, be at the rate of one rupee and nine annas per standard maund.

Inland postage rates. 3. For the year beginning on the 1st day of April 1946, the Schedule contained in the First Schedule to the Indian Finance Act 1945, shall again be inserted in the Indian Post Office Act, 1898 (VI of 1898), as the First Schedule to that Act.

Amendment of section 4, Indian Finance Act, 1945. 4. (1) To sub-section (2) of section 4 of the Indian Finance Act, 1945, the following shall be added, namely:—

"or, after the 28th day of February 1946, on kerosene and mineral oils, comprised in Items Nos. 27 (4) and 27 (5) of the said Schedule".

(2) The provisions of this section shall be deemed to have come into force on the 28th day of February 1946.

5. (1) The additional duties of customs on certain goods chargeable with a duty of customs under the First Schedule to the

Continuation of, and enhancement of additional duties of customs imposed by section 6, Act XII of 1942.

Indian Tariff Act, 1934 (XXXII of 1934), or under the said Schedule read with any notification of the Central Government for the time being in force, imposed up to the 31st day of March 1943 by section 6 of the Indian Finance Act, 1942, and continued, subject to certain modifications, up to the 31st day of March 1946, by section 4 of the Indian Finance Act, 1945, as amended by section 4 of this Act, shall continue to be levied and collected as provided in the said section 6 up to the 31st day of March 1947, subject to the aforesaid modifications and to the further modifications contained in sub-section (2).

(2) The additional duty to be levied and collected under sub-section (1) shall be one half instead of one-fifth of the amount of the duty of customs specified in the First Schedule to the Indian Tariff Act, 1934, in the case of wines, comprised in Item No. 22 (3) of the said Schedule; and no such additional duty shall be levied or collected on—

(a) betelnuts, comprised in Item No. 9 (5),

(e) gold bullion and gold sheets and plates which have undergone no process of manufacture subsequent to rolling, and gold coin, comprised in Items Nos. 61 (3) and 62 (2), of the said Schedule.

Imposition and alteration of certain duties of customs.

6. In the First Schedule to the Indian Tariff Act, 1934 (XXXII of 1934),—

(a) in Item No. 9 (5), for the entries in the fourth and sixth columns, the entires "Five annas per lb." and "Four annas and six pies per lb." shall be respectively substituted;

(b) in Item No. 29, for the entry in the fourth column, the entry "Three pies per linear foot" shall be substituted;

(c) in Item No. 29 (1), for the entry in the fourth column, the entry "Four annas per linear foot" shall be substituted;

(d) in Item No. 46 (3), for the entry in the fourth column, the entry "Two annas per lb." shall be substituted;

(e) in Items Nos. 61 (2) and 62 (1) in the fourth column, for the word "Three" the word "eight" shall be substituted;

(f) in Items Nos. 61 (3) and 62 (2),—

(i) in the third column the word "Revenue" shall be inserted, and

(ii) for the entry in the fourth column, the following entry shall be substituted, namely:—

"Rs. 25 per tola of 180 grains fine".

7. In the First Schedule to the Indian Tariff Act, 1934 (XXXII of 1934), in Items Nos. 27 (4) and 27 (5), in the fourth column, the words 'and nine pies' shall be omitted.

8. (1) In the First Schedule to the Central Excises and Salt Act, 1944 (I of 1944), in Item No. 4 for the word "Fifteen" the word "Twelve" shall be substituted.

(2) The provisions of this section shall be deemed to have come into force on the 1st day of March 1946.

9. In the First Schedule to the Central Excises and Salt Act, 1944 (I of 1944), in Item No. 12, for the words "Two annas" the words "One anna" shall be substituted.

Repeal of Ordinance VIII of 1942. 10. The Cotton Fund Ordinance, 1942, is hereby repealed:

Provided that the repeal of the said Ordinance shall not prejudice the power of Central Government to utilise the balance at the credit of the fund established thereunder for the purposes set out in section 3 of that Ordinance.

Income-tax and super-tax. 11. (1) Subject to the provisions of sub-sections (3), (4), (5), (6) and (7),—

(a) income-tax for the year beginning on the 1st day of April, 1946 shall be charged at the rates specified in Part I of the Schedule, and

(b) rates of super-tax for the year beginning on the first day of April, 1946, shall for the purposes of section 55 of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922 (XI of 1922), be those specified in Part II of the Schedule.

(2) In making any assessment for the year ending on the 31st day of March 1947, there shall be deducted from the total income of an assessee, in accordance with the provisions of section 15-A of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, an amount equal to—

(i) one-tenth of the earned income chargeable under the head "Salaries" which is included in his total income, subject to a maximum of two thousand rupees, plus

(ii) one-fifth of the earned income other than the income chargeable under the head "Salaries" which is included in his total income:

Provided that the aggregate amount to be deducted under this sub-section shall not in any case exceed four thousand rupees.

(3) In making any assessment for the year ending on the 31st day of March 1947,—

(a) where the total income of an assessee, not being a company, includes any income chargeable under the head "Salaries" as reduced by the deduction for earned income appropriate thereto, or any income chargeable under the head "Interest on Securities", or any income from dividends in respect of which he is deemed under section 49-B of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, to have paid income-tax imposed in British India, the income-tax payable by the assessee on that part of his total income which consists of such inclusions shall be an amount bearing to the total amount of income-tax payable according to the rates applicable under the operation of the Indian Finance Act, 1945, on his total income the same proportion as the amount of such inclusions bears to his total income;

(b) where the total income of an assessee, not being a company, includes any income chargeable under the head "Salaries" on which super-tax has been or might have been deducted under the provisions of sub-section (2) of section 18 of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, the super-tax payable by the assessee on that portion of his total income which consists of such inclusion shall be an amount bearing to the total amount of super-tax payable according to the rates applicable under the operation of the Indian Finance Act, 1945, on his total income the same proportion as the amount of such inclusion bears to his total income.

(4) In making any assessment for the year ending on the 31st day of March 1947, where the total income of an assessee consists partly of earned income and partly of unearned income, the super-tax payable by him shall be—

(i) on that part of the earned income chargeable under the head "Salaries" to which clause (b) of sub-section (3) applies, the amount of super-tax computed in accordance with the provisions of that clause, plus

(ii) on the remainder of the earned income, the amount which bears to the total amount of super-tax which would have been payable on his total income had it consisted wholly of earned income the same proportion as such remainder bears to his total income, plus

(iii) on the unearned income, the amount which bears to the amount of super-tax which would have been payable on his total income had it consisted wholly of unearned income the same proportion as the unearned bears to his total income.

(5) Where the total income of an assessee referred to in paragraph A of Part I of the Schedule does not exceed six thousand rupees and includes any income to which clause (a) of sub-section (3) applies, the income-tax payable by the assessee on such inclusion as computed in accordance with the provisions of that clause shall be reduced by an amount representing one rupee for every complete unit of two hundred rupees of such inclusion as reduced by the amount of income, if any, exempt under the second proviso to sub-section (1) of section 7, section 15, and sub-section (1) of section 58-F, of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922.

Provided that the reduction to be made under this sub-section shall not in any case exceed two-fifths of the income-tax otherwise payable on such inclusion:

Provided further that if there is an incomplete unit of such inclusion amounting to one hundred rupees or more, it shall for the purposes of this sub-section be reckoned as a complete unit of two hundred rupees.

(6) In making any assessment for the year ending on the 31st day of March 1947,—

(a) where the total income of a company includes any profits and gains from life insurance business, the super-tax payable by the company shall be reduced by an amount computed at the rate of one anna in the rupee on that part of its total income which consists of such inclusion;

(b) where the total income of an assessee, not being a company, includes any profits and gains from life insurance business, the income-tax and super-tax payable by the assessee on that part of his total income which consists of such inclusion shall be an amount bearing to the total amount of such taxes payable according to the rates applicable under the operation of the Indian Finance Act, 1942 (XII of 1942), on his total income the same proportion as the amount of such inclusion bears to his total income, so however that the aggregate of the taxes so computed in respect of such inclusion shall not in any case exceed the amount of tax payable on such inclusion at the rate of five annas in the rupee.

(7) In cases to which section 17 of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922 applies, the tax chargeable shall be determined as provided in that section but with reference to the rates imposed by sub-section (1) of this section and in accordance, where applicable with the provisions of sub-sections (3), (4), (5) and (6) of this section.

(8) For the purposes of making any deduction of income-tax in the year beginning on the first day of April 1946, under sub-section (2) or sub-section (2-B) of section 18 of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, from any earned income chargeable under the head "Salaries", the estimated total income of the assessee under this head shall, in computing the income-tax to be deducted, be reduced by an amount equal to one-fifth of such earned income but not exceeding in any case four thousand rupees.

(9) For the purposes of this section and of the rates of tax imposed thereby, the expression "total income" means total income as determined for the purposes of income-tax or super-tax, as the case may be, in accordance with the provisions of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, and the expression "earned income" has the meaning assigned to it in clause (6-AA) of section 2 of that Act.

(10) If any provision is made in the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, for the allowance of expenditure on scientific research related to the business carried on by an assessee, then any such expenditure incurred by him in the previous year for the assessment for the year ending on the 31st day of March 1946, shall for the purposes of that provision and in accordance therewith, be deemed to be expenditure incurred in the previous year for the assessment for the year ending on the 31st day of March 1947, and shall be added to the amount of such expenditure, if any, in that previous year.

(11) Any sum being excess profits tax repaid in respect of any chargeable accounting period under the provisions of section 10 of the Indian Finance Act, 1942, or of section 2 of the Excess Profits Tax Ordinance, 1943 (XVI of 1943), shall be deemed to be income for the purpose of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, and shall, notwithstanding the provisions of section 34 of that Act, be treated as income of the previous year which constitutes or includes the chargeable accounting period in respect of which the said sum is repayable:

Provided that any such sum repaid in respect of any profits which are also assessable to excess profits tax under the law in force in the United Kingdom shall be treated, for the purpose of assessment to income-tax and super-tax, as income of the previous year during which the repayment is made.

(12) The Income-tax Officer shall calculate the amount of income-tax and super-tax payable in respect of each sum referred to in sub-section (11), and such amount shall be deducted from the said sum at the time that it is repaid, and where the regular assessment proceeding for the appropriate assessment year are not complete; the tax so deducted shall be treated as a payment of income-tax or super-tax, as the case may be, for the purposes of sub-section (5) of section 18 of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922.

(13) Any person objecting to the amount of a deduction made under sub-section (12) may appeal to the Appellate Assistant Commissioner within thirty days of the receipt of the repayment order, and the provisions of sections 30, 31 and 33 of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, shall apply as if such appeal were an appeal under the first mentioned section.

(14) Where under the provisions of sub-section (2) of section 12 of the Excess Profits Tax Act, 1940 (XV of 1940), excess profits tax payable under the law in force in the United Kingdom has been deducted in computing for the purposes of income-tax and super-tax the profits and gains of any business, the amount of any repayment under sub-section (1) of section 28 of the Finance Act, 1941 (4 & 5 Geo. VI, c. 30), as amended by section 37 of the Finance Act, 1942 (5 & 6 Geo. VI, c. 21), in respect of those profits, shall be deemed to be income for the purposes of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, and shall, for the purpose of assessment to income-tax and super-tax, be treated as income of the previous year during which the repayment is made.

12. If any provision is made in clause (vi) of sub-section (2) of section 10 of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922 (XI of 1922), Excess profits-tax. to allow in respect of depreciation a further sum which is not deductible in determining the written down value, then such sum shall not be included in the allowances made in computing profits for the purposes of the Excess Profits Tax Act, 1940 (XV of 1940).

Amendment of section 10, Act XII of 1942. 13. (1) To sub-section (1) of section 10 of the Indian Finance Act, 1942, the following further proviso shall be added, namely:—

"Provided further that no such further sum herein referred to shall be deposited with the Central Government after the 28th day of February, 1946".

(2) The provisions of this section shall be deemed to have come into force on the 28th day of February, 1946.

THE SCHEDULE.

(See Section 11).

PART I.

Rates of Income-tax.

A.—In the case of every individual, Hindu undivided family, unregistered firm and other association of persons not being a case to which paragraph B of this Part applies—Rate.

Provided that—

(i) no additional super-tax shall be payable where such part is less than, or equal to, five per cent. on the capital of the company;

(ii) where such part is more than five per cent. on the capital of the company, the additional super-tax payable shall be reduced by the amount of additional super-tax which would, but for the provisions of clause (i) of this proviso, have been payable had such part been equal to five per cent. on the capital of the company;

(iii) where any dividends (not being dividends payable at a fixed rate) have been declared before the 1st day of March, 1946 in respect of the whole or part of the previous year for the assessment for the year ending on the 31st day of March, 1947, and the amount of super-tax computed at the rates set out in this paragraph exceeds the amount of super-tax which would be payable by the company at the rate specified in the Indian Finance Act, 1945, such proportion of the amount of super-tax computed under this paragraph as the amount of dividends declared before the 1st day of March, 1946 bears to the total amount of dividends declared in respect of the said previous year (not being dividends payable at a fixed rate) shall be so reduced as not to exceed the same proportion of the super-tax computed at the rate specified in the Indian Finance Act, 1945;

(iv) the additional super-tax shall be payable only by a company in which the public are substantially interested within the meaning of the Explanation to sub-section (1) of section 23-A of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, or a subsidiary company of such a company where the whole of the share capital of such subsidiary company is held by the parent company or by the nominee thereof.

Explanation.—For the purposes of this paragraph,—

(a) the expression "capital of the company" shall be deemed to mean the paid-up share capital at the beginning of the previous year for the assessment for the year ending on the 31st day of March, 1947 (other than capital entitled to a dividend at a fixed rate) plus any reserves other than depreciation reserves and reserves for bad or doubtful debts at the same date as diminished by the amount on deposit on the same date with the Central Government under section 10 of the Indian Finance Act, 1942, or section 2 of the Excess Profits Tax Ordinance, 1943;

(b) the expression "dividend" shall be deemed to include any distribution included in the expression "dividend" as defined in clause (6-A) of section 2 of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, and any such distribution made during the year ending on the 31st day of March, 1947, shall be deemed to have been made in respect of the whole or part of the previous year;

(c) where any portion of the profits and gains of a company is not included in its total income, by reason of such portion being exempt from tax under any provision of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, the capital of the company, the total amount of dividends and the amount of dividends payable at a fixed rate shall each be deemed to be the proportion thereof that the total income of the company bears to its total profits and gains.

[4th February, 1897.]

An Act to provide for certain matters relating to Fisheries in British India.

WHEREAS it is expedient to provide for certain matters relating to fisheries in British India; it is hereby enacted as follows:—

1. (1) This Act may be called THE INDIAN Title and extent. FISHERIES ACT, 1897.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India, ¹[* ] ²[ * * *]

2. Subject to the provisions of sections 8 and 10 of the ³General Clauses Act, 1887, this Act shall be read as supplemental to any other enactment⁴ for the time being in force relating to fisheries in any part of British India ⁴[* * *].

Act to be read as supplemental to other Fisheries Laws.

Definitions.

3. In this Act, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context,—

- (1) "fish" includes shell-fish;
- (2) "fixed engine" means any net, cage, trap or other contrivance for taking fish, fixed in the soil or made stationary in any other way; and
- (3) "private water" means water which is the exclusive property of any person or in which any person has for the time being an exclusive right of fishery whether as owner, lessee or in any other capacity.

Explanation.—Water shall not cease to be "private water" within the meaning of this definition by reason only that other persons may have by custom a right of fishery therein.

4. (1) If any person uses any dynamite or other explosive substance in any water with intent thereby to catch or destroy any of the fish that may be therein, he shall be punishable with imprisonment for a term which may extend to two months, or with fine which may extend to two hundred rupees.

Destruction of fish by explosives in inland waters and on coasts.

(2) In sub-section (1) the word "water" includes the sea within a distance of one marine league of the sea-coast; and an offence committed under that sub-section in such sea may be tried, punished and in all respects dealt with as if it had been committed on the land abutting on such coast.

(5) See Punjab Fisheries Act (II of 1914).

(6) Madras—see Madras Act (II of 1927).

The right of a subject to a several fishery in a navigable river depends not upon the ownership of the bed of the river but upon the navigability of the river, and is extinguished on the river losing its navigable character. The question whether the river has lost its navigable character is a question of fact. If the channel of a river is deep for about nine months of the year and boats of ordinary size employed in commerce can navigate it during that period, the river cannot be said to lose its navigable character so as to extinguish a right to a several fishery therein merely because no boats can pass for about three months in the year during the dry weather. The right to fish in the pools of water remaining in the permanent bed of the river during the dry weather subsists, although they are not connected throughout the year with the flowing waters of the stream. Such pools are a part and parcel of river itself. 48 C.W.N. 537=A.I.R. 1944 Cal. 315.

5. (1) If any person puts any poison, lime or noxious material into any water with intent thereby to catch or destroy any fish, he shall be punishable with imprisonment for a term which may extend to two months, or with fine which may extend to two hundred rupees.

(2) The Provincial Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, suspend the operation of this section in any specified area; and may in like manner modify or cancel any such notification.

6. (1) The Provincial Government may make rules¹ for the purposes hereinafter in this section mentioned, and may by notification in the Official Gazette apply all or any of such rules to such waters, not being private waters, as the Provincial Government may specify in the said notification.

(2) The Provincial Government may also, by a like notification, apply such rules or any of them to any private water with the consent in writing of the owner thereof and of all persons having for the time being any exclusive right of fishery therein.

(3) Such rules may prohibit or regulate all or any of the following matters, that is to say:—

(a) the erection and use of fixed engines;

(b) the construction of weirs; and

(c) the dimension and kind of the nets to be used and the modes of using them.

(4) Such rules may all prohibit all fishing in any specified water for a period not exceeding two years.

(5) In making any rule under this section the Provincial Government may—

(a) direct that a breach of it shall be punishable with fine which may extend to one hundred rupees, and, when the breach is a continuing breach, with a further fine which may extend to ten rupees for every day after the date of the first conviction during which the breach is proved to have been persisted in; and

(b) provide for—

(i) the seizure, forfeiture and removal of fixed engines, erected, or used or nets used, in contravention of the rule, and

(ii) the forfeiture of any fish taken by means of any such fixed engine or net.

(6) The power to make rules under this section is subject to the condition that they shall be made after previous publication.

7. (1) Any police-officer, or other person¹ specially empowered by the Provincial Government² in this behalf, either by name or as holding any office, for the time being may, without an order from a Magistrate and without warrant arrest any person committing in his view any offence punishable under section 4 or 5 or under any rule under section 6—

(a) if the name and address of the person are unknown to him, and

(b) if the person declines to give his name and address, or if there is reason to doubt the accuracy of the name and address if given.

(2) A person arrested under this section may be detained until his name and address have been correctly ascertained:

LEG. REF.

¹For rules under sec. 6, see different local Rules and Orders.

²For notification under this section in Madras, see Fort St. George Gazette, 1903, Pt. I, p. 19.

Provided that no person so arrested shall be detained longer than may be necessary for bringing him before a Magistrate, except under the order of a Magistrate for his detention.

THE INDIAN FISHERIES (MADRAS AMENDMENT) ACT (II OF 1927).

[2nd December, 1928.]

An Act to amend the Indian Fisheries Act, 1897, in its application to the Presidency of Madras.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the Indian Fisheries Act, 1897, in its application to the Presidency of Madras for the purposes hereinafter appearing; and whereas the previous sanction of the Governor-General has been obtained to the passing of this Act; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title and extent.

1. (1) This Act may be called THE INDIAN FISHERIES (MADRAS AMENDMENT) ACT, 1927.

(2) It extends to the whole of the Presidency of Madras.

Amendment of S. 6, Act IV of 1897.

2. In sub-section (3) of section 6 of the Indian Fisheries Act, 1897 (hereinafter referred to as the said Act)—

(i) after the words "prohibit or regulate" the words "either permanently or for a time or for specified seasons only" shall be inserted, and

(ii) for clause (c) the following clause shall be substituted, namely:—

"(c) the dimension and kind of the contrivances to be used for taking fish generally or any specified kind of fish and the modes of using such contrivances."

Amendment of S. 6, Act IV of 1897.

3. For sub-section (4) of section 6 of the said Act, the following sub-section shall be substituted, namely:—

"(4) Such rules may also prohibit all fishing in any specified water except under a lease or license granted by Government and in accordance with such conditions as may be specified in such lease or licence:

Provided that no rule shall be made under this sub-section to prohibit sea fishery other than pearl fishery or chank fishery unless, after previous publication under sub-section (6) of this section, it has been laid in draft before the Legislative Council, and has been approved by a resolution of the Legislative Council either with or without modification or addition; but upon such approval being given the rule may be issued in the form in which it has been so approved."

Addition of new S. 8 to Act IV of 1897.

4. After section 7 of the said Act, the following section shall be added, namely:—

Recovery of rents, fees and other moneys payable to Government.

"8. All rents, fees and other moneys payable to Government on account of fishery leases and licences granted by them may be recovered in like manner as if they were arrears of land revenue."

THE FOREIGNERS ACT (III OF 1864).¹

territory and remain within the allegiance of his former sovereign, seems somewhat fine; but the distinction is one between a mere assertion of elected allegiance and actual conduct clearly showing such an election. It is not enough for an inhabitant to assert, when the question arises, that he has elected to remain within the allegiance of his former sovereign; there must be conduct on his part, such as leaving the ceded territory and going to reside permanently in his former sovereign's dominions to indicate his previous election. forthwith report the fact to the ¹[Central Government]. On the receipt of a report under this sub-section the ¹[Central Government] shall without delay either direct that the foreigner be discharged or make an order for the removal of such foreigner in accordance with the provisions of section 3.]

4. If any foreigner ordered to remove himself from British India, or ordered to remove himself therefrom by a particular route, shall neglect or refuse so to do, or if any foreigner, having removed himself from British India in consequence of an order issued under any of the provisions of this Act, or having been removed from British India under any of the said provisions, shall wilfully return thereto without a license in writing granted by the Central Government ²[* * ] such foreigner may be apprehended and detained in safe custody, until he shall be discharged therefrom by order of the Central Government ²[ * ] upon such terms and conditions as the said Central Government ²[ * *] shall deem sufficient for the peace and security of British India, and of the allies of Her Majesty, and of the neighbouring Princes and States.

5. Whenever the Central Government shall consider it necessary to take further precautions in respect of foreigners residing or travelling in British India or any part thereof, it shall be lawful for the Central Government, by a notification published in the Official Gazette, to order that the provisions of this and the subsequent sections of this Act shall be in force in British India, or in such part thereof as shall be specified in such notification, for such period as shall be therein declared; and thereupon, and for such period, the whole of this Act including this and the subsequent sections shall have full force and effect in British India or such part thereof as shall have been so specified. The Central Government may, from time to time, by a notification published as aforesaid cancel or alter any former notification which may still be in force; or may extend the period declared therein: Provided that none of the provisions of this or the subsequent sections of this Act shall extend to any foreign minister duly accredited by his Government; to any consul or vice-consul; to any person under the age of fourteen years; or to any person in the service of Her Majesty.

6. Every foreigner on arriving in any part of British India in which all the provisions of this Act are for the time being in force under an order issued as provided in the last preceding section, from any port or place not within British India, or from any port or place within British India in Council. 18 B. 636. The Act applies to all foreigners, although their residence in Bombay may not be likely to affect or endanger the peace and security of British India. (Ibid.) The Government would be the sole Judges of what was necessary for the peace and security of British India, and if they acted in accordance with the letter of the Act, the High Court could not enquire into the sufficiency or otherwise of their reasons for so acting. (Ibid.) A warrant issued under secs. 3 and 4 of Act III of 1864 should not comprise two distinct orders, one to the foreigner to remove himself from British India, the other to arrest him in case it is not duly obeyed. There should be a separate order directing him to remove himself from British India which should be duly served upon him. Then, in case of his refusal or neglect to comply with its terms, there should be a further order by the Government authorizing his arrest and detention in jail. The persons named in the warrant should be described with sufficient certainty and particularity. The particular route to be specified in the order referred to in sec. 3 of Act III of 1864 is intended to be a route in British India and not a route beyond the High Seas. In the absence of statutory provision, the absence of a seal will render a warrant void. (Ibid.) See also 18 C.W.N. 705=15 Cr.L.J. 328=23 I.C. 678=1 L.W. 989 (P.C.).

where all the provisions of this Act are not in force, shall if he arrive at a presidency-town, forthwith report himself to the Commissioner of Police of such town, or, if he arrive at any other place, then he shall forthwith report himself to the Magistrate of the district, or to such other officer as shall be appointed to receive such reports, by the Central Government ¹[* * *].

7. The report shall be in writing, and shall be signed by the person reporting himself, and shall specify his name or names, the nation to which he belongs, the place from which he shall have come, the place or places of his destination, the object of his pursuit, and the date of his arrival in such presidency-town or other place. The report shall be recorded by the officer to whom it is made.

8. The provisions of the last two preceding sections shall not extend to any person being the master or commander of a vessel or employed therein, but if any such person shall be in any part of British India in which all the provisions of this Act are for the time being in force, after he shall have ceased to be actually employed in a vessel, he shall forthwith report himself in manner aforesaid.

Foreigner being masters of vessels or employed therein, to report themselves when they cease to be so employed.

9. If any foreigner shall neglect to report himself as required by this Act, he may be dealt with in the manner hereinafter provided in respect of foreigners travelling without a license.

No foreigner to travel in India without a license.

10. No foreigner shall travel in or pass through any part of British India in which all the provisions of this Act are for the time being in force without a license.

Grant of licenses.

²[11. Licenses under this Act may be granted by the Central Government or by officers specially authorized by that Government.]

12. Every such license shall state the name of the person to whom the license is granted, the nation to which he belongs, the district or districts through which he is authorized to pass or the limits within which he is authorized to travel, and the period (if any) during which the license is intended to have effect.

13. The license may be granted subject to such conditions as the Central Government ³[* * ] may direct, or as the officer granting the license may deem necessary. Any license may be revoked at any time by the Central Government ³[ * *] or by the officer who granted the licence.

License may be granted subject to conditions and may be revoked.

14. If any foreigner travel in or attempt to pass through any part of British India without such license as aforesaid, or beyond the districts or limits mentioned therein, or after such license shall have been revoked, or shall violate any of the conditions therein specified, he may be apprehended without warrant by any officer exercising any of the powers of a Magistrate, or by any European commissioned officer in the service of Her Majesty, or by any member of a volunteer corps enrolled by authority of ⁴[the Central Government] whilst on duty, or by any police-officer.

Foreigner travelling without or contrary to the conditions of license may be apprehended.

If any person be apprehended by a person not exercising any of the powers of a Magistrate and not being a police-officer, he shall be delivered over as soon as possible to a police-officer, and forthwith carried before the Magistrate of the district. Whenever any person shall be apprehended by or taken before the Magistrate of the district, such Magistrate shall immediately report the case to the ¹[Central Government] and shall cause the person brought before him to be discharged, or to be conveyed to one of the presidency-towns, or pending the orders of such Government to be detained.

16. Any person apprehended or detained under the provisions of this Act may be admitted to bail by the Magistrate of the district, or by any officer authorized to grant licenses, and shall be put to as little inconvenience as possible during his detention in custody.

²[17. The Central Government may order any person apprehended or detained under the provisions of this Act to remove himself from any part of British India by sea or by such other route as the Central Government may direct; or the Central Government may cause him to be removed from that part of British India by such route and in such manner as to that Government may seem fit.]

18. The Central Government may by order prohibit any person or any class of persons not being natural-born subjects of Her Majesty within the meaning of the ³Statute 3 and 4 William IV, Chap. 85, section 81, from travelling in or passing through any part of British India in which all the provisions of this Act may, for the time being, be in force, and from passing from any part thereof to another without a license to be granted by such officer or officers as shall be specified in the order; and, if any person so prohibited shall wilfully disobey such order, he may be apprehended without warrant by any of the officers specified in section 14 of this Act, and carried before the Magistrate of the district, and dealt with under the provisions of section 17 in the same manner as if he were a foreigner; and the Central Government may order such person to be detained in safe custody or under the surveillance of the police so long as it may be deemed necessary for the peace and security of British India or any part thereof.

THE FOREIGNERS ACT (II OF 1940).

[23rd February, 1940.]

An Act to provide for the imposition of restrictions on foreigners.

WHEREAS it is expedient to provide for the imposition of restrictions on the entry of foreigners into British India, their presence therein and their departure therefrom; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title, extent and duration.

1. (1) This Act may be called THE FOREIGNERS ACT, 1940.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India.

(3) It shall be in force during the continuance of the present war and for a period of six months thereafter.

LEG. REF.

¹Reference to Local Government omitted by A.O. 1937.

Definitions.

2. In this Act,—

(a) "foreigner" has the meaning assigned to it in the Foreigners Act, 1864, except that it does not include—

- (i) any ruler or subject of any Indian State; or
- (ii) any native of the tribal areas;

(b) "prescribed" means prescribed by orders made under this Act;

(c) "specified" means specified by direction of a prescribed authority.

3. (1) The Central Government may, by order, make provision, either generally with respect to all foreigners or with respect to any particular foreigner or any prescribed class or description of foreigner, for prohibiting, regulating or restricting the entry of foreigners into British India or their departure therefrom or their presence or continued presence therein.

Power to make orders.

(2) In particular, and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing power, orders made under this section may provide that the foreigner—

(a) shall not enter British India, or shall enter British India only at such times and by such route and at such port or place and subject to the observance of such conditions on arrival as may be prescribed;

(b) shall not depart from British India, or shall depart only at such times and by such route and from such port or place and subject to the observance of such conditions on departure as may be prescribed;

(c) shall not remain in British India, or in any prescribed area therein;

(d) shall remove himself to, and remain in, such area in British India as may be prescribed;

(e) shall comply with such conditions as may be prescribed or specified—

(i) requiring him to reside in a particular place;

(ii) imposing any restrictions on his movements;

(iii) requiring him to furnish such proof of his identity and to report such particulars to such authority in such manner and at such time and place as may be prescribed or specified;

(iv) requiring him to allow his photograph and finger impression to be taken and to furnish specimens of his hand-writing and signature to such authority and at such time and place as may be prescribed or specified;

(v) prohibiting him from association with persons of a prescribed or specified description;

(vi) prohibiting him from engaging in activities of a prescribed or specified description;

(vii) prohibiting him from using or possessing prescribed or specified articles or

(viii) otherwise regulating his conduct in any such particular as may be prescribed or specified;

(f) shall enter into a bond with or without sureties for the due observance of, or as an alternative to the enforcement of, any or all prescribed or specified restrictions or conditions; or

(g) shall be arrested and detained or confined;

and may make provision for such incidental and supplementary matters as may, in the opinion of the Central Government, be expedient or necessary for giving effect to this Act.

4. (1) Any foreigner (hereinafter referred to as an internee) in respect of whom there is in force any order made under clause (g) of sub-section (2) of section 3, directing that he be detained or confined, shall be detained or confined in such place and manner and subject to such conditions as to maintenance, discipline and the punishment of offences and breaches of discipline as the Central Government may from time to time determine.

(2) No person shall—

(a) knowingly assist an internee to escape from custody or knowingly harbour an escaped internee; or

(b) give an escaped internee any assistance with intent thereby to prevent, hinder or interfere with the apprehension of the internee.

(3) The Central Government may, by order, provide for regulating access to, and the conduct of persons in, places in British India where internees are detained and for prohibiting or regulating the despatch or conveyance from outside such places to or for internees therein of such articles as may be prescribed.

(4) No proceedings shall be taken by virtue of sub-section (2) or sub-section (3) against any person in respect of any act done by him when he is himself an internee.

5. (1) No foreigner who was in British India on the date on which this Act came into force shall, while in British India after that date, assume or use or purport to assume or use for any purpose any name other than that by which he was ordinarily known immediately before the said date.

(2) Where, after the date on which this Act came into force, any foreigner carries on or purports to carry on (whether alone or in association with any other person) any trade or business under any name or style other than that under which that trade or business was being carried on immediately before the said date, he shall, for the purposes of sub-section (1), be deemed to be using a name other than that by which he was ordinarily known immediately before the said date.

(3) In relation to any foreigner who, not having been in British India on the date on which this Act came into force, thereafter enters British India, sub-sections (1) and (2) shall have effect as if for any reference, in those sub-sections to the date on which this Act came into force were substituted a reference to the date on which he first enters British India thereafter.

(4) For the purposes of this section—

(a) the expression "name" includes a surname, and

(b) a name shall be deemed to be changed if the spelling thereof is altered.

(5) Nothing in this section shall apply to the assumption or use—

(a) of any name in pursuance of a Royal licence; or

(b) by any married woman, of her husband's name.

6. Any District Magistrate and any Commissioner of Police, or, where there is no Commissioner of Police, any Superintendent of Police, may, for any purpose connected with the enforcement of this Act or any order made thereunder, enter, with such assistance as he may think fit any vessel or aircraft at any port or place in British India and may—

(a) direct the master of the vessel or the pilot of the aircraft, as the case may be,—

(i) before any passenger disembarks, or before the vessel or aircraft leaves such port or place, as the case may be, to furnish a list in writing of the passengers who are on board or who have been carried on board at any time since the vessel or aircraft commenced its journey, or who have signified their intention of departing from British India on board such vessel or aircraft, setting out the ports or places at which they embarked, the ports or places of their disembarkation or intended disembarkation, and such other particulars as may be prescribed, and

(ii) to answer to the best of his ability any question relating to the passengers who are on board or who have disembarked in any part of British India; and

(b) if any foreigner seeking to enter British India on board such vessel or aircraft does not give satisfactory reasons for entering British India, either—

(i) refuse to allow such foreigner to disembark from such vessel or aircraft, or

(ii) place him under such restraint as may be prescribed or specified.

7. If any question arises with reference to this Act or any order made or Burden of proof. direction given thereunder, whether any person is or is not a foreigner or is or is not a foreigner of a particular class or description, the onus of proving that such person is not a foreigner or is not a foreigner of such particular class or description, as the case may be, shall, notwithstanding anything contained in the Indian Evidence Act, 1872, lie upon such person.

8. The Central Government may, by order, declare that any or all of the Power to exempt from application of Act. provisions of this Act or the orders made thereunder shall not apply, or shall apply only with such modifications or subject to such conditions as may be specified, to or in relation to any individual foreigner or any class or description of foreigner.

9. (1) Any authority empowered by or under or in pursuance of the pro-

Power to give effect to orders, directions, etc. visions of this Act to give any direction or to exercise any other power, may, in addition to any other action expressly provided for in this Act, take or cause to be taken, such steps and use, or cause to be used, such force as may, in its opinion, be reasonably necessary for securing compliance with such direction or for preventing or rectifying any breach thereof, or for the effective exercise of such power, as the case may be.

(2) Any police-officer may take such steps and use such force as may, in his opinion, be reasonably necessary for securing compliance with any order made or direction given under or in pursuance of the provisions of this Act or for preventing or rectifying any breach of such order or direction.

(3) The power conferred by this section shall be deemed to confer upon any person acting in exercise thereof a right of access to any land or other property whatsoever.

10. Any authority upon which any power to make or give any direction,

Power to delegate authority. consent or permission or to do any other act is conferred by this Act or by any order made thereunder may, unless express provision is made to the contrary, in writing authorise, conditionally or otherwise, any authority subordinate to it to exercise such power on its behalf, and thereupon the said subordinate authority shall, subject to such conditions as may be contained in the authorisation, be deemed to be the authority upon which such power is conferred by or under this Act.

11. (1) Any person who attempts to contravene, or abets, or attempts to Attempts, etc., to contravene the provisions of this Act, etc. abet, or does any act preparatory to, a contravention of, the provisions of this Act or of any order made or direction given thereunder, or fails to comply with any direction given in pursuance of any such order, shall be deemed to have contravened the provisions of this Act.

(2) Any person who, knowing or having reasonable cause to believe that any other person has contravened the provisions of this Act or of any order made or direction given thereunder, gives that other person any assistance with intent thereby to prevent, hinder or otherwise interfere with his arrest, trial or punishment for the said contravention, shall be deemed to have abetted that contravention.

(3) The master of any vessel or the pilot of any aircraft, as the case may be, by means of which any foreigner enters or leaves British India in contravention of any order made under, or direction given in pursuance of, section 3 shall, unless he proves that he exercised all due diligence to prevent the said contravention, be deemed to have contravened this Act.

12. If any person contravenes the provisions of this Act or of any order made thereunder, or any direction given in pursuance of this Act or such order, he shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to five years and shall also be liable to fine; and if such person has entered into a bond in pursuance of clause (f) of sub-section (2) of section 3, his bond shall be forfeited, any person bound thereby shall pay the penalty thereof, or show cause to the satisfaction of the convicting Court why such penalty should not be paid.

13. No suit, prosecution or other legal proceeding shall lie against any person for anything which is in good faith done or intended to be done under this Act.

14. The provisions of this Act shall be in addition to, and not in derogation of, the provisions of the Foreigners Act, 1864, the Registration of Foreigners Act, 1939, and of any other enactment for the time being in force.

15. (1) The Foreigners Ordinance, 1939, is hereby repealed.

(2) Notwithstanding such repeal, all orders made, directions given things done and action taken under the said Ordinance, shall be deemed to have been made, given, done or taken under the provisions of this Act, as if this Act had come into force on the 26th day of August, 1939, references to the said Ordinance in any rule made under any enactment shall be construed as references to this Act, and offences committed against or proceedings commenced under the said Ordinance may be punished or may be continued and completed as if such offences were committed against or such proceedings were commenced under this Act.

THE INDIAN FOREIGN MARRIAGE ACT (XIV OF 1903).¹

[Amended by Act XXXIV of 1939.]

[23rd October, 1903.

An Act to give effect to the Foreign Marriages Order in Council, 1903.

WHEREAS it is expedient to give effect to the Foreign Marriages Order in Council, 1903; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title, extent and application. 1. (1) This Act may be called THE INDIAN FOREIGN MARRIAGE ACT, 1903.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India, inclusive of British Baluchistan, the Santhal Parganas, the Shan States and the Pargana of Spiti; and

(3) It applies also to all British subjects and to all servants of the King, whether British subjects or not, in ²[any Indian State].

2. (1) Notice in writing of a marriage which it is intended to solemnize under the Foreign Marriage Act, 1892, may be given by one of the parties intending such marriage, to—

(a) a Marriage Registrar appointed under the Indian Christian Marriage Act, 1872, where either of such parties is a person professing the Christian religion;

(b) a District Magistrate, Chief Presidency Magistrate or Political Agent, where neither of such parties is a person professing the Christian religion:

Provided that the party giving such notice as aforesaid shall have had his usual place of abode for not less than three consecutive weeks immediately preceding the giving of notice within the local limits of the area for which the Marriage Registrar, Magistrate or Political Agent to whom the notice is given, is appointed.

(2) Every notice given under this section shall state—

(a) the name, surname, age and profession or condition of each of the parties intending marriage;

(b) the residence of each of them;

(c) the time during which each of them has dwelt there; and

(d) the place in which the intended marriage is to be solemnized;

and it shall contain a declaration by the party giving the notice to the effect that he believes that there is no impediment of kindred or affinity or other lawful hindrance to the solemnization of the said intended marriage.

(3) A copy of every notice given under this section shall be published by being affixed in some conspicuous place in the office of the officer to whom the notice is given.

(4) On the expiration of four clear days after such notice as aforesaid has been published in the manner prescribed by sub-section (3), the officer to whom the notice is given, unless he is aware of any impediment of kindred or affinity or other lawful hindrance to the solemnization of the said intended marriage shall, on payment of such fee (if any) as ¹[the Provincial Government for each Province and the Central Government for British subjects and servants of the Crown in any Indian State] may fix in this behalf, furnish the party by whom the notice was given, with a certificate, under his hand and seal, to the effect that the notice has been so given and published.

THE FOREIGN RELATIONS ACT (XII OF 1932).

[8th April, 1932.

An Act to provide against the publication of statements likely to prejudice the maintenance of friendly relations between His Majesty's Government and the Governments of certain foreign States.

WHEREAS it is expedient to provide against the publication of statements likely to prejudice the maintenance of friendly relations between His Majesty's Government and the Governments of certain foreign States; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title and extent.

1. (1) This Act may be called THE FOREIGN RELATIONS ACT, 1932.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India, including British Baluchistan and the Sonthal Parganas.

2. Where an offence falling under Chapter XXI of the Indian Penal Code in section 198 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, any Court competent in other respects to take cognizance of such offence may take cognizance thereof on such complaint.

Explanation.—¹[* * * * *].

3. The provisions of sections 19-A to 99-G of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, and of sections 27-B to 27-D of the Indian Post Office Act, 1898, shall apply in the case of any book, newspaper or other document containing matter which is defamatory of a Ruler of a State outside but adjoining India or of the consort or son or principal Minister of such Ruler and tends to prejudice the maintenance of friendly relations between His Majesty's Government and the Government of such State, in like manner as they apply in the case of a book, newspaper or document containing seditious matter within the meaning of those sections:

Provided that for the purposes of this section the said provisions shall be construed as if for the words "Provincial Government" wherever they occur, the words "Central Government" were substituted.

4. Where, in any trial of an offence upon a complaint under section 2, or in any proceeding before a High Court arising out of section 3, there is a question whether any person is a Ruler of any State, or is the consort or son or principal Minister of such Ruler, a certificate under the hand of a Secretary to the Central Government that such person is such Ruler, consort, son or principal Minister shall be conclusive proof of that fact.

THE SCHEDULE.

THE INDIAN FOREST ACT (XVI OF 1927).¹

[21st September, 1927.]

An Act to consolidate the law relating to forests, the transit of forest-produce and the duty leviable on timber and other forest-produce.

WHEREAS it is expedient to consolidate the law relating to forests, the transit of forest-produce and the duty leviable on timber and other forest-produce; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

Short title and extent.
(Old Act, S. 1.)

1. (1) This Act may be called THE INDIAN FOREST ACT, 1927.

(2) It extends to Bombay, Bengal, Bihar and Orissa, the United Provinces, the Punjab, the Central Provinces and the North-West Frontier Province (except the District of Hazara).

(3) The Provincial Government of any other province may, by notification in the Official Gazette extend this Act to the whole or any specified part of the province. (Cf. Act XXXVIII of 1920, S. 2 and Sch. I.).

LEG. REF.

¹For the forest law in force in the Hazara Districts, see the Hazara Forest Regulation, 1893 (VI of 1893), P. and N. W. Code.

For Madras, Ajmere-Merwara, Burma, British Baluchistan and Assam there are special forest laws—see Madras Forest Act, 1882 (V of 1882), Madras Code; the Ajmere Forest Regulation, 1874 (VI of 1874), A.J. Code; the Burma Forest Act, 1902 (IV of 1902); the British Baluchistan Forest Regulation, 1890 (V of 1890), Bal. Code; the Assam Forest Regulation, 1891 (VII of 1891), E.B. and A. Code.

In the Punjab, the Land Preservation (Chos.) Act, 1900 (Punjab Act II of 1900), is to be read with and taken as part of this Act, see P. and N. W. Code. For rules for the conservancy of forests and jungles in the hill district of the Punjab-territories, see appendix to ibid. These rules are also in force in the North-West Frontier Province, see sec. 4 and second schedule to Reg. VII of 1901, ibid.

SEC. 1.—The Act does not oust jurisdiction of Civil Courts to decide whether certain land is forest land or waste land. 7 Bom.L.R. 496. This Act is one that curtails proprietary rights. See 55 P.L.R. 1901 (Cr.) (where the scope and nature of this Act is discussed). As to construction of Act see 1943 N.L.J. 130 cited under sec. 63. Infringement of the Forest Rules not provided for in the rules should be tried under the Penal Code. 4 P.R. 1869 (Cr.). If a person is found with a gun and ammunition in a Reserved Forest it may be presumed until the contrary is shown that hunting was being engaged in. 1929 M.W.N. 808.

Interpretation clause. 2. In this Act, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context,—

(1) "cattle" includes elephants, camels, buffaloes, horses, mares, geldings, ponies, colts, fillies, mules, asses, pigs, rams, ewes, sheep, lambs, goats and kinds;

(2) "forest-officer" means any person whom ¹[* ] the Provincial Government or any officer empowered by ¹[ *] the Provincial Government in this behalf, may appoint to carry out all or any of the purposes of this Act or to do anything required by this Act or any rule made thereunder to be done by a forest-officer;

(3) "forest-offence" means an offence punishable under this Act or under any rule made thereunder;

(4) "forest-produce" includes—

(a) the following whether found in, or brought from, a forest or not that is to say:—(Cf. Act V of 1890, S. 2.)

timber, charcoal, caoutchouc, catechu, wood-oil, resin, natural varnish, bark, lac, mahua flowers, mahua seeds ²[Kuth] and myrabolams, and (see Act XV of 1911, S. 2.).

(b) the following when found in, or brought from, a forest, that is to say,—

(i) trees and leaves, flowers and fruits, and all other parts or produce not hereinbefore mentioned, of trees.

(ii) plants not being trees (including grass, creepers, reeds and moss), and all parts or produce of such plants,

(iii) wild animals and skins, tusks, horns, bones, silk, cocoons, honey and wax, and all other parts or produce of animals, and

(iv) peat, surface soil, rock, and minerals (including limestone, laterite, mineral oils and all products of mines or quarries);

³[(4-A) "owner" includes a Court of Wards in respect of property under the superintendence or charge of such Court];

(5) "river" includes any stream, canal, creek or other channels, natural or artificial;

(6) "timber" includes trees when they have fallen or have been felled, and all wood whether cut up or fashioned or hollowed out for any purpose or not; and [see Act V of 1890, S. 2, cl. (2)].

(7) "tree" includes palms, bamboos, stumps, brush-wood and canes. [See Act V of 1890, S. 2, cl. (1).]

CHAPTER II.

OF RESERVED FORESTS.

3. The Provincial Government may constitute any forest-land or waste-

cial Government. (Old Act S. 4.)

land which is the property of Government, or over which the Government has proprietary rights, or to the whole or any part of the forest-produce of which the Government is entitled, a reserved forest in the manner hereinafter provided.

4. (1) Whenever it has been decided to constitute any land a reserved forest, the Provincial Government shall issue a notification in the Official Gazette—

(a) declaring that it has been decided to constitute such land a reserved forest;

(b) specifying as nearly as possible, the situation and limits of such land; and

(c) appointing an officer (hereinafter called "the Forest Settlement-officer") to inquire into and determine the existence, nature and extent of any rights alleged to exist in favour of any person in or over any land comprised within such limits, or in or over any forest-produce, and to deal with the same as provided in this Chapter.

Explanation.—For the purpose of clause (b), it shall be sufficient to describe the limits of the forest by roads, rivers, ridges, or other well-known or readily intelligible boundaries.

(2) The officer appointed under clause (c) of sub-section (1) shall ordinarily be a person not holding any forest-office except that of Forest Settlement-officer.

(3) Nothing in this section shall prevent the Provincial Government from appointing any number of officers not exceeding three, not more than one of whom shall be a person holding any forest-office except as aforesaid, to perform the duties of a Forest Settlement-officer under this Act.

5. After the issue of a notification under section 4, no right shall be acquired in or over the land comprised in such notification, except by succession or under a grant or contract in writing made or entered into by or on behalf of [the Crown] or some person in whom such right was vested when the notification was issued; and no fresh clearings for cultivation or for any other purpose shall be made in such land except in accordance with such rules as may be made by the Provincial Government in this behalf.

Proclamation by Forest Settlement-officer. (Old
Act, S. 6 and S. 5 of Act
V of 1890.)

6. When a notification has been issued under section 4, the Forest Settlement-officer shall publish in the local vernacular in every town and village in the neighbourhood of the land comprised therein, a proclamation—

(a) specifying, as nearly as possible, the situation and limits of the proposed forest;

(b) explaining the consequences which, as hereinafter provided, will ensue on the reservation of such forest; and

(c) fixing a period of not less than three months from the date of such proclamation, and requiring every person claiming any right mentioned in

SEC. 6 (c).—As to presumption from long possession and enjoyment and as to burden section 4 or section 5 within such period either to present to the Forest Settlement-officer a written notice specifying or to appear before him and state, the nature of such right and the amount and particulars of the compensation (if any) claimed in respect thereof.

7. The Forest Settlement-officer shall take down in writing all statements made under section 6, and shall at some convenient place inquire into all claims duly preferred under that section, and the existence of any rights mentioned in section 4 or section 5 and not claimed under section 6 so far as the same may be ascertainable from the records of Government and the evidence of any persons likely to be acquainted with the same.

Powers of Forest Settlement-officer. (Old Act, S. 8.)

8. For the purpose of such inquiry, the Forest Settlement-officer may exercise the following powers, that is to say:—

(a) power to enter, by himself or any officer authorised by him for the purpose upon any land, and to survey, demarcate and make a map of the same; and

(b) the powers of a Civil Court in the trial of suits.

9. Rights in respect of which no claim has been preferred under section 6,

Extinction of rights. (Old Act, S. 9.)

and of the existence of which no knowledge has been acquired by inquiry under section 7, shall be extinguished, unless before the notification under section 20 is published, the person claiming them satisfies the Forest Settlement-officer that he had sufficient cause for not preferring such claim within the period fixed under section 6.

10. (1) In the case of a claim relating to the practice of shifting cultivation,

Treatment of claims relating to practice of shifting cultivation. (S. 5 of Act V of 1890.)

the Forest Settlement-officer shall record a statement setting forth the particulars of the claim and of any local rule or order under which the practice is allowed or regulated, and submit the statement to the Provincial Government, together with his opinion as to whether the practice should be permitted or prohibited wholly or in part.

(2) On receipt of the statement and opinion, the Provincial Government may make an order permitting or prohibiting the practice wholly or in part.

(3) If such practice is permitted wholly or in part, the Forest Settlement-officer may arrange for its exercise—

(a) by altering the limits of the land under settlement so as to exclude land of sufficient extent, of a suitable kind, and in a locality reasonably convenient for the purposes of the claimants, or

(b) by causing certain portions of the land under settlement to be separately demarcated, and giving permission to the claimants to practice shifting cultivation therein under such conditions as he may prescribe.

(4) All arrangements made under sub-section (3) shall be subject to the previous sanction of the Provincial Government.

(5) The practice of shifting cultivation shall in all cases be deemed a privilege subject to control, restriction and abolition by the Provincial Government.

11. (1) In the case of a claim to right in or over any land, other than a of proof in such cases. See 15 M. 315; 7 M.L.T. 241; 3 M.L.J. 231.

Sec. 8.—As to the powers of Forest Settlement-officer, see 14 M. 247. Notification closing forest for an indefinite period is not bad for indefiniteness, when it is not known at that time, how long it may be necessary to close the forest. 19 F.R. 1880 (Cr.).

Sec. 9.—See 1942 Cal. 371=48 C.W.N. 347, cited under sec. 20.

Sec. 11.—As to acquisition of land over which riparian rights are claimed, see 20 M. 279; as to claim on mortgage, see 21 B. 396. As to burden of proof on questions of title, see 3 M.L.J. 231; 15 M. 315; 7 M.L.T. 241; 1929 Nag. 190.

Power to acquire land over which right is claimed. (Old Act, S. 10.) right-of-way or right-of-pasture, or a right to forest-produce or a water-course, the Forest Settlement-officer shall pass an order admitting or rejecting the same in whole or in part.

(2) If such claim is admitted in whole or in part, the Forest Settlement-officer shall either—

(i) exclude such land from the limits of the proposed forest;
(ii) come to an agreement with the owner thereof for the surrender of his rights; or

(iii) proceed to acquire such land in the manner provided by the Land Acquisition Act, 1894.

(3) For the purpose of so acquiring such land—

(a) the Forest Settlement-officer shall be deemed to be a Collector proceeding under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894;

(b) the claimant shall be deemed to be a person interested and appearing before him in pursuance of notice given under section 9 of that Act;

(c) the provisions of the preceding sections of that Act shall be deemed to have been complied with; and

(d) the collector, with the consent of the claimant, or the Court, with the consent of both parties, may award compensation in land, or partly in land, and partly in money.

Order on claims to rights to pasture or to forest-produce. (Old Act, S. 11.) 12. In the case of a claim to rights of pasture or to forest-produce, the Forest Settlement-officer shall pass an order admitting or rejecting the same in whole or in part.

Record to be made by Forest Settlement-officer. (Old Act, S. 12.) 13. The Forest Settlement-officer, when passing any order under section 12, shall record, so far as may be practicable,—

(a) the name, father's name, caste, residence and occupation of the person claiming the right; and

(b) the designation, position and area of all fields or groups of fields (if any) and the designation and position of all buildings (if any) in respect of which the exercise of such rights is claimed.

14. If the Forest Settlement-officer admits in whole or in part any claim under section 12, he shall also record the extent to which the claim is so admitted, specifying the number and description of the cattle which the claimant is from time to time entitled to graze in the forest, the season during which such pasture is permitted, the quantity of timber and other forest-produce which he is from time to time authorised to take, or receive, and such other particulars as the case may require. He shall also record whether the timber or other forest-produce obtained by the exercise of the rights claimed may be sold or bartered.

15. (1) After making such record the Forest Settlement-officer shall to the best of his ability, and having due regard to the maintenance of the reserved forest in respect of which the claim is made, pass such orders as will ensure the continued exercise of the right so admitted.

(2) For this purpose the Forest Settlement-officer may—

(a) set out some other forest-tract of sufficient extent, and in a locality reasonably convenient, for the purposes of such claimants, and record an order conferring upon them a right of pasture or to forest-produce (as the case may be) to the extent so admitted; or

(b) so alter the limits of the proposed forest as to exclude forest land of sufficient extent, and in a locality reasonably convenient, for the purposes of the claimants; or

(c) record an order, continuing to such claimants, a right of pasture or to forest-produce, as the case may be, to the extent so admitted, at such seasons, within such portions of the proposed forest, and under such rules, as may be made in this behalf by the Provincial Government.

16. In case the Forest Settlement-officer finds it impossible, having due regard to the maintenance of the reserved forest, to make such settlement under section 15 as shall ensure the continued exercise of the said rights to the extent so admitted, he shall, subject to such rules as the Provincial Government may make in this behalf, commute such rights, by the payment to such persons of a sum of money in lieu thereof, or by the grant of land, or in such other manner as he thinks fit.

17. Any person who has made a claim under this Act, or any forest-officer or other person generally or specially empowered by the Provincial Government in this behalf, may, within three months from the date of the order passed on such claim by the Forest Settlement-officer under section 11, section 12, section 15 or section 16, present an appeal from such order to such officer of the Revenue Department, of rank not lower than that of a Collector, as the Provincial Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, appoint to hear appeals from such orders:

Provided that the Provincial Government may establish a Court (hereinafter called the Forest Court) composed of three persons to be appointed by the Provincial Government, and when the Forest Court has been so established, all such appeals shall be presented to it.

18. (1) Every appeal under section 17 shall be made by petition in writing and may be delivered to the Forest Settlement-officer who shall forward it without delay to the authority competent to hear the same.

(2) If the appeal be to an officer appointed under section 17, it shall be heard in the manner prescribed for the time being for the hearing of appeals in matters relating to land-revenue.

(3) If the appeal be to the Forest Court, the Court shall fix a day and a convenient place in the neighbourhood of the proposed forest for hearing the appeal, and shall give notice thereof to the parties, and shall hear such appeal accordingly.

(4) The order passed on the appeal by such officer or Court, or by the majority of the members of such Court, as the case may be, shall, subject only to revision by the Provincial Government, be final.

19. The Provincial Government, or any person who has made a claim under this Act, may appoint any person to appear, plead and act on its or his behalf before the Forest Settlement-officer, or the appellate officer or Court, in the course of any inquiry or appeal under this Act.

Sec. 17.—See 17 M. 193; power to excuse delay in filing appeal, see 10 M. 210.

Sec. 18 (4): APPELLATE ORDER BECOMING FINAL—JURISDICTION OF CIVIL COURT.—Where an appellate order rejecting the claim of a person to land included within a proposed forest has become final under sec. 18 (4) of the Forest Act, the Civil Court has no power to restore that land or to grant compensation in respect thereof to him or to his successor-in-interest. I.L.R. (1942) 2 Cal. 35=46 C.W.N. 347=A.I.R. 1942 Cal. 371.

SECS. 18 AND 21.—Contract to work Government forest—Partnership of contractor with third person—Not void. See 117 I.C. 298 (case-law discussed).

Notification declaring forest reserved. (Old Act, S. 19.)

20. (1) When the following events have occurred, namely:—

(a) the period fixed under section 6 for preferring claims has elapsed, and all claims, if any, made under that section or section 9 have been disposed of by the Forest Settlement-officer;

(b) if any such claims have been made, the period limited by section 17 for appealing from the orders passed on such claims has elapsed, and all appeals (if any) presented within such period have been disposed of by the appellate officer or Court; and

(c) all lands (if any) to be included in the proposed forest, which the Forest Settlement-officer has, under section 11, elected to acquire under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894, have become vested in the Government under section 16 of that Act, the Provincial Government shall publish a notification in the Official Gazette, specifying definitely, according to boundary marks erected or otherwise, the limits of the forest which is to be reserved, and declaring the same to be reserved from a date fixed by the notification.

(2) From the date so fixed such forest shall be deemed to be a reserved forest.

Publication of translation of such notification in the neighbourhood of forest. (Old Act, S. 20.)

21. The Forest-officer shall, before the date fixed by such notification, cause a translation thereof into the local vernacular to be published in every town and village in the neighbourhood of the forest.

22. The Provincial

Power to revise arrangement made under S. 15 or S. 18. (Old Act, S. 21.)

Government may, within five years from the publication of any notification under section 20, revise any arrangement made under section 15 or section 18, and may for this purpose rescind or modify any order made under section 15 or section 18 and direct that any one of the proceedings specified in section 15 be taken in lieu of any other of such proceedings, or that the rights admitted under section 12 be computed under section 16.

23. No right of any description shall be acquired in or over a reserved forest except by succession or under a grant or contract in writing made by or on behalf of the [Crown] or some person in whom such right was vested when the notification under section 20 was issued.

24. (1) Notwithstanding anything contained in section 23, no right continued under clause (c) of sub-section (2) of section 15 shall be alienated by way of grant, sale, lease, mortgage or otherwise, without the sanction of the Provincial Government:

Provided that, when any such right is appended to any land or house, it may be sold or otherwise alienated with such land or house.

(2) No timber or other forest-produce obtained in exercise of any such right shall be sold or bartered except to such extent as may have been admitted in the order recorded under section 14.

Cl. (d).—The trespass of a human being in a reserved forest is punishable under sec. 25 (d). Rat. 602. See also 87 I. C. 918=26 Cr.L.J. 1030. The words of sec. 25 (d) clearly apply only to the person who does any of the acts mentioned therein. 16 Cr.L.J. 485=29 I.C. 325=11 N.L.R. 76. A person's cattle were found grazing in the Government forest in charge of a boy. When the person had not authorized either directly or indirectly the boy to graze the cattle in the forest, he could not be convicted. (11 N.L.R. 76, Ref.) 120 I.C. 414 (1)=1930 N. 64. The question whether the owner of cattle, whose animals trespass in a reserved forest is criminally liable for committing an offence under sec. 25, depends upon the whole circumstances of each case. 16 P.R. 1909 (Cr.). In a great many cases the question will resolve itself into, "did he or did he not take proper precautions to prevent such trespass," and it does not depend upon the presence of the owner at the moment. 16 P.R. 1909 (Cr.). The levy of pound fines under Act I of 1871, sec. 12, in respect of an offence of allowing cattle to trespass in a reserved forest is not a punishment, and does not, therefore, bar a prosecution, under sec. 25 of the Forest Act. 19 P.R. 1885 (Cr.).

CL. (f).—A person felling a number of trees in a forest is guilty of as many offences under sec. 25 (f) as the number of the trees felled by him. 19 Cr.L.J. 161=43 I.C. 577 (A). There is no provision, either in the Act or the rules framed thereunder, to award compensation for damages in respect of the protected forest. 8 Bom. L.R. 987=5 Cr.L.J. 9. In the absence of anything in a Special Act (like the Forest Act) to exclude the operation to the general criminal law, an intention on the part of the legislature to exclude it should not be inferred. Further sec. 66 negatives any such intention. Theft of wood from a Government forest to which the Forest Act had not been applied, is punishable under the Penal Code. 10 P.R. 1885 (Cr.). CL. (h).—Where it is clear from evidence that the accused has been cultivating land alleged to be part of a Government forest for at least seven years and the probabilities are that his father had done the same before him he cannot be held to have cleared or broken up the land for cultivation or any other purpose and his conviction under sec. 26 (h) cannot be sustained. 1929 N. 190. Where the charge against the accused is that he has made an encroachment on Government forest land, the onus is on the prosecution to establish that the land forms part of the Government forest. 1929 N. 190.

CL. (i).—The word 'hunt' implies motion, a chase and a pursuit. Hence any person who is one of the party beating up game in a reserved forest in this fashion is a member of the hunt, and even though he himself may not be within the prohibited area he is guilty of the offence along with the rest of the hunt. 1935 N. 23. A conviction under sec. 25 (i), for shooting in a reserved forest in contravention of rules, is illegal where no such rules have been passed by the Government. Rat. 684=Cr. Rg. 50 of 1893. Accused who had licence for a gun was going along the District Board road running through a reserved forest with the gun loaded. On this he was convicted under sec. 26 (1) (i). Held, that from the mere fact that accused was carrying a loaded gun it did not follow that he was going with intention of shooting. Held, further, that what is made penal is not the intention to shoot but actual shooting itself and that unless accused was alleged to have been found shooting or hunting in the forest he could not be convicted. 145 I.C. 735=34 Cr.L.J. 1050=1933 A.L.J. 704=1933 A. 630.

MISCELLANEOUS CASES UNDER THE OLD ACT —CONVICTION UNDER THE ACT—ORDER FOR CONFISCATION.—An order for confiscation cannot be regarded as an order incidental to a conviction under the Act. The confiscation is by the terms of sec. 54 declared to be a punishable, for it is in addition to any other punishment prescribed for the offence, the order for confiscation should be passed simultaneously with the punishment for the offence. 24 C. 450 (4 A. 417, R.). It is illegal to impose a fine where the Forest Act provides the penalty of confiscation. Col. Dig. Cr. 69 of 1877. Payment of rewards out of fines and confiscations is not a part of the sentence, but is a matter for the Executive Government to deal with in the exercise of the power vested in them by the rules framed under the Act. Rat. 950. These rules give the Government the power to pay one half of the proceeds of fines and confiscations by way of reward without any order of the convicting Court, but more than one half cannot, however, be paid unless the Magistrate so directs. Rat. 950.

FOREST OFFENCE — COURT-FEES.—Where persons convicted of an offence under the Forest Act, were each sentenced to pay a fine of thirteen annas, compensation for the loss of forest fuel and Rs. 1-4-0 as Court-fees expenses under sec. 31 of the Court-Fees Act,

(2) From the date so fixed, such forest or portion shall cease to be reserved; but the rights (if any) which have been extinguished therein shall not revive in consequence of such cessation.

CHAPTER III.

OF VILLAGE FORESTS.

28. (1) The Provincial Government may assign to any village community the rights of Government to or over any land which has been constituted a reserved forest, and may cancel such assignment. All forests so assigned shall be called village forests.

(2) The Provincial Government may make rules for regulating the management of village forests, preserving the conditions under which the community to which any such assignment is made may be provided with timber or other forest-produce or pasture, and their duties for the protection and improvement of such forest.

(3) All the provisions of this Act relating to reserved forest shall (so far as they are not inconsistent with the rules so made) apply to village forests.

CHAPTER IV.

OF PROTECTED FORESTS.

29. (1) The Provincial Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, declare the provisions of this Chapter applicable to any forest-land or waste-land which is not included in a reserved forest, but which is the property of Government, or over which the Government has proprietary rights or to the whole or any part of the forest-produce of which the Government is entitled.

(2) The forest-land and waste-land comprised in any such notification shall be called a "protected forest".

(3) No such notification shall be made, unless the nature and extent of the rights of Government and of private persons in or over the forest-land or

Provided that, if, in the case of any forest-land or waste-land, the Provincial Government thinks that such inquiry and record are necessary, but that they will occupy such length of time as in the meantime to endanger the rights of Government, the Provincial Government may, pending such inquiry and record, declare such land to be a protected forest, but so as not to abridge or affect any existing rights of individuals or communities.

Power to issue notification reserving trees, etc. (Old Act, S. 29.)

30. The Provincial Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette,—

(a) declare any trees or class of trees in a protected forest to be reserved from a date fixed by the notification;

(b) declare that any portion of such forest specified in the notification shall be closed for such term, not exceeding thirty years, as the Provincial Government thinks fit, and that the rights of private persons, if any, over such portion shall be suspended during such terms, provided that the remainder of such forest be sufficient, and in a locality reasonably convenient, for the due exercise of the rights suspended in the portion so closed; or

(c) prohibit, from a date fixed as aforesaid, the quarrying of stone, or the burning of lime or charcoal, or the collection or subjection to any manufacturing process, or removal of, any forest-produce in any such forest, and the breaking up or clearing for cultivation, for building, for herding cattle or for any other purpose, of any land in any such forest.

31. The Collector shall cause a translation into the local vernacular of every notification issued under section 30 to be affixed in a conspicuous place in every town and village in the neighbourhood of the forest comprised in the notification.

Publication of translation of such notification in neighbourhood. (Old Act, S. 30.)

Power to make rules for protected forests. (Old Act, S. 31.)

32. The Provincial Government may make rules¹ to regulate the following matters, namely:—

(a) the cutting, sawing, conversion and removal of trees and timber, and the collection, manufacture and removal of forest-produce, from protected forests;

(b) the granting of licences to the inhabitants of towns and villages in the vicinity of protected forests to take trees, timber or other forest-produce for their own use, and the production and return of such licences by such persons;

(c) the granting of licences to persons felling or removing trees or timber or other forest-produce from such forests for the purposes of trade, and the production and return of such licences by such persons;

(d) the payments, if any, to be made by the persons mentioned in clauses (b) and (c) for permission to cut such trees, or to collect and remove such timber or other forest-produce;

(e) the other payments, if any, to be made by them in respect of such trees, timber and produce, and the places where such payment shall be made;

CHAPTER V.

OF THE CONTROL OVER FORESTS AND LANDS NOT BEING THE PROPERTY OF GOVERNMENT.

Protection of forest for special purposes. (Old Act, S. 35.) 35. (1) The Provincial Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, regulate or prohibit in any forest or waste-land—

- (a) the breaking up or clearing of land for cultivation;
- (b) the pasturing of cattle; or
- (c) the firing or clearing of the vegetation;

when such regulation or prohibition appears necessary for any of the following purposes:—

(i) for protection against storms, winds, rolling stones, floods and avalanches;

(ii) for the preservation of the soil on the ridges and slopes and in the valleys of hilly tracts, the prevention of land slips or of the formation of ravines and torrents, or the protection of land against erosion, or the deposit thereon of sand, stones or gravel;

(iii) for the maintenance of a water-supply in springs, rivers and tanks;

(iv) for the protection of roads, bridges, railways and other lines of communication;

(v) for the preservation of the public health.

(2) The Provincial Government may, for any such purpose, construct at its own expense, in or upon any forest or waste-land, such work as it thinks fit.

(3) No notification shall be made under sub-section (1) nor shall any work be begun under sub-section (2), until after the issue of a notice to the owner of such forest or land calling on him to show cause, within a reasonable period to be specified in such notice, why such notification should not be made or work constructed, as the case may be, and until his objections if any, and any evidence he may produce in support of the same, have been heard by an officer duly appointed in that behalf and have been considered by the Provincial Government.

36. (1) In case of neglect of, or wilful disobedience to, any regulation or prohibition under section 35, or if the purposes of any work to be constructed under that section so require, the Provincial Government may, after notice in writing to the owner of such forest or land and after considering his objections, if any, place the same under the control of a Forest-officer, and may declare that all or any of the provisions of this Act relating to reserved forests shall apply to such forest or land.

(2) The net profits, if any, arising from the management of such forest or land shall be paid to the said owner.

37. (1) In any case under this Chapter in which the Provincial Government considers that in lieu of placing the forest or land under the control of a Forest-officer, the same should be acquired for public purposes, the Provincial Government may proceed to acquire it in the manner provided by the Land Acquisition Act, 1894.

(2) The owner of any forest or land comprised in any notification under section 35 may, at any time not less than three or more than twelve years from the date thereof, require that such forest or land shall be acquired for public purposes, and the Provincial Government shall acquire such forest or land accordingly.

38. (1) The owner of any land or, if there be more than one owner thereof, the owners of shares therein amounting in the aggregate to at least two-thirds thereof may, with a view to the formation or conservation of forests thereon, represent in writing to the Collector their desire—

(a) that such land be managed on their behalf by the Forest-officer as a reserved or a protected forest on such terms as may be mutually agreed upon; or

(b) that all or any of the provisions of this Act be applied to such land.

(2) In either case, the Provincial Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, apply to such land such provisions of this Act as it thinks suitable to the circumstances thereof and as may be desired by the applicants.

CHAPTER VI.

OF THE DUTY ON TIMBER AND OTHER FOREST-PRODUCE.

Power to impose duty on timber and other forest produce. [Old Act, S. 39: cf. Act V of 1890, S. 8 (2).]

39. (1) The ¹[Central Government] may levy a duty in such manner, at such places and at such rates as it may declare by notification in the Official Gazette on all timber or other forest-produce—

(a) which is produced in British India, and in respect of which the ²[Crown] has any right;

(b) which is brought from any place outside British India;

³[* * * * *].

(2) In every case in which such duty is directed to be levied ad valorem the ⁴[Central Government] may fix by like notification the value on which such duty shall be assessed.

(3) All duties on timber or other forest-produce which, at the time when this Act comes into force in any territory, are levied therein under the authority of the Provincial Government, shall be deemed to be and to have been duly levied under the provisions of this Act.

⁴[(4) Until provision to the contrary is made by the Central Legislature any Provincial Government which was, immediately before the commencement of Part III of the Government of India Act, 1935, levying a duty on any timber or other forest-produce produced in that Province may continue to levy that duty on such timber or forest-produce:

Provided that nothing in this sub-section authorizes the levy of any duty which as between timber or other forest-produce of the Province and similar produce of the locality outside the Province, discriminates in favour of the former, or which, in the case of timber or other forest-produce of localities outside the Province, discriminates between timber or other forest-

SEC. 38.—Sec. 38 (1) is merely a provision which enables an owner of any land to apply to the Collector in order that the provisions of the Act may be applied to his land or that the land may be managed for him as a reserved forest under sec. 38 (2). The Provincial Government may in either case, by notification, apply to such land such provisions of the Act as it thinks suitable to the circumstances thereof and as may be desired by the applicant. Where the Government issue a notification under sec. 38 to the effect that the Government "are pleased to apply to the forest lands described in the schedule below all the provisions of the said Forest Act which are applicable or may hereafter be extended to apply to the reserved forests belonging to Government in the Singbhum District," the immediate effect of the notification is to apply to the lands in question all the provisions of the Act which are applicable to reserved forests of Government in that District. The provisions of sec. 26 of the Act therefore apply to the forest lands in question from that moment. 24 Pat. 477.

OF THE CONTROL OF TIMBER AND OTHER FOREST-PRODUCE IN TRANSIT.

Power to make rules to regulate transit of forest-produce. (Old Act, S. 41; see also Act V of 1890, S. 8, Cls. 3 and 4).

41. (1) The control of all rivers and their banks as regards the floating of timber, as well as the control of all timber and other forest-produce in transit by land or water, is vested in the Provincial Government, and it may make rules to regulate the transit of all timber and other forest-produce.

(2) In particular and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing power such rules may—

(a) prescribe the routes by which alone timber or other forest-produce may be imported, exported or moved into, from or within ¹[the Province].

(b) prohibit the import or export or moving of such timber or other produce without a pass from an officer duly authorised to issue the same, or otherwise than in accordance with the conditions of such pass;

(c) provide for the issue, production and return of such passes and for the payment of fees therefor;

(d) provide for the stoppage, reporting, examination and marking of timber or other forest-produce in transit, in respect of which there is reason to believe that any money is payable to ²[the Crown] on account of the price thereof, or on account of any duty, fee, royalty or charge due thereon, or to which it is desirable for the purposes of this Act to affix a mark;

(e) provide for the establishment and regulation of depots to which such timber or other produce shall be taken by those in charge of it for examination, or for the payment of such money or in order that such marks may be affixed to it; and the conditions under which such timber or other produce shall be brought to, stored at and removed from such depots;

(f) prohibit the closing up or obstructing of the channel or banks of any river used for the transit of timber or other forest-produce, and the throwing of grass, brushwood, branches or leaves into any such river or any act which may cause such river to be closed or obstructed;

(g) provide for the prevention of removal of any obstruction of the channel or banks of any such river, and for recovering the cost of such prevention or removal from the person whose acts or negligence necessitated the same;

(h) prohibit absolutely or subject to conditions, within specified local such depot whether by the ²[Crown] or by any private person, shall render assistance to any Forest-officer or Police-officer demanding his aid in averting such danger or securing such property from damage or loss.

CHAPTER VIII.

OF THE COLLECTION OF DRIFT AND STRANDED TIMBER.

45. (1) All timber found adrift, beached, stranded or sunk;

Certain kinds of timber to be deemed property of Government until title thereto proved, and may be collected accordingly. (Old Act, S. 45.)

all wood or timber bearing marks which have not been registered in accordance with the rules made under section 41, or on which the marks have been obliterated, altered or defaced by fire or otherwise; and in such areas as the Provincial Government directs, all unmarked wood and timber; shall be deemed to be the property of Government; unless and until any person establishes his right and title thereto, as provided in this Chapter.

(2) Such timber may be collected by any Forest-officer or other person entitled to collect the same by virtue of any rule made under section 51, and may be brought to any depot which the Forest-officer may notify as a depot for the reception of drift timber.

(3) The Provincial Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, exempt any class of timber from the provisions of this section.

46. Public notice shall from time to time be given by the Forest-Officer of timber collected under section 45. Such notice shall contain a description of the timber, and shall require any person claiming the same to present to such officer, within a period not less than two months from the date of such notice, a written statement of such claim.

Notice to claimants of drift-timber. (Old Act, S. 46.)

Procedure on claim preferred to such timber. (Old Act, S. 47.)

47. (1) When any such statement is presented as aforesaid, the Forest-officer may, after making such inquiry as he thinks fit, either reject the claim after recording his reasons for so doing, or deliver the timber to the claimant.

(2) If such timber is claimed by more than one person, the Forest-officer may either deliver the same to any of such persons whom he deems entitled thereto, or may refer the claimants to the Civil Courts, and retain the timber pending the receipt of an order from any such Court for its disposal.

(3) Any person whose claim has been rejected under this section may, within three months from the date of such rejection, institute a suit to recover possession of the timber claimed by him; but no person shall recover any compensation or costs against the ¹[Crown], or against any Forest-officer, on account of such rejection, or the detention or removal of any timber, or the delivery thereof to any other person under this section.

(4) No such timber shall be subject to process of any Civil, Criminal or Revenue Court until it has been delivered, or a suit has been brought, as provided in this section.

48. If no such statement is presented as aforesaid, or if the claimant omits to prefer his claim in the manner and within the period fixed by the notice issued under section 46, or on such claim having been so preferred by him and having been rejected, omits to institute a suit to recover possession of such timber within the further period fixed by section 47, the ownership of such timber shall vest in the Government, or when such timber has been delivered to another person under section 47 in such other person free from all encumbrances not created by him.

Disposal of unclaimed timber. (Old Act, S. 48 and Act V of 1890, S. 10.)

49. The ¹[Crown] shall not be responsible for any loss or damage which may occur in respect of any timber collected under section 45, and no Forest-officer shall be responsible for any such loss or damage, unless he causes such loss or damage negligently, maliciously or fraudulently.

Crown and its officers not liable for damage to such timber. (Old Act, S. 49.)

50. No person shall be entitled to recover possession of any timber collected or delivered as aforesaid until he has paid to the Forest-officer or other person entitled to receive it such sum on account thereof as may be due under any rule made under section 51.

Payments to be made by claimant before timber is delivered to him. (Old Act, S. 50.)

LEG. REF.

¹ Substituted for 'Government' by A.O., 1937.

Power to make rules and prescribe penalties. (Old Act, S. 51.)

51. (1) The Provincial Government may make rules to regulate the following matters, namely:—

(a) the salving, collection and disposal of all timber mentioned in section 45;

(b) the use and registration of boats used in salving and collecting timber;

(c) the amounts to be paid for salving, collecting, moving, storing or disposing of such timber; and

(d) the use and registration of hammers and other instruments to be used for marking such timber.

(2) The Provincial Government may prescribe, as penalties for the contravention of any rules made under this section, imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months, or fine which may extend to five hundred rupees, or both.

CHAPTER IX.

PENALTIES AND PROCEDURE.

52. (1) When there is reason to believe that a forest-offence has been committed in respect of any forest-produce, such produce, together with all tools, boats, carts or cattle used in committing any such offence, may be seized by any Forest-officer or Police-officer.

(2) Every officer seizing any property under this section shall place on such property a mark indicating that the same has been so seized, and shall, as soon as may be, make a report of such seizure to the Magistrate having jurisdiction to try the offence on account of which the seizure has been made:

Provided that, when the forest-produce with respect to which such offence is believed to have been committed is the property of Government, and the offender is unknown, it shall be sufficient if the officer makes, as soon as may be, a report of the circumstances to his official superior.

53. Any Forest-officer of a rank not inferior to that of a Ranger, who, or whose subordinate, has seized any tools, boats, carts or cattle under section 52, may release the same on the execution by the owner thereof of a bond for the production of the property so released, if and when so required, before the Magistrate having jurisdiction to try the offence on account of which the seizure has been made.

54. Upon the receipt of any such report, the Magistrate shall, with all —In order to justify the action of a Police or Forest-officer in arresting without warrant a person suspected of a forest offence he must either have refused to give his name or must have given a false name and residence or there must have been reason to believe that he would abscond. In the absence of any of these conditions, no Police-officer or Forest-officer could lawfully arrest without a warrant. 1928 M.W.N. 310.

SEC. 52: SUB-ASSISTANT CONSERVATOR OF FOREST—SEIZURE AND DETENTION OF TIMBER.—WANT OF VALID PASS.—Where a Sub-Assistant Conservator of Forest seized timber under the suspicion that it was property stolen from the Government forests, held, that he could justify the seizure on the ground of the commission of a forest offence arising from the want of a valid pass. 15 B. 229. According to sec. 52, a Forest-officer cannot justify the detention of goods on the ground of an offence against the Forest laws, where he had not taken the course which that section prescribes of taking the matter before a Magistrate. 15 B. 229. Under sec. 52 the forest produce alone can be seized in relation to which a forest offence is believed to have been committed, and no forest offence can be said to have been committed in relation to any forest produce unless it is definitely established that the produce belonged to Government. 41 P.L.R. 423=A.I.R. 1939 Lah. 469.

Procedure thereupon. (Old Act, S. 53.)

55. (1) All timber or forest-produce which is not the property of Government and in respect of which a forest-offence has been committed, and all tools, boats, carts and cattle used in committing any forest-offence, shall be liable to confiscation.

(2) Such confiscation may be in addition to any other punishment prescribed for such offence.

any forest-offence is concluded, any forest-produce in respect of which such offence has been committed shall, if it is the property of Government or has been confiscated, be taken charge of by a Forest-officer and, in any other case, may be disposed of in such manner as the Court may direct.

57. When the offender is not known or cannot be found, the Magistrate may, if he finds that an offence has been committed, order the property in respect of which the offence has been committed to be confiscated and taken charge of by the Forest-officer, or to be made over to the person whom the Magistrate deems to be entitled to the same:

Provided that no such order shall be made until the expiration of one month from the date of seizing such property, or without hearing the person,

SEC. 55.—N.B. See also notes under sec. 26 and sec. 33.

SCOPE AND OBJECT.—The object of the legislature in enacting sec. 55 is to make the owner liable to a certain extent for the acts of his servant, civilly, not criminally. In the case of cattle trespassing in Government forest unless duly licensed, the master cannot be criminally liable for the acts of his grazier in taking his cattle into such forest, unless he permits the cattle so to graze by some overt acts or by some negligent omission. Where a large herd of cattle is entrusted to a youth and two children, in the vicinity of a closed forest, it might be held to amount to such negligence as to suggest connivance at a breach of the law. 175 I.C. 795=A.I.R. 1938 Nag. 365.

CONFISCATION OF FOREST-PRODUCE, ETC., THE PROPERTY OF GOVERNMENT.—No confiscation order is necessary or can be made, in respect of forest-produce, which is the property of Government, and regarding which a forest-offence has been committed. All that need be done is, to direct that it should be taken by some Forest-officer. 4 A. 417; Rat. 361. Cattle are instrumental in the theft of grass which they eat and in the damage to grass and young trees which they cause in grazing and such cattle used in committing an offence under sec. 26 (d) of the Act are as much liable to confiscation as cattle drawing a cart containing illicitly felled timber. 175 I.C. 795=A.I.R. 1938 Nag. 365.

POWER TO CONFISCATE.—It is only in respect of forest-produce with regard to which an offence has been committed, that power to direct confiscation is given by law. Such an order, regarding forest-produce not belonging to Government, can only be made at the time when the offender is convicted. 4 A. 417 followed in 27 C. 450.

REWARD—FOREST-PRODUCE.—Since there can be no legal confiscation of Government property, a reward cannot be paid out of such property. Rat. 620.

SEC. 56.—See also notes under sec. 33.

DISPOSAL OF PROPERTY.—Under sec. 55 the property, regarding which an offence is committed, should be awarded to Government. 5 Bom.L.R. 124.

GOVERNMENT FOREST-PRODUCE, OFFENCE RELATING TO—PROPER ORDER.—When the forest-produce, in respect of which an offence is committed, is found to be the property of Government the only order which the Magistrate can legally make regarding it, under sec. 56 is that it should be taken charge of by a Forest-officer. An order for its sale and the payment of a reward to the informer from its proceeds is therefore illegal. Rat. 361; 4 A. 417; Rat. 620.

SEC. 57: FORFEITURE FOR FOREST-OFFENCE WHEN A GOOD TITLE HAS VESTED IN A THIRD PERSON.—Under the orders issued by the Collector of Kandesh, certain Bhils entered the forest, brought from it teak logs under the customary passes, and sold them in open market to applicants who purchased in good faith. The Government sought to forfeit them on the ground that a forest-offence had been committed in respect of them, inasmuch as the permission under which the Bhils acted, only allowed them to cut deadwood and the logs did not fall under the description.

Held, ordering the logs to be restored to the custody of purchasers, that it was clear from the terms of sec. 57 that a forfeiture was not if any, claiming any right thereto, and the evidence, if any, which he may produce in support of his claim.

58. The Magistrate may, notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, direct the sale of any property seized under section 52 and subject to speedy and natural decay and he may deal with the proceeds as he would have dealt with such property if it had not been sold.

59. The officer who made the seizure under section 52, or any of his official superiors, or any person claiming to be interested in the property so seized may, within one month from the date of any order passed under section 55, section 56 or section 57, appeal therefrom to the Court to which orders made by such Magistrate are ordinarily appealable, and the order passed on such appeal shall be final.

60. When an order for the confiscation of any property has been passed under section 55 or section 57, as the case may be and the period limited by section 59 for an appeal from such order has elapsed, and no such appeal has been preferred, or when, on such an appeal, being preferred, the Appellate Court confirms such order in respect of the whole or a portion of such property, such property or such portion thereof, as the case may be, shall vest in the Government free from all incumbrances.

61. Nothing hereinbefore contained shall be deemed to prevent any officer empowered in this behalf by the Provincial Government from directing at any time the immediate release of any property seized under section 52.

62. Any forest-officer or Police-officer who vexatiously and unnecessarily seizes any property on pretence of seizing property liable to confiscation under this Act shall be punishable with imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months, or with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees, or with both.

Penalty for counterfeiting or defacing marks on trees and timber and for altering boundary marks. (Old Act, S. 62.)

63. Whoever, with intent to cause damage or injury to the public or to any person, or to cause wrongful gain as defined in the Indian Penal Code—

(a) knowingly counterfeits upon any timber or standing tree a mark used by Forest-officers to indicate that such timber or tree is the property of the Government or of some person, or that it may lawfully be cut or removed by same person; or

(b) alters, defaces or obliterates any such mark placed on a tree or on timber by or under the authority of a Forest-officer; or

(c) alters, moves, destroys or defaces any boundary-mark of any forest or waste-land to which the provisions of this Act are applied, a consequence of a forest-offence under the conditions stated in that section, where a good title has vested in a third person. 2 Bom.L.R. 675.

SEC. 59: REVISION BY HIGH COURT OF AN ORDER OF A SUBORDINATE TRIBUNAL.—The terms of sec. 59 do not exclude the ordinary revisional powers of the High Court over a subordinate tribunal in the exercise of its criminal jurisdiction, where there had been judicial proceeding. 4 A. 417. Under sec. 59 even a third person who was not a party to the proceedings in the original Court and whose claim for relief from confiscation was not adjudicated upon is entitled to prefer an appeal. The phrase "any person claiming to be interested in the property so seized" in sec. 59 cannot be construed as limited to the case contemplated by sec. 57. And, the words "so seized" refer to the seizure under sec. 52. 34 C. W. N. 956=1930 C. 577.

SEC. 63 (c).—Although penal statutes are to be construed strictly, beneficial construction to promote the object of an Act is not excluded and a genus may include a species whether or not that species was in direct con-shall be punishable with imprisonment for a term which may extend to two years, or with fine, or with both.

64. (1) Any Forest-officer or Police-officer may, without orders from a Magistrate and without a warrant, arrest any person against whom a reasonable suspicion exists of his having been concerned in any forest-offence punishable with imprisonment for one month or upwards.

Power to arrest without warrant. (Old Act, S. 63; Act I of 1918, S. 4 and Act V of 1890, S. 12.)

(2) Every officer making an arrest under this section shall, without unnecessary delay and subject to the provisions of this Act as to release on bond, take or send the person arrested before the Magistrate having jurisdiction in the case, or to the officer in charge of the nearest police station.

(3) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to authorise such arrest for any act which is an offence under Chapter IV unless such act has been prohibited under clause (c) of section 30.

65. Any Forest-officer of a rank not inferior to that of a Ranger, who, or whose subordinate, has arrested any person under the provisions of section 64, may release such person on his executing a bond to appear, if and when so required, before the Magistrate having jurisdiction in the case, or before the officer in charge of the nearest police station.

Power to release on a bond person arrested. (Act I of 1918, S. 5.)

Power to prevent commission of offence. (Old Act, S. 64.)

66. Every Forest-officer and Police-officer shall prevent, and may interfere for the purpose of preventing, the commission of any forest-offence.

67. The District Magistrate or any Magistrate of the first class specially empowered in this behalf by the Provincial Government may try summarily, under the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, any forest-offence punishable with imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months, or fine not exceeding five hundred rupees, or both.

Power to try offences summarily. (Old Act, S. 65.)

Power to compound offences. (Act V of 1890, S. 13.)

68. (1) The Provincial Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, empower a Forest-officer—

(a) to accept from any person against whom a reasonable suspicion exists that he has committed any forest-offence, other than an offence specified in section 62 or section 63, a sum of money by way of compensation for the offence which such person is suspected to have committed, and

(b) when any property has been seized as liable to confiscation, to release the same on payment of the value thereof as estimated by such officer.

(2) On the payment of such sum of money, or such value, or both, as the case may be, to such officer, the suspected person, if in custody, shall be discharged, the property, if any, seized shall be released, and no further proceedings shall be taken against such person or property.

(3) A Forest-officer shall not be empowered under this section unless he is a Forest-officer of a rank not inferior to that of a Ranger and is in receipt of a monthly salary amounting to at least one hundred rupees, and the sum of money accepted as compensation under clause (a) of sub-section (1) shall in no case exceed the sum of fifty rupees.

templation of the Legislature. Hence the expression 'boundary marks of a forest' in sec. 63 (c), Forest Act (which makes cutting trees within the forest an offence) should be taken to include boundary marks within forest placed to separate what may be felled from what may not. 1943 N.L.J. 130=1943 Nag. 139=I.L.R. 1943 Nag. 358.

Sec. 68.—See Rat. 591.

69. When in any proceedings taken under this Act, or in consequence of anything done under this Act a question arises as to whether any forest produce is the property of the Government, such produce shall be presumed to be the property of the Government until the contrary is proved.

Presumption that forest produce belongs to Government. (Old Act, S. 68.)

CHAPTER X.

CATTLE TRESPASS.

70. Cattle trespassing in a reserved forest or in any portion of a protected forest which has been lawfully closed to grazing shall be deemed to be cattle doing damage to a public plantation within the meaning of section 11 of the Cattle Trespass Act, 1871, and may be seized and impounded as such by any Forest-officer or Police-officer.

71. The Provincial Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, direct that, in lieu of the fines fixed under section 12 of the Cattle Trespass Act, 1871, there shall be levied for each head of cattle impounded under section 70 of this Act such fines as it thinks fit, but not exceeding the following, that is to say:

For each elephant	..	ten rupees.
For each buffalo or camel	..	two ..
For each horse, mare, gelding, pony, colt, filly, mule, bull, bullock, cow or heifer	..	one rupee.
For each calf, ass, pig, ram, ewe, sheep, lamp, goat or kid	..	eight annas.

CHAPTER XI.

OF FOREST-OFFICERS.

Provincial Government may invest Forest-officers with certain powers. Old Act, S. 71.)

72. (1) The Provincial Government may invest any Forest-officer with all or any of the following powers, that is to say:—

(a) power to enter upon any land and to survey, demarcate and make a map of the same;

(b) the powers of a Civil Court to compel the attendance of witnesses and the production of documents and material objects;

(c) power to issue a search-warrant under the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898; and

(d) power to hold an inquiry into forest-offences, and, in the course of such inquiry, to receive and record evidence.

(2) Any evidence recorded under clause (d) of sub-section (1) shall be admissible in any subsequent trial before a Magistrate, provided that it has been taken in the presence of the accused person.

Forest-officers deemed public servants. (Old Act, S. 72.)

73. All Forest-officers shall be deemed to be public servants within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code.

Indemnity for acts done in good faith. (Old Act, S. 73.)

74. No suit shall lie against any public servant for anything done by him in good faith under this Act.

75. Except with the permission in writing of the Provincial Government, no Forest-officer shall, as principal or agent, trade in timber or other forest-produce, or be or become interested in any lease of any forest or in any contract for working any forest, whether in or outside British India.

CHAPTER XII.

SUBSIDIARY RULE.

Additional powers to make rules. (Old Act, S. 75.) 76. The Provincial Government may make rules¹—

(a) to prescribe and limit the powers and duties of any Forest-officer under this Act;

(b) to regulate the rewards to be paid to officers and informers out of the proceeds of fines and confiscation under this Act;

(c) for the preservation, reproduction and disposal of trees and timber belonging to Government, but grown on lands belonging to or in the occupation of private persons; and

(d) generally, to carry out the provisions of this Act.

77. Any person contravening any rule under this Act, for the contravention of which no special penalty is provided, shall be punishable with imprisonment for a term which may extend to one month, or fine which may extend to five hundred rupees, or both.

Penalties for breach of rules. (Old Act, S. 76.)

MISCELLANEOUS.

79. ¹[(1) Every person who exercises any right in a reserved or protected forest, or who is permitted to take any forest-produce from, or to cut and remove timber or to pasture cattle in, such forest, and every person who is employed by any such person in such forest, and every person in any village contiguous to such forest who is employed by the ²[Crown] or who receives emoluments from the ²[Crown] for services to be performed to the community, shall be bound to furnish without unnecessary delay to the nearest Forest-officer or Police-officer any information he may possess respecting the commission of or intention to commit, any forest-offence, and shall forthwith take steps, whether so required by any Forest-officer or Police-officer or not,—

(a) to extinguish any forest fire in such forest of which he has knowledge or information;

(b) to prevent by any lawful means in his power any fire in the vicinity of such forest of which he has knowledge or information from spreading to such forest, and shall assist any Forest-officer or Police-officer demanding his aid;

(c) in preventing the commission in such forest of any forest-offence; and

(d) when there is reason to believe that any such offence has been committed in such forest, in discovering and arresting the offender.

¹[(2) Any person who, being bound so to do, without lawful excuse (the burden of proving which shall lie upon such person) fails—

(a) to furnish without unnecessary delay to the nearest Forest-officer or Police-officer any information required by sub-section (1);

(b) to take steps as required by sub-section (1) to extinguish any forest fire in a reserved or protected forest;

(c) to prevent, as required by sub-section (1), any fire in the vicinity of such forest from spreading to such forest; or

(d) to assist any Forest-officer or Police-officer demanding his aid in preventing the commission in such forest of any forest-offence, or, when there is reason to believe that any such offence has been committed in such forest, in discovering and arresting the offender;

shall be punishable with imprisonment for a term which may extend to one month, or with fine which may extend to two hundred rupees, or with both.]

SEC. 79: REFUSAL TO SERVE AS MEMBER OF PANCH.—A person refusing to serve as member of a panch appointed for the purpose of drawing panchnama with reference to certain wood alleged to have been illegally cut in the reserved forests, was held not to be liable to be convicted under sec. 187, I.P. Code, as he was not shown to be a person contemplated in the provisions of the first three paragraphs of sec. 78 of Act VII of 1878, and as the purpose for which he was called upon to give his assistance was also not one of the purposes mentioned in Cls. (a) and (d) of that section. 22 B. 769.

Management of forest the joint property of Government and other persons. (Old Act, S. 79.)

80. (1) If the Government and any person be jointly interested in any forest or waste-land, or in the whole or any part of the produce thereof, the Provincial Government may either—

(a) undertake the management of such forest, waste-land or produce, accounting to such person for his interests in the same; or

(b) issue such regulations for the management of the forest, waste-land or produce by the person so jointly interested as it deems necessary for the management thereof and the interests of all parties therein.

(2) When the Provincial Government undertakes under clause (a) of sub-section (1) the management of any forest, waste-land or produce, it may, by notification in the Official Gazette, declare that any of the provisions contained in Chapters II and IV shall apply to such forest, waste-land or produce, and thereupon such provisions shall apply accordingly.

81. If any person be entitled to a share in the produce of any forest which is the property of Government or over which the Government has proprietary rights or to any part of the forest produce of which the Government is entitled, upon the condition of duly performing any service connected with such forest, such share shall be liable to confiscation in the event of the fact being established to the satisfaction of the Provincial Government that such service is no longer so performed:

Provided that no such share shall be confiscated until the person entitled thereto, and the evidence, if any, which he may produce in proof of the due performance of such service, have been heard by an officer duly appointed in that behalf by the Provincial Government.

82. All money payable to the Government under this Act, or under any rule made under this Act, or on account of the price of any forest-produce, or of expenses incurred in the execution of this Act in respect of such produce, may, if not paid when due, be recovered under the law for the time being in force as if it were an arrear of land-revenue.

83. (1) When any such money is payable for or in respect of any forest-produce, the amount thereof shall be deemed to be a first charge on such produce, and such produce may be taken possession of by a Forest-officer until such amount has been paid.

(2) If such amount is not paid when due, the Forest-officer may sell such produce by public auction, and the proceeds of the sale shall be applied first in discharging such amount.

(3) The surplus, if any, if not claimed within two months from the date of the sale by the person entitled thereto, shall be forfeited to His Majesty.

84. Whenever it appears to the [Provincial Government] that any land is required for any of the purposes of this Act, such land shall be deemed to be needed for a public purpose within the meaning of section 4 of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894.

85. When any person, in accordance with any provision of this Act, or in compliance with any rule made thereunder, binds himself by any bond or instrument to perform any duty or act, or covenants by any bond or instrument that he, or that he and his servants and agents will abstain from any act, the whole sum mentioned in

THE MADRAS FOREST (AMENDMENT) ACT (VII OF 1936).

[9th March, 1936 and 27th March, 1936.

An Act further to amend the Madras Forest Act, 1882, for certain purposes.

WHEREAS it is expedient further to amend the Madras Forest Act, 1882, for the purposes hereinafter appearing;

AND WHEREAS the previous sanction of the Governor-General has been obtained to the passing of this Act;

It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title.

1. This Act may be called THE MADRAS FOREST (AMENDMENT) ACT, 1936.

2. In section 2 of the Madras Forest Act, 1882 (hereinafter referred to as the said Act), for the words "Sub-Assistant Conservator" occurring in the definition of "Forest-Officer" the words "Extra Assistant Conservator" shall be substituted.

LEG. REF.

Insertion of new section 17-A in Madras Act V of 1882.

3. After section 17 of the said Act, the following section shall be inserted, namely:—

“17-A. (1) Where

Power of the Local Government to re-define the limits of reserved forests in certain cases.

the description of the limits of any reserved forest notified under section 16 is defective or is not clear in reference to existing facts, the Local Government may, by notification in the Fort St. George Gazette, declare their intention to re-define the limits of such reserved forest so as to remove the defect or to make the description clear in reference to existing facts. Such notification shall specify as nearly as possible the corrections which it is proposed to effect to the limits of the reserved forest.

(2) On the issue of a notification under sub-section (1), the District Forest Officer shall publish in the Official Gazette of the district concerned and in such other manner as may be prescribed by rules made in that behalf a notice—

(a) specifying the corrections proposed by the notification under sub-section (1); and

(b) stating that any objections which may be made in person or in writing to the District Forest Officer, within a period of thirty days from the date of publication of the notice, will be considered by him.

(3) After the expiry of the period referred to in clause (b) of sub-section (2) and after considering the objections, if any, received by him, the District Forest Officer shall submit to the Local Government the record of the proceedings held by him together with a report thereon.

(4) The Local Government may, after considering the report of the District Forest Officer, by notification in the Fort St. George Gazette re-define the limits of the reserved forest, as proposed by the notification under sub-section (1), with such modifications as they think fit or without any modifications.

(5) Save as provided in this section, it shall not be necessary to follow the procedure laid down in sections 4 to 16 before issuing a notification under sub-section (4).”

Amendment of section 34, Madras Act V of 1882.

4. To section 34 of the said Act, the following paragraph shall be added at the end, namely:—

“The Local Government shall also have power to appoint any person to discharge any function of a Forest-officer under any of the provisions of this Act which have been extended to any land or to any forest or waste land or produce thereof by a notification under section 32 or section 33 or under any rule made in pursuance of any provision so extended.”

Amendment of sections 41 and 43, Madras Act V of 1882.

5. In sections 41 and 43 of the said Act, for the word ‘carts,’ the word ‘vehicles’ shall be substituted.

Substitution of new section for section 46, Madras Act V of 1882.

6. For section 46 of the said Act, the following section shall be substituted, namely:—

Procedure in regard to perishable property seized under section 41.

“46. (1) Notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained—

(a) the Magistrate may direct the sale of any property seized under section 41 which is subject to speedy and natural decay; and to the Magistrate and thereupon the Magistrate shall take such measures as may be necessary for the trial of the accused.

(b) if, in the opinion of the officer seizing such property, it is not possible to obtain the orders of the Magistrate under clause (a) in time, such officer may sell the property himself, remit the sale-proceeds into the nearest Government treasury, and make a report of such seizure, sale and remittance.

(2) The Magistrate may deal with the proceeds of the sale of any property held under clause (a) or clause (b) of sub-section (1) in the same manner as he might have dealt with the property if it had not been sold."

THE FORFEITURE ACT (IX OF 1859).

[Rep. in Part by Acts VIII of 1868 and XII of 1891].

[30th April, 1859.

An Act to provide for the adjudication of claims to property seized as forfeited.

WHEREAS it is expedient to remove doubts concerning the powers of officers or other persons to whom commissions may have been issued for the trial of heinous offences in certain districts, and concerning the validity of convictions and adjudications of forfeiture made by such officers or other persons; It is enacted as follows:

1 to 15. [Constitution, procedure, etc., of Special Commission Courts.] Rep. by the Repealing Act, 1868 (VIII of 1868).

Convictions involving forfeiture not questionable in suits relating to forfeited property.

16. Whenever any person shall have been convicted of an offence for which his property was forfeited to Government, no Court has power in any suit or proceeding relating to such property to question the validity of the conviction.

17. Whenever any person shall have been convicted as above by an officer having power to try and convict, the validity of any such conviction shall not be questioned upon the ground that the record of the conviction does not show in what capacity such officer acted, or that it represents him to have acted in a different capacity from that in which he had power to convict.

18. Whenever any property shall have been attached or seized without either conviction or an adjudication of forfeiture by any officer of Government as property forfeited or liable to be forfeited to Government for an offence for which, upon conviction, the property of the offender would be forfeited, the validity of such attachment or seizure shall not be called in question by any Court or other authority in any suit or proceeding, unless the offender or alleged offender shall, within one year after the seizure of his property have surrendered himself for trial, and upon trial before a competent Court shall have been or shall be acquitted of the offence, and shall prove to the satisfaction of the Court that he did not escape or keep out of the way for the purpose of evading justice.

Nothing in this section shall extend to persons entitled to pardon upon Her Majesty's proclamation published in the Calcutta Gazette Extraordinary, dated the 1st of November, 1858, or to any person who, having surrendered himself within the period of one year after the seizure of his property shall be [duly discharged] without a prosecution.

19. [Release of property attached as forfeited.] Rep. by the Repealing Act, 1868 (VIII of 1868).

20. Nothing in this Act shall be held to affect the rights of parties not

THE GENERAL CLAUSES ACT (X OF 1897).

Year.	No.	Short title.	Amendments.
1897	IX	The General Clauses Act, 1897.	Repealed in part, I of 1903. Repealed in part and amended, X of 1941; XVIII of 1919; XXI of 1920. Amended, I of 1903; XVII of 1914, S. 2; XXIV of 1917, S. 2; XI of 1923; XVIII of 1928; Government of India (Adaptation of Indian Laws) Order, 1937; Act XIX of 1936 and Act XXXII of 1940.

another, should bring such a claim within one year from the attachment or seizure of the property which they claim. Though Act VIII of 1868 has repealed various sections of the Act of 1859. Sec. 20 of the latter Act is not affected by Act VIII of 1868, and the application of sec. 20 is permanent, because it was intended to be a permanent bar against subsequent suits in Civil Courts, and hence has remained in force up to the present day. Limitation for the purposes of the section begins to run from the date of attachment which in those days took the form of a ~~process~~ being issued to the Sub-Inspector of Police for the attachment of the property. 1899 A.L.J. 1079=A.L.R. 1940 All. 121.

~~Case under the Act.~~ FORFEITURE ACT, 1859.—A judgment creditor, who has bona fide attached property, at the time when the property of the debtor becomes forfeited to Government under the above Act, is entitled in priority to Government. Marsh. 259=2 Hay 117. On this Act see also 17 W.R. 80=8 B.L.R. 83. The plaintiff joined with the rebels and took a leading part with them. A reward was set upon him as a rebel leader and, after a time, he was captured; no formal proceedings were taken, under secs. 2 and 7 of the Act XXV of 1857 for adjudicating his property (which consisted of little more than annuity) to be forfeited. The property charged with the annuity was in the hands of the Collector as the Manager under the Court of Ward, the annuity was withheld and was no longer regarded as a charge on the estate but was treated as merged. Held, that the mere withdrawal of the payment of annuity by those who had the management of the estate which was charged with the payment would be an illegal act in no way affecting the plaintiff's right, but, as the withholding of the payment was under the authority and direction of the official who was authorized to make the attachment of the rebel's property, it was with reference to the nature of the property equivalent to an attachment or seizure and could not be questioned except under the provisions of sec. 18 of Act IX of 1859, notwithstanding there had been no adjudication of forfeiture. 3 Agra 281. A person who was in possession of an estate was found to be guilty of rebellion. All his property was forfeited to the Government, and he was subsequently sentenced to death and executed. A suit was eventually instituted on behalf of his infant son for the restoration of the land and the house which had been confiscated. The case made had two aspects:—One, that the estate, which had been granted towards maintaining the title and dignity of the Thakur was inalienable; the other, that it was subject to the Mitakshara Law, modified by the family-custom of primogeniture, and that the plaintiff became, on his birth, a co-sharer with his father: Held that the grant being for maintenance, and the descent being to the heirs made, did not make the estate inalienable. So long as there was an heir male, the grantor or his heirs could not resume such an estate; but a particular law or custom is necessary to convert an estate, which is conditional upon there being an heir male, into an estate which cannot be aliened: Held, that the Mitakshara, by which each son has by birth a property in the ancestral estate, is inconsistent with the custom that the estate is impartible, and descends to the eldest son, and was not applicable to this estate. Held, that the suit was also barred under sec. 9, Act XXV of 1857. 22 W.R. 17=13 B.L.R. 445.

CLS. (21) AND (40).—"THE GOVERNMENT"—WHETHER INCLUDES BRITISH GOVERNMENT—"SHALL INCLUDE"—MEANING.—The expression, "includes" or "shall include" is used in interpretation clauses in two senses. The ordinary and general sense in which it is used is to enlarge the meaning of the words or phrases occurring in the body of the statute; and when it is so used, these words or phrases must be construed as comprehending not only such things as they signify according to their natural import, but also those things which the interpretation clause declares that they shall include. This expression is also susceptible of another construction which may become imperative, if the context of the Act is sufficient to show that it was not merely employed for the purpose of adding to the natural significance of the words or expression defined. It may be equivalent to "mean and include" and in that case it may afford an exhaustive explanation of the meaning which for the purposes of the Act must invariably be attached to those words or expression. The expression in sec. 3, Cls. 21

(25) "immovable property" shall include land, benefits to arise out of land and things attached to the earth, or permanently fastened to anything attached to the earth:

"Immovable property."

(26) "imprisonment" shall mean imprisonment of either description as defined in the Indian Penal Code:

¹[(27) 'India' shall mean British India together with all territories of any Indian Ruler under the suzerainty of His Majesty, all territories under the suzerainty of such an Indian Ruler, the tribal areas, and any other territories which His Majesty in Council may, from time to time, after ascertaining the views of the Central Government and the Central Legislature, declare to be part of India:]

MORTGAGE OF FRUIT-BEARING TREES.—Whether or not a mortgage of fruit-bearing trees is a mortgage of immovable property is a question dependent in each case upon the intention of the contracting parties and cannot be settled by an inflexible rule. Where there is a mortgage with possession of fruit-bearing trees with the intention that the mortgagee is to remain in possession during the years of the mortgage and enjoy the fruits and should not cut down the trees so as to convert them to either timber or firewood, it must be held that the trees so mortgaged were either immovable property or at least an interest in immovable property and should be effected with the formalities prescribed by sec. 59, T.P. Act. 54 All. 437=140 I.C. 491. Though trees are immovable property, there is no presumption that whenever the word "land" is used in an enactment, the trees standing thereon are included. 29 N.L.R. 1=1933 N. 53. The expression "benefits to arise out of land" in the Act was never intended to cover such a matter as the security held by a mortgagee under a simple mortgage bond, by such 'benefits' as the right to a ferry. L.R. 5 All. 674. A mortgage is not "a benefit to arise out of land" within the meaning of sec. 3, Cl. (25). 57 Cal. 328=34 C.W.N. 605. See also 58 Cal. 186=1931 Cal. 223. Per Lord Atkin.—"Debts may be secured whether on immovable property or on merchandise; they may be wholly secured or partly secured; the security may have been given when the debt was created or later, but in any case the debts exist as movable property and do not, if secured, become identified with the security or transformed into land in the one case or merchandise in the other. The separation between debts and security is well established". 24 C.W.N. 1034=1931 P.C. 245=61 M.L.J. 589 (P.C.). As to mortgagee's interest, see 51 All. 494. Standing timber which has been cut and removed is movable property. 133 I.C. 157=1931 A.L.J. 608=1931 All. 392 (F.B.). A right to fishery is an interest in immovable property. 43 I.C. 962=14 N.L.R. 35. General fishery, 23 Bom.L.R. 939. A simple mortgage debt is not to be attached as a debt and not as immovable property. 59 I.C. 157=21 O.C. 400. See also 47 All. 317. The interest of the mortgagee in the mortgaged property is manifestly a "benefit to arise out of land" and is therefore itself immovable property. 19 B. 379=1934 Rang. 253 (F.B.). As to money charged on immovable property, see 83 I.C. 556. A pug-mill affixed to the earth is immovable property. 43 I.C. 625=11 Bur.L.T. 199. Bazar dues constitute a benefit arising out of the land and therefore a lease of bazar dues is a lease of immovable property within the meaning of sec. 3 (25) of the Act. 1940 Oudh 409=16 Luck. 191. An agreement executed when Act II of 1901 was in force is not affected by the repeal of that Act. It is contrary to the long established practice of the Board to entertain appeals which have no relation to existing rights created or purported to be created; the Judicial Committee would therefore decline to hear arguments as to the validity of an Act which has, since the decision of the Court below, been repealed and cannot, therefore, be brought into operation.—Such an appeal is of no practical interest. 1909 M.W.N. 142=1939 P.C. 53 (P.C.).

SECS. 6 AND 30: APPLICABILITY TO TEMPORARY ORDINANCES.—No doubt the General Clauses Act would certainly be applicable to the two Ordinances 2 and 10 of 1932 but sec. 6 is applicable to a case where a previous Ordinance has been "repealed" by a subsequent Ordinance or by a subsequent Act and would not necessarily apply to a case where a temporary Ordinance automatically expires after the period, during which it is in operation, is over. Hence although sec. 30 makes the Act applicable to the Ordinances, sec. 6 has no application to such temporary Ordinances. (1933 Cal. 280, Dist.) 1933 A. L. J. 875=1933 All. 669 (F.B.).

THE GENEVA CONVENTION IMPLEMENTING ACT (XIV OF 1936).

[27th October, 1936.

An Act to implement Article 28 of the Geneva Convention of the 27th day of July, 1929.

WHEREAS India was a signatory to the International Convention for the Amelioration of the Conditions of the Wounded and Sick in Armies in the Field, drawn up in Geneva and dated 27th day of July, 1929;

AND WHEREAS it is necessary to provide for the discharge of the obligations imposed by Article 28 of that Convention in so far as provision has not been made by the Geneva Convention Act, 1911;

It is hereby enacted as follows:

1. (1) This Act may be called THE GENEVA
Short title and extent. CONVENTION IMPLEMENTING ACT, 1936.

(2) It extends to the whole of British India, including British Baluchistan and the Sonthal Parganas.

2. No person shall use for the purposes of his trade or business or for any other purpose whatsoever any sign constituting a colourable imitation of the heraldic emblem of the red cross on a white ground formed by reversing the federal colours of Switzerland.

Prohibition of use of imitations of emblem of Red Cross on white ground.

3. No person shall use for the purposes of his trade or business the heraldic emblem of the white cross on a red ground, being the federal colours of Switzerland, or any sign constituting a colourable imitation of that heraldic emblem.

Prohibition of use of emblem of White Cross on red ground or imitations thereof.

4. Any person contravening the provisions of S. 2 or S. 3 shall be punishable with fine which may extend to fifty rupees, and when such contravention is committed by a company, association or body of individuals, then, without prejudice to the liability of such company, association or body, every member thereof who is knowingly a party to the contravention shall be liable to the like penalty.

5. No Criminal Court shall take cognizance of any offence punishable under this Act except with the previous sanction of the [Central Government] ³[* * *].

6. Nothing in the foregoing sections shall affect the right of any person,

Definitions.

2. In this Act, unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context,—

(1) "immovable property" includes land, buildings, hereditary allowances, rights to ways, lights, ferries, fisheries or any other benefit to arise out of land and things attached to the earth or permanently fastened to anything which is attached to the earth but not standing timber, growing crops or grass;

(2) "gross income" includes all receipts of every kind in produce or cash, except money borrowed, recoveries of principal and the proceeds of sale of immovable property or of movable property properly classed as capital; and

(3) "private estates under the Government management" include—

(a) estates under the Court of Wards;

(b) encumbered estate under Government management;

(c) estates attached for default of payment of Government revenue;

(d) minor's estates placed under the guardianship of a revenue-officer of the Government by a Civil Court;

(e) estates managed by a Collector in pursuance of any order made under the Code of Civil Procedure; and

(f) all other estates made over to, or taken under the management of, a revenue-officer of the Government as such under any law for the time being in force or in virtue of any agreement.

Power to levy rate.

3. It shall be lawful for the Provincial Government³.

(1) to levy on all private estates under Government management a rate, not exceeding five per cent. on the gross income, calculated, as nearly as may be possible, to cover—

(a) the cost of all Government establishments in so far as they may be employed in the supervision or management of such estates other than establishments specially entertained for the supervision or management of any particular estate or group of estates, and

(b) all contingent expenditure incurred in consequence of such supervision or management;

(2) from time to time to vary such rate; and

(3) to reduce or remit such rate in any special case or cases as may be equitable:

Provided that, in deciding the amount of the rate to be levied under this Act on any particular estate or group of estates, the Provincial Government shall consider the expenditure incurred on special establishments for such estate or estates.

4. In cases where an officer of the Government is employed to give legal

Power to levy special charges. advice or to audit accounts on behalf of any estate, the Provincial Government, if it considers the services rendered to be of a special nature, may, in its discretion, direct a special charge to be made against the estate on account of such services, irrespective of the rate leviable under the last foregoing section.

THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA ACT, 1919. (9 & 10, Geo. V, Ch. 101).

[23rd December, 1919.

An Act to make further provision with respect to the Government of India.

WHEREAS it is the declared policy of Parliament to provide for the increasing association of Indians in every branch of Indian administration, and for the general development of self-governing institutions, with a view to the progressive realization of responsible government in British India as an integral part of the Empire:

LEG. REF.

List of Local R. & O., and for other Provinces, their respective Local Rules and Orders. Sec. 17 of the Court of Wards Act, 1879, (passed by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal in Council), and so much of Act III of 1881 also passed by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal in Council) as relates to sec. 17 of the said Court of Wards Act, 1879, are hereby repealed.

The Preamble to the Government of India Act, 1919, was left unrepealed by the Government of India Act, 1935 (see sec. 321).

The Act of 1935, has not, unlike the Act of 1919 a preamble indicating the intentions of Parliament in enacting this measure. Indian opinion keenly desired the insertion in the Act of some provision indicating the goal of India as the attainment of Dominion Status. But perhaps for reasons explained by Lord Peel in the House of Lords, His Majesty's Government were against the proposal. Lord Peel stated:

"I believe that if, following the request of many Indian leaders, you had put in the sacred words Dominion Status, you would have had a considerable amount of enthusiasm, but, apart from the fact that from the draftsman's point of view the phrase is not artistic, the words, while rousing feelings of satisfaction in political India, might also give rise

5. Nothing in this Act shall apply to the cost of establishments specially entertained or to expenditure of any description specially incurred in respect of any particular estate or estates.

6. All rates for general supervision or management levied by any Provincial Government before the commencement of this Act shall be deemed to have been levied under this Act.

7. The Provincial Government may make any rules² and issue any orders, which may be necessary for carrying this Act into effect, and which are consistent therewith.

8. Where any Government establishment is employed in such supervision as aforesaid, the Provincial Government shall be the sole judge of the cost attributable to such employment, and its decision thereon shall not be questioned in any Court of law or otherwise.

9. Repeal [Repealed by the Repealing and Amending Act X of 1914.] to misunderstanding. Although the Indians may be emotional, and may respond to good will on our part, there are among them extremely acute and able lawyers. If you put this phrase in the Bill, those men would be constantly comparing the provisions of the Bill with the Constitutions of the self-governing Dominions and would draw most unfavourable comparisons between the powers granted to India and those enjoyed by the Dominions. The result—and a very dangerous result—would be that they would be led to charge us with that most terrible of all accusations, breach of faith, if we put the phrase into the Bill without perhaps fully appreciating all the deductions and inferences which could be drawn from it." (Par. Deb. H. L. Vol. 97, Col. 601).

The only concession that the Government were prepared to make was to retain, unrepealed the Preamble to the Act of 1919—notwithstanding that the Preamble therein referred to British India alone whereas this Act comprehends the Indian States in a Federation.

INTERPRETATION OF ACT—PRINCIPLES—DUTY OF COURT.—The constitution is not to be construed in any narrow or pedantic sense, and the Court will have regard to the fact that the subject-matter of the interpretation is a constitution—a mechanism under which laws are to be made and not a mere Act which declares what the Law shall be. 1939 F.C.R. 18=43 C.W.N. (F.C.R.) 1=49 L.W. 36=1939 F.C. 1=1939 M.L.J. (Supp.) 1.

AND WHEREAS progress in giving effect to this policy can only be achieved by successive stages, and it is expedient that substantial steps in this direction should now be taken:

AND WHEREAS the time and manner of each advance can be determined only by Parliament, upon whom responsibility lies for the welfare and advancement of the Indian peoples:

AND WHEREAS the action of Parliament in such matters must be guided by the co-operation received from those on whom new opportunities of service will be conferred, and by the extent to which it is found that confidence can be reposed in their sense of responsibility:

AND WHEREAS concurrently with the gradual development of self-governing institutions in the Provinces of India it is expedient to give to those Provinces in provincial matters the largest measure of independence of the Government of India, which is compatible with the due discharge by the latter of its own responsibilities:

Be it therefore enacted by the King's Most Excellent Majesty by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows:—

LEGISLATIVE POWERS OF GOVERNOR.

88. (1) If at any time when the Legislature of a Province is not in session the Governor is satisfied that circumstances exist which render it necessary for him to take immediate action, he may promulgate such ordinances as the circumstances appear to him to require:

Power of Governor to promulgate ordinances during recess of Legislature.

exist which render it necessary for him to take immediate action, he may promulgate such ordinances as the circumstances appear to him to require:

INTERPRETATION OF ACT—WHITE PAPER AND REPORT OF JOINT SELECT COMMITTEE.—Gwyer, C.J. and Jayakar, J. The proposals for Indian Constitutional Reforms known as the White Paper and Report of the Joint Select Committee thereon are historical facts and their relation to the Constitution Act is a matter of common knowledge to which the Court is entitled to refer. (1939) 1 M.L.J. Sup. 1.

Gwyer, C.J., and Sulaiman, J.—The Legislative practice in India preceding the Constitution Act may be looked into, for Parliament must surely be presumed to have that in mind, and unless the context otherwise clearly requires not to have conferred a legislative power in a sense not understood by those to whom the Act was to apply. 1939 F.C.R. 18=43 C.W.N. (F.C.R.) 1=1939 (F.C.) 1=(1939) M.L.J. (Supp.) 1. The ministers of a province are not subordinate officers to the Governor within the meaning of the Government of India Act. I.L.R. (1939) 2 Cal. 411=43 C.W.N. 950=1939 Cal. 529 (S.B.). In the Constitution Act of India there is no statutory bar by which taxing clauses are forbidden from being introduced into measures dealing with other subjects. 1942 A.L.J. 112=1942 O.A. (Supp.) 94.

The reasons which led the Government to support the saving of the preamble to the 1919 Act from the repeal of it was thus explained in Parliament.

"The value of this Preamble is that it does express in terms to which the Government to-day still adhere, the intentions or policy of Parliament with regard to the progressive realisation of responsible Government in British India as an integral part of the Empire". (Parl. Deb., Vol. 300, Col. 1364).

"We desire to preserve the Preamble as a record of the intentions of Parliament; not the intentions of a party or of an individual or of a Minister, but the intentions of Parliament and, therefore of the great English People with regard to the future of India."

SEC. 88: ORDINANCES DURING RECESS.—Dealing with the Ordinances under this section it was said: "We are dealing with ordinances made upon the advice of Ministers. They are ordinances made in the field of special responsibility by the Governor, which are the kind of Ordinances that would be made here by the Government in a time of emergency as to which the Government of the day has to obtain parliamentary approval within a given time. I think the real check is the check of ministerial responsibility to the Provincial Council. These ordinances are made upon the advice of Ministers who are themselves responsible to the Provincial Council." (Parl. Deb. Vol. 299, Col. 1532).

Provided that the Governor—

(a) shall exercise his individual judgment as respects the promulgation of any ordinance under this section, if a Bill containing the same provisions would under this Act have required his or the Governor-General's previous sanction to the introduction thereof into the Legislature; and

(b) shall not without instructions from the Governor-General, acting in his discretion, promulgate any such ordinance, if a Bill containing the same provisions would under this Act have required the Governor-General's previous sanction for the introduction thereof into the Legislature, or if he would have deemed it necessary to reserve a Bill containing the same provisions for the consideration of the Governor-General.

(2) An ordinance promulgated under this section shall have the same force and effect as an Act of the Provincial Legislature assented to by the Governor, but every such ordinance—

(a) shall be laid before the Provincial Legislature and shall cease to operate at the expiration of six weeks from the reassembly of the Legislature or, if a resolution disapproving it is passed by the Legislative Assembly and agreed to by the Legislative Council, if any, upon the passing of the resolution or, as the case may be, on the resolution being agreed to by the Council.

SECS. 88, 89: GOVERNOR'S ORDINANCE.—The Governor-General is the sole judge as regards the exercise of his powers and he is not bound to give any reasons for promulgating an ordinance such as the Criminal Law Amendment Act of 1935, which when once promulgated becomes a lawful Act. 48 L. W. 813=(1938) 2 M.L.J. 863. See also 1943 Pat. 24 (F.B.)=22 Pat. 160; 1943 Bom. 169=45 Bom.L.R. 323=I.L.R. (1943) Bom. 331; 1943 Cal. 285=44 Cr.L.J. 673. See also notes under sec. 240.

CASES UNDER GOVT. OF BURMA ACT.—The Court will not inquire whether circumstances in fact existed which rendered immediate action necessary before the promulgation of an ordinance. That is for the Governor to decide. The Court should not assume the burden of deciding for what purpose the action was necessary. Where in an ordinance the purpose is expressed to be that of enabling the Governor satisfactorily to discharge certain functions the Governor is the only judge of that. 1941 Rang.L.R. 101=193 I. C. 114=1941 Rang. 49. An ordinance duly promulgated has the same force and effect as an Act of the Legislature. 1941 Rang.L.R. 101=1941 Rang. 49. Responsibility of Governor for acts of Home Minister—Mode and effect of delegation of functions. (1945 2 M.L.J. 325 (P.C.).

ORDINANCE — PROMULGATION — DATE.—Promulgation of an ordinance without doubt connotes the fact of making the public aware of the existence of the new law. Promulgation of a new law takes place through the medium of the Official Gazette. It is wrong for the notifications which appear in the Gazette when an ordinance is first published therein to say, as they do: "The Governor has promulgated the following ordinances"; they should say "The Governor hereby promulgates the following ordinances." An ordinance therefore is promulgated on the date on which it is published in the Gazette. 103 I.C. 91=1941 Rang. 5.

ORDINANCES—PROMULGATION—PUBLICATION—RELATION BETWEEN.—Promulgation and publication in the Official Gazette are not synonymous. There is a distinction between the two. Publication in the Official Gazette is not sine qua non of promulgation though it is a record that promulgation has taken place and a means of announcing the fact to the widest possible circle of individuals. Reading of an ordinance by the speaker to the House of Representatives is sufficient promulgation. 1941 Rang.L.R. 101=193 I.C. 114=1941 Rang. 49.

ORDINANCES—PREAMBLE—DESIRABILITY.—It is not legally necessary that an ordinance should have a Preamble setting out that the Governor is satisfied as required by the terms of the section and also the purpose for which the ordinance is promulgated. Legally all that is necessary is that the Governor should declare that he promulgates the ordinance; but the adoption of this suggestion might make for the better understanding by the public of the reason and necessity for the issue of an ordinance. 1941 Rang.L.R. 101=193 I.C. 114=1941 Rang. 49.

GOVERNOR'S POWERS—SCOPE OF—ORDINANCES — IMPLICATION UNDERLYING.—The Governor's functions are capable of being exercised in any of three different ways. Some are exercisable in his discretion which means that he need not ask for the aid or advice of his Ministers at all; a second group is exercisable, notwithstanding the advice of Ministers, in the exercise of his individual judgment; and a third group is exercisable under the guidance of his Ministers. Matters which are said to fall within the individual judgment of the Governor may fall within the second and third group according to the opinion formed by the Governor as to the course which he should take. Where therefore an ordinance issued is expressed to be under the powers conferred by sec. 89 it is implied that an opinion has been formed by the Governor and an individual judgment has

(b) shall be subject to the provisions of this Act relating to the power of His Majesty to disallow Acts as if it were an Act of the Provincial Legislature assented to by the Governor; and

(c) may be withdrawn at any time by the Governor.

(3) If and so far as an ordinance under this section makes any provision which would not be valid if enacted in an Act of the Provincial Legislature assented to by the Governor, it shall be void.

89. (1) If at any time the Governor of a Province is satisfied that circum-

HIGH COURT, IF CAN GO INTO QUESTION AS TO AN ORDINANCE BEING WITHIN OR OUTSIDE THE POWERS OF THE GOVERNOR.—High Court is not precluded from enquiring whether an ordinance promulgated by the Governor is or is not within his powers. The Court can go into the question whether any provision or an ordinance promulgated is or is not void, on the ground that such provision, if it had been enacted in an Act of the Legislature would not have been valid. 193 I.C. 91=1941 Rang. 5. Ordinance—Duration—Computation of time. See 1941 Rang. 49=1941 Rang.L.R. 101; (1945) 2 M.L.J. 325 (P.C.).

The rationale and necessity for the power conferred by this section was thus explained on behalf of the Government to the committee of the House of Commons.

"This Bill sets up substantially Provincial autonomy, and the administration is carried on by Ministers. The Committee has already passed a clause which places on the Governor certain special responsibilities. Obviously, you cannot place special responsibilities on a man unless you give him the means of fulfilling those responsibilities. So far as executive action is concerned and any executive action taken is in his name, he can, of course, act in his individual judgment or discretion if the Bill empowers him to do so, but, obviously also, if you look at the special responsibilities placed upon him, occasions may arise where, in order to fulfil those responsibilities, it is necessary for him to proceed by ordinance. Therefore, everyone on the Committee, wherever he sits, and whatever his general views about democracy, must agree that, granted that these special responsibilities are to be placed on the Governor, it is quite clear that, in order to fulfil them, it may be necessary for him to proceed by Ordinance. Therefore, it would be quite wrong to put the responsibility upon him and not to confer the Ordinance-making power. The Committee having passed Clause 52 and the other Clauses giving the Governor special responsibilities, that must be unanswerable." (Parl. Deb. Vol. 299, Col. 1542).

Under the Government of India Act, 1919, sec. 72 the power of promulgating Ordinances was vested only in Governor-General and Provincial Governors had no such power. If any such ordinance was needed for any particular Province, it had to be passed by the Governor-General. Where a detainee's application for habeas corpus is dismissed, but subsequently he is released by the Government on their own initiative in spite of the dismissal of the habeas corpus application it must be held that there is no longer any pending matter in which leave can be granted to appeal to His Majesty in Council. SEC. 89: "ASSUME TO HIMSELF ALL OR ANY OF THE POWERS".—"In the event of a breakdown of the constitutional machinery, the Governor is not bound to take over the whole Government of the Province and administer it himself on his own undivided responsibility. The intention is to provide also for the possibility of a partial breakdown and to enable the Governor to take over part only of the machinery of Government, leaving

(2) An ordinance promulgated under the section shall continue in operation for such period not exceeding six months as may be specified therein, but may by a subsequent ordinance be extended for a further period not exceeding six months.

(3) An ordinance promulgated under this section shall have the same force and effect as an Act of the Provincial Legislature assented to by the Governor, but every such ordinance—

(a) shall be subject to the provisions of this Act relating to the power of His Majesty to disallow Acts as if it were an Act of the Provincial Legislature;

(b) may be withdrawn at any time by the Governor; and

(c) if it is an ordinance extending a previous ordinance for a further period, shall be communicated forthwith through the Governor-General to the Secretary of State and shall be laid by him before each House of Parliament.

(4) If and so far as an ordinance under this section makes any provision which would not be valid if enacted in an Act of the Provincial Legislature, it shall be void:

Provided that for the purposes of the provisions of this Act relating to the effect of an Act of a Provincial Legislature which is repugnant to an Act of the Federal Legislature, an ordinance promulgated under this section shall be deemed to be an Act of the Provincial Legislature which has been reserved for the consideration of the Governor-General and assented to by him.

(5) The functions of the Governor under this section shall be exercised by him in his discretion but he shall not exercise any of his powers thereunder except with the concurrence of the Governor-General in his discretion:

Provided that, if it appears to the Governor that it is impracticable to obtain in time the concurrence of the Governor-General, he may promulgate an ordinance without the concurrence of the Governor-General, but in that case the Governor-General in his discretion may direct the Governor to withdraw the ordinance and the ordinance shall be withdrawn accordingly.

the remainder to function according to the ordinary law. Thus the Governor might, if the breakdown were in the legislative machinery of the Province alone, still carry on the Government with the aid of his Ministers, if they were willing to support him; we are speaking of course of such a case as the refusal of the Legislature to function at all, and not merely of lesser conflicts or disputes between it and the Governor". (J.P.C. Report para. 109).

(2) Where the Governor takes such action as is mentioned in paragraph (b) of the preceding sub-section, he may, at any time after the expiration of one month, enact, as a Governor's Act, the Bill proposed by him to the Chamber or Chambers either in the form of the draft communicated to them, or with such amendments as he deems necessary, but before so doing he shall consider any address which may have been presented to him within the said period by the Chamber or either of the Chambers with reference to the Bill or to amendments suggested to be made therein.

(3) A Governor's Act shall have the same force and effect, and shall be subject to disallowance in the same manner, as an Act of the Provincial Legislature assented to by the Governor and, if and so far as it makes any provision which would not be valid if enacted in an Act of that Legislature, shall be void:

CHAPTER VI.

PROVISIONS IN CASE OF FAILURE OF CONSTITUTIONAL MACHINERY.

93. (1) If at any time the Governor of a Province is satisfied that a situation has arisen in which the government of the Province cannot be carried on in accordance with the provisions of this Act, he may by Proclamation—

Power of Governor to issue Proclamation. (a) declare that his functions shall, to such extent as may be specified in the Proclamation, be exercised by him in his discretion;

(b) assume to himself all or any of the powers vested in or exercisable by any Provincial body or authority;

and any such Proclamation may contain such incidental and consequential provisions as may appear him to be necessary or desirable for giving effect to the objects of the Proclamation, including provisions for suspending in whole or in part the operation of any provisions of this Act relating to any Provincial body or authority:

Provided that nothing in this sub-section shall authorize the Governor to assume to himself any of the powers vested in or exercisable by a High Court or to suspend, either in whole or in part, the operation of any provision of this Act relating to High Courts.

Sec. 93.—The reference to the Governor-General in cl. 44 of the Letters Patent refers to all other competent authorities, e.g., a Governor acting under sec. 93 of the Act. The effect of the proviso to sec. 93 of the Act is to prevent the Governor from assuming or suspending the powers and jurisdiction of the High Court by any proclamation under sec. 93, but does not extend to alteration of the law by or under the assumed legislative powers which are within the competency of the Provincial Legislature, once the Governor has assumed those powers. The assumption and the suspension mentioned in the proviso to sec. 93 are referential to the assumption mentioned in sec. 93 (1) (b) and the suspension mentioned in the particularization of the subject-matters which the proclamation may contain. 47 Bom.L.R. 294=1945 F.L.J. 119=A.I.R. 1945 Bom. 352. The effect of sec. 93 (1) (a) is to dispense with the necessity for the Governor of consultation with Ministers, and to authorise the Governor to exercise his functions in his discretion. 23 Pat. 968=A.I.R. 1945 Pat. 44 (F.B.). (2) Any such Proclamation may be revoked or varied by a subsequent Proclamation.

(3) A Proclamation under this section—

(a) shall be communicated forthwith to the Secretary of State and shall be laid by him before each House of Parliament;

(b) unless it is a Proclamation revoking a previous Proclamation, shall cease to operate at the expiration of six months:

Provided that, if and so often as a resolution approving the continuance in force of such a Proclamation is passed by both Houses of Parliament, the Proclamation shall, unless revoked, continue in force for a further period of twelve months from the date on which under this sub-section it would otherwise have ceased to operate, but no such Proclamation shall in any case remain in force for more than three years.

(4) If the Governor, by a Proclamation under this section, assumes to himself any power of the Provincial Legislature to make laws, any law made by him in the exercise of that power shall, subject to the terms thereof, continue to have effect until two years have elapsed from the date on which the Proclamation ceases to have effect, unless sooner repealed or re-enacted by Act of the appropriate Legislature, and any reference in this Act to Provincial Acts, Provincial laws, or Acts or laws of a Provincial Legislature shall be construed as including a reference to such a law.

(5) The functions of the Governor under this section shall be exercised by him in his discretion and no Proclamation shall be made by a Governor under this section without the concurrence of the Governor-General in his discretion.

PART V.

LEGISLATIVE POWERS.

CHAPTER I.

DISTRIBUTION OF POWERS.

99. (1) Subject to the provisions of this Act, the Federal Legislature may make laws for the whole or any part of British India or for any Federated State, and a Provincial Legislature may make laws for the Province or for any Extent of Federal and Provincial laws.

part thereof.

SEC. 99: SCOPE.—This section defines the territorial ambit of the powers conferred on the Federal and Provincial Legislatures as also the classes of persons over whom they have legislative competence. The succeeding sections of this Chapter together with the legislative lists in Schedule VII, delimit their competence with reference to the subject-matter of the legislation.

SECS. 99, 100: ACT OF INDIAN LEGISLATURE EXCLUDING RIGHT OF RESORT TO CIVIL COURT.—IF ULTRA VIRES.—An act excluding the subjects right of resort to the Civil Courts is not ultra vires of the Indian Legislature. Sec. 32 of the Government of India Act (1915) does not affect the validity of an Act which creates an obligation and provides an exclusive code for its determination. 67 I.A. 222=I.L.R. (1940) Mad. 599=52 L.W. 1=44 C.W.N. 709=1940 P.C. 105=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 140 (P.C.). The Provincial Legislatures are statutorily sovereign within the limits of the powers assigned to them. The jurisdiction of the Courts is within the province of the Provincial Legislature. It follows therefore that the Provincial Legislature can take away the right of the Courts to try any dispute which the Legislature considers it inexpedient to be decided by Courts at all. 195 I.C. 17=43 P.L.R. 198=1941 Lah. 182 (F.B.). Within its own ambit, the Indian Legislature exercises the plenary powers of a Sovereign Legislature. The Indian Legislature within the limits which circumscribe its powers is not in any sense an agent or delegate of the Imperial Parliament and was intended to have plenary powers of legislation as large and of the same nature as those of Parliament itself. When a question arises whether the prescribed limits have been exceeded, the Court must look to the terms of the instrument by which, affirmatively, the legislative powers were created, and by which negatively they are restricted. If what has been done is legislation, within the general scope of the affirmative words which give the power, and if it violates no express condition of restriction by which that power is limited, it is not for any Court of Justice to inquire further, or to enlarge constructive-

(2) Without prejudice to the generality of the powers conferred, by the preceding sub-section, no Federal law shall, on the ground that it would have extra-territorial operation, be deemed to be invalid in so far as it applies—ly those conditions and restrictions. I.L.R. (1943) Kar. 449=A.I.R. 1944 Sind 1 (F.B.). The Indian Legislature is not a Sovereign Legislature. Its powers are conferred by the Government of India Act, 1935, but within the ambit of the very wide powers conferred by that Act, the Indian Legislature is a Sovereign Legislature. Courts in construing the Government of India Act ought not to presume that the English Parliament did not intend to confer upon the Indian Legislature a power which it possessed itself but had never thought it desirable to exercise, vis., to tax the income of a non-resident accruing outside British India. The mere facts that an Act of the Indian Legislature has some extra-territorial operation is not enough to invalidate it; it is also clear that the power to impose income-tax is vested in the Indian Legislature. It must also have the power to determine who is to pay the tax and for that purpose, to lay down rules as to who is to be regarded as resident in, and what income is to be deemed to arise in, British India. There is nothing in the Government of India Act which lays it down that any legislation having extra territorial effect is invalid. The provisions of sec. 4-A (c) of the Income-tax Act (as amended in 1939) are not therefore ultra vires in whole or in part. 45 Bom.L.R. 929=1943 I.T.R. 559=A.I.R. 1944 Bom. 1=I.L.R. (1944) Bom. 43. See also 48 C.W.N. (F.R.) 73=(1944) F.L.J. 131=(1944) 1 M.L.J. 477=1944 F.C. 51. Power to affect prerogative rights of His Majesty—Decree or order of Privy Council—If affected by Madras Agriculturists' Relief Act.—It is a well-established principle that within the limits of subject and area assigned to a legislature by the Imperial Parliament, its powers to make laws are as supreme and plenary as those of Parliament itself. It is clearly competent for the Provincial Legislature to make laws affecting His Majesty's prerogative rights. The legislative authority conferred by secs. 99 and 100 of the Government of India Act of 1935 is subject only to "the provisions of this Act" and there is no provision in the Act which excepts generally the prerogative of the Crown. It is therefore within the competence of the legislatures of India to make laws derogating from the prerogative rights of the Crown except of course in so far as such prerogatives may be comprised in matters specifically excepted. The prerogative has no concern with the curtailment or modification of the rights of parties by a local law, such as Madras Act IV of 1938. 54 L.W. 107=1941 M.W.N. 741=1941 Mad. 817=(1941) 2 M.L.J. 125=I.L.R. (1942) Mad. 60. Where the legality of a legislation of a non-sovereign legislature having extra-territorial operation is questioned one must consider whether the particular legislation is authorised by the Constitution Act creating that legislature and defining its powers. Though the Statute of Westminster is not applicable to India, the Constitution Act of 1935, has to be interpreted in the light of the discussions on this subject that had been taking place between 1926 and 1935. The way in which this matter is dealt with in sec. 99 of the Constitution Act is significant. Sub-sec. (2) of sec. 99 is worded not as a provision "conferring power to make laws", but as a provision which assumes that the preceding sub-section is capable of being read as including the power to make laws even in respect of matters specified in the five cases dealt with in sub-sec. (2). This is made clear both by the opening words of sub-sec. (2) and also by the tenor of the sub-section which only purports to obviate objection on the ground of extra-territorial operation. Hence the extent, if any, of extra-territorial operation which is to be found in the impugned provisions is within the legislative powers given to the Indian Legislature by the Constitution Act. 48 C.W.N. (F.R.) 73=(1944) F.L.J. 131=A.I.R. 1944 F.C. 51=(1944) 1 M.L.J. 477 (F.C.). See also 1944 Bom. 1. There is no general rule of international comity which renders taxation on non-residents in respect of income derived from property in the colony imposing the tax, incompetent. Nor is it incompetent by reason of the circumstance that the colony in question cannot pass extra-territorial legislation. A tax in this form is not extra-territorial so long as it does not affect to tax property not situate in the colony. (1945) F.L.J. 97=1945 M.W.N. 596=A.I.R. 1945 P.C. 85 (P.C.). Rules made under regarding 'establishments'—Seniority in service and officiating in particular posts confers as right to claim confirmation or appointment to such post. See I.L.R. (1943) All. 4=6 F.L.J. 14.

Per Gwyer, C.J., and Varadachariar, J.—It must inevitably happen from time to time that legislation though purporting to deal with a subject in one list, touches also on a subject in another list, and the different provisions of the enactment may be so closely intertwined that blind adherence to a strictly verbal interpretation would result in a large number of statutes being declared invalid because the legislature enacting them may appear to have legislated in a forbidden sphere. Hence the rule has been evolved whereby the impugned statute is examined to ascertain its "pith and substance" or its "true nature and character", for the purpose of determining whether it is legislation with respect to matter in this list or in that. This rule of interpretation is equally applicable to the Indian Constitution Act, and may be accepted as a guide for the interpretation of the Government of India Act. 53 L.W. 109=45 C.W.N. (F.R.) 1=1941 F.C. 47=(1941) 1 M.L.J. 1. The provisions of the East Indian Company Act (1773), sec. 36—Power to legislate—If confined to Calcutta—Sec. 36 empowered the Governor-General in Council to legislate not only for the settlement at Fort William but also for other factories and places subordinate or to be subordinate thereto. 20 Pat. 573=22 Pat.L.T. 863 =1941 Pat. 306 (S.B.). Per Gwyer, C.J.—The power of a Provincial Legislature to legislate with respect to "works, lands and buildings vested in or in the possession of His Majesty for the purposes of the Province (List II entry No. 8) is restricted to works, lands and buildings situate in the Province itself. If, by reason of any of the provisions of sec. 172 or sec. 173, lands or buildings are vested in His Majesty for the purposes of a Province outside the territorial limits of the Province, the rights of the Provincial Government over them are analogous to those of a private owner. SECS. 99 AND 226.—The plaintiff company incorporated in England and having its main office there and having no business premises in India held the bulk of the shares in eleven companies carrying on business in India, two called the "rupee companies" being incorporated in India and having their offices in India and the rest called the "sterling companies" incorporated in England and having their offices there. The sterling companies were controlled in London, where the Board of Directors and the share registers are situate and dividends are declared. The business in India, where all profits are made, was managed by local boards. The Indian Government levied income-tax and super-tax on the dividends paid to the plaintiff company by the "sterling companies" in England. The tax was paid under protest and a suit was brought to declare that the assessment and demand of the tax were beyond the law-making powers of the Indian Legislature and were therefore void and had no legal effect and for consequential relief. Held, according to sec. 226, the bar is absolute, if the dispute concerns revenue taking the word "revenue" in its ordinary sense. The section is not limited to steps taken in the collection of revenue. It equally applies to the demand of assessment. (1944) 1 M.L.J. 477 (F.C.)=(1944) F.C. 51.

SEC. 100.—Indian Legislatures within their own spheres have plenary powers of legislation as large and of the same nature as those of Parliament itself and every intendment ought therefore to be made in favour of a legislature which is exercising the powers conferred on it. Its enactments ought not to be subjected to the minute scrutiny which may be appropriate to an examination of the by-laws of a body exercising only delegated powers, nor is the generality of its power to legislature on a particular subject to be cut down by arbitrary introduction of far-fetched and impertinent limitations. 21 Pat. 587=I.L.R. Sec. 100 and Art. 31, List II of the seventh Schedule, Government of India Act, give Provincial Legislatures power to legislate with respect to intoxicating liquors, that is to say, with respect to the production, manufacture, possession, etc., of such liquors. The power is not confined to merely the regulation or restriction of such manufacture, production or possession, etc. It is impossible to say that prohibiting possession of certain forms of intoxicating liquor in specified areas is anything more than legislation with respect to possession or transport of such intoxicating liquor in such areas. 21 Pat. 178=1942 P. (3) Subject to the two preceding sub-sections, the Provincial Legislature has, and the Federal Legislature has not, power to make laws for a Province or any part thereof with respect to any of the matters enumerated in List II in the said Schedule (hereinafter called the "Provincial Legislative List").

(4) The Federal Legislature has power to make laws with respect to matters enumerated in the Provincial Legislative List except for a Province or any part thereof.

of which are within the jurisdiction of the Legislature which imposes them, the validity of each impost can be dealt with by itself and there is no question of the one affecting the other and no scope for the application of the rule of pith and substance. Per Spens, C.J., and Varadachariar, J.—The Federal Legislature has no power to make a law providing for the levy of "Estate Duty" of the nature and with the incidents of Estate Duty under the English Law, and the levy of such Estate Duty is not a matter included in any of the Lists in Sch. VII to the Constitution Act. The word "succession" used in Entry 56 of List I which speaks of "duties in respect of succession to property" is not capable of comprehending every kind of passing of property. The expression "in respect of" in the entry indicates that "succession" is the subject-matter of the taxation and not merely the occasion. Per Zaffrulla Khan, J.—The expression "Estate Duty" is not a term of art and carries no precise connotation. A law enacting that upon the death of a person there shall be levied a duty in respect of property passing upon the death may well be so framed as to be completely covered by entry No. 56 of the Federal List, even upon a narrow construction of the term "succession" used in that entry. SECS. 100 AND 107: SCOPE AND EFFECT OF.

—Though in one aspect and for one purpose a subject may be within the powers of the Federal Parliament, in another aspect and for another purpose it may fall within the powers of a Provincial Legislature. The Madras Agriculturists' Relief Act is one which relates to "agriculture" a subject reserved for the Provincial Legislature, item 20 of List II of Sch. VII of the Government of India Act. The Act relates to moneylending to agriculturists, and "money-lending" also is a subject reserved for Provincial Legislature, item 27 of List II of Sch. VII. The only effect of the Act, so far as Negotiable Instruments are concerned is to reduce liability where the maker or endorser is an agriculturist. The act being in substance within the powers of the Madras Legislature, the fact that in particular cases it may operate to reduce liability on contracts evidenced by negotiable instruments cannot affect its validity. The Madras Agriculturists' Relief Act is therefore intra vires the powers of the Provincial Legislature, and not ultra vires on the ground that its provisions are repugnant to the provisions of the Negotiable Instruments Act, the Usurious Loans Act and the Hindu Law as to debts. I.L.R. (1939) Mad 151=2 F.L.J. 39=49 L.W. 257=1939 Mad. 361=(1931) 1 M.L.J. 272 (F.B.). If a tax is covered by the Federal List (List I of Sch. VII), and not covered by the Provincial List (List II of the said Schedule), then the Provincial Legislature cannot impose such tax and it would be invalid. If a tax is covered by the Provincial List and not covered by the Federal List, then the validity of tax cannot be questioned. But if a tax falls within both the Lists, then such a tax will be ultra vires the Provincial Legislature by reason of the non-obstante clause in S. 100 (1) of the Act. But it is a fundamental assumption that the legislative power of the centre and the Provinces could not have been intended to be in conflict with one another, and the Court must therefore read them together and interpret or modify the language in which one is expressed by the language of the other and arrive at a reasonable and practical construction of the language of the section so as to reconcile the respective powers they contain and give effect to all of them. It is only if such a reconciliation should prove impossible and only then will the non-obstante clause in S. 100 (1) operate and the Federal power prevail, for the clause ought to be regarded as a last resort. 49 L.W. 36=1939 F.C. 1=1939 M.L.J. Supp. 1. See also 19 Pat. 974=21 Pat.L.T. 740=1940 Pat. 99; 20 Pat. 831=1941 Pat. 561. S. 4 (1) (a) of the Madras Prohibition Act is completely ultra vires so far as the possession of ganja or any other dangerous drug is concerned. The Provincial Legislature had no power to repeal the Abkari Acts in so far as dangerous drugs are concerned and those Acts and the rules made thereunder remain in force in relation to ganja, in view of S. 107 of the Government of India Act. I.L.R. (1941) Mad 687=54 L.W. 17=1941 Mad. 533=(1941) 2 M.L.J. 41 (F.B.). Under Cl. 31 of the Provincial Legislative List in the seventh schedule the Provincial Legislature had full power to legislate with regard to the production, manufacture, possession, transport and sale of intoxicating liquors, while Cl. 19 of the Federal List gave the Central Legislature power to legislate with regard to import and export across frontiers. S. 4 (1) (a) of the Prohibition Act prohibited inter alia the possession of intoxicating liquors. Since in the present case, which was merely concerned with the possession of arrack produced in the Madras Presidency there was no question of any import or export, the conviction was lawful as the Provincial Legislature had power to prohibit the possession of arrack. I.L.R. (1941) Mad. 701=53 L.W. 615=1941 Mad. 621=(1941) 1 M.L.J. 715. Obiter.—A right to legislate as to possession of intoxicating liquors must necessarily involve a right to prohibit possession. The Provincial Legislature has power so to limit possession, provided that in so doing it does not encroach upon the legislative powers of the Central Government. The Central Legislature is the authority to legislate in respect of import and export of intoxicants across the sea frontier of Bombay, under item 19 of List I of the 7th Schedule. The power of the Provincial Government to legislate as to possession is thus a qualified and not an absolute power; it is subject to the rights of the Central Government. I.L.R. (1940) Bom. 777=42 Bom. L.R. 791=1940 Bom. 307 (F.B.). S. 3 of the C.P. and Berar Sales of Motor Spirit and Lubricants Taxation Act of 1938 and all the provisions thereof levying "a tax on the retail sales of motor spirit and lubricants at the rate of five per cent. on the value of such sales" is not ultra vires the Legislature of the Central Provinces and Berar. It falls under Item 48 of List II in Sch. VII of the Act as "a tax on the sale of goods" and is not covered by Item 45 in List I of Sch. VII as a "duty of excise". 180 I.C. 161=43 C.W.N. (F.C.R.) 1=1939 F.C. 1=1939 M. L. J. (Supp.) 1. Part VI of the Bombay Finance Act of 1932, as amended in 1939, is not ultra vires the Provincial Government, and the Urban Immovable Property Tax imposed by that Act is a valid tax. It is a tax on lands and buildings, imposed on the owners qua owners, and assessed by a somewhat arbitrary but not in equitable standard, which is not dependent either on the income of the assesses or on the capital value of the properties. It is not a tax upon income. The tax falls within item 42 of the Provincial List. I.L.R. (1940) Bom. 58=42 Bom.L.R. 10=1940 Bom. 65 (F.B.). The Madras General Sales Tax Act is not ultra vires in so far as it purports to levy a tax on first sales; that is, sales by the manufacturer or producer. Under the Government of India Act, the Federal Legislature has an exclusive power (List I, entry No. 45) to impose duties of excise, and the Provincial Legislature an exclusive power (List II, entry No. 48) to impose taxes on the sale of goods, and this power extends to sales of every kind including first sales. The expression "duty of excise" is wide enough to include a tax on sales, but where power is expressly given to another authority to levy a tax on sales, "duty of excise" must be given a more restricted meaning than it might otherwise bear. A tax levied on the first sale of goods must in the nature of things be a tax on the sale by the manufacturer or producer, but it is levied upon him qua seller and not qua manufacturer or producer. If a taxpayer who pays a sales tax is also a manufacturer or producer of commodities subject to a central duty of excise he may have to pay two taxes, but the two taxes are economically separate and distinct imposts. It is natural when considering the ambit of an express power in relation to an unspecified residuary power to give a broad interpretation to the former at the expense of the latter but where, as in the Government of India Act, there are two complementary powers each expressed in precise and definite terms there can be no reason for giving a broader interpretation to one power rather than to the other. The American and Australian decisions should not therefore be blindly adopted in India. 5 Fed.L.J. 61=A.I.R. 1942 (F.C.) 33=46 C.W.N. (F.B.) 38. [I.L.R. ness by a corporation, contemplated by Item 38 of List I of Schedule VII. It is enactment relating to money-lending falling under Item 21 of List II of that Schedule. Money-lending is only a part of the business of a bank and therefore it cannot be said that in enacting the Bihar Money-Lenders Act the Legislature trespassed upon item 38 of List I of Schedule VII, to the Government of India Act. S. 13 of the Bihar Money-Lenders Act does not legislate directly or indirectly with regard to the conduct of banking business and is not inapplicable to cases where the creditor is a bank. The mere fact that a decree under execution might in the ordinary course be obtained by a Bank cannot make the section an enactment relating to the conduct of banking business. 20 Pat. 831=22 Pat.L.T. 522=1941 Pat. 562. See also 19 Pat. 974=21 Pat.L.T. 740=1941 Pat. 99. W.N. 66=23 P.L.T. 143. Powers of local legislature to make laws—Limits—Old Act.—It is wrong to think that sub-S. (3) of S. 80-A of the Government of India Act (1919), means that if the local legislature of a province has obtained the previous sanction of the Governor-General, it can make laws of the kind mentioned in cls. (a) to (i) of the sub-section so as to affect rights and properties not only within the boundaries of the province, but also outside those boundaries. The effect of sub-S. (3) is that without the previous sanction of the Governor-General, or at any rate his subsequent assent as mentioned in the proviso to the sub-section, the local legislature of a province cannot validly make any such laws even for its own territories, and the previous sanction, or the subsequent assent, of the Governor-General in Council only makes such laws valid and effective within the territories of the province. seventh Schedule, Government of India Act give Provincial Legislatures power to legislate with respect to intoxicating liquors, that is to say, with respect to the production, manufacture, possession, etc., of such liquors. The power is not confined to merely the regulation or restriction of such manufacture, production or possession, etc. It is impossible to say that prohibiting possession of certain forms of intoxicating liquor in specified areas is anything more than legislation with respect to possession or transport of such intoxicating liquor in such areas. 197 I.C. 618=21 Pat. 178=1942 P. 351.

Sec. 101.—The provisions of S. 100 relate to the exercise of legislative powers in and for British India. In the case of the Indian States, however, dealt with by this section the powers of the Federal legislature do not extend to all the matters comprised in the list, but only to such of them as are specified by the Ruler in the Instrument of Accession "as matters with respect to which the Federal legislature may make laws for his State and subject to the limitation if any to which that power may be made subject" S. 6 (2). Explaining the basis of the section, Sir Samuel Hoare said: "The whole essence of federation is that the units surrender definite powers, but beyond that field the Federal legislature has no power over the units at all. That is exactly the position. The Federal legislature has power over the units to the extent of the federal field; and in the case of Indian Princes to the extent that they have surrendered their powers in the Instrument of Accession. That is altogether in keeping with the letter and spirit of every federal legislature in the world. It would be contrary to every theory of federation if the Federal Government had more extended powers". (Parl. Deb., Vol. 299, Col. 1932).

Sec. 102.—"Emergency" means something in existence which calls for immediate action. 44 Cr.L.J. 673=1943 Cal. 285.

The official report of the Proceedings of the House of Lords can be accepted as proof that the proclamation of emergency made by the Governor-General under sec. 102 has been approved by the House. 75 C.L.J. 90=(1942) F.L.J. (H.C.) 180=1942 Cal. 464.

State of Emergency—Governor-General—Spoke. Judge: Per Nirogi, J.—The chapter, Federal Legislature shall, if the Governor-General has in his discretion declared by Proclamation (in this Act referred to as a "Proclamation of Emergency") that a grave emergency exists whereby the security of India is threatened, whether by war or internal disturbance, have power to make laws for a Province or any part thereof with respect to any of the matters enumerated in the Provincial Legislative List:

Provided that no Bill or amendment for the purposes aforesaid shall be introduced or moved without the previous sanction of the Governor-General in his discretion, and the Governor-General shall not give his sanction unless it appears to him that the provision proposed to be made is a proper provision in view of the nature of the emergency.

Governor-General is the sole judge of whether a state of emergency exists and therefore it must be assumed that there was an emergency when he declared that there was. The Governor-General is not bound to give any reason for promulgating an Ordinance. It is sufficient for him to declare that an emergency has arisen to enable him to issue Ordinance. I.L.R. (1943) Nag. 73=6 F.L.J. (H.C.) 53=1943 N.L.J. 16=A.I.R. 1943 Nag. 36; 22 Pat. 565=1943 Pat. 348=24 Pat.L.T. 302.

When comes into operation: Per Niyogi, J.—Sec. 102 comes into play when the security of India is threatened. There may be war or internal disorders but the existence of either factor is neutral unless either one or the other becomes a menace to the security of India and gives rise to a grave emergency. As sec. 102 contemplates a threat to the security arising from either of the two factors in the absence of the other, the word "or" occurring between "war" and "internal disturbances" in sec. 102 cannot be read as "and" although it is conceivable that both factors may come into operation at one and the same time. I.L.R. (1943) Nag. 73=1943 N.L.J. 16=A.I.R. 1943 Nag. 36.

Niyogi and Digby, JJ.—The Civil Courts in India have inherent jurisdiction to enquire into the validity of any laws passed by the Indian Legislature or by the Provincial Legislature. The Legislatures in India are constituted under the Government of India Act, 1935, and their powers are circumscribed by the limits imposed by that Act. Their laws are therefore subject to scrutiny by the High Courts in a manner in which the laws passed by the British Parliament are not. The Governor-General has been invested with powers in certain specified circumstances to enact laws or to make and promulgate ordinances subject to certain conditions; but his legislative power is no greater than that of the Indian Legislature. The High Court therefore has authority to enquire into the validity of the Special Criminal Courts Ordinance. I.L.R. Secs. 102 and 297.—S. 297. deals with Provincial Legislatures or Government and limits their power to legislate with regard to production, supply and distribution of commodities. The section does not refer to the Federal Legislature at all. When the Government of India acquires powers under S. 102 to legislate with regard to Provincial subjects its legislation on such matters is not subject to the restrictions laid down by S. 297. Since all Provinces are subject to the Federal Legislature, that Legislature has power to make legislation prohibiting or restricting import into or export from a Province. A Notification issued by a District Magistrate, to whom the Provincial Government has delegated its powers of prohibiting the removal of tur or turdal from any place within the limits of a district to any place outside that District is therefore properly issued and is not ultra vires. I.L.R. (1944) Bom. 429=46 Bom.L.R. 449=A.I.R. 1944 Bom. 247. The requisitioning of movable property although not specifically enumerated in the Provincial Legislative List is clearly included in more general subjects which find a place in that list. There is no limitation of the powers of the Provincial Government with respect to the subject included in the Provincial Legislative List except in so far as the power is controlled by some provision of the Government of the India Act. S. 297 does restrict the powers of Provincial Legislatures in regard to matters listed in items 27 and 29 in certain respects, but not in respect of the power to requisition goods within the Province. The power of the Provincial Legislature to make laws with respect to "trade and commerce" within the province and with respect to the "production, supply and distribution of goods" includes the power to requisition goods for public purposes. A Grains Purchase Officer can therefore requisition stocks of paddy and failure to comply with the order will be an offence. (1944) 2 M.L.J. 391=1945 Mad. 104. Powers of Governor-General to enact single law for all provinces—Special Criminal Courts (Repeal) Ordinance, 1943—If

(2) Nothing in this section shall restrict the power of a Provincial Legislature to make any law which under this Act it has power to make, but if any provision of a Provincial law is repugnant to any provision of a Federal law which the Federal Legislature has under this section power to make, the Federal law, whether passed before or after the Provincial law, shall prevail, and the Provincial law shall to the extent of the repugnancy, but so long as the Federal law continues to have effect, be void.

(3) A Proclamation of Emergency—

(a) may be revoked by a subsequent Proclamation;

(b) shall be communicated forthwith to the Secretary of State and shall be laid by him before each House of Parliament; and

(c) shall cease to operate at the expiration of six months, unless before the expiration of that period it has been approved by Resolutions of both Houses of Parliament.

(4) A law made by the Federal Legislature which that Legislature would not but for the issue of a Proclamation of Emergency have been competent to make shall cease to have effect on the expiration of a period of six months after the Proclamation has ceased to operate, except as respects things done or omitted to be done before the expiration of the said period.

103. If it appears to the Legislatures of two or more Provinces to be desirable that any of the matters enumerated in the Power of Federal Legislature to legislate for two or more Provinces by consent.

Provincial Legislative List should be regulated in those Provinces by Act of the Federal Legislature, and if resolutions to that effect are passed by all the Chambers of those Provincial Legislature, it shall be lawful for the Federal Legislature to pass an Act for regulating that matter accordingly, but any Act so passed may, as respects any Province to which it applies, be amended or repealed by an Act of the Legislature of that Province.

104. (1) The Governor-General may by public notification empower either ultra vires. 6 F.L.J. 187=A.I.R. 1944 F.C. 1 (C.C.).

Sec. 103.—The section is necessitated by the fact that under S. 99, the legislative powers of a province are confined to the limits of that province, and that if a body having jurisdiction within more than one province, e.g., like a Joint Public Service Commission for 2 or more provinces, was desired to be set up, there would be no power in the provinces to do so. With the disappearance of a central legislature with power to invade the provincial field at all points, there had necessarily to be devised some machinery for co-ordination of policy between the provinces in matters of common concern to them. As the Statutory Committee pointed out, there is urgent need for the establishment of institutions for research in the fields of Forestry, Agriculture, health, problems, all subjects in the Provincial list. This recommendation was endorsed by the Joint Parliamentary Committee and accordingly provision has been made for the creation of Interprovincial councils by Order in Council. This section would have to be utilised for providing the necessary legislation investing these councils with functions and powers. The presence of this section obviates the limitation set out in the judgment of Lord

Atkinson of City of Montreal v. Montreal Street Railway, Co., (1912) A.C. 333, where it is pointed out that inconvenience of provincial administration in a matter concerning more than one province does not clothe the Dominion Parliament with legislative power in that field.

Sec. 104: Residuary Power.—Explaining the principle adopted in framing the legislative lists and in enacting the machinery devised by this section in regard to the location of the residuary power Sir S. Hoare said: "We found that Indian opinion was very definitely divided between, speaking generally, the Hindus who wish to keep the predominant powers in the Centre, and the Moslems who wish to keep the predominant power in the Provinces. The extent of that feeling made each of these communities look with the greatest suspicion at the residuary field, the Hindus demanding that the residuary field should remain with the Centre and the Muslims equally strongly demanding that the residuary field should remain with the Provinces."

The feeling was very deep and very bitter on this issue. We tried year after year not only in the Joint Select Committee but also in the various Round Table Conferences to bridge the difference, but the only bridge that we could find between these two diamet-

Residual powers of the Federal Legislature or a Provincial Legislature to enact a law with respect to any matter not enumerated in any of the Lists in the Seventh Schedule to this Act, including a law imposing a tax not mentioned in any such list, and the executive authority of the Federation or of the Province, as the case may be, shall extend to the administration of any law so made, unless the Governor-General otherwise directs.

(2) In the discharge of his functions under the section the Governor-General shall act in his discretion.

trically opposite points of view was to have three lists, namely, the Federal List, the Provincial List and the Concurrent List, each as exhaustive as we could make it, so exhaustive as to leave little or nothing for the residuary field. I believe that we have succeeded in that attempt and that all that is likely to go into the residuary field are perhaps some quite unknown spheres of activity that neither my Hon. Friend nor I can contemplate at this moment. We find that we have really exhausted the ordinary activities of Government in the three other fields. I agree with my Hon. Friend that it means complications. I believe that it also means the possibility of increased litigation."

The decision of the Governor-General that a subject is not covered by the enumerated matters in the three lists would not seem to be final, and the question could be challenged in the Courts. But having regard to the importance of the subject it is not expected that he would decide such matters without obtaining the advisory opinion of the Federal Court under S 213. But his decision allocating the subject—if in fact it is a residue—to the Provincial or Federal Legislature is not open to question in the Courts. The section states that the Governor-General might assign the subject 'either to the Federal or the Provincial Legislature' which seems to raise a doubt as to whether he can assign such a residuary subject to the concurrent list. It is however submitted that he can assign it to any of the three lists.

Sec. 104 and Seventh Schedule.—Scope of the powers of legislation of the Indian Legislature—Comparison with the powers of the Imperial Parliament.

The Imperial Parliament is supreme and has powers to enact laws affecting the liberty of person and the rights of property enjoyed by the subject in any manner whatever. The Imperial Parliament has got the power to deprive a subject of his liberty of person and also of his rights of property in any manner whatever without assigning any whatsoever or without making any compensation for the same. On the other hand the powers granted to the Indian Legislature under the Constitution Act are circumscribed within the items in the lists of the seventh schedule to Act, though it powers to make laws with respect to the items in those lists are plenary within their own sphere. In the exercise of such powers it does not act as an agent of or exercise any delegated authority from the Imperial Parliament. It exercises plenary powers, as full powers as the Parliament itself could exercise with respect to the items in those lists. Even though those lists may have been meant to be as exhaustive and comprehensive as human ingenuity could make them, they were meant to comprise all that could be thought of as within the ordinary activities of the Government. Even though the emergency like the present war could well have been within the contemplation of the framers of the Constitution Act, there is no doubt that such powers as may have to be exercised in such an emergency could not have been contemplated to have been included in the items in those lists. Hence the emergency powers sought to be given to the Government by the enactment of the provisions of Defence of India Act by the Central Legislature, even though that was done in pursuance of a proclamation issued by the Governor-General in that behalf could not have been at all contemplated by the framers of the Constitution Act when the lists of the seventh schedule came to be compiled by them. That is the real reason why the residual powers of legislation were vested in the Governor-General under the terms of S. 104 of the Act. In interpreting the Constitution Act, the canon of construction which warrants a large and liberal construction to be put upon the various provisions of the Constitution Act should be modified by the canon of construction which lays down that a strict construction should be put upon the provisions which go to curtail the liberties of the subject or impose burdens and obligations upon him. On this principle of construction, the items in the lists of the seventh schedule should not be so construed as to deprive the subject of his liberties or to impose burdens or obligations upon him beyond those which are warranted by the words used therein in spite of the items contained in those lists being read as extending to all ancillary or subsidiary matters can fairly and reasonably be said to be comprehended in the same. 47 Bom.L.R. 1010=1945 F.L.J. 247.

Requisition is not included in acquisition but it is separate and distinct from acquisition. 'Acquisition' is used only in the sense of compulsory acquisition of land is competent to enact or to any provision of an existing Indian law with respect to one of the matters enumerated in the Concurrent Legislative List, then, subject to the provisions of this section, the Federal law, whether passed before or after the Provincial law, or, as the case may be, the existing Indian law, shall prevail and the Provincial law shall, to the extent of the repugnancy, be void.

which is enacted in the Land Acquisition Act I of 1894 or the compulsory purchase of land which is known to English Law. 'Requisition' is always understood to mean a dominion or control of the property and not the acquisition of the rights of ownership. Though a large and liberal interpretation requires to be given to the general topic or category of legislation 'land' described in item 21 of list II of the seventh schedule it is of necessity limited by the user of the expression "that is to say" which has to be interpreted as laying down restrictions on the generality of the topic or category of legislation which it goes to explain. Hence the amplification and explanation therein is really restrictive or limitative of the general topic "land" described in item No. 21. (Ibid.)

U. P. Regularisation of Remissions Act falls without residual powers defined in S. 104 of this Act. I.L.R. (1940) All. 455 = 1940 A.L.J. 274 = 1940 All. 272 (F.B.).

Sec. 107.—See also Notes under S. 100, supra.] Applicability and scope of section.—Per Iqbal Ahmad, J.—S. 107 affects the relations between the Federal legislature and the Provincial legislature where the laws passed by the two legislatures are among the subjects in the concurrent legislative list and are repugnant to each other. It has no application to repugnancy due to overlapping found between the Provincial List on the one hand and the Federal and concurrent lists on the other. I.L.R. (1940) All. 455 = 3 Fed.L.J. (H.C.) 83 = 1940 A.L.J. 274 = 1940 All. 272 (F.B.). S. 107 relates only to the concurrent list and has no application to subjects reserved exclusively to List I. The section, moreover, deals with repugnancy but not ultra vires. No assent of the Governor-General can validate a law which is void apart from any question of repugnancy and which it was never within the competence of the Provincial legislature to enact, a law which is therefore void ab initio. S. 107 (2) provides means for overcoming a repugnancy; it provides no means of validating a law which is completely ultra vires—ultra vires ab initio, and which therefore has no intrinsic force in it which can be validated. 19 Pat. 974 = 21 Pat.L.T. 740 = 1940 P.W.N. 719 = 1941 Pat. 99. Sub-ss. (1) and (2) of S. 107 must be read together and only that kind of provincial law is contemplated by sub-S. (1) as is covered by sub-S. (2) which clearly contemplates only a provincial law with respect to one of the matters enumerated in the Concurrent Legislative List. In order to see "with respect to" what matter the Legislature is exercising its legislative function, we are to look to the pith and substance of the entire enactment and not the matter for legislation in a particular provision served from the context. 1942 F.L.J. (H.C.) 189 = 46 C.W.N. 999 = A.I.R. 1942 Cal. 587. The question of "pith and substance" does not arise when objection is taken not under S. 100 but under S. 107 (1) of the Act. I.L.R. (1942) Lah. 623 = I.L.R. (1942) Kar. (F.C.) 40 = 5 Fed.L.J. 33 = 55 L.W. 484 = 46 C.W.N. (F.R.) 61 = A.I.R. 1942 F.C. 27 = 78 C.L.J. 500. Legislation coming in pith and substance within one of the classes specially enumerated in the Central List is beyond the legislative competence of the Provincial Legislatures. In such a case it is immaterial whether the Central Legislature has or has not dealt with the subject by legislation, or to use other wellknown words, whether that legislative field has or has not been occupied by the legislation of the Central Assembly. Where the Central Legislature has been given exclusive legislative authority as to "all matters coming within the classes of subjects" enumerated it cannot be said that, unless and until the Central Assembly legislates on and such matter the Provinces are competent to legislate. 6 F.L.J. (P.C.) 1 = A.I.R. 1943 P.C. 76. If a subject of legislation by the Province is only incidental or ancillary to one of the classes of subjects enumerated in the Central List and is properly within one of the subjects enumerated in the Provincial List, then legislation by the Province is competent unless and until the Central Legislature chooses to occupy the field by legislation. 6 F.L.J. (P.C.) 1 = A.I.R. 1943 P.C. 76. Repugnancy—Test.—If the dominant law has expressly or impliedly evinced its intention to cover the whole field, then a subordinate law in the same fields is repugnant and therefore inoperative. Whether and to what extent in a given case, the dominant law evinces such an intention must necessarily depend on the language of the particular law. 69 C.L.J. 573 = 43 C.W.N. 913 = 1939 Cal. 628. See also 19 Pat.L.T. 760; 1938 P.W.N. 913 (F.B.); 71 C.L.J. 369. "Repugnant" means "inconsistent with" or "contrary to". Such contrariety may be in quality, in matter or in respect of the

(2) Where a Provincial law with respect to one of the matters enumerated in the Concurrent Legislative List contains any provision repugnant to the provisions of an earlier Federal law or an existing Indian law with respect to that matter, then, if the Provincial law, having been reserved for the consideration of the Governor-General or for the signification of His Majesty's pleasure, has received the assent of the Governor-General or of His Majesty, the Provincial law shall in that Province prevail, but nevertheless the Federal Legislature may at any time enact further legislation with respect to the same matter:

Provided that no Bill or amendment for making any provision repugnant to any Provincial law, which, having been so reserved, has received the assent of the Governor-General or of His Majesty, shall be introduced or moved in either Chamber of the Federal Legislature without the previous sanction of the Governor-General in his discretion.

(3) If any provision of a law of a Federated State is repugnant to a Federal law which extends to that State, the Federal law, whether passed before or after the law of the State, shall prevail and the law of the State shall, to the extent of the repugnancy, be void.

form prescribed. Foster's case, (11 Coke Rep. 56 B.). According to Higgins, J., repugnance must involve either directly or ultimately a contradictory proposition, probably contradictory duties or contradictory rights. (A.-G. for Queensland v. A.-G. for Commonwealth, 20 Com.L.R. 148 at p. 178). In other words there must be a direct collision between the provisions in the two enactments before they can be pronounced to be repugnant to each other. He further elucidated his proposition in these words in his dissenting judgment in Clyde Engineering Co. v. Coburn, (37 Com.L.R. 466). "Etymologically things are inconsistent when they cannot stand together at the same time; and one law is inconsistent with another law when the command or power or provision in the one law conflicts directly with the command or power or provision in the other. Where two legislatures operate over the same territory and come into collision, it is necessary that one should prevail, but the necessity is confined to actual collision as when one legislature says "do" and the other says "don't". Repugnancy of provincial law to existing Indian law—Principles of construction. Per Sulaiman, J.—When the question is whether a provincial legislation is repugnant to an existing Indian law, the onus of showing its repugnancy and the extent to which it is repugnant should be on the party attacking its validity. There ought to be a presumption in favour of its validity, and every effort should be made to reconcile them and construe both so as to avoid their being repugnant to each other; and care should be taken to see whether the two do not really operate in different fields without encroachment. Further, repugnancy must exist in fact, and not depend merely on a possibility. If the invalid part of an Act is really separate in its operation from the other parts, and the rest are not inseparably connected with it, then only such part is invalid, unless, of course, the whole object of the Act would be frustrated by the partial exclusion. If the subject which is beyond the legislative power is perfectly distinct from that which is within such power, the Act can be ultra vires in the former, while intra vires in the latter. A law which is ultra vires in part only may thereby become ultra vires in whole if the object of the Act cannot at all be attained by excluding the bad part. If the offending provisions are so interwoven into the scheme of the Act that they are not severable then the whole Act is invalid. 2 F.L.J. 183=43 C.W.N. (F.C.R.) 193=1939 F.C. 74=(1939) 2 M.L.J. Bihar Money-lenders (Regulation of Transactions) Act (VII of 1939) is not void as repugnant to existing Indian law. 2 F.L.J. 183=43 C.W.N. (F.C.R.) 68=20 Pat.L.T. 473=1939 F.C. 74=(1939) 2 M.L.J. S. 15 of Bihar Act IX of 1938 is not void under S. 107 of the Government of India Act of 1935, as being repugnant to S. 38, C. P. Code an existing Indian law. 1939 P.W.N. 530=20 Pat.L.T. 492=18 Pat. 694=1939 Pat. 570. Bihar Tenancy Act (as amended in 1937), S. 178-B—If conflicts with Permanent Regulation and if invalid. See 1942 P. W.N. 66. The expression "Federal law" in S. 107 (1) of the Government of India Act would not include a previously existing Indian law on a subject falling in List I. 192 I.C. 225=73 C.L.J. 1=53 L.W. 109=45 C.W.N. (F.R.) 1=1941 F.C. 47=(1941) 1 M.L.J. (Supp.) 1. If the subject-matter of a provincial enactment falls within the Provincial legislative list, the mere fact that it may also be affected by certain provisions in the concurrent legislative list would not attract the provisions of S. 107 of the Act regarding repugnancy. 43 P.L.R. 226=1941 Lah. 177 (F.B.).

CHAPTER II.

RESTRICTIONS ON LEGISLATIVE POWERS.

Sanction of Governor-General or Governor required for certain legislative proposals.

108. (1) Unless the Governor-General in his discretion thinks fit to give his previous sanction, there shall not be introduced into, or moved in, either Chamber of the Federal Legislature, any Bill or amendment which—

(a) repeals, amends or is repugnant to any provisions of any Act of Parliament extending to British India; or

(b) repeals, amends or is repugnant to any Governor-General's or Governor's Act, or any ordinance promulgated in his discretion by the Governor-General or a Governor; or

(c) affects matters as respects which the Governor-General is, by or under this Act, required to act in his discretion; or

(d) repeals, amends or affects any Act relating to any police force; or

(e) affects the procedure for criminal proceedings in which European British subjects are concerned; or

(f) subjects persons not resident in British India to greater taxation than persons resident in British India or subjects companies not wholly controlled and managed in British India to greater taxation than companies wholly controlled and managed therein; or

(g) affects the grant of relief from any Federal tax on income in respect of income taxed or taxable in the United Kingdom.

(2) Unless the Governor-General in his discretion thinks fit to give his previous sanction, there shall not be introduced into, or moved in, a Chamber of a Provincial Legislature any Bill or amendment which—

(a) repeals, amends, or is repugnant to any provisions of any Act of Parliament extending to British India; or

(b) repeals, amends or is repugnant to any Governor-General's Act, or any ordinance promulgated in his discretion by the Governor-General; or

Sec. 108.—Under the Government of India Act 1915, which consolidated earlier enactments on the point, the previous consent of the Governor-General was requisite to the introduction of legislation affecting religion, religious usages and rites. This restriction has been omitted here on the ground that legislation of this type should be introduced on the full and unfettered responsibility of Indian Ministers, and on the ground that in a matter of that sort it was undesirable that their responsibility should be shared by the Governor or Governor-General. See J.P. C. Report, para. 141.

The term "British India" in S. 108 (2) (a) means the whole of British India and does not refer to a part of British India. Therefore, Bengal Regulation, I of 1793, cannot be said to be an Act of Parliament extending to the whole of British India inasmuch as it applies only to Bengal, Bihar, Orissa and other settled estates in some of the provinces. 20 Pat. 573=22 P. L.T. 863=1941 Pat. 306 (S.B.). In the ordinary meaning of the expression an "Act of Parliament" is an Act passed by the House of Commons, the House of Lords and assented to by the King. Regulation I of 1793 was an enactment of the Governor-General in Council in India and was never before Parliament in England. This Regulation together with the other Permanent Settlement Regulations were enacted pursuant to the provisions and directions contained in S. 39, Pitt's India Act of 1784. Regulation I of 1793 purports to be an enactment of the Governor-General in Council and was enacted by the Marquis of Cornwallis by virtue of the powers of legislation given to or assumed by the Governor-General in Council and that being so it cannot be said that the Permanent Settlement Regulation I of 1793, is in any sense an Act of Parliament. Consequently, the Bihar Agricultural Income-tax Act cannot be said to be invalid by reason of S. 108 (2) (a) on the ground that it is repugnant to the provisions of Regulation I of 1793. 20 Pat. 573=22 P.L.T. 863=1941 Pat. 306 (S.B.)=1941 P.W.N. 689.

Sec. 108 (2) (b)—"Governor-General's Act"—Bengal Permanent Settlement Regulation—The expression "Governor-General's Act," refers to Acts contemplated in S. 44 of this Act (i.e.), to Acts enacted by the Governor-General after the Government of India Act came into force. The Permanent Settlement Regulation was in no sense an Act of the Governor-General but was an Act of the then Governor-

(c) affects matters as respects which the Governor-General is by or under this Act, required to act in his discretion; or

(d) affects the procedure for criminal proceedings in which European British subjects are concerned; and unless the Governor of the Province in his discretion thinks fit to give his previous sanction, there shall not be introduced or moved any Bill or amendment which—

(i) repeals, amends or is repugnant to any Governor's Act, or any ordinance promulgated in his discretion by the Governor; or

(ii) repeals, amends or affects any Act relating to any police force.

(3) Nothing in this section affects the operation of any other provision in this Act which requires the previous sanction of the Governor-General or of a Governor to the introduction of any Bill or the moving of any amendment.

109. (1) Where under any provision of this Act the previous sanction or recommendation of the Governor-General or of a

Governor is required to the introduction or passing of a Bill or the moving of an amendment, the giving of the sanction or recommendation shall not be construed as precluding him from exercising subsequently in regard to the Bill in question any powers conferred upon him by this Act with respect to the withholding of assent to, or the reservation of, Bills.

(2) No Act of the Federal Legislature or a Provincial Legislature, and no provision in any such Act, shall be invalid by reason only that some previous sanction or recommendation was not given, if assent to that Act was given—

(a) where the previous sanction or recommendation required was that of the Governor, either by the Governor, by the Governor-General, or by His Majesty;

(b) where the previous sanction or recommendation required was that of the Governor-General, either by the Governor-General, or by His Majesty.

General in Council. Consequently, S. 108 (2) (b) can in no way render the Bihar Agricultural Income-tax Act invalid because it is repugnant to Regulation I of 1793. 20 Pat. 573=22 P.L.T. 863=1941 Pat. 306 (S. B.). S. 108 (2) (b) merely limits the power of Provincial legislatures to repeal or amend Governor-General's Acts or Ordinances enacted or promulgated under Ss. 42 to 44 of the Act. A Governor-General's Act or Ordinance is a very special form of legislation and cannot possibly include an Act of a Provincial legislative authority, which in the past required the assent of the Governor-General for its validity. 197 I. C. 618=21 P. 178=1942 P. 351. The Governor-General's Act to which S. 108 refers means an Act such as the Governor-General is empowered to enact under S. 44 of that Act. Before 1st April, 1937, all Acts required the assent of the Governor-General and the expression "Governor-General's Act" in S. 108 is not intended to include all such Acts. 21 Pat. 587=I.L.R. (1942) Kar. (F.C.) 21=46 C.W.N. (F.R.) 32=5 F.L.J. 17=A.I.R. 1942 (F.C.) 17=(1942) 2 M.L.J. 6 (F.C.). The expression "Act of Parliament" is used in S. 108 (2) (a) in the sense of enactments actually passed by Parliament and not of laws passed by a subordinate legislative body under power conferred upon it by an Act of Parliament. The Bengal Permanent Settlement Regulation (I of 1793) is not, therefore, an "Act of Parliament" within the meaning of the section. I.L.R. (1942) Kar. (F.C.) 1=21 Pat. 521=46 C.W.N. (F.R.) 22=75 C.L.J. 123=5 F.L.J. 1=A.I.R. 1942 F.C. 8=(1942) 1 M.L.J. 607 (F.C.). S. 108 (2) (b), merely limits the power of Provincial Legislatures to repeal or amend Governor-General's Acts or Ordinances enacted or promulgated under Ss. 42 to 44 of the Act. A Governor-General's Act or Ordinance is a very special form of legislation and cannot possibly include an Act of a Provincial Legislative authority, which in the past required the assent of the Governor-General for its validity. 21 Pat. 178=5 F.L.J. (H.C.) 34=A.I.R. 1942 Pat. 351.

Sec. 109 (2): Assent of Governor.—Objection as to absence of previous sanction under S. 299 (3).—If an Act has received the assent of the Governor, its validity cannot be thereafter questioned on the ground that previous sanction to its introduction as required by sub-S. (3) of S. 299 of the Government of India Act was not obtained. I.L.R. (1940) All. 455=1940 A.L.J. 274=1940 All. 272 (F.B.):

110. Nothing in this Act shall be taken—

(a) to affect the power of Parliament to legislate for British India, or any part thereof; or

(b) to empower the Federal Legislature, or any Provincial Legislature—

(i) to make any law affecting the Sovereign or the Royal Family, or the Succession to the Crown, or the sovereignty, or dominion or suzerainty of the Crown in any part of India, or the law of British nationality, or the Army Act; the Air Force Act, or the Naval Discipline Act, or the law of Prize or Prize Courts; or

(ii) except in so far as is expressly permitted by any subsequent provisions of this Act to make any law amending any provision of this Act, or any Order in Council made thereunder, or any rules made under this Act by the Secretary of State, or by the Governor-General or a Governor in his discretion, or in the exercise of his individual judgment; or

(iii) except in so far as is expressly permitted by any subsequent provisions of this Act, to make any law derogating from any prerogative right of His Majesty to grant special leave to appeal from any Court.

PART VII. CHAPTER III.

PROPERTY CONTRACTS, LIABILITIES AND SUITS.

* * * * *

175. (1) The executive authority of the Federation and of a Province

Power to acquire property and to make contracts, etc.

shall extend, subject to any Act of the appropriate Legislature, to the grant, sale, disposition or mortgage of any property vested in His Majesty for the purposes of the Government of the Federation or of the Province, as the case may be, and to the purchase or acquisition of property on behalf of His Majesty for those purposes respectively, and to the making of contracts:

Sec. 175.—The powers formerly vested in the Secretary of State in Council under S. 30 (of the Government of India Act, 1915) to enter into contracts relating to or otherwise deal with property vested in the Crown, and which were exercised by the authorities in India by virtue of a delegation from him, (see Kasturi Reddi v. Secretary of State, 26 M. 268) are now directly devolved on the Federal and Provincial Governments in respect of the property vested in such. The provisions are merely a reproduction of S. 30, and there is no difference except, (1) The source of the authority is traced to the Governments in India and (2) the form in which contracts, etc., would hereafter run.

Government Contracts.—Though it may be very desirable to have a formal deed with regard to all the agreements made by Government, it cannot be held as a matter of law, that an agreement evidenced by tenders and acceptance of tenders or an agreement evidenced by correspondence or other documents of informal nature though fully established by evidence, must fail and be said to offend the terms of S. 30 of the Government of India Act, 1918. It is a sufficient compliance with the terms of S. 30 if the agreement is expressed in writing, and this writing may comprise a series of letters or a series of informal documents. 1941 A.L.J. 570=4 F.L.J. (H.C.) 361=1941 All. 377. The provisions of the Act, 1915, are mandatory and must be strictly complied with in order to constitute a valid contract which can be enforced against the Secretary of State. The contract must, under the law and the rules in force, be by a deed executed on behalf of the Secretary of State and in his name by the proper authority. 39 Bom.L.R. 807=1937 Bom. 449. There is no justification for holding that a contract in order that it may comply with S. 30 of the Government of India Act, 1915, must be by deed, i.e., under seal. There is no such provision in S. 30; the section does not require a formal document in the nature of an indenture or deed. The contract under S. 30 must, in order to be binding, be made on behalf and in the name, of the Secretary of State for India in Council by the local Government and executed by the proper officer authorised by the Governor-General in Council. A contract in the form of letters, complying with the provisions of S. 30 and signed by the proper officer, would be a contract complying with the terms of S. 30. But it must be plain that the correspondence is carried on on

Provided that any land or building used as an official residence of the Governor-General or a Governor shall not be sold, nor any change made in the purposes for which it is being used, except with the concurrence, in his discretion, of the Governor-General or the Governor, as the case may be.

(2) All property acquired for the purposes of the Federation or of a Province or of the exercise of the functions of the Crown in its relations with Indian States, as the case may be, shall vest in His Majesty for those purposes.

(3) Subject to the provisions of this Act with respect to the Federal Railway authority, all contracts made in the exercise of the executive authority of the Federation or of a Province shall be expressed to be made by the Governor-General, or by the Governor of the Province, as the case may be, and all such contracts and all assurances of property made in the exercise of that authority shall be executed on behalf of the Governor-General or Governor by such persons and in such manner as he may direct or authorise.

(4) Neither the Governor-General, nor the Governor of a Province, nor the Secretary of State shall be personally liable in respect of any contract or assurance made or executed for the purposes of this Act, or for the purposes of the Government of India Act or of any Act repealed thereby, nor shall any person making or executing any such contract or assurance on behalf of any of them be personally liable in respect thereof.

176. (1) The Federation may sue or be sued by the name of the Federation of India and a Provincial Government may sue or be sued by the name of the Province, and, without prejudice to the subsequent provisions of this chapter, may, subject to any provisions which may be made by Act of the Federal or a Provincial Legislature enacted by virtue of powers conferred on that Legislature by this Act, sue or be sued in relation to their respective affairs in the like cases as the Secretary of State in Council might have sued or been sued if this Act had not been passed.

behalf of and in the name of the Secretary of State, and that the contract as finally concluded by correspondence is executed by a person authorised by resolution in that behalf. Where the correspondence does not show that, but only amounts to the fact that the Collector is prepared to recommend to Government to sanction a proposal, which if sanctioned would be made on behalf of and in the name of the Secretary of State in Council, there is no binding agreement under S. 30 which can be specifically enforced. 40 Bom.L.R. 19=174 I.C. 316=1938 Bom. 168. Under S. 30 (2) of the Government of India Act, 1919, contracts of mining leases have to be executed by the person and in the manner prescribed by the Government of India, and in order to be valid, a mining lease has to be executed by the Collector under the rules prescribed by the Governor-General in Council; until a formal lease has been executed there can be no enforceable contract against the Secretary of State for India in Council. 48 L.W. 194=1938 Mad. 749=(1938) 2 M.L.J. 141.

Sec. 176.—The Federation and the Provinces are endowed with juristic personality, with a right to sue and be sued. It must however be noted that the creation of these separate entities is only for the purpose of legal proceedings; neither the imparting of a juristic personality, nor the Crown holding property "in right of the Province" and "in right of the Federation" affords any scope for the doctrine of the multiple personality of the Crown. The Crown is one and indivisible throughout the Empire, and in the words of Dr. Keith, "there is no essential deviation from this unity in the fact that the Crown appears in various aspects and that in these aspects there may be collision of interest and of rights". A Province may sue another Province, or a Province, the Federation and "to this extent there is distinction of aspects within the Crown." The King in each part of his dominions has a distinct personality for certain purposes, but the unity of personality can be given effect to whenever the aspect of personality is unimportant. (Cf. Williams v. Howarth, 1905 A.C. 551).

Crown bound by Legislation.—The Crown in right of the Federation is bound by a valid Provincial enactment assented to by the Governor as representing His Majesty. If the Crown is bound at all it is bound in all its aspects, and the question whether the Crown is bound is one of construction not of law.

Suits.—Suits between Provinces and between the Province and the Federation, are only a method of ascertaining the true Authority or Provinces as may be specified in the rules.

179. (1) Any proceedings which, if this Act had not been passed might have been brought against the Secretary of State in Council may, in the case of any liability arising before the commencement of Part III of this Act or arising under any contract or statute made or passed before that date, be brought against the Federation or a Province, according to the subject-matter of the proceedings, or, at the option of the person by whom the proceedings are brought, against the Secretary of State, and any sum ordered to be paid by way of debt, damages or costs in any such proceedings, and any costs or expenses incurred in or in connection with the defence thereof, shall be paid out of the revenues of the Federation or the Province, as the case may be, or, if the proceedings are brought against the Secretary of State, out of such revenues as the Secretary of State may direct.

meaning of the Constitution and does not affect the indivisibility of the Crown. This section reproduces with one material alteration the provisions of S. 32 of the Government of India Act, 1915, which conferred "the same right of suit against the Secretary of State as existed against the East India Company, if the Government of India Act, 1858, had not been passed." This provision was construed as affirmatively conferring a right of suit in all cases where the East India Company if it existed could have been sued and negatively as precluding an action in all cases where such a suit did not lie against the Company.

Suit against Secretary of State—Maintainability—Test.—Per Braund, J.—So far as suits against the Secretary of State in Council are concerned, in India, it is a complete fallacy to attempt to consider them from the point of view of the English Common law which does not recognize actions against the Crown on the principle either that "the Crown can do no wrong or that the King cannot be sued in his own Court. The principle applicable in India is wholly different; for, not only has the Crown submitted itself by statute (through its character as the successor of the East India Company) to certain 'remedies,' but it has by S. 65, Government of India Act, 1858, constituted a corporate defendant in the form of the Secretary of State in Council as its representative for the purpose of being sued in respect of those remedies. In the result, therefore, the East India Company, and, through the Company, the Secretary of State in Council, is, by virtue of S. 65, Government of India Act, 1858; and of S. 32 of the Act of 1919, in a wholly different position from the Crown as it stands under the English Common law. It is the 'character' of the suit, and not whether it would have succeeded, that is the test. If it is of that 'character' that it would have lain against the East India Company, then by statute it lies against the Secretary of State for India in Council. 1937 Rang. L. R. 35=1937 Rang. 89 (S.B.). The Secretary of State is not liable for acts of the Courts or the consequences of those acts. A person has, therefore, no cause of action against the Secretary of State for wrongful seizure and sale of his property by a Magistrate for payment of a fine inflicted on another person. 167 I.C. 309=1936 A. W.R. 1277=1937 All. 158. Secretary of State not liable for tort of servant employed in government hospital. 49 L.W. 679=(1939) 1 M.L.J. 784.

Sec. 179.—This section is an application to the existing contracts of the Secretary of State in Council, of the familiar principle in the Law of Contracts, that the remedy of a party against the original promisor is not prejudiced or lost by reason of an assignment by the latter to which the other is not a consenting party. The option is therefore given to persons claiming by virtue of contracts, etc., prior to the commencement of Part III to sue either the Secretary of State the original contracting party—or the Federation or the Province according as the authority to whom the contract would relate under the provisions of this Act. In a suit instituted against the Secretary of State, the description of the defendant as "Government Punjab Province through Deputy Commissioner" does not in any manner affect the institution of the suit. Under the present Government of India Act all that is necessary to be mentioned is the "Province". The addition of the words "through Deputy Commissioner" does not cause any prejudice to the defendant. 192 I.C. 729=42 P.L.R. 550=1940 Lah. 451. Where in a suit against the Secretary of State, the latter is wrongly described as "Secretary of State for India in Council" this is a mere misdescription which can be amended at any time by omitting the words "for India in Council". 1939

The provisions of this sub-section shall apply with respect to proceedings arising under any contract declared by the terms thereof to be supplemental to any such contract as is mentioned in those provisions as they apply in relation to the contracts so mentioned.

(2) If at the commencement of Part III of this Act any legal proceedings are pending in the United Kingdom or in India to which the Secretary of State in Council is a party, the Secretary of State shall be deemed to be substituted in those proceedings for the Secretary of State in Council, and the provisions of sub-section (1) of this section shall apply in relation to sums ordered to be paid, and costs or expenses incurred, by the Secretary of State or the Secretary of State in Council in or in connection with any such proceedings as they apply in relation to sums ordered to be paid in, and costs or expenses incurred in or in connection with the defence of, proceedings brought against the Secretary of State under the said sub-section (1).

(3) Any contract made in respect of the affairs of the Federation or a Province by or on behalf of the Secretary of State after the commencement of Part III of this Act may provide that any proceedings under that contract shall be brought in the United Kingdom by or against the Secretary of State and any such proceedings may be brought accordingly, and any sum ordered to be paid by the Secretary of State by way of debt, damages or costs in any such proceedings, and any costs or expenses incurred by the Secretary of State in or in connection therewith, shall be paid out of the revenues of the Federation or the Province, as the case may be.

(4) Nothing in this section shall be construed as imposing any liability upon the Exchequer of the United Kingdom in respect of any debt, damages, costs or expenses in or in connection with any proceedings brought or continued by or against the Secretary of State by virtue of this section, or as derogating from the provisions of sub-section (1) of the last preceding section.

(5) This section does not apply in relation to contracts or liabilities solely in connection with the affairs of Burma or Aden, other than liabilities which are by this Act made liabilities of the Federation, or to contracts or liabilities for purposes which will, after the commencement of Part III of this Act, be purposes of His Majesty's Representative for the exercise of the functions of the Crown in its relations with Indian States.

PART IX.

THE JUDICATURE.

CHAPTER I.

THE FEDERAL COURT.

200. (1) There shall be a Federal Court consisting of a Chief Justice of

Lah. 583. No doubt under S. 179 (1) of the Government of India Act, an appeal should be lodged against the Secretary of State and not against the Secretary of State for India in Council. But the mere addition of the words "for India in Council" does not justify the dismissal of the appeal, as at the worst it could only be construed as a misdescription of the respondent. 41 P.L.R. 134=1939 Lah. 298. An appeal is merely a continuation of the proceedings within the meaning of sub-S. (2) of S. 179. Hence, if the original suit was pending at the commencement of Act of 1935, the Province cannot be impleaded as a respondent in appeal and the only respondent is therefore the Secretary of State within the meaning of sub-S. (2) of S. 179. 40 P.L.R. 927=178 I.C. 390=1938 Lah. 585. What sub-S. (5) of S. 179 is concerned with is the person who is to be named as a defendant in suits of the description mentioned there, and not with any question of notice which has to be served before the suit can be maintained at all. S. 80 of the C.P. Code deals with that and its provisions have to be strictly complied with. Where a notice under S. 80 was sent to the Collector of Agra of a suit to recover an alleged excess charge collection from the plaintiff in respect of goods sent from Bombay to Agra it was held it was not a proper notice under S. 80 and that the suit should be dismissed on that ground alone. I.L.R. (1943) A. 223=206 I.C. 372=1943 F.L.J. 227=1943 A.L.J. 1=A.I.R. 1943 A. 158.

Sec. 200: Section explained.—The establishment of a Federal Court is an essential Establishment and constitution of Federal Court. India and such number of other judges as His Majesty may deem necessary, but unless and until an address has been presented by the Federal Legislature to the Governor-General for submission to His Majesty praying for an increase in the number of judges, the number of puisne judges shall not exceed six.

(2) Every judge of the Federal Court shall be appointed by His Majesty by warrant under the Royal Sign Manual and shall hold office until he attains the age of sixty-five years:

Provided that—

(a) a judge may by resignation under his hand addressed to the Governor-General resign his office;

(b) a judge may be removed from his office by His Majesty by warrant under the Royal Sign Manual on the ground of misbehaviour or of infirmity of mind or body, if the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, on reference being made to them by His Majesty, report that the judge ought on any such ground to be removed.

(3) A person shall not be qualified for appointment as a judge of the Federal Court unless he—

(a) has been for at least five years a judge of a High Court in British India or in Federated State;

(b) is a barrister of England or Northern Ireland of at least ten years standing, or a member of the Faculty of Advocates in Scotland of at least ten years standing; or

(c) has been for at least ten years a pleader of a High Court in British India or in a Federated State or of two or more such Courts in succession:

Provided that—

(i) a person shall not be qualified for appointment as Chief Justice of India unless he is, or when first appointed to judicial office was, a barrister, a member of the Faculty of Advocates or a pleader; and

(ii) in relation to the Chief Justice of India, for the references in paragraphs (b) and (c) of this sub-section to ten years there shall be substituted references to fifteen years.

In computing for the purposes of this sub-section the standing of a barrister or a member of the Faculty of Advocates, or the period during which a person has been a pleader, any period during which a person has held judicial office after he became a barrister, a member of the Faculty of Advocates or a pleader, as the case may be, shall be included.

element in a Federal Constitution. "It is at once the interpreter and guardian of the constitution and a tribunal for the determination of disputes between the constituent units of the Federation". (As to the jurisdiction of the Federal Court and the High Courts under the new Act, see articles in the Madras Law Journal, Vol. 69, December, 1935, Calcutta Weekly Notes, December, 1935, and January, 1936, Parts; Contemporary Law Review, November, 1935.)

Extracts from the Debates in Parliament (Solicitor-General.—Par. Deb. Vol. 300, No. 70, 134-135).—"It would be impossible to overstate the importance of the Federal Court in the development of the constitution. But when we are considering appointments to a Court, the first and chief thing is not perhaps so much the minimum qualifications as the method of appointment. That is why it is proposed that the members of the Federal Court, including the Chief Justice, shall be appointed by His Majesty, which of course means on the advice of the Secretary of State and the Ministry in this country, who will be held responsible to this House for any advice they give. That in our view is really the important thing. Whatever qualifications you put in, unless the appointing authority takes the trouble to appoint the best men, then no minimum qualifications will avail at all. At the same time, we are impressed by what has been said as to the fact that this Federal Court will be dealing, almost exclusively with what may be called pure points of law, of great difficulty. * *"

(4) Every person appointed to be a judge of the Federal Court shall, before he enters upon his office, make and subscribe before the Governor-General or some person appointed by him an oath according to the form set out in that behalf in the Fourth Schedule to this Act.

201. The judges of the Federal Court shall be entitled to such salaries and allowances, including allowances for expenses in respect of equipment and travelling upon appointment, and to such rights in respect of leave and pensions, as may from time to time be fixed by His Majesty in Council:

Provided that neither the salary of a judge nor his rights in respect of leave of absence or pension shall be varied to his disadvantage after his appointment.

202. If the office of Chief Justice of India becomes vacant, or if the Chief Justice is, by reason of absence or for any other reason, unable to perform the duties of his office, those duties shall, until some person appointed by His Majesty to the vacant office has entered on the duties thereof, or until the Chief Justice has resumed his duties, as the case may be, be performed by such one of the other Judges of the Court as the Governor-General may in his discretion appoint for the purpose. [See also 3 and 4 Geo. 6, Ch. 5, Sec. 5, infra.]

203. The Federal Court shall be a Court of record and shall sit in Delhi and at such other place or places, if any, as the Chief Justice of India may, with the approval of the Governor-General, from time to time appoint.

204. (1) Subject to the provisions of this Act, the Federal Court shall, to the exclusion of any other Court, have an original jurisdiction in any dispute between any two or more of the following parties, that is to say, the Federation, any of the Provinces or any of the Federated States, if and in so far as the dispute involves any question (whether of law or fact) on which the existence or extent of a legal right depends:

Provided that the said jurisdiction shall not extend to—

(a) a dispute to which a State is a party, unless the dispute—

(i) concerns the interpretation of this Act or of an Order in Council made thereunder, or the extent of the legislative or executive authority vested in the Federation by virtue of the Instrument of Accession of that State; or

(ii) arises under an agreement made under Part VI of this Act in relation to the administration in that State of a law of the Federal Legislature, or otherwise concern some matter with respect to which the Federal Legislature has power to make laws for that State; or

(iii) arises under an agreement made after the establishment of the Federation, with the approval of His Majesty's Representative for the exercise of the functions of the Crown in its relations with Indian States, between that

Sec. 204.—The section refers to a dispute involving "any question (whether of law or fact) on which the existence or extent of a legal right depends."

Extracts from the Parliamentary Debates (Speech of the Solicitor-General).—"In drafting this clause we have followed the recommendation of the Joint Select Committee. We have passed clauses which specifically deal with the matter of suits being brought against the Provinces or the Federation. But there are many cases to-day in India—and there will continue to be such cases when this becomes law—in which private individuals have rights against and can sue the Federation. It would be most oppressive and inconvenient if any litigant who had a claim against the Federation—and it might be quite a small claim—had to go up from the far end of India to the central place where the Federal Court will sit to prosecute his

State and the Federation or a Province, being an agreement which expressly provides that the said jurisdiction shall extend to such a dispute;

(b) a dispute arising under any agreement which expressly provides that the said jurisdiction shall not extend to such a dispute.

(2) The Federal Court in the exercise of its original jurisdiction shall not pronounce any judgment other than a declaratory judgment.

205. (1) An appeal shall lie to the Federal Court from any judgment, decree or final order of a High Court in British India, Appellate jurisdiction of Federal Court in appeals from High Courts in British India.

if the High Court certifies that the case involves a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of this Act or any Order in Council made thereunder, and it shall be the duty of every High Court in British India to consider in every case whether or not any such question is involved and of its own motion to give or to withhold a certificate accordingly.

claim. It would be regarded as the greatest possible injustice in India, and indeed I think it would have manifold great inconveniences. It would seem quite unnecessary in what I may call ordinary cases. But, you may get cases where there is some question as to whether legislation is or is not ultra vires. We believe that the right and best procedure in that case is the procedure under the Bill. Let it go first to the local Court. Let it be sifted and dealt with there; and let it go from there to the Federal Court, which is after all, the final Court of appeal in some cases. * * * As regards constitutional questions, the case "will be dealt with in the ordinary way, first by the local Court and if there is any doubt about it, and it seems a proper case for appeal, it will be taken on appeal to the Federal Court, which will have the advantage of having in this difficult matter the judgment of the first Court before it. For these reasons, we believe that the scheme of the Bill, under which original and exclusive jurisdiction is confined to disputes between units of the new constitution, is better than the scheme proposed by my Hon. and learned Friend". (Parl. Deb., Vol. 300, Part 70, 1st April, 1935, cols. 140-142.)

Per Sulaiman, J.—The term 'legal right' used in sec. 204 obviously means right recognised by law and capable of being enforced by the power of a State, but not necessarily in a Court of law. It is a right of a party recognised and protected by a rule of law, the violation of which would be a legal wrong done to his interest and respect for which is a legal duty, even though no action may actually lie. The mere fact that under the previous Act the Provincial Governments were subordinate administrations under the control of the Central Government and could only have made a representation to the Governor-General in Council or the Secretary of State, would not be sufficient in itself for holding that the former could not possibly possess any 'legal rights' at all against the Central Government, even in respect of rights conferred upon them by the provisions of the Act or the rules made thereunder. If a 'legal right' existed under the old Act, sec. 204 of the new Act would not be inapplicable merely because the right related to an earlier period. 50 L.W. 209=2 Fed.L.J. 123=1939 F.C. 58=(1939) 2 M. L.J. (Supp.) 1. The United Provinces instituted in the Federal Court a suit against the Central Government represented by the Governor-General in Council for a declaration that sec. 106 (c) of the Cantonments Act (II of 1924) was ultra vires the then Indian Legislature, that all fines imposed and realised by Criminal Courts for offences committed within the cantonment areas should be credited to the provincial revenues and that the plaintiffs were entitled to recover and adjust all such sums wrongly credited to the cantonment funds since 1924. Held, that the dispute with regard to the validity of sec. 106 (c) of the Cantonment Act involved a question on which the existence of a legal right depended, within the meaning of sec. 204 (1) of the Government of India Act, 1935, notwithstanding the fact that before the Act of 1935, the provinces could not have sued the Central Government in any Court of law, and the Federal Court had therefore jurisdiction to entertain the suit. (1939) 2 M.L.J. (Supp.) 1.

Sec. 205: "Substantial Question of Law".—[See notes under Civil Procedure Code, sec. 110, supra.] Sec. 205 deals with the appellate jurisdiction of the Federal Court in appeals from High Courts in British India. It is to be observed that an appeal will lie from any judgment, decree or final order of a High Court "if the High Court certifies that the case involves a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of this Act or any Order in Council made thereunder". [Cl. (1).] Appeals to the Privy Council are provided for by the Code of Civil Procedure, secs. 109-112.

Sec. 205 is explicit in its terms and what is required under it, so as to justify the grant of a certificate, is not merely a question affecting the interpretation of an order of an executive authority made under a statute of the Legislature, but some question involving the powers of the Legislature itself under the Government of India Act in enacting a particular statute. The question as to whether a particular order or the act of a particular authority does or does not fall within a particular rule of the Defence of India Act is not a matter falling within the provision of sec. 205 of the Government of India Act. I.L.R. (1946) Kar. 65. Sec. 205, clearly contemplates that the certificate to appeal to the Federal Court should be granted at the time of the judgment and a duty is placed on the High Court to consider in every case whether or not a question of law as to the interpretation of the Act or any order in Council thereunder is involved and of its own motion to give or to withhold a certificate accordingly. Where no such question is involved and no argument is directed towards such a question, it is not the function of the High Court to give a certificate that no such question is involved. Where no question has been raised in that respect in arguments, it is not open to a party to apply for a certificate under the section long after the judgment on the ground that a question of the nature specified is involved. I.L.R. (1946) Kar. 65.

EXTRACTS FROM PARLIAMENTARY DEBATES (THE SOLICITOR-GENERAL).—"This Clause deals with the appellate jurisdiction of the Federal Court and provides that if in a case in the High Court it appears that a substantial question of law involving an interpretation either of this Act or any Order-in-Council made under it arises, there shall be a right of appeal to the Federal Court if the High Court certifies that such a question of law arises. The second part of the Clause says that a person can appeal on that ground once he has got his certificate. There may be other grounds in the case, and, if they are proper grounds for appeal, leave may be given."

* * The main purpose of the Clause is to ensure that appeals which involve questions of the interpretation of the Constitution shall go to a higher Court. Nothing in the Clause affects the right of appeal to the Privy Council in cases outside the clause. If cases fall within the clause, which involve matters of interpretation of the constitution, parties will have to go to the Federal Court. There is a further right of appeal from the Federal Court to the Privy Council in a later clause (Parl. Deb., 1st April, 1935, Vol. 300, part 70, p. 147). An application for a certificate under sec. 205 (on the ground that the question whether the legislature had power to requisition when the Land Acquisition Act, 1894, remained unrepealed, involved an interpretation of the Constitution Act, sec. 292) was rejected on the ground that no such question of interpretation was involved and even if it did involve such interpretation the question was not a substantial one. I.L.R. (1944) Mad. 826=57 L.W. 206=1944 F.L.J. 96=A.I.R. 1944 Mad. 288=(1944) 1 M.L.J. 263. It cannot be said that Ordinance 2 of 1942 was beyond the power of the Indian Legislature and the Governor-General's ordinance making authority, for the reason that it affected the jurisdiction of the Federal Court in so far as it took away the appellate and revisional jurisdiction of the High Court. All that the Constitution Act declares about the jurisdiction of the Federal Court is that appeals shall lie to that Court from the decisions of the High Court, when certain points are involved therein. Such a provision does not admit of the interpretation that the jurisdiction of the High Court should never be affected by Indian legislation because the indirect effect thereof might be to affect the number, or classes of cases which might otherwise come up before the High Court and thus afford a possibility of their being carried on appeal to the Federal Court. Under the express terms of sec. 223, it is within the power of the Indian Legislature to alter the jurisdiction and powers of the High Court. 47 C.W.N. (F.R.) 41=I.L.R. (1943) Kar. (F. SEC. 205 (1): CONSTRUCTION—"JUDGMENT, DECREE OR FINAL ORDER"—MEANING—FEDERAL COURT—JURISDICTION IN CRIMINAL MATTERS.—Gwyer, C.J.—The Federal Court has jurisdiction in civil as well as in criminal matters. The words "judgment, decree or final order" ought to receive no narrow interpretation. 1939 F.C. 43=(1939) 2 M.L.J. (Supp.) 23. See also 6 Fed.L.J. 47=(1943) 2 M.L.J. 57 (F.C.). Sulaiman, J.—It may be assumed that the words "judgment or final order" in sec. 205 (1) of the Government of India Act apply to criminal cases as well, but an order of the High Court directing the re-hearing of a criminal appeal by the Sessions Court is not "judgment" within the meaning of the section. (1939) 2 M.L.J. (Supp.) 23. Varadachariar, J.—Sec. 205 of the Government of India Act, is not in terms limited to civil cases, and the word "judgment" is comprehensive enough to include a judgment pronounced in a criminal case. I.L.R. (1940) Lah. 400=50 L.W. 95=43 C.W.N. (F.C.R.) 50=2 Fed.L.J. 153=1939 F.C. 43=(1939) 2 M.L.J. (Supp.) 23. See also 20 Pat.L.T. 473=1939 F.C. 74=(1939) 2 M.L.J. (Supp.) 45. See also I.L.R. (1943) 2 Cal. 1=(1943) 2 M.L.J. 207.

CERTIFICATE—WHEN TO BE GRANTED.—As the certificate under sec. 205 is a part of the judgment, it should be given at the time when the appeal is decided by the High Court. 1942 O.A. 533=1943 Oudh 45=1942 O.W.N. 654. See also 1946 N.L.J. 36; I.L.R. (1946) Kar. 65.

CERTIFICATE WHEN CAN BE GIVEN.—According to sec. 205 (1) a certificate can be given only when a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of the Government of India Act, 1915, or any order in council made thereunder is involved. 1940 A.W.R. (C.C.) 250=1940 O.W.N. 494=1940 Oudh 382=15 Luck. 740. Where the High Court refuses to interfere under sec. 115, C. P. Code and sec. 224 of the Government of India Act, with the order of a trial Court, refusing to decide the question of jurisdiction, as a preliminary issue it is not a fit case to be certified under the Government of India Act as no question of interpretation of sec. 224 was involved. It is not the function of the High Court under sec. 224 to interfere with judicial orders of the Subordinate Courts. 1938 A.L.J. 911=1938 A.W.R. (H.C.) 624=1938 All. 639. See also 18 Luck. 657; 18 Luck. 672.

A certificate under sec. 205 can be given only when a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of the Government of India Act, 1935 or any order in council made thereunder is involved. It was held that the question whether the Defence of India Act (1939) and the rules made under it are ultra vires the present Indian Legislature had already been finally decided by the Federal Court in the negative and that hence such a question of law is not a ground for granting a certificate. 1942 A.W.R. (C.C.) 346 (1)=1942 O.A. 533=1942 O.W.N. 654=1943 Oudh 45.

No appeal lies to the Federal Court in the absence of the certificate prescribed in sec. 205, and the refusal of a High Court to grant a certificate cannot be questioned by the Federal Court, nor can the reasons which prompted the refusal be investigated by it. The jurisdiction of the Federal Court is limited by statute and cannot be extended by a High Court acting even perversely or maliciously in withholding the certificate. The Court cannot do indirectly what it cannot do directly. I.L.R. (1942) Lah. 712=I.L.R. (1941) Kar. (F.C.) 176=46 C.W.N. (F.R.) 7=75 C.L.J. 153=55 L.W. 3=4 F.L.J. 33=A.I.R. 1942 F.C. 1=(1942) 1 M.L.J. 74 (F.C.).

In an appeal under sec. 205, the Federal Court held that the plaintiff was entitled to a declaration that he had not been effectively dismissed from his office, and remanded the case to be tried on the merits. On remand the trial Court passed a decree for arrears of pay and gave certain directions as to payment of costs, Court-fee, etc. This decree was confirmed by the Judicial Commissioner's Court with some modifications in the plaintiff's favour. The plaintiff, being dissatisfied with the decree passed by the Judicial Commissioner's Court, filed an application under O. XLIII of the Federal Court Rules praying that in exercise of the inherent powers of the Federal Court the decree of the Judicial Commissioner's Court should be varied in certain particulars. Held that the appeal preferred under sec. 205 had been finally disposed of so far as the Federal Court was concerned and any complaint against the decree passed by the Judicial Commissioner's Court after the remand could be entertained by the Federal Court only on an independent appeal under sec. 205, and such an appeal must satisfy the requirements of that section. In the absence of that certificate under that section, the Federal Court had no jurisdiction to entertain the application. When the Federal Court is properly seized of an appeal on a certificate granted under sec. 205, it will also have jurisdiction to deal with other questions arising in the case; and in dealing with an appeal properly before it, it may have certain inherent powers. But before these powers can be exercised there must be an appeal validly instituted before it. 1942 F.L.J. 99=A.I.R. 1942 F.C. 47=(1942) 2 M.L.J. 794=55 L.W. 205. Where there is no substantial question of law as to the interpretation of the Government of India Act or any orders in Council made thereunder involved, leave to appeal to Federal Court under sec. 205 (1) cannot be granted. 1943 O.W.N. 152=A.I.R. 1943 Oudh 314. Under sec. 205, a certificate can be granted only if the case involves a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of the Act. The High Court cannot evolve such question by importing into the case hypothetical considerations. The question whether there was or was not an emergency to justify the promulgation of an ordinance is not justiciable. 1946 N.L.J. 36. Sec. 205 (1), read with O. 17, r. 1 of the Federal Court Rules, indicates that the certificate under sec. 205 should be contemporaneous with the passing of the final order. The intention of the section manifestly is to leave the matter of granting or withholding a certificate entirely to the initiative of the High Court. It is on the giving of a certificate by the High Court that the Federal Court gets jurisdiction to entertain the appeal. So, that is a matter entirely between the High Court and the Federal Court and no third party has any right to invite the High Court to give or withhold a certificate. It follows that an application for a certificate sometime after the disposal of the case is beyond the scope of the section. 1946 N.L.J. 36. See also (1942) 1 M.L.J. 71. Under sec. 205, a certificate cannot be granted when the material question of law was neither raised in the case nor decided by the High Court. 1946 N.L.J. 36. Where a question involving the interpretation of the Government of India Act is not raised or decided in the proceedings in the High Court, no certificate under sec. 205 of the Act can be granted on an application made therefor subsequent to the disposal of the case or proceedings. It is not possible for the High Court of its own motion to give or withhold a certificate such as is referred to in the section. 6 F.L.J. Where all that was contended was that the Ordinance in question was inconsistent with the Letters Patent and, no question of law as to the interpretation of any provision of the Constitution Act was raised, the case will not fall within the purview of sec. 205. 1944 A.L.J. 419=A.I.R. 1944 All. 257 (F.B.). Under the Government of India Act, the order of the single Judge who disposed of the case is the order of the High Court; he alone could grant the certificate and the order could not be varied by a bench of two judges in appeal. (2) Where such a certificate is given, any party in the case may appeal to the Federal Court on the ground that any such question as aforesaid has been wrongly decided, and on any ground on which that party could have appealed without special leave to His Majesty in Council if no such certificate had been given, and, with the leave of the Federal Court, on any other ground, and no direct appeal shall lie to His Majesty in Council, either with or without special leave.

SEC. 205 (2): CONSTRUCTION—RIGHT OF APPEAL UNEER.—The wording of sub-sec. (2) of sec. 205, must be taken to indicate that the legislature did not contemplate an appeal against a decision not based on a point of law arising under the Government of India Act. I.L.R. (1941 Bom. 401=4 F.L.J. (H.C.) 344=43 Bom.L.R. 496=1941 Bom. 245 (F.B.). If any case is properly heard by a single Judge of a High Court and if in that case is involved a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of the Constitution Act or any order in council made thereunder and if there is a judgment, decree, or final order given or made by that Judge, a certificate under sec. 205 (1) not only may but should be granted. Thereupon an appeal will be opened direct to the Federal Court subject to the provisions of sub-sec. 2 of sec. 205 and the Federal Court is entitled, if not bound, to entertain it. It is difficult to read out of sec. 205, or any other section of the Constitution Act, any power or discretion in the Federal Court to refuse to hear a case in which a certificate has been granted or put an appellant on terms that his right of appeal to the Divisional Bench should first be exercised and it is doubtful whether the Federal Court has any such power or discretion. I.L.R. (1944) Nag. 614=1944 A.L.J. 265=(1944) F.L.J. 178=A.I.R. 1944 F.C. 62=(1944) 1 M.L.J. 510 F.C. See also (1945) 1 M.L.J. 37.

"INVOLVES A SUBSTANTIAL QUESTION OF LAW, ETC"—MEANING OF.—It cannot be said that a case involves a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of the Act under when the actual decision does not determine any such question, but in certain events, such a question might arise in the Federal Court. The mere possibility of some such question of law arising in a remote contingency cannot be enough to justify the granting of a certificate. When a man has been acquitted by two Courts in criminal case, the High Court, before giving leave to appeal against his acquittal to a third Court, must find a clear indication in the statute that it is its duty to give such leave. I.L.R. (1941) Bom. 401=4 F.L.J. (H.C.) 344=43 Bom.L.R. 496=1941 Bom. 245 (F.B.). The test to be applied to see whether the question in a case involves a substantial question of law or not is not merely the importance of the question but its importance to the case itself. If the fate of the case depends upon a consideration of that point, it will be deemed to be 'involved'. If, on the other hand, there is only a remote contingency of its being taken into consideration, it will not answer that test. 1944 F.L.J. 261=A.I.R. 1944 All. 273 (F.B.). An order by a single Judge of the High Court dismissing a Civil Revision Petition is a final order, and when the Judge has passed a final judgment and certified that a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of the Government of India Act is involved under sec. 205 (1) of the Act, an appeal to the Federal Court is competent and must be admitted. 52 L.W. 240=1940 M.W.N. 849=1940 Mad. 890=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 170. See also (1946) 1 M.L.J. 145. An order made by the High Court under sec. 433, Cr. P. Code, merely answering a question raised by a Presidency magistrate in a reference under sec. 432, Cr. P. Code, and expressing opinion on a point of law, is not a final order within the meaning of sec. 205 of the Government of India Act, against which a right of appeal to the Federal Court can be claimed. I.L.R. (1941) Bom. 401=4 F.L.J. (H.C.) 344=43 Bom.L.R. 496=1941 Bom. 245 (F.B.); I.L.R. (1939) 2 Cal. 411=69 C.L.J. 599=43 C.W.N. 950=1939 Cal. 529 (S.B.). The notification or order of the Foreign Political Department of the Government of India, No. 34-1, B, dated 14-1-1937, cannot be regarded as an order made under the Government of India Act 1935. The construction of the said order, cannot be said to be a substantial point of law as to the interpretation of the Act or of any order in Council made under the Act, within the meaning of sec. 205 (1) of the Act, so as to justify the grant of a certificate by the High Court, though the case, as such, might involve a difficult and substantial point of law in general. 1939 P.W.N. 858=21 Pat. L.T. 252=1940 Pat. 109. Per Sulaiman, J.—The word 'judgment' does not include every order. Similarly, decree must involve a determination of the rights of the parties. The order of the High Court dismissing the appeal from the lower Court's order refusing to fix the valuation or to specify a portion of the mortgaged property in the proclamation of sale is neither a judgment, decree nor a final order within the meaning of sec. 205 (1) of the Act, No appeal therefore lies to the Federal Court. 2 F.L.J. 183=43 C.W.N. (F.C.R.) 193=1939 F.C. 74=(1939) 2 M.L.J. (Supp.) 45.

JURISDICTION OF FEDERAL COURT—CERTIFICATE OF HIGH COURT.—IF CONDITION PRECEDENT.—The certificate of the High Court that the case involves a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of the Act or any Order in Council made thereunder is a condition precedent to the exercise of jurisdiction by the Federal Court, although if the certificate has once been given, the case is at large and the applicant is not necessarily restricted in arguing his appeal to what may be called the constitutional issue. But until the certificate has been granted, the Federal Court cannot entertain the case at all. 1938 O.W.N. 1251=1938 F.C. 1.

CERTIFICATION—DUTY OF HIGH COURT—NATURE OF.—It is a well settled general rule that "an absolute enactment must be obeyed or fulfilled exactly, but it is sufficient if a directory enactment be obeyed or fulfilled substantially." It is sufficient if the plain object of the directory provision is carried out. The duty imposed by sec. 205 on the High Court to consider in every case decided by it and to certify or withhold certification that the case involves a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of the Act or any Order in Council passed under it is only directory as distinguished from being absolute or mandatory and arises only in a case where there is reasonable ground for thinking that the question of law as to interpretation mentioned in sec. 205 may be involved. I.L.R. 1940 Lah. 685=67 I.A. 464=(1941) 1 M.L.J. 130=52 L.W. 926=1940 P.C. 230 (P.C.)

EFFECT OF THE ABSENCE OF CERTIFICATE.—Sec. 205, imposes on the High Court the duty of considering and determining in every case, as part of its judgment, decree or final order the giving or withholding of the certificate. On such determination, the jurisdiction to entertain an appeal from such judgment, decree or final order depends, and, manifestly, such determination, whether it involves the granting or withholding of a certificate should be recorded, not only for the information of the parties but also for the certification of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council and the Federal Court as to their jurisdiction to entertain an appeal. 67 I.A. 64=I.L.R. (1940) 1 Cal. 286=1940 A.L.J. 60=51 L.W. 93=44 C.W.N. 317=42 Bom.L.R. 315=1940 P.C. 16=(1940) 1 M.L.J. 64 (P.C.). When the question is one of a discretion of the High Court, the Federal Court will not in appeal interfere with the way in which the discretion was exercised or not exercised, unless it appears that the High Court did not apply its mind at all to the question, or acted capriciously or in disregard of any legal principle, or was influenced by some extraneous considerations wrong in law; and if there is no legal objection to the way in which discretion has or has not been exercised by the High Court, the Federal Court would not in appeal substitute its own discretion to that of the High Court. 3 F.L.J. 46=44 C.W.N. (F.R.) 21=72 C.L.J. 165=1940 F.C. 20=(1940) 1 M.L.J. (Supp.) 14. No appeal lies to the Federal Court in the absence of the certificate prescribed in sec. 205 of the Government of India Act, and the refusal of a High Court to grant a certificate cannot be questioned by the Federal Court, nor can the reasons which prompted the refusal be investigated by it. Even when the refusal of the certificate is alleged to be perverse and malicious and inspired by wicked or improper motives and assuming that the High Court has, by refusing to grant a certificate, deliberately deprived the Federal Court of a jurisdiction which Parliament has entrusted to it, and is therefore guilty of a contempt of the Federal Court, the Federal Court has no jurisdiction to interfere. The jurisdiction of the Federal Court is limited by statute and cannot be extended by a High Court acting even perversely or maliciously in withholding the certificate. The Court cannot do indirectly what it cannot do directly.

The Federal Court cannot assent to the proposition that proceedings by way of contempt can ever be the appropriate remedy against a High Court even if it has acted perversely or maliciously. 55 L.W. 3=4 F.L.J. 33=(1942) 1 M.L.J. 74 (F.C.). A certificate under sec. 205, is a necessary condition precedent to all appeals to the Federal Court, and if the High Court refuses to grant a certificate it is not for the Federal Court to enquire into the reasons for the refusal, against which no appeal lies to that Court. 185 I.C. 801=71 C.L.J. 108=44 C.W.N. (F.R.) 17=3 Fed.L.J. (P.I.) 12=1940 F.C. 4. Where the High Court has refused to grant a certificate under sec. 205 (1) the Federal Court has no inherent jurisdiction to grant special leave to appeal. The Federal Court being a statutory Court, its jurisdiction must be collected from the terms of the statute which created it and there is nothing in the statute which gives the Court power to entertain an application for special leave to appeal. 49 L.W. 570=20 Pat.L.T. 263=1939 F.W.N. 203=2 Fed.L.J. 121=1939 F.C. 42. Though every Court of superior jurisdiction no doubt possesses inherent powers for certain purposes, there is no authority for the proposition that a Court by the exercise of any inherent powers can extend its appellate jurisdiction or increase its revisional authority over other Courts. The concluding words of sec. 205 (1) which impose a duty on every High Court to consider in each case whether or not a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of the Act or of any Order in Council made thereunder is involved, "and of its own motion to give or to withhold a certificate accordingly" may reasonably be construed as giving the High Court the last word in the matter, so far as this section is concerned; and as there is no statutory powers of revision or superintendence possessed by the Federal Court like those possessed by the High Court under sec. 224, Government of India Act or sec. 115, C. P. Code, the Federal Court cannot entertain in exercise of its inherent power, an application for revision of an order of a High Court refusing to grant a certificate under sec. 205 (1). 1938 O.W.N. 1251=1938 F.C. 1. A litigant who, apart from sec. 205, would have a right of appeal to the Privy Council, is not deprived of that right by the refusal of the High Court to grant a certificate. Sec. 205 (2) only applies where a certificate is given and has no application to a case where it has been refused. 1938 O.W.N. 1251=1938 F.C. 1. The object of sec. 205 is to ensure that in every proceeding where a judgment, decree or final order is made by any High Court in British India which involves a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of the Act or any Order in Council made thereunder the appeal, if any, that is the direct appeal, shall lie to the Federal Court. The word "direct" is used because sec. 208 makes provision for an appeal in such a case on certain conditions from a decision of the Federal Court to His Majesty in Council; sec. 205 does not provide for a case where no certificate is given,

206. (1) The Federal Legislature may by Act provide that in such civil cases as may be specified in the Act, an appeal shall lie to the Federal Court from a judgment, decree or final order of a High Court in British India without any such certificate as aforesaid, but no appeal shall lie under any such Act unless—however plain it may be that it ought to have been given. There is no provision, express or implied, taking away from His Majesty in Council the right to entertain a direct appeal in such case, and a fortiori there is nothing taking away the right of direct appeal to His Majesty in Council in a case where no substantial question of law specified in sec. 205 could by any reasonable possibility arise. There is no condition precedent imposed on an appeal to His Majesty in Council in the absence of a certificate. The failure of the High Court to certify or withhold certification may be "blamable" but third parties have nothing to do with that. Where in the absence of a certificate it appears to the Board on an appeal that there is ground for thinking that there is a matter for the consideration of the High Court and that they ought to have given or to have withheld a certificate the Board ought to decline to hear the appeal until the High Court have had an opportunity of doing one or the other. 67 I. A. 464=52 L.W. 926=(1941) 1 M. L. J. 130=1940 P.C. 230 (P.C.).

HABEAS CORPUS APPLICATION.—Where a detainee, whose application for a writ of habeas corpus is finally dismissed by the High Court, is subsequently released by the Government, an appeal preferred by him against the order of dismissal will not be entertained by the Federal Court. I. L. R. (1944) Kar. (F.C.) 2=57 L.W. 212 (2)=(1944) F.L.J. 12=A.I.R. 1944 F.C. 24 (1)=(1944) 1 M.L.J. 177 (F.C.). The condition of the law of habeas corpus in India, and the purpose and express words of sec. 205 afford a contrast to the condition of English law and the object and general terms of sec. 19 of the Judicature Act of 1873. Sec. 205, Government of India Act, 1935, relates to both civil and criminal jurisdiction of the High Court. The purpose of the provision is to confer a right of appeal in every case that involves a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of the Act or any order in council made thereunder. In the absence of an express exception of habeas corpus cases, and having in view the terms and purposes of sec. 205, Government of India Act, 1935, its terms cannot be limited by mere construction so as to exclude cases of habeas corpus applications under sec. 491, Cr. P. Code, on behalf of persons detained under r. 26 of the Defence of India Rules. Sec. 205 thus provides one of the exceptions referred to in sec. 404, Cr. P. Code. Hence in such cases an appeal from the High Court to the Federal Court would be competent when a certificate is granted, and it follows that an appeal to His Majesty in Council from an order made by the Federal Court in appeal would also be competent. 1945 F.L. SEC. 206: ENLARGEMENT OF APPELLATE JURISDICTION.—By sec. 206 of the Act power is given to the Federal Legislature, where the sanction of the Governor-General for the introduction of the measure has been obtained, to provide by Act that, in such civil cases as may be specified therein, an appeal shall lie to the Federal Court from a judgment, decree, or final order of a High Court in British India without any certificate. No appeal, however, is to lie under any such Act unless—(a) the amount or value of the subject-matter of the dispute in the Court of first instance and still in dispute on appeal was and is not less than fifty thousand rupees or such other sum not less than fifteen thousand rupees as may be specified by the Act, or the judgment, decree or final order involves directly or indirectly some claim or question respecting property of the like amount or value; or (b) the Federal Court gives special leave to appeal. If the Federal Legislature thus enlarges the appellate jurisdiction of the Federal Court consequential provision may also be made for the abolition in whole or in part of direct appellate jurisdiction of the Federal Court to the Privy Council, either with or without special leave. The provision

(a) the amount or value of the subject-matter of the dispute in the Court of first instance and still in dispute on appeal was and is not less than fifty thousand rupees or such other sum, not less than fifteen thousand rupees, as may be specified by the Act, or the judgment, decree or final order involves directly or indirectly some claim or question respecting property of the like amount or value; or

(b) the Federal Court gives special leave to appeal.

(2) If the Federal Legislature makes such provision as is mentioned in the last preceding sub-section, consequential provision may also be made by Act of the Federal Legislature for the abolition in whole or in part of direct appeals in civil cases from High Courts in British India to His Majesty in Council, either with or without special leave.

(3) A Bill or amendment for any of the purposes specified in this section shall not be introduced into, or moved in, either Chamber of the Federal Legislature without the previous sanction of the Governor-General in his discretion.

207. (1) An appeal shall lie to the Federal Court from a High Court in a for the enlargement of the appellate jurisdiction of the Federal Court takes the place of the proposal contained in the White Paper for the establishment of a separate Supreme Court to hear appeals from the Provincial High Courts. The Joint Select Committee were not for the adoption of this proposal. They said: "A Supreme Court of this kind, would be independent of, and, in no sense, subordinate to the Federal Court; but it would be impossible to avoid a certain overlapping of jurisdiction, owing to the difficulty of determining in particular cases whether or not a constitutional issue was raised by a case under appeal. This might involve the two Courts in undignified and very undesirable disputes". In the event of the appellate jurisdiction of the Federal Court being enlarged, the Joint Select Committee assumed that the Court would sit in two Chambers, the first dealing with federal cases and the second with appeals from the High Courts. Sec. 214 accordingly enacts that, if the Federal Legislature makes provision for enlarging the appellate jurisdiction of the Court, the rules shall provide for "the constitution of a special division of the Court for the purpose of deciding all cases which would have been within the jurisdiction of the Court even if its jurisdiction had not been so enlarged". (Sec. 214, infra.)

EXTRACTS FROM THE PARLIAMENTARY DEBATES (THE SOLICITOR-GENERAL).—"The right of appeal from one Court to another is not a privilege which the rich always particularly value. The amounts, which are only rough and ready, are a measure of the importance of the case. The figures are arbitrary, but the idea of an amount as a criterion for the right of appeal already exists in respect of appeals in India, and we think that these figures are the proper figures to put in the clause".* * If a case involves a large sum of money it is obviously a case of importance to litigants. It is also true to say that cases which involve only small sums of money are much better settled in one Court without two or more rights of appeal. That is in the interest of all. It is better to have justice promptly administered in one

Court rather than to be dragged from one Court to another. I do not think anybody need be shocked at the fact that a sum of money is in issue as a convenient, rough-and-ready test. If there is any case involving special circumstances, it would be one in which the Courts in the exercise of their discretion would allow an appeal under paragraph (b). With regard to sub-sec. (2), the Federal Legislature can give a right of appeal in certain classes of cases from the High Court to the Federal Court. Obviously, if you do that, you cannot have a double right of appeal. One party cannot be going to the Federal Court and also to the Privy Council in the same class of case. The right of appeal to the Privy Council is safeguarded to this extent, that "an appeal may be brought to His Majesty in Council from a decision of the Federal Court by leave of the Federal Court or of His Majesty in Council". (Sec. 208.) At present in certain classes of cases there is an appeal as of right from the High Court. That appeal would be to the Federal Court, and the further appeal from the Federal Court to the Privy Council would be by leave either of the Federal Court itself or of the Privy Council. (Parl. Deb., 1st April, 1935, Vol. 300, Part 70, pp. 149-151.)

Sec. 207.—Under this section an appeal will lie to the Federal Court from a High Court in a Federated State by way of special case to be stated for the opinion of the Federal Court on the ground that a question of law has been wrongly decided. Such question must be one which—

(i) concerns the interpretation of the Act or of an Order in Council made thereunder; or

(ii) concerns the extent of the legislative or executive authority vested in the Federation by virtue of the instrument of accession of that State; or by virtue of the Instrument of Accession of that State, or arises under an agreement made under Part VI of this Act in relation to the administration in that State of a law of the Federal Legislature.

(iii) arises under an agreement made under Part VI of the Act [Part VI deals with administrative relations between Federation, Provinces and States] in relation to the Administration in that State of a law of the Federal Legislature.

(2) An appeal under this section shall be by way of special case to be stated for the opinion of the Federal Court by the High Court, and the Federal Court may require a case to be so stated, and may return any case so stated in order that further facts may be stated therein.

Appeals to His Majesty in Council.

208. An appeal may be brought to His Majesty in Council from a decision of the Federal Court—

(a) from any judgment of the Federal Court given in the exercise of its original jurisdiction in any dispute which concerns the interpretation of this Act or of an Order in Council made thereunder, or the extent of the legislative or executive authority vested in the Federation by virtue of the Instrument of Accession of any State, or arises under an agreement made under Part VI of this Act in relation to the administration in any State of a law of the Federal Legislature, without leave; and

(b) in any other case, by leave of the Federal Court or of His Majesty in Council.

SEC. 208.—Sec. 110 preserves the prerogative right of the Crown to grant special leave to appeal from any Court. But the Select Committee said: "We may perhaps point out, that the jurisdiction of the Privy Council in relation to the States will be based upon the voluntary act of the Rulers themselves, i.e., their instrument of accession". "Their Lordships do not generally advise Her Majesty to exercise her prerogative by admitting an appeal to Her Majesty in Council from the Supreme Court of the Dominions, save where the case is of gravity involving matter of public interest or some important question of law, or affecting property of considerable amount or where the case is otherwise of some public importance or of a very substantial character". See also Clerique v. Murray, (1903) A.C. 521; 47 B. 724 (P. C.).

SEC. 208 (b): LEAVE TO APPEAL TO PRIVY COUNCIL—GRANTING OF—PRINCIPLE.—The Federal Court will not be disposed to grant leave to appeal to the Privy Council, save in cases of real importance, cases which are likely to affect a large number of interests hereafter or cases in which difficult questions of law are involved. Leave to appeal was refused in a case where the decision of the Court dealt only with the scaling down of decrees obtained before the Madras Agriculturists' Relief Act came into force, on the ground that the number of such decrees must necessarily be small and that there could be no addition to their number. 73 C.L.J. 429=54 L.W. 61=45 C.W.N. (F.R.) 96=4 F.L.J. 16=1941 F.C. 69=(1941) 2 M.L.J. 33. When dealing with an application for leave to appeal to the Privy Council, the Federal Court must be satisfied that the matter is one of importance and that there is really a substantial question to be determined. The Federal Court held that it was unable to hold that there was room for such serious doubt on the point as to whether sec. 292 of the Constitution Act, deprived the Legislatures in India of the power to legislate with retrospective effect as to justify it, in holding that that was a substantial question on which leave to appeal to Privy Council was to be granted. The Court further held that it could not be said that any decision to be obtained from their Lordships of the Privy Council if this appeal was to be permitted to go to them, was likely to have a material bearing upon the future litigation. 73 C.L.J. 431=45 C.W.N. (F.R.) 90=1941 F.C. 70. Unless special circumstances are shown which would justify the grant of leave to appeal to the Privy Council, the Federal Court will not ordinarily grant such leave. 1939 O.L.R. 416=2 Fed.L.J. 206=1939 M.W.N. 616. See also 71 C.L.J. 390. Since the primary responsibility for determining constitutional cases lies upon the Federal Court, it ought not without grave reason grant under sec. 208 (b) leave to appeal to Privy Council against its decision. It will treat each case on its own merits and will grant leave sparingly and only in exceptional cases. Even if, therefore, a decision affects a large number of persons and substantial interests, and also involves important questions of law, this does not by itself justify the granting of leave. The Federal Court is the first Court sitting on Indian soil whose jurisdiction, although limited, extends to the whole

209. (1) The Federal Court shall, where it allows an appeal, remit the Form of judgment on case to the Court from which the appeal was brought with a declaration as to the judgment, decree or order which is to be substituted for the judgment, decree or order appealed against, and the Court from which the appeal was brought shall give effect to the decision of the Federal Court.

(2) Where the Federal Court upon any appeal makes any order as to the costs of the proceedings in the Federal Court, it shall, as soon as the amount of the costs to be paid is ascertained, transmit its order for the payment of that sum to the Court from which the appeal was brought and that Court shall give effect to the order.

(3) The Federal Court may, subject to such terms or conditions as it may think fit to impose, order a stay of execution in any case under appeal to the Court, pending the hearing of the appeal, and execution shall be stayed accordingly.

of British India. Its establishment marked a new stage in India's constitutional evolution; and the evolution of Indian political thought after its inception has served only to increase and emphasize the significance of its authority. It is not subordinate to any other Court; and this conception of its status was present in the minds of those who framed the Indian Constitution Act of 1935, when they gave to the Court itself the right to say whether it would permit any cases which came before it on appeal to be reviewed elsewhere. The ancient prerogative right of His Majesty to grant special leave to appeal, though it has now been made statutory by sec. 208 (b), does not affect this aspect of the matter. 55 L.W. 829=1942 F.L.J. 95=A.I.R. 1942 F.C. 48=(1942) 2 M.L.J. 797=47 C.W.N. Where a litigation involves no only a question as to the interpretation of the Constitution Act, but broader questions which bear on a controversy which has long been agitated in the Courts in India, namely, the nature and extent of the rights secured to taluqdars by the Oudh Settlement and the extent of the immunity thereby secured to them from legislative interference and the decision of the question by the Privy Council affects pecuniary interests of a very large value and the number of people vitally interested in it is also very large and it is inevitable that the controversy must arise again and every time that the legislatures in India attempt to deal with the rights of landholder and tenant of the Indian Provinces, leave to appeal to the Privy Council should be granted. SEC. 209: REMISSION OF CASE TO HIGH COURT—POWERS OF FEDERAL COURT.—The Federal Court in the exercise of its appellate jurisdiction can remit under secs. 205 and 209 (1) a case to the High Court with a declaration that there shall be substituted for the judgment, decree or order of the High Court a judgment, decree or order which recognizes the state of the law which comes into force while the appeal to Federal Court is pending, without discussing the law as it existed at the time when the High Court had seisin of the case. 2 F.L.J. 183=43 C.W.N. (F.C.R.) 193=1939 F.C. 74=(1939) 2 M.L.J. (Supp.) 45. The form of the order to be passed by the Federal Court in cases decided by it under sec. 209 (1) must necessarily vary according to the circumstances and requirements of each case. The use of the word "shall" in sec. 209 (1) cannot reasonably be construed to mean that in every case the Federal Court is under an obligation to declare the judgment, decree or order which is to be substituted for the judgment, decree or order appealed against. It will not be practicable for the High Court in every case coming before it to make a declaration which can straightaway be embodied by the High Court whose order is under appeal, in an executable decree. The provisions of sec. 209 (1) are only directory, and the plain object of the section should be carried out in cases in which this could reasonably or conveniently be done and it could not have been intended to impose an obligation on the Court to do so even when this could not be done. To construe the concluding words of sec. 209 (1) as placing the High Court merely in the position of an executing Court is to put an unnecessarily narrow interpretation on the words used. It was no doubt intended that the Federal Court should make a declaration and not itself pass an executable decree. But it does not follow that the High Court had only the status of an executing Court in respect of all matters heard on appeal by the Federal Court. When the Federal Court frames its order in such terms as the circumstances of the case warrant and send the case.

Enforcement of decrees and orders of Federal Court and orders as to discovery etc.

210. (1) All authorities, civil and judicial, throughout the Federation, shall act in aid of the Federal Court.

(2) The Federal Court shall, as respects British India and the Federated States, have power to make any order for the purpose of securing the attendance of any person, the discovery or production of any documents, or the investigation or punishment of any contempt of Court, which any High Court in British India has power to make as respects the territory within its jurisdiction, and any such orders, and any orders of the Federal Court as to the costs of and incidental to any proceedings therein, shall be enforceable by all Courts and authorities in every part of British India or of any Federated State as if they were orders duly made by the highest Court exercising civil or criminal jurisdiction, as the case may be, in that part.

(3) Nothing in this section—

(a) shall apply to any such order with respect to costs as is mentioned in sub-section (2) of the last preceding section; or stay of execution in a case from, a High Court in a Federated State, or require the aid of the civil or judicial authorities in a Federated State, the Federal Court shall cause letters of request in that behalf to be sent to the Ruler of the State, and the Ruler shall cause such communication to be made to the High Court or to any judicial or civil authority as the circumstances may require.

(b) shall, as regards a Federated State, apply in relation to any jurisdiction exercisable by the Federal Court by reason only of the making by the Federal Legislature of such provision as is mentioned in this chapter for enlarging the appellate jurisdiction of the Federal Court.

212. The law declared by the Federal Court and by any judgment of the Law declared by Federal Court and Privy Council to be binding on all Courts.

Privy Council shall, so far as applicable, be recognised as binding on, and shall be followed by, all Courts in British India, and, so far as respects the application and interpretation of this Act or any Order in Council thereunder or any matter with respect to which the Federal Legislature has power to make laws in relation to the State, in any Federal State.

back to the High Court, it is for the High Court to adopt the course it seems most convenient in the circumstances of the case in the light of the observations made by the Federal Court. 6 F.L.J. 73=48 C.W.N. (F.R.) 32=A.I.R. 1943 F.C. 72 (F.C.).

SECS. 210 AND 212.—Where the Federal Court allows an appeal it is to remit the case to the Court from which the appeal was brought with a declaration as to the judgment, decree or order which is to be substituted for the judgment, decree or order appealed against. The Court from which the appeal was brought is to give effect to the decision of the Federal Court. Under sec. 210 all authorities civil and judicial, throughout the Federation are to act in aid of the Federal Court. [cl. (1).] Sec. 212 provides that the law declared by the Federal Court and by any judgment of the Privy Council shall, so far as applicable, be recognised as binding on all Courts in British India. It is also to be binding in any Federated State so far as respects the application and interpretation of this Act or any other Order in Council thereunder or any other matter with respect to which the Federal Legislature has power to make laws in relation to the State.

SEC. 210 (2): SCOPE AND EFFECT OF—JURISDICTION OF FEDERAL COURT IN CONTEMPT.—Sec. 210 (2) confers powers, not jurisdiction; and unless in any given case the Court has jurisdiction, it has no powers to exercise. The Federal Court as Court of record has all the powers belonging to such a Court including the power to punish for contempt of itself; and sec. 210 (2) does no more than give it the same machinery for making that power effective as the High Court themselves possess. 4 F.L.J. 33=55 L.W. 3=1942 M.W.N. 48=(1942) 1 M.L.J. 74 (F.C.)=I.L.R. (1942) Lah. 712.

SEC. 212: SECTION EXPLAINED.—What this section says first is "that the law declared by the Federal Court and by any judgment of the Privy Council shall so far as applicable be recognised as binding on and shall be followed by all Courts in British India". This is an obvious and necessary provision, because these are superior Courts and their decisions must be followed and recognised by lower Courts. So far as the Indian States are concerned it provides that any decision of the Federal Court and the Privy Council, "so far as respects the application and interpretation of this Act or any Order in Council thereunder or any matter with respect to which the Federal Legislature has power to make laws in relation to the State".—In those cases the decision shall be recognised as binding and followed by the Courts of the Federated State. (Parl. Deb., Vol. 300, No. 71, 2nd April, 1935, Col. 209, Speech of the Solicitor-General.)

213. (1) If at any time it appears to the Governor-General that a question of law has arisen, or is likely to arise, which is of such a nature and of such public importance that it is expedient to obtain the opinion of the Federal Court upon it, he may in his discretion refer the question to that Court for consideration, and the Court may, after such hearing as they think fit, report to the Governor-General thereon.

(2) No report shall be made under this section save in accordance with an opinion delivered in open Court with the concurrence of a majority of the judges present at the hearing of the case, but nothing in this sub-section shall be deemed to prevent a judge who does not concur from delivering a dissenting opinion.

SEC. 213: SECTION EXPLAINED.—"This section deals simply with the power of the Governor-General to refer any question of law, on which he thinks it desirable to obtain the opinion of the Federal Court, to that Court for a decision. There is an analogous power in a well-known section of the Privy Council Act." Parl. Deb., Vol. 300, No. 71, 2nd April, 1935 Cols. 213-214, speech of the Attorney-General. See sec. 4 of the Judicial Committee Act, 1833.) In certain circumstances "may" and "shall" are interchangeable expressions. "May" in this position means "shall" having regard to consideration that you cannot compel a court to answer a question, although no doubt they will regard it as their duty to answer it having regard to the powers that are conferred on them. (Ibid.). This advisory jurisdiction of the Federal Court is analogous to that possessed by the Privy Council under sec. 4 of the Judicial Committee Act, 1833, which provides that His Majesty may refer to the Committee for their opinion any matters whatsoever as His Majesty may think fit, and that the Committee shall thereupon hear and consider the same, and shall advise His Majesty thereon. Procedure under the Judicial Committee Act, 1833, differs from that under sec. 213 of this Act in one respect—dissenting judgments are not delivered in the Privy Council. In allowing expression of dissent the Federal Court follows the practice of the International Court at the Hague. As to the practice and desirability of Courts giving opinions in advance of actual litigation between parties see "Judicial Precedents or a Study in Case-law" published by the M.L.J. Office, Chapter XVI, pp. 71-75.

SEC. 213: REFERENCE UNDER—ONUS—CASE, ANSWER AND REJOINDER—PROCEDURE.—Where a special reference under sec. 213 relates to an Act of a Provincial Legislature and the Advocate-General of India challenges its validity on behalf of the Governor-General of India, the onus is on him in the first instance to state the facts and arguments and authorities showing that the Act or any provisions thereof is or are ultra vires of the Provincial Legislature concerned. It would then be for the Advocate-General of that Province to file his case stating any further facts which may be considered necessary and meeting the arguments of the Advocate-General of India and citing the authorities upon which he proposes to rely at the hearing. The position would be reversed if a Province were challenging the validity of an Act of the Central Legislature. The question whether there should be any rejoinder by the party challenging the validity of the Act must be considered after the opposite party has filed his case. 1938 P.W. N. 609=1 Fed.L.J. R. 1.

Per Spens, C.J. and Vardachariar, J.—It is not for the Court to insist on the inexpediency of the advisory jurisdiction conferred under sec. 213 of the Act. The fact that the questions referred relate to future legislation cannot by itself be regarded as a valid objection to the reference. It would no doubt make the task of the Court easier and perhaps enable it to give a more specific and useful opinion, if in these cases the Court could have before it not only questions intended to indicate the pith and substance of the proposed legislation but also a draft notification to be issued under sec. 104 and a draft bill to be introduced to carry out the proposals. A perusal even of the machinery sections may often be useful and sometimes even necessary to elucidate the scope of the charging section—and this is particularly so in cases of ambiguity. (1944) 2 M.L.J. 234=A.I.R. 1944 F.C. 73=1944 F.L.J. 215.

Per Zafrulla Khan, J.—Sec. 213 does not make it obligatory upon the Court to arrive at a determination of the questions referred to it. Though the procedure in regard to the Court for regulating generally the practice and procedure of the Court, including rules as to the persons practising before the Court, as to the time within which appeals to the Court are to be entered, as to the costs of and incidental to any proceedings in the Court, and as to the fees to be charged in respect of proceedings therein, and it particular may make rules providing for the summary determination of any appeal which appears to the Court to be frivolous or vexatious or brought for the purpose of delay.

(2) Rules made under this section may fix the minimum number of judges who are to sit for any purpose, so however that no case shall be decided by less than three judges:

Provided that, if the Federal Legislature make such provision as is mentioned in this chapter for enlarging the appellate jurisdiction of the Court, the rule shall provide for the constitution of a special division of the Court for the purpose of deciding all cases which would have been within the jurisdiction of the Court even if its jurisdiction had not been so enlarged.

(3) Subject to the provisions of any rules of Court, the Chief Justice of India shall determine what judges are to constitute any division of the Court and what judges are to sit for any purpose.

(4) No judgment shall be delivered by the Federal Court save in open Court and with the concurrence of a majority of the judges present at the hearing of the case, but nothing in this sub-section shall be deemed to prevent a judge who does not concur from delivering a dissenting judgment.

(5) All proceedings in the Federal Court shall be in the English language.

215. The Federal Legislature may make provision by Act for conferring Ancillary powers of Federal Court.

upon the Federal Court such supplemental powers not inconsistent with any of the provisions of this Act as may appear to be necessary or desirable for the purpose of enabling the Court more effectively to exercise the jurisdiction conferred upon it by or under this Act.

reference to the Federal Court has, as far as possible, been approximated to a judicial hearing and determination of the questions referred, the advisory opinion is not in the nature of a judicial pronouncement appealable to His Majesty in Council. Nor is it binding upon the Governor-General, whether advisory opinion could be regarded as "law declared by the Federal Court," so as to be recognised as binding on Courts in British India appears to be open to serious doubt. Whenever the Federal Court is invited to render an opinion upon questions of law, the questions must be cast in a precise and exact form and the reference itself must contain all the material necessary to enable the Court to arrive at a satisfactory determination of the questions. 1944 F.C. 73=(1944) F.L.J. 215=(1944) 2 M.L.J. 234.

OPINION GIVEN UPON REFERENCE—BINDING NATURE.—Per Spens, C.J.—The opinion given by the Federal Court upon a reference under sec. 213 is not technically binding on the High Court nor is it binding on the Federal Court. Any such opinion can properly be reconsidered at any time by the Federal Court in any litigation coming before it and should be so reconsidered on the proper request of any party, however much respect for the learned judges responsible for an opinion and a desire to secure continuity and certainty in the pronouncement of the Federal Court may make a member of the Federal Court hesitate to differ. SEC. 215: SECTION EXPLAINED.—"This is a clause put in purely out of precaution, in case it should turn out that, in some very important and vital matter, some supplemental power is necessary for the purpose of enabling the Court more effectively to exercise its jurisdiction. Where you are dealing with such important matters as this, it is thought wise to put in an enabling clause to enable the Legislature, should the need arise, to fill up the gap. The Committee will see that the powers under the Clause are definitely limited and restricted. The powers are to be such as may appear necessary to enable the Court to exercise the jurisdiction conferred upon it by or under this Act. Necessarily there is no specific point in mind or the clause would have been made specific. The Legislature will have the power, should it be required, to confer upon the Court the powers necessary to enable it to perform the functions placed

216. (1) The administrative expenses of the Federal Court, including all salaries, allowances and pensions payable to or in respect of the officers and servants of the Court, shall be charged upon the revenues of the Federation, and any fees or other moneys taken by the Court shall form part of those revenues.

(2) The Governor-General shall exercise his individual judgment as to the amount to be included in respect of the administrative expenses of the Federal Court in any estimates of expenditure laid by him before the Chambers of the Federal Legislature.

217. References in any provision of this Part of this Act to a High Court in a Federated State shall be construed as references to any Court which His Majesty may, after communication with the Ruler of the State, declare to be a High Court for the purposes of that provision.

218. Nothing in this chapter shall be construed as conferring, or empowering the Federal Legislature to confer, any right of appeal to the Federal Court in any case in which a High Court in British India is exercising jurisdiction on appeal from a Court outside British India, or as affecting any right of appeal in any such case to His Majesty in Council with or without leave.

CHAPTER II.

THE HIGH COURTS IN BRITISH INDIA.

219. (1) The following Courts shall in relation to British India be deemed to be High Courts for the purposes of this Act, that is to say the High Courts in Calcutta, Madras, Bombay, Allahabad, Lahore, and Patna, the Chief Court in Oudh, the Judicial Commissioner's Courts in the Central Provinces and Berar, in the North-West Frontier Province and in Sind, any other Court in British India constituted or reconstituted under this chapter as a High Court, and any other comparable Court in British India which His Majesty in Council may declare to be a High Court for the purposes of this Act:

Provided that, if provision has been made before the commencement of Part III of this Act for the establishment of a High Court to replace any Court or Courts mentioned in this sub-section, then as from the establishment of the upon it under the Act." (Parl. Deb., Vol. 300, No. 71, 2nd April, 1935, p. 236, Speech of the Solicitor-General.)

Sec. 217.—"Under this clause it will be for the Crown to say what Courts should be determined to be High Courts for the purposes of this part of the Act. Such decisions will be by the Crown after communication with the Ruler of a State, but the decision will rest with the Crown. (Parl. Deb., Vol. 300, No. 71, 2nd April, 1935, p. 243).

Sec. 218.—This clause is only included with a view to making good the intention of the Government to maintain the right of appeal from the Court at Aden to the High Court at Bombay. (Parl. Deb., Vol. 300, No. 71, 2nd April, 1935, Col. 243).

Sec. 219.—Prior to the passing of the new Act, the High Court at Calcutta was mainly under the jurisdiction of the Central Government. The other High Courts were under the jurisdiction of the Local Governments. The Joint Select Committee reported in favour of bringing the Calcutta High Court into the same relationship with the Bengal Government as that obtaining between all other High Courts and their respective Provincial Governments; and the new Act makes provision accordingly.

PROVISO.—The Proviso is intended "to meet the possibility of what is now the Judicial Commissioner's Court in the Central Provinces and Berar being, as may well happen, converted into a High Court before this Bill becomes an Act. At present it is referred to as what is now, namely, the Judicial Commissioner's Court in the Central Provinces and Berar. It may well be that before the Bill becomes an Act it will have been turned into a High Court, and the amendment merely makes provision in case this happens before that date." (Parl. Deb., Vol. 300, No. 71, 2nd April, 1935, Col. 244).

new Court, this section shall have effect as if the new Court were mentioned therein in lieu of the Court or Courts so replaced.

(2) The provisions of this chapter shall apply to every High Court in British India. [See Amendment by 3 and 4, Geo. 6, Ch. 5, S. 6, infra.]

220. (1) Every High Court shall be a Court of record and shall consist of a Chief Justice and such other judges as His Majesty may from time to time deem it necessary to appoint:

Provided that the judges so appointed, together with any additional judges appointed by the Governor-General in accordance with the following provisions of this chapter, shall at no time exceed in number such maximum number as His Majesty in Council may fix in relation to that Court.

(2) Every judge of a High Court shall be appointed by His Majesty by warrant under the Royal Sign Manual and shall hold office until he attains the age of sixty years:

Provided that—

(a) a judge may by resignation under his hand addressed to the Governor resign his office;

(b) a judge may be removed from his office by His Majesty by warrant under the Royal Sign Manual on the ground of misbehaviour or of infirmity of mind or body, if the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, on reference being made to them by His Majesty, report that the judge ought on any such ground to be removed.

(3) A person shall not be qualified for appointment as a judge of a High Court unless he—

(a) is a barrister of England or Northern Ireland, of at least ten years standing, or a member of the faculty of Advocates in Scotland of at least ten years' standing; or

SEC. 220.—The former statutory requirement that not less than one-third of the Judges of every High Court must have been called to the English, Scottish or Irish Bar, and that not less than one-third must be members of the Indian Civil Service, is abrogated. "We are informed", said the Joint Select Committee in their Report, "that the rigidity of this rule has sometimes caused difficulty in the selection of Judges." They also said, that the Civil Service Judges are an important and valuable element in the judiciary, and that their presence adds greatly to the strength of the High Courts. Before the Act the Civil Service Judges were not eligible for permanent appointment as Chief Justice of a High Court. His Majesty's freedom of choice is no longer fettered in this respect, under the present Act. The Joint Select Committee said, "We need hardly add that our acceptance of the proposal to abrogate the statutory proportion so far as barristers are concerned implies no doubt as to the necessity of continuing in the interests of the maintenance of British legal traditions, to recruit a reasonable proportion of barristers or advocates from the United Kingdom as Judges of the High Courts." In India there is not the distinction in the lower ranks between the Executive and the subordinate judiciary, and it is quite inevitable whether you federalise the High Courts or keep them provincial as they are now, that the subordinate judiciary will have to be provincial. I suggest that there is every objection against taking the higher ranks of the judicature and making them Federal while maintaining the lower ranks under provincial administration. All sorts of administrative difficulties will at once occur, and, apart from those, it seems to me that there will be a grave danger of the Provinces regarding the High Court as isolated and insulated from the Province itself, as something imposed by the Federation from outside, with the result that there will much more likelihood of friction between the Local Government on the one hand and the High Court on the other, and within the Province, to remain part of the administration, and the federalised High Court. The Joint Select Committee therefore recommended that these Courts should remain part of the Provincial Administration, accompanied by the safeguards that they are to be Crown appointments and that the expenses are to be not-votable charges on provincial budgets." (Parl. Deb., Vol. 300, No. 71, 2nd April, 1935, Cols. 249-254).

The High Court of Lahore is a Court of Record and therefore possesses the ordinary jurisdiction of a Court of Record to commit for contempt. I.L.R. (1942) Lah. 411=44 P.L.R. 206=A.I.R. 1942 Lah. 105 (F.B.).

(b) is a member of the Indian Civil Service of at least ten years' standing, who has for at least three years served as, or exercised the powers of, a district judge; or

(c) has for at least five years held a judicial office in British India not inferior to that of a subordinate judge, or judge of a Small Cause Court; or

(d) has for at least ten years been a pleader of any High Court, or of two or more such Courts in succession:

Provided that a person shall not, unless he is, or when first appointed to judicial office was, a barrister, a member of the Faculty of Advocates or a pleader, be qualified for appointment as Chief Justice of any High Court constituted by letters patent until he has served for not less than three years as a judge of a High Court.

In computing for the purposes of this sub-section the standing of a barrister or a member of the Faculty of Advocates, or the period during which a person has been a pleader, any period during which the person has held judicial office after he became a barrister, a member of the Faculty of Advocates, or a pleader, as the case may be, shall be included.

(4) Every person appointed to be a judge of a High Court shall, before he enters upon his office, make and subscribe before the Governor or some person appointed by him an oath according to the form set out in that behalf in the Fourth Schedule to this Act.

221. The judges of the several High Courts shall be entitled to such salaries and allowances, including allowances for expenses in respect of equipment and travelling upon appointment, and to such rights in respect of leave and pensions, as may from time to time be fixed by His Majesty in Council:

Provided that neither the salary of a judge, nor his rights in respect of leave of absence or pension, shall be varied to his disadvantage after his appointment.

222. (1) If the office of chief justice of a High Court becomes vacant, or if any such chief justice is by reason of absence, or for any other reason, unable to perform the duties of his office, those duties shall, until some person appointed by His Majesty to the vacant office has entered on the duties thereof, or until the chief justice has resumed his duties, as the case may be, be performed by such one of the other judges of the Court as the Governor-General may in his discretion think fit to appoint for the purpose.

SEC. 220 (4).—The oath prescribed by sec. 220 (4) is only necessary before entering upon the office as a Judge. Where a person appointed as an additional Judge of the High Court has continued as such without a break after taking the oath prescribed under cl. 3 of the Letters Patent, and he is made a permanent Judge of the High Court by a Royal warrant signed and issued before the commencement of the Act—the appointment to take effect after the Act in continuation of his appointment as additional Judge,—it cannot be said that he enters upon his office as a Judge afresh necessitating a fresh oath which is required only for a person who enters upon his office for the first time. The fact that the additional Judge did not take the oath afresh on being made a permanent Judge would not invalidate his appointment or make the High Court otherwise than validly constituted. 1937 A.L.J. 840=I.L.R. 1937 A. 880=1937 A. 588 (F.B.).

SEC. 222.—CL. 1 of sec. 222 of the Government of India Act expressly recognises and provides for the contingency of the Office of Chief Justice of a High Court remaining vacant for some time. CL. 2 of the Letters Patent (Patna) only determines the constitution of that High Court by declaring that it shall consist of a Chief Justice and a certain number of other Judges. In the case of a vacancy caused by death some time must necessarily elapse before a new appointment is made. It would be preposterous to hold that during the interval between the death and new appointment there is no properly constituted High Court. The vacancy in the Office implies that the office exists which is distinct from the case of an abolition of the office. Where the Chief Justice of the High Court dies during the vacation of the High Court, the Office of Chief Justice does not die with him. It still continues, though it remains vacant till filled up. The con-

(2) If the office of any other judge of a High Court becomes vacant, or if any such judge is appointed to act temporarily as a chief justice, or is by reason of absence, or for any other reason, unable to perform the duties of his office, the Governor-General may in his discretion appoint a person duly qualified for appointment as a judge to act as a judge of that Court, and the persons so appointed shall, unless the Governor-General in his discretion thinks fit to revoke his appointment, be deemed to be a judge of that Court until some person appointed by His Majesty to the vacant office has entered on the duties thereof, or until the permanent judge has resumed his duties.

(3) If by reason of any temporary increase in the business of any High Court or by reason of arrears of work in any such Court it appears to the Governor-General that the number of the judges of the Court, should be for the time being increased, the Governor-General in his discretion may, subject to the foregoing provisions of this chapter with respect to the maximum number of judges, appoint persons duly qualified for appointment as judges to be additional judges of the Court for such period not exceeding two years as he may specify.

223. Subject to the provisions of this Part of this Act, to the provisions of any Order in Council made under this or any other Jurisdiction of existing Act and to the provisions of any Act of the appropriate legislature enacted by virtue of powers conferred on that legislature by this Act, the jurisdiction of, and the law administered in, any existing High Court, and the respective powers of the judges thereof in relation to the administration of justice in the Court, including any power to make rules of Court and to regulate the sittings of the Court and of members thereof sitting alone or in division Courts, shall be the same as immediately before the commencement of Part III of this Act.

stitution of the Court remains unbroken and unchanged. So far as the jurisdiction of a vacation Bench of the High Court to hear and decide cases is concerned, that cannot be questioned, because the vacation Bench is not required to do any of the duties of the Chief Justice. The only effect of the vacancy in the office of Chief Justice, is that, so long as the vacancy continues, there would be no one to perform his duties until the Governor-General appoints some one of the other Judges to do the same under sec. 222 (1) of the Government of India Act. The death of the Chief Justice and the consequent vacancy in his office does not affect the jurisdiction of the Vacation Bench in the least or render it incompetent to pass orders in any case within its jurisdiction as provided by the law and the Rules of the High Court. 17 Pat. 574=19 Pat.L.T. 675=1938 P.W.N. 683=1938 Pat. 550.

Sub-sec. (2) of sec. 222 deals with conditions under which a temporary Judge can be appointed. But from that provision no intention can be imputed to the Legislature to the effect that a Judge on leave cannot think about a case which he had previously heard or utilized the period of his leave in preparing a judgment which he had reserved just before going on leave. On no principle can a judgment be declared invalid simply because it was composed by him while on leave. 47 C.W.N. 9=A.I.R. 1942 Cal. 498 (S.B.).

SEC. 223: EXTRACTS FROM PARLIAMENTARY DEBATES (ATTORNEY-GENERAL).—"The scheme of the Act provides that the Provincial Legislatures shall have competence to legislate in respect of the jurisdiction of the High Court in any matters in connection with which they may pass legislation. It will be seen at once how important it is that if the Provincial Legislature is to have power to legislate upon any particular matter, it shall also have the power to legislate in respect of the necessary jurisdiction of the High Court as being connected with that matter. My Noble Friend has suggested some ways in which legislation might be passed by the Provincial Legislature derogating from the jurisdiction of the High Court. I am informed that, judging from present day and past experience, the tendency has been and should be in the future in exactly the opposite direction. The inclinations of the Legislatures has been to increase the jurisdiction of the High Court and not to diminish it or derogate from it. The reason that I would mention as the one which makes it impossible to accept the amendment of my honourable and learned Friend is that his amendment makes it impossible for the Provincial Legislature to derogate from the jurisdiction of the High Court. That would really mean that the Federal Legislature would have to come in and legislate in respect of jurisdiction to deal with that which had been made the subject of legislation in the Provincial Legislature, and you would get an inextricable tangle between the two, or you might easily get such a tangle. In spite of what I have said as to the probable tendencies being in the direction of increasing the

224. (1) Every High Court shall have superintendence over all Courts in India for the time being subject to its appellate jurisdiction, and may do any of the following things, that is to say,—

- Administrative functions of High Courts.
- (a) call for returns;
 - (b) make and issue general rules and prescribe forms for regulating the practice and proceedings of such Courts;
 - (c) prescribe forms in which books, entries and accounts shall be kept by the officers of any such Courts; and
 - (d) settle tables of fees to be allowed to the sheriff, attorneys, and all clerks and officers of Courts:

Provided that such rules, forms and tables shall not be inconsistent with the provision of any law for the time being in force, and shall require the previous approval of the Governor.

(2) Nothing in this section shall be construed as giving to a High Court any jurisdiction to question any judgment of any inferior Court which is not otherwise subject to appeal or revision.

jurisdiction of the High Court, rather than diminishing it, provision has been made in the Instrument of Instructions by which any legislation derogating from the powers of the High Court so as to endanger the position which the Court is by such Act designed to fill, is to be sent by the Governor for the consideration of the Governor-General. That would give the most ample safeguards against the possibilities suggested by my noble Friend. I hope that my honourable Friends will feel that the safeguard which will be inserted in the instrument of Instruction will prevent them from feeling any fears as to the jurisdiction of the High Court being tampered with by the Provincial Legislature." (Parl. Deb., Vol. 300, No. 71, 2nd April, 1935, Col. 294).

Under sec. 223, the only express direction given to the High Court as to the law to be administered is, a suit for dissolution of marriage between parties who married as Hindus but one of whom subsequently became a convert to Islam, is the direction to administer "justice and right". Sec. 18 of the Act of Settlement, 1781, cannot be invoked as making it obligatory for the Court to decide the case according to the law of the defendant. As it is inherently impossible to apply the English Law of Marriage, it is open to the High Court and it is also its duty to administer their personal law to the parties in the guise of "justice and right". The only question is, whether that law should be the Mahomedan Law of the converted spouse, or the Hindu Law of the other, or such a consideration of the interaction of both laws as will not commit a violation to the legal rights of either and as will be in conformity with justice and right. 49 C.W.N. 439.

Per Rowland, J.—The jurisdiction of the High Court can be taken away by an Ordinance of the Governor-General by virtue of sec. 311 (6). 47 C.W.N. (F.C.) 41=6 F.L.J. 79=I.L.R. (1943) Kar. (F.C.) 43=1943 F.C. 36=(1943) 2 M.L.J. 207 (F.C.).

It cannot be said that the use of the word "Legislature" in sec. 223 indicates that only the Federal and Provincial Legislatures are being referred to. The word "Legislature" means an authority empowered to make laws. The Governor-General when he promulgates an Ordinance makes a law and is therefore in that capacity a Legislature. Therefore Governor-General has power to pass Ordinances affecting the jurisdiction of the High Court. 44 Cr.L.J. 673=A.I.R. 1944 Cal. 285 (S.B.).

SECS. 223 AND 224.—The High Court has no jurisdiction under the Government of India Act, 1935, to interfere with an order passed by a Deputy Collector in execution proceedings under the Bengal Rent Act. I.L.R. (1941) 2 Cal. 366=4 F.L.J. (H.C.) 405=1941 Cal. 230.

Sec. 224.—This section reproduces the terms of sec. 107 of the old Act with two variations, one of which alone is of substance:

(1) The provision as to transfer of cases to itself under cl. (b) has been omitted for the reason stated by the Attorney-General:—"The Codes of Criminal and Civil Procedure already provide for this power in connection with the ordinary jurisdiction of the Courts, that is to say, the power to direct the transfer of a suit or appeal from one Court to another of equal or superior jurisdiction. It seems most undesirable to take one of the powers conferred upon the Courts by the Code, and introduce it into a section which deals only with administrative matters". (Parl. Deb., Vol. 302, Col. 994). The proviso which prescribes the previous approval of the Governor to the validity of the rule made by the High Court under this section, makes a departure from the previous law in the case of the High Court of Calcutta for which the previous approval of the Governor-General in Council was formerly prescribed; thus rendering all the High Courts uniform in respect of this matter.

SCOPE OF—POWERS OF HIGH COURT NOW AFFECTED.—Sec. 224 only means that no powers of interference are conferred on High Courts by it except that of superintending subordinate Courts in matters of practice and procedure not regulated specifically by law. It does not take away any powers High Courts may have under other provisions of law. It does not change the law in respect of the powers that may be exercised by the High Courts under secs. 439 and 561-A, Cr. P. Code. 1942 O.W.N. 496=1942 A.W.R. (G.C.) 315=6 F.L.J. (H.C.) 53=1943 Oudh 184.

CL. (2).—This deprives the High Courts of the revisional powers which they have been exercising over Courts subject to their appellate jurisdiction ever since the constitution of the High Courts in 1861, originally under sec. 15 of the High Courts Act of 1861 and later under sec. 107 of the Government of India Act, 1915. The revisional powers of the High Courts would therefore hereafter be confined to those cases where the Indian enactments confer such a power. The term "inferior Court" is not defined by the Act, and in the context it can presumably mean "Courts inferior to the High Court which the subject to the appellate jurisdiction of the High Court" within the opening words of this section. It is submitted that the sub-section does not affect the powers of the High Court to issue writs of certiorari and prohibition in respect of the proceedings and determination of tribunals which are not "inferior Courts", e.g., in those cases where jurisdiction is conferred on persona designata to determine judicially the rights of parties, or in cases of quasi-judicial tribunals. (See also notes under sec. 220, supra. Parl. Deb., and Joint Par. Com. Report.) See I.L.R. (1942) Lah. 483.

APPLICABILITY.—Although sec. 224 contains in effect a reproduction of the terms of sec. 107 of the previous Government of India Act, it also contains a proviso which makes it clear that sec. 224 has no application of itself to legal proceedings at all. I.L.R. (1938) 1 Cal. 256=1938 Cal. 23. Sec. 224 does not empower the High Court to interfere with a conviction and sentence passed in a criminal trial, apart from the appellate or revisional powers which it possesses under the Cr. P. Code. I.L.R. (1944) Nag. 728=1944 F.L.J. 190=1944 N.L.J. 280=A.I.R. 1944 Nag. 286. R. 704 of the Calcutta High Court Civil Rules and Orders, in so far as it authorises the levy of a free of rupee one on affidavits and its payment by means of a court-fee stamp, is legal. The levy of such a fee is authorised under the powers conferred by sec. 224 (b) of the Act. 50 C.W.N. 177=A.I.R. 1946 Cal. 110.

POWER OF SUPERINTENDENCE—SCOPE AND EXTENT OF.—The power of superintendence of Magisterial Courts conferred on the Chief Court of Sind by law includes necessarily the power to guide, advise and encourage Magistrates in the faithful discharge of their judicial duties. I.L.R. (1941) Kar. 3=1940 Sind 239 (F.B.).

SEC. 224 (1) AND (2): CONSTRUCTION AND SCOPE—POWERS OF HIGH COURT EXISTING BEFORE ACT—IF TAKEN AWAY OR AFFECTED.—Sub-sec. (2) of sec. 224 of the Government of India Act cannot have been intended to curtail any of the powers possessed by the High Courts before the Act of 1935 was passed. In fact sec. 223 preserves those powers. All that sec. 224 (2) means is that the High Courts cannot so interpret sub-sec. (1) of that section as to usurp the powers which they did not possess before. Sec. 224 deals with the administrative functions of the High Court and it does not affect the powers conferred upon the High Courts by the Letters Patent and the Charter Act, powers co-extensive with those of the Court of the King's Bench in England, including the power to issue writs of certiorari in respect of proceedings of Subordinate Courts, tribunals or officers acting judicially. 41 Bom.L.R. 984=1939 Bom. 471. The word "judgment" as used in sec. 224 of the Government of India Act is used in the English sense and embraces an order in the same way as the word "judgments" used in the Letters Patent include not only judgments as understood by the C. P. Code in India, but also all final orders. 1940 N.L.J. 93.

REVISION—INHERENT POWERS OF HIGH COURT.—Outside the statutory provisions, e.g., sec. 224, Government of India Act and sec. 115, C. P. Code, no High Court has any inherent powers of revision over the Subordinate Courts within its jurisdiction, such for example as the Court of King's Bench in England has for centuries exercised over Courts inferior to itself. 1938 O.W.N. 513=A.I.R. 1938 F.C. 1. See also supra. W. 513 (Revision of order under sec. 36, Legal Practitioners' Act). Sec. 224 (2) limits the High Court's power to question judgments of inferior Courts to those given under the ordinary law. Hence High Court cannot entertain a revision from an interlocutory order which is not a decided case. 40 P.L.R. 775=1938 Lah. 442.

POWER OF NAGPUR HIGH COURT TO ISSUE WRIT OF CERTIORARI.—The High Courts in India other than the chartered High Courts have not the power to issue the prerogative writ of certiorari either under the Letters Patent or the Government of India Act. Sec. 224 (2) of the Government of India Act denies the Nagpur High Court jurisdiction to question any judgment of any inferior Court which is not otherwise subject to appeal or revision. This would preclude that Court from issuing a writ of certiorari in respect of the acts of any public authority even though they are judicial as opposed to merely administrative acts. I.L.R. (1941) Nag. 397=1941 Nag. 282. An order passed by a Village Headman under sec. 10 of Regulation XI of 1916 is not subject to appeal or revision. Sec. 224 (2) of the Government of India Act of 1935 excludes the High Court's jurisdiction in such cases. 1940 Mad. 183=50 L.W. 799=1939 M.W.N. 1223. The superintendence given to the High Court under sec. 224 (1) cannot be construed as giving to the High Court any jurisdiction to question any judgment of any inferior Court which is not otherwise subject to appeal or revision. Neither sec. 224 nor sec. 439, Cr. P. Code, will enable the High Court to expunge passages or remarks made by the trial Court against a witness in a judgment of acquittal at the instance of the witness concerned when the judgment is not under appeal or revision. 194 I.C. 248=1941 P.W. N. 534=1941 Pat. 544. The combined effect of secs. 224 (1) (a) and 231 (2) is that so far as the Punjab is concerned, rules framed and tables settled by the Lahore High Court come into force on the date when they are approved by the Governor of the Punjab, but, in Delhi, they receive their validity on the date on which they are approved by the Governor-General. 1941 Lah. 450.

SECS. 225-227.—Under sec. 225 if, on application, a High Court is satisfied that a case pending in an inferior Court, being a case which the High Court has power to transfer to itself for trial, involves or is likely to involve the question of invalidity of any Federal or Provincial Act, it is to exercise that power. [Sec. 225, cl. (1).] An application for this purpose is not to be made except, in relation to a Federal Act, by the Advocate-General for the Federation and, in relation to a Provincial Act, by the Advocate-General for the Federation or the Advocate-General for the Province. The purpose of this section was to minimise the inconvenience caused by the possibility of an Act being challenged as ultra vires. Until otherwise provided by Act of the appropriate Legislature no High Court will have any original jurisdiction in any matter concerning the revenue or concerning any Act ordered or done in its collection. [Sec. 226, cl. (1).] As in the case of the Federal Court, all proceedings in every High Court will be in the English language (sec. 227).

SEC. 226.—(Cf. sec. 106, Old Government of India Act, 1915). See 50 M. 449=53 M. L.J. 335; 45 M.L.J. 592 (P.C.). Sub-sec. (1) of sec. 226 draws a distinction between a "matter concerning the revenue" and a "matter concerning any act ordered or done in the collection thereof according to the usage and practice of the country or the law for the time being in force". It treats them as separate things. According to sec. 226 (1) any matter concerning the revenue is placed without any qualification outside the Original Jurisdiction of the High Court; but only such matters concerning the "collection" of the revenue are placed beyond the jurisdiction of a High Court as are "ordered or done according to the usage or practice of the country or the law for the time being in force". It is, therefore, a condition precedent to the ousting of the jurisdiction of a High Court in a case concerning any act ordered or done merely in the collection of revenue (as opposed to an act or order concerning the revenue itself) that the act or order should be one done or ordered in accordance with the usage and practice of the country or the law for the time being in force. Before sec. 226 comes into play at all in relation to an act ordered or done in the collection of the revenue, it has necessarily first to be determined whether the act or order in question is one which was ordered or done "according to . . . the law for the time being in force". The law for the time being in force concerning any particular matter, whether it be the collection of the revenue or anything else, is a comprehensive expression which includes, not one particular statute but the whole body of law, whether in one or more statutes or outside a statute altogether, which for the time being governs the particular matter. Sec. 226

(1) does not preclude a High Court in a matter concerning any act ordered or done in the collection of the revenue, as opposed to an act or order concerning the revenue itself, from inquiring whether that act has been ordered or done according to the law for the time being in force, in the sense of being in the exercise, or purported exercise, of a method of recovery which the law applicable to the circumstances allows. The assessment of a company to income-tax was actually made after the company had been ordered to be compulsorily wound up though the assessment was based on the profits made prior thereto. I.L.R. See (1946) F.L.J. 29=(1946) 1 M.L.J. 415 (F.C.). The question whether the Urban Immovable Property Tax imposed by the Bombay Finance Act of 1932 as amended in 1939, Part VI, can be raised by the municipal authorities in the manner provided is a matter concerning the revenue, and therefore the jurisdiction of the High Court to determine the question is barred by sec. 226. I.L.R. (1940) Bom. 58=3 F.L.J. (H.C.) 25=42 Bom.L.R. 10=1940 Bom. 65 (F.B.). Under sec. 226 (1) the High Court has no original jurisdiction to entertain a suit challenging the legality of an order for confiscation of smuggled goods passed under the Sea Customs Act as the seizure and confiscation of the goods is an act ordered or done in the collection of revenue. No irregularity of procedure and no error in the conclusions arrived at can per se exclude the application of this section, when there is no allegation that the Officer of Customs directed the confiscation of the goods mala fide, or in the exercise of powers conferred on him by Sea Customs Act in circumstances to which he knew the provisions of the Act were not applicable. 3 Fed.L.J. (H.C.) 50=I.L.R. (1939) 1 Cal. 257=42 C.W.N. 445=1939 Cal. 763. See also I.L.R. (1939) 2 Cal. 541=1940 Cal. 174. The adjudication of the penalty under the Sea Customs Act is an adjudication of a matter concerning the revenue and its collection is an act ordered in the collection of revenue according to the usage and practice of the country or the law for the time being in force within the meaning of sec. 226 (1). The High Court has therefore no jurisdiction to entertain a suit to recover back the penalty. 42 Bom.L.R. 532=1940 Bom. 29. Even assuming that it is correct to say that the motive of Government in instituting and maintaining the Court of Wards was to safeguard estates from mismanagement and consequent inability to pay revenue, that is no justification for saying that an order of the Court of Wards declaring a female, a disqualified proprietor is a matter 'concerning revenue or an act done in collection thereof' within the meaning of sec. 226 (1) of the Government of India Act. I.L.R. (1938) 1 Cal. 476=42 C.W.N. 230=1938 Cal. 385. It is not open to the High Court, in view of sec. 226, to issue a writ of certiorari to challenge the validity of an income-tax assessment purporting to be made under the Income-tax Acts. I.L.R. As to suit to recover money paid as income-tax as result of assessment and demand under provision of law contended to be invalid, see (1944) Fed.L.J. 131. Derbyshire, C.J., and Mitter, J. (Lodge, J., dissenting).—The word "revenue" in sec. 226, must be taken to mean what is revenue according to law, i.e., "legal revenue" and not illegal exactions. A suit to recover money paid as a result of the assessment and demand for income-tax, which is demanded under an invalid provision of law is not a suit "concerning revenue" within the meaning of sec. 226. It is not money paid under the law but an illegal exaction. It is money paid as the result of a demand made without legal authority and is money illegally obtained and held to the use of the plaintiff (who paid it), and there is therefore no bar under sec. 226 to the High Court exercising original jurisdiction concerning it in the suit for recovery of the same. The suit does not concern revenue in the sense used in sec. 226, i.e., legal revenue. 6 F.L.J. (H.C.) 133=1943 Comp. C. 265=I.L.R. (1944) 1 Cal. 34. The expression "the revenue" in sec. 106 (2) of the Government of India Act (1915) does apply to the stamp duty payable under the Indian Stamp Act and such stamp duty does fall within the terms of the section. Where the contention is that the stamp authorities are not entitled to charge any particular stamp duty, it must be a "matter concerning the revenue" within the meaning of sec. 106 (2), and any act ordered to be done in the collection of the revenue would likewise be a matter concerning the revenue. An act done by the revenue authorities for the purpose of collecting the revenue which they consider to be properly leviable in accordance with law is an act done in accordance with law and can never give rise to any cause of action against the officers of the Secretary of State. The High Court has no jurisdiction to entertain a suit in such a matter by reason of the bar imposed by sec. 106 (2), and the public have no remedy against what may turn out to be a wrong and arbitrary decision of the stamp authorities with regard to the payment of duty chargeable in respect of any particular document, save and except the somewhat doubtful remedy provided by sec. 56 of the Stamp Act. (1) The administrative expenses of a High Court, including all salaries, allowances and pensions payable to or in respect of the officers and servants of the Court and the salaries and allowances of the judges of the Court shall be charged upon the revenues of the Province, and any fees or other moneys taken by the Court shall form part of those revenues.

(2) The Governor shall exercise his individual judgment as to the amount to be included in respect of such expenses as aforesaid in any estimates of expenditure laid by him before the legislature.

229. (1) His Majesty, if the Chamber or Chambers of the legislature of any Province present an address in that behalf to the Governor of the Province for submission to His Majesty, may by letters patent constitute a High Court for that Province or any part thereof or reconstitute in like manner any existing High Court for that Province or for any part thereof, or, where there are two High Courts in that Province, amalgamate those Courts.

(2) Where any Court is reconstituted, or two Courts are amalgamated, as aforesaid, the letters patent shall provide for the continuance in their respective offices of the existing judges, officers and servants of the Court or Courts, and for the carrying on before the reconstituted Court or the new Court of all pending matters, and may contain such other provisions as may appear to His Majesty to be necessary by reason of the reconstitution or amalgamation.

230. (1) His Majesty in Council may, if satisfied that an agreement in that behalf has been made between the Governments concerned, extend the jurisdiction of a High Court in any Province to any area in British India not forming part of that Province, and the High Court shall thereupon have the same jurisdiction in relation to that area as it has relation to any other area in relation to which it exercises jurisdiction.

(2) Nothing in this section affects the provisions of any law or letters patent in force immediately before the commencement of Part III of this Act empowering any High Court to exercise jurisdiction in relation to more than one Province or in relation to a Province and an area not forming part of any Province.

(3) Where a High Court exercises jurisdiction in relation to any area or areas outside the Province in which it has its principal seat, nothing in this Act shall be construed—

(a) as empowering the legislature of the Province in which the Court has its principal seat to increase, restrict or abolish that jurisdiction; or

(b) as preventing the legislature having power to make laws in that behalf for any such area from passing such laws with respect to the jurisdic-

Indian Legislature. The Provincial Legislature even with previous sanction of the Governor-General cannot by reason of sec. 80-A (4) of the Act affect, curtail or extend the jurisdiction and powers of the High Court, and if it passes such a piece of legislation, it would be ultra vires. SEC. 230.—This clause reproduces substantially sec. 109 of the existing Act. It provides that where the High Court exercises jurisdiction in relation to an area outside the Province in which it has its principal seat, then the Bill shall not be interpreted as empowering the legislature of the Province to increase or restrict the jurisdiction of the Court or prevent the legislature from having power to make laws for that area. The legislature having power to make laws for the area can pass laws in regard to the jurisdiction of the Court. (Parl. Deb., Vol. 300, No. 71, 2nd April, 1935, Col. 297. (2) Where a High Court exercises jurisdiction in relation to more than one Province or in relation to a Province and an area not forming part of a Province, references in this chapter to the Governor in relation to the judges and expenses of a High Court and references to the revenues of the Province shall be construed as references to the Governor and the revenues of the Province in which the Court has its principal seat, and the reference to the approval by the Governor of rules, forms and tables for subordinate Courts shall be construed as a reference to the approval thereof by the Governor of the Province in which the subordinate Court is situate, or, if it is situate in an * * * area not forming part of a Province, by the Governor-General.

CHAPTER II.

CIVIL SERVICES.

General Provisions.

240. (1) Except as expressly provided by this Act, every person who is a member of a civil service of the Crown in India, or holds any civil post under the Crown in India holds office during His Majesty's pleasure.

Sec. 240: Tenure of Office of Civil Servants. This section reproduces in substance the provisions of sec. 96-B of the Government of India Act, 1919. The slight variations in the language of the opening words of this section compared with the old section serve to emphasise that the tenure of all civil services is at pleasure, if ever it was open to doubt. The use of the words "subject to the provisions of this Act and the rules made thereunder" before specifying the tenure gave rise to the argument in Venkata Rao v. Secretary of State, (1937) 1 M.L.J. 529=64 I.A. 55, that the Statute gave servants of the Crown a right enforceable by action to hold office in accordance with the rules and that they could only be dismissed as provided by the rules and in accordance with the procedure prescribed thereby. Their Lordships of the Judicial Committee negatived this contention observing: "Sec. 96-B in express terms states that office is held at pleasure. There is therefore no need for the implication of this term and no room for its exclusion. The argument, for a limited and special kind of employment during pleasure but with an added contractual term that the rules are to be observed is at once too artificial and too far-reaching to commend itself for acceptance". (See Venkata Rao v. Secretary of State, (1937) 1 M.L.J. 529 (535)=64 I.A. 55). The omission of those words from the section makes it clear that the tenure is an unqualified one at pleasure. The exceptions provided for in the opening words relate to the offices of Judges of the High Courts and the Federal Court, and of the Auditor-General of India and the Auditor-General of Home Accounts whose tenure of office is during good behaviour and who are removable only on the ground of misbehaviour or infirmity of mind or body if the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council on reference being made to them by His Majesty report that the official ought on any such ground to be removed. It is a fundamental principle, based on public policy, that the Crown should have the unfettered discretion to remove a public servant at pleasure, and even a contract to engage him for a fixed term, if there be no statute law authorising it, would not be available to him, such a contract being void as against public policy. This power to dismiss at will can only be controlled by a statute but cannot be abridged or controlled by rules or regulations of service even if those rules or regulations are framed under powers given by a statute. Consequently, the dismissal or discharge of a civil servant in violation of the Fundamentals Rules would not entitle him to an appeal to the Civil Court but would leave him to appeal only to the administrative authorities. 42 C.W.N. 1186=68 C.L.J. 320=1938 Cal. 759. See also 46 L.W. 242=1937 Mad. 777. A servant of the Crown in India holds his appointment at the pleasure of the Crown and is liable to dismissal at the will and pleasure of the Crown, notwithstanding a contract to the contrary, unless the Crown has deprived itself of its prerogative in some way expressly recognised by law, nor can an action for wrongful dismissal be entertained even though a special contract be proved. A refusal to employ a person to whom employment has been offered does not stand on a different footing, because the power to dismiss an employee at pleasure involves the power to refuse to employ a person accepting an offer of employment. 39 Bom.L.R. 807=1937 Bom. 449. The words 'subject to the rules' appearing in sec. 96-B of Government of India Act, are not superfluous and ineffective. The section contains a statutory and solemn assurance that the tenure of office held by servants of the Crown though at pleasure, will not be subject to capricious or arbitrary action but will be regulated by rule. The provisions for appeal in the rules are made pursuant to the principle so laid down. Redress therefore in such cases is not obtainable from the Courts by action. It is so even where there has been serious and complete failure to adhere to important and fundamental rules, as for instance in the case of a person who has been dismissed from service without any investigation into the charge. The remedy of the person aggrieved does not lie by a suit in Court but by way of appeal of official kind. 64 I.A. 55=I.L.R. (1937) Mad. 532=1937 P.C. 31=(1937) 1 M.L.J. 529 (P.C.). Although by virtue of sec. 96-B, a statutory right is created between the Crown and the servant, it is not to be implied that any provisions in Statute 23 of 1871, repugnant to the terms of the Statute creating such right are repealed or rendered inapplicable to such a case. Statute of 1919 does not confer right of action to enforce the rules made thereunder. I.L.R. (1937) Mad. 517=64 I.A. 40=41 C.W.N. 545=1937 P.C. 27=(1937) 1 M.L.J. 515 (P.C.). In a case in which after Government officials, duly competent and duly authorised in that behalf, arrived honestly at one decision, their successors in office after the decision has been acted upon and is in effective operation, cannot purport to enter upon a reconsideration of the matter and to arrive at another and totally different decision. Where a Sub-Inspector of Police was granted an invalid pension by a competent authority and thus duly ceased to be in service, and the officer succeeding the authority, which had granted the pension, reconsidered the matter and ordered his removal from the service. Held, that the servant had suffered a wrong and therefore had every right to complain of the stoppage of pension as a breach of rules relating to pensions. 64 I.A. 40=I.L.R. (1937) Mad. 517=1937 P.C. 27=(1937) 1 M.L.J. 515 (P.C.). R. 55 of the Civil Services (Classification, Control and Appeal) Rules, which provides for the case of a departmental inquiry into charges against a Government servant who is subject to the rule, contains a safeguard to the effect that none of the graver penalties—dismissal, removal or reduction—which the authority concerned is empowered to inflict can be imposed upon the person charged unless he has been given an adequate opportunity of defending himself. But the rule does not state that the authority concerned shall itself hold the inquiry. The authority is competent under the rule to depute some subordinate officer to hold the inquiry. The purpose of the rule is to enable a Government servant to defend himself when his conduct is the subject of a charge which is to be departmentally investigated. And so long as the conditions of the rule are followed, there is nothing prejudicial to the Government servant in the circumstance that the inquiry is held not by the authority itself which imposes the punishment but by some subordinate officer deputed by that authority for the purpose. 1937 M.W.N. 821=46 L.W. 531=1937 Mad. 735=(1937) 2 M.L.J. 189. See also 1937 Oudh 209; 44 C.W.N. 79=71 C.L.J. 95. In so far as the provisions of R. 55 of the Civil Services Rules are not inconsistent with anything contained in sec. 240, Government of India Act, 1935, the enquiry, should be in substantial compliance with the provisions of R. 55. So long as the servant knows all the charges against him, and the enquiry into these charges has been held in such a manner that he has reasonable opportunity to defend himself and has not been prejudiced or misled in the matter of his defence, the enquiry is competent. A.I.R. 1944 Lah. 240. The stipulation or proviso as to dismissal in sec. 96-B is itself of statutory force and stands on a footing quite other than any matters of rule which are of infinite variety and can be changed from time to time. This statutory safeguard should be observed with the utmost care and a deprivation of pension based upon a dismissal purporting to be made by an official, who is prohibited by statute from making it, rests upon an illegal and improper foundation. 64 I.A. 40=I.L.R. (1937) Mad. 517=39 Bom.L.R. 688=41 C.W.N. 545=45 L.W. 139=1937 P.C. 27=(1937) 1 M.L.J. 515 (P.C.). The Provincial Government can make enquiry into the conduct of an officer serving in the Province even though he belongs to the Indian Civil Service. 1944 Lah. 240. Where a civil servant was placed on suspension till a criminal case against him was finally decided and on his conviction by the Magistrate was dismissed from service but on his acquittal in appeal, the order of dismissal from service was cancelled and he was discharged from service, a month's pay being given in lieu of notice, the said payment does not amount to reinstatement, and he cannot, therefore, under R. 54, Part III of the Fundamental Rules, claim full pay for the whole period of suspension. 42 C.W.N. 1186=68 C.L.J. 320=1938 Cal. 759. See also 218 I.C. 11; 4 F.L.J. (H.C.) 400. A suit for damages for wrongful dismissal by a Government servant is not maintainable owing to the provisions of sec. 240 of the Government of India Act. to hold his office according to the rules framed by the Government for members of his service and to have it terminated only in accordance with those rules. Where the plaintiff, a clerk in a subordinate Court of justice, was dismissed from service and he thereupon brought a suit against the Government for damages for wrongful dismissal. Held, that the duties carried out by the plaintiff and by his superior officers were part of the machinery for carrying on the administration of justice in exercise of sovereign powers and therefore the suit was not maintainable. 4 F.L.J. (H.C.) 400. Although a Government servant who has been dismissed is not entitled to any relief by way of damages for wrongful dismissal, the Court is not precluded from granting him a decree in respect of arrears of salary as the arrears of salary are not damages. 1945 N.L.J. 216=1945 Nag. 190 =I.L.R. (1945) Nag. 469. The general rule which is expressly recognised by sec. 240 of the Act, and which exists independently of statute, is that Government servants hold office during His Majesty's pleasure, which means in effect at the pleasure of Government. That implies the power to dismiss and includes also the power to require a Government servant to retire at any time on pension. This rule does not apply in the case of employees of local bodies, and in the case of the discharge or dismissal of an employee of a local body a cause of action for damages for wrongful dismissal would arise when there has been a breach of any provision, whether contained in a statute or a rule made under the statute, which may fairly be regarded as forming one of the conditions of service and affecting the tenure of office of the employee. But the result of sec. 8 (2) of the Bombay Primary Education Act is that a local authority which has taken over and employed a primary school teacher employed under the Educational Department of the Government has all the powers of the Government including the power to terminate the service of an employee at pleasure, subject only to the recognised statutory exceptions. Where the chairman of a School Board acting under the powers delegated by and with the sanction of the local authority compulsorily retires an employee before the latter reaches the age of fifty-five, the latter has no right of action for damages against the School Board. I.L.R. (1943) Bom. 411=45 Bom.L.R. 480=A.I.R. 1943 Bom. 268. See also 200 I.C. 414. A servant of the Crown who is dismissed from service has no cause of action against the Crown, although the dismissal is by an authority subordinate to the one who appointed him and is, therefore, made in contravention of the very terms of the Government of India Act. A mere declaration by the Civil Court that the dismissal is illegal and that the servant is fit to be reinstated to his post will not serve any useful purpose. Because he was illegally dismissed, it does not necessarily follow that he was a good officer or that he might not have been legally dismissed and justifiably dismissed on proper grounds and after a proper enquiry. 44 C.W.N. 79=71 C.L.J. 95. But see (1942) 1 M.L.J. 77. It cannot be said that since sec. 240 of the Act of 1935 had re-enacted with amendments sec. 96-B of the earlier Act (on which the appellant's cause of action was based) the Act of 1935 must pro tanto be regarded as retrospective, so that a Court which had founded its judgment on the provisions of sec. 96-B must in law be deemed to have been interpreting the provisions of sec. 240 of the Act of 1935, 1938 O.W.N. 1251=1938 F.C. 1. The field of action of a Province would include control over officers serving in the Province. Therefore the Provincial Government can make enquiry into the conduct of an officer serving in the Province even though he belongs to the Indian Civil Service. A.I.R. 1944 Lah. 240.

SECS. 240 (2) AND 243: DISMISSAL OF SUB-INSPECTOR OF POLICE BY AUTHORITY SUBORDINATE TO THAT WHICH APPOINTED HIM—SUIT TO DECLARE DISMISSAL VOID.—A Sub-Inspector of Police appointed by I. G. of Police was dismissed by the Deputy I. G. of Police. After an unsuccessful appeal against such dismissal to the I. G. and the Provincial Government the dismissed officer filed a suit to declare his dismissal void on the ground among others that his dismissal by authority subordinate to that which appointed him was opposed to sec. 240 (2) of the Government of India Act. On a preliminary issue it was held that the plaintiff had no remedy by civil action and it was upheld by the appellate Court. On appeal to the Federal Court, it was held that sub-sec. (2) of sec. 240 contained a statutory prohibition to the effect that no officer-holder shall be dismissed from service by any authority subordinate to that by which he was appointed, and that the section had been enacted in unqualified terms and the protection thus afforded could not be qualified or taken away by statutory rules. Held, further, that the plaintiff was entitled to invoke the aid of sec. 240 (2) and that sec. 243 had not the effect of depriving him of the benefit of sub-sec. (2) of sec. 240. It was also held that the dismissal by the I. G. of the appeal against the order of dismissal by the Deputy I. G. was not equivalent to a dismissal from office by the I. G. Under the circumstances their Lordships thought it best to say, that the plaintiff was at least entitled to a declaration that the order of dismissal passed against him was void and inoperative and that the Courts below were not justified in dismissing the suit as wholly unsustainable. (1942) 1 M.L.J. 77=A.I.R. 1942 F.C. 3=46 C.W.N. (F.R.) 1=I.L.R. (1942) Lah. 962. But see 44 C.W.N. 79=71 C.L.J. 895, supra.

(3) No such person as aforesaid shall be dismissed or reduced in rank until he has been given a reasonable opportunity of showing cause against the action proposed to be taken in regard to him:

Provided that this sub-section shall not apply—

(a) where a person is dismissed or reduced in rank on the ground of conduct which has led to his conviction on a criminal charge; or

(b) where an authority empowered to dismiss a person or reduce him in rank is satisfied that for some reason, to be recorded by that authority in writing, it is not reasonably practicable to give to that person an opportunity of showing cause.

(4) Notwithstanding that a person holding a civil post under the Crown in India holds office during His Majesty's pleasure, any contract under which a person, not being a member of a civil service of the Crown in India, is appointed under this Act to hold such a post may, if the Governor-General, or, as the case may be, the Governor, deems it necessary in order to secure the services of a person having special qualifications, provide for the payment to him of compensation if before the expiration of an agreed period that post is abolished or he is, for reasons not connected with any misconduct on his part, required to vacate that post.

tor-General of Police after an enquiry both by an Inspector of Police and by a Superintendent of Police. On a contention that there was no legal dismissal and that no reasonable opportunity was given to him to show cause against his proposed dismissal. Held, that the Sub-Inspector was duly appointed to and confirmed in his post as Sub-Inspector by the Dy. I. G. of Police who could in the circumstances legally dismiss him. He has therefore no cause of action under sec. 240 (1) and (2). As an enquiry was carried out both by an Inspector and a Superintendent of Police before it was proposed to dismiss him, he had been given a reasonable opportunity of showing cause against his proposed dismissal. 214 I.C. 171=17 R.F.C. 19=48 C.W.N. (F.R.) 119=1944 A.W.R. (F.C.) 23=1944 O.A. (F.C.) 23=1944 M.W.N. 472=1944 A.L.J. 270=(1944) F.L.J. 160=A.I.R. 1944 F.C. 72=(1944) 1 M.L.J. 500 (F.C.). A decision that a particular officer does not deserve inclusion in the selection grade does not amount to the withholding of an 'increment or promotion' or in other words to the imposition of a penalty. The Government are not bound to select for inclusion in the 'selection grade' under the U. P. Civil (Judicial) Service Rules the senior most officer in the grade immediately below the 'selection grade,' or, for the matter of that, any other officer in the service. The decision of the question as to such inclusion rests entirely within the absolute discretion of the authority that has to select. No one has a right to be selected. A.I.R. 1943 All. 56. A member of the Provincial Judicial Service cannot, claim appointment to, or confirmation in the post of Sessions and Subordinate Judge or the post of District Judge as, a matter of right, merely because he has attained to a certain position in the order of seniority in the Provincial Judicial Service or because he has been called upon to officiate in one or both of those posts. 1942 A.W.R. (H.C.) 363=A.I.R. 1943 All. 56.

A person occupying any civil post under the Crown in India holds office during the pleasure of His Majesty and although according to rules he has a right of appeal if any injustice is done to him, and the Executive is expected to give him redress, he cannot bring a suit in order to question the finding of the superior authority in the matter. A suit for declaration is however competent when a person was dismissed from service by an officer subordinate in rank to the authority who has appointed him. 1943 Pesh. 90. When an action is brought under sub-sec. (8) of sec. 240 a declaration that the dismissal is void and inoperative cannot be given. The only relief which the Court can grant is a decree for damages for wrongful dismissal. 1946 F.L.J. 16=1946 M.W.N. 224=(1946) 1 M.L.J. 267.

REASONABLE OPPORTUNITY — JUDGE OF.—A Court of law alone and not the enquiry officer can say whether a servant has in fact been given a reasonable opportunity or not. The jurisdiction of the Courts can be ousted only if, as in the case of some recent emergency legislation, for high reasons of State power is expressly vested in an individual to decide how and when to do an act. A.I.R. 1944 Lah. 240.

AUTHORITY OF SECRETARY OF STATE TO REMOVE PERSON FROM I.C.S.—Sec. 240 contains provisions for the benefit of the members of a public service. The intention of Parliament is to protect the members of those services against arbitrary action by Government swayed by political majorities or even political bias. These provisions are a limitation on the power of the Crown to dismiss at pleasure and sub-sec. (4) deliberately curtails the common law right of the Crown. The Secretary of State has therefore no authority to remove a person from the I.C.S., if the enquiries are illegal or ultra vires. A.I.R. 1944 Lah. 240.

The Secretary of State as the appointing authority has authority to remove a person from the Indian Civil Service. The power to dismiss is not restricted to His Majesty under the Royal Sign Manual. But it is incumbent on the Secretary of State for India to hold an inquiry before removing the person from service. A.I.R. 1944 Lah. 240.

DEFECTS IN PROCEDURE—CUMULATIVE EFFECT HAMPERING OF DEFENCE.—A defect in procedure will not help the servant even if the enquiry be not in strict conformity with the Civil Service Rules. If however the cumulative effect of the various defects is the hampering the defence the enquiry would be bad. A.I.R. 1944 Lah. 240. The provisions of sec. 240, regarding notice and an opportunity to show cause are mandatory but in view of the proviso to that section, they do not apply to a case where a person is dismissed on the ground of conduct which has led to his conviction on a criminal charge. (1946) 1 M.L.J. 253. A failure to observe the rules by the Government will not give any jurisdiction to a Civil Court to entertain a suit for damages by a dismissed Government servant. In this connection it must be remembered that there is a distinction between a failure to comply with the terms of a statute and a failure merely to comply with the rules. 1946 A.L.W. 159 = 1946 O.W.N. (H.C.) 151. Where a Sub-Inspector was appointed by the Inspector-General, his dismissal by a Disciplinary Board which was subordinate to the Inspector-General is clearly bad and inoperative. A.I.R. 1943 Oudh. 368 = 19 Luck. 163. As to necessity for formal deed of agreement with Government see I.L.R. (1941) All. 741 = 197 II C. 390.

FURTHER ENQUIRY—LEGALITY.—As a matter of law, a further enquiry in continuation of a prior enquiry can be ordered. A.I.R. 1944 Lah. 240.

L, who was a member of the Indian Civil Service was informed that the Punjab Government had decided to hold a departmental enquiry under Rule 55 of the Civil Services (Classification, Control and Appeal) rules in to his conduct, and the copies of the charges framed against him were also enclosed. He was asked to furnish a written statement of his defence, which he did. An officer, S, was appointed to hold the departmental enquiry who after making an enquiry submitted his report to the Government. This report was not disclosed to L in spite of his repeated requests for a copy of it. The Government informed L that S who had held the preliminary enquiry was unable to complete it and that its completion had been entrusted to another officer, B. B informed L of this and asked the latter to arrange to meet him on a later date when all the available materials would be gone into. L took up the position that the enquiry against him was over and that if it was said to be incomplete, he might be given a copy of the report of S and the order of the Government thereon. The Government refused to give either and persisted in that attitude to the very end. Then L met B and after protesting that he was not being given adequate opportunity of defending himself as provided by Rule 55 of the Civil Service Regulation, stated what he had to say in his defence. B made his report which was sent on to the Federal Public Service Commission together with some findings and recommendations of the Punjab Government thereon for their consideration. The Punjab Government was later informed that the commission concurred in the views of that Government that L was unfit to be retained in the I.C.S. and that he be removed from service. L's removal from the I.C.S. was notified in the Gazette and he was informed of his removal and given a copy of the letter from the Federal Public Service Commission. After carrying on some correspondence with the Government in seeking to get redress, L finally filed a suit for a declaration that the order of his removal from the I.C.S. was not passed in due course of law and was wrongful, illegal and ultra vires of the Government. Held (Varadachariar, J. dissenting), that L was wrongfully dismissed from the Indian Civil Service. 49 O.W.N. (F.R.) 68 = A.I.R. (1945) F.C. 47 = 80 C.L.J. 48 = (1945) 2 M.L.J. 270 (F.C.).

Per Spens, C.J., (Zafulla Khan, J., concurring)—The power of the Secretary of State to dismiss, after the coming into operation of the Constitution Act of 1935, members of the Indian Civil Service, who were appointed by the Secretary of State in Council prior to the commencement of Part III of the Act, is implied in the Constitution Act and is not otherwise an exercise of the power of dismissal from one of His Majesty's services by the principal Secretary of State concerned in the proper constitutional manner in which the power of the crown should be exercised. The general rule of law is that except as otherwise provided by statute, servants of the crown hold their appointments at the pleasure of the crown. Where in the case of any particular servants of the crown, statutory limitations or qualifications on the right of dismissal are found in statutes in which the general rule is not expressly enacted but left to have operation, if at all, only by implication, it is possible for Courts to hold that those limitations and qualifications are mandatory and effective and breach of them gives rise to a cause of action. On the other hand, where such limitations and qualifications are found only in rules made under a statute, which whilst expressly enacting that servants of the crown hold office during His Majesty's pleasure also provides that such tenure is subject to the provisions of the rules made thereunder, none the less, breach of the provisions of such rule may afford no cause of action at all. Again it may also well be that any limitation or qualification on the power of the crown to dismiss its servants at will attempted to be imposed by contract or agreement between some authority purporting to contract on behalf of the Crown and that contract is not legally en-

Judges of the Federal Court and High Courts.

253. (1) The provisions of this chapter shall not apply to the judges of the Federal Court or of any High Court:

Provided that—

(a) for the purposes of this section a member of any of the civil services of the Crown in India who is acting temporarily as a judge of a High Court shall not be deemed to be a judge of that Court;

(b) nothing in this section shall be construed as preventing the Orders in Council relating to the salaries, leave and pensions of judges of the Federal Court, or of any High Court, from applying to such of those judges as were, before they were appointed judges, members of a civil service of the Crown in India, such of the rules relating to that service as may appear to His Majesty to be properly applicable in relation to them;

(c) nothing in this section shall be construed as excluding the office of judge of the Federal Court or of a High Court from the operation of the provisions of this chapter with respect to the eligibility for civil office of persons who are not British subjects.

(2) Any pension which under the rule in force immediately before the commencement of Part III of this Act was payable to or in respect of any person who, having been a judge of a High Court within the meaning of this Act or of the High Court at Rangoon, retired before the commencement of the said Part III, shall, notwithstanding anything in this Act or the Government of Burma Act, 1935, continue to be payable in accordance with those rules and shall be charged on the revenues of the Federation.

(3) Any liability of the Federation or of any Province to or in respect of any person who is, at the commencement of Part III of this Act, a judge of a High Court within the meaning of this Act, or to or in respect of any such person as is mentioned in sub-section (2) of this section, being a liability to pay a pension granted to or in respect of any such person or any other liability of such a nature as to have been enforceable in legal proceedings against the Secretary of State in Council if this Act had not been passed, shall, notwithstanding anything in this Act or the Government of Burma Act, 1935, be deemed, for the purposes of the provisions of Part VII of this Act relating to legal proceedings, to be a liability arising under a statute passed before the commencement of Part III of this Act.

254. (1) Appointments of persons to be, and the posting and promotion of, district judges in any Province shall be made by the Governor of the Province, exercising his individual judgment, and the High Court shall be consulted before a recommendation as to the making of any such appointment is submitted to the Governor.

(2) A person not already in the service of His Majesty shall only be eligible to be appointed a district judge if he has been for not less than five years a barrister, a member of the Faculty of Advocates in Scotland, or a pleader and is recommended by the High Court for appointment.

(3) In this and the next succeeding section, the expression "district judge" includes additional district judge, joint district judge, assistant district judge, chief judge of a small cause court, chief presidency magistrate, sessions judge, additional sessions judge, and assistant sessions judge.

forceable and will give to the servant no cause of action if in fact he be dismissed in breach of any such agreement. There is no reason to confine the construction of the opening words of sec. 240 of the Constitution Act "Except as expressly provided by this Act" to provisions of the Act outside sec. 240 itself. The words are apt enough to include a limitation or qualification on what follows in sub-sec. (1) by provisions found. 49 C.W.N. (F.R.) 63=A.I.R. 1945 F.C. 47=(1945) F.L.J. 129=(1945) 2 M.L.J. 270.

255. (1) The Governor of each Province shall, after consultation with the Subordinate civil judicial service. Provincial Public Service Commission and with the High Court, make rules defining the standard of qualifications to be attained by persons desirous of entering the subordinate civil judicial service of a Province.

In this section, the expression "subordinate civil judicial service" means a service consisting exclusively of persons intended to fill civil judicial posts inferior to the post of district judge.

(2) The Provincial Public Service Commission for each Province, after holding such examinations, if any, as the Governor may think necessary, shall from time to time out of the candidates for appointment to the subordinate civil judicial service of the Province, make a list or lists of the persons whom they consider fit for appointment to that service, and appointments to that service shall be made by the Governor from the persons included in the list or lists in accordance with such regulations as may from time to time be made by him as to the number of persons in the said service who are to belong to the different communities in the Province.

(3) The posting and promotion of, and the grant of leave to, persons belonging to the subordinate civil judicial service of a Province and holding any post inferior to the post of district judge, shall be in the hands of the High Court, but nothing in this section shall be construed as taking away from any such person the right of appeal required to be given to him by the foregoing provisions of this chapter, or as authorising the High Court to deal with any such person otherwise than in accordance with the conditions of his service prescribed thereunder.

256. No recommendation shall be made for the grant of magisterial powers or of enhanced magisterial powers to, or the withdrawal of any magisterial powers from, any person Subordinate criminal magistracy. save after consultation with the district magistrate which he is of the district in which he is working, or with the Chief Presidency Magistrate, as the case may be.

Of course in that event it might be found that the section had no application in the appointment of an honorary Magistrate or of a person to be a Magistrate who at the time when the recommendation was being made was not working anywhere. A.I.R. 1945 Cal. 488. When it is proposed to grant magisterial powers or enhanced magisterial powers to a person, the proper authority to be consulted in pursuance of the direction contained in sec. 256 is the District Magistrate of the District, in which the person concerned is working at the time when the recommendation is made, or the chief Presidency Magistrate if the person concerned is at the time working under him. The services of a Magistrate ~~are borrowed~~ from another province, and ~~are not~~ being placed at the disposal of the ~~Basal~~ Government, ~~as appointed~~ Additional Presidency Magistrate at Calcutta. On a contention that his appointment was made without consulting the Chief Presidency Magistrate Calcutta, and was therefore ineffective and inoperative. Held, that in the circumstances the consultation should have been made with the District Magistrate of the District in which the Magistrate concerned was working in his own province when the question of his appointment came under consideration. Held, further, that the direction laid down in sec. 256 was directory and not mandatory, and non-compliance with it would not render an appointment otherwise regularly and validly made ineffective or inoperative. done in the execution of his duty as a servant of the Crown in India or Burma before the relevant date, except with the consent, in the case of a person who was employed in connection with the affairs of the Government of India or the affairs of Burma, of the Governor-General in his discretion, and in the case of a person employed in connection with the affairs of a Province, of the Governor of that Province in his discretion.

SEC. 270: INDEMNITY FOR THE PAST.—

This section carries out the recommendations of the Joint Parliamentary Committee in Para. 283 of their Report. They stated: "The White Paper proposes that there shall be a full indemnity against civil and criminal proceedings in respect of all acts before the commencement of the Constitution Act done in good faith and done or purported to be done in the execution of duty. In view of threats which have been made in certain quarters, especially against the Police, we think that it is justifiable to give this measure of protection to men who have done no more than their duty in very difficult and trying circumstances." Explaining the section, it was stated in Parliament: "The section deals with past acts. It does not take the exact form of an indemnity, but it is an indemnity of a kind. As far as the future is concerned, obviously it would not be right to give what would appear to be in any sense an indemnity in advance. There are no doubt special circumstances which make it desirable to have something in the nature of an indemnity. In regard to the future, as I have indicated, obviously it would be very undesirable, and indeed wrong, to appear to be casting a cloak in advance irrespective of the type of charge that might be made." (Par. Deb. Vol. Col. 877.) In regard to the future protection is afforded by the next section, sec. 271.

SEC. 270 (1): APPLICABILITY—CONDITIONS:—In order to attract the provisions of sec. 270 (1) it is not sufficient merely to establish that the person proceeded against was a public servant. It must be further established that the act complained of was an official act. The section has no application where the act complained of was manifestly not done in the execution of the duties. 1946 N.L.J. 78. Sec. 270 applies only in respect of acts done before the relevant date defined in sub-sec. (3). Since Part III of the Act, came into force in 1937, the section cannot obviously apply to acts done or offences committed in July, 1944. 1945 P.W.N. 127; 1944 Nag. 337. As the prohibition contained in sec. 270 (1) is against the institution of proceedings itself, the applicability of the section must be judged at the earliest stage of institution. Where the complaint against a station-master was that he refused to issue tickets to the complainant on the ground that it was too late and behaved in an uncivil manner and showed furious temper and that on the complainant's representing such things the accused called out his coolies and ordered them to beat the complainant and that they and the accused also assaulted the complainant and his brother: Held, that it could not be held on the allegations in the complaint that the acts complained of can be regarded even as one "purporting to be done" by the accused in execution of his duty within the meaning of sec. 270 (1) of the Act. 1945 P.W.N. 512=(1945) F.L.J. 239. Sec. 270 (1) does apply to prosecutions of officers of the Central Services instituted during the transitional period under the Defence of India Rules, R. 81. 1944 F.L.J. 44=A.I.R. 1944 Lah. 51 (F.B.).

SECS. 270 AND 271: PROTECTION AFFORDED TO PUBLIC SERVANT—NATURE AND EXTENT OF.—Sec. 270 cannot be divorced from sec. 271 and the other provisions of the Act, and that being so, the criminal proceedings contemplated in that section are proceedings in the ordinary criminal Courts and not in Courts-martial convened under either the English Army Act or the Indian Army Act. The section is, therefore, not applicable to Courts-martial held under the Army Act in respect of British officer attached to the Indian Army, and the consent of the Governor-General is not necessary for his prosecution. 47 P. L. R. 423 (F.B.). Sec. 270 (1) applies not only to criminal proceedings, but also to the institution of civil proceedings. In the institution of criminal proceedings, the protection of public interest is the main object, and it may well be left to the Local Government to determine the question of the expediency of a prosecution from that point of view. But when a citizen seeks civil remedy against a public servant, the Legislature must be presumed to have been very cautious in depriving the aggrieved citizens of redress in a Court of law, and any restrictions on such a remedy imposed in the interest of the public servant should not be lightly extended so as to unduly restrict the remedy of the citizen. 50 L.W. 95=48 O.W.N. (F.C.B.) 50=2 Fed.L.J. 153=1939 F.C. 43=(1939) 2 M. L.J. (Supp.) 23. Sec. 270 is very wide in its terms and prohibits the initiation of proceedings in respect of the acts described therein against all servants of the Crown, employed in connexion with the affairs of the Province, whether they are "Gazetted Officers" or not. 184 I.C. 680=1939 Lah. 479.

Per Niyogi and Sen, JJ.—If, a Crown servant acts in his official capacity under the orders of his superior officer honestly thinking that it is his duty to obey him, he will be purporting to act in the execution of his duty even if his act is not justified or authorised by law, and he will be protected by sec. 270 (1) of the Act. I.L.R. (1944) Nag. 650=1944 F.L.J. 250=A.I.R. 1944 Nag.

Per Niyogi and Digby, JJ.—Sec. 270 (1) accords protection to servants of the Crown employed in connection with the affairs of the Government of India against proceedings instituted after that section came into force on the 1st April, 1937, in respect of acts done or purported to be done in execution of duty before the relevant date, although the relevant date has not been fixed by His Majesty under sec. 320 (1) of the Act. I.L.R. 1944 Nag. 650=A.I.R. 1944 Nag. 337. See also 1945 P.W.N. 127. The State could not be held liable for the improper conduct of public servants unless those acts had been done under the orders of the Government or had been subsequently adopted and ratified by it. (1944) 1 M.L.J. 399=48 C.W.N. (F.B.) 85=57 L. W. 410. It is quite obvious from a perusal of the various sections of Part X of the Government of India Act that crown servants include the subordinate as well as the superior civil services and there is no warrant for holding that the chapter in general and sec. 270 in particular apply only to the case of the superior civil services. A member of the Bombay Subordinate Medical Services is a servant of the crown and doing duty as such within the meaning of sec. 270, and therefore the consent of the Governor is necessary for his prosecution in respect of an act done by him in the execution of his duty as a servant of the crown. I.L.R. (1938) Bom. 770=40 Bom. L.R. 825=1938 Bom. 419. The words "in the execution of his duty" are not necessarily confined to a legal duty. Civil servants who are Medical Officers are obviously bound to obey the rule in the Medical Code made for the guidance of such officers and it is their duty to obey them. I.L.R. (1938) Bom. 770=40 Bom. L.R. 825=1938 Bom. 419. When the acts of the official trustee complained of are done during the course of administration of the trust as an ordinary trustee under sec. 77 (1) (a) of the Official Trustee's Act, the trust cannot be said to be done "in the execution of his duty as a servant of the Crown" and hence the consent of the Governor is not necessary in respect of a suit against such a trustee for breaches in respect of a private trust. 1940 Rang. L.R. 273=1940 Rang. 207. See also 49 C.W.N. (F.B.) 55=(1945) F.L.J. 44.

A plea of want of the requisite consent under sec. 270, is unsustainable in the case of a trial under the Criminal Law (Amendment) Ordinance, 1943, since the Governor-General has himself made and promulgated the Ordinance, for the express purpose of setting up tribunals for the trial of persons mentioned in the 1st Schedule thereto. 23 Pat. 457=1944 Pat. 373.

"NO PROCEEDINGS CIVIL OR CRIMINAL"—IF INCLUDE COURT MARTIAL PROCEEDINGS GENERALLY.—While it may be proper in certain contexts to include Court Martial proceedings in the phrase criminal proceedings, the ordinary primary meaning of the phrase "Civil or Criminal proceedings" is civil or criminal proceedings capable of being instituted under the ordinary law of the land and it cannot be held to include proceedings under military law unless there be a context which so indicates. There is no such context in sec. 270 or elsewhere in the Constitution Act. On the other hand, there are indications in the context against giving the phrase any meaning other than its ordinary primary meaning. There is nothing to be found in the wording of sec. 270 to make a difference between Court Martial proceedings based on acts which constitute purely military offences under the Army Act and in respect of which no charge under the ordinary criminal law could be based, and Court Martial proceedings based on acts in respect of which either military offences under the Army Act could be charged or ordinary criminal proceedings could be taken. I.L.R. (1945) Kar. (F.C.) 3=(1944) F.L.J. 265=58 L.W. 274=49 C.W.N. (F.B.) 28=1945 M.W.N. 110=79 C.L.J. 81=47 Bom.L.R. 981=A.I.R. 1945 F.C. 21=(1945) 1 M.L.J. 31; see also 47 P.L.R. 423.

"PURPORTING TO BE DONE"—MEANING OF.—TEST TO FIND OUT.—The words "purporting to be done" in sec. 270 (1), must be given their full meaning. Clearly, used in their context, they mean something more than "done". There must be something in the nature of the act complained of that attaches it to the official capacity of the person doing it. I.L.R. (1941) Kar. 328=4 F.L.J. (H.C.) 388=1941 Sind 204. Per Rowland, J. (Obiter).—If an act done by public officer is apparently an official act, its character, as such will not be changed by allegations that it was done in bad faith or that it had not that character which it purports to have. The applicability of the statute [sec. 270 (1)] depends on what the act purports to be and is not affected by any allegations that the apparent state of things is not the real one. The allegation that an official act was maliciously and corruptly done will not derogate from its official character if it had that character, and what applies to the attribution of malice or corrupt motive in the mind of a single officer applies no less where the same malice is attributed to him jointly with others. The taking of cognizance of an offence on complaint, by a sub-divisional officer, whether done in good or bad faith, is clearly an official act of that officer, purporting to be done in the execution of his duty as a Magistrate. It is an act which he cannot do in any other capacity and one without which there can be no institution of a criminal proceeding and it can form no foundation for a suit against him. 20 Pat. 417=(1941) P.W.N. 225=1941 Pat. 385.

CHARGE UNDER SECS. 409 AND 477-A, I.P.

CODE, AGAINST PUBLIC SERVANT—CONSENT OF GOVERNOR.—The consent of the Governor would be prima facie necessary in respect of the latter charge. The question whether or not the particular act complained of is one "purporting to be done in execution of his duty" as a public servant is substantially one of fact, to be determined with reference to the act complained of and to the attendant circumstances. 1939 P.W.N. 429=50 L.W. 95=43 C.W.N. (F.C.R.) 50=I.L.R. (1940) Lah. 400=(1939) 2 M.L.J. (Supp.) 23. See also 1941 Sind 204. The offence under sec. 408 or sec. 409, I. P. C., is not one in respect of which the protection of sec. 270 of the Government of India Act can be claimed. 49 C.W.N. (F.B.) 55=(1945) F.L.J. 44 (F.C.). 79 C.L.J. 275=(1945) 1 M.L.J. 371 (F.C.). See also 1942 A.M.L.J. 73. (Theft of Government property). To attract the provision of sec. 270 (1) it is not sufficient merely to establish that the person proceeded against was a public servant and that while acting as a public servant, or taking advantage of his position as a public servant, he did certain acts; it must be established that the act complained of was an official act. The act of receiving illegal gratification could not be an act done or purporting to be done in the execution of duty, and the conviction of a station master by a special tribunal of an offence under sec. 161, I.P.C. is not bad for want of consent of the Governor-General under sec. 270 (1). 23 Pat. 517=48 C.W.N. S. 270 of the Government of India Act is intended to protect public servants for acts committed before the relevant date in respect of which proceedings may be started against them. The motive with which the acts are done is immaterial. What has to be looked at is that the offence must be in respect of an act done or purported to be done in execution of a duty, i.e., in the discharge of an official duty. Plaintiff brought a suit claiming damages against two defendants who were Income-tax Officers, the 1st defendant being the superior officer of the 2nd

(2) Any civil or criminal proceedings instituted, whether before or after the coming into operation of this Part of this Act, against any person in respect of any act done or purporting to be done in the execution of his duty as a servant of the Crown in India or Burma before the relevant date shall be dismissed unless the Court is satisfied that the acts complained of were not done in good faith, and, where any such proceedings are dismissed, the costs incurred by the defendant shall, in so far as they are not recoverable from the persons instituting the proceedings, be charged, in the case of persons employed in connection with the functions of the Governor-General in Council or the affairs of Burma, on the revenues of the Federation, and in the case of persons employed in connection with the affairs of a Province, on the revenues of that Province.

(3) For the purposes of this section—

the expression "the relevant date" means, in relation to acts done by persons employed about the affairs of a Province or about the affairs of Burma, the commencement of Part III of this Act and, in relation to acts done by persons employed about the affairs of the Federation, the date of the establishment of the Federation;

references to persons employed in connection with the functions of the Governor-General in Council include references to persons employed in connection with the affairs of any Chief Commissioner's Province;

a person shall be deemed to have been employed about the affairs of a Province if he was employed about the affairs of the Province as constituted at the date when the act complained of occurred or is alleged to have occurred.

defendant, alleging that the 2nd defendant purporting to act under the orders of the 1st defendant trespassed into the plaintiff's premises and took away all the plaintiff's account books wrongfully against his will and consent. The defendants raised a preliminary point that the suit was not maintainable without the consent of the Governor-General under sec. 270 of the Government of India Act. Held, that the acts alleged against the defendants were so closely connected with their position as Income-tax Officers as to make it impossible to say that they were not the kind of acts which are contemplated under the section, and sec. 270 of the Government of India Act operated as a bar to suit in the absence of the consent of the Governor-General. 1942 I. A suit for damages for wrongful arrest alleged to have been made by police officers (servants of the Crown) falls within the ambit of sec. 270 (2) of the Act, and the onus of proving want of bona fides in making the arrest would lie on the plaintiff and it is not for the defendants to prove bona fides. 55 L.W. 611 (1)=1942 F.L.J. (H.C.) 185=(1942) 2 M.L.J. 417. Where the charges against certain servants of the Crown not only stated that the alleged criminal acts were done by them while they were engaged in the execution of their duties as such servants but they also shewed that their official capacity was involved in the acts complained of as amounting to a crime. Held, that the consent prescribed in sec. 270, was required for initiating proceedings against them. 184 I.C. 680=1939 Lah. 479. Under the rules framed by the Governor of the Punjab it is not required that orders passed by the Governor must be signed by a particular secretary. Hence a signature by the Home Secretary on a consent under sec. 270 is in order and the transmission of the consent by him is valid. 184 I.C. 680=1939 Lah. 479. Where the consent is stated to have been granted by the Governor of a Province and there is no indication that in doing so the Governor was acting with his Ministers, it must be presumed that he granted it in his discretion." 184 I.C. 680=1939 Lah. 479. Under sec. 270, the consent of a Governor is a condition precedent to the institution of the proceedings, and the necessity for such consent cannot be made to depend upon the case, which the accused or the defendant may put forward after the proceedings have been instituted, but must be determined with reference to the nature of the allegations made against the public servant in the suit or criminal proceeding. 43 C.W.N. (F.C.R.) 50=2 Fed.L.J. 153=1939 F.C. 43=I.L.R. (1940) Lah. 400=(1939) 2 M.L.J. (Supp.) 23. In cases to which sec. 270 of the Constitution Act applies, the words of the section require that if proceedings be instituted before sanction under the section is obtained, such proceedings are wholly void and new proceedings must be instituted after the sanction is obtained. 49 C.W.N. (F.R.) 55=(1945) F.L.J. 44 (F.C.).

271. (1) No Bill or amendment to abolish or restrict the protection afforded to certain servants of the Crown in India by section one hundred and ninety-seven of the Indian Code of Criminal Procedure, or by section eighty to eighty-two of the Indian Code of Civil Procedure, shall be introduced or moved in either Chamber of the Federal Legislature without the previous sanction of the Governor-General in his discretion, or in a Chamber of a Provincial Legislature without the previous sanction of the Governor in his discretion.

=1945 F.C. 24=(1945) 1 M.L.J. 571. The provisions of sub-sec. (1), sec. 270 are mandatory, and admit of no reservation or exception. They contain a positive prohibition against the institution of civil and criminal proceedings against the persons described in the section in respect of the acts mentioned, without such consent. In other words, the Government's consent is an essential pre-requisite to the competency of the Court to entertain the proceedings. It is the very foundation of the Court's jurisdiction, and its absence renders the entire proceedings void ab initio. Such an illegality cannot be cured under sec. 537, Cr.P.Code, even when no prejudice has been shown to have been caused. Where therefore the institution of proceedings is illegal for want of consent, but those proceedings are transferred to another Court which begins with the case affectu, subsequent production of consent even though it is before the commencement of the trial de novo, cannot validate what was invalid at its inception. 184 I.C. 680=1939 Lah. 479=I.L.R. (1940) Lah. 102=42 P. L.R. 51.

Per Jes. J.—If an objection is raised at an early stage before any evidence is led that the prosecution against the Crown servant is not maintainable for want of requisite consent under sec. 270 (1) of the Government of India Act, it has to be decided on the allegations in the charge sheet. But where the objection is taken in appeal after the trial has been concluded and judgment has been delivered by the trial Court, it is open to the appellate Court to decide the question on the findings arrived at by the trial Court. I.L.R. (1944) Nag. 650=1944 F.L.J. 250=1944 Nag. 337.

ACTS OF PUBLIC SERVANT DONE AFTER APRIL, 1937.—As part III of the Government of India Act came into force only in April, 1937, the act referred to in sec. 270 (1) of the Government of India Act, is an act done prior to April, 1937. Hence sec. 270 (1) can have no application to the acts of a public servant after April, 1937. 1940 O.W.N. 494=1940 Oudh 382=15 Luck. 740. [See also Notes under sec. 271 infra.]

Nor can any action be maintained against the Government for a tort committed by its servants if in passing the order in the performance of which the tort is committed the Government was discharging its Governmental functions as a sovereign. SUB-SEC. (1).—This applies to cases where in respect of acts done prior to the "relevant date" no proceedings had been started in Court against the official. The consent of the Governor or the Governor-General as the case may be "acting in his discretion" is constituted a condition precedent to the institution of the proceedings.

SUB-SEC. (2).—This deals with cases which had been already instituted and are pending in Court on the "relevant date". The Court is directed to dismiss the proceedings unless it is satisfied that the acts complained of were not done in good faith. The Joint Parliamentary Committee recommended that the certificate by the Governor or Governor-General as the case may be that the act was done in good faith, should be conclusive and binding on the Court; this has not been accepted and the matter has been left to the Courts to decide.

SEC 271: PROTECTION OF PUBLIC SERVANTS.—Speaking on this section the Solicitor-General said:—"In order to re-assure these officials, Indians just as much as British, who are anxious that there shall be no doubt that there is proper protection against vexatious and unjustifiable criminal proceedings, we propose to give the Governor or the Governor-General the last word. But it is most undesirable and entirely against the best interests of the services of India, or officials in any country where British ideas prevail, that you should give, or tend to give the impression that they are hedged off and

(2) The powers conferred upon a Local Government by the said section one hundred and ninety-seven with respect to the sanctioning of prosecutions and the determination of the Court before which, the person by whom and the manner in which, a public servant is to be tried, shall be exercisable only—

(a) in the case of a person employed in connection with the affairs of the Federation, by the Governor-General exercising his individual judgment; and

(b) in the case of a person employed in connection with the affairs of a Province, by the Governor of that Province exercising his individual judgment:

Provided that nothing in this sub-section shall be construed as restricting the power of the Federal or a Provincial Legislature to amend the said section by a Bill or amendment introduced or moved with such previous sanction as is mentioned in sub-section (1) of this section.

(3) Where a civil suit is instituted against a public officer, within the meaning of that expression as used in the Indian Code of Civil Procedure, in respect of any act purporting to be done by him in his official capacity, the whole or any part of the costs incurred by him and of any damages or costs ordered to be paid by him shall, if the Governor-General exercising his individual judgment so directs in the case of a person employed in connection with the affairs of the Federation, or if the Governor exercising his individual judgment so directs in the case of a person employed in connection with the affairs of a Province, be defrayed out of and charged on the revenues of the Federation or of the Province, as the case may be.

free to do as they like, and that no one can get at them. On the other hand, it is equally necessary, particularly in a country like India, that where there is a danger of their being harassed by vexatious or maliciously-motivated proceedings, they should be given fair and proper protection. After all, it not only causes mental anxiety, and so on, to a Magistrate; but is bad for the administration of law and justice if a Magistrate, because some person thinks he has a grievance, should be put into the dock and have to justify his action. "At present there is nothing to prevent a person issuing a writ or whatever may be the proper technical term in India, against an official for damages for some civil wrong which he alleges has been committed. I do not think it would be right as a permanent part of the Constitution, as it were, to impose a barrier, even though it be a discretionary barrier, between a member of the public and the official whom he is saying has invaded his private rights. After all, civil actions would extend to such cases as motor accidents; and they would extend no doubt to unjustified assaults. I suppose it might be possible to conceive a libel in which words might have been written or uttered in the course of carrying out official duties." "It is a great principle, and we do not wish to invade it, that if an ordinary member of the public has a wrong committed against him, be it by an official or a non-official person, he has the right to issue his writ and claim his redress in the Courts. We think it would be undesirable to put up, or even to attempt to put up, as a permanent part of the Constitution, a barrier in cases where persons are concerned. But it seems to us that what really affects an official who has a civil claim made against him is the question of costs and the question of any damages that he may have to pay." (Par. Deb., Vol. 300, Cols. 879 et seq.)

PROTECTION OF CROWN SERVANTS.—Sec. 124 of the Government of Burma Act purports to be a general indemnity to all servants of the Crown for acts committed in the execution of their duty as such before the commencement of the Act. The protection given by this section is in addition to the existing protection given by sec. 197 of the Cr. P. Code, 1938 Rang. L.B. 116=1938 Rang. 189. There is nothing in the Government of India Act of 1935, which imposes a legal obligation upon the Governor of a Province to consult his minister before sanctioning under sec. 196, Cr. P. Code, a prosecution for an offence under sec. 124-A, I.P. Code. There is no provision in the Act, which requires the Governor to consult his Ministers before performing executive acts. The instrument of instructions implies that he should consult his ministers, but he is not legally required to do so. In the case of a sanction for prosecution under sec. 196, Cr.P. Code, Governor is certainly not required to exercise his individual judgment; but that does not mean that in exercising his individual judgment he is acting unlawfully and that his action can be called in question in a Court of law. 48 L.W. 170=1938 Mad. 758=(1938) 2 M.L.J. 416. If any question arises whether any matter (a) is a matter as respects which the Governor is by or under the Act required to act in his discretion or to exercise his individual judgment, or (b) is not a matter as respects which the Governor is by or under the Act required to act in his discretion or to exercise his individual judgment then the decision of the Governor in his discretion is final. 193 I.C. 91=1941 Rang. 5.

Sno. 292.—In theory all Colonial Legislatures are subordinate law-making bodies and legislation under the powers conferred on them are comparable with the articles and by-laws of Corporations and statutory bodies, which is the ratio for the application of the doctrine of ultra vires to their legislative enactments. The rule of construction applicable to by-laws is that when a statute is repealed it must be considered as if it had never existed, and that all by-laws and rules made under a repealed statute cease to operate with the repeal of the main enactment unless there is any saving provision in the repealing enactment. As was observed by Lord Reading, C. J. in Woods v. Wain, (1916) 1 K.B. 688 at 690:—“Does the repeal of an Act which enables a corporation to make by-laws have the effect of repealing by-laws already made under the power while it existed, or whether the by-laws remain in force notwithstanding the repeal of the statute under which they were made?” Citing the passage from Sutton v. Wilson, [9 B. & C. 750 (752)]. “It has long been established that when an Act of Parliament is repealed it must be considered (except as to transactions passed and closed) as if it had never existed.” His Lordship proceeded, “To that passage it is only necessary to make one qualification in that since that case Lord Brougham’s Act, and the Interpretation Act, 1889, have been passed. It would follow that any bye-law made under a repealed statute ceases to have any validity unless the repealing Act, contains some provision preserving the validity of the bye-law notwithstanding the repeal.” In the words of Sankaraj, J., “When a statute is repealed any by-law made thereunder ceases to be operative unless there is saving clause in the new statute preserving the old by-law”. Hence the necessity for this saving clause. The section merely continues the existing law. It does not validate any law and such invalidity as existed is still open to attack.

SCOPE AND EFFECT.—Sec. 292 of the Government of India Act is more than a mere preserving section. It enjoins that all the law in force in British India immediately before the commencement of Part III shall continue to remain in force until altered or repealed or amended. This provision amounts to a direction that the alteration, repeal or amendment of any law in force at the time of the commencement of Part III cannot be with a retrospective effect. I.L.R. (1940) All. 455 =1940 All. 272 (F.B.). There is nothing in sec. 292 to suggest that there was any intention to curtail the power of the Indian Legislature or other competent authority to decide in what manner a new law should operate as against the existing rights. All that S. 292 provides is that the existing law shall remain in force until it is repealed and not that the rights which have accrued under that law shall continue to be exercised even after the date of the repeal. S. 292 can obviously have no application to a case where pending appeal the question of the applicability of S. 84-A of the new Bihar Tenancy Act arises after the old law has been changed and the new section has come into operation. If the Legislature can make new laws and unmake old laws, it can also create new rights as well as take away rights already accrued. 1941 P.W.N. 216 =22 Pat.L.T. 356=1941 Pat. 413.

SCOPE OF SECTION.—IT PROHIBITS RETROSPECTIVE LEGISLATION.—Per Gwyer, C.J.—The purposes of S. 292 was to negative the possibility of any existing Indian law being held to be no longer in force by reason of the repeal of the law which authorised its enactment; and it is a safeguard usually inserted by draftsman in similar circumstances. Within their own sphere the powers of the Indian legislatures are as large and ample as those of Parliament itself; and the burden of proving that they are subject to a strange and unusual prohibition against retrospective legislation must certainly lie upon those who assert it. There is nothing in the language of S. 292 which suggests any intention on the part of Parliament to make them subject to that prohibition, nor is there any explanation why Parliament should have desired to do so. (1941) 1 M. L. J. (Supp.) 65. Per Sulaiman, J.—Although the main object of enacting S. 292 was to preserve the enforceability of the then existing laws, the

293. His Majesty may by Order in Council to be made at any time after the passing of this Act provide that, as from such date as may be specified in the Order, any law in force in British India or in any part of British India shall, until repealed or amended by a competent Legislature or other competent authority, have effect subject to such adaptations and modifications as appear to His Majesty to be necessary or expedient for bringing the provisions of that law into accord with the provisions of this Act and, in particular, into accord with the provisions thereof which reconstitute under different names governments and authorities in India and prescribe the distribution of legislative and executive powers between the Federation and the Provinces:

Adaptation of existing Indian laws, etc.

Provided that no such law as aforesaid shall be made applicable to any Federated State by an Order in Council made under this section.

In this section the expression "law" does not include an Act of Parliament, but includes any ordinance, order, bye-law, rule or regulation having in British India the force of law.

295. (1) Where any person has been sentenced to death in a Province, the Governor-General in his discretion shall have all such powers of suspension, remission or commutation of sentence as were vested in the Governor-General in Council immediately before the commencement of Part III of this Act, but save as aforesaid no authority in India outside a province shall have any power to suspend, remit or commute the sentence of any person convicted in the Province:

Provisions as to death sentences.

language of the section is more emphatic than would have been ordinarily necessary. There is nothing in S. 292 which debars Central or a Provincial Legislature which has altered, repealed or amended previously existing law, from giving the new provision a retrospective effect from dates earlier than when the Act is passed. (1941) 1 M.L.J. (Supp.) 65. Per Varadachariar, J.—A provision like S. 292 is usually inserted in similar Acts to indicate that the repeal of the Parent Act shall not be deemed to have repealed all the laws passed under that Act. That being the reason, it is not necessary or proper to lay undue stress on the word "until" used in S. 292 and hold that the policy of this provision is different from that underlying similar provisions in other constitution Acts. There is no justification for drawing a distinction between the statement that the previous law shall continue in force subject to repeal or amendment by later legislation and the statement that it shall continue in force until repealed or amended by later legislation. That Parliament might have had some reason or motive for denying to the Indian Legislature the power of retrospective legislation with reference to pre-existing law seems to rest on mere speculation and is not a fair inference from the language used in the section. 45 C.W.N. (F.R.) 27=1941 F.C. 16=(1941) 1 M.L.J. (Supp.) 65.

SEC. 293.—The amendments made by the Adaptation Order cannot be challenged as ultra vires, as they derive their authority from Parliament but the Acts as amended or adapted, may be altered by the legislature which under Part V is competent to legislate in regard to the subject-matter of the Law. The 'competent legislature or competent authority' is not determined by the Orders in Council, but must be sought on the proper interpretation of Part V, read with Sch. VII of the Act.

SCOPE AND EFFECT.—All that S. 295 enacts is a power given to His Majesty in Council to adapt Acts already in force to bring them into accord with the provisions of the Government of India Act and what is contemplated is formal consequential amendment arising in the Act due to the passing of the Government of India Act. S. 293 does not mean that if His Majesty has made any Act the subject of an adaptation order, then that Act ipso facto becomes valid even though its provisions conflict with the provisions of the Government of India Act. 43 P.L.R. 198=1941 Lah. 182 (F.B.).

SEC. 295: POWER OF PARDON.—This section deals in general with the power of pardon. Under S. 401, Criminal Procedure Code, the authorities heretofore vested with such powers were the Local Governments and the Governor-General in Council and they had concurrent powers in all cases. Besides this statutory power, S. 401 saved the right of His Majesty to exercise the prerogative of pardon and to delegate that power to the Governor-General in Council. It was thought to be inconsistent with Provincial autonomy to vest a power in the Federal executive at the centre to interfere with convictions of Courts over whom the control, vested in the Provincial Government Provided that nothing in this sub-section affects any power of any officer of His Majesty's forces to suspend, remit or commute a sentence passed by a Court-martial.

(2) Nothing in this Act shall derogate from the right of His Majesty, or of the Governor-General, if any such right is delegated to him by His Majesty, to grant pardons, reprieves, respites or remissions of punishment.

Prohibition of certain restrictions on internal trade.

297. (1) No Provincial Legislature or Government shall—

(a) by virtue of the entry in the Provincial Legislative List relating to and Legislature, was complete. An exception has, however, been made in the case of sentences of death, and the Governor-General in his discretion has been authorised to exercise the powers formerly vested in the Governor-General in Council under S. 401 in respect of such sentences. Subject to this exception, the powers of the Governor-General in Council under S. 401 are taken away.

SEC. 297: FREEDOM OF INTER-PROVINCIAL TRADE.—The purpose and scope of the provisions of this section were thus explained in Parliament: "It would indeed be a serious situation if we were to allow to develop within India in future serious restrictions on trade and so upset many of the arrangements that have been made in other directions. This is a subject which has demanded considerable care and attention on the part of the Government, and the Government have finally drafted this clause for the purpose of achieving as far as possible, free trade within India. The object of paragraph (a) is to stop a Provincial Legislature, by its power to legislate on terms in the Provincial Legislative List, from checking the distribution of trade in India. Therefore this clause draws particular attention to the items in the Provincial Legislative List which might empower the Province so to legislate as to check the free circulation of trade. These items are: in particular, Sec. 26 (now 27)—Trade and commerce within the Province; markets and fairs; and so forth. I take these two as typical examples of the attempt which the proposed clause makes to prevent a Provincial legislature legislating in such a way as to stop the free circulation of trade. "It leaves it possible still for the Provinces to take measures, for instance, under items 30 and 40 of the Provincial legislative list to deal with such a question as duties of Excise on liquor. Item 40 of the Provincial legislative list gives powers to impose duties of Excise. These duties of Excise are vital to the welfare of the Provinces. I believe that in the Province of Madras from three to four crores of revenue accrue by this power of putting duties of Excise on liquor and so forth; and in a Province like the United Provinces two crores accrue to the Provincial revenues from this source. It is not thought that by allowing this power to the Provinces it will lead to any contravention of the principle of free trade. In the same way, we must allow the Provincial Governments to legislate on such questions as health, the movement of diseased cattle and so forth, and if our Clause were drawn in a different way with reference to the items on the legislative list this would be impossible. It is to achieve the object of free trade, and not unduly to restrict the Provinces with regard to Excise or health questions that we have drawn our clause in this manner." (Parl. Deb., Vol. 300, Col. 1406).

SEC. 297 (1) (a): APPLICABILITY.—Sec. 297 (1) (a), only refers to legislation with respect to entry No. 27 and entry No. 29 in the Provincial Legislative List. It has no application in respect to anything in entry No. 31. 21 Pat. 587=I.L.R. (1942) Kar. (F.C.) 21=46 C.W.N. (F.R.) 32=5 F.L.J. 17=A.I.R. 1942 F.C. 17=(1942) 2 M.L.J. 6 (F.C.). It cannot be held that the Defence of India Act (1939), in so far as it purports to invest a Provincial Government with power to authorise certain officers to fix the prices of commodities, is invalid as contravening the provisions of the Constitution Act. The fixing of the price at which a particular commodity may be sold in a Province does not fall within the prohibition contained in sec. 297 (1) (a). Sub-secs. (4) and (5) of sec. 2 of the Defence of India Act cannot be held to be ultra vires the Central Legislature on the ground that they in effect repeal sec. 297 (1) (a) of the Government of India Act. It is by virtue of the power conferred under sec. 102 (1) of the Government of India Act that the Central Legislature enacted the Defence of India Act. The Provincial Government, in exercising the power to control prices, is acting not by virtue of the entries in the Provincial Legislative List, but by virtue of the power conferred by the Defence of India Act, and after the issue of the proclamation by the Governor-General the Central Legislature has full authority to legislate with regard to any matter contained in the Provincial Legislative List. There is no bar in the Constitution Act which would prevent the Central Legislature from delegating to the Provincial Legislature the power to deal with matters referred to in sec. 297 (1) (a). Sec. 297 is not amended by sec. 2 (2) (xx) of the Defence of India Act. 23 Pat. 135=1944 F.L.J. 183=A.I.R. 1944 Pat. 205. discriminate is not essential to invalidate a legislation under sec. 297 (1) and (2), but it is sufficient if the provisions of the enactment result in discrimination. (1939) 1 M.L.J. (Supp.) 1. Quære.—Whether the word "locality" in sec. 297 (1) (b) should not be confined to localities in India, having regard to the marginal note to the section, and whether the section deals with products of foreign countries. Jayakar, J., Quære.—Whether sec. 297 (1) (b) does not posit a power to levy a tax on two sets of goods. 43 C.W.N. (F.C.R.) 1=49 L.W. 36 =1939 F.C. 1=(1939) 1 M.L.J. (Supp.) 1. The law which is open to objection under sec. 297 (1), of the Constitution Act is a law made by Provincial Legislature, ~~inter alia~~ by virtue of the entry relating to trade and commerce or by virtue of the entry relating to production, supply and distribution of commodities. And if a law is made substantially by virtue of the entry relating to agriculture, or of entry relating to development of industry, it is not open to objection under this section. Further the law contemplated by this section is a law which prohibits or restricts entry into or export from the province of goods directly and a law which does not deal directly and in substance with prohibition or restriction of export or import of goods but which deals with other needs of the province and provides for them, though incidentally, the effect of the provision is that in some measure, export or import is restricted, such a law is not within the meaning of the section. It follows from the above that the prohibition or restriction contemplated by the section is a prohibition or restriction on the act of export or import and so long as the goods remain the property of the province and are a stock of the province and before they have become the subject of interprovincial or foreign trade the province has every right to expropriate goods or to put any restriction upon them which it considers necessary for the needs of the province. All measures of price control collective marketing and expropriation of goods do not per se and as a matter of course interfere with free trade clauses in a constitution, and the interference contemplated by the constitution is a direct interference and not an indirect interference. 200 I.C. 526=1942 A.L.J. 156=1942 A.L.J. 112. Sec. 297 does not deal with intoxicating liquors or narcotic drugs. It merely limits the power of the Provincial Legislature to legislate with respect to trade and commerce within the province which is one of the items in Art. 27, List II, VII Schedule of the Act and with respect to the production, supply and distribution of commodities which is one of the matters included in Art. 29, List III, Seventh Schedule of the Act. ~~Art. 297 (1) means that the Provincial Legislature has power to legislate with respect to trade and commerce within the province and with respect to production, supply and distribution of commodities, it has no power to legislate or take any executive action prohibiting or restricting the entry into, or export from, the province of goods of any class or description. It is to be observed that intoxicating liquors and narcotic drugs appear in a different article and are not included in the general terms "trade or commerce" or "production, supply and distribution of commodities".~~ 197 I.C. 618=21 P. 178=1942 P. 351=5 F.L.J. (H.C.) 34.

DECLARATION OF FUNDAMENTAL RIGHTS.—Sir S. Hoare thus explained the origin of this section:—"The Indian delegates were anxious to have some declaration of fundamental rights. The request that they pressed upon the Joint Select Committee and the various Round Table Conferences was that somewhere or other the effective words in Queen Victoria's Proclamation should be repeated. These are the words substantially from Queen Victoria's Proclamation. They have become consecrated by long usage in the minds of Indians and the wise course is to retain the words." (Parl. Deb., Vol. 300, Cols. 1048-1049.)

SEC. 298: SCOPE AND EFFECT OF—CONTRAVENTION OF—PROPER TEST.—Sub-sec. (1) of sec. 298 confers a personal right on every subject of His Majesty domiciled in India, ing on any occupation, trade, business or profession in British India.

(2) Nothing in this section shall affect the operation of any law which—

(a) prohibits, either absolutely or subject to exceptions, the sale or mortgage of agricultural land situate in any particular area, and owned by a person belonging to some class recognised by the law as being a class of persons engaged in or connected with agriculture in that area, to any person not belonging to any such class; or

(b) recognises the existence of some right, privilege or disability attaching to members of a community by virtue of some personal law or custom having the force of law.

(3) Nothing in this section shall be construed as derogating from the special responsibility of the Governor-General or of a Governor for the safeguarding of the legitimate interests of minorities.

Compulsory acquisition of land, etc.

and the general legislative powers conferred respectively on the Federal Legislature and the Provincial Legislature by sub-sec. (1) of sec. 99 are subject, inter alia to the provisions of sec. 298. It is not correct to say that in applying the terms of sub-sec. (1) of sec. 298, it is necessary for the Court to consider the scope and object of the Act which is impugned, so as to determine the ground upon which the Act is based. It is not a question of whether the impugned Act is based only on one or more of the grounds specified in sec. 298 (1) but whether its operation may result in a prohibition only on these grounds. Hence the proper test as to whether there is a contravention of the sub-sec. (1) of sec. 298 is to ascertain the reaction of the impugned Act on the personal right conferred by the sub-section, and, while the scope and object of the Act may be of assistance in determining the effect of the operation of the Act on a proper construction of its provisions, if the effect of the Act so determined involves an infringement of such personal right, the object of the Act, however laudable, will not obviate the prohibition of sub-sec. (1). 73 I.A. 59 = 50 O.W.N. 420 = (1946) F.L.J. 41 = A.I.R. 1946 P.C. 66 = (1946) 1 M.L.J. 426 (P.C.). See also 1943 Lah. 233; 5 Fed.L.J. 73.

SEC. 298 (2) (a): "AGRICULTURAL LAND".—MEANING OF.—Per Dalip Singh, J.—The words "agricultural land" in sec. 298 (2) (a) must, in the absence of any indication to the contrary in the Act, be taken in their natural meaning. Agricultural land is obviously land which is either actually used for purposes of agriculture or for purposes subservient to agriculture, that is, it may include buildings necessary to carry out the process of agriculture but by no stretch of language can it be held to include pastoral land or other rights in land which are included in the definition of land in the Punjab Alienation of Land Act. 43 P.L.R. 198 = 1941 Lah. 182 (F.B.).

SEC. 298 (2) (b): PUNJAB PRE-EMPTION ACT.—The Punjab Pre-emption Act does not fall within the purview of sec. 298 (2) (b) of the Government of India Act, as it cannot be said to be merely a recognition of the existence of the right of pre-emption according to the customary law of the Province. I.L.R. (1943) Lah. 461 = 45 P.L.R. 253 = A.I.R. 1943 Lah. 233; 1944 A.L.J. 272 = (1944) F.L.J. 162 = 48 C.W.N. (F.B.) 130 = (1944) 1 M.L.J. 502 (F.C.). SEC. 299: COMPULSORY ACQUISITION OF LAND.—The Joint Parliamentary Committee thus expressed themselves: "We think that some general provision should be inserted in the Constitution Act, safeguarding private property against expropriation, in order to quiet doubts which have been aroused in recent years by certain Indian utterances. It is obviously difficult to frame any general provision with this object without unduly restricting the powers of the Legislature in relation particularly to taxation; in fact, much the same difficulties would be presented as those which we have discussed above in relation to fundamental rights. We do not attempt to define with precision the scope of the provision we have in mind, the drafting of which will require careful consideration for the reasons we have indicated; but we think that it should secure that legislation expropriating, or authorising the expropriation of, the property of particular individuals should be lawful only if confined to expropriation for public purposes and if compensation is determined, either in the first instance or on appeal, by some independent authority. General legislation, on the other hand, the effect of which would be to transfer to public ownership some particular class of property, or to extinguish or modify the rights of individuals in it, ought, we think, to require the previous sanction of the Governor-General or Governor (as the case may be) to its introduction; and in that event he should be directed by his Instrument of Instructions to take into account as a relevant factor the nature of the provisions proposed for compensating those whose interests will be adversely affected by the legislation". (J.P.C. Rep., para. 869). Cf. Para. XIII (o) of the Instrument of Instructions to the Governor-General and Para. XVII (o) of the Instructions to the Governor of Madras. Although the Gov-

(3) No Bill or amendment making provision for the transference to public ownership of any land or for the extinguishment or modification of rights therein, including rights or privileges in respect of land revenue, shall be introduced or moved in either Chamber of the Federal Legislature without the previous sanction of the Governor-General in his discretion, or in a Chamber of a Provincial Legislature without the previous sanction of the Governor in his discretion.

(4) Nothing in this section shall affect the provisions of any law in force at the date of the passing of this Act.

"UNDERTAKING"—HOTEL BUSINESS.—The word "undertaking" in sec. 299 of the Government of India Act is, broadly speaking, synonymous with the word "business". The business of carrying on a hotel, therefore, is an undertaking within the meaning of the section. 49 O.W.N. 583=5 F.L.J. 112.

SEC. 299 (5): "LAND"—MEANING OF.—Parliament meant to include in the definition of 'land' all the various and varying definitions of "immovable property" which have been given to that expression in India both by Acts of the Legislature as well as by Judicial decisions. SEC. 306.—The English common law rule that the King can do no wrong and cannot be sued but the King's officers and servants are amenable to the jurisdiction of the King's Court, is now firmly established in India. The Governor-General and Governors have been, in the eye of the law, placed in the position of the King but the Government servants have no immunity. Therefore, the fact that direct proceedings cannot be taken against either the Governor-General or Governor of a province for setting aside any illegal order made by either of them is no longer any ground for extending any protection to the servants of the Crown acting under such order or for refusing any relief to the subject aggrieved by the execution of such order. 48 O.W.N. 766. This is an enlargement of the protection formerly afforded to the Governor and Governor-General by sec. 110 of the Governing on any person against any person who has been the Governor-General, the Governor (2) Vice, or the Secretary of State in respect of anything done or omitted done by any of them during his term of office in performance or performance of the duties thereof:

There is how- ever power reserved to His Majesty in Coun- cil to relax the provisions of this section and permit proceedings to be taken. The liabi- lity of these officials to be proceeded against in England, for their personal acts, so far these proceedings could be initiated in the English Courts is not affected. Moreover, House of Commons, XI of the Government of India Act is repeated these officials could be puni- shed for criminal acts in India, by the Court of King's Bench under the Governor's Act, 1699, as amended by later Acts. The ex- emption from jurisdiction formerly afforded by sec. 110 extended to Executive Councillors and ministers—but the protection in their case has not been re-enacted by this Act. It was on the ground of this personal exemption that it was held that no certiorari could be brought against the Act of the Ministry. (*Venkata- ratnam v. Code, is hit by sec. 306 of the Government of India Act. That being so, the Court cannot entertain any application in such a suit. Sec. 87 of the Government of India Act protects a President of a Provincial Legislature from proceedings in Court only when he acts in accordance with powers conferred upon him. It does not protect him if he acts in defiance of the provisions of the Act and the rules made thereunder or if he exercises some power which he does not possess. Where the President of the Bengal Legisla- tive Council, in announcing his opinion as to the result of a motion put to the House, declares by a slip of the tongue that the "Ayes have it", when he thinks that the "Noes have it", and then corrects the verbal mistake com- mitted by him, he only complies with stand- ing order No. 8 made by him under the Ben- gal Legislative Council Procedure Rules. Even if, in so doing, he does not act strictly in accordance with the Rules and standing orders, it would merely mean that there is a lacuna in the Rules, and the Court should not interfere with him when the matter is ab- solutely trumpery and it is not satisfied with the bona fides of those who challenge his action. 1945 F.L.J. 155=49 C.W.N. 405. Even if the notification in such circumstances remained a lawful noti- fication, the Court would still be in a position to take effective action. The provisions of sec. 306, read with sec. 109 of the Govern- ment of India Act, 1935, do not make the notification under the Madras Hindu Religi- ous Endowments Act an act of the Governor which cannot be challenged in Courts. 316. The powers conferred by the provisions of this Act for the time being in force on the Federal Legislature shall be exercisable by the Indian Legislature, and accordingly references in those provisions to the Federal Legislature and Federal Laws shall be construed as references to the Indian Legislature and laws of the Indian Legislature, and references in those provisions to Federal taxes shall be construed as references to taxes imposed by laws of the Indian Legislature:

Provided that nothing in this section shall empower the Indian Legislature to impose limits on the power of the Governor-General in Council to borrow money.

317. (1) The provisions of the Government of India Act set out, with amendments consequential on the provisions of this Act, in the Ninth Schedule to this Act (being certain of the provisions of that Act relating to the Governor-General, the Commander-in-Chief, the Governor-General's Executive Council and the Indian Legislature and provisions supplemental to those provisions) shall, subject to those amendments, continue to have effect notwithstanding the repeal of that Act by this Act:

Provided that nothing in the said provisions shall affect the provisions of the last but one preceding section.

ras Hindu Religious Endowments Act should be quashed. I.L.R. (1941) Mad. 807=1941 Mad. 878=(1941) 2 M.L.J. 175.

POWER OF GOVERNOR-GENERAL IN COUNCIL TO PUT EX-RULER OF INDIAN STATE UNDER RESTRAINT UNDER REGULATION 3 OF 1818.—Once a ruler has been deposed and happens to be in British India in the capacity of an ordinary individual, a preventive detention in British India for reasons of State connected with the discharge of the functions of the Crown in its relations with the Indian States can be brought about by the Governor-General in Council, not in the exercise of the functions of the Crown in its relations with Indian States but under the executive authority conferred on him under Government of India Act, 1935. The Governor-General in Council can pass an order placing the ex-Ruler under personal restraint under Regulation 3 of 1818 with the concurrence of the Crown representative. 47 P.L.R. 265=1945 Lah. 274 (F.B.). Per Niyogi, J.—Even if a grave emergency is declared to exist in India it is competent to make an Ordinance for British India only. I.L.R. (1943) Nag. 73=6 F.L.J. (M.C.) 53=1943 N.L.J. 16=A.I.R. 1943 Nag. 86.

SEC. 316.—Speaking of this section St. Samuel Hoare said: "The word 'Powers' means the powers in the Federal and Provincial lists; simply the Legislative powers conferred by the two lists. The setting up of provincial autonomy would in itself considerably restrict the field of the activity of the Central Legislature. The Central Legislature at the present time can legislate over the whole field of Indian Government. In the transitional period it will not be able to legislate over the very wide field of Provincial legislation.

"In the concurrent list again the legislative field of the Centre is being considerably restricted. At the present time it has power over the whole field. In future it will not have power over the provincial list. The Central Legislature so far from having greater powers than it has now will have smaller powers in the transitional period.

"There can be no question of the executive at the Centre becoming responsible to the Central Legislature during the transitional period. The executive at the Centre during the transitional period will remain the Governor-General in Council, just as it is now, and there can be question whatever that during the transitional period a Government will be set up at the Centre responsible to the Central Legislature". (Parl. Deb., Vol. 300, Col. 1119).

SEC. 317.—As till now no federal legislation has yet been brought into force as part of the Law of India, under the provision of sec. 317 and Sch. 9 of the Government of India Act, 1935, the law in regard to the Indian Legislature contained in the Government of India Act, 1919, has all along continued to be the law of British India. It appears that the provisions made in sec. 317 and Sch. 9 is intended to continue the validity of the functions of the Indian Legislature. So the Hindu Women's Right to Property Act is a validly passed Act. 1939 A.L.J. 375=I.L.R. (1939) AIL 912=1939 AIL 706. See also 1941 Sind 114. Sec. 317 and Sch. 9—Effect of. ing or (2) In the said provisions, the expression "this Act" means the said provisions.

(3) The substitution in the said provisions of references to the Secretary of State for references to the Secretary of State in Council shall not render inoperative anything done thereunder by the Secretary of State in Council before the commencement of Part III of this Act.

1318. (1) Notwithstanding that the Federation has not yet been established, the Federal Court and the Federal Public Service Commission and the Federal Railway Authority shall come into existence and be known by those names, and shall perform in relation to British India the like functions as they are by or under this Act, to perform in relation to the Federation when established.

(2) Nothing in this section affects any power of His Majesty in Council to fix a date later than the commencement of Part III of this Act for the coming into operation, either generally or for particular purposes, of any of the provisions of this Act relating to the Federal Court, the Federal Public Service Commission or the Federal Railway Authority.

SEVENTH SCHEDULE.

[Ss. 100 & 104.]

LEGISLATIVE LISTS.

LIST I.

Federal Legislative List.

1. His Majesty's naval, military and air forces borne on the Indian establishment and any other armed force raised in India by the Crown, not being forces raised for employment in Indian States or military or armed police maintained by Provincial Governments; any armed forces which are not forces of His Majesty, but are attached to or operating with any of His Majesty's naval, military or air forces borne on the Indian establishment; central intelligence bureau; preventive detention in British India for reasons of State connected with defence, external affairs, or the discharge of the functions of the Crown in its relations with Indian States.

SCH. VII: LISTS AND ITEMS THEREIN—
CONSTRUCTION—RULES AS TO.—Per Gwyer, C.J.—The subjects dealt with in the three Legislative Lists are not always set out with scientific definition. It would be practically impossible for example to define each item in the provincial list in such a way as to make it exclusive of every other item in that list, and Parliament seems to have been content to take a number of comprehensive categories and to describe each of them by a word of broad general import. None of the items in the list is to be read in a narrow or restricted sense and each general word should be held to extend to all ancillary or subsidiary matters which can fairly and reasonably be said to be comprehended in it. Per Sulaiman, J.—The lists even if taken together may not prove to be exhaustive. It is quite possible to conceive of cases which are not comprised in any of the lists. But they are so comprehensive that apart from personal laws it would be only extremely rare cases which would not be covered by them at all. 45 C. W.N. (F.R.) 27=72 C.L.J. 550=1941 A.L.J. 170=53 L.W. 397=1941 F.C. 16=(1941) 1 M.L.J. (Supp.) 65. See also 1940 All. 272 (F.B.); 53 L.W. 109=73 C.L.J. 1=1941 F.C. 47=(1941) 1 M.L.J. (Supp.) 1. Per Iqbal Ahmad, J.—The U. P. Regularisation of Remissions Act is not with respect to the jurisdiction and powers of Courts within the meaning of entry 2 of the Provincial list. It is also outside the scope of the legislative powers defined in entry 21 of the Provincial list. It is outside the scope of the three Legislative lists and therefore falls within the residual powers of legislation defined in sec. 104 of the Government of India Act. Per Bajpai, J.—The U. P. Regularisation of Remissions Act comes within entry 2 read with 21 of the List II of Sch. VII of the Government of India Act. Per Ismail, J.—The U. P. Regularisation of Remissions Act falls within entry 2 and entry 21 of List II and not within entry 4 and entry 15 of List III. I.L.R. (1940) All. 455=1940 A.L.J. 274=1940 All. 272 (F.B.).

LEGISLATURES—SOVEREIGN AND SUBORDINATE—POWERS OF—DIFFERENCE BETWEEN.—Per Sen, J.—There is a fundamental difference between a sovereign and a subordinate Legislature. No Court can question the validity of a law made by a sovereign Legislature like Parliament in as much it has unfettered legislative powers. Bodies or persons given legislative powers by a Parliament are in a different position—they are subordinate or non-sovereign legislatures and, as such their Acts may be adjudicated upon by Courts which, in a proper case, may declare them to be ultra vires. A subordinate or non-sovereign legislature has denude limits upon its law-making powers. It can legislate only within the ambit of the powers which are conferred upon it by the enactment which creates it. Any law which it passes outside this ambit is ultra vires. It follows from this that a non-sovereign legislature which has made a law which is ultra vires of itself cannot by a subsequent Act declare such law or any part thereof to be intra vires. To permit this would be to permit a legislature with powers limited by some other authority to enlarge its powers by its own act without reference to the authority creating it. Now if this cannot be done directly, obviously it cannot be done indirectly by means of drafting or other devices. 45 Cr.L.J. 37=47 C.W.N. 757=A.I.R. 1943 Cal. 489 (S.B.)=79 C.L.J. 281.

PROVINCIAL AND CENTRAL ACTS—CONFLICT BETWEEN—RULE OF SEVERABILITY—WHEN ARISES.—The question of the severability of the invalid provisions of a Provincial Act from the valid provisions will be material only if the Act is in some measure held to be ultra vires the Provincial Legislature. Where the problem can only be one of conflict between the provisions of the local law and the provisions of a central enactment, each being intra vires the particular legislature, it is unnecessary to invoke the rule of severability to uphold the validity of the impugned Act. It is the doctrine of repugnancy and not the doctrine of ultra vires that has to be applied in this class of cases. I.L.R. (1944) Kar. (F.C.) 46=6 F.L.J. 221=48 O.W.N. (F.R.) 36=A.I.R. 1944 F.C. 18=57 L.W. 213=(1944) 1 M.L.J. 178=79 C.L.J. 220.

FUNCTIONS OF LEGISLATURE—DELEGATION TO EXECUTIVE—VALIDITY.—Per Munir, J.—In the case of a constitution of the British model the legislative power of the Legislature involves, as part of its content, the power to confer law-making powers upon authorities other than the Legislature itself and an increase in the extent of such power cannot of itself invalidate the grant unless the grant amounts to an abdication of the functions of the Legislature. This is not only for the reason that the Legislature in that system is supreme but also for the reason that the executive in a constitution of that kind is responsible to the Legislature both of whom co-operate with each other, and the Legislature is always competent to withdraw the grant if the executive acts in opposition to its wishes or the wishes of the electors. The question of the constitutionality or unconstitutionality of a law has to be determined not by the principle of the maxim delegatus non potest delegare but by the consideration whether the Legislature in performing its functions of law-making has laid down the principle of the legislation and left merely the filling up of details to the executive or whether by empowering the executive to make the rules, the Legislature has delegated to the executive the power to lay down the principles of legislation itself. If in the statute the Legislature has laid down a principle or a policy but left it to the executive to carry out that principle or policy subject to well-defined restrictions the enactment would be constitutional, but if the Legislature has left it to the executive to lay down the principle or policy and thus given to it absolute and unrestricted discretion to legislate in the form of the power to make rules, the enactment would be unconstitutional. 1944 F.L.J. 72=A.I.R. 1944 Lah. 33 (F.B.).

PERSONAL LIBERTY—INVASION OF—RIGHT OF AFFECTED PERSON.—Per Niyogi, J.—The fact that there is no express provision anywhere in the Government of India Act, 1935, affecting the personal liberty of the subject does not mean that that liberty can be invaded otherwise than by the authority of law. A person who is threatened with legal proceedings which are calculated to affect his person or property has an absolute right to be heard in his defence. It is a right which is implied by natural justice which prevails during peace time as well as during times of war. The Criminal Law of India is so framed as to respect such rights. In India as in England the law gives equal protection to every man. No man is above the law and no man is punishable or can be lawfully made to suffer in body or goods except for the distinct breach of law established in the ordinary legal manner before the ordinary Courts. There is thus unquestionably the rule of law in India in the sense in which Dicey interprets that expression in his well-known Law of the Constitution. I.L.R. (1943) Nag. 78=6 F.L.J. (H.C.) 53=1943 N.L.J. 16=A.I.R. 1943 Nag. 86.

RIGHTS OF LIBERTY AND PROPERTY—MODIFICATION OR SUSPENSION—PROPER AUTHORITY.—The rights to liberty and property are the most fundamental rights known to the constitution and the most highly prized, but they yield place to the safety of the realm. To modify the rights of the subject or even to suspend or take them away altogether, the Legislature is supreme. But it is the Legislature which is supreme, not the executive, and so, before the executive can claim the power to override those rights, it must show that the Legislature has empowered it to do so and under the constitution the Legislature can only act in particular ways. All empowering must therefore be done properly and formally, deliberately, in the manner laid down by the constitution. The executive cannot suddenly step in and claim the right to wield absolute and arbitrary power—not even in war time. Such fundamental rights, safeguarded under the constitution with elaborate and anxious care and upheld time and again by the highest tribunals of the realm in language of the utmost vigour, cannot be swept away by implication or removed by some sweeping generality. The removal must be express and unmistakable; and this applies whatever Government be in power, and whether the country is at peace or at war. I.L.R. (1943) Nag. 154=1943 N.L.J. 1=A.I.R. 1943 Nag. 26.

2. Naval, military and air force works; local self-government in cantonment areas (not being cantonment areas of Indian State troops), ¹[The constitution and powers within such areas of cantonment authorities] the regulation of house accommodation in such areas, and, within British India, the delimitation of such areas.
3. External affairs; the implementing of treaties and agreements with other countries; extradition, including the surrender of criminals and accused persons to parts of His Majesty's dominions outside India.
4. Ecclesiastical affairs, including European cemeteries.
5. Currency, coinage and legal tender.
6. Public debt of the Federation.
7. Posts and telegraphs, including telephones, wireless, broadcasting, and other like forms of communication; Post Office Savings Bank.
8. Federal Public Services and Federal Public Service Commission.
9. Federal pensions, that is to say, pensions payable by the Federation or out of Federal revenues.
10. Works, lands and buildings vested in, or in the possession of, His Majesty for the purposes of the Federation (not being naval, military or air force works), but, as regards property situate in a Province, subject always to provincial legislation, save in so far as Federal law otherwise provides, and, as regards property in a Federated State held by virtue of any lease or agreement with that State, subject to the terms of that lease or agreement.
11. The Imperial Library, the Indian Museum, the Imperial War Museum, the Victoria Memorial, and any similar institution controlled or financed by the Federation.
12. Federal agencies and institutes for the following purposes, that is to say, for research, for professional or technical training, or for the promotion of special studies.
13. The Benares Hindu University and the Aligarh Muslim University.
14. The Survey of India, the Geological, Botanical and Zoological Surveys of India; Federal meteorological organisations.
15. Ancient and historical monuments; archaeological sites and remains.
16. Census.
17. Admission into, and emigration and expulsion from, India, including in relation thereto the regulation of the movements in India of persons who are not British subjects domiciled in India, subjects of any Federated State, or British subjects domiciled in the United Kingdom; pilgrimages to places beyond India.
18. Port quarantine; seamen's and marine hospitals, and hospitals connected with port quarantine.
19. Import and export across customs frontiers as defined by the Federal Government.
20. Federal railways; the regulations of all railways other than minor railways in respect of safety, maximum and minimum rates and fares, station and service terminal charges, interchange of traffic and the responsibility of railway administrations as carriers of goods and passengers; the regulation of minor railways in respect of safety and the responsibility of the administrations of such railways as carriers of goods and passengers.
21. Maritime shipping and navigation, including shipping and navigation on tidal waters; Admiralty jurisdiction.

LEGISLATION IN RESPECT OF PROPERTY AND CIVIL RIGHT, IF CAN BE AIMED AT A PARTICULAR RIGHT.—It cannot be said that legislation in respect of property and civil rights must be general in character and not aimed at a particular right. The Legislature is supreme in these matters, and its actions must be assumed to be taken with due regard for justice and good conscience. They are not in any case subject to control by the Courts. 1944 A.W.B. (P.C.) 4=A.I.R. 1944 P.C. 7=1944 F.L.J. 45 (F.C.).

PORTION OF AN ENACTMENT IMPUGNED—JUSTIFICATION ON THE GROUND OF ITS BEING NECESSARY TO MAKE THE WHOLE SCHEME OF THE ACT WATER-TIGHT.—The validity of a section of a particular Act must be judged according to its terms, and, if its enactment by the Provincial Legislature be beyond the powers of that Legislature, it cannot be justified on the ground that it is needed to make the whole scheme of the Act water-tight. 1944 F.L.J. 1.

TAXING PROVISIONS IN ENACTMENTS.—In the Constitution Act of India there is no statutory bar by which taxing clauses are forbidden from being introduced into measures dealing with other subjects. I.L.R. (1942) All. 302=5 F.L.J. (H.C.) 43=A.I.R. 1942 All. 156.

22. Major ports, that is to say, the declaration and delimitation of such ports, and the constitution and powers of Port Authorities therein.
23. Fishing and fisheries beyond territorial waters.
24. Aircraft and air navigation; the provision of aerodromes; regulation and organisation of air traffic and of aerodromes.
25. Lighthouses, including lightships, beacons and other provision for the safety of shipping and aircraft.
26. Carriage of passengers and goods by sea or by air.
27. Copyright, inventions, designs, trademarks, and merchandise marks.
28. Cheques, bills of exchange, promissory notes and other like instruments.
29. Arms, firearms, ammunition.
30. Explosives.
31. Opium, so far as regards cultivation and manufacture, or sale for export.
32. Petroleum and other liquids and substances declared by Federal law to be dangerously inflammable, so far as regards possession, storage and transport.
33. Corporations, that is to say, the incorporation, regulation and winding-up of trading corporations, including banking, insurance and financial corporations, but not including corporations owned or controlled by a Federated State and carrying on business only within that State or co-operative societies, and of corporations, whether trading or not, with objects not confined to one unit ¹[but not including Universities].
34. Development of industries, where development under Federal control is declared by Federal law to be expedient in the public interest.
35. Regulation of labour and safety in mines and oilfields.
36. Regulation of mines and oilfields and mineral development to the extent to which such regulation and development under Federal control is declared by Federal law to be expedient in the public interest.
37. The law of insurance, except as respects insurance undertaken by a Federated State, and the regulation of the conduct of insurance business, except as respects business undertaken by a Federated State; Government insurance, except so far as undertaken by a Federated State, or, by virtue of any entry in the Provincial Legislative List or the Concurrent Legislative List, by a Province.
38. Banking, that is to say, the conduct of banking business by corporations, other than corporations owned or controlled by a Federated State and carrying on business only within that State.
39. Extension of the powers and jurisdiction of members of a police force belonging to any part of British India to any area in another Governor's Province or Chief Commissioner's Province, but not so as to enable the police of one part to exercise powers and jurisdiction elsewhere without the consent of the Government of the Province or the Chief Commissioner, as the case may be; extension of the powers and jurisdiction of members of a police force belonging to any unit to railway areas outside that unit.
40. Elections to the Federal Legislature, subject to the provisions of this Act and of any Order in Council made thereunder.
41. The salaries of the Federal Ministers, of the President and Vice-President of the Council of State and of the Speaker and Deputy Speaker of the Federal Assembly; the salaries, allowances and privileges of the members of the Federal Legislature; and, to such

LIST I, NO. 34: 'FEDERAL LAW'—MEANING—COMPETENCY OF LOCAL LEGISLATURE TO REPEAL SUGARCANE ACT (1934) OF THE CENTRAL LEGISLATURE.—'Federal law' as used in Entry No. 34 of List I of Sch. VII of the Constitution Act, is either a law made by the Federal Legislature after it has come into existence or a law made by the Indian Legislature during the transitional period, that is, between the enactment of the Constitution Act and till Federal Legislature comes into existence, but other existing Indian Laws which were enacted before the Constitution Act could not fall within the meaning of the 'Federal law' as used in the Constitution Act. As sugarcane as an agriculture and sugar manufacture as an industry are entirely provincial subjects the Provincial Legislature is competent to repeal the Sugarcane Act (1934) and to make its own laws about sugarcane and sugar as also about sugar factories. 200 I.C. 536=1942 A. 156=I.L.R. LIST I, ENTRY NO. 38.—"Conduct of Banking business"—What is—Scope of clause 38. See (1945) 1 M.L.J. 30.

LIST I, ITEM 45 AND LIST II, ITEM 48.—See 1942 F.C. 33=5 F.L.J. 61=46 C.W.N. (F.R.) 38=(1942) 2 M.L.J. 327. "EXCISE"—"TAXES ON THE SALE OF GOODS"—INTERPRETATION OF.—The term "excise" may have a wider meaning so as to include all duties levied on the consumption of excisable commodity at any stage from production to sale, but having regard to the context in which the expression is used and the scheme of the Government of India Act, and to avoid conflict with Item 48 in List II of Schedule VII, the expression "Duties of excise" as used in Item 45 of List I of Schedule VII must be construed as a power to impose duties of excise upon the manufacturer or producer of the excisable articles, or at least at the stage of, or in connection with, manufacture or production and that it extends no further. A clear distinction exists between the first sale and the last sale as the latter is not intimately connected with the manufacturer or producer while the former is. If "excise" should be given the wider meaning, then the only taxes that would not amount to excise duty and would be left over for the Provinces to impose under Item 48 in List II would be license fees and certain turn over taxes, which will be merely illusory and that could not have been the intention of Parliament in using the words "taxes on the sale of goods" in Item 48 in List II of Sch. VII to the Act. 2 F.L.J. 6=43 C.W.N. (F.C.R.) 1=49 L.W. 36=1939 F.C. 1=1939 M.L.J. (Supp.) 1. The true distinction between an excise duty, sale tax and a cess on entry of goods as used in the Constitution Act does not consist in the fact that the tax is on goods or that the tax is payable by manufacturer or producer but it consists in the fact whether the tax is on the act of production or on the act of sale or on the act of introducing goods in a particular area. Two conclusions follow from this that a tax on consumption of goods or a tax on purchase of goods whatever else it may be, cannot be an excise duty. And a tax on raw produce required by the manufacturer for his manufacture may be an excise duty or may be a general tax or may be a special tax, and the fact whether it is one or the other will depend upon the true nature of the tax in the light of surround-

LIST II.

PROVINCIAL LEGISLATIVE LIST.

1. Public order (but not including the use of His Majesty's naval, military or air forces in aid of the civil power); the administration of justice; constitution and organisation of all Courts, except the Federal Court, and fees taken therein; preventive detention for reasons connected with the maintenance of public order; persons subject to such detention.

2. Jurisdiction and powers of all Courts except the Federal Court, with respect to any of the matters in this list; procedure in Rent and Revenue Courts.

3. Police, including railway and village police.

4. Prisons, reformatories, Borstal institutions and other institutions of a like nature and persons detained therein; arrangements with other units for the use of prisons and other institutions.

ing circumstances of each case. The expression "excise duty" in entry No. 45 of List I, in Sch. VII, Constitution Act, is used in a restricted sense so as to allow provinces to exercise powers under sale tax and cesses on goods without making those taxes excise duties in the British sense of the word. A.I.R. 1942 A. 156=1942 A.L.J. 112=I.L.R. (1942) All. 802. Fees and cesses are two forms of special taxation which a Provincial Legislature provided it is given authority to do so is entitled to resort to in order to recoup itself for any special expenditure which it has incurred for the benefit of a special class of persons against that special class. And the Provincial Legislature may recover the whole of this expenditure either by levying a fee which may be partly recurring and partly non-recurring and recurring portion may be based on monthly payment measured on the consumption of goods by the payer of fee or by levying a cess or partly by levying a fee and partly by levying a cess at its option. The imposition of a cess under Cl. (2) of S. 29 of the U.P. Sugar Factories Control Act is in the first instance a cess within the meaning of Entry No. 49 of List II and not a duty of excise within the meaning of Entry No. 45 of List I and if there be any difficulty in regarding it as a cess it can also be treated as a fee under Entry No. 54 of List II and Entry No. 36 of List III. The U. P. Sugar Factories Act, Cl. (2) of S. 29 and R. 21-A of U. P. Sugar Factories Control Rules are all intra vires the Provincial Legislature. 1942 A.L.J. 112=200 I.C. 526=1942 A. 156.

Sch. VII, List II, Item I—"Public order"—Order restricting movements of person—Legality. There is no warrant for construing "public order" in Item I of List II of Sch. VII as meaning that only a provision for detention and not restriction of movements for the purpose of maintaining public order could be made. The words "preventive detention for reasons connected with the maintenance of public order" have been added, not to restrict the expression "public order" but only because a specific reference was deemed desirable to that particular aspect of public order. 24 Pat. 418=(1945) P.W.N. 239=A.I.R. 1945 Pat. 444.

List II, Entry No. 21.—The term "devolution" in Entry No. 21 of List II includes the operation of the principle of survivorship. 73 C.L.J. 415=54 L.W. 22=45 C.W.N. (F.R.) 81=4 F.L.J. 1=1941 F.O. 72=(1941) 2 M.L.J. 12. See also 48 C.W.N. 759.

Sch. VII, List II, Entry No. 21.—Scope of. Entry No. 21 should be read and interpreted as a whole and in the light of entries Nos. 7, 8 and 10 of List III. I.L.R. (1942) Kar. (F.O.) 40=I.L.R. (1942) Lah. 623 46 C. W. N. (F. R.) 61=5 Fed. L. J. 33=A. I. R. 1942 F.O. 27. "Agricultural Land"—Test—As the expression "agricultural land" has not been defined in the Government of India Act, it must be understood in the sense which it ordinarily bears in the English language.

Quære.—Whether for the purposes of the relevant entries in Lists II and III of the Government of India Act it will not be right to take into account the general character of the land (as agricultural land) and not the use to which it may be put at a particular point of time. It is difficult to impute to Parliament the intention that a piece of land should, so long as it is used to produce certain things, be governed by and descend according to laws framed under List II, but that when the same parcel of land is used to produce something else (as often happens in this country), it should be governed by and descend according to laws framed under List III. I.L.R. (1942) Kar. (F.O.) 40=I.L.R. (1942) Lah. 623=5 Fed.L.J. 33=55 L.W. 484=46 C.W.N. (F.R.) 61=A.I.R. 1942 F.O. 27. See also 1943 P.W.N. 73; 48 C.W.N. 759 (Distinction between agricultural and non-agricultural land). The words "agricultural land" in entry No. 21 are used in the same sense as the word "land" in that entry, that is to say, the words "agricultural land" include rights in or over agricultural land and therefore include the rights of a usufructuary mortgagee in such land. 1945 F.L.J. 234=47 P.L.R. 233=A.I.R. 1945 Lah, 282. Power to make ordinances in cases of emergency.

ances for the peace and good government of British India, or any part thereof, and any ordinance so made shall, for the space of not more than six months from its promulgation, have the like force of law as an Act passed by the Indian legislature; but the power of making ordinances under this section is subject to the like restrictions as the power of the Indian legislature to make laws; and any ordinance made under this section is subject to the like disallowance as an Act passed by the Indian legislature, and may be controlled or superseded by any such Act.

SCH. IX, S. 72—WHETHER EMBODIES ROYAL PREROGATIVE. When the powers of the Crown have been crystallized in a statute, as they have in sec. 72, Sch. 9, the exercise of those powers by virtue of the provisions of that statute does not constitute an exercise of the Royal prerogative, but the powers are exercised by virtue of the authority of the statute, S. 72 does not deal with the question of prerogative at all. I.L.R. (1943) Nag. 369=1943 N.L.J. 311=A.I.R. 1943 Nag. 211. Legislation by Ordinance and ordinary legislation—Difference between. Legislation by ordinance has no doubt been given the same effect as ordinary legislation and the ambit as to subject-matter is the same in both cases. But there are two fundamental points of difference: One is that by the very terms of S. 72 of Sch. IX the operation of the Ordinance is limited to a period of six months and secondly, it is avowedly the exercise of a special power intended to meet an emergency. It is only consistent with the special character of this kind of law making that the responsibility for it should have been laid on the Governor-General whose personal judgment and discretion must be taken to be a very important factor. It may be that his position too cannot be described as that of the "agent" or "delegate," but the very conception underlying the ordinance-making power so connects it with the personal judgment and discretion of the Governor-General that the objection against delegation to subordinate executive authorities of any matter of principal is a serious one. 47 C.W.N. (F.B.) 41=6 F.L.J. 79=A.I.R. 1943 F.C. 86=(1943) 2 M.L.J. 207 (F.C.).

"EMERGENCY", MEANING OF.—Per Sen, J.—"Emergency" as used in S. 72 of Sch. 9 is something in existence which calls for immediate action. 44 Cr.L.J. 673=A.I.R. 1943 Cal. 285 (S.B.) See also 1943 Cal. 377=47 C.W.N. 802.

OTHER TERMS EXPLAINED.—The words "and may be controlled or superseded by any such Act" in S. 72, Sch. 9 refer only to a subsequent Act, an Act passed for the purpose of controlling or superseding the Ordinance, and cannot refer to an Act like the Defence of India Act passed previous to the Ordinance in a wholly different situation. Therefore, it cannot be said that Ordinance 2 of 1942 is controlled by the Defence of India Act. 1944 P.W.N. 420=22 Pat. 433=1943 Pat. 245 (S.B.).

LEGISLATION BY ORDINANCE—MATTERS IN LIST II.—The Governor-General has the same powers which the Central Indian Legislature would have had at the time when the particular Ordinance is made and promulgated. By a declaration of emergency by the Governor-General under sec. 102, the Central Indian Legislature acquires the power to legislate on matters included in List II. If the Governor-General makes and promulgates an Ordinance after he has declared a grave emergency under S. 102, that Ordinance can directly deal with matters enumerated in List II. The object which Parliament has in view was to centralise powers "in the Centre" when a grave emergency appeared. 47 C.W.N. 802=A.I.R. 1943 Cal. 377 (S.B.); I. L.R. (1943) 2 Cal. 1=(1943) 2 M.L.J. 207 (F.C.).

EMERGENCY—GOVERNOR-GENERAL IS SOLE JUDGE—RECITAL IN PREAMBLE.—The Governor-General alone is to be the sole judge under the Act of the existence of an emergency and, therefore, the mere recital in the preamble of the Ordinance that there was an emergency is enough. 22 Pat. 160=1942 F.L.J. 270=23 P.L.T. 737=A.I.R. 1943 Pat. 24 (F.B.).

DECLARATION OF EMERGENCY—COURT'S POWER TO GO BEHIND.—Whether the Governor-General has declared that an emergency has arisen necessitating an Ordinance, the declaration precludes the Courts from either inquiring whether an emergency exists or whether the Ordinance is conducive to the peace and good government of British India and apt to meet the emergency. 22 Pat. 565=24 P.L.T. 302=A.I.R. 1943 Pat. 346. See also (1946) 1 M.L.J. 145 (Effect of S. 317 and Schedule IX). As to scope of Ordinance making powers and List II subjects see (1944) 2 M.L.J. 167; 45 Bom.L.R. 50; (1943) 2 M.L.J. 463. Whether there was any emergency justifying the making of an Ordinance by the Governor-General is a matter falling entirely within the province of the Governor-General, and is not open for examination by the Courts. The sole Judge of this is the Governor-General and his decision is final. 23 Pat. 457=A.I.R. 1944 Pat. 373. See also I.L.R. (1943) Kar. 449=A.I.R. 1944 Sind 1 (F.B.).

LEGISLATION BY ORDINANCE—PROVISION IN ORDINANCE THAT ITS VALIDITY CANNOT BE CHALLENGED, Per Mitter, J.—The Governor-General under S. 72 of the Act cannot legislate on matters on which the Central Indian Legislature cannot legislate. The only difference is that an emergency must exist (of which he is the sole judge) before he can embark on legislation by Ordinance, and the legislation must be for the peace and good Govern-

THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA (AMENDMENT) ACT, 1929.

(2 & 3 Geo. 6, Chapter, 66).

[1st September, 1939.

An Act to amend the Government of India Act, 1935.

Be it enacted by the King's most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows:—

Amendments as to Proclamations of Emergency. 1. (1) After section one hundred and twenty-six of the Government of India Act, 1935, there shall be inserted the following section:—

“126-A. Where a Proclamation of Emergency is in operation whereby the Governor-General has declared that the security of India is threatened by war—

(a) the executive authority of the Federation shall extend to the giving of directions to a Province as to the manner in which the executive authority thereof is to be exercised, and any directions so given shall for the purposes of the last preceding section be deemed to be directions given thereunder;

(b) any power of the Federal Legislature to make laws for a Province with respect to any matter shall include power to make laws as respects a Province conferring powers and imposing duties, or authorising the conferring of powers and the imposition of duties, upon the Federation or officers and authorities of the Federation as respects that matter, notwithstanding that it is one with respect to which the Provincial Legislature also has power to make laws;

ment of British India. But whether the particular provisions which he chooses to enact would promote peace or good Government is a matter which is entirely within his judgment. The propriety of the particular piece of legislation cannot be questioned by any outside body. But he cannot act in excess of the powers conferred on him by Parliament. Subject to what has been indicated above he cannot make a provision in his Ordinance that the validity of its provisions or a particular provision therein shall not be challenged in Courts of Judicature in India on the ground of ultra vires his powers. Such a provision would be illegal and would be discarded by Courts, on the principle that he would thereby be able to extend his power to make laws which Parliament never intended for him. 47 C.W.N. 802=A.I.R. 1943 Cal. 377 (S.B.).

ORDINANCE—RETROSPECTIVE OPERATION.—IF CAN BE GIVEN.—Governor-General has power to give retrospective operation to his Ordinance. 47 C.W.N. 802=A.I.R. 1943 Cal. 377 (S.B.). The exercise of the ordinance making power under the Government of India Act of 1935, is limited in two ways: (1) by the limitation as to the circumstances in which it can be exercised, and (2) by the limitation as to the time during which any measure so enacted may remain in operation. The existence of an emergency is a condition precedent to the exercise of the power. It is misleading to assume that the Ordinance making authority enjoys plenary powers of legislation and then seek to deduce therefrom the inference that it must have the power to enact a provision with retrospective operation. Assuming that the ordinary legislature can pass a “retro-active” law, it would not necessarily follow that the Ordinance making authority must also have the power to pass a “retro-active” law. 6 F.L.J. 151=48 C.W.N. (F.R.) 1=A.I.R. 1943 F.C. 75=(1943) 2 M.L.J. 468 (F.C.).

INDIA (PROCLAMATION OF EMERGENCY) ACT, 1946.

[9 AND 10 GEO. 6, CHAPTER 23.]

An Act to amend the Government of India Act, 1935, as respects the effect of Proclamations of Emergency under section one hundred and two of that Act.

[14th February, 1946.]

Be it enacted by the King's most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows :—

1. In sub-section (1) of section one hundred and two of the Government of India Act, 1935 (which enables the Central Legislature, where a Proclamation of Emergency is in force, to make laws for a Province or any part thereof with respect to any of the matters enumerated in the Provincial Legislative List), after the words "enumerated in the Provincial Legislative List" there shall be inserted the words "or to make laws, whether or not for a Province or any part thereof, with respect to any matter not enumerated in any of the Lists in the Seventh Schedule to this Act."

Amendment of section 102 of Government of India Act, 1935.

2. (1) Subject to the provisions of this section, this Act shall be deemed to have come into operation on the commencement of Part III of the Government of India Act, 1935.

Commencement and transitional provision.

(2) Where, before the passing of this Act, a High Court in British India has given a judgment or made a final order in any civil proceedings involving a question as to the validity of any law, ordinance, order, bye-law, rule or regulation passed or made in India, any party to the proceedings may, at any time within ninety days from the passing of this Act, apply—

(a) where an appeal from the judgment or order has been decided by the Federal Court, to the Federal Court; and

(b) in any other case, to the High Court, for a review of the proceedings in the light of the provisions of this Act, and the Court to which the application is made shall review the proceedings accordingly and make such order, if any, varying or reversing the judgment or order previously given or made, as may be necessary to give effect to the provisions of this Act :

Provided that, on any such application, the Court may make such order as to the costs of the application and of the proceedings as may be just, and, where it varies or reverses the original judgment or order, may order any party in whose favour the variation or reversal operates to pay to any party adversely affected by the variation or reversal such compensation as may be just for any loss sustained by him which is attributable to anything reasonably done by him in reliance on the original judgment or order.

cally propelled or not, including tramcars.

48-B. Taxes on the consumption or sale of electricity, subject, however, to the provisions of section one hundred and fifty-four-A of this Act."

Sec. 2.—Pending suit filed in British Indian Court before Government of India Act, 1935 in respect of property situate in India and Burma—Separation of Burma Jurisdiction to try suit after separation, not taken away as regards property in Burma. I.L.R. (1942) Mad. 376=5 Fed.L.J. (H.C.) 14=55 L.W. 45=A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 614=(1942) 11 M.L.J. 187.

(3) After section one hundred and fifty-four of the Act, there shall be inserted the following section:—

“154-A. Save in so far as any Federal law may otherwise provide, no Exemptions from taxes Provincial law or law of a Federated State shall impose, or authorise the imposition of, a tax on the consumption or sale of electricity (whether produced by a Government or other persons) which is—

(a) consumed by the Federal Government, or sold to the Federal Government for consumption by that Government; or

(b) consumed in the construction, maintenance or operation of a Federal Railway by the Federal Railway Authority or a railway company operating that Railway, or sold to that Authority or any such railway company for consumption in the construction, maintenance or operation of a Federal Railway; and any such law imposing, or authorising the imposition of, a tax on the sale of electricity shall secure that the price of electricity sold to the Federal Government for consumption by that Government, or to the Federal Railway Authority or any such railway company as aforesaid for consumption in the construction, maintenance or operation of a Federal Railway, shall be less by the amount of the tax than the price charged to other consumers of a substantial quantity of electricity.”

Amendments of Ss. 88, 89 and 90.

4. (1) At the end of sub-section (3) of section eighty-eight of the principal Act there shall be inserted the following proviso:—

“Provided that, for the purposes of the provisions of this Act relating to the effect of an Act of a Provincial Legislature which is repugnant to an Act of the Federal Legislature or an existing Indian Law with respect to a matter enumerated in the Concurrent Legislative List, an ordinance promulgated under this section in pursuance of instructions from the Governor-General, acting in his discretion, shall be deemed to be an Act of the Provincial Legislature which has been reserved for the consideration of the Governor-General and assented to by him.”

(2) For the proviso to sub-section (1) of the said section eighty-eight there shall be substituted the following proviso:—

“Provided that the Governor—

(a) shall exercise his individual judgment as respects the promulgation of any ordinance under this section, if—

(i) a Bill containing the same provisions would under this Act have required his or the Governor-General's previous sanction to the introduction thereof into the Legislature; or

(ii) an Act of the Provincial Legislature containing the same provisions would under this Act have been invalid unless, having been reserved for the required his or the Governor-General's previous sanction to the introduction pleasure, it had received the assent of the Governor-General or of His Majesty; and

(b) shall not without instructions from the Governor-General, acting in his discretion, promulgate any such ordinance if—

(i) a Bill containing the same provisions would under this act have required the Governor-General's previous sanction for the introduction thereof into the Legislature; or

(ii) he would have deemed it necessary to reserve a Bill containing the same provisions for the consideration of the Governor-General; or

(iii) an Act of the Provincial Legislature containing the same provisions would under this Act have been invalid unless, having been reserved for the consideration of the Governor-General or for the signification of His Majesty's pleasure, it had received the assent of the Governor-General or of His Majesty."

(3) In the proviso to sub-section (4) of section eighty-nine, and the proviso to sub-section (3) of section 90, of the Principal Act, after the words "repugnant to an Act of the Federal Legislature" there shall be inserted the words "or an existing Indian Law with respect to a matter enumerated in the Concurrent "Legislative List."

5. At the end of section two hundred and two of the principal Act there shall be inserted the following sub-section:—

"(2) If the office of any other judge of the Federal Court becomes vacant, or if any such judge is appointed to act temporarily as Chief Justice of India or is by reason of absence, or for any other reason, unable to perform the duties of his office, the Governor-General may in his discretion appoint a judge of a High Court who is duly qualified for appointment as a judge of the Federal Court to act temporarily as a judge of that Court, and the person so appointed shall, unless the Governor-General in his discretion thinks fit to revoke his appointment, be deemed to be a judge of the Federal Court until some person appointed by His Majesty to the vacant office has entered on the duties thereof, or until the permanent judge has resumed his duties."

6. For the proviso to sub-section (1) of section two hundred and nineteen of the principal Act (which enumerates the Courts in British India which are to be deemed to be High Courts for the purpose of that Act) there shall be substituted the following proviso:—

"Provided that, if provision has been made, whether before or after the commencement of Part III of this Act—

(a) by His Majesty by Letters Patent for the establishment of a High Court to replace any Court or Courts mentioned in this sub-section; or

(b) by the appropriate Legislature in India for the establishment of a Chief Court to replace the Judicial Commissioner's Court in the North-West Frontier Province, or the Judicial Commissioner's Court in Sind, then, as from the establishment of the new Court, this section shall have effect as if the new Court were mentioned therein in lieu of the Court or Courts so replaced".

Amendment of Legislative Lists with respect to Universities.

7. (1) For paragraph 17 of the Provincial Legislative List there shall be substituted the following paragraph:—

"17. Education, including Universities other than those specified in paragraph 13 of List 1."

(2) The Federal Legislature shall not by virtue of paragraph 33 of the Federal Legislative List (which relates to corporations and in particular, to Corporations, whether trading or not, with objects not confined to one unit), and the Provincial Legislature shall not by virtue of paragraph 33 of the Provincial Legislative List (which relates to other corporations) have power to make any law with respect to universities, and accordingly—

(a) at the end of the first of those paragraphs, there shall be added the words "but not including Universities"; and

(b) in the second of those paragraphs, for the words "other than corporations specified in List I" there shall be substituted the words "not being corporations specified in List I or Universities".

(3) This section shall come into operation on the first day of April nineteen hundred and forty.

An Act to amend the Law relating to Government Savings Banks.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the law relating to the payment of deposits in Government Savings Banks; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Preamble.

Preliminary.

Short title.

1. This Act may be called THE GOVERNMENT SAVINGS BANKS ACT, 1873.

Local extent.

2. It extends to the whole of British India.

[Commencement.] Rep. by the Repealing Act, 1874 (XVI of 1874.)

2. [Repeal of Act XXVI of 1855] Rep. by the Repealing Act, 1873 (XII of 1873).

Interpretation clause.

3. In this Act—

“depositor” means a person by whom, or on whose behalf, money has been heretofore, or shall be hereafter, deposited in a Government Savings Bank; and “deposit” means money so deposited:

¹ [“Secretary” means, in the case of a Post Office Savings Bank, the Post Master-General appointed for the area in which the Savings Bank is situate:]

[“minor” means a person who is not deemed to have attained his majority under the Indian Majority Act, 1875.] (Subs. by Act XIII of 1916).

Deposits belonging to the Estates of deceased Persons.

4. If a depositor dies and probate of his will or letters of administration ditor produced to the Secretary of the Government Savings Bank in which the deposit is, then—

(a) if the deposit does not exceed five thousand rupees, the Secretary may pay the same to any person appearing to him to be entitled to receive it or to administer the estate of the deceased, and

(b) within the aforesaid limit of five thousand rupees, any officer employed in the management of a Government Savings Bank who is empowered in this behalf by a general or special order of the Central Government may, to the extent to which he is empowered by such order and subject to any general or special orders of the Secretary in this behalf, pay the deposit to any person appearing to him to be entitled to receive it or to administer the estate.] (Substituted by Act II of 1943).

Payment to be a discharge.

5. Such payment shall be a full discharge from all further liability in respect of the money so paid:

But nothing herein contained precludes any executor or administrator, or other representative of the deceased, from recovering from the person receiving the same the amount remaining in his hands after deducting the amount of all debts or other demands lawfully paid or discharged by him in due course of administration.

And any creditor or claimant against the estate of the deceased may recover his debt or claim out of the money paid under this Act or ¹[* * *] ²Act No. XXVI of 1855 to any person, and remaining in his hands unadministered, in the same manner and to the same extent as if the latter had obtained letters of administration of the estate of the deceased.

6. The Secretary of any such Bank ³[or any officer empowered under section 4] may take such security as he thinks necessary from any person to whom he pays any money under section 4 for the due administration of the money so paid, and he may assign the said security to any person interested in such administration.

7. For the purpose of ascertaining the rights of the person claiming to be entitled as aforesaid, the Secretary of any such Bank ⁴[or any officer empowered under section 4] may take evidence on oath or affirmation according to the law for the time being relating to oaths and affirmations.

Any person who, upon such oath or affirmation, makes any statement which is false, and which he either knows or believes to be false or does not believe to be true, shall be deemed guilty of an offence under section 193 of the Indian Penal Code.

8. Where the amount of the deposit belonging to the estate of a deceased depositor does not exceed ⁴[three thousand rupees], such amount shall be excluded in computing the fee chargeable, under the Court-Fees Act, 1870, on the probate, or letters of administration, or certificate (if any), granted in respect of his property:

LEG. REF.

¹ The words "the said" repealed by Act XII of 1891.

² Act XXVI of 1855 repealed by S. 2 of this Act.

³ The words "or any officer empowered under S. 4" inserted by Act XVI of 1923, S. 4.

⁴ The words "three thousand rupees" were substituted for the words "one thousand rupees" by Act XVII of 1917.

Provided that the person claiming such probate or letters or certificate shall exhibit to the Court authorised to grant the same a certificate of the amount of the deposit in any Government Savings Bank belonging to the estate of the deceased. Such certificate shall be signed by the Secretary of such Bank, and the Court shall receive it as evidence of the said amount.

Act not to apply to deposits belonging to estates of European soldiers or deserters.

9. Nothing hereinbefore contained applies to money belonging to the estate of any European Officer, non-commissioned officer or soldier dying in Her Majesty's service in India, or of any European who, at the time of his death, was a deserter from the said service.

Deposits belonging to Minors.

10. Any deposit made by, or on behalf of, any minor may be paid to him personally if he made the deposit, or to his guardian for his use if the deposit was made by any person other than the minor, together with the interest accrued thereon.

The receipt of any minor or guardian for money paid to him under this section shall be a sufficient discharge therefor.

11. All payments of deposits heretofore made to minors or their guardians by any Secretary of a Government Savings Bank shall be deemed to have been made in accordance with law.

Legalization of like payments heretofore made.

Deposits belonging to Lunatics.

Payment of deposits belonging to lunatics.

12. If any depositor becomes insane or otherwise incapable of managing his affairs, and if such insanity or incapacity is proved to the satisfaction of the Secretary of the Bank in which his deposit may be, such Secretary may, from time to time, make payments out of the deposit to any proper person, and the receipt of such person, for money paid under this section, shall be a sufficient discharge therefor.

Where a committee or manager of the depositor's estate has been duly appointed, nothing in this section authorizes payments to any person other than such committee or manager.

Deposits made by Married Women.

13. Any deposit made by or on behalf of a married woman, or by or on behalf of a woman who afterwards marries, may be paid to her, whether or not the Indian Succession Act, 1865, section 4, applies to her marriage; and her receipt for money paid to her under this section shall be a sufficient discharge therefor.

Payment of married women's deposits.

Rules.

Rules regulating certificates under section 8, and payment under section 10, 12 or 13.

14. All certificates under section 8, and all payments under section 10, section 12 or section 13, shall be respectively granted and made by the Secretary of the Bank, subject to such rules consistent with this Act as the Central Government may, from time to time, prescribe.

THE GOVERNMENT TRADING TAXATION ACT (III OF 1926).

[24th February, 1926.

An Act to determine the liability of certain Governments to taxation in British India in respect of trading operations.

WHEREAS it is expedient to determine the liability to taxation for the time being in force in British India of the Government of any part of His Majesty's Dominions, exclusive of British India, in respect of any trade or business carried on by or on behalf of such Government; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title and commencement.

1. (1) This Act may be called THE GOVERNMENT TRADING TAXATION ACT, 1926.

(2) It shall come into force on such date as the Central Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, appoint.

and Reasons of the Bill which became Act III of 1862, see Calcutta Gazette, 1862, p. 466. For proceedings in Council relating to the Bill, see ibid., Supplement, pp. 28 and 71.

³ Substituted for "Government of India" by A.O., 1937.

⁴ Substituted for the inscription 'Government of India' by A.O., 1937.

tion Act falls within the legislative powers conferred by sec. 65 of the Government of India Act, and is therefore infra vires the Government of India, I.L.R. (1941) Bom. 391=43 Bom.L.R. 84=1941 Bom. 93; 1930 A.L.J. 579=1930 A. 389. The Government Trading Taxation Act applies wherever a Government specified in the Act, i.e., a Dominion Government, including the Government of a Native Indian State, carries on a business anywhere. There is no justification for holding that the Act is confined to business carried on in British India. The title, preamble and the operative part of sec. 2 of the Act make it perfectly clear that it applies to every case in which a Dominion Government is carrying on a business, and when that happens, the Dominion Government is liable to Indian income-tax as though it were a company. I.L.R. (1941) Bom. 391=1941 Bom. 93. Applicability to Tehari State Government Trading Taxation Act of 1926, is applicable to the Tehari State. 1930 A.L.J. 579=1930 A. 389.

2. (1) Where a trade or business of any kind is carried on by or on behalf of the Government of any part of His Majesty's Liability of certain Governments to taxation in respect of trading operations.

Dominions, exclusive of British India, that Government shall, in respect of the trade or business and of all operations connected therewith, all property occupied in British India and all goods owned in British India for the purposes thereof, and all income arising in connection therewith, be liable—

(a) to taxation under the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, in the same manner and to the same extent as in the like case a company would be liable;

(b) to all other taxation for the time being in force in British India in the same manner as in the like case any other person would be liable.

(2) For the purposes of the levy and collection of income-tax under the Indian Income-tax Act, 1922, in accordance with the provisions of sub-section (1), any Government to which that sub-section applies shall be deemed to be a company within the meaning of that Act, and the provisions of that Act shall apply accordingly.

(3) In this section the expression "His Majesty's Dominions" includes any territory which is under His Majesty's protection or in respect of which a mandate is being exercised by the Government of any part of His Majesty's Dominions.

SEC. 2.—The effect of the Act is to and to the definition of "company" in sec. 2 (6) of the Indian Income-tax Act, so as to include a Dominion Government deemed to be a company under Act III of 1922 and where a Dominion Government is carrying on a business anywhere, it is liable to British Indian Income-tax Act in respect of the income, profits and gains of that business which accrue or arise or are received in British India, as if it were a company working under like circumstances under the Income-tax Act. I.L.R. (1941) Bom. 391=43 Bom.L.R. 84=1941 Bom. 93. Where the sale of forest produce grown in a Native State was arranged in British India and the money was received in British India and what was done in the State itself was merely the acceptance of the offer of the purchaser, held, that the transactions of sale amounted to "Trading in British India" within the meaning of sec. 2. 1980 A.L.J. 579=1930 A. 389. Where a Native State sold timber grown in its territory in two places in British India and the income so derived was sought to be assessed to income-tax, held, that the income was not in the nature of capital and that it was assessable to income-tax. 1930 A.L.J. 579=1930 A. 389. Though the Government Trading Taxation Act came into force only in April, 1926, the Government of a Native State carrying on business in British India is liable to assessment in respect of transactions which took place in the previous year. 1930 A. 389. The income from the investments made by a Native State Bank of a part of its surplus funds in the Government of India Securities must be held to be profits from the business of the bank received in British India and as such taxable under the Indian Income-tax Act by reason of the Government Trading Taxation Act. A property situated in British India, taken over by such a Native State Bank from a debtor who is a subject of that State, in part satisfaction of a loan advanced to him is not property occupied in British India for purposes of the business, but the income derived from such property is income arising in connection with such business and in that sense falls to be taxed under the Indian Income-tax Act. Profits made by such a bank on the sale of its investments in Government of India Securities, being the surplus realised by it over the cost price of such investments, which are not appropriated as accretions to capital but treated as profits, are assessable to income-tax under the Income-tax Act. I.L.R. (1941) Bom. 391=43 Bom.L.R. 84=1941 Bom. 93.

SEC. 2 (1) (a).—There is no justification for the view that the Government Trading Taxation Act is confined to business carried on in British India. There are no words in the Act confirming the operation of sec. 2 to trades or businesses carried on in British India. The words of the section are quite general in their terms. The Patiala State Bank, owned and controlled by the Maharaja of Patiala who constitutes the government of that State had its head office and all branches in Patiala, and it did not carry on business in British India. But in the year ending 31st March, 1935, the Bank collected and received in British India through the hands of its agents sums representing the interest on certain Government of India securities that it had acquired in the course and for the purpose of its business and also a substantial sum of money representing the profits accruing to it in respect of the sale at a profit of various investments similarly acquired. All these sums of money represented profits or gains of the Bank's business for the year in question and were sought to be assessed to income-tax under sec. 2 (1) (a) of the Government Trading Taxation Act. Held, that sec. 2 of the Act applied to the business of the bank al-

[21st March, 1890.]

An Act to consolidate and amend the law relating to Guardian and Ward.

WHEREAS it is expedient to consolidate and amend the law relating to guardian and ward; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

CHAPTER I. PRELIMINARY.

Title, extent and commencement.

1. (1) This Act may be called THE GUARDIANS AND WARDS ACT, 1890.

SEC. 1: GENERAL.—Difference between the old Act (Act XL of 1858) and the present Act. 19 C. 301. Act is exhaustive. 30 M.

807—24 I.C. 290 (P.C.). The provisions of the Code will apply to proceedings under this Act unless the contrary is expressly de-

(2) It extends to the whole of British India, inclusive of [* * *]¹ British Baluchistan; and

(3) It shall come into force on the first day of July, 1890.

2. [Repeal.] Rep by the Repealing Act (I of 1938), S. 2 and Sch.

LEG. REF.

clared therein. 7 P.R. 1898. Nature of proceedings under the Act. See 107 I.C. 606. Proceedings under the Act cannot be attacked for lack of formality and precision of procedure which the C. P. Code exacts from a Court in India in suit properly so called. 44 A. 587=1922 A. 338. The exercise of parental jurisdiction in guardianship matters by a District Judge cannot be guided by hard and fast rules, and if the order passed is on the whole a reasonable one, it will not be interfered with on appeal. 44 A. 587. A guardian cannot be appointed to the property of the minor member of an undivided Hindu family possessed of no separate property. A guardian of the person of such a minor may be appointed. 19 B. 309 (F. B.). See also 54 B. 75; 43 P.R. 1909=1 I.C. 745; 25 A. 407; 30 B. 152. As to necessity for sanction of Court for marriage of minor, see 28 S.L.R. 75. Admission by guardian or by collector as representing the Court of Wards will not necessarily bind the minor. 14 P. 70.

POWERS OF HIGH COURT.—The High Court has the power to appoint a guardian for an infant or his estate, irrespective of the Act. 16 B. 636. See also 1913 M.W.N. 906=21 I.C. 545; 54 B. 75. The powers and the jurisdiction of the Court, vested in it cannot be ousted by any agreement of the parties. 4 Bom.L.R. 963. Jurisdiction of the District Court in regard to minors is confined only to the powers expressly conferred on it by the Guardians and Wards Act. 40 B. 600=18 Bom.L.R. 582. Guardian—Appointment of—Infant residing out of the Ordinary Original Civil Jurisdiction of the High Court—Powers of the High Court. See 57 C. 533. The powers conferred upon the District Court are totally dissimilar to its powers as a Court of Ordinary Civil Jurisdiction and so an order purporting to be made under the Act which is not warranted by its provisions cannot be considered as a decree in a suit. 36 M. 39=13 I.C. 251=22 M.L.J. 193. There is nothing in the Act to prevent the Court from making a declaration that a person appointed by will is the guardian of a minor. 3 M.L.J. 182. When a matter of guardianship is before the Court under the Act, it is incumbent on the Court to hear such evidence as the parties desire to put before. Where it does not do so the High Court can interfere in revision. 34 C.W.N. 763=1931 C. 59.

NATURE OF JURISDICTION.—In dealing with the custody of illegitimate children, the Courts in England are governed by equitable rules and exercise equitable jurisdiction. One of these rules is that the desire of the mother of an illegitimate child as to its custody is primarily to be considered. 5 Bur.L.T. 164=17 I.C. 926. This equitable rule should be adopted in the case of parties in this country, neither the father nor the mother has any absolute right to the custody of their illegitimate child. 17 I.C. 926. The District Court should not assume direct responsibility under the Act for the marriage of minors for whom a personal guardian has been appointed. 98 P.R. 1914=27 I.C. 381 (22 B. 509, Foll.). There is no provision in the Act authorizing the Court to compel a person in possession of a minor's property to hand it over to the person appointed guardian. 13 I.C. 386. The scheme of the Act is to entrust the District Court, with the duty of looking after the welfare of the minor's person and property and for this purpose, gives it power to appoint a guardian. The guardian is really the hand of the District Court and is to act under its advice (control and constant supervision). The enforcement of rights or claims of the ward or against the ward is left to be regulated by ordinary proceedings by suits and the Act does not provide any machinery for decisions upon or enforcing any such claims though so far as the guardian is concerned, the District Court is vested with very wide disciplinary powers over him in order that it may enforce the orders passed against him under the Act. 36 M. 39=22 M.L.J. 193=13 I.C. 251. Agency tract—Ex parte order of agent appointing guardian of infant—Appeal lies to High Court. 18 M. 227. A mandatory order directing the defendant to take possession of the persons of infants and bring them back to India, should not be made, as, if the minor resisted the defendant, it would expose him to a proceeding under a writ of habeas corpus. 38 M. 807=41 I.A. 314=27 M.L.J. 30 (P.C.). Unauthorized alienation by a certificate guardian in excess of the powers is void. 18 C. 259 (doubted in 24 C. 265=1 C.W.N. 453). See Notes under sec. 31, infra. Orders apparently under this Act made without jurisdiction—Proceedings not had bona fide, orders in—Consent obtained by judicial pressure—Judge, no arbitrator, see 16 C.W.N. 444. Courts have a discretion to appoint a person other than the one who on the ground of relationship may have a prior claim. 5 M.L.T. 208=4 I.C. 1117. Effect of Act on inherent jurisdiction of Court. 19 C.W.N. 84. In enquiry under the Act, interest of minor to be the predominant consideration in making the order—Protracted enquiry unnecessary. 249 P.L.R. 1914.

3. This Act shall be read subject to every enactment heretofore or hereafter passed relating to any Court of Wards by ¹[any competent legislature, authority or person in British India]; and nothing in this Act shall be construed to affect, or in any way derogate from, the jurisdiction or authority of any Court of Wards, or to take away any power possessed by ¹[any High Court established in British India by Letters Patent].

Definitions.

4. In this Act, unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context,—

(1) "minor" means a person who, under the provisions of the Indian Majority Act, 1875, is to be deemed not to have attained his majority:

(2) "guardian" means a person having the care of the person of a minor or of his property, or of both his person and property:

LEG. REF.

HABEAS CORPUS.—A Mahomedan wife, divorced by her husband, who seeks to recover custody of a child of about 4 years, as its lawful guardian under the Mahomedan Law, from her husband, should seek her remedy not under sec. 491, Cr.P. Code, but under the Guardians and Wards Act, which is a special Act dealing with a special subject, i.e., the subject of minors. When the remedy under the Guardians and Wards Act is open, the High Court will not exercise its discretionary power under sec. 491, Cr.P. Code, which is only a general power in the nature of a habeas corpus. 1934 A.L.J. 946=1935 A. 55.

WHO CAN APPLY, AND FOR WHAT PURPOSE.—Any friend of the minor can invoke the protection of the Court in case of a minor being ill-treated, but a stranger must satisfy the Court that welfare of the minor would be better secured by removing the father from the lawful custody. 64 I.C. 576=23 Bom. L.R. 1225. Thus in castes not permitting widow-remarriage where infant girls are married, a stranger cannot successfully deprive the father of the custody of the infant daughter who is about to be given in marriage. 23 Bom.L.R. 1225. There is no machinery under the Act to work out the right of the mother under Muhammadan Law to visit her child in the custody of the father as guardian. 59 I.C. 562=13 Bur.L.T. 86. The provisions of the Act should not be put in force in order to enable a husband to get possession of the person of his wife. 67 I.C. 882=3 P.L.J. 293. See also Notes under sec. 25, infra. It is well settled that the manager of a joint Hindu family is regarded as guardian of the interest in the co-parcenary property of all the minor members of the family and therefore no certificated guardian can be appointed for such minor. 1936 O.W.N. 354=1936 Oudh 270.

SEC. 3.—Appellate Court, power or, to make ad interim order appointing guardian. 3 C.L.J. 29 (28 C. 734, R.) Foll. in 88 C. 927=3 C.L.J. 67. A minor cannot sue through a next friend for possession of the property from the defendant, which the latter claims to hold as de jure guardian. The proper remedy is to apply for appointment of guardian of property under this Act. 21 Nag.L.R. 75=1925 N. 328. See also 112 I.C. 873; 57 C. 533.

SEC. 4 (2).—The word "guardian" is used in a very wide sense and does not necessarily mean a guardian duly appointed or declared by Court. Any person who has the care of the person of the minor is a guardian of the person and any person who has the care of the property of the minor is a guardian of the property within the meaning of the Act. 54 A. 128=1932 A.L.J. 21=1932 A. 215. The word "guardian" as defined in S. 4 (2) is a very wide term and must include a father, who is admitted on all hands and in every system of law to be the natural guardian of his children; and the word "care" in the definition includes the constructive custody of the father though the child is residing with another person. Where the plaintiff, a Mahomedan, sent his minor daughter along with his wife to his mother-in-law and after the death of the wife there, the daughter continued to live with the maternal grandmother for nine years, still, the father is the guardian of the minor as she is in his constructive custody. 1935 O.W.N. 1096=1935 Oudh 492 (F.B.). A de facto guardian is a guardian within S. 4 (2) and is removed from guardianship under S. 7 (2) by the Court's order appointing guardian. 51 I.C. 236=36 M.L.J. 189. A de facto guardian is a "guardian" within the meaning of S. 4 (2) and on his removal or discharge the Court has power under S. 41 (3) to require him to deliver any property in his possession or control belonging to the ward. 1938 N.L.J. 202=1938 Nag. 399. Person holding the property of the minor's share by virtue of a certain alleged will must be deemed to have been a person having the care of the minor's property and therefore within S. 4 (2). 1934 L. 323.

SEC. 4 (2) AND (3): "GUARDIAN"—MEANING.—From the definitions of "guardian" and "ward" as given in S. 4, it appears that the word "guardian" is of general import and includes natural and testamentary guardians appointed by Court. 27 A.L.J. 1248=1929 A. 879=52 A. 110, and even de facto guardians. See also 36 Bom.L.R. 668=

(3) "Ward" means a minor for whose person or property, or both, there is a guardian :

(4) "District Court" has the meaning assigned to that expression in the Code of Civil Procedure, and includes a High Court in the exercise of its ordinary original civil jurisdiction :

¹ (5) "the Court" means—

(a) the District Court having jurisdiction to entertain an application under this Act for an order appointing or declaring a person to be a guardian ; or

(b) where a guardian has been appointed or declared in pursuance of any such application—

(i) the Court which, or the Court of the officer who, appointed or declared the guardian or is under this Act deemed to have appointed or declared the guardian ; or

(ii) in any matter relating to the person of the ward, the District Court having jurisdiction in the place where the ward for the time being ordinarily resides or

(c) in respect of any proceeding transferred under S. 4-A, the Court of the officer to whom such proceeding has been transferred.]

(6) "Collector" means the chief officer in charge of the revenue administration of a district, and includes any officer whom the Provincial Government, by notification in the Official Gazette, may, by name or in virtue of his office, appoint² to be a Collector in any local area, or with respect to any class of persons, for all or any of the purposes of this Act :

(7) "European British subject" means an European British subject as defined in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1882, and includes any Christian of European descent ; and

(8) "prescribed" means prescribed by rules made by the High Court under this Act.

³[4-A. (1) The High Court may, by general or special order, empower any officer exercising original civil jurisdiction subordinate to a District Court, or authorise the Judge of any District Court to empower any such officer subordinate to him, to dispose of any proceedings under this Act transferred to such officer under the provisions of this section.

Power to confer jurisdiction on subordinate judicial officers and to transfer proceedings to such officers.

(2) The Judge of a District Court may, by order in writing, transfer at any stage any proceeding under this Act pending in his Court for disposal to any officer subordinate to him empowered under sub-section (1).

(3) The Judge of a District Court may at any stage transfer to his own Court or to any officer subordinate to him empowered under sub-section (1) any proceeding under this Act pending in the Court of any other such officer.

(1) the Presidency of Bombay, see the Bom. R. & O., Vol. I.

(2) the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh, see U.P. List of Local R. & O., Vol. I.

The powers of the Local Government under this sub-section have been delegated to the Commissioner in Sind. Vide Notification No. 3453, dated 17th May, 1899, Bom. Govt. Gazette, 1899, Pt. I, p. 686.

³ Inserted by Act IV of 1926, S. 2.

1934 B. 311; 1938 Nag. 399. A charitable society is not a 'person' within the meaning of S. 4 (2) and it cannot be appointed guardian of the property of a minor. 1930 C. 397=58 C. 15.

Sec. 4 (3).—"Ward" as defined in S. 4 (3) is wide enough to include every minor who has a guardian, even though the guardian may not be appointed under the Act. 1935 O.W.N. 1096=1935 Oudh 492 (F.B.).

Sec. 4 (5).—Minors who had left before the institution of the suit for England and were living there, were not "ordinarily resident" in the district and hence were beyond the jurisdiction of the District Court. 38 M. 807=41 I.A. 314=27 M.L.J. 30 (P.C.). Under the Act a suit inter partes is not the form of procedure prescribed for proceedings in a District Court. 38 M. 807 (P.C.).

Sec. 4 (5) (b) (ii).—"For the time being ordinarily resides"—Interpretation. See 40 P.L.R. 64.

(4) When any proceedings are transferred under this section in any case in which a guardian has been appointed or declared, the Judge of the District Court may, by order in writing, declare that the Court of the Judge or officer to whom they are transferred shall, for all or any of the purposes of this Act, be deemed to be the Court which appointed or declared the guardian.]

CHAPTER II.

APPOINTMENT AND DECLARATION OF GUARDIANS.

Power of Parents to appoint in case of European British subjects.

5. (1) Where a minor is an European British subject, a guardian or guardians of his person or property, or both, may be appointed by will or other instrument to take effect on the death of the person appointing,—

(a) by the father of the minor, or

(b) if the father is dead or incapable of acting, by the mother.

(2) Where guardians have been appointed under sub-section (1) by both parents, they shall act jointly.

6. In the case of a minor who is not an European British subject, nothing in this Act shall be construed to take away or derogate from any power to appoint a guardian of his person or property or both, which is valid by the law to which the minor is subject.

Power of the Court to make order as to guardianship.

7. (1) Where the Court is satisfied that it is for the welfare of a minor that an order should be made—

SEC. 7: APPOINTMENT OF GUARDIAN.—Under the Act, it is open to a Court to appoint a guardian of the properties of a minor even though the minor is not entitled to present possession of these properties. 70 I. C. 360=14 L.W. 706. Such appointment will not interfere, with the right of the persons to possession of the properties as executor or trustee or otherwise. 70 I.C. 360. Where owing to disputes between rival claimants, there is likelihood of the property being lost, a guardian should immediately be appointed. 96 I.C. 283. Appointment of person who has not applied as guardian not proper. 107 I.C. 397. An order appointing a husband as guardian of his minor wife cannot be passed in disregard of the Civil Court's decree that he cannot have the custody of her person until she attained majority. 2 Lah.L.J. 509. The provisions of the Act should not be enforced to enable a husband to get possession of his wife which he has failed to do by execution of the decree obtained by him for restitution of conjugal rights. 57 I.C. 823 (2). Once the power of the Court is invoked, it is its duty as soon as any dispute about the guardianship of the minor's property or any allegation of detriment to the minor's interest resulting from such dispute is properly brought to its notice to set right the matters in the interests of the minor and appoint a proper person as his guardian. 64 I.C. 438. The conception of a dual guardianship is by itself not repugnant to law and there may be cases where there are more than one guardian. The guardianship of a father or a mother does not cease while the minor child is in the possession of another person who has been lawfully entrusted with the care and custody of such minor by the father or mother. There is nothing in law to prevent the father or the mother of a minor, who may be his or her lawful guardian for the time being from entrusting lawfully the care and custody of such minor to more than one person at a time. 15 Pat. 817=18 Pat.L.T. 535=1937 Pat. 263.

CONSIDERATIONS FOR THE COURT IN APPOINTING GUARDIANS.—The law does not make it incumbent upon the Court to grant every application for guardianship. The welfare of the minor is the sole criterion in deciding whether a guardian should be appointed or not. 42 I.C. 191=90 P.L.R. 1917; 19 I. C. 783=118 P.L.R. 1913; 28 I.C. 507. See also 33 I.C. 77=19 M.L.T. 294 (Personal law of the minor should also be considered). A person can apply for the appointment of another guardian under S. 7, though an order of removal under S. 39 is not obtained. 104 I.C. 562=1927 Oudh 516. See also 41 P.L.R. 12; 1940 All. 315. Where the dispute is as to the validity of the marriage of the minor and the matter is not free from difficulty, the Court should refer them to a regular suit. 1927 Oudh 516. An order of appointment of a guardian to a minor can only be made on the sole ground of welfare of the minor; the Court cannot go against the will of the minor especially when he is old enough to form an intelligent opinion. 11 I.C. 478=196 P.W.R. 1911. It is clear that before making an order on an application under sec. 7 the Court ought to insist on evidence showing that the order is in the best in-

(a) appointing a guardian of his person or property, or both, or terest of the ward or child. It is not competent for the Court to make an order in advance, but the Court is bound to consider whether the applicant is the proper person to have the custody of the child. I.L.R. (1941) Bom. 488=43 Bom.L.R. 615=1941 Bom. 344. The appointment of a guardian of a minor cannot be settled by an agreement between the contesting applicants for guardianship. The Court has to consider the welfare of the minors on evidence before it and not to pass judgment in accordance with the terms of a compromise. It is the duty of the Court to consider whether or not the compromise is in the interests of the minor. 1940 L. 9=41 P.L.R. 678. See also 41 Bom.L.R. 625=1939 Bom. 367. Where it appeared that the appointment of the elder sister of the minor as his guardian would promote his welfare and the minor who was aged 14 was also in favour of such an appointment. Held, that the sister should be appointed guardian of the person of the minor in preference to a philanthropic body such as the Society for the protection of children in India. 58 C. 15=1930 C. 397. See also 35 C.W.N. 158=1931 C. 563. It is not proper for a Court to appoint a guardian of a person of a minor who is at least over 17 years old, as he comes of age very soon. The order of appointment would simply deprive him of his right to manage his own affairs for three years more. It is not for the Courts to moralize on the advantage of keeping a youth under tutelage for a longer period than the law ordinarily contemplates. 182 I.C. 992=1939 Lah. 221. See also 27 M.L.J. 30=41 I.A. 314=38 M. 807 (P.C.). A Court should not entertain an application for a guardian to be appointed for a minor where the previous arrangements are quite satisfactory. 101 I.C. 259. Where there is nothing established against a father except that he and his wife are on bad terms and living apart, he is entitled to the custody of his child. 18 L.W. 173=1924 M. 45. As to the nature of the father's right, see 83 I.C. 308=1925 L. 250. See also 10 Mys.L.J. 156 (following 46 A. 706). Immorality of father is not by itself a disqualification. 10 Mys. L. J. 156; nor change of religion. 41 I.C. 571. The fact that he at one time agreed to allow the child to remain with the mother is immaterial as it is a revocable agreement. 1925 L. 250. So also leaving child even with a mere friend. 96 I.C. 617=1926 A. 687. A mother should be left undisturbed as regards the guardianship of her minor girl, where there is no property to be administered by the Court and a statutory guardian is unnecessary. 84 P.R. 1915=31 I.C. 237. The re-marriage of a mother is not a sufficient reason to deprive her of the custody of her children. The question in cases of guardianship always is whether it is for the welfare of the minor to appoint a guardian. 28 I.C. 507=36 P.W.R. 1915. When the mother of a minor is managing the affairs of her son properly, no guardian need be appointed. 60 P.W.R. 1913=19 I.C. 783. A mother is in the absence of the father, the proper guardian for the person and property of a minor, until the contrary is proved. 19 I.C. 428. As to right of a step-mother for guardianship, see 134 I.C. 596=1931 O. 326. Where no charge of waste or mismanagement had been proved, the mere desire of the relatives of the minor is not a sufficient reason for depriving the widowed mother of her recognized claim to be the guardian of her minor child's property. 68 I.C. 474. The appointment of the minor's paternal aunt as guardian is proper, when it is proved that the mother is living in open adultery and has borne children of such connection. 23 I.C. 938. An uncle should not be preferred specially when he is separate and was not on good terms with the minor's father during his lifetime. 19 I.C. 428. The fact that one seeks the assistance of her relatives in the management of the property is not objectionable. 19 I.C. 428. The Guardians and Wards Act contemplates only the appointment of an individual as guardian. The appointment of a Society or its Secretary as such as guardian is invalid. The Secretary may however be appointed in his individual capacity. 35 C.W.N. 158=1931 C. 563. See also 58 C. 15=1930 C. 397. It is against intention of the Act that any one residing out of British India should be appointed guardian of the person of a minor, as the Court cannot exercise its proper control over such a guardian. (22 M. L.J. 68, Foll.) 54 M. 758=1931 M. 478=60 M.L.J. 615. See also 1940 Pesh. 14; 18 Lah. 426=1937 Lah. 797.

INTERFERENCE WITH LEGAL RIGHTS OF GUARDIANSHIP.—A Court can both in equity and under the Act interfere with the legal rights of guardianship of the parents. 41 I.C. 571=11 S.L.R. 13. The welfare of the children should primarily be considered. The Court should ascertain what would be for the welfare of the minors, whether any of them was sufficiently advanced to make an intelligent preference, what means were at the disposal of such parents to provide for them in future, and whether the father would under altered circumstances be able to provide a fit home for his children. 41 I.C. 571. If the father is not able to provide a fit home, he should be held to be not fit to be the guardian. The provisions of the Act are in no way limited by the English practice. English decisions cannot be considered to have any authority in India when dealing with a conflict between Hinduism and Islam. Change of religion by itself does not necessarily render a father unfit to be the guardian of his minor children. 41 I.C. 571. Whether the general rule that a child should follow the religion of the father could apply without qualification to a case where the religion has been newly adopted by the father and is not that in which the child was born or reared. 41 I.C. 571.

EFFECT OF ORDER.—An order appointing a guardian is final (subject to any other order passed in appeal) even if it was made under a misapprehension of the case. 52 I.C. 831=73 P.R. 1919. Appointment of guardian of person and property of a minor under the Act means removal of natural guardian. 50 I.C. 580; 42 I.C. 505=6 L.W. 760. When a guardian is appointed by Court for minor's property no other person, not even the de facto guardian, can legally bind the minor's estate. 37 M. 38=21 M. L.J. 1077=12 I.C. 568.

Per Das, J.—The appointment of a person other than the natural guardian under S. 7 (1) implies under S. 7 (2) of the Act the removal of the natural guardian, and such removal under S. 7 (2) results in a permanent cessation of his powers under S. 41 of the Act. The powers of the natural guardian do not revive upon the removal or death of the guardian appointed, even if no successor is appointed by the Court in his place. When a natural guardian is passed over and the Court appoints another person as guardian, that is only on the footing that he is unfit, and has, by his unfitness, forfeited his natural rights. It does not matter in the least whether the unfitness is found because of positive misconduct or waiver or any other cause, or whether it is established on contest or admitted or implied from conduct, (e.g.) by failure or refusal to act or consenting to somebody else being appointed. The Court takes the control and management of the person and property of the minor out of his hands and places it in the hands of a person of its choice. This guardian so appointed by the Court is but the hand of the Court, and through that agency the Court representing the Crown controls and manages the person and property of the minor. The death or removal of this agent of the Court cannot bring any merit to the superseded natural guardian and cure his unfitness. It may be that when on the death or removal of a guardian appointed by the Court the question of the appointment of a successor crops up; the superseded father or mother may again pray for his or her appointment but that he or she may do, not on the basis of his or her rights as natural guardian, for those rights have ceased, but only as a person related to the minor and interested in his welfare, and he or she must satisfy the Court that the unfitness has ceased. If he or she so satisfies the Court and is appointed, it is not on the basis of a revival of his or her power as natural guardian at all. 50 C.W.N. 129.

ANCESTRAL PROPERTY.—No guardian can be appointed in respect of a Hindu minor's undivided ancestral property. 46 I.C. 815 [25 A. 407 (P.C.), Foll.]. See also 140 I.C. 198=1932 C. 730. But see also 59 C. 570=138 I.C. 739=1932 C. 502 and cases cited therein (High Court can appoint such guardian under powers conferred by Letters Patent). See also 1933 M. W. N. 1293; 36 C.W.N. 769=1932 Cal. 730 (Guardian can be appointed only when the minor who is a member of joint Hindu family governed by Mitakshara law is shown to have separate property of his own).

TRUST PROPERTY.—No guardian in respect of trust properties can be appointed under S. 7; nor can sanction be granted under S. 29 to sell the properties. Such a sale is invalid. 23 M. L. J. 267=42 I.C. 273. A right to a portion of the income of the trust properties does not vest the properties in the beneficiary so as to attract the provisions of Ss. 7 and 29 of the Act. 23 M.L. J. 267.

SECURITY.—A conditional order "that upon petitioner furnishing security he is appointed guardian of minor's property" is ultra vires and bad ab initio. 49 M. 809=1927 M. 36=51 M.L.J. 726 (F.B.) (30 M.L.J. 508, Foll.; 40 M. 775=37 I.C. 892, Overruled). But see 1930 L. 497, contra. The practice of issuing suspensory orders of guardianship deprecated. 49 M. 809. The Act does not require two orders, vis., interim order of approval and a "final order" of appointment of the guardian of property nor does it postpone the appointment till security is furnished. 30 M.L.J. 508=34 I.C. 432. But see 1930 L. 497 (F.B.), contra. [See also Notes under S. 10, infra.] An order appointing a person guardian of the property of a minor, conditional on his furnishing security, is not void ab initio. S. 7 of the Act, which empowers the Court to make an order appointing a guardian of the person or property of the minor is comprehensive in its terms and does not lay down, expressly or by necessary implication, that the Court cannot impose a condition of this kind, in cases where it thinks fit to do so. S. 31 (a) is not exhaustive as to the powers of the Court to demand security. It obviously confers on the Court powers which are additional and not exclusive. It deals with the obligations of a guardian of property, who has already been appointed as such, and empowers the Court to require him to furnish security if and when, subsequent to his appointment, it becomes necessary to do so. It does not in any manner control or qualify S. 7 under which the Court has full power to make the appointment on such terms and subject to

(2) An order under this section shall imply the removal of any guardian who has not been appointed by will or other instrument or appointed or declared by the Court.

(3) Where a guardian has been appointed by will or other instrument or appointed or declared by the Court, an order under this section appointing or declaring another person to be guardian in his stead shall not be made until the powers of the guardian appointed or declared as aforesaid have ceased under the provisions of this Act.

such conditions as it, in its discretion, considers conducive to the welfare of the minor. 1930 L. 497 (F.B.). A guardian to the property of a minor was appointed on condition of furnishing security in 1902. The guardian furnished security in 1909. Held, that the appointment of the guardian took effect from 1909. 1930 L. 497 (F.B.). In case of a conditional order of appointment of a guardian, the minor's natural guardian's acts done in good faith prior to the furnishing of security by the guardian appointed are valid. 40 M. 775=37 I.C. 892. An order of appointment of a guardian of property of an infant on condition that he furnishes security is an order under S. 7 (1) and not under S. 34 and is appealable under S. 47 (4). 24 I.C. 202. See also 49 M. 809.

PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE.—The proceedings under S. 7 are summary. 65 I.C. 888=15 S.L.R. 175. Section contemplates only a summary inquiry followed by an order for the welfare of the minor. 40 B. 513=35 I.C. 57. When a minor is to attain majority shortly, the Courts cannot prolong the age of minority by appointing a guardian under S. 7. 38 M. 807=27 M.L.J. 30=41 I.A. 314 (P.C.). See also 1939 Lah. 221=41 P.L.R. 542. Ss. 7 and 8 do not necessarily require that when proceedings have been instituted on a proper application, application should be taken from the person whom the Court appoints, though certainly in practice it is more usual to take one. 73 I.C. 256. But see also 117 I.C. 901; 1933 L. 220; 38 C. 226; 1931 L. 212. A Court dealing with an application under the Act should not dispose of the matter in the absence of the applicant by making an order in favour of his opponent as though the absent person were a defaulter in a civil suit. 19 A.L.J. 489=63 I.C. 567. In determining whether a person is a minor the Court should take an independent view of its own and not adopt a finding in some civil suit that that person is a minor. 19 A.L.J. 489=63 I.C. 567. In an application for the appointment of a guardian for the property of a minor, it must be shown that the minor as some property, as without that there is no foundation for the application. An enquiry for such purpose is, no doubt, not meant to be a lengthy and elaborate one, but there must be some basis for finding that there is some property at all. 1940 Lah. 9=41 P.L.R. 678. When an application is made on the footing and with the claim that the minor is entitled to separate property, the Court should appoint a proper person as guardian of his property leaving it to the guardian to institute suits for the recovery of the property claimed. 40 B. 513=35 I.C. 16=18 Bom.L.R. 343.

MALA FIDE APPLICATION.—Where no guardian for the person or property of a minor was necessary, and a master instigated his servant who was the grandfather of the minor to make an application for appointing himself as the guardian, so that the minor may be married to his son, it was held that it was not a bona fide judicial proceeding and orders made thereon were wholly without jurisdiction. 15 C.L.J. 142=16 C.W.N. 444.

TESTAMENTARY GUARDIAN—CL. (3).—Under Hindu Law, a man cannot appoint a testamentary guardian for his minor nephew. 12 I.C. 452=220 P.W.R. 1911. It is only where there is a written will appointing a guardian, that a testamentary guardian stands in the way of the appointment of a statutory guardian by the Court. 16 L.W. 415=1922 M. 70 (1). See also 40 M. 672=34 I.C. 766=30 M.L.J. 504. In an application for the appointment of a guardian of a minor, the Court has jurisdiction and is bound to consider the fact that there is a will although no probate had been granted in respect of the same. 42 C. 953=28 I.C. 972=19 C.W.N. 513. Where there is a testamentary guardian for a minor an order appointing another person to be his guardian shall not be made unless the Court has ordered under S. 39 or S. 41, the removal of the testamentary guardian. 29 Bom.L.R. 1577. See also 100 I.C. 738=28 P.L.R. 127. If the validity of the will is in question, it is discretionary with the Court to defer decision of guardianship until the question of probate has been determined. 29 Bom. L. R. 1577. (17 B. 560; 16 M. 380; 29 B. 832, Ref.). European British subject—Whether mother can be preferred to testamentary guardian. 31 C. W. N. 394=101 I.C. 609=1927 C. 389. An application by a person, who has been appointed guardian of a minor under a will, to be appointed as a guardian, can be entertained, even though he has not obtained probate of the will. It is not incumbent on him to take out probate as a condition precedent to his obtaining a certificate of guardianship. 1936 A.L.J. 331=1936 A. 368.

APPOINTMENT OF GUARDIAN—DISCRETION—

INTERFERENCE IN APPEAL.—Where a guardian for a minor is appointed by a single Judge in exercise of his discretion, though an appeal is competent from his order, the fact that the making of the order is a matter of discretion is a good ground for refusing to exercise the appellate jurisdiction, unless the appellant succeeds in establishing a strong case, such as would justify interference in appeal. (71 I.C. 824 and 21 M. L.J. 1, Rel. on.) 14 Lah. 804=1933 L. 881.

APPOINTMENT OF GUARDIAN—RESIDING OUT OF JURISDICTION.—There is nothing in the Guardians and Wards Act which debars a Court from appointing a guardian who is not residing within the jurisdiction of the Court to which an application is made. Under S. 7 a Court will appoint a guardian whenever it is satisfied, that it is for the welfare of the minor that an order should be made. S. 39, Cl. (h) does not imply that a person applying for appointment must be residing within the jurisdiction of the Court to which the application is made. What Cl. (h) means is that in certain cases, ceasing to live within the jurisdiction of the Court which made the order of appointment may be ground for the removal of the guardian from his office and no more. The only duty cast on the Court under the Act is to appoint the best person to act as guardian regardless of his place of residence. 1933 A.L.J. 1333=1933 A. 780=56 A. 20.

INTERLOCUTORY ORDER—REFUSAL OF APPLICATION TO BE APPOINTED GUARDIAN—APPEAL.—An interlocutory order passed at an intermediate stage of the proceedings refusing the application of a party to be appointed guardian of a minor's property, as being unfit, the proceedings being kept pending, is not a final order within the purview of S. 7 (1) or S. 47 (a), so as to be appealable. 38 C. W. N. 1083. See also 1934 L. 323.

SECS. 7 AND 8: THIRD PARTY—APPLICATION FOR APPOINTMENT OF GUARDIAN—MINOR'S RIGHT TO FUND DISPUTED—PROCEDURE.—Where a person with whom a certain fund was deposited on behalf of a minor filed an application to Court under S. 7 to appoint a guardian for the minor in respect of the said fund and the Court decided in the face of opposition that the minor's natural father should be appointed guardian with direction for deposit of the amount in a Bank, the interest alone being payable to the guardian. Held, that original petition would be deemed to be under S. 8 (b) of the Act and the Court had power to appoint a guardian in spite of the denial of the minor's right to the fund, and that the Court could order the investment of the amount in dispute but that it acted wrongly in directing payment of interest to the guardian, while the minor's title to the fund was in dispute. 1934 M. 496=66 M. L. J. 310.

SECS. 7 AND 12.—A Hindu father has the absolute right of appointing by will the guardian of his minor child, and the will so far as the appointment of the guardian is concerned speaks from the date of the testator's death. And when there is a testamentary guardian, the Court has no power to appoint another person as the guardian or to give another person the custody of the minor child, unless it be temporary custody under S. 12 of the Guardians and Wards Act, until the testamentary guardian is removed from his office. In such a case the fact that the will remains unprobated and that there is a contest as to its validity may be a ground for the Court passing an order for the temporary custody of the minor child, but the Court cannot say that it will refuse to take notice of the will and pass an order for the custody of the minor in favour of a person other than the testamentary guardian. I.L.R. (1938) Mad. 757=47 L.W. 470=(1938) 1 M.L.J. 422.

SECS. 7 AND 17.—In a contest, regarding guardianship of the person of a minor girl, aged about three years, between her mother (having custody) who has remarried and the minor's paternal grandfather the primary question for decision is whether it is necessary for the welfare of the minor for the guardian of the person to be appointed at all. The person, who has her interests most at heart is the mother, and, in view of the age of the minor, it would not be for her welfare to be taken away from her mother and handed over to her paternal grandfather. The mere fact that the mother had agreed to hand over the child to her paternal grandfather on being allowed to remarry makes no difference as the welfare of the minor is the overriding consideration. 160 I.C. 1013=1936 Pesh. 63.

SECS. 7 AND 19.—An application by a Hindu father for an order appointing him guardian of the person of his minor son does not lie, because S. 19 prohibits the Court making such appointment. Moreover, an order under S. 7 is not necessary. A Hindu father is the lawful guardian of his minor children, and a declaration by a Court cannot increase his powers in that respect. 13 R. 590. See also 1937 Bom. 98.

SECS. 7 AND 39.—A Court which has jurisdiction under the Guardians and Wards Act can remove a guardian as well as appoint him. Where in the first instance an ex parte order of appointment is made, it can, when the matter comes up for final orders, be set aside by the same Court. 189 I.C. 823=1940 All. 315. Under the Guardians and Wards Act, it is not essential that a person who applies for being appointed guardian of the property of a minor should be a resident of the district in which the property is situated. The power of the Court under S. 39 to remove a guardian who is not residing in the district within which the property is situated is discretionary and it cannot reasonably be inferred therefrom that the applicant must necessarily be a resident of the district in which the property is situated. 44 P.L.R. 203=A.I.R. 1942 Lah. 162 (1).

SEC. 8.—A Court has no power to make an order appointing a guardian of minors except on a substantial application. 38 C. 226=15 C.W.N. 676=10 I.C. 334. See also 131 I.C. 296=1931 L. 212; 1933 L. 220; 73 I.C. 256. The mere fact that the mother of a minor is a pardanashin lady is no obstacle to her being appointed guardian of the minor son. 38 C. 226. An application by a cousin of two minor girls for his appointment as their guardian was objected to by another who alleged that the girls were his illegitimate children by the wife of another man. Held, that the objector had no legal or moral right to claim to be the guardian of the minors and that the cousin should be appointed guardian. (29 A. 210, Dist.) 10 O.W.N. 635=1933 O. 312. A first cousin, once removed, of a minor comes within the terms of S. 8 (b) and is, therefore, entitled to make an application for the appointment of a guardian. I.L.R. (1939) 2 Cal. 440=185 I.C. 880. The jurisdiction of the District Court is limited by S. 9 to infants ordinarily resident within the district and minors who have left India months prior to the proceedings are not ordinarily resident in the district. 38 M. 807=41 I.A. 314=27 M.L.J. 30 (P.C.). Failure to serve notice under S. 11, if fatal. 18 C.W.N. 160=16 I.C. 900. The appointment of Official Receiver as guardian of the minor's property without any application by him is contrary to the provisions of S. 8 of the Act and therefore invalid. 117 I.C. 901. But see also 73 I.C. 256; 1933 L. 220. Where the name of a third party was suggested by the counsel for the objector and consented to by the counsel for the petitioner and the Court accordingly appointed him as a guardian, the fact that there was no proper application under S. 10 by the third party to be appointed as guardian does not invalidate the appointment. (1928 L. 458, Dist.) 34 P.L.R. 17=1933 L. 220. See also 149 I.C. 708=1934 A. 849.

SEC. 9.—According to the Act, the applicant for guardianship of minor must be residing within the jurisdiction of the Court to which the application is made. 36 A. 280=24 I.C. 59. It is not necessary that the applicant for guardianship of the person of a minor should reside in the district in which the application is made. (36 A. 280, Diss. from.) 18 Lah. 426=39 P.L.R. 640=1937 Lah. 797. Residence is a matter of fact, not of presumption. 34 Bom.L.R. 1293=1932 B. 592. The fact that a minor is found actually residing at a place at the time the application under the Act is made does not determine the jurisdiction. It must be proved where the minor ordinarily resides, as required by S. 9 (1). The mere fact that the minors were taken to a place when the mother went to visit that place would not make that place the place of ordinary residence of the minors. I.L.R. (1940) All. 269=1940 A.L.J. 238=1940 All. 329. A mother of minor children, who was living in Ferozepore District filed an application in that district for guardianship of her children. The minors were with the father who was living in Rohtak district. The father obtained their custody as a result of a compromise with the mother in a criminal case. The elder child was born in Rohtak district and the younger in Ferozepore. Held, that in the circumstances the minors must be taken to ordinarily reside in Rohtak district and that, therefore, the Ferozepore Court had no jurisdiction to hear the application. 40 P.L.R. 708. Where a girl wife for the most part resided with her parents in one district and only occasionally with her husband who was a resident of another district, it is the Court in the former district that has jurisdiction to entertain an application for appointment of a guardian for the girl. 34 Bom.L.R. 1293=1932 B. 592. A District Court, the jurisdiction of which is, as defined under the Guardians and Wards Act, has no inherent powers as are not expressly conferred upon it by the Act. 121 I.C. 168=1930 S. 43. A suit by a father for custody of his child is maintainable especially as no remedy exists under the Guardians and Wards Act. 44 I.C. 753=10 Bur.L.T. 186. See also 29 I.C. 768=8 Bur.L.T. 128; 157 I.C. 941. But see 38 M. 807 (P.C.); 42 M. 647=37 M.L.J. 93. Under S. 9, the original side of the Calcutta High Court has jurisdiction to entertain an application for the appointment of a guardian of the person of a minor who ordinarily resides within its ordinary original civil jurisdiction but at the time of the presentation of the application was temporarily residing outside such jurisdiction. The jurisdiction over infants under Cl. 17 of the Letters Patent preserved by S. 3 of the Guardians and Wards Act, is operative on the person and estate of all infants within Bengal Division of the Presidency. I.L.R. (1943) 2 Cal. 554=A.I.R. 1944 Cal. 433.

SECS. 9 (1) AND 25.—In order to give the Court jurisdiction for purposes of appointment of guardian under S. 9 (1) and for purposes of passing order under S. 25, the minor must be ordinarily resident within the local limits of the Court's jurisdiction. 39 Bom.L.R. 103=1937 B. 158=I.L.R. (1937) Bom. 348.

SEC. 9 (3).—The words "ordinarily resides" mean more than a temporary residence even though the period of such temporary residence may be considerable. 53 P.L.R. 1902. SEC. 10.—Where the name of a third party was suggested by the counsel for the objector and consented to by the counsel for the petitioner and the Court accordingly appointed him as a guardian, the fact that there was no proper application under S. 10 by the third party to be appointed as guardian does not invalidate the appointment. 34 P.L.R. 17=1933 L. 220. A suit inter partes is not the form of procedure prescribed by S. 10 for proceedings touching the guardianship of infants. See 38 M. 807 (P.C.). Application stating age and date of birth of minor is no evidence to prove age of minor. 4 I.C. 744. As to a conditional order of appointment of guardian and the effect of such order, see 1930 M. 19 and cases referred to therein. On this section, see also 15 C.W.N. 457=7 I.C. 702; 49 M. 809; 1930 L. 497 and other cases cited under S. 7, supra; 6 I.C. 645=74 P.L.R. 1910; 2 A.L.J. 81; 26 A. 594; 1905 A.W.N. 104.

JURISDICTION AND PROCEDURE.—Though a Judge is not authorised by law to appoint a guardian in the absence of an application for such appointment, once an application is filed under S. 10 of the Act, the jurisdiction of the Judge comes into play, and it is open to him as a result of the enquiry, to appoint a person other than the applicant as guardian, provided such person has intimated his willingness to act as guardian. No doubt it would be more in conformity with law that such willingness is communicated to the Court in the form of an application in accordance with S. 10. But the absence of such application by the appointee is no bar to the jurisdiction of the Court to appoint him. 1934 A.L.J. 652=1934 A. 849. See also 144 I.C. 173=1933 L. 220.

SECS. 10, 11 AND 17: SCOPE—APPOINTMENT OF NON-APPLICANT—JURISDICTION.—The absence of an application by the person appointed as guardian is not a ground which invalidates his appointment. Once an application is made in accordance with the provisions of S. 10 of the Act for the appointment of a guardian for a minor, and notices sent to the interested persons under S. 11 and such persons avail themselves of the opportunity and appear in Court and adduce evidence in the enquiry the Court can appoint as guardian any person which it thinks best in accordance with S. 17 of

(a) the name, sex, religion, date of birth and ordinary residence of the minor ;

(b) where the minor is a female, whether she is married, and, if so, the name and age of her husband ;

(c) the nature, situation and approximate value of the property, if any, of the minor ;

(d) the name and residence of the person having the custody or possession of the person or property of the minor ;

(e) what near relations the minor has, and where they reside ;

(f) whether a guardian of the person or property, or both, of the minor has been appointed by any person entitled or claiming to be entitled by the law to which the minor is subject to make such an appointment ;

(g) whether an application has at any time been made to the Court or to any other Court with respect to the guardianship of the person or property, or both, of the minor, and, if so, when, to what Court and with what result ;

(h) whether the application is for the appointment or declaration of a guardian of the person of the minor, or of his property, or of both ;

(i) where the application is to appoint a guardian, the qualifications of the proposed guardian ;

(j) where the application is to declare a person to be guardian, the grounds on which that person claims ;

(k) the causes which have led to the making of the application ; and

(l) such other particulars, if any, as may be prescribed or as the nature of the application renders it necessary to state.

(2) If the application is made by the Collector, it shall be by letter addressed to the Court and forwarded by post or in such other manner as may be found convenient, and shall state as far as possible the particulars mentioned in subsection (1).

(3) The application must be accompanied by a declaration of the willingness of the proposed guardian to act and the declaration must be signed by him and attested by at least two witnesses.

11. (1) If the Court is satisfied that there is ground for proceeding on the application, it shall fix a day for the hearing thereof,

Procedure on admission of and cause notice of the application and of the date application. fixed for the hearing—

(a) to be served in the manner directed in the Code of Civil Procedure on—

(i) the parents of the minor if they are residing in British India,

(ii) the person, if any, named in the petition or letter as having the custody or possession of the person or property of the minor,

(iii) the person proposed in the application or letter to be appointed or declared guardian, unless that person is himself the applicant, and

(iv) any other person to whom, in the opinion of the Court, special notice of the application should be given ; and the Act. In the absence of a definite provision in the Act that the Court has no jurisdiction to appoint a person who has not applied under S. 10, the objection on that ground is at best a technical one and cannot be given effect to. 1934 A.L.J. 652=1934 A. 849.

SEC. 11: OBJECT AND SCOPE OF.—The object of S. 11 is to give an opportunity to all the persons interested in the minor of being heard before an order appointing a guardian is passed. 1934 A.L.J. 652=1934 A. 849.

APPEAL.—A person who is not made a party in an application under S. 10 but to whom notice ought to have been given under S. 11 (a) as a person interested in the result of the application, cannot under S. 47 (a) file an appeal from the order passed on the application. 27 I.C. 121=18 O.C. 65.

EVIDENCE.—In an application for appointment of guardian, Court should give applicant an opportunity to let in evidence regarding his allegations. 1926 L. 716=107 I.C. 606.

SECOND APPLICATION.—Where a person's application to be appointed as guardian of a minor is rejected and there is no appeal from that order a subsequent application for the same purpose by the same person is not competent. 1923 N. 36.

(b) to be posted on some conspicuous part of the court-house, and of the residence of the minor, and otherwise published in such manner as the Court, subject to any rules made by the High Court under this Act, thinks fit.

(2) The Provincial Government may, by general or special order,¹ require that, when any part of the property described in a petition under section 10, sub-section (1), is land of which a Court of Wards could assume the superintendence, the Court shall also cause a notice as aforesaid to be served on the Collector in whose district the minor ordinarily resides, and on every Collector in whose district any portion of the land is situate, and the Collector may cause the notice to be published in any manner he deems fit.

(3) No charge shall be made by the Court or the Collector for the service or publication of any notice served or published under sub-section (2).

12. (1) The Court may direct that the person, if any, having the custody of the minor shall produce him or cause him to be produced at such place and time and before such person as it appoints, and may make such order for the temporary custody and protection of the person or property of the minor as it thinks proper.

Sec. 12.—S. 12 by reason of the wording used as well as by reason of its location in the Statute only applies during the pendency of guardianship proceedings. After guardian is appointed, Ss. 24 and 25 do apply. 119 I.C. 423=1929 L. 487. Under S. 12 (1) the Court has the power to pass interim orders for the protection of the person or property of a minor. Thus it can pass an order by way of injunction for the protection of a female minor against an unsuitable marriage. Such an order should issue under O. 39, R. 2 (1) read with S. 141, C. P. Code, and disobedience of the same is punishable under sub-R. (3) of O. 39, R. 2. 28 N.L.R. 332. Where during the pendency of an application for being appointed guardian of the person and property of a minor, the petitioner applied for the appointment of a receiver to sell certain articles belonging to the minor and to apply the sale proceeds towards the payment of debts due from the minor's estate and the Court ordered the same, held, that the order appointing a receiver was not ultra vires of S. 12 of the Act. 34 C.W.N. 192=1930 C. 384. The recognised principle is that a father is not only the natural guardian but has an inalienable right to the custody of his minor son unless there are overwhelming circumstances to the contrary. 49 A. 332=101 I.C. 529=1927 A. 458. High Court has power to make interlocutory orders issuing injunction to stop the marriage of minors, for the protection of their persons and property. 86 I.C. 226; 88 I.C. 576=1925 L. 375. District Judge has no power to direct any party to proceedings to deposit in Court any sum due to minor.—Jurisdiction. 24 I.C. 518=42 A.L.J. 789. See also 11 I.C. 554. On an application under S. 12, the Court has power to direct payment of the minor's money into Court or to appoint a receiver of his property. 36 B. 20=11 I.C. 624=13 Bom.L.R. 487. See also 116 I.C. 642=1929 N. 119; 1924 A. 682; 90 I.C. 611=1925 L. 489. Order so appointing receiver is one under C. P. Code, O. 40, R. 1 and not under this section. 26 B. 20. Minor obtaining as adopted son—His guardian's jurisdiction in possession of property—No jurisdiction in Court to order widow to file inventory of deceased's property and to furnish security. See 3 S.L.R. 52=2 I.C. 369. An order of a Court rejecting an application by a guardian for the custody of a minor, on the ground that the proper course was to bring a civil suit, is not appealable, but can be revised. 13 P.R. 1897. The order of the Munsif under an order of the Court for the temporary custody and protection of a minor is not contrary to S. 12(3). 10 P.R. 1898. From the date of order appointing guardian of the minor, the latter becomes a ward of the Court, and the Court could and should take action and assist the guardian. 37 A. 515=29 I.C. 416. The person appointed to take temporary possession of the property of the minor under S. 12 is the person who should be held responsible for making enquiries and deciding whether prima facie the property concerned belongs to the minor or to some other person laying claim thereto. 1941 A. cation by a guardian appointed by it for the custody of the minor under the provisions of Ss. 12 and 25. So long as the custody of a minor is not actually made over to the guardian appointed by Court, the proceeding for the appointment of the guardian does not terminate and the applicability of S. 4 is not barred. There is another way of looking at the matter. A minor who is not delivered to the guardian, after he has been appointed by a competent Court, can be treated as having left or been removed from the custody of the guardian under S. 25 (1) of the Act. I.L.R. (1938) L. 318=1938 Lah. 313. The Court has jurisdiction to entertain an application by a guardian appointed by it for the custody of the minor although the minor has been removed out of its jurisdiction. To place a restricted meaning on the words "for the time being ordinarily resides" in S. 4 (5) (b) (4) so as to interpret them to mean where the minor actually is at the time of the application would be tantamount to rendering nugatory all the provisions of the Act and to making the law helpless against the machinations of recalcitrant persons who do not propose to part with the minor in favour of the appointed guardian. I.L.R. (1938), Lah. 318=1938 Lah. 313.

SECS. 12 AND 43 AND C. P. CODE, O. 39: DISTINCTION IN THE POWERS EXERCISABLE THERE.—There is a difference between a Court issuing an injunction under O. 39, C. P. Code and a Court exercising similar powers under the Guardians and Wards Act in the interests of the minor. Ss. 12 and 43 of the latter Act enable the Court to pass orders suo motu unlike O. 39, R. 2, C. P. Code and it can suo motu deal with disobedience of its orders. 189 I.C. 813=1940 N.L.J. 157=1940 Nag. 203.

See also 105 I.C. 616. Whether preliminary enquiry as to whether the minor is possessed of property is not necessary before action is taken under the section, see 99 I.C. 222=1927 O. 68.

SEC. 14 (2): RESIDENCE OF MINOR NOT DETERMINABLE—JURISDICTION OF.—Where the minors ordinarily resided cannot be found out as both parties claim that the minors resided with them, the matter should be heard by the Court where it is alleged the minors have property. 1934 L. 208.

15. (1) If the law to which the minor is subject admits of his having two or more joint guardians of his person or property, or both, the Court may, if it thinks fit, appoint or declare them.

Appointment or declaration of several guardians.

(2) On the death of a father, being an European British subject, who has, by will or other instrument to take effect on his death, appointed a guardian of his minor child, the Court may appoint the mother to be guardian of the child jointly with the guardian appointed by the father.

(3) On the death of a mother, being an European British subject, who during the incapacity of the father of her minor child has, by will or other instrument to take effect on her death, appointed a guardian of the child, the Court may, if the father becomes capable of acting, appoint him to be sole guardian of the child or guardian of the child jointly with the guardian appointed by the mother, as it thinks fit.

(4) Separate guardians may be appointed or declared of the person and of the property of a minor.

(5) If a minor has several properties, the Court may, if it thinks fit, appoint or declare a separate guardian for any one or more of the properties.

16. If the Court appoints or declares a guardian for any property situate beyond the local limits of its jurisdiction, the Court having jurisdiction in the place where the property is situate shall, on production of a certified copy of the order appointing or declaring the guardian, accept him as duly appointed or declared and give effect to the order.

Appointment or declaration of guardian for property beyond jurisdiction of the Court.

17. (1) In appointing or declaring the guardian of a minor, the Court shall, subject to the provisions of this section, be guided by what, consistently with the law to which the minor is subject, appears in the circumstances to be for the welfare of the minor.

Matters to be considered by the Court in appointing guardian.

Sec. 15.—A Hindu mother who remarries loses her natural right to be a preferential guardian of the person of her minor children. She can however be appointed guardian by the Court. 48 I.C. 75. There is nothing in the Hindu Law which prevents the Court from appointing more persons than one as guardian of the person of a minor. 48 I.C. 75. See also 1927 C. 389=101 I.C. 609. The Court, when it appoints a person as the guardian of a minor's person, should put the person appointed as guardian in a position to support the minor. 1930 A. 255 (2). Where property is not large and the Court has appointed separate guardians of persons of the minors, and the appointment of as many guardians of property as that of persons would lead to waste, property may be left in the hands of one of such guardians. 1930 A. 255 (2).

Sec. 15 (2).—Among European British subjects whether mother can be preferred to testamentary guardian, see 31 C.W.N. 394=101 I.C. 609=1927 C. 389. As to appointment of joint guardians, see ibid.; 48 I.C. 75.

Sec. 16.—Where a person has been appointed under the Act as guardian of the property and person of a minor, he becomes the guardian of the property of the minor, in whichever district or districts the property may be situated. The effect of the appointment is that he becomes the certificated guardian for all purposes until he is discharged and cannot lay aside his status as such and pose as a natural guardian. 2 A.L.J. 460. The section is directory and does not in any way affect or prejudice the status of a certificated guardian when appointed generally over the property of a minor. 2 A.L.J. 460. Under sec. 3 a guardian, of whose person or property the guardian has been appointed by the Court of justice, shall be deemed to have attained his majority when he has completed his age of 21 years and not before. Such a minor can be major in one district and a minor in another. 2 A.L.J. 460. Decree for the specific performance of a contract of sale made by a guardian of minor's property should not be decreed except on proof of certain benefit to minor. 45 I.C. 192.

Sec. 17 [See also Notes under sec. 7]: SCOPE OF SECTION.—The words of sec. 19 so far from being subject to the provisions of sec. 17 expressly override them. 19 N.L.R. 45=1923 N. 199 (38 M. 807, Foll). See also 47 I.C. 817=12 S.L.R. 14; 32 Bom.L.R. 386=1930 B. 239=54 B. 560; 54 A. 128=137 I.C. 219=1932 A. 215; 1942 O.W.N. (B.R.) 22.

JURISDICTION.—When an application is made for the appointment of a guardian for

(2) In considering what will be for the welfare of the minor, the Court shall have regard to the age, sex and religion of the minor, the character and capacity of the proposed guardian and his nearness of kin to the minor, the wishes, if any, of a deceased parent, and any existing or previous relations of the proposed guardian with the minor or his property.

a minor and notices are issued to all persons interested in the minor, all the interested parties have an opportunity of putting their case before the Court, and actually appear before the Court and adduce all the evidence that they have, the Court has jurisdiction under sec. 17 to appoint such person as it thinks should be appointed. The fact that the person so appointed has not himself filed an application under sec. 10 of the Act does not deprive the Court of its jurisdiction to appoint him. 149 I.C. 708=1934 A.L.J. 652=1934 A. 849. See also 1934 L. 208.

CONSIDERATIONS FOR THE COURT—PERSONS ENTITLED TO BE GUARDIANS.—The welfare of the minor is the paramount consideration in an application for the appointment of a guardian for the person of a minor though the rights of guardianship under the minor's personal law must also be considered, but the qualification or otherwise of the proposed guardian is only secondary to that of the minor's welfare. 22 M.L.J. 68=13 I.C. 16. See also 13 I.C. 453=22 M.L.J. 247; 4 P. 109=1925 P. 444; 13 C.L.J. 735. The primary consideration in appointing a guardian under the Act is the welfare of the minor provided that the appointment is not inconsistent with the law to which the minor is subject. After the death of her Hindu husband leaving a young daughter, the wife embraced the Mahomedan religion and married a Mahomedan. The grandmother (mother's mother) and the mother were persons competing for the guardianship. The lower Court held taking into consideration the age, sex, and circumstances of the parties, etc., that the mother was the proper guardian but that as the child should be brought up in the religion of her father, the grandmother should be the guardian when the child reaches the age of ten. Held, that as the child while very young was not likely to have any convictions on question of religion, the mother was entitled to the custody in preference to the grandmother if she was otherwise a suitable guardian. Held, further, that the order directing that the grandmother should be the guardian after the child became ten years old was not proper. If subsequently the child was brought up in any religion other than Hindu—which was her father's religion and in which she should be brought up—the grandmother could then make an application for getting herself appointed guardian. 202 I.C. 107=15 R. Pesh. 34=A.I.R. 1942 Pesh. 41. Under the Mahomedan law, in the case of a male minor child of over 9 years, his consanguine brother who is male paternal relation has a preferential right to the custody over the minor's mother. But this right is not unqualified but is conditional upon the Court being satisfied that the male paternal relation is a fit and proper person to be appointed guardian. According to the proper interpretation of S. 17 in the case of a Mahomedan guardian to be appointed in the order of relations with preferential rights, the appointment can be made only of a relation who in the opinion of the Court is a fit and proper person. The paramount consideration in an appointment under S. 17 is the interest of the child, consistently with the law to which the minor is subject. S. 17 cannot be construed as laying down that once it is shown that there is a relation alive in the order of relations entitled, according to the Mahomedan law, to the guardianship of the child that relation must be appointed. The Mahomedan law does not require that such a relation should be appointed if the Court considers that he is not a fit and proper person to be appointed guardian. The Court, if that relation is not a fit and proper person, must then look down the list for some other relation, and if there is no other relation, then, under the Mahomedan law, a stranger may be appointed guardian. I.L.R. (1942) Kar. 363=A.I.R. 1942 Sind 154. When a minor girl is living and has been living with her mother's sister, ever since her mother's death when she was an infant and now when she is of marriageable age, it is not in the interests of the minor that her custody should be given to her father. 170 I.C. 592=1937 Lah. 481. Under the Act a Court in appointing a guardian or declaring a guardian of the minor is guided first by the provisions of sec. 17 of the Act and secondly by what appears to be the welfare of the minor consistently with the law to which the minor is subject. By placing the provisions of the section above the law to which the minor is subject, the Act makes it open to the Court to consider other matters as well as the personal law even if they are opposed to that law. Thus, the Court may consider the opinion of the minor, whatever it may be, if he be old enough to form an intelligent preference; and in considering what is for the welfare of the minor the Court must have regard to his age, sex and religion and any existing or previous relations of the proposed guardian with the minor or his property. 7 O.W.N. 950=1930 O. 471. See also 1936 Pesh. 207; 162 I.C. 632=1936 R. 63. Matters to be considered by the Court in appointing a guardian under this section, viz., the legal right to be appointed a guardian, the preference of the minors, and the existing previous relationship are very minor considerations as compared with the main question, what order would be for the welfare of the minor. 9 Bom.L.R. 923=32 B. 50. The interest, well-being and happiness of the minor ought to be the main and paramount consideration for the Court in selecting the guardian of the person of a minor. 9 Bom.L.R. 923=32 B. 50. See also 13 O.C. 140=6 I.C. 1001; 192 P.L.R. 1913=19 I.C. 609; 33 A. 222=8 I.C. 785; 26 I.C. 300; 1936 Pesh. 207. Consistently with the welfare of the minor the Court should also have regard to the wishes of the deceased parents of the minor and also to the minor's wishes when he is of years of discretion. 25 I.C. 112=18 C.W.N. 1193 (32 B. 50; 29 A. 210, Foll.) The Guardians and Wards Act does not permit the Court to subordinate the law to which the minor is subject to the considerations of what will be for the minor's welfare. 1938 A.L.J. 982=1939 All. 15=I.L.R. (1938) All. 963. Personal law of the minor can be disregarded if the minor's welfare leaves no alternative. 28 O.C. 172=85 I.C. 624=1925 O. 623. Selection of guardian cannot be referred to arbitration. 112 I.C. 451. A boy aged 14 years and a girl aged 16 years, are old enough to form an intelligent preference; such preference is strongly entitled to consideration under sec. 17 (3). 12 N. L.R. 35=32 I.C. 977. As to consulting the wish of the minor, see also 134 I.C. 596=1931 O. 326. Being litigious is in itself no disqualification for guardianship. 87 I.C. 903=1925 O. 398. The circumstances that the mother of the minor girl has been forced to leave the house of the person claiming guardianship, that there has been litigation between them, that the person claiming guardianship is the legal heir of the minor girl and that the minor girl wishes to remain with the person who helped her mother and for whom she has life-long affection, make it desirable that girl should remain in the custody of the person with whom she has so long stayed. 1929 A. 857. Sec. 19 precludes from appointing any one other than the father of the minor as guardian of the minor unless the minor's father is found to be unfit to be guardian of the minor's person. 19 N.L.R. 45=1923 N. 199. But see also 83 I.C. 308=1925 L. 250; 1925 O. 282; 87 I.C. 1024=1925 O. 421; 86 I.C. 957=1925 M. 1085. The sister of the minor applied to be appointed guardian of his person and property. The minor who was aged 14 opposed this and it appeared that, after her appointment, the minor attempted to commit suicide. It did not, however appear that his conduct was due to ill-treatment by the sister. There being no other relatives the Court revoked the order of appointment and directed the Society for Protection of Children in India to visit the boy at his sister's house. The Society, however, was not appointed guardians. Held,

(1) that it was necessary to have a guardian appointed for the person of the minor; (2) that under the circumstances of the case the sister was the only proper person to be appointed guardian, the Society being authorised at the same time to visit the boy and look after his interests in consultation with the guardian. 58 C. 15=1930 C. 397. The District Court is justified in superseding a guardian who does not furnish security within the fixed time. 192 P.L.R. 1913=19 I.C. 609. Discretion under the section is very wide—No interference by High Court. 13 O.C. 103=11 I.C. 340. If it thinks it would be injurious to the minor to give effect to the father's wishes it can interfere even in his lifetime. 22 M.L.J. 247=13 I.C. 453. The presumptive heir to the property of a minor is not a suitable person to be appointed guardian of his person, as such a person stands to gain by the minor's death. 44 M.L.J. 62=1923 M. 359. The desirability of having a very near relation like the elder sister appointed guardian of the property of a minor should not be overlooked, where no adverse interest is for the present apparent or is made out by evidence before the Court. Where a male child has been born and brought up in the faith of his father, he should not be handed over to his mother who has left that faith and has thereby stepped outside the family in which she was married, with the certainty that the boy will be induced to leave the religion of his father for the new religion of the mother. Where a minor aged 6 years, who has been brought up in the Shiah religion of his father till the latter died was claimed by the mother, who had since become converted to Christianity, as her ward. Held, that in spite of the personal law, the Court could refuse the application of the mother for the custody of the child and place him under the protection of his paternal grandfather. 7 O.W.N. 950=1930 Quidr. 471. A female relation of a Mahomedan minor who has under the Mahomedan Law a preferential right to the custody of the minor, can be appointed guardian of the person of the minor under S. 17 if the welfare of the minor would be better served thereby, although she has married a person who is not related to the minor in the prohibited degrees. Under the section, the welfare of the minor is the primary consideration and even a stranger may be appointed a guardian in preference to a relation if the Court considers that the welfare of the minor demands it. The section, no doubt, also enjoins that the Court should, wherever possible, make an appointment which is inconsistent with the personal law to which the minor is subject; and that when the personal law definitely forbids the appointment of a certain person as guardian, such person should not be appointed. I.L.R. (1941) 1 Cal. 419=45 C. W.N. 515=1942 Cal. 281. Under the Mahomedan Law, a maternal aunt has a preferential right to the custody of a minor to that of the step-mother of the father of the minor. She no doubt loses the right to the custody if she marries a person who is not related to the minor within the prohibited degrees. But it does not necessarily follow from this that she is disqualified from being appointed a guardian of the minor by a Court acting under the Guardian and Wards Act. The Mahomedan Law nowhere lays down that a woman who had married a stranger to the minor is "disqualified" from being appointed a guardian under any circumstances. It merely lays down that such a woman loses any preferential right which she had by virtue of her relationship to the minor. 76 C.L.J. 303.

COMPETITION BETWEEN HUSBAND AND FATHER OF MINOR WIFE.—The language of the section obviously implies that when any of the three contingencies mentioned in the sub-clauses exist, there is no authority in the Court to appoint or declare a guardian of the person of the minor at all; that is to say, the jurisdiction of the Court conferred upon it by S. 17 to appoint or declare a guardian is ousted where the case is covered by S. 19. The section means not only that in the presence of the husband or the father no one else should be given preference, when either of them is fit to be appointed the guardian, but on its language it even ousts the jurisdiction of the Court altogether and prevents it from appointing even the husband or the father as the guardian when both of them are not unfit to be the guardian. The legislature did not intend to settle the competition that may arise under the personal law governing the minor between the husband and the father of the minor. 54 A. 128=137 I.C. 219=1932 A. 215. Immorality is not decisive to show that he is not fit to be guardian. 10 Mys. L.J. 156, following 46 A. 706.

RELIGION OF MINOR.—A child in India must, under ordinary circumstances, be presumed to have his father's religion and his corresponding civil and social status, and it is therefore ordinarily the duty of a guardian to train his infant ward in such religion. 32 I.C. 897=46 P.W.R. 1916 [11 W. R. 77 (P.C.), foll.] Effect of change of religion on right of guardianship, see 167 P.L.R. 1901; 60 P.R. 1901. See also 13 O.C. 140=6 I.C. 1001. The father of an infant is prima facie entitled to say in what religion his infant child should be brought up, but, at the same time in a proper case (e.g., when the father has abdicated his right) there is undoubted jurisdiction in the Court to disregard those wishes. 25 C. 881=2 C.W.N. 379. See also 22 M.L.J. 247=11 M.L.T. 53. The scope of the enactment is merely to remove legislative prohibition, to confer expressly a certain jurisdiction and to define exactly the position of those who avail themselves of or are brought under, the Act, leaving persons to whom any existing rules of law apply, unaffected. 4 C. 929=4 C.L.R. 247 (F.B.). The Act contains no provisions enabling the Court to act of its own motion. (Ibid.)

MAHOMEDAN FATHER—APPOINTMENT AS GUARDIAN—DIFFERENCE IN RELIGION.—An application for being appointed as guardian of his child by a Mahomedan father should be decided in the discretion of the Court after due consideration of the matters set out in S. 17. The child being a child of a Mahomedan marriage, the Mahomedan Law on the subject should receive due consideration at the hand of the Court, but the Mahomedan law need not necessarily govern the application. Where a Mahomedan divorces his Buddhist wife with a three months' old female child who is brought up in her mother's religion for none years afterwards, the mother having married a Buddhist, it is in the interests of the child that the mother should remain the guardian. The facts that the father is comparatively more well to do and able to maintain and educate the child and had given maintenance to the child who had never seen him do not override the consideration of the minor's interests. 145 I.C. 843=1933 R. 201.

MUHAMMADAN MOTHER.—Where the mother of the minors, who were Mahomedans and of the age of 11, 9 and 8, was not of good character and had married a Hindu Jat, held, it is in the interest of the minors to be brought up in the religion of their Mahomedan father and that the children were not so young that they cannot be separated from the mother. 149 I.C. 973. (1)=1934 L. 287. Where the mother of two Mahomedan girls, five and a half and two and a half years of age, did not appear to be of good character and had married a Hindu. Held, the mother was not a proper person to have custody of the minors, but the girl of two and a half years was too young to be separated from her mother. 151 I.C. 322 (1)=1934 L. 291. In the case of a Mahomedan minor, the Court is not debarred by any provision of Mahomedan Law from appointing the mother as guardian merely because she had remarried outside the prohibited degrees. It cannot be said that the Court should subordinate the welfare of the minor and must, whatever the consequence, appoint the natural guardian under the personal law. I.L.R. (1944) All. 368=1944 A.W.R. (H.C.) 156=A.L.R. 1944 A. 202.

GUARDIAN OF INFANT IN AN UNDIVIDED HINDU FAMILY.—The High Court can, in the exercise of its inherent jurisdiction under Cl. 17 of the Letters Patent (and apart from the Guardians and Wards Act, 1890), appoint a guardian of an infant coparcener in an undivided Mitakshara family. 59 C. 570=138 I.C. 739=1932 C. 502. Parents entrusting custody of children to third persons—Forfeiture of natural rights. See I.L.R. (1943) 2 Cal. 202.

SECS. 17 AND 18—CARE OF TENDER YEARS.—FACTS NOT RELEVANT—CONSIDERATION FOR COURT.—In proceedings for custody of a minor child under the Act the paramount consideration is the interest of the child rather than the rights of the parents. In the case of a child of tender years, the natural mother of the child is the proper person to have the custody of the child, though the father is the natural guardian of her child. It is impossible to find an adequate substitute for the mother for the custody of a child of tender years, and in the absence of any evidence to show that she is not a proper person to have the custody of the child, she must be given custody of the child in preference to the father. I.L.R. (1941) Bom. 455=43 Bom. L.R. 79=1941 Bom. 103. If a girl willingly and with understanding embraces the Mahomedan religion, the fact that she was under

CHAPTER III.

DUTIES, RIGHTS AND LIABILITIES OF GUARDIANS.

General.

20. (1) A guardian stands in a fiduciary relation to his ward, and, save as provided by the will or other instrument, if any, by which he was appointed, or by this Act, he must not make any profit out of his office.

Fiduciary relation of guardian to ward.

18 years of age would not invalidate the conversion and make her subsequent marriage void, if all the necessary formalities at the conversion and the subsequent nikah had been faithfully observed, because a minor girl above 15 years, i.e., the age of minority under the Mahomedan Law, can be validly converted to the Mahomedan religion if in addition to a mere repetition of the words of faith she has understood their meaning. The Court is not concerned to inquire into the motive or sincerity of religious belief or observance. 186 I.C. 183 = 1939 Sind 311.

SEC. 19.—[See also notes under S. 7 and S. 17, supra.] S. 19 recognizes the natural right of the father and is controlled by S. 17 according to which the paramount consideration is the welfare of the minor. 47 I.C. 817=12 S.L.R. 14. But see 23 L.W. 213=1925 M. 1085, which lays down that the prohibition contained in this section applies also to a husband or father. S. 19 does not make a father the guardian of the person of a minor girl, when he is not already the natural guardian under the personal law applicable to the minor. The Act is not intended to interfere with the personal law of minors. 1935 L. 25. See also 13 R. 590. S. 19 is no bar to an application by the father under S. 25. 1940 A.L.J. 238=I.L.R. See 83 I.C. 308=1925 L. 250; 1925 O. 282; 87 I.C. 1024=1925 O. 421; 86 I.C. 957=1925 M. 1085. But see also 86 I.C. 640=21 L.W. 244=1925 M. 398=48 M.L.J. 179. During the natural guardian's life, a Court cannot appoint another guardian, unless in its opinion, the natural guardian is unfit. 38 M. 807=41 J. A. 314=27 M.L.J. 30=18 C.W.N. 1089 (P. C.). A Hindu father's consent does not operate to deprive him of the guardianship of his children by reason of Act XXI of 1850. 47 I.C. 817=12 S.L.R. 14. The mere fact that the father has changed his religion does not amount to unfitness within the meaning of S. 19. Where the father is alive and able to provide for the welfare of his children, no guardian can be appointed. 138 I.C. 685=1932 L. 385. Guardianship of illegitimate child—Adoption by Mahomedan. See also 7 S.L.R. 199=24 I.C. 944. Where the application is to appoint a guardian of the person of a minor who is a married female and it has been found that the husband is not unfit to be her guardian, an order declaring the husband guardian under S. 19 (a) of the Act is not competent. The proper course for the husband would be to apply for custody of his minor wife under S. 25 of the Act. (24 Bom.L.R. 779 and 41 I.A. 314, Ref. to.) 32 Bom.L.R. 386=1930 B. 239. Parents entrusting custody of child to third persons—Forfeiture of natural rights. See I.L.R. (1942) 2 Cal. 554.

SECS. 19 AND 25.—As long as the father of the minor is alive and is not proved to be unfit to be guardian of the minor, the Court cannot make an order appointing him or anybody else as guardian. But it can order the person who has custody of the minor to hand the minor to the custody of the father. The proper procedure for the father is to apply under S. 25 and not to ask for declaration under S. 19. 158 I.C. 911=1935 A.L.J. 1016=1935 A. 838. See also 13 R. 590; 1940 All. 329. S. 19 bars an application by the maternal grandmother of Mahomedan minor girls against their father for the appointment of a fit and proper person as their guardian and for custody of the minor girls unless the father is shown to be unfit. Though the maternal grandmother under the Mahomedan

Law is entitled to the custody of minor girls who have not attained puberty, failing their mother, in preference to the father, the latter is their legal guardian, and S. 25 cannot apply so as to entitle the maternal grandmother to the custody of the minor girls in the absence of proof that the minors had ever been in the custody of the grandmother and had left or been removed from such custody. There can be no question in such a case of the Court arriving at the conclusion that "it will be for the welfare of the wards to return to the custody" of the grandmother. 54 L.W. 395=1941 Mad. 944=(1941) 2 M.L.J. 548.

District Judge is competent to sanction the marriage of a minor girl under the guardianship of one appointed by the Court with a particular bridegroom. 52 I.C. 998. Where the Court sanctioned the marriage of a minor boy aged 12 to a girl aged 10 and the grounds alleged were that the boy who was himself very rich was likely to get a very rich father-in-law, that the boy was grown up and desired his marriage and it was also said that because the Sarda Act which would take effect soon was likely to postpone the marriage for a long time, it was better to have the marriage celebrated, so that the boy might avoid the temptations of a dissolute life. Held, that the welfare of the minor was the only test in such a case and that the grounds set out would not be a justification for sanctioning the marriage of such a young boy. Held, also, that it was not the province of the Judge to set at naught the principle underlying the Sarda Act or to teach others to flout it. 1930 M.W.N. 57.

The refusal by a person to deliver back the child to its natural guardian when asked to do so by the latter amounts in effect to a removal from his custody and he can, therefore, apply under S. 25 of the Act. 1929 M. 81. See also 54 A. 128=1932 A. 492 (F.B.) (Application by Muhammadan father for custody of his minor girl.) Where it appeared that the father had been tried of serious charges in relation to his treatment of his children and though he had been acquitted of criminal prosecution, his conduct was otherwise reprehensible, Held, that he was disentitled from claiming custody of the minor children who were residing in a convent. 132 I.C. 636=35 C.W.N. 158=1931 C. 563. See also 1935 A. 838. Matters to be considered in passing order under the section. See 107 I.C. 759. The father has a right to custody of a minor child. 47 A. 706; 18 L.W. 173=1924 M. 45. But as to conflict of rulings, 1925 O. 282; 1925 O. 257; 83 I.C. 308=1925 L. 250; 86 I.C. 957=1925 M. 1085; 86 I.C. 640=1925 M. 398. The decision of the question whether it would be for the welfare of the child to return to the custody of its guardian depends entirely on the circumstances of each case. When the guardian of the person of a ward applies for the custody of the ward, he is only asking the Court to help him to discharge the duty cast on him by law with reference to his ward and it is for those, who oppose such an application to make out that the welfare of the ward will be better served by its being kept out of the custody of its guardian and retained in the custody of the person against whom the application is made. This onus is especially heavy when the guardian is the father of the child. 1929 M. 81. Before the Court can pass an order for the arrest and delivery of a minor girl to her husband, the guardian, the Court has first to be satisfied that it is for the welfare of the ward to return to her guardian. The Court cannot assume that it is for her welfare to so return, and if the order is passed without the Court deciding that question, the order will be set aside. 43 L.W. 650=1936 M. 556=71 M. L. J. 396. There is no legal prohibition against the appointment of a person as a guardian who is not residing within the jurisdiction of the Court or the making of an order under S. 25 in favour of such a person, though naturally the Courts would as an ordinary rule be reluctant to make such an order. 39 Bom.L.R. 103=1937 B. 158=I.L.R. (1937) Bom. 348.

FATHER—RIGHTS OF.—The father has an inalienable right to the custody of his children and he cannot be deprived of it except for strong reasons. 41 P.L.R. 841=1939 Lah. 359. The father, as the natural guardian, has the legal right to the custody of his child and the Court will not interfere with his right except when the safety or the welfare of the child requires such interference. The Court will be perfectly justified in imposing limits upon the father's right of custody, if the exercise of such rights will materially interfere with the health and happiness of the minor. 74 C.L.J. 196. An immoral father has not the same right to the custody of his children as a moral man. (1924 A. 622, not appr.) 1929 M. 81. See also 120 I.C. 747. Although according to Hindu Law a father is the natural guardian of his children during their minority and has, therefore, a paramount right to the custody of his children, yet each case must depend upon its own circumstances and the right of the father is liable to be defeated where it is shown that it is better in the interests of the minor and for its welfare that it should remain where it is. If a minor girl has for many years from a tender age lived with grandparents or other near relatives and has been well cared for and during that time the minor's father has shown a lack of interest in the minor, these are circumstances of very great importance and bear both upon the question of the interests and welfare of the minor and on the bona fides of the petition by the father for the custody of his minor girl. 41 L.W. 190=1935 M.W.N. 412=1935 M. 195. A Hindu father is the natural guardian of his children during their minority, and has prima facie a paramount right to their custody, and must be given such custody unless he is unfit or there are other circumstances. But the welfare of the minor child is a very important matter for consideration and the interests and welfare of the minor are sometimes even paramount to the rights of the father. A minor girl about one year old was, on her mother's death, taken to live with her maternal uncles with the consent of her father who took a second wife and had by her four children. She remained with her uncles ever since until she was 13 years of age and was fondly brought up and well-cared for by her uncles and grandmother. The father did not show the slightest interest in her welfare till then, but suddenly applied for her custody under S. 25 of the Act. The minor girl showed her preference clearly in favour of remaining with her uncles, and it also appeared that the petition made by the father was not bona fide but out of spite and grudge against the maternal uncles. Held, that the minor girl of 13 years was capable of forming a good opinion on the matter and that the interests and welfare of the minor demanded that she should remain where she was and the father's petition should be refused. 41 L.W. 400=1935 M. 363=68 M.L.J. 213. See also 50 L.W. 520=1939 Mad. 611=(1939) 2 M.L.J. 515. The father is the natural guardian of his minor child and has a right to claim custody of the child, but such right can be defeated if the Court thinks it better in the minor's interests to leave him in another's custody. In determining the minor's welfare, the question whether the application for custody is bona fide or not should be considered. If it is not bona fide, that is a reason for not disturbing the existing custody. The Court may in that connection take into account the failure on the part of the father to take steps over a long period to get custody of the minor. Another consideration is whether he is a fit person for the minor to be returned to. The fact that the father ~~ill-treated the minor's mother and was about to marry a second wife~~ will also ~~count~~ against him, especially when his application is belated, made after the lapse of a long time. 158 I.C. 99=1935 M. 368. See also 1939 Mad. 611=(1939) 2 M.L.J. 515. A minor, provided he or she is old enough to understand the nature of his or her ~~acts~~, though under 18 years of age, is ~~able~~ in spite of the father's power of general control over his or her education, religious and otherwise, to change his or her religion. But in this, as in all other matters under the Guardians and Wards Act, the Court in deciding who shall have the custody of the minor will consider ~~the minor's welfare~~ and interest of the minor; and in so doing the Court can set aside her own preferences in ~~her own interest~~ and for her good. Further, a father does not lose the right of custody of his minor child if he becomes converted to another religion or if his child becomes so converted. 1939 Sind 311; 39 Bom.L.R. 103=1937 B. 158; 41 L.W. 789=68 M.L.J. 662. Where a District Judge appointed the father guardian of the property of a ward, ~~and the respondent~~ the respondent ~~petitioned to be appointed guardian~~ petitioned to be appointed guardian, ~~and the District Judge~~ the District Judge held that no order as regards the guardianship of her person was necessary. Held, that the conditional order of appointment as guardian of the property is of no effect. The District Judge was not correct in saying that no order as regards the guardianship of the person was "necessary". 1930 M. 19. On this section, see also 27 I.C. 257; 13 A.L.J. 742; 29 I.C. 768; 28 L.W. 597=17 Bom.L.R. 332. Though, according to the Muhammadan Law, the mother is the guardian of her minor son below 7 years of age, and so an application by the father for the custody of a child aged less than 7 at the time of the application would be incompetent, nevertheless, if during the course of the proceedings, the infant has attained 7 years of age, it is open to the father to continue the application. The only remedy of a father for the custody of his minor son is by an application under S. 25. The words "removed from his custody" should receive a liberal construction as including removal from constructive custody. A refusal to deliver a minor to his natural guardian when asked to do so by the latter amounts in effect to removal from his custody. 124 I.C. 381; 25 A.L.J. 585 (rights of Mahomedan father and mother over minor child). Natural father of a child consented to the mother retaining the child during its infancy. The mother separated from the father before birth of the child and lived with another man as his wife. On her death the natural father applied for the custody of the child. The natural father was a man of good character. Held, that he was entitled to apply for and obtain the custody in preference to the other man with whom the mother lived as wife after separation from the natural father and that the child must be deemed to have been in his custody at the time of its birth. (39 M. 608; 49 A. 332, Ref.; 40 B. 600, Diss. from.) 12 R. 161=149 I.C. 1045=1934 R. 49 (1). A Mahomedan father who is the lawful guardian of his minor children by a wife who has been divorced by him, does not require an order of the Court to support his right to act as the guardian, in fact an application for appointing him guardian under the Guardian and Wards Act does not lie. Being the guardian of his children under his personal law, he is entitled to apply for an order under S. 25 of the Act for custody of his children, although the fact that he is the lawful guardian does not mean that the Court is compelled to pass an order in his favour under S. 25. The welfare of the minor is of primary importance and the Court will be guided by that consideration in making or not making an order. 1945 M.W.N. 704=58 L.W. 587=(1945) 2 M.L.J. 463. Petitioner who lived with his wife and minor child in the house of his father-in-law for nearly two years and thereafter lived apart called upon the wife to come with the child and live with him but the latter refused. The petitioner having applied under S. 25 of the Act for custody of his minor child, held, that the father as the natural guardian of his minor child was entitled to apply under S. 25, that the minor must be deemed to be in the constructive custody of the petitioner and that the refusal of the wife to go and live with him with the child was in law a removal of the child from the custody of the petitioner. Held, further, that an application under S. 25, and not a suit was the proper remedy of the petitioner. 151 I.C. 1037=36 Bom.L.R. 668 1934 B. 311. The word 'custody' in S. 25 includes both actual and constructive custody. 39 M. 608=30 M.L.J. 21; 25 A.L.J. 585; 58 B. 724=36 Bom.L.R. 668=1934 B. 311. Even where the minor has never been in the custody of the guardian, in order to make the Act workable, a fiction must be imported into S. 25, whereby it is deemed that the child has been constructively in the guardian's custody and has left it. 1930 M. 19. About mother's right to custody, see 56 I.C. 242=24 C.W.N. 711; 31 C.L.J. 365=57 I.C. 13. See also 1931 A.L.J. 333 (minor alleged to be member of joint Hindu family). But whether she by her conduct precludes herself from demanding the custody, see 1 M.L.J. 347; 23 C. 290. Where immoral conduct is proved against her she is not entitled to custody. 14 M.L. A. 309. See also 1929 M. 81. A Court is not justified in refusing relief to the guardian under S. 25 of the Act on the ground that the guardian is too weak to keep the minor. 1927 L. 266. It is the duty of the Court to protect the weak against the high handed acts of the strong and this duty had to be performed with greater vigilance when the aggrieved party is a duly constituted guardian appointed by the Court itself and the victims are minors under its charge. 100 I.C. 807=1927 L. 266. In order to take action under S. 25, it is immaterial whether the minor left the guardian's custody of his own accord or was forcibly removed by the respondent. 100 I.C. 807=1927 L. 266. Father leading an immoral life—Children living with maternal uncle—Power delegated by the father whether can be revoked. 103 I.C. 361=1927 N. 314. For the purposes of S. 25, it is not really necessary that the applicant should be a lawful guardian under the personal law. The application can be made by any person having the care of the person of the minor. The father of an illegitimate son who had the care of his person has, therefore, a locus standi to maintain a petition under the section. The petition must be decided on equitable considerations, the sole criterion for decision being the welfare of the minor. 15 L. 630=35 P.L.R. 677=1934 L. 1003. See also I.L.R. (1940) All. 269=1940 A.L.J. 238=1940 All. 329. Under Hindu Law the father of a minor girl ceases to be the guardian of her person as soon as she is married. 1935 L. 25. On the death of her husband, this right does not revive in favour of the father, but devolves upon the husband's relations. Where therefore at the time of the application under S. 25 by the father the girl was in custody of her natural guardian, the mother-in-law, it cannot possibly be said that she had been removed from lawful custody, and the order for the delivery of the minor to her father under S. 25 is illegal. 1935 L. 25. Ex parte order directing production of minor—Application to cancel the order dismissed—Order of dismissal not appealable—Proper remedy of the party is to apply to set aside ex parte order. 92 I.C. 36=1926 N. 351. A husband is, by Hindu Law, a natural guardian of his minor wife and entitled to custody and comes within the definition in S. 14 of the Act as being "a person having the care of the person of a minor" and, therefore, is entitled to apply under S. 25 for the custody of his wife. 121 I.C. 175=1930 Sind 135. See also 33 Bom.L.R. 386. Where a husband obtains a decree for restitution of conjugal rights against this minor wife, his only remedy would be to get an attachment against the property of his wife, if she has any. It would be altogether wrong to permit the husband to achieve his object by making an application under the provisions of sec. 25 to take custody of his minor wife against whom the decree was passed. (1936) A.L.J. 211=1936 A. 267=161 I.C. 816, Reversed.) 164 I.C. 915=1936 A. 657.

"CUSTODY"—"GUARDIAN."—The meaning of the word "custody" is not confined to the physical or actual custody of the minor. Even if the ward is in the actual custody of another person with the permission of the guardian, he or she would be under the guardian's constructive custody. 54 A. 128=1932 A.L.J. 21=1932 A. 215. "Custody" in sec. 25 includes the actual as well as the constructive custody of the minor, and the section is not limited to the powers of enforcing the guardian's right to the extreme case of an actual leaving or removal. A ward in the actual custody of another person with the permission of the guardian is deemed to be in the constructive custody of the guardian, and the refusal of the person in actual custody to hand over the minor to the guardian amounts to a removal of the minor from the constructive custody of the guardian within the meaning of sec. 25 of the Act. 151 I.C. 1037=36 Bom.L.R. 668=1934 B. 311. See also 74 C.L.J. 196; 39 M. 608=30 M.L.J. 21; 25 A.L.J. 585; 161 I.C. 816=1936 A.L.J. 211=1936 A. 267. Any person who has the care of the person of the minor is a 'guardian' of the person; so if a female relation is under the Muhammadan Law entitled to the custody of the minor and not disqualified in any way and the minor is actually in her custody, it cannot be said that she has left or has been removed from the custody of the guardian having the care of the person of the minor. 54 A. 128=137 I.C. 219=1932 A. 215. A father can make an application under sec. 25 for the custody of his minor son although the minor was never in his custody and lived all along with his maternal grandparents. The word "custody" as used in that section refers not only to actual but also to constructive or legal custody. When the father of a child is alive and has not abandoned his right, the maternal grandfather or for the matter of that any other relation who has actual custody of the boy must be deemed to have that custody with the knowledge and consent of the father. Legally it is the father who has the custody of the child in such circumstances, and the child can be deemed within the meaning of the section, to be removed from such legal custody, when the person in whose actual possession he is, repudiates to the guardian's knowledge the right of the latter to the actual or legal custody of the minor. 74 C.L.J. 196. Sec. 25 does not apply if the ward has never been in the custody of the guardian. Custody means actual custody and not constructive custody. When the father of a minor has never had actual custody of the child, there is no jurisdiction in the Court to direct the custody of the minor child to be handed over to the father in proceedings under the Act. I.L.R. (1941) Bom. 488=43 Bom.L.R. 615=1941 Bom. 344.

GUARDIAN—MEANING OF.—"Guardian" in the Guardians and Wards Act means a person having the care of the person of a minor or of his property or both and is used in a wide sense. It does not necessarily mean a guardian duly appointed or declared by the Court, but includes a natural or even a de facto guardian. 151 I.C. 1037=36 Bom.L.R. 668=1934 B. 311. See sec. 4, supra.

NATIVE CHRISTIAN MINOR.—Father of the father and mother and their appointees, no other person is entitled as of right to the custody of an Indian Christian minor or to the guardianship of his or her property. 132 I.C. 120=1931 M. 529=60 M.L.J. 695.

RIGHT OF CUSTODY.—Under the Act it is only the guardian who can bring a separate suit. 33 M. 608=24 P.C. 27=23 M. 647 (P.C.); 38 M. 607 (P.C.). See also 9 B. 569 following [36 A. 594; 38 M. 807 (P.C.); 42 M. 647].

PRACTICE.—Orders as to the custody of a child under the Act are always of a temporary nature. Those interested in the child are at liberty to apply to the Court for modification or alteration of the order whenever necessary. 101 I.C. 241=1931 Bom. 455=1931 Bom. 103.

JURISDICTION.—Application by mother for custody of minor daughter—Minor removed from Court's jurisdiction—Application cannot be granted. 177 I.C. 427=1938 Lah. 84; 40 P.L.R. 64=I.L.R. 1938 L. 318=1938 L. 318.

SECS. 25 AND 19.—Where a father applies for the custody of his illegitimate children by a prostitute, and it is found that the mother was continuing to lead a life of prostitution, it is in the interests of the minors that they should not be allowed to remain in the custody of the mother and that the father should be given their custody. Sec. 19 is not a bar to such an order being made. I.L.R. (1940) All. 269=1940 A.L.J. 238=1940 All. 329. See also 15 Lah. 630=1934 Lah. 1003.

26. (1) A guardian of the person appointed or declared by the Court, unless he is the Collector or is a guardian appointed by will or other instrument, shall not, without the leave of the Court by which he was appointed or declared, remove the ward from the limits of its jurisdiction except for such purposes as may be prescribed.

(2) The leave granted by the Court under sub-section (1) may be special or general, and may be defined by the order granting it.

Guardian of Property.

27. A guardian of the property of a ward is bound to deal therewith as carefully as a man of ordinary prudence would deal with it if it were his own, and, subject to the provisions of this Chapter, he may do all acts which are reasonable and proper for the realisation, protection or benefit of the property.

S.E.O. 26.—See 19 I.C. 655=11 A.L.J. 209; A.W.N. (1899) 204; 8 M.H.C.R. 94.

S.E.O. 27: APPLICABILITY.—Sec. 27 applies to guardians recognized by the law whether or not they have been appointed guardians under the Guardians and Wards Act. It does not and was not intended to confer any power upon a person who without any lawful authority in that behalf has usurped the position of a guardian, or has taken upon himself the care of the property of a minor. 12 E. 656=1934 E. 335. A guardian appointed under the Act cannot ratify the unauthorized acts of a former guardian. 54 I.C. 311. It is unwise on the part of the guardian to admit that his wards were liable for a debt when the debt could not be legally recovered owing to the lapse of time. 56 I.C. 328=23 O.C. 27. Where a guardian acting in the interests of the minor enters into a compromise of a doubtful right, it is binding on the minor. 14 M.L.J. 442. A guardian has a discretion under sec. 27 to allow a remission of rent on failure of rain or other source of irrigation. 28 I.C. 5=8 S.L.E. 222. On this section, see also 83 I.C. 24=1924 A. 622 where the income from a business inherited by a minor is the principal source of his maintenance, money borrowed by his guardian for the efficient conduct of that business is money borrowed for the benefit of the minor's estate. 44 C.W.N. 1048=1940 Cal. 532. The mere fact that the guardian has filed abstract statement of assets and liabilities does not release him from liability to account unless he gets a discharge from such liability from the Court. 15 C.L.J. 57=7 I.C. 214 (34 C. 211, Rel.). A promissory note executed by the certificated guardian for goods supplied to the shop owned by the minor does not impose a personal liability on the minor and the creditor is not entitled to recover the amount from the minor or his estate. 34 Bom.L.R. 1001=1932 B. 480. Although a guardian can under certain circumstances sell or charge his ward's estate or property, he cannot bind him personally by a simple contract debt nor can he bind his estate except by a document purporting to bind it. This principle applies even to a case where the promissory note was executed by the guardian (appointed by the Court) after obtaining sanction from Court and the amount was utilised for the benefit of the minor. [11 B. 551 (P. C.) and 20 B. 61, Foll.] 34 Bom.L.R. 996=1932 B. 480. Though a debt incurred on behalf of a minor for necessary purposes of the minor or a covenant to pay a debt so incurred can be enforced against the property of the minor, a guardian cannot impose an unconditional personal liability on the minor by executing a promissory note on his behalf because any qualification of the promise contained in a promissory note such as that it is only to be enforced against a minor, if necessity binding on the minor be shown, is wholly foreign to the idea of a negotiable instrument. 65 M.L.J. 350=56 M. 879. Where the guardian of a minor executed a mortgage which was found to be invalid and unenforceable as such for want of proper attestation, the personal covenant contained in the deed can be enforced against the estate of the minor, if the liability was one binding on the minor under Hindu Law. 54 M. 163=1931 M. 410=60 M.L.J. 56 [39 M.L.J. 29 (F.B.) Foll.]. A decree can be passed against a minor's estate on a contract entered into by his guardian in a case in which the estate would have been liable for the obligation incurred by the guardian under the personal law to which the minor was subject. (42 M. 185, Foll.) 139 I.C. 383=1932 M. 696.

EXECUTION APPLICATION.—A guardian cannot make an application for execution of a decree on behalf of a minor who has attained majority without a proper power of attorney. If, however, the minor ratifies the act, the application is valid. 32 P.L.R. 290=1931 L. 600 (1929 L. 478, Appl.). Liability of guardian for his failure to invest his ward's money for interest—Liability not outside the Act. 33 B. 419=11 Bom.L.R. 512=3 I.C. 172. Where the omission of the guardian to invest the minor's property in trust securities as directed by sec. 20 of the Trusts Act and to file proper accounts was the main cause of the loss caused to the minors though the action of others also partly caused the loss, held, that the guardian and his surety were liable for the whole loss sustained by the minors. 136 I.C. 517=1932 S. 181. Negligence of guardian—Order passed by Revenue Court—Right of minor to avoid. See 138 I.C. 465=1932 A.L.J. 437=1932 A. 293 (F.B.).

PURCHASE OF LAND FOR MINOR.—A guardian

28. Where a guardian has been appointed by will or other instrument, his power to mortgage or charge, or transfer by sale, gift, exchange or otherwise, immovable property belonging to his ward is subject to any restriction which may be imposed by the instrument, unless he has under this Act been declared guardian and the Court which made the declaration permits him by an order in writing, notwithstanding the restriction, to dispose of any immovable property specified in the order in a manner permitted by the order.

29. Where a person other than a Collector, or than a guardian appointed by will or other instrument, has been appointed or declared by the Court to be guardian of the property of a ward, he shall not, without the previous permission of the Court,— of a minor, although he occupies a position which is fiduciary in character, cannot be held to be debarred from acquiring immovable property on behalf of his ward, provided in doing so he acts as a prudent man who is acting carefully with his own money. Though a guardian in possession of minor's property may fall under sec. 94 of the Trusts Act, he cannot be held in every case to come within sec. 95 of the Trusts Act as the words "so far as may be" in that section make it subject to sec. 27 of the Guardians and Wards Act. 49 L.W. 644=1939 Mad. 645=(1939) 1 M.L.J. 745.

SECS. 27, 29 AND 30.—Under sec. 27 of the Act, a guardian may, subject to the provisions of the Act, do all acts which are reasonable and proper for the realisation, protection or benefit of the property of the minor. Other sections in the Act place restrictions on the guardian's power to alienate or charge the immovable property of the minor. It follows that the restrictions contained in sec. 29 and the provisions of sec. 30 do not apply to a mere borrowing of money by a guardian. A loan contracted without the sanction of the Court by a guardian appointed under the Act will be binding upon the minor if the lender had made proper enquiries and had satisfied himself as to the legal necessity for the loan, whether or not the money was actually applied for the benefit of the minor. The fact that the true necessity was not mentioned in the recitals in the bond is of little importance, as such recitals are merely a piece of evidence as to the nature of the alleged necessity and are not conclusive on the point. 72 C.L.J. 542=44 C.W.N. 1048=1940 Cal. 532. See also 31 P.L.B. (J. & K.) 125.

Sec. 28.—See 11 O.O. 29. Guardian appointed by Court cannot avoid the duties imposed by the Act, by purporting to act as natural guardian. 87 I.O. 238=1925 O. 693. See also 62 I.O. 616=23 C.W.N. 634; 61 P.B. 1918=47 I.O. 353. Testamentary guardian, powers of. See 9 L.L.J. 488=1928 Lah. 90.

SECS. 28 AND 29.—A sale by a certificated guardian in contravention of secs. 28 and 29 is voidable and not void. 8 P. 226=117 I.O. 161=1929 P. 202. Where a compromise has been entered into on behalf of a minor and sanction for that compromise has been duly granted under O. 32, r. 7, C. P. Code.

the permission of the Court under sec. 29 of the Act is not necessary. 122 I.O. 103=1930 L. 250. Joint Hindu family.—Application by father to be appointed guardian of property.—Proper procedure in such cases. 112 I.O. 873.

Sec. 29.—Sec. 29 refers to the powers of guardians appointed and declared by the Court whether they are permanent or temporary guardians. An order of Court directing the sale of property by a temporary guardian is, therefore, not ultra vires. 40 P.L.R. 151 (1)=1938 Lah. 308. In a case where the property of a minor has been conveyed by the guardian without permission of the District Judge, the minor in a suit brought against him, cannot avoid the transfer without securing the benefit which he has received. 11 L.R. (1939) All. 614=1938 A.L.J. 521=1938 All. 360. Sec. 29 is imperative, and absence of permission for a particular transaction renders it void. Where a permit was applied for a particular mortgage of the ward's property for a specified amount on certain terms and granted by the Court, and circumstances change subsequently and part of the money is not required, the guardian is bound to obtain a new permission from the District Judge for a mortgage under the changed circumstances. If the guardian executes a mortgage for an amount less than that specified in the original sanction application on different terms, without obtaining permission, the mortgage is voidable, and unenforceable against the minor, because the former permission cannot cover the mortgage which is different from the contemplated one and executed under different circumstances. The provisions of sec. 29 cannot be said to be complied with. 1937 A.L.J. 1861=1938 All. 109. A deed of family arrangement entered into by a certificated guardian in which no distinct title is conferred on any body and all that is done is a relinquishment of claim by some person in respect of property assigned to another and a recognition of the antecedent right of that other person to the property does not amount to a transfer falling within sec. 29 requiring sanction of the Court. 11 L.R. (1938) All. 125=1938 A.L.J. 23=1938 All. 170. communicated to the Court but subsequently on the application of a third party the Court cancelled the prior lease and directed a fresh auction, held, that the first lease granted was within the competency of the minor and that the Court's order cancelling the same was made without jurisdiction. 132 I.C. 203=1930 L. 1017. When a certified manager creates an occupancy tenancy, whether deliberately or inadvertently, by giving a lease without the previous permission of the Court the landlord is not bound by it. It is not in any way an intolerable restraint on efficient management to provide that the creation of a permanent tenancy should not be made without the Court's permission. It is not a matter of any difficulty for a manager to approach the Court and obtain the necessary permission. The question whether the act opposed is a prudent one or not is immaterial. 177 I.C. 931=1938 Nag. 314. See 1942 O.W.N. (B.R.) 22 (2)=1942 B.D. 38.

SECS. 29 & 30.—Sec. 29 does not apply to transfers of property made on behalf of minors by their guardians ad litem and no sanction of the Court is necessary. 44 I.C. 564=61 P.W.R. 1918. minor may be repudiated by any act or omission of the late minor, by which he intends to communicate the repudiation, or which has the effect of repudiating it, for instance, a transfer of land by him avoids a transfer of the same land made by his guardian before he attained the age of majority. It is not necessary that he should bring a suit; but a suit to set aside the acts of his guardian during his minority amounts of course to an express repudiation. 17 Pat. 460=19 Pat.L.T. 594=1938 Pat. 337. Courts should be slow to hold that when a Court has granted sanction to create a mortgage that sanction does, not protect a subsequent lender of money who lends on the faith of that sanction and who is in no way a party to any slackness or fraud in obtaining that sanction. Where the transaction is not the same as the sanctioned transactions, it is not covered by the sanction and one is thrown back to the position of a mortgage by a guardian without the sanction of Court (i.e.) it could be avoided and when the minors or principal avoid such transaction they can be held liable to restore what they have gained as a consequence of it. 1941 N.L.J. 447=I.L.R. SECS. 29 AND 31: SCOPE—SANCTION FOR LOAN—SUBSEQUENT CANCELLATION — LENDER ADVANCING LOAN DURING CONTINUANCE OF SANCTION.—If AFFRONTED.—Where the Court passes an order authorising the guardian of a minor to raise a loan on the security of minor's estate, the lender is entitled to trust that order and rely on it and is not bound to inquire as to the expediency or necessity of the loan. The subsequent cancellation of the order of sanction after the money has been advanced cannot make any difference in the rights of the lender. 16 Pat.L.T. 135=14 P. 410=1935 P. 225.

SECS. 29, 33 AND 34: COURT AUTHORISING GUARDIAN TO RAISE SIMPLE LOAN—DUTY OF LENDER TO ENQUIRE AS TO NECESSITY.—If an order of Court authorises the guardian of a minor to raise a loan on the security of the minor's estate, the lender is entitled to trust to that order and is not bound to enquire as to the expediency or necessity of the loan for the benefit of the minor's estate. If any fraud or underhand dealing is brought home to him, that would be a different matter; but, apart from any charge of that kind he is entitled to rest upon the order. There is no reason why the same principle should not apply when the guardian instead of raising a loan on the security of the minor's property obtains money on a simple bond after obtaining the sanction of the Court for a simple loan. [11 O. 379 (P.C.), App.] 160 I.C. 64=1936 A.L.J. 155=1938 A. 172. See also 17 L. 688=1936 L. 946.

SEC. 30: MEANING OF WORDS.—It is clear that the 'guardian' contemplated by sec. 30 of the Guardians and Wards Act, is not only a certificated guardian who is the natural guardian of the ward, but also a certificated guardian who is not the natural guardian. I. L.R. (1938) All. 614=1938 A.L.J. 521=1938 All. 369. The words "any other person affected thereby" in sec. 30 do not include a creditor whom a transfer of property might injuriously affect. 75 P.R. 1914=22 I.C. 829. Whether the words of sec. 30 contemplate the avoiding of a transaction by a person other than the minor. See 1938 M.W.N. 802=1938 Mad. 822=(1938) 2 M.L.J. 428. A permission obtained by a certificated guardian by a fraudulent misrepresentation is a nullity but a transfer made in pursuance thereof is only voidable. 1931 A.L.J. 997. Transfer of minor's interest in decree—Judgment-debtor cannot impugn. 41 I.C. 289=27 C.L.J. 110. On this section, see also 54 C. 687.

APPEAL.—An order under sec. 30 is not appealable. 44 A. 458=1923 A. 54 (1)=87 I. C. 251.

LIMITATION.—When an assignment by the guardian of a minor of a mortgage to which the minor is entitled is repudiated by the minor, the minor himself filing a suit for recovery of the mortgage money, the assignee has no right to file a suit on the mortgage as assignee and to ask the Court to recognise his transfer. It is not correct to say that the minor cannot repudiate a transfer by his guardian except by filing a suit under Art. 91 of the Limitation Act, see ~~the Guardians and Wards Act makes the transfer voidable and it is unnecessary to inquire whether it was beneficial to the minor or not.~~ 1938 M.W.N. 802=1938 Mad. 822=(1938) 2 M.L.J. 428. Where a person has been appointed under the Act to be the guardian of the property of certain Mahomedan minors, an alienation by him of the minor's properties without obtaining the Court's permission would be only voidable and not void. It would operate as a valid transfer unless set aside at the instance of the minors concerned. Art. 120 of the Limitation Act gives the minors three years from the date of their attaining majority to set aside the alienation. Where a transfer is made by a de facto guardian, the position may be different. I.L.R. (1941) Mad. 775=53 L.W. 650=1941 Mad. 481=(1941) 1 M.L.J. 800 (F.B.). Where a guardian sells immoveable property belonging to the minor without the sanction of the Court and subsequently executes a second sale with the permission of the District Judge, the latter transferee can sue for possession without expressly suing to have the prior sale set aside. To such a suit Art. 120 and not Art. 91 of the Limitation Act will apply. 34 C. W.N. 948. Where the minor sues after attaining majority to set aside the transfer by his guardian, the suit is governed by Art. 44 and not Art. 144, Limitation Act. 1931 A. L.J. 997=1932 A. 108=53 A. 738.

SECS. 30 AND 31.—Where a guardian of a Practice with respect to permitting transfers under section 29.

minor appointed under the Act obtains the sanction of the Court authorising him to execute a mortgage of the minor's property and to borrow a certain amount for the purpose of paying off a mortgage decree against the estate, and executes a mortgage for the amount authorised by Court, and no fraud or underhand dealing is alleged, the person who lends money to the guardian and takes a mortgage from the guardian is entitled to rely upon the sanction itself for the validity of the transaction. The lender is not bound to go behind the order of the Court sanctioning the mortgage, is entitled to rely upon it, and if he acts bona fide, he is not bound to see to the application of the money or any part of it. The circumstance that the guardian does not subsequently apply the money in its entirety for the purpose for which he borrows it is irrelevant. If the guardian applies the bulk of the money borrowed for the purpose sanctioned by the Court, but applies a small part of it for different purpose which is not sanctioned, it would still be open to the creditor who has advanced the money to establish that there was legal necessity for that amount also. When he has paid the whole amount of the consideration on the faith of the sanction, and the amount advanced does not exceed the amount sanctioned by the Court, he is entitled to claim the whole amount advanced by him as a mortgagee. 40 Bom.L.R. 180=1938 Bom. 234.

SEC. 31.—[See also under sec. 29]. Sec. 31 does not make the holding of any enquiry by Court essential. The fact that the guardian mentioned one debt in the application for permission for sale but the sale-deed purports to have been executed to pay off totally different debts, and the fact that the sale was actually made for a higher sum than that proposed do not show that the interests of the minor were prejudiced in any manner by the sale. 172 I.C. 637=1938 O.W.N. 104=1938 Oudh 65. Under its general jurisdiction, and apart from the Guardians and Wards Act, the High Court has power to appoint a guardian of the property of a minor who is a member of a joint Hindu family and where the minor's property is an undivided share in the family property. The High Court has also jurisdiction to sanction an alienation by the father of a minor or the manager of a joint family where the Court is satisfied that the transaction is for the benefit of the minor. The father or manager has no doubt power under the Hindu Law to sell or mortgage for legal necessity or for the benefit of the estate; but that is no ground for depriving father or manager in a Hindu joint family of his right to come to the High Court and apply to appoint him the guardian of the property of a minor member and for empowering him as such to sell or mortgage the family estate including the minor's undivided share, and if the requisite facts are proved, the Court ought in a proper cause to make an order sanctioning the alienation. 167 I.C. 947=38 Bom.L.R. 1286=I.L.R. (1937) Bom. 432=1937 B. 98. See also 13 B. 590.

SANCTION—GRANT OF—FACTS TO BE CONSIDERED.—All that the District Judge has to consider in an application by the certificated guardian for sale of the minor's property is whether such a sale is necessary or is for the evident advantage of the ward. While granting permission the District Judge should mention that the transaction may take place at a certain figure; the certificated guardian, however, should not be directed to sell to a certain party; the sanction under sec. 31 is therefore complete authority to the certificated guardian to sell to any person he likes who is willing to comply with the terms upon which permission to sell is accorded by the District Judge. 8 P. 228=117 I.C. 161=1929 P. 202. See also 17 L. 688=1936 L. 946. Subsequent cancellation of the order of sanction does not affect the validity of a transaction made primarily. 14 P. 410=16 Pat.L.T. 135. Sanction of Court, effect of—If conclusive as to necessity for alienation. See 15 Pat.L.T. 787=1935 P. 74. Where a Judge in a case in which an enquiry is necessary allows through his remissness a transaction to take place to the detriment of the minor the sanction which he has given is not a bar to a reopening of the transaction. But absence of enquiry would not vitiate a transaction if the Judge has been able to conclude a good bargain. 115 I.C. 273=1929 O. 354. See also 17 L. 688=1936 L. 946. A sale of the property of a minor by a guardian appointed by the Court, with the sanction of the Court, has to be upheld, and the alienee can rely upon, and is protected by, the order of consent, unless it is shown that the order of sanction was obtained by fraud or underhand dealing and that the alienee was a party thereto. It is not necessary for the alienee to prove that the transaction was in the interests of the minor. 165 I.C. 530=38 Bom.L.R. 796=1936 B. 389. A certificated guardian can enter into a contract with an intending purchaser, but such a contract is subject to sanction being accorded to the proposed transaction and when the sanction has been accorded, the contract becomes a completed contract by virtue of that sanction. After the sanction is actually accorded, it is not necessary for the certificated guardian to solemnly enter upon another contract with the proposed purchaser. 8 P. 226=117 I.C. 161=1929 P. 202. Under sec. 31 (2) of the Act the Court sanctioning a sale by a guardian of a minor should in the order granting sanction recite the necessity for the sale or the advantage to be derived from it; but the omission to do this is only an irregularity, and cannot invalidate the order or

(2) The order granting the permission shall recite the necessity or advantage, as the case may be, describe the property with respect to which the act permitted is to be done, and specify such conditions, if any, as the Court may see fit to attach to the permission; and it shall be recorded, dated and signed by the Judge of the Court with his own hand, or when from any cause, he is prevented from recording the order with his own hand, shall be taken down in writing from his dictation and be dated and signed by him.

ALIENATION BY GUARDIAN.—INVALID SANCTION OF COURT.—CLAIM FOR DAMAGES.—Apart from any personal covenant personally binding on him, a guardian selling the property of his minor ward is not personally liable for damages to the vendee if the latter is deprived of the whole or part of the property in consequence of the permission of the District Judge conferring authority on the guardian to transfer being found to be invalid. 151 I.C. 120=1934 A.L.J. 350=1934 A. 645.

ARBITRATION.—REFERENCE.—Where a Burmese mother referred a dispute to arbitration on behalf of herself and her minor sons but it appeared that she was never appointed guardian, held, that the reference and the award were invalid and not binding on the minors. (But see also 131 I.C. 736=1932 L. 728, where it has been held that a reference to arbitration made by a properly constituted guardian in good faith

A sale by the certificated guardian of a minor without the sanction of the Judge is not void in toto but is only voidable. In considering validity of a transaction entered into on minor's behalf, the tests to be applied are (1) to see whether a man of ordinary prudence would have entered into such a transaction in respect of his own property, (2) and whether the circumstances were such that, had the guardian applied to the Court for sanction, the Court would have given the sanction. 1925 M. 215=47 M.L.J. 928. BURDEN OF PROOF.—In primary cases, it is for the transferee to prove that a loan taken by a guardian of the Hindu minors who constitute a joint family, was for the purpose of family necessity. But once the loan is taken with the sanction of the District Judge, the burden of proof would change, and if the minors come to avoid the transfer, then it will be for them to show that the transfer is not binding upon them. Where, however, the mortgagees, fully knowing the terms of the order of the District Judge under which the guardian has been permitted to take a

(3) The Court may in its discretion attach to the permission the following among other conditions, namely:—

(a) that a sale shall not be completed without the sanction of the Court;

(b) that a sale shall be made to the highest bidder by public auction, before the Court or some person specially appointed by the Court for that purpose, at a time and place to be specified by the Court, after such proclamation of the intended sale as the Court, subject to any rules made under this Act by the High Court, directs;

(c) that a lease shall not be made in consideration of a premium or shall be made for such term of years and subject to such rents and covenants as the Court directs;

(d) that the whole or any part of the proceeds of the act permitted shall be paid into the Court by the guardian, to be disbursed therefrom or to be invested by the Court on prescribed securities or to be otherwise disposed of as the Court directs.

(4) Before granting permission to a guardian to do an act mentioned in S. 29, the Court may cause notice of the application for the permission to be given to any relative or friend of the ward who should, in its opinion, receive notice thereof, and shall hear and record the statement of any person who appears in opposition to the application.

SEC. 31 (4).—The words "any person" means any person interested in an application made on behalf of a minor not merely his friends or relatives. 35 M. 743=11 I.C. 946=21 M.L.J. 685.

SECS. 31, 33 AND 43: LEASE WITHOUT PERMISSION—POWER TO CANCEL—POWER TO DEAL WITH MINOR'S PROPERTY.—The District Judge cannot exercise judicial authority in relation to third persons in proceedings under the Guardians and Wards Act. If the lease executed by the guardian is voidable, the same not having been executed with the permission of the District Judge, the latter has no power to cancel it in the sense that the lease becomes inoperative by force of that order. Any question as regards the validity of the lease is to be determined by a competent Court in a regular suit. There is no provision in the Guardians and Wards Act which empowers the District Judge to exercise disposing power over the minor's property under the management of a lawful guardian. It is the function of the guardian to deal with the property of the minor and to administer it. The guardian may obtain the advice of the District Judge under sec. 33. The District Judge may also make an order under sec. 43 regulating the conduct or proceeding of any guardian appointed or declared by the Court. But he cannot deal with the minor's property and do everything which the guardian might do. Besides cancelling an instrument executed by the latter, he has no power to declare that the cancellation of the lease already executed is to take effect from a certain date and that it shall be valid till that date arrives. 1934 A. 1043=1934 A.L.J. 1208.

SEC. 32.—A minor's interest in a trust can be protected and the benefits thereof secured to the minor, by the appointment of a guardian of the property of the minor in respect of such interest. 39 A. 288=37 I.C. 885. As to jurisdiction to dispossess third person in possession of the estate, see 47 A. 313=23 A.L.J. 28=1925 A. 277. An order of suspension of the guardian can be passed by the Judge under sec. 32. 40 I.C. 397. On this section, see also 57 M. 712=66 M.L.J. 351; 64 C.L.J. 556, cited under sec. 43, infra.

SEC. 33.—The directions of Court under sec. 33 do not impose a liability on a minor where none existed. The effect of the sanction under sub-cl. (3) of sec. 33 is that it raises a statutory presumption of a faithful performance by the guardian of a duty cast upon him and protects him as regards his own petition to the Court which appointed or declared him for its opinion, advice or direction on any present question respecting the management or administration of the property of his ward.

Right of guardian so appointed or declared to apply to the Court for opinion in management of property of ward.

(2) If the Court considers the question to be proper for summary disposal, it shall cause a copy of the petition to be served on, and the hearing thereof may be attended by, such of the persons interested in the application as the Court thinks fit.

(3) The guardian stating in good faith the facts in the petition and acting upon the opinion, advice or direction given by the Court shall be deemed, so far as regards his own responsibility, to have performed his duty as guardian in the subject-matter of the application.

Obligations on guardian of property, appointed or declared by the Court.

34. ²Where a guardian of the property of a ward has been appointed or declared by the Court and such guardian is not the Collector, he shall,—

(a) if so required by the Court, give a bond as nearly as may be in the prescribed form, to the Judge of the Court to enure for the benefit of the Judge for the time being, with or without sureties, as may be prescribed, engaging duly to account for what he may receive in respect of the property of the ward;

(b) if so required by the Court, deliver to the Court, within six months from the date of his appointment or declaration by the Court or within such other time as the Court directs, a statement of the immoveable property belonging to the ward, of the money and other moveable property which he has received on behalf of the ward up to the date of delivering the statement, and of the debts due on that date to or from the ward;

(c) if so required by the Court, exhibit his accounts in the Court at such times and in such form as the Court from time to time directs;

(d) if so required by the Court, pay into the Court at such time as the Court directs the balance due from him on those accounts, or so much thereof as the Court directs; and liability either under his bond or in general to the Court or as against the minor. The sanction does not, however, have the effect of making the minor personally bound by a contract by the guardian which does not purport to charge the minor's estate. ³⁴ Bom. L.R. 996. See also 1934 A. 1043. Where a guardian granted a five years' lease of a certain land belonging to the minor, and the transaction was approved by the Court and his relatives and was duly communicated to the Court but subsequently on the application of a third party the Court cancelled the prior lease and directed a fresh partition. Held, that the first lease granted was within the competency of the minor and the Court's order cancelling the same was made without jurisdiction. 132 I.C. 203=1930 L. 101. A Mahomedan mother who had been appointed guardian of her minor child by Court referred a dispute, in which the minor was interested, to arbitration without having obtained the previous sanction of the District Judge. When the award was filed, in Court, permission was obtained from the Court that the award should be filed inasmuch as it was for the benefit of the minor, but there again the mother acted as guardian. The minor's estate, after attaining majority, avoided the award. Held, that the mother's reference to arbitration without the necessary sanction of Court rendered the award and decree voidable at the instance of the minor and the latter could sue to have same set aside within three years of attaining majority. 1931 A.L.J. 170=1931 L. 100. Section 34 of the Guardians and Wards Act, 1850, which allows a Court to require the guardian to pay into Court a fixed sum at stated intervals without regard to the question whether this is in excess of the balance shown on the guardian's account, does not make it mandatory for security to be furnished in all cases in which a guardian has been appointed or declared. It is in no sense exhaustive of the jurisdiction of the High Court to make orders for giving security in guardianship matters and leaves untouched the powers of the High Court to make conditional orders under the Letters Patent. There is nothing invalid or illegal in making a conditional order. Where a person is appointed guardian of the property of a minor on condition of his furnishing security, if security is not given, the order does not become effective so far as the appointment of the prospective guardian is concerned—since the order does not become operative by reason of the failure to furnish security, the minor never becomes a ward; and in such a case sec. 3 of the Majority Act has no application. The minor would become a major on attaining the age of 18 years. 1945 Bom. 449. Per Divatia, J.—The word “appointed” in sec. 3 of the Majority Act means validly appointed. A fortiori a conditional order cannot operate to prolong the period of minority if the condition is not fulfilled with the result that the order does not come into operation at all. The period of minority is not extended in such a case. 11 L.R. (1945) Bom. 449=47 Bom. L.R. 83=A.I.R. 1945 Bom. 243.

(e) apply for the maintenance, education and advancement of the ward and of such persons as are dependent on him, and for the celebration of ceremonies to which the ward or any of those persons may be a party, such portion of the income of the property of the ward as the Court from time to time directs, and, if the Court so directs, the whole or any part of that property.

CL. (d): SCOPE OF SECTION.—94 I.C. 79=1926 M. 825=50 M.L.J. 273. The only order which a Court can pass under sec. 34 (d) is for the payment of the balance on the accounts exhibited by the guardian and not on the basis of accounts as may be discovered after an investigation. 1942 A.L.W. 691. There is nothing in sec. 34 to warrant the suggestion that the expression “balance due from him on those accounts” is necessarily intended to empower the Court to compel the guardian to pay into the Court, not the sum which he admits to be due at the foot of the accounts exhibited by him, but the sum which the Court finds as enquiry held by it to be due. 121 I.C. 103=1930 S. 49. See also 140 I.C. 590=34 P.L.R. 340=1933 L. 484; 1930 L. 420. Sec. 43 read with sec. 34 implicitly provides for expenditure in connection with the auditing of the accounts relating to the property of the ward. 11 P.L.T. 349=1930 P. 384. The guardian of a minor gave on lease a plot of land belonging to a minor to his brother-in-law. The Court held that the lessee was a benamidar for the guardian and called on the latter to deposit the lease money in Court. Held, that the claim against the guardian could be sustained only on the basis of a contract or a quasi-contract and such a claim could be enforced by a regular suit and not by a summary remedy. 136 I.C. 2=1932 L. 272. If no accounts are furnished by the guardian, it does not preclude the Court from going into accounts and calling on the guardian to pay such balance as the Court may find to be due. The power of Court is not limited to directing the guardian to pay such balance as he may or may not show. (46 A. 458; 7 P. 144, Folk) 141 I.C. 103. Where a petition against a guardian states that a certain amount is due from the guardian and the Court finds that the exact amount due is something different. Held, that the Court can record any definite finding as to exact amount due from guardian. 164 I.C. 282=17 P.L.T. 756=1936 P. 447.

SEC. 34 ().—Although under the Hindu Law money borrowed for the purposes of the marriage of a member of a Hindu family must be regarded as borrowed for legal necessity, yet when a guardian has been appointed by the Court, the powers of such guardian with regard to incurring liabilities on behalf of the ward are limited. Such guardian is incompetent to borrow money for the purpose of the marriage of one of his wards and his sister dependent on them without the permission of the Court in view of sec. 34 (e). 8 O.W.N. 1146=1931 O. 403. An order passed in respect of maintenance of a dependant of a minor is one passed under sec. 34 and being of a temporary nature is not binding when the minor attains majority. 1935 Pesh. 174. All orders passed under the provision of sec. 34 (e) are temporary orders, having no effect after the owners of the estate attain majority. Once the minor attains majority, the Court is functus officio and the late ward is empowered himself to cancel or vary the arrangements made by the temporary orders which were passed during his minority. (5 O.W.N. 207, Dist.) 161 I.C. 41=1936 Pesh. 34. An order issuing warrant against an ex-guardian for recovery of arrears of maintenance said to be due to the minor up to the date of his making over possession of the minor's estate to the new guardian is bad, when the ex-guardian has no property of the minor in his hand and has made it over to the new guardian and has submitted accounts. If on the accounts anything is found due from him to the minor, appropriate steps could be taken against him for the recovery of the said amount. 68 C. L.J. 68. There is no provision in the Guardians and Wards Act empowering the Court to issue a distress warrant on the minor to recover from him sum alleged to be due by him to the ex-guardian. 1937 Cal. 422. SECS. 34 (d), 34-A, 35 AND 36.—Sec. 34 (d) does not empower the Court to direct a guardian to pay into Court more than the amount shown to be due in the accounts filed by him. Sec. 34-A, which was inserted by the amending Act of 1929, does not contemplate anything more than an audit and the Court is given no other powers beyond those which it possessed before the insertion of sec.

134-A. "When accounts are exhibited by a guardian of the property of a ward in pursuance of a requisition made under clause (c) or section 34 or otherwise, the Court may appoint a person to audit the accounts, and may direct that remuneration for the work be paid out of income of the property.

35. Where a guardian appointed or declared by the Court has given a bond duly to account for what he may receive in respect of the property of his ward, the Court may, on application made by petition and on being satisfied that the engagement of the bond has not been kept, and upon such terms as to security, or providing that any money received be paid into the Court, or otherwise as the Court thinks fit, assign the bond to some proper person, who shall thereupon be entitled to sue on the bond in his own name as if the bond had been originally given to him instead of to the Judge of the Court and shall be entitled to recover thereon as trustee for the ward, in respect of any breach thereof.

SECS. 34 AND 35: SCOPE.—This section does not deprive the Court of its general power to impose conditions on guardians and so the appointment of a guardian conditional on his furnishing security is not ultra vires. 40 M. 775=37 I.C. 892. Code, and is therefore not executable as a decree. 41 M. 241=41 I.C. 341 (36 M. 39, Foll.). Attachment of property of guardian is improper. 1923 L. 506 (1).

SECURITY.—Appointment of guardian does not become effective until security is furnished. 71 I.C. 572. The Court is the judge under a bond executed by sureties under sec. 34 (a) and can alone sue on the bond in the absence of an assignment in due form of law. 42 M. 302=36 M.L.J. 114=49 I.C. 567. SM. 34-A.—Sec. 34-A was inserted by Act XVII of 1929. The necessity for this section is stated as follows in the Statement of Objects and Reasons:—"The Guardians and Wards Act, 1890, contains no specific provision for the auditing of the accounts of minor's estates and the meeting of the cost of the audit out of the estates. The audit of such accounts tends to be left to the Judges of Subordinate Courts or District Courts or to ministerial officers, who have rarely the time or training to apply anything in the nature of a thorough test. With a view to clearing the possibility of defalcation an annual audit of these accounts is desirable. Accordingly the present Bill has been framed for the purpose of giving express power to the Court to award remuneration for auditing accounts out of the income of property. Cl. (3) empowers the High Court to make rules for the audit of the accounts of persons who should be appointed as such, and also the scales of remuneration to be granted to the auditors. Necessary expenditure, but not capital is not income and hence audit fee which can be charged only on income cannot be charged on it. 209 I.C. 291=1943 O.W. N. 133 (1)=A.I.R. 1943 Oudh 384. See also I.L.R. 1945 Mad. 119=(1944) 1 M.L.J. 341.

SEC. 35.—The Court has got the power under sec. 35 to assign a security bond executed by the guardian to some other person of the Court's choice. The power of the Court to assign is undoubtedly discretionary. (The effect of the words "as trustee for the ward" in sec. 35 considered.) 34 C.W.N. 953.

Under sec. 35, the cause of action arises to the assignee after an assignment to him. The assignment of the bond to the assignee subsequent to the date of suit by assignee cannot give him an antecedent cause of action against the sureties. 22 Pat. 114=A.I.R. 1943 Pat. 218.

A Court can assign the bond under sec. 35 even after the ward has attained the age of majority. 23 Pat. 114=A.I.R. 1943 Pat. 218.

SECURITY BOND BY GUARDIAN—ASSIGNMENT.—Where a person appointed as guardian of a minor under the Act executes a security bond in favour of the Court undertaking to "duly account for all the movable property and for all the money which he shall receive a bond as aforesaid, any person, with the leave of the Court, may, as next friend, at any time during the continuance of the minority of the ward, and upon such terms as aforesaid, institute a suit against the guardian, or, in case of his death, against his representative, for an account of what the guardian has received in respect of the property of the ward, and may recover in the suit, as trustee for the ward, such amount as may be found to be payable by the guardian or his representative, as the case may be.

(2) The provisions of sub-section (1) shall, so far as they relate to a suit against a guardian, be subject to the provisions of S. 440 of the Code of Civil Procedure as amended by this Act.¹

on account of the movable and immovable properties of the minor", etc., and to be liable for a certain amount of money in default of the due performance of his duties as guardian, making his immovable properties security for the amount in addition to his personal liability, the bond is conditioned for the due performance of the duties of the executant as guardian. The obligation to pay comes into force the moment there is failure to account for the monies received by the guardian. If as the result of the engagement of the bond not being kept up and of the failure of the guardian to account for the monies, the Court assigns the bond under sec. 35 what the assignee gets is not a mere right to sue but a right to enforce a liability under the bond which has accrued due, and when the liability is also secured by a charge or mortgage of immovable property, the charge or mortgage is also assigned along with the right to enforce the liability. The assignee under sec. 35 is entitled to enforce the liability and the charge or mortgage therefor as if the bond had been executed in his favour. When a newly appointed guardian of the ward takes an assignment the assignment is in trust for the ward. When the assignee guardian assigns the bond to the ward on the latter becoming a major that assignment is only in fulfilment of the duty the assignee is bound to hand over all the property of the ward to the latter. Such an assignment is perfectly valid and entitles the ward to sue and to enforce its terms. 1938 M.W.N. 379=1938 Mad. 829. See also 1943 Pat. 218 as to the method of effecting assignment. The proceeding for assignment will in no way operate to the prejudice of any defence the surety's representatives may have in a suit brought on the bond. 34 C.W.N. 953=1930 O. 594. An order by the District Court fixing the liability of the surety is not called for and not necessary before the Court can assign the bond to the minor or any other guardian of his, appointed by the Court. There is no provision in the Act for the surety being a party to any proceedings in which accounts may be taken and no provision by which the surety can appeal against the order of the District Court fixing his liability. 135 I.C. 833=1932 A. 177. A certificate of guardianship is not a public or official record within the meaning of sec. 35 and is therefore not admissible in evidence. 53 A. 428=130 I.C. 201=1931 A. 307. What sec. 35 apparently contemplates is that an entry should have been made by an officer whose duty it is to make such an entry after having been satisfied as to its correctness. 53 A. 428=130 I.C. 201=1931 A. 307.

SECS. 35 AND 36.—A suit for accounts by a ward against his late guardian or his representatives if it is proved that his property had gone into their hands is maintainable. 22 Bom.L.R. 633=44 B. 852. See also 18 I. C. 876=17 C.W.N. 695. Ward should not be compelled to file regular suit for satisfying Court that engagement has not been kept up. 1928 M. 545=54 M.L.J. 671. Sec. 35 is perfectly general and can apply to a case where the ward was a minor or to a case where the ward has ceased to be a minor. The section is intended to cover both the cases. There is nothing in sec. 35 making it inapplicable to the case of a ward attaining majority and applying for an assignment of the bond. (42 M. 302; 51 M.L.J. 241, Diss. from). 1928 M. 545=54 M.L.J. 671. A suit brought against the guardian of the property of a minor under sec. 36 is maintainable though the leave of the Court is obtained subsequent to filing. 22 Bom.L.R. 787=44 B. 602.

APPEAL.—See 135 I.C. 833=1932 A.L.J. 47=1932 A. 177; 30 B. 164=7 Bom.L.R. 803.

SEC. 36: SCOPE—SUIT FOR RENDITION OF ACCOUNTS.—The principle underlying sec. 36 is one of universal application and can be applied even to a case where the guardian is not appointed by the Court. The minors are therefore entitled to maintain a suit for rendition of accounts against the legal representative of the guardian. The fact that the minors have entered into a compromise with one of the legal representatives cannot in any way deprive them of the right of bringing a suit for rendition of accounts against the others. 1934 L. 410.

SECS. 36 AND 37.—A minor can sue the legal representative of his deceased guardian for accounts where the guardian had died without rendering accounts, and sec. 41 (3) is no bar to it. 55 P.E. 1918=46 I.C. 457.

37. Nothing in either of the two last foregoing sections shall be construed to deprive a ward or his representative of any remedy against his guardian, or the representative of the guardian, which, not being expressly provided in either of those sections, any other beneficiary or his representative would have against his trustee or the representative of the trustee.

General liability of guardian as trustee.

Termination of Guardianship.

Right of survivorship among joint guardians.

38. On the death of one of two or more joint guardians, the guardianship continues to the survivor or survivors until a further appointment is made by the Court.

Removal of guardian.

39. The Court may, on the application of any person interested, or of its own motion, remove a guardian appointed or declared by the Court, or a guardian appointed by will or other instrument, for any of the following causes, namely:—

- (a) for abuse of his trust;
- (b) for continued failure to perform the duties of his trust;
- (c) for incapacity to perform the duties of his trust;
- (d) for ill-treatment, or neglect to take proper care, of his ward;
- (e) for contumacious disregard of any provision of this Act or of any order of the Court;
- (f) for conviction of an offence implying, in the opinion of the Court, a defect of character which unfits him to be the guardian of his ward;

SEC. 39.—The provisions of the Act apply to guardians appointed by will and action can be taken in regard to them under secs. 39, 41 and 45. 8 L. 306=103 I.C. 470=1927 L. 344.

SCOPE OF SECTION.—The Court cannot appoint a guardian of the person of a Hindu minor of a joint family. 57 I.C. 678=11 L.W. 596. It is open to a District Court to remove a guardian for continued failure to perform the duties of his trust, for incapacity to perform those duties and for contumacious disregard of any order of the Court. Failure to keep account of trust property is a failure to perform a very important duty of the trust and the illiteracy which is a bar to the performance of such duty can be looked upon as an incapacity under sec. 39 (c). If a man is illiterate, it is still his duty to furnish account by employing another person to keep accounts. 117 I.C. 782=1930 sec. 14. If a guardian has been appointed of the persons and property of the minor sons by their father by means of a will, the Court has no jurisdiction to proceed with the appointment of another guardian until the guardian appointed by the will is removed from guardianship under the provisions of sec. 39 of the Guardians and Wards Act. 41 P.L.R. 12. Wishes of minors in a position to exercise their discretion to be consulted. 1925 L. 342. Courts removing guardians must, first of all, be satisfied that there are present one or more of the reasons for the removal of guardians set out in sec. 39, and should expressly state what the reasons are which justify the order removing the guardian. The mere circumstance that the minor is sufficiently old to be able to express a preference for one person over another for his guardian is no reason for removal of a guardian. 165 I.C. 1936 M.W.N. 373=1936 P.L.R. 1936. Cessation of authority of guardian.

41. (1) The powers of a guardian of the person cease—

CL. (h).—An applicant for guardianship must reside within the jurisdiction of the Court to which he makes the application. 36 A. 280=24 I.C. 59. But see also 1925 N. 224=75 I.C. 595. This is an enabling clause. Person outside jurisdiction can also be appointed in a fit and proper case. 1940 Pesh. 14. But see 58 C. 15, infra. It is within the discretion of the Court to appoint a man who does not reside within the local limits of its jurisdiction as a guardian or not. There is no provision in the Act prohibiting the appointment of a person as a guardian who does not reside within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court. A plain reading of sec. 39 shows that the Court has been given the power to remove a guardian who has ceased to reside within its local limits. The word "may" has been used and not "shall". But the converse proposition is not true. 188 I.C. 555=1940 Pesh. 14. See also 75 I.C. 595=1925 Nag. 224. Under the Guardians and Wards Act, it is not essential that a person who applies for being appointed guardian of the property of a minor should be a resident of the district in which the property is situated. The power of the Court under sec. 39 of the Act to remove a guardian who is not residing in the district within which the property is situated is discretionary and it cannot reasonably be inferred therefrom that the applicant must necessarily be a resident of the district in which the property is situated. 44 P.L.R. 202.

Obiter.—Sec. 39 seems to suggest that a Court should not appoint a person who is resident outside its jurisdiction as guardian. 58 C. 15=1930 C. 397. Person residing out of jurisdiction of Court may be appointed guardian. 1933 A.L.J. 1333=1933 A. 780.

CL. (j).—A widow appointed as testamentary guardian does not become legally disqualified by re-marriage to continue to be guardian. 18 I.C. 133.

NOTICE.—Removal of guardian—Notice to show cause essential before removal. 27 I.C. 18=20 C.L.J. 298. Before removing a guardian, he should be given notice setting out for which of the causes mentioned in sec. 39 it is proposed to remove him. 116 I.C. 669 (1)=1925 N. 176.

APPEAL.—There is no appeal from an order made by the District Judge refusing to remove a guardian. 14 I.C. 56=195 P.W.R. 1912 (19 C. 487; 23 C. 201; 20 B. 667; 20 A. 433, Foll.). Order removing guardian is appealable. 1925 O. 280.

SECS. 39 AND 43.—A first cousin, once removed, of a minor comes within the terms of sec. 8 (b) and is thereby entitled to make an application for the appointment of a guardian. The fact that he comes within the terms of sec. 8 is quite enough to make him personally interested within the meaning of sec. 39 and he is, therefore, entitled to file an application for the removal of a guardian. The fact that he is at enmity with the guardian is immaterial. I.L.R. (1939) 2 Cal. 440=185 I.C. 880=12 B.C. 420.

SECS. 39 AND 43.—Relative scope—Testamentary guardian—Removal—Directions and conditions as to discharge of duties—Powers of Court. See 71 M.L.J. 417.

SEC. 40.—Application for removal of guardian dismissed—Subsequent application is barred. 20 A.L.J. 959=49 A. 196=1922 A. 540. See also 136 I.C. 3=1932 L. 306 cited under sec. 41, Cl. (4).

SEC. 41: SCOPE OF SECTION.—Sec. 41 is not confined to the case of guardian appointed by the Court. The word "guardian" in that section refers not merely to a guardian appointed or declared by the Court, but also to other guardians, including guardians appoin-

- (a) by his death, removal or discharge ;
 - (b) by the Court of Wards assuming superintendence of the person of the ward ;
 - (c) by the ward ceasing to be a minor ;
 - (d) in the case of a female ward, by her marriage to a husband who is not unfit to be a guardian of her person or, if the guardian was appointed or declared by the Court, by her marriage to a husband who is not, in the opinion of the Court, so unfit ; or
 - (e) in the case of a ward whose father was unfit to be guardian of the person of the ward, by the father ceasing to be so or, if the father was deemed by the Court to be so unfit, by his ceasing to be so in the opinion of the Court.
- (2) The powers of a guardian of the property cease—
- (a) by his death, removal or discharge ;
 - (b) by the Court of Wards assuming superintendence of the property of the ward ; or
 - (c) by the ward ceasing to be a minor ;
- (3) When for any cause the powers of a guardian cease, the Court may require him or, if he is dead, his representative to deliver as it directs any property in his possession or control belonging to the ward or any accounts in his possession or control relating to any past or present property of the ward, ted by instruments. Under sec. 41 (b), the rights of a person who claims to be the legally constituted guardian of a minor come to an end when the Court of Wards assumes superintendence. 150 I.O. 706=1934 O. 392.

APPLICATION OF DISCHARGE ON GROUND OF MAJORITY—EFFECT OF ORDER.—In an application by the guardian for a discharge on the ground of majority, it is not necessary for the Court to declare the minor to have attained majority. The Court, when it accepts the fact that the minor has attained majority, does not make any order under the Act, which would be final and not liable to be contested by suit or otherwise. It is open to the minor to show that he had not attained the age of majority on that date in spite of the orders passed by the Judge. 149 I.C. 781=1934 A.L.J. 318=1934 A. 406 (F.B.).

SEC. 41 (3).—The words "in his possession or control" should be taken in the narrow sense of "in this sense of the guardian, having a power of disposition over it and not in the actual possession". It does not mean that if the guardian has converted the Government Promissory Notes of his ward and disposed of the property or proceeds, no order can be made against him under sec. 41. 152 I.C. 1073=38 C.W.N. 438=1934 C. 520. On an application for the discharge of guardian, the Court has power to direct an investigation into accounts filed in Court. See 92 I.C. 98=1926 M. 419. But see 50 M. 80. Sec. 41 does not authorise a Court to order accounts to be rendered after the termination of the guardianship. 49 I.C. 132=29 C.L.J. 44. See also 18 S.L.B. 85=1925 S. 269. As to construction of section, see 10 L. 127=30 P.L.B. 680. Sec. 41 has no application to guardians whose powers had ceased by reason of their wards having attained majority or otherwise before the passing of the Act. 17 B. 566. See also 149 I.C. 781=1934 A. 406 (F.B.). Under sec. 41 (3) the guardian is liable to deliver any property in his possession or control belonging to the ward or any accounts in his possession or control relating to any past or present property of the ward. But the Court has no power to compel the guardian to pay any sum found due from the guardian after the enquiry. Per Curiam, J.—It cannot be said, if the deceased guardian's accounts are wrong, the Court can compel the representative of the guardian to pay into Court any sum found due after an investigation. 130 I.C. 779=1931 L. 68. Where the only object is to protect the minor's property the object can still be served by directing the deceased guardian to furnish solvent security for payment of any amount that may be found due on scrutiny of accounts. It is hard on a guardian to be called upon to deposit a large amount in cash. 1938 N.L.J. 202=1938 Neg. 539. The guardian must without prejudice to his title or to anything he could establish by suit be compelled to give up possession on ceasing to be guardian. 1930 P.L.B. 674 (1). Property in guardian's possession or control, whether correct or not, is to be delivered over. 1930 S. 43. Under sec. 41 (3) the guardian is liable to deliver any property in his possession or control belonging to the ward or any account in his possession or control relating to any past or present property of the ward. But the Court has no power to compel the guardian to pay any sum found due from the guardian after the enquiry. Per Curiam—It cannot be said, if the deceased guardian's accounts are wrong, the Court can compel the representative of the guardian to pay into Court any sum found due after an investigation. 31 P.L.B. 965=1931 L. 68. See also 10 L. 168. The Court has power to require a de facto guardian to deliver the infant's properties to the guardian appointed under the Act. 51 I.C. 236=36 M.L.J. 180. Under sec. 41 (3), a Court cannot compel the guardian of a minor to pay to the minor any sum found due from the guardian after an enquiry into the accounts, and the only order which

(4) When he has delivered the property or accounts as required by the Court, the Court may declare him to be discharged from his liabilities save as regards any fraud which may subsequently be discovered.

it could pass is for the payment of the balance on the accounts exhibited by the guardian. 161 I.C. 493=1936 A.W.R. 100=1936 A.L.J. 36=1936 A. 179. A ward cannot maintain a suit against the widow and minor sons of his deceased guardian. 9 I.C. 591=74 P.W.R. 1911 (22 A. 332, Mal.; 11 Bom.L.R. 190; 7 I.C. 214, Dist.). Meaning of 'property belonging to the ward' in sec. 41 (3). 51 I.C. 529=1918 M.W.N. 440. "Any cause" includes death of the minor which terminates the guardianship. 51 I.C. 529. Death of ward—Power to direct guardian to hand over properties to heir. 51 I.C. 529=1918 M.W.N. 440. See also 42 A. 1=52 I.C. 167; 92 I.C. 196=1922 S. 269. Death of ward—Succession disputed—Court should not order guardian to hand over properties to one of the claimants. See 22 L.W. 642=92 I.C. 570. If the guardian is incompetent or is otherwise an improper person to be allowed to continue as such, proper proceedings must be taken under sec. 39 for his removal and the appointment of another guardian. But until this is done, it is the duty of the Court to render all assistance to the guardian in the discharge of his duties and to see that the minors remain in his custody. 100 I.C. 807=1927 L. 266. Person other than natural guardian appointed as guardian—Effect—Power of natural guardian, does not revive on removal of guardian so appointed. See 50 C.W.N. 129.

SECS. 41, CLS. (3) AND (4).—When the quodam guardian has complied with the directions of the Court under sub-sec. (3), the Court has full discretion in the matter under sub-sec. (4) to discharge him, if it thinks fit. In exercising such discretion the Judge is exercising a jurisdiction vested in him and as such it cannot be interfered with in revision. I.L.R. (1938) Mad. 667=1938 Mad. 347=(1938) 1 M.L.J. 285 (F.B.). Where the ward is not satisfied by the accounts rendered by the guardian, it is the duty of the Court to order an enquiry into the accounts. The Court cannot shirk its duty by suggesting a remedy by way of a separate suit in view of the provisions of sec. 48. 191 I.C. 108=1940 Rang. 246.

CL. (4).—A suit will lie against the guardian's son and a surety to render accounts in the absence of an order of discharge of the guardian. 67 I.C. 935=3 Lah.L.J. 364. Even after discharge of guardian his liability continues for mistakes discovered subsequently. 23 A.L.J. 428=88 I.C. 165=1935 A. 457. To bar a suit by a ward on attaining majority against a guardian for rendition of accounts, the order of discharge under sec. 41 (4) must be in express terms. 25 P. R. 1918=41 I.C. 344 (34 C. 211; 15 C.L.J. 57, Foll.). The proper thing for a Court when the guardian applies for a discharge, is to give a notice to the minor. If the minor

If, however, he has any objections, the Court may look into them in a summary manner, and if it is satisfied prima facie that there is some force in the objections, it will refuse to declare the guardian discharged from his liabilities under sec. 41 (4), and direct the minor to obtain redress by means of a suit, and the discharge will be given on the basis of the decision of the regular suit. 161 I.C. 493=1936 A.L.J. 36=1936 A. 179. Where a guardian of property has been appointed, on the minor coming of age, the proper course for a Court is either to refuse a discharge if it appeared that there was sufficient reason to keep open the question of the guardian's liability or to exercise its power under sec. 41 (4) and discharge him if it considered that he has acted properly throughout and that no reasonable claim could be brought against him. I.L.R. (1938) Mad. 667=1938 Mad. 347=(1938) 1 M.L.J. 285 (F.B.). An order discharging a guardian under sec. 41 (4) must be regarded as discharging him from all his liabilities as guardian except in respect of any frauds committed by him which may subsequently be discovered. "Liability" referred to in the clause is not confined to liabilities to which the guardian is made subject by the Act but includes all the liabilities of the guardian under the general law to render an account of his management to the minor. When the guardian has rendered accounts and has been discharged by the Court under S. 41 (4), it is not open to the minor after becoming a major to sue the guardian praying that an account should be taken of the management. The suit, to be maintainable, should be framed as one for falsifying or surcharging the account already rendered by the guardian and not merely for taking an account. 44 L.W. 441=1936 M. 868=71 M.L.J. 658. When an application is made by the mother of a minor under S. 39 for removal of a guardian appointed under the Act and for appointing herself as guardian of the property of the minor, and the Court orders the guardian to be discharged on the ground that he had furnished proper accounts which were checked and found correct by the Court, the discharge must be deemed to have been granted under S. 41 (4) of the Act. 44 L.W. 441=1936 M. 868=71 M.L.J. 658. See also 8 Mys.L.J. 25. Order of discharge of guardian must be express—Guardian cannot set up title of third person. 2 Pat.L.T. 556=61 I.C. 807=6 Pat.L.J. 273. See also 1932 L. 306. Minor attaining majority—Discharge of guardian—Filing accounts in Court—Court has no power to inquire into correctness of accounts—Separate suit is remedy of minor. 50 M. 80=1926 M. 977=51 M.L.J. 241. On this section, see also 26 A.L.J. 290=1928 A. 259.

42. When a guardian appointed or declared by the Court is discharged, or, under the law to which the ward is subject, ceases to be entitled to act, or when any such guardian or a guardian appointed by will or other instrument is removed or dies, the Court, of its own motion or on application under Chapter II, may, if the ward is still a minor, appoint or declare another guardian of his person or property, or both, as the case may be.

Appointment of successor to guardian dead, discharged or removed.

TERMINATION OF GUARDIANSHIP—SUBSEQUENT ORDER FOR RESTORATION OF PROPERTY—POWER OF COURT.—An order for delivery of specific properties, to wit. Government Promissory Notes can be made against the guardian on an application made even after the termination of the guardianship by reason of the ward having attained majority. (5 C. W.N. 207, Dist.) 152 I.C. 1073=38 C.W. N. 438=1934 C. 520.

PROPERTY OF WARD NOT TAKEN POSSESSION OF BY THE GUARDIAN—ORDER FOR RESTORATION.—Though it may be the duty of the guardian, as soon as he was appointed as such, to take possession of the ornaments of the ward from whomsoever they were with, and his failure to do so is a great dereliction of duty, where, however, it is proved he had never obtained possession of those ornaments, no order can be made under S. 41 directing him to restore such property. 152 I.C. 1073=38 C.W.N. 438=1934 C. 520.

INTEREST, RATE OF ON RESTORATION.—Where the guardian is ordered, to restore certain Government Promissory Notes belonging to the ward, he can only be charged with interest at 3-1/2 per cent., the interest which the ward would have got if those notes had been duly handed over to her. 152 I.C. 1073=38 C. W.N. 438=1934 C. 520.

SECS. 41 AND 43: GUARDIAN REQUIRED TO CONTINUE PERIODICAL PAYMENTS—APPEALABILITY OF ORDER.—Where a guardian has been required to continue the fixed periodical payments which the Court required him to make as a condition of being appointed guardian, and it is because he is unwilling to comply with this condition that he refuses to act as guardian, the requisition is not an order under S. 41, but one under S. 43 and as such is appealable. 1935 L. 931.

SECS. 41 (3) AND 45.—The power of a Court under S. 41 (3) to direct a guardian on termination of his guardianship to deliver any property belonging to the ward extends to monies belonging to the minor. S. 45 is not inapplicable to a guardian after his removal. In view of the above, it cannot be contended that the accounts filed by a guardian prior to his removal should be deemed to have been passed by the Court. 19 Pat. 398. 485=1938 P.W.N. 509=1938 Pat. 398. There is no provision in the Guardians and Wards Act which authorises the execution of an order passed by the District Judge in a proceeding under that Act, directing an ex-guardian to deposit into Court a certain sum of money. Though the Court has ample powers to enforce obedience of its orders by proceeding under S. 45 of the Act, the Act nowhere provides that an order may be executed as if it were a decree or an executable order of a Civil Court within the meaning of S. 36, C.P. Code. It is, however, open to the District Judge to proceed under S. 45 or direct the institution of a regular suit against ex-guardian so that the amount which is ultimately found to be realisable from him may be realised from the properties given by him as security under a security bond executed by him in favour of the Court. A guardian or ex-guardian can be directed to bring in the money which is found due from him upon a proper scrutiny of the accounts and not merely of so much of the money as he admits to be due from him, and in case of his failure to do so, he can be proceeded against under S. 45 of the Act to enforce that order. Such an order cannot be executed as if it were a decree of a Civil Court. 21 Pat. 223=1942 P.W.N. 188=A.I.R. 1942 Pat. 422.

SECS. 41 (3) AND 43: DUTY OF WARD—POWER OF COURT TO DETERMINE TO WHOM GUARDIAN OR EX-GUARDIAN SHOULD DELIVER PROPERTY.—When a ward is dead, the Court has jurisdiction under S. 41 (3) to direct the guardian or receiver to hand over the property in accordance with the Court's orders. The Court may direct the filing of an interpleader suit. There is, however, no restriction on a Court's powers to determine to whom the property should be handed over and such determination in no way confers a title on the person to whom the property is given, and the question of title is not concluded by the order. 1944 Nag. 528=1944 Pat. 111.E. 1944 Nag. 528.

SECS. 41 (3) AND 45.—This section comes into operation only where a guardian is properly removed. 27 I.C. 28=20 C.L.J. 298. Object of the section. See 4 I.C. 603. Court has power to appoint a person who has not made an application himself and whose name is not mentioned in an application under this section as guardian. (Ibid.) An order appointing a guardian under S. 42 is appealable under S. 47. 93 I.C. 776=7 S.L.R. 90. Where a guardian of the person and property of a minor has been appointed, the minor should be treated as a minor or infant and would not be able to enter into a contract or to transact any kind of business himself until the age of 21, and when a guardian so appointed has resigned, another guardian should be appointed to the person and property of the minor even though he has exceeded the age of 18 years. 162 I.C. 716=1936 L. 142.

CHAPTER IV.

SUPPLEMENTAL PROVISIONS.

43. (i) The Court may, on the application of any person interested or of its own motion, make an order regulating the conduct or proceedings of any guardian appointed or declared by the Court.

Sec. 43.—A guardian disobeying an order of the District Court under the Act can be ordered to give security for his own appearance but cannot be compelled to cause the production of another person. 18 I.C. 922=24 M.L.J. 231. The exercise of powers by District Judges over the guardians appointed by them, should be kept within limits provided by law, and should not be wholly arbitrary, made before necessary enquiries are held in the manner provided by law. Orders which are arbitrary are liable to be set aside. 64 C.L.J. 556=1937 C. 424. S. 43 (4) limits the exercise of the powers to punish a disobedience of orders passed under cls. (1) and (2). 103 I.C. 493. In the case of a minor for whom a personal guardian has been appointed and who undertook not to marry the minor without the Court's permission, the marriage or connivance at marriage with the ward of the Court without the consent of the Court is contempt of Court liable to be severely punished. These powers of the District Judge are however limited to the actual guardian in respect of whom the order is made and cannot be exercised as against persons indirectly committing the breach by assisting the guardian in the act. (42 C. 351, Rel. on.) 81 Bom.L.R. 1120=122 I.C. 140=1929 B. 417. "Regulating the conduct or proceedings of a guardian" cannot be interpreted as an order holding that prior to the date of such order guardian had caused loss to the estate which he should make good. (1926 M. 478, Not App.) 121 I.C. 168=1930 S. 43. S. 43 enables a Court to regulate by its order the conduct of persons either appointed or declared by the Court. A person who is appointed executor under a will and who disclaims that he is a guardian of the minor sons of the testator cannot be declared to be a guardian against his will by reason of S. 17 (5) of the Act. S. 43 is therefore inapplicable to him, and does not justify the Court to impose conditions on him in regard to his discharge of duties as guardian. Obiter.—Under S. 39 which is wider in its scope than S. 43, the Court may remove a guardian appointed or declared by the Court or a guardian appointed by a will. 44 L.W. 518=1936 M. 848=71 M. L.J. 417. One of the duties of a guardian of a minor girl is to provide a suitable bridegroom. Whatever he does in relation to that is either conduct or proceedings within the meaning of S. 43. Where a Court authorises the guardian to celebrate the marriage of the girl, his act is a regulation of conduct or proceeding on the part of the guardian. The appellate Court has therefore the right to hear appeal from such an order under the provisions of S. 47 (1) read with S. 43. 1930 A.L.J. 152=121 I. C. 690=1930 A. 66. It is not the function of the District Judge to act as a match-maker for the female ward, much less on the application of the guardian of the property of the ward to select a particular bridegroom and force him upon the minor against the wishes of the minor and her step-mother who is appointed guardian of the person of the minor. The natural guardian or the guardian appointed by Court for the person of the minor should apply to the Court for sanction in granting which the wishes of the minor where the minor is old enough to form an intelligent preference, cannot be ignored. 56 B. 71=130 I.C. 732 (2)=34 Bom.L.R. 83=1932 B. 156. Legislature has neither expressly nor impliedly given power to the Court to record a definite finding as to the exact amount due by the guardian as a result of an enquiry binding upon the guardian and to compel its payment; and if there is a definite finding by a Court as to the amount which the ex-guardian had to pay as the result of the enquiry, to that extent the finding is not warranted by the provisions of the Act and is without jurisdiction. 121 I. C. 168=1930 S. 43. S. 436 read with S. 34 impliedly provide for expenditure in connection with the auditing of the accounts relating to the property of the ward. 11 P. L.T. 349=1930 P. 384 (2). As to power of Court to make order in relation to third parties, see 1934 A. 1043=1934 A.L.J. 1208. Distinction in powers of Court under Secs. 43 and 12 of this Act and O. 39, C. P.C. See 1940 N.L.J. 157=1940 Nag. 203.

APPLICATION FOR INVESTMENT OF MINOR'S MONEY—APPEAL.—An application under S. 43 (1) of the Act can be made only by a person interested in the minor. Where a stranger filed an application under S. 43 of the Act praying that a loan might be ordered to be given out of the minor's funds on a first mortgage of immovable properties and notices were issued to the personal guardian, the outstandings' guardian, and the immovable properties guardian of the minor and though the several guardians opposed the petition the Court ordered the grant of the loan, held, that the order was one regulating the conduct or proceedings of the guardian appointed by the Court, as contemplated in S. 4, against which an appeal would lie to the High Court under S. 47 (1) of the Act. Held, further, that the petitioner was not a

(2) Where there are more guardians than one of a ward, and they are unable to agree upon a question affecting his welfare, any of them may apply to the Court for its direction, and the Court may make such order respecting the matter in difference as it thinks fit.

(3) Except where it appears that the object of making an order under sub-section (1) or sub-section (2) would be defeated by the delay, the Court shall, before making the order, direct notice of the application therefor or of the intention of the Court to make it, as the case may be, to be given, in a case under sub-section (1), to the guardian or, in a case under sub-section (2), to the guardian who has not made the application.

(4) In case of disobedience to an order made under sub-section (1) or sub-section (2) the order may be enforced in the same manner as an injunction granted under section 492 or 493 of the Code of Civil Procedure, in a case under sub-section (1), as if the ward were the plaintiff and the guardian were the defendant, or, in a case under sub-section (2) as if the guardian who made the application were the plaintiff and the other guardian were the defendant.

(5) Except in a case under sub-section (2), nothing in this section shall apply to a Collector who is, as such, a guardian.

44. If, for the purpose or with the effect of preventing the Court from exercising its authority with respect to a ward, a guardian appointed or declared by the Court removes the ward from the limits of the jurisdiction of the Court in contravention of the provisions of S. 26, he shall be liable, by order of the Court, to fine not exceeding one thousand rupees, or to imprisonment in the civil jail for a term which may extend to six months.

Penalty for contumacy.

45. (1) In the following cases, namely:—

(a) if a person having the custody of a minor fails to produce him or cause him to be produced in compliance with a direction under section 12, sub-section (1), or to do his utmost to compel the minor to return to the custody of his guardian in obedience to an order under S. 25, sub-section (1), or

Secs. 43 to 45 have no application to cases where interim orders in the form of injunctions restraining persons from causing injury to the persons or property of minors are issued by the Court. 28 M.L.R. 332.

Sec. 45.—The words "contumacy" in S. 45 means something more than mere disobedience of an order under Cl. (a) in S. 34. 49 I.C. 624; 17 A.L.J. 300. On this section, see also 16 M.L.J. 286; 1 I.C. 338=23 Bom.L.R. 190. Section applies also to a guardian who has been removed. 175 I.C. 173=19 Pat.L.T. 485=1938 Pat. 398. Under

S. 45 it is not open to the Court to take disciplinary action against a late guardian for non-compliance with an order issued to him to pay into Court an amount which was not admittedly due from him, but was arrived at by the Court itself on the basis of a report made by the present guardian, together with the Court's own inquiry into the business of the late guardian. 1938 Pat. 398. (b) if a guardian appointed or declared by the Court fails to deliver to the Court, within the time allowed by or under clause (b) of S. 34, a statement required under that clause, or to exhibit accounts in compliance with a requisition under clause (c) of that section, or to pay into the Court the balance due from him on those accounts in compliance with a requisition under clause (d) of that section, or

(c) if a person who has ceased to be a guardian, or the representative of such a person, fails to deliver any property or accounts in compliance with a requisition under S. 41, sub-section (3), the person, guardian or representative, as the case may be, shall be liable, by order of the Court, to fine not exceeding one hundred rupees, and in case of recusancy to further fine not exceeding ten rupees for each day after the first during which the default continues, and not exceeding five hundred rupees in the aggregate, and to detention in the civil jail until he undertakes to produce the minor or cause him to be produced, or to compel his return, or to deliver the statement or to exhibit the accounts, or to pay the balance, or to deliver the property or accounts, as the case may be.

(2) If a person who has been released from detention on giving an undertaking under sub-section (1) fails to carry out the undertaking within the time allowed by the Court, the Court may cause him to be arrested and re-committed to the civil jail.

46. (1) The Court may call upon the Collector, or upon any Court subordinate to the Court, for a report on any matter arising in any proceeding under this Act and treat the report as evidence.

(2) For the purpose of preparing the report, the Collector or the Judge of the subordinate Court, as the case may be, shall make such inquiry as he deems necessary, and may for the purposes of the inquiry exercise any power of compelling the attendance of a witness to give evidence or produce a document which is conferred on a Court by the Code of Civil Procedure.

liver any property or account in his possession on the same footing as failure by the guardian himself to do the same. This clause therefore refers only to wilful non-compliance with what is within the competence of the person ordered to do which he has contumaciously declined and nothing more. 121 I.C. 168=1930 S. 43. Where the Court acting under S. 45, imposed penalty on the guardian for non-compliance of an order to produce the minor without giving him an opportunity to show cause against infliction of the penalty, held, the order imposing penalty was obviously untenable. 114 I.C. 333=1929 L. 660. The Court has no authority under S. 45 to demand payment from the guardian of any more than the balance shown due by the guardian's accounts as put in. Such order cannot also be made when no enquiry is made, even assuming that the guardian's accounts are false, as to what the income and the expenditure for each year actually is. 125 I.C. 328=1930 L. 558. An order by the Court directing a guardian to pay unrealised purchase-money from his vendee—Order to pay unrealised money in Court or pay a daily fine—Whether ultra vires. 33 I.C. 918=20 O.W.N. 663. SEC. 46.—It is only when the District Court calls upon the Collector to report under S. 46 that it is open to the Court to treat it as evidence. 25 Bom.L.R. 1232=1924 B. 157. On this section, see also 26 B. 716; 7 A.L.J. 321; 23 B. 698.

APPEAL—HIGH COURT—INHERENT POWER.—The High Court, apart from Cl. 15 of the Letters Patent, has inherent jurisdiction to hear an appeal in a matter affecting a Ward of Court. 32 Bom.L.R. 1301. See also 121 I.C. 690. No appeal lies from an order calling on the guardian to pay such balance as the Court may find to be due from him. 34 P.L.R. 549=1933 L. 484=141 I.C. 590. An order entitling ward to recover a sum of money from his guardian is not an order regulating the conduct or proceedings of a guardian or settling a matter in difference, etc., within the meaning of S. 47 (i) of the Guardians and Wards Act, and is, therefore, not open to appeal. 154 I.C. 17=11 O.W. CASES WHERE APPEAL LIES.—An appeal lies only against an order appointing a person, guardian of the property of a minor. 30 M.L.J. 508=34 I.C. 432. But an order approving the security furnished by him and ratifying the original appointment is not appealable. 30 M.L.J. 508. (27 I.C. 921, Foll.) Order sanctioning sale of minor's property is appealable. 1924 N. 269. Whether an order directing the marriage of a minor ward is appealable, see 56 B. 71=137 I.C. 732=34 Bom.L.R. 83=1932 B. 156. CASES WHERE NO APPEAL LIES.—An order refusing to remove a guardian is final and no appeal lies against it. 18 A.L.J. 624=56 I.C. 208; 1924 M. 327. See also 78 I.C. 138 (Order fixing remuneration of guardian). See also 45 M. 873=45 M.L.J. 481. There is no appeal against an order of the District Judge refusing to order the person in possession of a minor's property to hand over the property to an appointed guardian and referring the guardian to a separate suit. 40 P.L.R. 1912=13 I.C. 326. An order returning an application for guardianship for presentation to the Court having territorial jurisdiction, is not appealable. 53 I.C. 563=107 P.R. 1919. An order of the District Judge sanctioning a marriage of minor girl while an application for appointing a guardian for her is pending is not appealable. 44 B. 690=57 I.C. 79. Order fixing expense of maintenance and education of minor is not appealable. 1925 N. 141. See also 1938 N.L.J. 195=1 L.R. (1940) Nag. 221=1938 Nag. 495. RIGHT OF SUIT.—[See also notes under S. 47, supra.] There is nothing in the Guardians and Wards Act to prevent a Hindu husband from maintaining a suit in the Civil Court for a declaration that a minor was his lawfully wedding wife. There is nothing in the Act to suggest that the marriage of a minor girl under his custody by the mother of the girl without the approbation of the former is null and void. 133 I.C. 289=1931 A.L.J. 816. An order dismissing an application for guardianship cannot be contested by a regular suit. 33 I.C. 987=24 P.W.R. 1916. S. 48 does not cover the case of a requisition under S. 41 (3) and a separate suit will lie to contest the propriety of the requisition under S. 41 (3). 51 I.C. 236=36 M.L.J. 189. SEC. 48.—It is not open to a plaintiff in order to enforce a debt contracted by a minor to show that a judgment which has the effect of making him a minor (i.e., an order appointing a guardian for the minor and thereby extending the period of minority) was obtained by collusion. S. 48 bars any contest regarding the validity of the judgment appointing a guardian except by the procedure of appeal or revision. Since the judgment falls under S. 43 of the Evidence Act, there is no power to attack that judgment under S. 44 of the Evidence Act. 53 L.W. 352=1941 M.W.N. 237=1941 Mad. 569= (1941) 1 M.L.J. 492. The Court has no authority to lay down a period of limitation different from that prescribed by the Limitation Act and has no power to compel the ward to institute a suit for accounts against the guardian within that period under the threat that failure to sue as aforesaid would result in the discharge of the guardian. 191 I.C. 108=1940 Rang. 246. SEC. 49.—There is no law which entitles a person to start a litigation for the appointment of guardian of a minor and then later on call upon the minor to recoup him of the cost of litigation. S. 49 gives the Court ample powers to order who should bear the cost of the litigation. If he carries on the litigation honestly for the benefit of the minor concerned, it is open to him to ask the Court to allow him the costs from the minor's estate. When he does not do that, a suit by him for recovery of the amount of costs from the minor will in no circumstances be maintainable. 1936 P. 194=16 Pat.L.T. 649.
